MEANING OF TERMS USED IN CLASSIFYING ANNOTATING CASES.

THE different expressions used to describe the effect of the annotating cases have the following meanings, and the classification of the annotating cases has been done strictly in accordance with these meanings. The annotating cases are listed chronologically except such as are classified as "Referred to" or "Mentioned." These come at the end and are arranged inter se in chronological order. The terms used in classifying the annotating cases are as follows:—

- "APPLIED" (Apld.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the principle of law enunciated in the annotated case has been applied to a new set of facts and circumstances in the annotating case.
- "APPROVED" (Apprvd.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the annotated case has been considered to be good law in the annotating case where the latter is in a higher court than the former.
- "CONSIDERED" (Consd.).—This expression is used where the remarks in the annotating case are devoid of adverse criticism and merely denote the giving of more or less careful consideration to the annotated case.
- "DISTINGUISHED" (Distd.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but where some essential difference (either on the facts or in law) between it and the annotated case is pointed out.
- "DOUBTED" (Dbtd.).—This expression is used where the court in the annotating case, without definitely going to the length of saying that the annotated case is wrong, adduces reasons which seem to show that it is not accurate.
- "EXPLAINED" (Expld.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but the decision arrived at is justified or accounted for by calling attention to some point of fact or of law which is usually, but not necessarily, one not obvious on the face of the report.
- "EXTENDED" (Extd.).—Compare "APPLIED," supra.
- "FOLLOWED" (Folld.).—This expression is used to denote that the same principles of law are applied in the two cases. It does not necessarily imply that the facts are substantially identical in the two cases.
- "NOT FOLLOWED" (N.F.).—Compare "FOLLOWED," supra, to which it is the adverse.
- "OVERRULED" (Overd.).—This expression is used where the annotating case is on substantially identical facts with the annotated case and in a higher court and the rule in the latter case is held to be wrong.
- "REFERRED" (Refd.).—This expression is used only where the annotating case deals with the point of the Digest paragraph and is without comment of any definite character on the case annotated, and where there is no delicate shade of approval or disapproval which would justify the use of any of the foregoing words.
- "MENTIONED" (Mentd.).—This expression is used only where none of the foregoing terms apply. In other words, it is used only where the case annotated is cited on a point having nothing to do with the point in the Digest paragraph.

Part I.—Definitions.

1. Sale by auction—What is—Auction Duties Act, 1779 (c. 56).]—The agent of the owner of an estate, to be sold at auction, attended at the place & time of sale, & mentioned the upset price, but there were no bidders. He gave notice that he would be ready to treat for a sale by private bargain. Soon after he was called into a private room by some of those who attended at the public meeting, & they gave him offers in writing. He engaged, before inspecting the offers, that the highest offer should be accepted ; & it was accepted accordingly :—Held : this was a sale at auction under 17 Geo. 3, c. 50, & Auction Duties Act, 1779.

When I was A.-G. there was a case in the Exchequer of a female auctioneer. She continued silent during the whole of the sale, but whenever any one bid she gave him a glass of brandy. The sale broke up, & in a private room he that got the last glass of brandy was declared to be the purchaser. This was decided to be an auction (LORD ELDON, C.).—WALKER v. ADVOCATE-GENERAL (1813), 1 Dav. 111 ; 3 E. R. 640.

2. ——— Letting of tithes.]—Tithes are a tenement, & are, as such, within the exemption in s. 14 of the above Act, from the duty on sales by auction imposed by 43 Geo. 3, c. 69, Sched. A. A letting by auction of tithes of corn, then standing & growing on the ground to be transferred by way of lease for one year, to commence from before the day of the auction, is a letting by auction of the tenement, & not a sale of the tithes ; even though no actual lease should be afterwards made of such tithes.—R. v. ELLIS (1816), 3 Price, 323 ; 146 E. R. 276.

3. ——— Written bids.]—A sale was appointed for two certain days, by public advertisement, for the disposal of property (a house & furniture) ; but some of the furniture not being then sold, an announcement was made to the persons assembled that at a future day then named for that purpose the whole of the remainder would be sold. The persons who attended upon the second occasion & were desirous of purchasing were directed to retire to another room, where each was to write two different sums on a piece of paper, & whoever should be found, on giving in those pieces of paper, to have written the largest sum, was to be declared the purchaser :—Held : this was a mode of sale at auction within ss. 3 & 4 of the above Act.—R. v. TAYLOR (1824), M'Cle. 362 ; 148 E. R. 151 ; sub nom. A.-G. v. TAYLOR, 13 Price, 636.

4. ——— Private sale without advertisement.]—The above Act only applies to a public auction, not to a sale where goods are sold by auction privately without advertisement of the sale or catalogue.—R. v. CHAPMAN (1796), 3 Anst. 811 ; 145 E. R. 1047.

5. ——— Sealed tender.]—Property was directed to be sold by the Ch. Ct. The advertisement announcing the sale described it as a “ sale by private contract.” The sale was to be made subject to receiving the sanction of the V.-C., & subject to conditions (inter alia) that persons intending to purchase were to send in sealed tenders, which would be opened by the chief clerk to the V.-C., under whose orders the sale was made, that the chief clerk, after the lapse of four days, would certify who was the purchaser, & that such certificate was “ in due course to be signed & filed, & become binding without further notice or expense to the purchaser ” :—Held : (1) though this was described as a “ sale by private contract,” it had all the incidents of a sale by auction, under the direc-

See, now, Sale of Land by Auction Act, 1867 (c. 48).

6. — Not sale in market overt.—A public sale of a horse at a repository for the sale of horses is not a sale in market overt.—LEE v. BAYES & ROBINSON (1856), 18 C. B. 599 ; 25 L. J. C. P. 249 ; 27 L. T. O. S. 157 ; 20 J. P. 694 ; 2 Jur. N. S. 1093 ; 139 E. R. 1504.

7. Parties to.—In a sale by auction there are three parties, viz., the owner of the property to be sold, the auctioneer, & the portion of the public who attend to bid, which of course includes the highest bidder (MARTIN, B.).—WARLOW v. HARRISON (1859), 1 E. & E. 309 ; 29 L. J. Q. B. 14 ; 1 L. T. 211 ; 6 Jur. N. S. 66 ; 8 W. R. 95 ; 120 E. R. 925, Ex. Ch.

8. Broker—Distinguished from auctioneer.—The right of a broker to sue differs from that of a factor or an auctioneer, both of whom have rights of possession or property in the goods intrusted to them, & a special interest in the performance of the contracts entered into by them for their principals.—FAIRLIE v. FENTON (1870), L. R. 5 Exch. 169 ; 39 L. J. Ex. 107 ; 22 L. T. 373 ; 18 W. R. 700.

9. — ——Semble : the selling of goods by auction within the city of London, by an auctioneer who had paid the duty of 20s. for a licence required by 17 Geo. 3, c. 50, but who had not been admitted as a broker, by the ct. of mayor & aldermen, did not make him liable to the penalty of 6 Ann., c. 16, for acting as a broker without being so admitted.—WILKES v. ELLIS (1795), 2 Hy. Bl. 555 ; 126 E. R. 699.

10. Auctioneer—Independent contractor.—An auctioneer is a skilled agent, to whom complete control of the operations at a sale is intrusted, & he is in the position of an independent contractor.—WALKER v. CRABB (1916), 33 T. L. R. 119 ; 61 Sol. Jo. 219, D. C.

Not trader.—An auctioneer is not a "trader" within that term as applicable to the law relating to bills of exchange, & a partnership of auctioneers is not a trading firm, & one partner has no implied authority to bind the firm by accepting a bill of exchange in the firm name without the knowledge or authority of the other partners.—WHEATLEY v. SMITHERS, [1906] 2 K. B. 321 ; 75 L. J. K. B. 627 ; 95 L. T. 96 ; 54 W. R. 537 ; 22 T. L. R. 591 ; 50 Sol. Jo. 513 ; reusd. on another point, [1907] 2 K. B. 684, C. A.

12 i. Selling without licence—Penalty—Sales by Auction Statute, 1864, s. 18.]—An unlicensed partner of a firm which has the word "auctioneers" painted up on its business premises is liable to the penalty under the above stat., though all sales by auction are conducted by the partner who holds the licence.—*Re ALLEY, Ex p. After several biddings by both the persons who had been negotiating for the purchase, one of them was declared by deft. to be the purchaser :—Held : not such a sale by auction as subjected the seller to the penalty imposed by the above Act on a person acting as an auctioneer without being licensed.—A.-G. v. CATHEW (1840), 3 I. L. R. 149 ; 1 Leg. Rep. 24.—IR.

parties interested are sui juris, & before the ct., they may, if they think it expedient, have a sale effected in this manner. Where, however, there are parties not before the ct., or not sui juris, the duty is thrown upon the ct. of determining what is the most beneficial mode of conducting the sale, & the fact of the power having fallen into disuse tending to show that its exercise was in general inexpedient, the ct. directed a sale by an auctioneer.—*PEMBERTON v. ### SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

16. To sell without reserve—Secret limitation.] An auctioneer has an implied authority to sell without reserve, & if he does so, the vendor cannot set up against the buyer a limitation of that authority not made known to the buyer.

Deft., an auctioneer, was instructed by the owner of a pony to sell it at a public auction, with a reserve price of £25. When the pony was put up at the sale the name of the vendor was disclosed, but deft. inadvertently stated that the sale was without reserve. The pony was knocked down to pltf. for 15 guineas. Deft. immediately afterwards discovered his error, & thereupon put the pony up for sale again, when it was bought in for 17 guineas. No note or memorandum of the sale to pltf. was made. Pltf. brought an action against deft. claiming (inter alia) damages for breach of warranty of authority by deft. :—Held : there was in the circumstances a contract binding on the vendor, on which he could (but for the absence of a written memorandum) have been successfully sued by pltf., & there had been no breach of warranty of authority by deft.—RAINBOW v. RAWSON (1892), 22 O. R. 467.—CAN.

on the trade & business of an auctioneer, within s. 26 of the above stat.—R. v. MARTIN (1841), 4 I. L. R. 153; 2 Leg. Rep. 76; Jebb & B. 81.—IR.

On a subsequent occasion S., having viewed the property, informed W. that he thought it would not fetch more than £300, & accordingly, W. not being willing to attend to the business, his brother & partner fixed the reserved price at £250. W. then withdrew one of the other lots from the sale. ### PART III. SECT. 1.

1. To sell—Auctioneers Act, 1891.]—S. 19 of the above Act does not of itself give any right to auctioneers to sell goods coming into their hands. That right must depend entirely upon the instructions or the contract under which the goods are received.—WILLIAMS & KETTLE, LTD. v. THE OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF HARDING (1908), 27 N. Z. L. R. 871.—N. Z.

16 i. To sell without reserve.]—When goods are sent to an auctioneer, without a price limit, the fact that they are accompanied by an invoice does not mean that the goods shall not be sold at less than the prices therein set forth. The business of auctioneers, when selling movable effects, is to knock them down to the last & highest bidder, & in the absence of special instructions to the contrary, they are entitled to do so, & are not liable for more than the prices so obtained.—NELSON v. HICKS (1899), Q. R. 15 S. C. 465.—CAN.

PART III.—AUTHORITY OF AUCTIONEER.

18. To sell his own property—Agent of purchaser.]—Though the auctioneer at a sale by auction is the agent of the purchaser, he is not his agent for all purposes, & there is no reason why he may not sell property of which he himself is the owner.—FLINT v. WOODIN (1852), 9 Hare, 618; 22 L. J. Ch. 92; 19 L. T. O. S. 240; 16 Jur. 719; 68 E. R. 660.

19. Sale subject to reserve—To fix second reserve—Two equal bidders.]—An estate being directed by decree to be sold, the conditions of sale fixed a reserved bidding, under which the auctioneer announced a sum, & there being two bidders & an uncertainty as to who had bid, the estate was bought in at another sum. Upon petition by a person claiming to be the purchaser that he might be declared the highest bidder, or for a resale :—Held : the auctioneer had no right to fix more than one reserved bidding.—NOTLEY v. SALMON (1853), 1 W. R. 240.

20. — To accept bid lower than reserve.]—A principal who gives authority to an auctioneer to sell subject to a reserve price gives no power to the auctioneer, either expressly or impliedly, to accept a less price (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).—McMANUS v. FORTESCUE, [1907] 2 K. B. 1; 76 L. J. K. B. 393; 96 L. T. 444; 23 T. L. R. 292, C. A.

21. To receive deposit—Within ordinary authority of auctioneer's clerk.]—The receipt of money, as, for instance, for the deposit, is within the ordinary scope of the duty of an auctioneer's clerk.—GOSBELL v. ARCHER (1835), 2 Ad. & El. 500; 1 Har. & W. 31; 4 Nev. & M. K. B. 485; 4 L. J. K. B. 78; 111 E. R. 193.

22. — By cheque.]—On a sale by auction on behalf of a mtgee. in exercise of the power of sale contained in his mtge. deed, the acceptance by the auctioneer, on behalf of the vendor & with his concurrence, of a cheque (dishonoured on presentation) in lieu of cash for the deposit is not, having regard to the common practice at sales by auction, unreasonable, & is not such an act of negligence on the part of the mtgee. as to deprive him of his right to the costs of the abortive sale.—FARRER v. LACY, HARTLAND & CO. (1885), 31 Ch. D. 42; 55 L. J. Ch. 149; 53 L. T. 515; 34 W. R. 22; 2 T. L. R. 11, C. A.

23. To receive purchase price—No implied authority—Bill of exchange.]—An auctioneer derives his authority, with respect to the sale of goods, from the instructions he receives from the vendor; & in the absence of any general agency, the extent of his authority can only be ascertained from the conditions of sale.

At a public sale of growing timber, advertised as the property of pltf., the following conditions of sale were read : "That each purchaser should pay down a deposit of 10 per cent. in part of the purchase-money, & pay the remainder on or before Aug. 17, but in case any purchaser should prefer to pay the whole amount of his purchase-money at an earlier period, discount after the rate of 5 per cent. was to be allowed"; also, "that each purchaser should enter into a proper agreement & bond if required, with such one, two, or more sureties as should be approved by the vendor or his agent, for the performance of his agreement, pursuant to the conditions of sale." Deft. became the purchaser of one lot, & paid the deposit. Some days after the sale, which was on Feb. 14, deft. gave the auctioneer, at his request, a bill of exchange for the residue of the purchase-money. The bill, which was dated on the day of sale, became due on Aug. 17, when it was duly paid :—Held : (1) the auctioneer was the agent of the vendor only for the purposes of the sale, & of receiving the deposit; (2) he had no authority to receive the residue of the purchase-money, either before or after Aug. 17, nor to take any security for the payment of it; (3) assuming the contract to be for payment to the auctioneer, & not to the vendor, the terms of it required a payment in cash, & the auctioneer would have had no authority to take a bill of exchange.—SYKES v. GILES (1839), 5 M. & W. 645; 9 L. J. Ex. 106; 151 E. R. 273.

24. — By bill of exchange.]—Deft., an auctioneer, was employed by pltf. to sell some furniture, & was desired to sell it for ready money only. Deft., however, sold the furniture to M. on his giving him a bill of exchange for the amount, drawn by himself upon, & accepted by D. Pltf. afterwards applied for payment of the amount of the sale, & the bill, though at first refused to be taken by pltf., was ultimately taken by an agent of pltf., in order to get it discounted. The bill never was presented, nor was any notice of dishonour given either to M. or deft. until ten days after the bill had become due. In an action against deft. for negligence in selling the furniture otherwise than for ready money, the jury having found that pltf. had not accepted the bill in satisfaction for the furniture :—Held : the negligence of pltf. in not presenting the bill, & not giving notice of dishonour, by which M. was discharged from any liability on the bill, was no answer to the action. Semle : if, by the negligence of pltf., any of the parties to the bill were discharged, deft. might maintain a cross-action against pltf. to recover such damages as he could prove he had sustained thereby.—FERRERS (EARL) v. ROBINS (1835), 2 Cr. M. & R. 152; 1 Gale, 70; 5 Tyr. 705; 4 L. J. Ex. 178; 150 E. R. 65.

25. — —.]—The general authority of an auctioneer as to receiving payment of purchase-money is to take cash, unless he has express authority, or is justified by some usage to the contrary.

An auctioneer sold at an auction some goods, on conditions which required the purchaser to make full cash payment to the auctioneer or the clerk of sale before delivery of the goods. Before the goods were delivered the auctioneer received from the purchaser a bill of exchange in part payment of the goods, & agreed to take it as cash, & it was discounted for him at his banker's. After this, but before the bill came to maturity, the vendor gave the purchaser notice not to pay any money to the auctioneer. The bill was paid at maturity. The auctioneer having failed to pay over the whole of the receipts of the sale, the vendor sued the purchaser for payment for the goods :—Held : the auctioneer had no authority to take payment by a bill, & the vendor was entitled to a verdict for the amount of the bill.

If the bill had come to maturity before the vendor revoked the authority of the auctioneer to receive payment, the payment by the bill would have been

26. — By cheque—Ratification by lapse of time.]—Pltf., as exor., sued deft., an auctioneer, for selling part of his testator's goods on credit to pltf.'s brother, whereby the value of the goods was lost. The sale took place in 1852, and afterwards documents & a cheque were handed to pltf. The judge in directing the jury drew attention to the fact that the action was only brought in 1855. The jury having found a verdict for deft., pltf. moved for a new trial on the ground of misdirection & that the verdict was against the weight of evidence, but the ct. refused to interfere, & the rule was refused.—WALLER v. WILDER (1857), 29 L. T. O. S. 80.

27. To make payment—To avoid distress threatened after sale.]—Deft., an auctioneer, sold certain goods for pltf., the owner, on premises occupied by pltf. & another, in respect of which the latter owed the landlord rent. By the conditions of sale each lot was to be taken to be delivered at the fall of the hammer, after which time it was to remain at the exclusive risk of the purchaser. After the sale, & before the goods were removed, the landlord threatened to distrain on the goods, whereupon the auctioneer paid the rent, & deducted it from the amount the goods had realised, & paid over the balance to pltf.:—Held: the auctioneer was not justified, as against pltf., in paying the rent, as, on the sale of each lot, the property passed to the purchaser, who would have had to bear the loss if the landlord had distrained. Semble: the auctioneer might have been justified if the threat to distrain had been made before the sale.—SWEETING v. TURNER (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 310 ; 41 L. J. Q. B. 58 ; 25 L. T. 796 ; 36 J. P. 597 ; 20 W. R. 185.

28. — Of purchase price to vendor's solicitor—Sale by order of court.]—In a partition action real estate was ordered to be sold out of ct. by pltf., the purchase-moneys to be paid into ct. The sale took place under conditions which disclosed that the sale was made under an order of the ct. The auctioneers paid the balance of the deposit after deducting their charges to the vendor's solr., who did not pay it into ct.:—Held: the auctioneers had discharged their liability in respect of the deposit. Semble: a custom on the part of auctioneers to pay sale-moneys to the vendor's solr., without authority for that purpose, could not be supported in law.—BROWN v. FAREBROTHER (1888), 58 L. J. Ch. 3 ; 59 L. T. 822.

30. To vendor in embarrassed circumstances—Good against assignees.]—Deft., an auctioneer, was employed by C., a person in embarrassed circumstances, to sell his property. Deft. sold, & paid the proceeds to the order of C., who was shortly afterwards declared insolvent:—Held: deft. was not liable to C.'s assignee, although deft., when he sold the property, was aware of C.'s em-

32. Authority ends on sale—No authority to settle questions arising subsequently.]—The moment after a sale the auctioneer is no longer the agent of the vendor. He was his agent only to sue, not to deal with the terms upon which a title was to be made. The purchaser must show that the auctioneer had acquired a character to bind the vendor in that respect (LORD ELDON, C.).—SETON v. SLADE, HUNTER v. SETON (1802), 7 Ves. 265 ; 32 E. R. 108.

33. No authority to rescind contract.]—A declaration in assumpsit against an auctioneer for having rescinded a contract of sale (which he had made) contrary to his duty as auctioneer may be supported by an implication of law arising upon the facts of the employment of the auctioneer by pltf. & his sale of the goods without proof of an express contract on his part not to rescind the contract. In such case it is incumbent on deft. to establish a legal excuse for deviating from the usual practice, although the proof involve the proof of a negative.—NELSON v. ALDRIDGE (1818), 2 Stark. 435.

(infants being interested), & it was agreed that the estate should be sold by auction for the purpose of division, & that A. should have the conduct of the sale. At the auction the property could not be sold & it was afterwards sold by private contract at the reserved bidding:—Held: this was a valid sale.

g. Sale after countermand of authority—Purchaser without notice.]—A sale by an auctioneer of goods, remaining in his possession after his authority has been revoked, to a bona fide purchaser without notice is valid.—GUNN v. GILLESPIE (1845), 2 U. C. R. 151.—CAN.

the purchaser for £6,000 of certain real estate. Before the sale the auctioneer had received a letter from S., stating he had been prevented from attending the sale, & asking if any of the lots remained unsold. After the sale the auctioneer informed D. that a client of his was inquiring about the property, & D. then said he was willing to resell same for £6,600, of which £100 should be paid to the auctioneer as commission, provided the offer was accepted within a specified time. The offer was communicated by the auctioneer by letter to S., who wrote a reply to the auctioneer accepting it. In an action by S. against D. for specific performance of the agreement it was contended that the auctioneer's authority did not extend to making a contract, but only to bringing the parties together:—Held: the auctioneer was authorised to make a binding contract for a sale of D.'s interest under his contract.—SAUNDERS v. DENCE (1885), 52 L. T. 644.

38. Revocable before sale—Without notice to intending purchasers.—An authority given to an auctioneer to sell may be revoked by the vendor at any time before the sale, & such revocation is valid against parties dealing without knowledge of it.

In a suit by a purchaser to enforce specific performance of a contract, entered into by the auctioneer by mistake or inadvertence, for the sale of property as to part of which—a right of way over the land sold—his authority had been revoked:—Held: it was competent to the vendor to insist upon such revocation, & parol evidence was admissible in support of such defence.—MANSER v. house & premises, same were upon deft.'s bidding knocked down to him; but, being the worse for liquor, he did not then sign the contract of sale. Where an auctioneer signed a memorandum as agent for the purchaser a week after the sale, & the purchaser had repudiated the purchase at the time:—Held: the auctioneer's authority had ceased, & there was no memorandum in writing sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Stat. There was also a count for money had & received. The premises had been put up for sale by auction, & deft. was the highest bidder. After the sale, pltf. agreed to give deft. an advance of £7 10s. for his bargain, & a paper was signed by pltf. acknowledging that he had purchased the premises of deft.; it was not signed by deft., but it was signed by C., the auctioneer, with the word "witness" prefixed to his name. In about a week after the sale pltf. paid the deposit on the purchase-money, & the premium of £7 10s., upon which the auctioneer gave a memorandum, signed by him, acknowledging such payment. It was objected that there was no note in writing of the contract sufficient to satisfy Stat. Frauds, & pltf. was nonsuited. Pltf. moved to set aside the nonsuit, & to enter a verdict for pltf. for £18 12s. on the count for money had & received, or for a new trial, on the ground of misdirection, because (1) there was a sufficient memorandum to satisfy the stat. since the signature by C. was as agent for deft., land indorsed on the conditions of sale memoranda of the names of purchasers & their bids, but the vendor's name did not appear:—Held: the memorandum was insufficient under Stat. Frauds, & the affixing of his signature by the auctioneer a short time after the auction, being after the determination of his implied authority as agent of the vendee, could not cure the defect.—MCLEA v. DES BARRES (1849), 3 Nfld. L. R. 84.—NFLD.

65 i. — — — — — Not on subsequent sale by private bargain.]—An auctioneer, instructed to sell land in lots by auction for three defts., after selling some of the lots announced in the presence of two of defts. that if any one wanted to buy he should come to his office & he would be prepared to treat for the purchase of the balance. Pltf. purchased a lot at the private sale from the auctioneer, & a memorandum of the transaction was signed by the auctioneer & the purchaser:—Held: even assuming an acquiescence of the two defts., who were present at the invitation given by the auctioneer, binding upon themselves & the other deft., yet as that invitation was only to come to his office, when he would be prepared to treat as to the balance of the lots, the acquiescence did not give him any authority to bind defts. by a private sale.—HART v. PRYOR (1875), 1 R. & C. 53.—CAN.

h. — — — — — Limited to the real contract.]—A corn-broker, on pltf.'s instructions, put up for sale a quantity of maize, which was stored at a distance from the auction room. Samples of maize were exhibited at the auction, & deft., who had not inspected the bulk, became the purchaser, the biddings being signed by the auctioneer under the heading in his ledger—which was not shown to deft.—"Sale of mixed maize, Ex Emma Peasant." Deft. having subsequently refused to accept delivery, pltf. effected a resale & sued him for the loss thereon:—Held: as pltf. intended to sell one bulk, & deft. to buy another, there was no contract between them, or if there was, it was a contract as to the bulk of which a sample had been exhibited at the auction, & the auctioneer had no authority to sign deft.'s name to any but the real contract.—*MEGAW v. A rule nisi was granted.—CONSTABLE v. MARTIN (1846), 8 L. T. O. S. 115.

65. — — — — — Not on subsequent sale by bargain.]—Pltf. put up for sale by public auction a quantity of timber, several lots of which were unsold. A few days afterwards deft. called on the auctioneer & selected from the catalogue two of the unsold lots, which he agreed to purchase. The auctioneer then wrote in deft.'s presence his name in the catalogue opposite these lots:—Held: the auctioneer was not the agent of deft. so as to bind him by signing his name.—MEWS v. CARR (1856), 1 H. & N. 484; 26 L. J. Ex. 39; 156 E. R. 1292.

66. — — — — — Not where contract bears wrong date.]—Applt. on Nov. 18 attended an auction with the intention of bidding for a property, forming lot 2, but, entirely by his own blunder, bid for lot 1, which was knocked down to him. On discovering his mistake he refused to sign the contract, which the auctioneer thereupon signed for him. The sale of lot 1 had been originally fixed for Oct. 17, & the particulars & conditions of sale & contract had been prepared for that date. The date Oct. 17 had been corrected to Nov. 18 on the particulars, but not in the conditions or contract:—Held: the auctioneer had no authority to sign the contract for sale bearing the wrong date.—*VAN PRAAGH v. 67. Auctioneer's clerk no implied authority.]—The authority of an auctioneer, upon a sale by auction of real estate, to sign a memorandum of the contract as agent for the purchaser does not extend to the auctioneer's clerk. Such a memorandum, in order to bind the purchaser must be signed by the auctioneer himself unless the purchaser has, by word, sign, or otherwise, authorised the clerk to sign as his agent.—*BELL v. C. held an auction & collected a crowd:—Held: (1) though holding an auction would not ordinarily amount to the offence, yet it might be so conducted as to amount to the offence if the degree of noise was excessive; (2) it was for the justices to say if there was such excess.—*PHILLIPS v. ### SECT. 3.—SALES SUBJECT TO RESERVE AND VENDOR'S RIGHT TO BID.

SUB-SECT. 1.—UNDER SALE OF LAND BY AUCTION ACT, 1867 (c. 48), AND SALE OF GOODS ACT, 1893 (c. 71), s. 58.

81. Right to employ puffer—Must be specially reserved.—Upon a sale of real estate by auction, under conditions stating that the sale is subject to a reserved bidding, it is illegal to employ a person to bid up to the reserved price, unless the right to do so is expressly stipulated for.—GILLIAT v. GILLIAT (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 60; 39 L. J. Ch. 142; 21 L. T. 522; 34 J. P. 196; 18 W. R. 203.

82. — Must be exercised strictly as reserved.—Landed property was sold by public auction under conditions which stated that the highest bidder should be the purchaser, & which reserved to the vendor the right to bid once by himself or his agent. The auctioneer bid three times with the sanction of the vendor, & then the vendor stated what the reserve price was, when a person bid beyond that sum & was thereupon declared the purchaser:—Held: (1) by reason of the biddings of the auctioneer the vendor had exceeded the limited right reserved to him by the condition of bidding once by himself or agent; (2) the sale was voidable at the option of the purchaser, both at law & under the above Act of 1867.—PARFITT v. JEPSON, (1877), 46 L. J. Q. B. 529; 36 L. T. 251; 41 J. P. 600.

non-payment of the purchase-money, a paragraph of the statement of the defence alleged that the bidding at the auction was not bona fide, three of the biddings being made by a "puffer":—Held: although s. 3 of 30 & 31 Vict. c. 48, defined the word "puffer" for the purposes of that stat., the term as used in the statement of defence was objectionable as conveying no definite legal signification, there being nothing to show that the word was used in its statutory sense.—JONES v. QUINN (1878), 2 L. R. Ir. 516; 13 I. L. T. 16; 40 L. T. 135.—IR.

SUB-SECT. 2.—APART FROM SALE OF LAND BY AUCTION ACT, 1867 (c. 48), AND SALE OF GOODS ACT, 1893 (c. 71), s. 58.

83. Employment of puffer vitiates sale.]—The basis of all dealings ought to be good faith; so, more especially in these transactions, where the public are brought together upon a confidence that the articles set up to sale will be disposed of to the highest real bidder; that could never be the case, if the owner might secretly & privately enhance the price, by a person employed for that purpose; yet tricks & practices of this kind daily increase, & grow so frequent, that good men give in to the ways of the bad & dishonest in their own defence. But such a practice was never openly avowed. An owner of goods set up to sale at an auction never yet bid in the room himself. If such a practice were allowed, no one would bid. It is a fraud upon the sale, & upon the public. The disallowing it is no hardship upon the owner. For if he is unwilling his goods should go at an under price, he may order them to be set up at his own price, & not lower: such a direction would be fair (LORD MANSFIELD, C.J.).—BEXWELL v. CHRISTIE (1776), 1 Cowp. 395; 98 E. R. 1150.

84. Pltf. put up a horse for sale at a public auction, & sent his servant to bid for him to enhance the price. The last bona fide bid was £12, & the horse was ultimately knocked down at £29:—Held: the bidding by the servant was a fraud upon the purchaser, & the sale was void.—*CROWDER v. Where previous to a sale of a life interest, advertised to be "without reserve," the vendor entered into a private agreement with another that the latter should bid a certain sum at the auction, & be purchaser at that sum unless a higher sum were bid, a bill by the vendor for specific performance against a third party who had been declared purchaser at the auction, though for a much higher price, was dismissed.—*ROBINSON v. Employment of puffer vitiates sale.]—The fact of puffers being employed by a vendor at a public sale of a number of lots, although none were proved to have bid on the particular lots which the vendee agreed to purchase, was a good ground of answer to a bill by the vendor for specific performance.—JENNINGS v. HART (1875), 1 R. & C. 15.—CAN.

83 ii. —.]—Pltf. filed a bill for specific performance of a contract alleged to be made at an auction sale of lands, at which pltf. was a bidder. Deft. set up that pltf. was a puffer, & the sale illegal. Pltf. moved to strike out the allegations as scandal & impertinence; & deft. moved that pltf. submit to examination, he having refused to answer questions relating to the alleged fraudulent features of the transaction:—Held: the matter was not scandalous, & pltf. must answer all proper questions.—JONES v. HUNTINGDON (1870), 3 Ch. Ch. 117.—CAN.

83 iii. —.]—Where the vendor's bidder after all real bidders except the

87 i. — Upset price.]—The objection to allowing a person who has the conduct of a sale to bid disappears when the property is sold at an upset price instead of subject to a reserve bid.—GRIESBACH v. HOGAN (1915), 8 W. W. R. 356.—CAN.

p. — Bidding by cestui que trust.]—Trustees exposed the trust-property to sale by public auction. The upset price was offered by A., & after a competition between him & B. the property was knocked down to the latter. There was no other offerer. A. was the sole residuary legatee under the trust settlement:—Held: A. was, though not the nominal, the virtual seller, & his biddings were, therefore, illegal, as being contrary to the bona fides of the contract between a seller by public auction & the public.—*FAULDS v. mare, "the property of a gentleman, without reserve," that pltf. attended the sale & became the highest bidder, & "deft. became & was the agent of pltf. to complete the contract, on behalf of pltf., for the purchase of the mare, but wholly omitted & refused so to do," whereby pltf. was deprived of the benefit of the contract. Pleas: (1) not guilty; (2) that pltf. was not the highest bidder; (3) that deft. did not become pltf.'s agent as aforesaid. On the trial it was proved that deft. advertised the sale of the mare & issued particulars stating it to be "the property of a gentleman, without reserve." Pltf. made a bid; the owner of the mare bid higher. Pltf., having found out that the last bidder was the owner, refused to make a further bid, & deft. knocked the mare down to the owner, but it did not appear that deft. knew that the last bidder was the owner. Pltf. tendered the amount of his own bid, & required deft. to deliver to him the mare, which deft. refused to do:—Held: (1) deft. was entitled to judgment, the issue on the third plea not having been sustained by pltf.; (2) deft. might have been liable to pltf. on a declaration complaining that deft. had undertaken to sell the mare without reserve, & had not done so.

The sale was announced by them to be "without reserve." This means that neither the vendor nor any person in his behalf shall bid at the auction, & that the property shall be sold to the highest bidder, whether the sum bid be equivalent to the real value or not. The auctioneer has contracted that the sale shall be "without reserve," & the contract is broken upon a bid being made by or on behalf of the owner, whether it be during the time when the property is under the hammer, or it be the last bid upon which the article is knocked down; in either case the sale is not "without reserve," and the contract of the auctioneer is broken (MARTIN, B.).—*WARLOW v. 91. — Where sale not announced to be without reserve.—The vendor of goods at a sale by public auction not announced to be without reserve secretly employed a person to bid for him. The goods were knocked down to deft. the highest bidder, who subsequently refused to complete his contract, & the goods were ultimately resold at a loss. In an action for the loss sustained:—Held: the secret employment of the bidder by pltf. was evidence to go to the jury in support of a plea of fraud.—GREEN v. BAVERSTOCK (1863), 14 C. B. N. 92. — Sale under extent—Bidding reserved to Crown agent.—The employment of a puffer at a sale by auction of property seized under an extent by an agent of the Crown, to whom a bidding is reserved by the conditions of sale, vitiates the sale. The misconduct of the purchaser does not preclude him from objecting to the employment of a puffer at a sale by auction.—R. v. MARSH (1829), 3 Y. & J. 331; 148 E. R. 1206.

93. — At law—Different rule in equity.—Where property is put up for sale by auction, with the usual condition that the highest bidder shall be the purchaser, & without any stipulation as to the reservation of a bidding by the vendor, the rule at law is that such condition prevents the vendor from interposing any reservation, & a bidding by the vendor or his agent in such circumstances will, in a ct. of law, be treated as no bidding. Qu.: whether a different rule exists in equity, & whether vendors are considered by cts. of equity to be at liberty, without express stipulation, to reserve a bidding to themselves, or, in other words, to employ a person to bid for them up to a reserved price.—*MORTIMER v. 94. — Not where there have been real bidders as well as puffers.—Semble: where all the bidders at an auction, except a purchaser, are merely puffers, the sale is fraudulent against such purchaser, but where there are any real bidders who bid against each other, the biddings of the puffers will by no means render the sale invalid.—CHRISTIE v. A.-G. (1796), 6 Bro. P. C. 520; 2 E. R. 1239.

95. — Not where puffer declared by auctioneer.—Deft., purchaser of a meadow by auction, objected that the lot was raised to an extravagant price by puffing. The auctioneer had declared the person bidding for pltf. The lot was put up at £900, deft. bid £910, the person bidding for pltf. £920, & the lot was knocked down to deft. for £950. Specific performance was decreed with costs.—BOWLES v. ROUND (1800), 5 Ves. 508; 31 E. R. 701.

96. — Declaration not heard by purchaser.—Property, the subject of a suit, was put up to sale by auction under the decree of the ct., the decree giving leave to all the parties (including pltf., the mtgee. in possession, who had the conduct of the sale, & whose mtge. debt exceeded the value of the property) to bid at the sale. The particulars of sale stated nothing about this leave to bid, nor did they state whether the sale was with or without reserve. At the sale the mtgee. bid against the person who was ultimately declared purchaser, but ceased to bid when the price reached covered the amount of the mtge. debt. Purchaser afterwards petitioned the ct. that he might be discharged from his contract, alleging that he had discovered that the estate was of much less value than the price at which it was knocked down to him, & that the mtgee.'s biddings were puffing biddings, invalidating the sale. The evidence showed that the auctioneer stated in the auction room that the property was sold without reserve, & would be knocked down to the highest bidder, & that all the parties to the suit had leave to bid at the sale; but the purchaser swore that he heard only the statement that the sale was without reserve:—Held: the purchaser could not, on this ground, be discharged from his contract. Semble: if the auctioneer had merely stated that the sale was without reserve, the sale would have been void.—DIMMOCK v. HALLETT (1866), 2 Ch. App. 21; 36 L. J. Ch. 146; 15 L. T. 374; 31 J. P. 163; 12 Jur. N. S. 953; 15 W. R. 93, L.J.J.

97. — Not where purchaser knows there are puffers.—A., being requested to attend an auction to bid for the vendors, declined, saying he intended to bid for himself. The estate was put up in lots, & three in-bidders were appointed, without notice to the persons present. A. purchased two lots, but it did not appear whether or not his biddings were upon those of the respective in-bidders. Assuming that they were severally appointed to bid for respective lots, & that some one of them bid upon each of the lots purchased by A. :—Held : (1) it could not be inferred that A.'s biddings were upon those of a puffer ; (2) he, at any rate, could not claim relief for want of notice, because he knew that biddings would be made for the vendors ; (3) specific performance should be decreed. Semble : there being one bidder for the vendors upon each lot, without public notice, is not in itself sufficient to vitiate the sale, at least if the final bidding is not upon that of a puffer.—BIRCH v. HANSON (1831), 1 L. J. Ch. 42.

98. — Not where employed to bid up to reserve figure.]—At an auction one person only bid for the vendor to £75 an acre, upon a private notice to the auctioneer. Then after a contest with real bidders the estate was bought at £101 17s. an acre, & the purchaser some days afterwards paid the duty. He was decreed to perform the contract with costs.—*BRAMLEY v. 100. — No averment that no real bidder.]—A bill was filed by exors. to compel debt., the best bidder at a sale by auction of testator's house, to complete his purchase. The answer stated that persons were employed to bid, & did bid, for plffs., for the purpose of fraudulently advancing the price above its fair value, but it was not averred that there was no real bidder. In fact, one person only was employed, & bid, for the vendors. Specific performance was decreed, but upon a rehearing the bill was dismissed upon terms.—CONOLLY v. PARSONS (1797), 3 Ves. 625, n. ; 30 E. R. 1188.

101. — .]—At the sale of an estate by public auction, one of the conditions being that the highest bidder should be the purchaser, a person attended who had no intention of being a purchaser but was employed by the vendor to bid in order to prevent the property from being sold at an under value, & this person made several biddings till he reached the sum of £650, when he ceased to bid. The property was afterwards purchased for £690, it being probable there were several intermediate bids. Upon the purchaser objecting to perform his contract, on the ground that puffers had been employed at the sale, the ct. decreed specific performance, the purchaser declining to have the validity of the contract tried in a ct. of law. Qu. : whether the declarations of an auctioneer at a sale to the effect that there are no puffers are receivable in evidence, unless the expressions used are put in issue by the pleadings.—*WOODWARD v. 105 i. Puffing must be specially pleaded.]—One of several creditors, acting on his own behalf, bid & was preferred to a purchase at an auction under a bond & disposition in security. An unsuccessful bidder brought an action for reduction of the minute of enactment & preference, & for declarator that he was entitled to the property at his bid. He pleaded that, by bidding, the bondholder, being one of the sellers, had acted illegally ; but he did not aver that there was collusion between the purchaser & the other bondholders, or that the property had been bought on their behalf. The ct. dismissed the action, holding that pursuer, being a third party, could only succeed on the ground that the purchaser was not a bond fide bidder, & that had not been averred.—WRIGHT v. BUCHANAN, [1917] S. C. 73.—SCOT.

106 i. Fictitious bids not puffing.]—A sale of lands by auction being about to take place, an intending purchaser was told by a person who had previously purchased a portion of the same property that he intended buying additional portions thereof, & that he was prepared to go as high as £100 per acre for that portion which he intended to buy. By an arrangement between the owner of the estate & this person it was agreed that he should have the lots desired by him at the same price as he had paid for his first purchase, no matter at what price they might be knocked down to him ; they were accordingly bid off by him at a rate much higher than that formerly paid :—Held : this was not puffing, although it might have the effect of misleading the intending purchaser.—CROOKS v. DAVIS (1857), 6 Gr. 317.—CAN.

s. No right to withdraw goods where sale without reserve.]—Semble : where goods are sold by auction it will ordinarily be a reasonable precaution to fix reserve bid ; but unless the auction sale is expressly "without reserve" the seller can at any time before the goods are knocked down to a bidder by the auctioneer withdraw them from sale.—*VANSTONE v. before the sale to A., who instructed the auctioneer to put up the horse. The horse, which the auctioneer described as the property of D., was knocked down to pltf., A. having run up the bidding. D. was aware of the misdescription, but not of the fact that A. had run up the bidding:—Held: the sale was not vitiated on that ground.—WHURR v. DEVENISH (1904), 20 T. L. R. 385.

108. Bidding with intention to buy—Concealment—Sale set aside.—One of the members of an insolvent firm was separately insolvent & non compos; another was separately adjudicated bkpt. In order to procure a title to the separate interest of the non compos partner (whose separate creditors would not enter into an arrangement for releasing it) one of the creditors, who was also a separate creditor of the bkpt. partner, obtained an execution against the non compos partner, & sold by the sheriff at auction, expecting & intending to purchase himself, & sent a clerk to bid up to £150. Pltf. purchased at £151, the property being quite worthless:—Held: such concealment of circumstances as to justify the sale being set aside, with costs.—SMITH v. HARRISON (1857), 26 L. J. Ch. 412; 29 L. T. O. S. 11; 3 Jur. N. S. 287; 5 W. R. 408.

109. Effect of auctioneer disclosing reserve price—Contrary to instructions.—An estate was put up for sale by auction & bought in, as the bidding did not reach the price fixed by the ct. The auctioneer, before he left the desk, made known the reserved price, & a person who had been present at the sale agreed to become the purchaser at that sum; he, accordingly, signed the bidding paper & paid the deposit:—Held: the sale was good, & he could not dispute the sale or the contract, or repudiate the purchase.—*ELSE v. The Act did not contain any provision that the annuities should or should not be redeemable. The co., however, in the original grant, reserved to themselves a power of redemption:—Held: in these circumstances an auctioneer putting up to sale one of these annuities was bound, in his particulars of sale, to describe it as a redeemable annuity, & was liable to refund the purchaser his deposit for omitting to do so.

It is of great consequence to the public that auctioneers, who take upon themselves to describe in their particulars the property to be sold, should truly describe it, for the buyers act on the faith of those descriptions. the altered copies of the particulars were laid on the table of the auction room, without any remark with regard to the alteration, & an altered copy was delivered to the auctioneer, who read same aloud before the biddings commenced, but the party who became the purchaser did not hear or notice the alteration. The contract was inadvertently signed by the auctioneer & by the purchaser on a copy of the particulars of sale not containing the reservation. After the purchase-money was paid & possession given, the purchaser filed his bill for specific performance of the contract by a conveyance from the vendor, without a reservation of the right-of-way, but the bill was dismissed without costs.—MANSER v. Containing misdescription.]—Certain property described in the particulars as an immediate absolute reversion of a freehold estate was put up for sale by auction. By the conditions of sale, which were read in the auction room before the sale, but were not printed or circulated among those present, the property was stated to be subject to three mtges. The property was bought by pltf., who stated that he was deaf & did not understand that he was buying an equity of redemption. On a bill filed by pltf. to have the contract for sale rescinded :—Held : (1) the description of the property in the particulars of sale was misleading & the onus was on the vendor to show that the purchaser was not actually misled; (2) the reading of the conditions of sale in the auction room was not sufficient to convey to the purchaser a knowledge of the real facts; (3) pltf. was entitled to have the contract rescinded & his deposit returned.—TORRANCE v. 119. Binding on vendor—When within general scope of auctioneer's authority.]—Pltf., purchaser of the lease & goodwill of a public-house which was sold at an auction mart, sued deft., the former owner, for damage sustained by pltf. in consequence of a misstatement made by the auctioneer at the time of the sale as to the amount of business done at the house. The evidence was extremely contradictory as to the fact of the auctioneer having made any statement at all to the effect alleged. For deft. it was proposed to give evidence of a conversation between deft. & the auctioneer immediately before the sale began to show what authority was actually given by deft. to the auctioneer in respect of any warranty as to the amount of business :—Held : (1) this conversation was not evidence, as not having occurred in the presence of pltf.; (2) whether the statements made by the auctioneer were in conformity with his instructions or not, they were binding on deft., as made within general scope of his agent's authority, although he might have a remedy over against the auctioneer.—ETTY v. JACKSON (1837), 1 Jur. 83.

120. — When authorised by vendor's conduct.]—The catalogue of a sale by auction described a horse as the property of D. Before the sale the horse was sold privately by D. to A., who instructed the auctioneer to put up the horse. The auctioneer did so, describing it as D.'s property. The horse was knocked down to pltf. D. was present throughout the sale. Pltf., discovering that the horse was not D.'s property at the time of the sale, claimed to rescind the contract of sale & to recover the price paid from D., on the ground that there was a material misrepresentation as to ownership, & that D. in lending his name as the ostensible seller became the agent of the real owner :—Held : (1) the representation as to ownership was material; (2) the auctioneer, in making it, was acting as D.'s agent & with his authority, inasmuch as D. assented to the auctioneer's conducting & authorised him to conduct the sale on the basis of the original representation; (3) D. was liable.—WHURR v. 120 i. Binding on vendor—When authorised by vendor's conduct.]—By direction of deft., an engine was sold by auction in his presence. the sale & may be seen at the office of the auctioneers for seven days previous to the day of sale," & that "the property is presumed to be correctly described, but, as the premises may be viewed & the draft lease inspected at the office of the auctioneers, the purchaser shall be deemed to have bought with full knowledge of the contents thereof, & no error, misdescription, or omission in the particulars shall annul the sale, & no compensation shall be required for any such error, misdescription, or omission." There was no reference either in the conditions of sale or in the draft lease to the existence of any right of way from the garden of the public-house to Hampstead Heath, but, at the time of the sale, the auctioneer bonâ fide, but without any authority from deft. & acting entirely upon an inference drawn by himself from the appearance of the premises, & believing that there was a right of way through same & over the private road & so to Hampstead Heath, stated publicly that there was such a way, & spoke of it as enhancing the value of the premises:—Held: the evidence of what passed at the time of the sale was admissible as against the vendor, but no action could after the completion of the purchase be maintained against him to recover compensation for the innocent misrepresentation by the auctioneer.

There was no intention on the part of the lessor to authorise the auctioneer to warrant the existence of the way, or to undertake to convey it as an existing way (DENMAN, J.).—BRETT v. CLOUSER (1880), 5 C. P. D. 376.

122. General rule as to auctioneer's statements at sale—Parol evidence.—In the case of a general agent, as an auctioneer, he may at the auction state what limitations are imposed on his general power of agency, but that declaration must be of such a nature that the law will affect the person to be affected by it, as he would be affected under the general authority. Upon this principle loose declarations at a sale by public auction are not permitted to be proved by parol evidence (LORD ELDON, C.).—HOWARD v. BRAITHWAITE (1812), 1 Ves. & B. 202; 35 E. R. 79.

Not admissible to discharge vendor.—Where in the particulars of sale property was stated to be held under the C. estate upon three lives & it appeared, in an action to recover back the deposit, that one of the lives had dropped before the sale & that the property was not held directly under the C. estate:—Held: (1) the vendor could not call the auctioneer to prove that he stated before the sale that the life had dropped; (2) the vendor might give evidence to show that before the sale the purchaser had read the original lease under which the property was held.—BRADSHAW v. BENNETT (1831), 5 C. & P. 48; 1 Mood. & R. 143.

MONCREIFF* (1845), 7 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 418; 17 Sc. Jur. 205.—SCOT.

f. Public announcement at sale—Previous representation in catalogue.—In a printed catalogue of articles for sale a bull was stated to be "a sure stockgetter," but at the commencement of the sale the auctioneer publicly announced that the seller warranted nothing:—Held: pltf. (the purchaser) in an action as for a breach of warranty, was obliged to show that any warranty contained in the catalogue was imported into the auction sale.—CRAIG v. MILLER (1872), 22 C. P. 348.—CAN.

g. Representations as to future happenings.—At a sale by auction, the conditions of sale, which were publicly read, stated that everything was sold "as it is." Pltf., before purchasing a cow, was informed by the auctioneer that she would calve in about three weeks' time. She did not calve until some months afterwards, & pltf. obtained judgment for a return of the price paid by him upon redelivery by him of the cow, & for his expenses in keeping her. On appeal:—Held: in the absence of any allegation & proof of fraud & in view of the fact that the statement had not been made with the object of varying the conditions of sale, but to express the auctioneer's own belief, erroneous though it was, the judgment ought to have been for the vendor.—DURR v. BAM (1890), 8 S. C. 22.—S. AF.

h. —.]—At a sale by auction of certain kilns of bricks, the auctioneer stated that he sold them "as a lot" & not by number, & the seller, being asked by the auctioneer how many he estimated them to be, said "about eighty thousand." The purchaser on receiving delivery found there were only about fifty thousand, & on being sued for the price, claimed a pro rata reduction:—Held: there was no warranty of quantity, & in the absence of bad faith on the part of the seller, he was entitled to claim the full price at which the kilns had been sold.—*ELLIOTT v. In an action by the auctioneer to recover the price of the dressing case, which was less than £10:—Held: parol evidence of that statement of the auctioneer at the time of the sale was admissible, the contract not being in writing.—*EDEN v. 130. With respect to the notice said to have been given at the sale, the ct. does not in general attend to that sort of notice, the babble of the auction room as it has been called, except in cases where we have to consider whether a purchaser is to take his bargain or not (LORD ELDON, C.).—*ANSON v. 133. — Purchaser presumed to have knowledge.]—Leasehold property was described in the particulars of sale as being occupied at an “annual rental,” but it was not stated that the vendor as landlord paid the rates & taxes on the property, the tenancy being a monthly one. The purchasers, alleging that they were thereby led to infer that the tenancy was a yearly tenancy, & that the tenant paid the rates & taxes, claimed compensation pursuant to the conditions of sale. The vendor asserted that the purchasers had knowledge of the true facts of the case at the time of the sale, & evidence was adduced to prove that in the auction room a question was raised by a person present at the sale on the words “annual rental,” & that in reply to an inquiry it was distinctly stated by the auctioneer that the landlord paid the rates & taxes & that the tenancy was a monthly tenancy:—Held: (1) the evidence was admissible; (2) the purchasers must be taken to have had knowledge of the facts, & to have known all the circumstances affecting the property for which they bid; (3) they were not entitled to compensation.—Re EDWARDS TO SYKES (DANIEL) & Co., LTD. (1890), 62 L. T. 445.

134. Admissible where particulars differ from conditions — Explanation insufficient.]—A dwelling-house was put up for sale by public auction, under a printed condition in a common form, that the lot was sold subject to any existing rights & easements of whatever nature, & the printed particulars made no mention of any easement, or of any claim to an easement. The house was subject to an easement belonging to the owner of a neighbouring tenement to use the kitchen for particular purposes, & the vendor's solr. knew of the rumoured existence of some such easement, but forbore to make inquiries. No grant of an easement appeared from the abstract, & its existence was, in fact, disputed on the pleadings. In the auction room the vendor's solr. said he had heard of some such claim, but had no definite information about it, & the auctioneer, in hearing of the vendor's solr., on being questioned, told the audience that they might dismiss the subject of the rumoured claims from their minds, as nobody would probably ever hear of them again:—Held: the conditions were misleading, & the statements in the auction room insufficient, & specific performance of the contract must be refused.—HEYWOOD v. MALLA LIEU (1883), 25 Ch. D. 357; 53 L. J. Ch. 492; 49 L. T. 658; 32 W. R. 538.

135. Admissible when particulars differ from plan — Declaration that sale on particulars only ultra vires.]—A. purchased at an auction an estate described in the particulars as “Lot 3, being a certain freehold house, numbered,” etc. With the particulars was folded up a plan, described as “the ground plan of the estate of the late W. L.,” in which each lot was numbered to correspond with the particulars, & distinguished by lines & shadings as containing so many buildings & so much ground. The particulars did not refer to this plan. The title being settled, A. sent a surveyor over the property, & he then discovered that part of the land & buildings marked in the plan as belonging to Lot 3 had been conveyed to the purchaser of Lot 4, & that an upper room in an adjoining lot overhung & rested upon part of Lot 3. A. refused to complete his purchase. A motion was made by A. to be released from his purchase, or to have compensation, on the ground of misrepresentation. The auctioneer made an affidavit that he gave out to the persons present that he was selling by the particulars only, & not by the plan, which was merely for the general guidance of purchasers. The solr. of A. deposed that he was present during the time of the sale, & never heard any such intimation:—Held: (1) A. was entitled to be released from his purchase, on the ground of misrepresentation; (2) it was not competent to an auctioneer to say at the time of sale that he was not bound by the description generally, though he might be perhaps as to some specific point.—*POPE v. 142. — When highest bidder not declared purchaser.]—A bidder at a sale under the decree of the ct. who is not a party to the cause nor interested in the estate which is the subject of the sale has no right to apply to the ct. to set aside a sale to another bidder on the ground of irregularity in that the latter, although reported the purchaser, was not, in fact, the highest bidder. Qu. : whether he may apply to be declared purchaser in the place of the bidder reported to be the best purchaser.—HUGHES v. LIPSCOMBE (1846), 6 Hare, 142 ; 67 E. R. 1115.

143. — When purchase of one lot conditional on sale of another.]—Two lots subject to a mtge. were offered for sale by auction under conditions providing that the sale of each lot was conditional on both being sold at the sale, & the purchaser of either lot was to be entitled to the return of the deposit & to any money paid by him into ct. in respect of the balance of the purchase, if the condition was not

137 i. Right of public to bid—Refusal to accept bid.]—An auctioneer is not bound to accept all bids from persons present at his auction. An action, therefore, will not lie for refusing to accept bids unless by reason of some special condition.—HOLDER v. JACKSON (1862), 11 C. P. 543.—CAN.

137 ii. Sale without reserve.]—Upon a sale without reserve, it is not open to the vendor to refuse a bid, however small.—O'CONNOR v. WOODWARD (1875), 6 P. R. 223.—CAN.

137 iii. Conditions of sale.]—The conditions of sale may empower the auctioneer to refuse bids from any member of a specified body.—SCOTTISH CO-OPERATIVE WHOLESALE SOCIETY, LTD. v. GLASGOW FLESHERS' TRADE DEFENCE ASSOC. (1898), 35 Sc. L. R. 645 ; 5 S. L. T. 263.—SCOT.

138 i. Withdrawal of bid—Where there is mock bidding.]—Mtgees. offered mtged. property for sale under power of sale. F. made mock bidding to swell price. Sale was adjourned for half an hour for F. to raise 20 per cent. as deposit. F. failed to return. Auctioneer proposed sale at next highest bid. R. withdrew his bid. Property was again put up & sold to next highest bidder, but at $3,500 less than his former bid :—Held : R. had a right to withdraw his bid when F. failed to put up the deposit.—KAISERHOF HOTEL CO. v. ZUBER (1912), 23 O. W. R. 305 ; 25 O. L. R. 194 ; 46 S. C. R. 651.—CAN.

138 ii. — Trade usage.]—An agent of defts. made at an auction sale a bid for certain goods ; this bid was not at the time accepted by the auctioneers, but was referred to the owners of the goods for approval & sanction, the agent agreeing to such reference. The conditions of sale contained no clause stipulating for such procedure. Previous to any reply being received by the auctioneers from their principals, the principals of the agent bidding refused to acknowledge the bid of their agent. In a suit brought by the auctioneers to recover a loss on a resale of the goods, they set up a usage of trade, that the bidder was not at liberty to withdraw his bid until a reasonable time had been allowed for the auctioneers to refer the bid to the owner of the goods :—Held : the condition of sale containing no clause to the effect of the usage claimed, & there being no sufficient evidence that the usage was so universal as to become part of the contract by operation of law, there was no contract between the parties, & therefore no suit would lie.—MACKENZIE LYALL & CO. v. CHAMROO SINGH & CO. (1889), 1 L. R. 16 Calc. 702.—IND.

141 i. Rights of bidder—Highest bidder—Duty of auctioneer.]—It is the duty of an auctioneer on the sale of goods to knock them down to the highest bidder, unless instructed to the contrary.—NELSON v. HICKS (1899), Q. R. 15 S. C. 465.—CAN.

141 ii. — When highest bidder not declared purchaser—Sale by court.]—The " highest bidder " at an auction sale is the " purchaser " under the general orders of the ct., & the omission of the auctioneer to declare him the purchaser will not deprive him of his position.—MCALPINE v. YOUNG (1866), 2 Ch. Ch. 171.—CAN.

141 iii. — When highest bidder fails to fulfil contract.]—Upon a bidding of £1,100, a person bid £1,150, & was declared the highest bidder ; but neglected paying in the deposit & could not be found ; the bidder of £1,100 being bona fide, & willing to abide by his offer, the ct. ordered that he should be declared the highest bidder, & be at liberty to proceed to confirm the sale.—WILLETT v. FLAHERTY (1838), 6 Ir. L. Rec. N. S. 215.—IR.

141 iv. — When misled by mode of sale.]—An auctioneer set up a property for sale, first in lots, then part of it in batches of some lots together, then the whole at once. He stated that he would receive biddings, & that the master would declare the purchaser. C. was the highest bidder for a batch of some lots, & afterwards for the whole :—Held : he was not entitled to be discharged from his bidding for the lots, though he was misled by the mode of selling, & meant to bid for the entire.—O'GRADY v. BRADY, 11 I. Eq. R. 400.—IR.

141 v. — Withdrawal of lot before acceptance of bid.]—A bid is an offer, & is accepted by the fall of the hammer or any other agreed method. The auctioneer may, before he has accepted a bid, withdraw the property.—FENWICK v. MACDONALD, FRASER & CO. (1904), 6 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 850 ; 41 Sc. L. R. 638 ; 12 S. L. T. 227.—SCOT.

k. Disputes as to bids—Duty of auctioneer.]—The conditions of a sale by auction provided that in the event of any dispute as to the last or best bidder the land should be put up again for sale :—Held : it was within the province of the auctioneer to decide whether there was a bona fide dispute or not.—GREEN v. ROSE (1900), 21 N. S. W. Eq. 226.—AUS.

l. — Remedy of bidder.]—Opinions expressed that where a prior bidder disputes the legality of the sale to a higher bidder at a public auction on grounds other than the fraud of the exposers, his remedy is reduction of the sale in toto.—*SHIELL v. fulfilled. O. became purchaser of one lot, the other lot not being sold. O. subsequently withdrew, & on the day after his withdrawal the other lot was sold by private contract:—Held: (1) the sale of the first lot was conditional on the second lot being sold at the sale by auction; (2) there was no contract binding on O.—Re PICKETT, EVANS v. PICKETT (1896), 40 Sol. Jo. 437.

144. — When vendor instructs auctioneer not to take cheque for deposit.]—Defts. advertised a freehold public-house for sale by auction, under conditions providing that the highest bidder should be the purchaser, & that he should immediately after the sale pay to the auctioneer a deposit of 10 per cent. on the amount & in part payment of his purchase-money, & sign an agreement in the form annexed to the conditions, the form stating that the deposit had been paid. Pltf., a married woman with means at least sufficient to pay for the property, despatched her husband to bid for it. She did not entrust him with the cash necessary to pay the deposit. The property was knocked down to him at £4,900. He had a banking account of his own (which was not in credit to the amount of £490) & tendered his cheque for £490, the amount of the deposit. One of the vendors recognised him as one who had recently openly sworn that he had nothing in the world except the clothes he stood up in, & on that vendor's instructions, the cheque was refused; the husband was not allowed to sign the contract, although he protested that his wife "would find the money to-morrow" & that he was buying for her, & the property was sold to some one else at an enhanced price. Pltf. thereupon sued the vendors for damages for breach of contract that the highest bidder should be the purchaser, & for refusing to allow the auctioneer to accept the cheque for the deposit, or to allow her husband to sign the contract. The ct. found that if the cheque had been accepted pltf. would have provided funds to meet it:—Held: (1) a vendor who offered property for sale by auction on the terms of printed conditions, could be made liable in damages to a person who accepted the offer & complied with the conditions if those conditions were violated by the vendor, & Stat. Frauds would be no defence; (2) no custom had been proved obliging a vendor to accept in payment of a deposit the cheque even of a person in credit, although such a course was usual, & no such custom could bind a vendor to accept a cheque from a pauper; (3) the conditions meant that the deposit was to be paid in cash, & the vendors were not bound to wait till the next day for it or to sign the contract until this condition precedent had been performed.—JOHNSTON v. BOYES, [1899] 2 Ch. 73; 68 L. J. Ch. 425; 80 L. T. 488; 47 W. R. 517; 43 Sol. Jo. 457.

145. — When reserve price not reached.]—At a sale by auction subject to a reserve price on the article sold, where the fact that there is a reserve is known, the offer of the auctioneer to sell, the bidding, & the knocking down of the article to the highest bidder are all subject to the condition that the reserve price should be reached, & the fact that the auctioneer knocks down the article to a bidder who has bid a less price than the reserve gives the latter no right of action against the auctioneer, either for breach of duty in refusing to sign a memorandum of or otherwise complete the contract, or for breach of warranty of authority to accept the bid.—McMANUS v. FORTESCUE, [1907] 2 K. B. 1; 76 L. J. K. B. 393; 96 L. T. 444; 23 T. L. R. 292; 51 Sol. Jo. 245, C. A.

146. Effect & application of Bills of Sale Acts, 1878 (c. 31), & 1882 (c. 43).]—At a sale of farm produce by auction, W. bought a stack of hay for £40 5s. The auctioneer's clerk signed the name of W. as purchaser in the auctioneer's book which, was also signed by the auctioneer, & contained a copy of the conditions of sale, & specified the lot & the price. No part of the purchase-money was paid, one of the conditions being that the purchaser was to have six months' credit, & the whole of the hay remained on the premises of the vendor & in his apparent possession. The entry in the auctioneer's book was not registered as a bill of sale under the above Act of 1878. The hay was seized in execution under a judgment obtained by creditors of the vendor:—Held: as the sale would have been void under Stat. Frauds, s. 17, but for the memorandum of the contract contained in the auctioneer's book, such memorandum was an assurance & a bill of sale within the above Act of 1878, & void as against the execution creditors for want of registration.—Re ROBERTS, EVANS v. ROBERTS (1887), 36 Ch. D. 196; 56 L. J. Ch. 952; 57 L. T. 79; 51 J. P. 757; 35 W. R. 684; 3 T. L. R. 678.

147. —.]—The owner of goods seized under a writ of fi. fa. verbally agreed with an auctioneer that, in consideration of his paying out the sheriff, the auctioneer should hold possession of the goods, sell them by auction, & pay the balance (if any) to the owner. This agreement was reduced into writing & the sheriff was paid out, the man in possession remaining in possession for the auctioneer:—Held: the written agreement was not an assurance or licence to take possession, or in any other respect a bill of sale within the above Acts, as it did not constitute the auctioneer's title, & did not operate & was not intended to operate until the goods were actually transferred from sheriff to auctioneer.—*CHARLESWORTH v. 148. Agreement not to bid legal.]—An agreement between two persons, desirous of purchasing an estate advertised for sale by auction, that one of them shall not bid against the other, is not illegal.

A. & B. agreed that, in consideration of A.'s withdrawing his opposition to B.'s purchase of an estate at a sale by auction, A. should have the right of pre-emption of that estate & of another estate belonging to B. during B.'s lifetime, & for twelve months after his decease:—Held: the agreement was founded upon valuable consideration, & could be enforced against the devisees in trust & cestui que trust under B.'s will.—*GALTON v. 149. —.]—On a sale under the ct. two persons agreed not to bid against each other, but that one should bid up to £1,500, & they should divide the lot between them. They bought it for £650:—Held: this agreement furnished no ground for opening the biddings or annulling the sale.—Re CAREW'S ESTATE (1858), 26 Beav. 187; 28 L. J. Ch. 218; 32 L. T. O. 150. — Specific performance.]—Where a person bought property at an auction at a price far below what he would have been willing to give for it, having paid another person a sum of money not to bid against him:—Held: this did not amount to legal fraud, & was no ground for refusing specific performance.—*HEFFER v. 151. Knock-out sale—Enforcement of agreement between parties.]—An agreement for a "knock-out" is not illegal. Previous to a sale by auction of Govt. stores pltf. & deft. agreed that deft. was to buy a particular lot, which was subsequently to be disposed of to their mutual advantage. Pltf. after the lot had been purchased by deft. contracted to buy it from him, & arranged to resell the lot to a third person at an enhanced price. In the meantime deft. had sold the lot elsewhere:—Held: the agreement prior to the sale by auction was not illegal & did not vitiate the subsequent contract, for the breach of which pltf. was entitled to damages.—LEOPARD v. LITOUN (1897), 41 Sol. Jo. 545.

152. — Indictment for conspiracy.]—It is an indictable conspiracy for brokers to agree together before a sale by auction that only one of them shall bid for each article sold, & that all articles thus bought by any of them shall be sold again among themselves at a fair price, & the difference between lumber licences to two lots, neither wanting the whole of the lots, not to bid against each other at their public sale, but that one should bid them in for their joint benefit, is not illegal.—IRVING v. MCWILLIAMS (1895), 1 N. B. Eq. Rep. 217.—CAN.

148 iv. — Amounting to knock-out sale.]—The fact that a combination amongst bidders at an auction sale has been formed to bid at the auction does not of itself give rise to an action at the suit of the vendor.

A combination among bidders at an auction not to bid against each other, even if the combination amounts to a "knock-out," does not give rise to an action at the suit of the vendor.—

148 v. — Limitation to specified sale.]—An agreement by which a person undertakes for a legal consideration not to bid at a judicial sale of immovables is lawful & valid. Such agreement made on the day before the sale, with the condition that the person to whom the undertaking is given shall become the purchaser, is to be regarded as made in view of this particular sale only, & the condition not being realised is extinguished.—*DUHAMEL v. 153. Agreement to enhance or depress price—Wagering on price of opium.]—Wager contracts were entered into between pltf. & defts. upon the price that Patna opium would fetch at the next Govt. sale at Calcutta, each party knowing that the other might use means to enhance or depress such price:—Held: (1) the bidding at the sale by one of pltf., though done colourably, & only to enhance the price, was no fraud on defts., or on the public, as he had a right in common with all the world to bid at such sale, & he was not precluded from recovering the amount of such wager contracts by the fact that such bidding tended to bring about the event by which the wager was to be won; (2) employing agents at such sale (all of whom were cognizant that the object was to enhance the price of the opium sold) to bid, there being no crimen falsi committed, did not constitute an illegal conspiracy, or such fraud as would vitiate the wager contracts.—DOOLUBDASS PETTAMBERDASS v. RAMLOHL THACKOORSEYDASS (1850), 5 Moo. Ind. App. 109; 7 Moo. P. C. C. 239; 15 Jur. 257; 18 E. R. 836, P. C.

154. Purchaser pretending to be puffer.]—Where at a sale by auction pltf., after informing the vendor that he did not intend to bid, had the property knocked down to him below the reserve price, the auctioneer & every one present believing that pltf. was bidding for the vendor, & the person who had been employed by the vendor to bid the reserve price omitting to do so by mistake:—Held: the sale was void.—*MASON v. n. Inducing persons not to bid.]—Some persons attending an auction were induced to refrain from bidding because they were informed that a person who was at the sale intended to buy the property for the family of debtor:—Held: the sale to such person was valid, although he bought for the benefit of persons other than the family of debtor.—BROWN v. FISHER (1862), 9 Gr. 423.—CAN.

153 i. Agreement to depress price.]—By an arrangement between several parties bidding, it was agreed that each should be allowed to bid off a whole lot for taxes due upon it; others, not parties to this agreement, were prevented from bidding, by reducing the quantity to such a trifle as to be quite useless to the purchaser. The land in question, said to be worth £500, was thus bid off for £2 12s. The ct. set aside the sale, but without costs, it being shown that the purchaser was not a party to the combination complained of.—HENRY v. BURNES (1860), 8 Gr. 345.—CAN.

157 i. Disparaging statements at sale—Action for—Practice.]—In an action for slander of title to goods the statement of special damage was that by reason of the utterances of deft. to persons assembled at an auction sale a large number of them withdrew from it, & the goods sold brought less money than they would otherwise have done:—Held: pltf. should not be required to give particulars of the names of the persons who would have given for each article a larger price than was realised at the sale ; all that he could reasonably be required to particularise was the amount by which his sale had been damped.—CATTON v. GLEASON (1891), 14 P. R. 222.—CAN.

159 ii. — Execution sale.]—Goods of a tenant were seized for rent & offered for sale by a bailiff. The tenant bid them in & they were immediately seized under an execution against him. They were then claimed by a third person, who alleged that the tenant was in reality bidding for him, & this claimant paid the purchase-money:—Held: if the goods were sold at an under-value owing to the bids being made by the tenant ostensibly for himself as part of a scheme between the tenant & claimant to defeat creditors by keeping down the price, the sale would be fraudulent & void as against the creditors of the tenant, though it would be good as far as the purchase-money was concerned, which could not in any event be recovered back by claimant.—SULLIVAN v. The estate was put up to sale by auction, at which C., as agent for D., was the only bidder, & it was knocked down to him accordingly:—Held: (1) D. being under the deed trustee for the party making the conveyance, & as such, disabled from purchasing for himself so long as he continued to be a trustee without the consent of his cestui que trust, the sale could not stand, although there was no evidence of fraud or under-value ; (2) it could not be supported by evidence of pltf.'s having known & approved of the sale taking place, & afterwards attempting to damp it, nor of a previous conversation with her attorney in which the latter exhorted the purchaser to bid a good price for the estate to keep up the sale. Qu.: whether, if C. had purchased for himself, & not for D., the sale could have been supported, he being present in the character of solr. for D. the vendor.—DOWNES v. 162. Auctioneer stakeholder.]—An auctioneer is a mere stakeholder, & the ct. will secure the stake pending the litigation.

A bill against a vendee & an auctioneer, prayed specific performance, & that the deposit might be paid into ct. The auctioneer admitted the deposit to be in his hands & stated his claim upon it. On motion, he was ordered to pay in the deposit, after retaining the amount of his claims, & without prejudice to any question as to the money retained.—YATES v. FAREBROTHER (1819), 4 Madd. 239; 58 E. R. 694.

163. — Premature payment to wrong party.]—A deposit is peculiarly circumstanced; if the auctioneer pays it to the vendor, he does it at his peril, & if the purchase is not completed the purchaser may recover it from the auctioneer. It is reasonable that the vendor should be chargeable with any loss of the deposit received by the auctioneer because he might, by agreement with the auctioneer, have had the money laid out at interest or by making the auctioneer a party to a bill for specific performance against the vendee, obtain an order for payment of the deposit into ct., & have it laid out at interest which the vendee could not oblige the auctioneer to do, unless with the consent of the vendor. If, therefore, the vendor takes no such steps, & the deposit is lost, the loss falls upon the vendor (PLUMER, V.-C.).—SMITH v. JACKSON (1816), 1 Madd. 618; 56 E. R. 227.

164. — —.]—Where an auctioneer sells an estate by public auction & receives a deposit, it is his duty, as the agent of both vendor & purchaser, to retain the deposit until the sale is complete, & it is ascertained to whom the money belongs.

Where an auctioneer sold an estate by public auction, & received the deposit, & signed an agreement stating that he acknowledged having sold the estate, & that he agreed to complete the sale; & the sale was not completed on account of a defect of title:—Held: the purchaser might recover the deposit in an action for money had & received against the auctioneer, though the latter had paid it over to the vendor, without any notice from the purchaser not to do so, & before the defect of title was ascertained.—GRAY v. GUTTERIDGE (1828), 1 Man. & Ry. K. B. 614; 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 154.

166. — —.]—Pltf. became the purchaser of a house which was put up to auction by deft., an auctioneer. The price was £3,610, & a deposit was paid to deft. of £310. Under the conditions of sale, which were signed by pltf. & by deft. as the vendor's agent, if the vendor could not make a good title, he was to repay the deposit. Shortly afterwards deft. paid a sum of £150, part of the deposit, to the vendor. The latter failed to make a good title, & proceedings were taken against him in the Ch. Div., when an order was made upon him to pay, amongst other items, the £150. Pltf. then put in an execution against the vendor, but that only realised £7. The vendor then gave pltf. a charge upon the house, but this turned out to be useless by reason of prior charges:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover the sum of £150, less the sum of £7 raised by the execution, from deft. as a stakeholder.—FURTADO v. LUMLEY (1890), 54 J. P. 407; 6 T. L. R. 168.

PART V.

162 i. Auctioneer stakeholder—Fraudulent conversion of deposit.]—An auctioneer is a stakeholder when he receives from the purchaser a deposit on sale; if he fraudulently converts same to his own use he is guilty of larceny.—R. v. BRODIE (1894), 15 N. S. W. L. R. 436.—AUS.

167 i. Liability to bidder—Receipt of deposit qua agent of vendor.]—Where an auctioneer sells land under conditions providing for payment of a deposit to him "as agent for the vendor" he is not liable in an action by the purchaser to recover the deposit; & if he suffer judgment therein, he cannot recover against his principal the costs of such action.—McMILLAN v. READ (1877), 3 V. L. R. 284.—AUS.

167 ii. Objection to title.]—W. bought property at auction, signing an agreement to pay 10 per cent. of price down & balance on delivery of deed. The auctioneer's receipt for the 10 per cent. so paid stated that the sale was on the understanding that a good title in fee simple clear of all incumbrances was to be given to W., otherwise his deposit to be returned. W., not having been tendered a deed which he would accept, caused the vendor to be notified that he considered the sale off & demanded repayment of his deposit. In reply the vendor wrote that all the auctioneer had been instructed to sell was an equity of redemption in the property; that a deed of the equity of redemption had been tendered to W., & he was required to complete his purchase. In an action to recover the deposit:—Held: W. could treat the contract as rescinded & sue to recover his deposit.—WRAYTON v. NAYLOR (1894), 24 S. C. R. 295.—CAN.

167 iii. — Refusal of purchaser to perform contract.]—Pltf. gave his note for the deposit required on a purchase at auction, but refused to carry out the contract, & sought to recover the amount of his note:—Held: he could not recover.—LINDSAY v. ZWICKER (1870), 2 N. S. D. 100; 8 N. S. R. 100.—CAN.

167 iv. — Refusal of vendor to complete.]—Pltf. purchased property at auction & deposited with the auctioneer on account of the purchase-money. The vendor refused to convey the property to pltf.:—Held: the money having been deposited with the auctioneer as a stakeholder & being in his hands, action to recover it lay against the auctioneer, & not against the vendor.—ESSAJI ADAMJI v. BHIMJI PURSHOTAM (1867), 4 Bom. O. C. 125.—IND.

167 v. — Misrepresentation — Part deposit paid over.]—On sale by auction, the purchaser paid a deposit of £400 to the auctioneer. One of the conditions of sale was that the deposit must be paid to the vendor's solr., & the auctioneer sent a cheque for the amount to him. The solr. returned a cheque for £200 to the auctioneer in part payment of a claim of the auctioneer. The purchaser, on the ground of misrepresentation, rescinded his bargain:—Held: the £200 paid to the auctioneer by the vendor's solr. was part of the deposit, & must be repaid by the auctioneer to the purchaser.—DICKIE v. WHITE (1901), 35 I. L. T. 52.—IR.

167 vi. — Misdescription.]—Action to recover deposit paid at auction on the purchase of property not of the description given at time of the sale. Upon evidence of such difference, there was a verdict for pltf. for the full amount of the deposit.—LEACH v. MULLET (1827), 1 Ir. L. Rec. 1st Ser. 64.—IR.

167 vii. —.]—Conditions of sale at auction referred to public advertisements, which professed to contain a description of the property to be sold. In an action by the vendee to recover back the deposit on the purchase-money:—Held: those advertisements were admissible evidence to show that the conditions of sale misdescribed the premises.—THOMPSON v. GUY (1844), 7 I. L. R. 6.—IR.

On a demand of the deposit by the buyer, he answered that his principal would not consent to return it, & would enforce the contract:—Held: the buyer might recover the deposit from the auctioneer as money had & received to pltf.'s use, because (1) deft., as solr., had notice that the title had not been completed before he paid over the money; (2) he misled pltf. to sue himself by not saying he had paid it over.—EDWARDS v. HODDING (1814), 5 Taunt. 815; 1 Marsh. 377; 128 E. R. 913.

170. Cheque for deposit—Misrepresentation—Sale voidable—Defence.]—Deft. bought premises at an auction, & gave pltf., an auctioneer, a draft on his banker, instead of money, in payment of the deposit. Having afterwards refused to pay the draft on account of misdescription of the property by pltf., he pleaded to an action on the draft that "there was not, at any time, any consideration or value for his making the draft, or for paying its amount." Issue having been taken, the jury found pltf. guilty of a wilful misrepresentation in the description of the premises:—Held: the draft having been in point of law given without consideration, deft. could have rescinded the contract, & might resist payment of his draft, on the ground that the contract, which was the consideration, having been done away ab initio, no consideration remained at all.—MILLS v. ODDY (1835), 2 Cr. M. & R. 103; 3 Dowl. 722; 1 Gale, 92; 5 Tyr. 571; 4 L. J. Ex. 168; 150 E. R. 43.

171. Auctioneer agent of vendor in resale.]—Pltf. sought to recover as money had & received £18, being the deposit & auction duty paid on a sale of property by auction, at which deft. had become the purchaser, & had afterwards re-sold to pltf., who agreed to give deft. £10 for his bargain. The sale never having been completed, pltf. sought to recover back the deposit, etc.:—Held: (1) the auctioneer, into whose hands the money had been paid, had received it as agent for deft.; (2) a verdict for the amount should be entered for pltf.—CONSTABLE v. MARTIN (1847), 9 L. T. O. S. 314.

172. Loss of deposit—Falls on vendor—Vendor's refusal to have funds paid into court.]—Upon a sale by auction the vendor determines who is to receive the deposit. The auctioneer is not a stakeholder of the purchaser, at least not of his choice. If he were a stakeholder for both parties, either would have a right to propose to change the stakeholder, & the party refusing takes upon himself the risk.

Where a motion by the purchaser that the deposit should be paid into ct. was resisted by the vendor on the ground that the deposit was secure in the hands of the agent:—Held: the refusal to concur in the purchaser's proposition threw the risk of the agent's credit on the party refusing, & it would be too hard to throw the loss by the agent's failure on the purchaser.—FENTON v. BROWNE, BROWNE v. FENTON (1807), 14 Ves. 144; 33 E. R. 476.

The estate was accordingly conveyed to the trustees; the sale took place, & the auctioneer received deposits to a greater amount than his advances, & became bkpt.:—Held: A. was entitled to an equitable set-off of deposits against his debt to the bkpt.'s estate, according to the amount in which, on taking the account, A. should appear to be in reality interested beneficially in the surplus of the proceeds of the sales. If he was not so interested, then the deposits were the moneys of the trustees.—ALVANLEY v. LEWIS (1831), 1 L. J. Ch. 55.

176. Vendor's risk — Payment into court less auctioneer's charges.]—An auctioneer, on motion of the vendor, was ordered to pay the deposit into ct., minus his charges & expenses, & the vendee was restrained by injunction from proceeding in his action against the auctioneer for the deposit, in which action he had obtained a judgment for the whole amount of the deposit.

Pending the dispute as to the title, all the risk respecting the deposit rests with the vendor; for though the auctioneer is, to a certain degree, a stakeholder for vendor & vendee, yet so far as respects any risk as to the deposit, the auctioneer is considered as the agent only of the vendor. The deposit is the vendor's money, & the risk belonging to it is his; & if the vendor moves to have the deposit paid into ct. (which on large purchases it is always prudent to do for the sake of security, & to obtain interest on the deposit), there is good ground for the auctioneer insisting to have his costs & ex-must, in the absence of an express condition of sale, set out such facts as would be sufficient to justify him in paying the entire purchase-money, if still in his hands, to the vendor.

In an action against an auctioneer to recover a deposit, deft. pleaded, as to part of the sum claimed, that, being an auctioneer, he was employed to sell a farm, for which pltf. bid the highest price, & was declared the purchaser, & that the sum was lodged with him as a deposit, pursuant to the conditions of sale, & this he was entitled to retain, & had retained as auctioneer's fees:—Held: the plea was embarrassing, & should be set aside.—EARLY v. SMITH (1857), 7 L. C. L. R. 397.—IR.

The vendor, in the interim, gave notice to the auctioneer to invest the money in Govt. securities, & offered to indemnify him for so doing; but he did not obtain the consent of the purchaser to this arrangement. The auctioneer was in the habit of keeping a considerable sum at his bankers', to answer the demands which might be made upon him for deposits. Of the remainder of these deposits he made a profit, but it did not appear whether he made a profit of this particular sum, all trace of which was lost in its mixture with the bulk. Purchaser's action to recover—Vendor no title.]—Where on the sale by auction of an annuity the seller fails to produce his title deeds for inspection by the day named in the conditions of sale, an action for money had & received lies against the customer to recover the deposit.—BERRY v. YOUNG (1788), 2 Esp. 640, n.

186. —.]—Where the seller is unable to make a good title to land sold, an action for money had & received lies against the auctioneer to recover the amount of the deposit.—WARD v. SCOTT (1812), 3 Camp. 284.

187. —.]—An agreement of reference was entered into between G. & H., in which H. was described as the administrator of A., to whom certain leasehold premises, the right of which was in dispute, had belonged. The arbitrator directed the premises to be sold by an auctioneer, whose appointment was assented to by both parties. G.'s solr., who, at the time of the sale, was aware that H. had not taken out administration, became the purchaser & paid a deposit to the auctioneer, it being understood at the time of the sale that H. would take out administration. H., however, afterwards refused to do so, & a good title was not made out:—Held: the purchaser was entitled to recover his deposit from the auctioneer, without notice of the contract having been rescinded.—DUNCAN v. CAFE (1837), 2 M. & W. 244; Murph. & H. 1; 6 L. J. Ex. 81; 1 Jur. 23; 150 E. R. 747.

188. —.] Objections—Rescission.]—Pltf. had purchased property at a sale by auction, subject to a condition of sale, whereby the vendor was required to furnish the abstract of his title to the property sold within four days of the sale, for the perusal of the purchaser, who was to be allowed fourteen days for sending in objections to the title, or requisitions connected therewith; the conditions of sale contained likewise a proviso that the purchaser should be considered to have waived all objections to the title, if no objection or requisition was sent in within the fourteen days above mentioned. The purchaser had, subsequent to the sale, received the abstract of title, which was submitted by him to counsel, & he had, prior to the expiration of the fourteen days, returned the abstract to the solr. acting on behalf of the vendor, with the queries & opinion of counsel, who advised that the title was essentially defective. Pltf. having been unable to ascertain the vendors' names, gave notice to deft. (the auctioneer) that the contract of sale was at an end, & brought an action against him for recovery of the deposit paid at the time of the sale:—Held: (1) pltf. must be taken to have delivered his objections to the title as stipulated by the fourth condition, as the mode adopted by pltf. was a very usual mode of stating objections to title; (2) demanding the deposit from the auctioneer was in fact a rescinding of the contract; (3) pltf. was entitled to recover.—KERRIDGE v. SIMPSON (1846), 7 L. T. O. S. 92.

189. — Objection to title.]—In an action against an auctioneer to recover the amount of a deposit on the sale of an estate, deft., after an abstract has been delivered, is entitled, as a matter of course, to a statement in writing from pltf. of the objections of fact to the title on which he relies; but he is not entitled to a statement of objections of law.—*ROBERTS v. 190. — Misdescription.]—In the conditions of sale of the lease of a public house it was described as "a free public house" but the lease contained a covenant that the lessee & his assigns should take their beer from a particular brewer. This lease was read over by the auctioneer at the time of the sale, who said mistakenly that it was a free public house, & that the covenant about the beer had been decided to be bad:—Held: a purchaser who heard the lease read over was not bound in these circumstances to complete the purchase, but was entitled to recover back the deposit.—JONES v. EDNEY (1812), 3 Camp. 285.

192. — Concealment.]—A landlord having given notice to his lessee, under a covenant in the lease, that he would re-enter, if the premises were not put into repair within three months, if an auctioneer sell the lease without communicating the notice to the vendee, the latter may recover his deposit from the auctioneer, although he knew the dilapidated state of the premises at the time of sale.—*STEVENS v. 194. — Sale not completed promptly.]—Defts., on July 6, 1876, sold to pltf. by auction a contingent reversion in railway stock. The sale was subject to conditions, whereby it was provided that the purchaser should pay a deposit & the purchase be completed on or before Aug. 17 then next, "but should the completion of the purchase be delayed from any cause whatever beyond that period, the purchaser is (but without prejudice nevertheless to the vendor's rights under the seventh or any other condition of sale) to pay interest on the balance of the purchase-money from that day until the completion of the purchase." By the seventh condition, should the purchaser neglect or fail to comply with any condition, "the deposit-money shall be forfeited & the vendor . . . shall be at full liberty to resell the property . . . & the deficiency (if any) arising by such second sale, together with all charges attending same, shall be made good by the defaulter." There was no express stipulation that time should be of the essence of the contract. Pltf. at the time of sale paid a deposit of £30. Defts. were not able to complete the sale on or before Aug. 17, & pltf. two days afterwards brought an action to recover the deposit. Defts. were able & willing to complete the sale at the end of Nov., 1876:—Held: under the conditions time was not of the essence of the contract, & pltf. was not entitled to recover.—PATRICK v. MILNER (1877), 2 C. P. D. 342; 46 L. J. Q. B. 537; 36 L. T. 738; 41 J. P. 568; 25 W. R. 790.

195. — Making auctioneer party.]—Although it is the law that an auctioneer holding the deposit on a purchase may be made a deft. in an action for specific performance, yet, as a general rule, the proper practice is not to make him a deft. when the deposit is of small amount, unless he refuses to pay it into ct. when required, but where the deposit is of large amount he may be properly made a deft., unless he has paid it into ct. before action brought.—*EGMONT (EARL) v. 196. — Claim by vendor — Vendor made defendant.]—An auctioneer was employed to sell land by auction; the purchaser of a lot paid a deposit, but, not being satisfied with the title, refused to complete the purchase, & sued the auctioneer for the deposit. The vendor gave deft. notice to hold the money for her, as forfeited. Deft. applied to have the vendor made deft. The solvency of the vendor appearing doubtful, the ct. made the rule absolute, on the money being brought into ct. & security for costs being given to pltf., but refused to order that the costs of original deft. should be paid out of the money.—DELLER v. PRICKETT (1850), 15 Q. B. 1081; 20 L. J. Q. B. 151; 16 L. T. O. S. 212; 15 Jur. 168; 117 E. R. 769.

197. — Evidence.]—Upon a sale of houses by auction according to certain particulars & conditions of sale, requiring (inter alia) the delivery of an abstract of title within ten days, & payment of a deposit to the auctioneer, the purchaser of two houses paid a deposit, signed an agreement as purchaser, & obtained a receipt from the auctioneer for the money paid as for a deposit on a sale by auction of the premises described in the particulars & conditions of sale. The abstract of title not being delivered, the purchaser brought an action against the auctioneer for the recovery of the deposit:—Held: production of the receipt & of the conditions of sale, without production of the written contract signed by the purchaser, was insufficient.—CURTIS v. GREATER (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 167; 3 Nev. & M. K. B. 449; 3 L. J. K. B. 126; 110 E. R. 1170.

201. —.]—H., an auctioneer, employed by T. to sell an estate belonging to him, sold the estate in 1835, by auction, to C., who paid H. a sum of £134 by way of deposit. Disputes having arisen as to the estate T. gave notice to C. of his intention to put up the estate to auction again on the ground that he had failed to perform his contract, & employed H. for that purpose. C., on receiving the notice, warned H. not to resell the estate, requiring him to hold the deposit money till the title was completed. H., by the direction of T. in 1837, resold the estate by auction to V., who paid £128 as a deposit. Some difficulties respecting the title & the claim of C. arose between T. & V., & T., representing that V.

had failed to perform his contract, & thereby forfeited his deposit, called on H. to pay him the two deposits, & H. having refused, T. brought an action against H. to recover the amount of both deposits. C. shortly afterwards filed a bill against T., V. & H. for specific performance of his agreement for purchase, & for some time the proceedings in T.'s action were stayed, but in May, 1838, the plea being called for, H.'s solr. gave notice of that proceeding to the solr. of C. & V. T. required payment of the deposits, & offered H. an indemnity, stating that if payment were not made, he should proceed with his action. C. declined to move for an injunction in his suit, telling H. that if he paid his (C.'s) deposit to T. he would do so at his own peril, & V. required a good title or repayment of his deposit, with interest. H. filed his bill in June, 1838, against T., C. & V., treating the case as an ordinary case of interpleader, & in the same month obtained an injunction against T. from further proceeding in his action, on payment of the amount of the deposits into ct., & an injunction also against the other defts. from taking any proceedings at law, in respect of such deposits. The bill was dismissed with costs as against V., & the deposit paid by him ordered to be returned to H., & the injunction was dissolved as to T. & V. in respect of V.'s deposit, but continued in other respects as to T. & C.—*HOGGART v. ## Part VII.—Rights and Duties in relation to Vendor.

SECT. 1.—DUTY GENERALLY.

202. Liability for negligence—Preparation of catalogue—Costs of action.]—In an action claiming damages for the negligent preparation of a catalogue, the jury found that defts. had been negligent, but that plffs. had suffered no damage in consequence thereof:—Held: plffs. were not, & defts. were, entitled to the costs of the action.—COLE v. CHRISTIE, MANSON & WOODS (1910), 26 T. L. R. 469.

PART VII. SECT. 1.

r. Duty to use due care.]—From the employment of an auctioneer for reward, there is implied a contract upon his part to use due care & skill in conducting the sale.—KAVANAGH v. CUTHBERT, 9 I. R. C. L. 136.—IR.

s. — Perishable goods.]—Persons holding themselves out as auctioneers, & as such receiving perishable goods for sale, are bound to exercise reasonable diligence in seeking to effect a sale, & if unable to sell must forthwith inform the vendor. In such cases the measure of damages is the value of the goods at the time they were received by the auctioneer.—ROSE v. LOWE (1900), 2 W. A. L. R. 24.—AUS.

202 i. Liability for negligence—How affected by illegal action of vendor.]—A vendor who, contrary to law, has bid for his own goods, cannot afterwards sue the auctioneer for negligence in failing to procure the signature of the person to whom the goods are actually knocked down.—CHRISTIE v. QUARF (1906), 26 N. Z. L. R. 495.—N.Z.

202 ii. — Failure to advertise sale—Sacrifice of property.]—Pltf. claimed damages for the sale of his farm by defts.

at auction. The property was in the centre of a district of good farming land & worth at least $3,500, & would have brought that amount at an auction sale if properly advertised. Defts. sold it for $2,800, subject to unpaid taxes:—Held: defts. were liable for the difference between the two amounts, because they had so negligently & carelessly conducted the sale proceedings that the property was sacrificed.—CARRUTHERS v. HAMILTON PROVIDENT & LOAN SOCIETY (1898), 12 Man. L. R. 60.—CAN.

202 iii. — Failure to procure full deposit.]—Deft., an auctioneer, was instructed by pltf., the tenant of a judicial tenancy, to sell the farm. The farm was put up for sale, subject, amongst others, to a condition that the landlord's assent should be obtained. Deft. informed pltf. that a certain purchaser would buy, & took upon himself to accept as a deposit £5 instead of £25, the percentage mentioned in the conditions of sale. The landlord refused to consent; the sale was abandoned; & the £5 was returned by deft. to the purchaser. At the trial the jury found negligence on deft.'s part; found that the landlord's refusal was the cause of the sale not being completed; found that pltf. suffered loss by reason of deft. not receiving the full deposit; & contingently assessed damages at £65. On new trial motion:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover only nominal damages.—FARMER v. CASEY (1899), 33 I. L. T. 144.—IR.

202 iv. — Failure to accept bid—Measure of damages.]—A settlor, with the concurrence of the trustee of the settlement, employed auctioneers to sell the settled property, fixing a reserve. At the sale the reserve was bid, but by mistake on the part of the auctioneers was not accepted. The market was a falling one, & after several abortive attempts to sell with a reserve, the property, two years & a half after, was sold for much less than was first bid for it:—Held: (1) the auctioneers were liable to the settlor, as her agents, for negligence; (2) the measure of damages was the difference between the amount bid at the first attempted sale & the actual market value of the property.—LOGIE v. GILLIES & HISLOP (1885), 4 N. Z. L. R. 65.—N.Z.

202 v. — Selling below reserve.]—A vendor who employs an auctioneer to sell his goods & fixes a reserve price can maintain an action for damages against

Sect. 1.—Duty generally. Sects. 2, 3, 4 & 5.]

203. — Particulars of sale — Measure of damages.]—In an action against an auctioneer, employed by pltf. to conduct the sale of houses, for negligence in preparing the particulars of sale, in which the houses were improperly described, whereby pltf. was obliged to make the purchaser compensation, the jury found for pltf. with £47 10s. damages (being the amount paid for compensation):—Held: as it was impossible to say that the houses would not have sold for the same price, if they had been properly described, deft. was not entitled to have the damages reduced either in part or to nominal damages.—PARKER v. FAREBROTHER (1853), 21 L. T. O. S. 128; 1 W. R. 370; 1 C. L. R. 323.

204. — Delivery without payment.]—An auctioneer, who delivered goods without receiving the price from the purchaser:—Held: liable in an action for not duly accounting for the proceeds of the sale.—BROWN v. STATON (1816), 2 Chit. 353.

205. Injunction restraining sale—Notice by telegram—Duty to communicate.]—An auctioneer, receiving a telegram purporting to come from solrs., stating that an injunction restraining an execution sale has been issued by the Bkpcy. Ct., is not under a duty to communicate with the Bkpcy. Ct. or the sheriff's London agents, but he is under a duty to communicate with the person on whose instructions he is selling.—Re BISHOP, Ex p. LANGLEY, Ex p. SMITH (1879), 13 Ch. D. 110; 49 L. J. Bcy. 1; 41 L. T. 388; 28 W. R. 174, C. A.

206. Licence to sell on vendor's premises—Revocation.]—Where the owner of premises, who has employed an auctioneer to sell his goods thereon, revokes his consent to the auctioneer remaining on the premises, the latter has no right to continue there, though he has incurred expenses in allotting the goods & though he remains only to complete the sale by delivering the goods to the purchasers.—TAPLIN v. FLORENCE (1851), 10 C. B. 744; 20 L. J. C. P. 137; 17 L. T. O. S. 63; 15 Jur. 402; 138 E. R. 294.

207. Proceeds of sale—Fiduciary capacity—Right to follow.]—An auctioneer received moneys from a sale of live stock & paid them into his private account at defts.' bank. His account was overdrawn to an amount not exceeding £2,500, but, under an arrangement which was then subsisting, he was permitted to overdraw up to £2,500, & he had no suspicion at the time when he paid in such moneys of any intention on the part of the bank to close his account. The bank shortly afterwards closed the account, & applied the proceeds of the sale in reduction of the overdraft. The bank had notice that the moneys so paid in were substantially the produce of the sale of stock. An action was brought by pltf., on behalf of all the vendors at the sale, against the bank, to recover their respective purchase-moneys, less the auctioneer's commission:—Held: the auctioneer paid the proceeds of the sale to his private account in the ordinary course of

t. — Direction to jury.]—An action will lie against an auctioneer for selling goods at a ruinous sacrifice, if he has acted negligently & disregarded his duty; & it is no misdirection to tell the jury that the low price obtained is evidence to go to them of negligence.—CULL v. WAKEFIELD (1842), 6 O. S. 178.

u. Injunction restraining sale — Notice by telegram—Received after sale.]—An auctioneer acting under an order for sale, or master or other officer conducting such proceedings, is not bound business, & was not guilty of a breach of trust in so doing, & pltf. had no remedy against the bank.—MARTEN v. ROCKE, EYTON & Co. (1885), 53 L. T. 946; 34 W. R. 253; 2 T. L. R. 140.

208. — — — — —.]—Deceased was an auctioneer holding cattle sales in B. It was alleged that his course of business was to sell stock in his own name, giving varying credit to the buyers, but paying the vendors at the conclusion of the sale if they so wished, or otherwise within two days, irrespective of the time of payment of the purchase price by the buyers. His conditions of sale provided that he sold as commission agent & would in no way be liable as principal, & that vendor's remedy should be against purchaser only. On Apr. 23, 1912, deceased held a sale at B. at which, among other lots, he disposed of cattle belonging to C. On Apr. 24 deceased left his office, & on Apr. 25 committed suicide. Earlier on the same day his son had paid into a special account at the bank the proceeds of this sale, amounting to £794, including a cheque from the purchaser of C.'s cattle for the amount due. On May 24 an order was made for the administration of deceased's estate in bkpcy., & G. was appointed trustee. C. applied for an order that the trustee should pay over to him the purchase price of the cattle, less the auctioneer's commission:—Held: (1) there was no evidence of an agreement by which vendor became the creditor of the auctioneer & looked to him alone, & not to purchaser for payment; (2) the auctioneer received the money in a fiduciary capacity; (3) as it could be traced, it must be paid over to the vendor.—Re COTTON, Ex p. 211. Sale without authority—Conversion.]—Pltf. sent three horses to deft., an auctioneer, to be sold next day. Being told by deft.'s clerk that the next day would not be so good a time to sell them as the following sale day, pltf. said he would send for them back again, but when he did so on the next evening, he found that they had been sold. In a conversation deft. said that it was a mistake of his clerk, for which he was not answerable:—Held: (1) the horses were entrusted to deft. for a qualified purpose which admittedly was not conformed to; (2) deft. was guilty of conversion.—POWELL v. SADLER (1806), Paley, Principal & Agent, 3rd ed., 80.

212. Delivery to third party—Mistake of servant—Conversion.]—Trover to recover a wardrobe. The wardrobe had been sent by pltf. to deft.'s sale room, to be sold by auction, but at the sale it was bought in for pltf. A witness stated that after the sale he went & paid the expenses for pltf. & received a ticket for the delivery of the wardrobe, which he took to deft.'s porter, who informed him that it had been given to another purchaser of a different lot at the sale, & that it would be returned to pltf. as soon as it was found. The wardrobe had been delivered by the porter in mistake to purchaser of the other lot:—Held: (1) there was sufficient evidence of a conversion; (2) although a master was not responsible for every wrongful act of his servant, yet deft. must be liable for the misdelivery of his porter as it was the porter's duty to take the delivery tickets, & to give to each purchaser the proper article.—HARRIS v. RICHARDS (1847), 8 L. T. O. S. 451.

SECT. 3.—DUTY TO MAKE BINDING CONTRACT.

213. Sale at price exceeding £10—No memorandum signed—Negligence.]—An auctioneer who sells goods by auction at a price exceeding £10 is liable to the vendor for negligence in failing to procure a sufficient memorandum of the contract signed by or on behalf of the purchaser, whereby the contract is not binding upon the purchaser (BLACKBURN, J.).—PEIRCE v. CORF (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 210; 43 L. J. Q. B. 52; sub nom. PIERCE v. CORF, 29 L. T. 919; 38 J. P. 214; 22 W. R. 299.

214. Failure to get purchaser's signature & deposit—Resale at reduced price—Damages.]—Defts., auctioneers, having put up a ship for sale, under the usual conditions (inter alia) that the highest bidder should immediately sign the contract & pay a deposit, or that the ship should be put up again, allowed the highest bidder, who was unknown to them, to go away without signing or paying a deposit. He could not be found, & the ship was sold by pltf. for less than the pretended purchaser had bid, but also for less than defts. could have obtained by private contract:—Held: if the jury thought there had been a neglect of duty, but no real injury, they should find for pltf. the owner of the ship, for nominal damage.—HIBBERT v. BAYLEY (1860), 2 F. & F. 48.

SECT. —PURCHASE BY AUCTIONEER.

215. Abortive sale—Purchase by private contract—Setting aside sale—Lapse of years.]—An auctioneer employed to sell cannot be permitted on equitable principles to purchase the property himself.

Where an auctioneer, who had been employed to value & subsequently to sell an estate by auction, purchased the estate himself by private contract on the day after the auction, which proved abortive in consequence of no bidding having been made, & failed to give a satisfactory account of the proceedings at the auction, the purchase was set aside after a lapse of thirteen years.—OLIVER v. COURT (1820), 8 Price, 127; Dan. 301; 146 E. R. 1152.

See, generally, AGENCY, Vol. I., pp. 470—474.

SECT. 5.—LIABILITY FOR PROCEEDS OF SALE AND TO ACCOUNT.

216. Must account to employer—Adverse claim—Agreement as to proceeds—Repudiation.]—Action against an auctioneer by a person, who had employed him to sell goods, to recover the proceeds of the sale. Before the sale had been completed, a judgment creditor of another party had interfered, & seized the goods as belonging to him. Pltf. had then agreed in writing that deft. should pay the proceeds of the sale into a bank to abide the event of the dispute between pltf. & the judgment creditor. Pltf. subsequently repudiated the agreement by notice in writing, before the money was paid over, which it was contended he could not do:—Held: there was nothing to relieve deft. from his liability to pltf.—LOWE v. GALLIMORE (1852), 18 L. T. O. S. 63, 241.

217. Jus tertii—Goods fraudulently removed—Insolvent's assignees.]—Pltf., acting in collusion with an insolvent, fraudulently removed the insolvent's goods & employed deft., an auctioneer, to sell them. Notice of the fraudulent removal was given by the insolvent's assignees to deft., who, nevertheless, sold the goods & rendered an account of the sale to pltf. Afterwards, on receiving an indemnity from the assignees, he refused to pay over the proceeds of the sale to pltf. In an action for money had & received:—Held: (1) pltf. had no better title than the insolvent; (2) deft. could set up the title of the insolvent's assignees.

If the insolvent had put the goods into the hands of deft. for sale, his assignees would have stepped in & claimed the produce from deft. & the insolvent could not have maintained his action after such

*w. Limits of duty.]—*From the auctioneer's acceptance of an engagement to conduct an auction there is no implication of an absolute contract on his part to bind the person to whom a lot may be knocked down to complete the purchase.—KAVANAGH v. CUTHBERT, 9 I. R. C. L. 136.—IR.

PART VII. SECT. 4.

215 i. Abortive sale—Purchase by private contract—Where not breach of duty.]

—An auctioneer employed to sell a property by public auction is an agent pro hac vice only, & whether he succeeds in effecting a sale or not his agency is determined after the auction. Therefore where mtgees. have put up the mtged. property for sale by public auction without result, & fourteen days afterwards agree to sell the same property by private contract to the auctioneers who conducted the attempted auction sale, the transaction cannot be impeached by the mtgor. as a purchase by a mtgor.'s agent from the mtgee.—YOUNG v. HILL (1883), 2 N. Z. L. R. 62.—N.Z.

PART VII. SECT. 5.

217 i. Jus tertii.]—An auctioneer having sold certain goods on the instructions of A., received, while the proceeds were in his hands, notice from B., an exor., that the goods sold formed part of the assets of his testator, & that he claimed the proceeds. In an action against the auctioneer by C., as administrator of A., to recover the proceeds of the sale:—Held: as deft. would otherwise render himself liable to an action at the suit of B., he was entitled to rely as a defence on B.'s right.—HARTE v. GRAHAM (1899), 33 I. L. T. 72.—IR.

218. — Adverse claim—No title shown by claimants.]—Pltf., the elder brother & creditor of an intestate, being in possession of the goods of the intestate under a bill of sale, said that he should not insist on his bill of sale, but that he should divide the goods with the other creditors, & he employed deft., an auctioneer, to sell the goods. After the sale the widow of deceased gave deft. notice, through her solr., not to pay pltf., but to retain the money until all the creditors should come in, that it might be divided rateably amongst them. No letters of administration were taken out:—Held: (1) deft. was prima facie bound to account to pltf., from whom he had received the goods; (2) even if he would have been at liberty to set up the jus tertii, & show as a defence against pltf. that he was bound to account to a third person, still he was liable, no title being shown by him in any third person.—CROSSKEY v. MILLS (1834), 1 Cr. M. & R. 298; 3 L. J. Ex. 297; 149 E. R. 1093.

219. — Evidence of title—No estoppel.]—Pltf. seized goods belonging to R., under a distress for rent of a house alleged to have been demised by pltf. to R., & having seized them he delivered them to deft., an auctioneer, for the purpose of selling them. When the sale was about to begin R. gave notice to deft. that he must not sell the goods, or if he did sell them that he must retain the proceeds for him (R.), as the distress was void, & as the relation of landlord & tenant did not exist between himself & pltf. This was true, & the distress was void altogether. Deft. sold the goods, but kept the proceeds for R.:—Held: he was not estopped from disputing pltf.'s title, but was entitled to set up the jus tertii, as the bailment had been determined by what was equivalent to an eviction by title paramount.—BIDDLE v. BOND (1865), 6 B. & S. 225; 5 New Rep. 485; 34 L. J. Q. B. 137; 12 L. T. 178; 29 J. P. 565; 11 Jur. N. S. 425; 13 W. R. 561; 122 E. R. 1179.

220. Election—Estoppel.]—After the filing of a liquidation petition the holder of a registered bill of sale executed by debtor instructed an auctioneer to take possession of the chattels comprised in it. The auctioneer took possession, & advertised the goods for sale on behalf of the bill of sale holder. The sale was stopped by injunction, & the auctioneer remained in possession of the goods on behalf of the receiver under the petition. On the appointment of a trustee the auctioneer held possession for him, & ultimately by his directions advertised the goods for sale, the advertisements & the catalogues of the goods being headed "In liquidation. By order of the trustee." The goods were sold, & the proceeds of sale were received by the auctioneer. The bill of sale holder gave him notice not to pay them to the trustee, & he declined to pay them over. The trustee applied to the Bkpcy. Ct. for an order for payment to him, serving notice of his motion on the auctioneer only. On the hearing of the motion an order was made, by consent, that the money should be paid into ct. & the hearing adjourned, notice meanwhile being given to the bill of sale holder, who did not appear on the adjourned hearing. He had meanwhile commenced an action against the auctioneer for the proceeds of sale:—Held: the money must be paid out to the trustee, on the ground that the auctioneer had, with full knowledge of the adverse claim, deliberately elected to sell the goods for the trustee, & was estopped from denying his title.—Re SADLER, Ex p. DAVIES (1881), 19 Ch. D. 86; 45 L. T. 632; 30 W. R. 237, C. A.

221. — Equitable plea—Jurisdiction.]—An auctioneer having been employed to sell the property of a lunatic by the agent of the committee, an action was afterwards brought by the personal representative of the lunatic against the auctioneer, for the moneys received by him as the produce of the sale. Deft. pleaded equitable pleas of set-off under C. L. P. Act, 1854 (c. 125), & pltf. at law replied. Deft. then filed a bill for an injunction, setting up the same case as in his defence at law, & alleging complicated accounts:—Held: (1) there was nothing to show that these accounts could not be taken at law; (2) the pleas must be considered as showing a good defence at law under the above Act; (3) the injunction must be refused.—FAREBROTHER v. WELCHMAN (1855), 3 Drew. 122; 3 Eq. Rep. 383; 24 L. J. Ch. 410; 24 L. T. O. S. 286; 3 W. R. 257; 61 E. R. 849.

222. Account stated—How far binding—Void sale—Resale.]—Pltf. had employed deft. to sell goods by auction, & at the sale a great quantity had been purchased by M. who was afterwards discovered to be insane. It was the custom of the trade that when goods were sold at auction, & the auctioneer did not take the deposit from the purchaser, & the purchaser went away without completing his purchase, that the auctioneer should be liable for the amount of the deposit. About two months after the sale, the goods were again put up at auction & sold at a loss of about £87, & five months afterwards, when the auctioneer was asked for an account, he rendered one, omitting any mention of the second sale, but charging the commission on the full amount obtained by the first sale, when the goods had been sold to M. In an action for money had & received & on an account stated, it was held at the trial that the purchase by M. was so far void as to exclude the liability of the auctioneer for the difference between the prices obtained at the two sales, & it was contended that there was sufficient evidence of an account stated, in which the sum

223 i. Set-off by purchaser.]—C., an auctioneer, was employed to sell certain goods for R. C. & Co. C. sold some of the goods to G. & F., who claimed to set off the value of the goods against a debt due to them by R. C. & Co.:—Held: it is the duty of an auctioneer, in the absence of a stipulation to the contrary, to sell for cash, & his liability to his employers is not affected by the fact the goods are sold to a person to whom the employer is indebted at the time of the sale.—KNOX v. COCKBURN (1862), 1 Q. S. C. R. 80.—AUS.

223 ii. —.]—To an action for not accounting, deft., an auctioneer, pleaded that "as to the sum of £16 3s., portion of the sum of £ , that goods to the amount of £16 3s. were purchased from him by S. & were, by the custom of A., delivered to him without being paid for, & that pltf. was indebted to S. in the sum of £16 3s., & that S. refused to pay to deft. the sum of £16 3s."—Held: a bad plea.—CUMMING v. BELL (1863), 8 Ir. Jur. 391.—IR.

a. Effect of failure to account.]—An auctioneer was entrusted by clients with property for sale: he sold & paid the proceeds into his general account at his bankers; he neglected after repeated applications to render account sales or pay over the proceeds; by payments in course of his business his general account dwindled & he became insolvent. The Comrs. refused his certificate because he had "extended for his own benefit or appropriated to his own use trust funds or other property of which he had the charge or disposition as trustee or as an agent only."—Re PERRY (1862), 1 W. & W. 150.—AUS.

received by the first sale was acknowledged to be due, & it could not be said that there could be any error, inasmuch as deft. had charged the commission on the full sum obtained by the first sale, taking his chance of what might be obtained at the subsequent sale, it being his own negligence that the second sale became necessary:—Held: it was only prima facie evidence that he was liable for the amount acknowledged by the account to be due, & as he said that he had received a certain sum, but it turned out that he had not received that sum, he could not be answerable for it without some other agreement between the parties.—SAMUEL v. ROBINSON (1847), 8 L. T. O. S. 367.

223. Set-off—Sale of partnership property—Debt due from one partner.]—To an action for money had & received, defts. pleaded, as a set-off, that pltf. were partners, & that before the money had been received by defts., G., one of pltf.s., applied to defts., auctioneers, to sell some property, & that defts. at the time of the application, & at the time of the selling, & at the time when the set-off accrued, believed G. to be the sole owner of the property & had no notice that pltf.s. had any interest in it, that the money in question was received upon the sale of the property, & that after G. had so employed defts., & before defts. had notice that G. was not the sole owner, G. became indebted to defts. for money lent, etc. Replication, that at the time of the selling of the property, defts. knew that G. was not the sole owner of it:—Held: (1) the plea was bad; (2) it did not show that G. appeared as sole owner, with the consent or by the default of other pltf.s.; (3) it amounted merely to a set-off of a debt due from one partner to a demand from several partners.—GORDON v. ELLIS (1846), 2 C. B. 821; 3 Dow. & L. 803; 15 L. J. C. P. 178; 7 L. T. O. S. 85; 10 Jur. 359; 135 E. R. 1167.

224. Contract rescinded for fraud—Notice to auctioneer not to pay over proceeds.]—Pltf. instructed deft. to sell a horse for him, representing to deft. that the horse was a useful horse, etc., but that he was not to warrant it. Dft. sold the horse & represented it as a useful horse. The purchaser afterwards rescinded the contract on the ground of fraud, & gave deft. notice not to pay over the purchase-money to pltf. In an action for the purchase-money:—Held: these facts afforded deft. a good defence.—STEVENS v. LEIGH (1853), 22 L. T. O. S. 84; 2 W. R. 16; 2 C. L. R. 251.

225. Omission to credit trade discount—Misconduct.]—Pltf. employed defts., auctioneers, to sell goods for him by auction upon the terms that they were to be paid a lump sum by way of commission, & were further to be paid "all out-of-pocket expenses," including the expenses of printing & advertising. Defts. in due course sold pltf.'s goods. In rendering their account of the out-of-pocket expenses to pltf. they debited him with the gross amounts of the printers' bill & of the cost of advertising in the newspapers, they having in fact received discounts both from the printers & the newspaper proprietors, a fact of which pltf. had no knowledge. There was evidence of a general custom for printers & newspaper proprietors to deal with auctioneers as principals, & to allow them a trade discount off their retail charges, which discount they would not allow to the auctioneers' customers if they dealt with them directly, & defts., in omitting to disclose the fact of the discounts to pltf. did so in the honest belief that they were lawfully entitled under the custom to receive the discounts & retain them to their own use:—Held: although defts. were not entitled to debit pltf. with the gross amounts of the printing & advertising bills, inasmuch as by the terms of the employment they were only to be paid their actual out-of-pocket expenses, yet, as they received the discounts without fraud, & as the duty to account correctly for the out-of-pocket expenses was merely incidental to & separable from their main duty connected with the sale of the goods, the omission to disclose the receipt of the discounts to pltf. did not disentitle them to retain their commission.—HIPPISLEY v. KNEE BROTHERS, [1905] 1 K. B. 1; 74 L. J. K. B. 68; 92 L. T. 20; 21 T. L. R. 5; 49 Sol. Jo. 15.

SECT. 6.—AUCTIONEER'S RIGHT TO REMUNERATION.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

226. Construction of contract—Time limit for sale—Meaning of "month."]—An auctioneer was employed to sell land, under a written contract that he should be paid 1 per cent. commission, but, if the estate were not sold within two months after the day of auction, only  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.:—Held: (1) this, by itself, meant "two lunar months," unless there was admissible evidence that the parties meant "calendar months"; (2) the judge might construe it to mean "calendar months," if the context showed this meaning, or if this appeared to him, from the surrounding circumstances, at the time of making the contract; (3) if there were evidence that the words were used in a sense peculiar to the trade, business or place, the jury upon this might find such peculiar meaning; (4) the conduct or correspondence of the parties since the making of the contract was not evidence upon which, alone, a jury might find that the words denoted "calendar months."—*SIMPSON v. 227. Claim by action—Reference to master—Matter of account.]—Pltf. sued deft. for work & labour as an auctioneer, & before plea deft. applied under C. L. P. Act, 1854 (c. 125), s. 3, to a judge for an order to refer the matter to a master, upon an affidavit stating "that the matter in dispute in this action consists of mere matter of account, which cannot be conveniently tried in the ordinary way," which order, though opposed by pltf., was made. Upon a subsequent application by pltf. to set aside such order, on the ground that an action for "work & labour" was not within the operation of the above sect. & that it would be competent to deft. to set up a defence of non-liability:—Held: (1) such action was within the sect.; (2) if when before the master deft. set up any other matter of defence, then it would be the proper time for pltf. to apply

PART VII. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 1.

b. Failure of duty—Loss of commission.]—An auctioneer, who, by concealing material facts from his employer, has caused loss to him, has no right to the compensation agreed to be paid to him upon a sale being effected.—RING v. POTTS (1903), 36 N. B. R. 42.—CAN.

c. Where sale is abortive.]—An auctioneer is not entitled to charge commission on an abortive sale unless there is an express agreement that he is so to do.—SINCLAIR v. STUART (1886), 5 N. Z. L. R. 85.—N.Z.

228. — Claim by other auctioneers—Interpleader.]—Pltfs., auctioneers, sued deft. for £35 12s. agreed commission, in respect of the sale of a house. A second firm of auctioneers claimed £25 from deft., for commission in respect of the same sale of the same house:—Held: (1) the two claims were not opposing or competing; (2) there was no jurisdiction to give deft. relief by way of interpleader, either under C. C. R., Ord. 27, r. 13, or under R. S. C., Ord. 57.—GREATOREX v. SHACKLE, [1895] 2 Q. B. 249; 64 L. J. Q. B. 634; 72 L. T. 897; 44 W. R. 47; 39 Sol. Jo. 602; 15 R. 501, D. C.

229. — Costs received by London agent of solicitors—Privity of contract.]—H. had been employed in a foreclosure action by D. & B., a country firm of solrs., as auctioneer, & when the costs came to be taxed by the London agent, S., he received a voucher from H. for his fees. S. thereupon took the money out of ct. after a taxation, which included this item of H.'s fees. Before he received this money it came to his knowledge that H. had not been paid. In an action by H. against S. to recover these fees as money had & received:—Held: (1) there was no privity of contract between them; (2) the action must fail.—HANNAFORD v. SYMS (1898), 79 L. T. 30; 14 T. L. R. 530.

SUB-SECT. 2.—WHERE SALE BY AUCTION.

230. Express agreement—Usage of trade.]—A claim by an auctioneer for an allowance of 7½ per cent. on the price of goods sold, exclusive of expenses, can only be supported on the ground of private agreement; apart from agreement the auctioneer cannot claim any sum beyond the fair quantum meruit for his labour.—MALTBY v. B. was an auctioneer, & had been employed as such by A.:—Held: (1) the words appeared to have been inserted to provide for B. being employed in the sale; (2) B. was entitled to charge his commission.—DOUGLAS v. mission was not covered by the security, but, some expenses having been incurred in taking preliminary steps to sell, a reference to chambers was directed to ascertain the value of the services rendered under the contract.—BROAD v. 235. — Sale by subsequent incumbrancers.]—An auctioneer took an absolute assignment of chattels, etc., under a bill of sale by way of mtge., & afterwards conducted the sale of them by auction under an agreement with another incumbrancer:—Held: he was entitled to charge the usual commission on such sale, although no provision for a commission had been made either in the bill of sale or the agreement.—MILLER v. BEAL (1879), 27 W. R. 403.

236. In respect of what services—Sale in lots—One lot only sold.]—An auctioneer's percentage of 1 per cent. "for valuing & bringing up to sale," which includes the preparation of the conditions of sale & the letting, & then a further charge of 1½ per cent. in addition (total 2½ per cent.), "for putting up to sale, if sold," is a fair & reasonable charge; & an employment for the purposes of a sale & actually knocking down one lot, however small, out of 89 lots, all included in one sale, & belonging to the same seller, the conditions of sale (being the legal contract between the parties) running over the whole 89 lots, will entitle the auctioneer to recover "both branches" of his commission, namely (1) the 1 per cent. for the valuing & bringing up to sale; & (2) the remaining 1½ per cent. for the act of putting up & actually knocking down, & thus completing the act of sale. No question as to sundry charges, but every item of that kind merged in the 2½ per cent. general commission, it being expressly understood such percentage should cover every incidental expense.—SIMPSON v. MILLTOWN (EARL) (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 529.

237. Who liable—Action against solicitor stayed.]—An order was made to restrain an action brought by an auctioneer against the solr. in a lunacy for the amount of his bill for appraising & selling property belonging to the lunatic, such sale having been made under the authority of the ct., & the auctioneer having acted on the instructions of the solr., & with the sanction of the master, before whom he had at first carried in his claim; & a reference was directed for the purpose of ascertaining what would be a proper sum to be allowed him on that account.—Re WEAVER (1837), 2 My. & Cr. 441; 40 E. 238. Amount recoverable—Dry dock.]—There is no established custom among auctioneers to regard the sale of a dry dock as exceptional from that of ordinary property.

In an action for commission on the sale of a dry dock:—Held: the agent was entitled to commission in accordance with the scale recognised by the Society of Auctioneers, the Surveyors' Assocn. & the Committee of the Estates Exchange—viz., 1½ per cent. on the first £10,000, 1 per cent. on the next £10,000, & ½ per cent. on the residue.—NEWMAN v. RICHARDSON (1885), 1 T. L. R. 348.

239. — Sale by mortgagee under power—Court scale.]—Where testator's real estate, subject to a mtge., was sold by auctioneers under the power of sale in the mtge.:—Held: (1) the mtgees. having taken directions from the chief clerk during the proceedings for sale, must be taken to have so submitted themselves to the jurisdiction that the sale, though not properly a sale under the direction of the ct., must be treated as subject to the control of the ct. in the same way as if it had been a sale by the ct.; (2) no more was to be allowed for the auctioneers' charges than on a sale by the ct., though probably the charges made would have been treated as reasonable on a sale out of ct.—Re WALFORD, WALFORD v. WALFORD (1889), 5 T. L. R. 251, C. A.

240. — Payable on completion—Rescission.]—Auctioneers, employed by the mtgees.' solrs. to sell certain property by auction, agreed that, if the property was not sold, they would charge a fee of 30 guineas & out-of-pocket expenses. The property was accordingly put up to auction & sold. There being a defect in the title the purchase was rescinded. The auctioneers claimed their full commission:—Held: (1) commission was only payable upon a completed sale, viz., in the case of land, when the conveyance was complete, not when there was a mere contract to sell; (2) the commission was not earned under the terms of the contract itself; (3) as it was the act of the purchaser that prevented the contract being carried out & not the act of the vendors, the auctioneers were only entitled to the fee of 30 guineas & out-of-pocket expenses.—PEACOCK v. FREEMAN (1888), 4 T. L. R. 541, C. A.

Payable on sale—Rescission.]—Defts. were instructed to sell by auction a freehold property, on the following terms: "If the property should not be sold at the auction, but should be sold within, say, two months afterwards to a purchaser who has been found by means of your advertisements or posters or through your introduction, then you are to receive half of the commission you would have received if the property had been sold at the auction"; & "if a sale should take place either before the sale under the hammer or before Oct. 30, 1909, the usual commission of 2½ per cent. upon the first £5,000 & 1½ per cent. upon the balance is to be paid to us, such commission to include all out-of-pocket expenses. If the property remains unsold at Oct. 30, then no charge of any description, whether for out-of-pocket expenses or services, is to be made by us." At the auction the property was knocked down to a purchaser, who signed a contract & paid a deposit to the auctioneer, but subsequently the contract was rescinded by the vendor, in consequence of a requisition being made by purchaser which vendor could not comply with:—Held: (1) defts.' commission was payable on the property being knocked down to a purchaser at the auction, notwithstanding that there was no completed sale; (2) the auctioneers were entitled to retain their commission out of the deposit received from purchaser.—SKINNER v. ANDREWS & HALL (1910), 26 T. L. R. 340; 54 Sol. Jo. 360, C. A.

242. Effect of negligence—Sale becoming nugatory.]—If an auctioneer employed to sell an estate is guilty of negligence, whereby the sale becomes nugatory, he is not entitled to recover any compensation for his services from the vendor.—DENEW v. DAVERELL (1813), 3 Camp. 451.

SUB-SECT. 3.—WHERE SALE NOT BY AUCTION.

243. Construction of agreement—"Sold"—Sale by different agent.]—An auctioneer agreed with the owner of an estate to put the estate up for sale by auction upon the terms that, if the estate should not be sold, the owner was to pay £200 & the expenses of advertising, but if the estate should be sold, then all expenses were to fall into the commission, which varied according to the value of the estate. The estate was put up to auction, but not sold. The owner afterwards employed another agent, & wrote to the auctioneer, to say that he had done so, & through the agent's agency the estate was sold:—Held: the first auctioneer was only entitled to £200 & expenses, & not to commission on the sale of the estate.

In the construction of the contract, the word "sold" means sold by himself; & he must prove that he sold, either he himself acting solely in it, or that he took the part of deft. in the sale of the estate. There is no proof that the sale was brought about by his act. It is entirely a question for the judge, & not for the jury (PARKE, B.).—GREEN (ASSIGNEE OF RANY) v. HALL (1848), 12 L. T. O. S. 151.

244. — Sale by one member of firm.]—Pltfs. claimed commission on the sale of property sold by private contract by one of defts. for £128,500, after pltfs. had been employed to sell it. The commission claimed was 1 per cent. Defts. contended that, admitting pltfs. to have been employed upon the terms of receiving 1 per cent. as their commission on the purchase-money, the true meaning of the agreement was that such commission was not to become payable, unless the sale was effected by pltfs. themselves, & that the agreement for the sale, having been made by one of defts., pltfs. had not become entitled to their commission. The verdict was for pltfs.—DRIVER v. CHOLMONDELEY (1835), 9 C. & P. 559, n.

245. No implied employment to sell by private contract—When no sale by auction.]—On an employment of an auctioneer to sell by auction, there is no employment to sell by private contract if the public sale proves abortive, & evidence of a custom to that effect among auctioneers is not admissible.

Pltf., an auctioneer, claimed 2½ per cent. commission on a sale of deft.'s ground rents to G. The property was put up & bought in at the reserved price, G. being present. G. subsequently purchased by private contract, pltf.'s clerk volunteering to act as an intermediary. The jury found there was no employment of pltf. to sell by private contract, & judgment was given for deft.—MARSH v. JELF (1862), 3 F. & F. 234.

"if the estate should be sold," & "in case the estate should not be sold," he was to be paid £25 as a compensation for his trouble & expense. Having put up the estate to auction, & failed to sell it, the agent, being asked by a person who had attended the sale who was the owner of the property, referred him to his principal, & ultimately that person, without any further intervention of the agent, became the purchaser. During the negotiations with the purchaser & before completing the sale to him, deft. had withdrawn the agent's authority to sell the estate:—Held: the sale having been effected through the means of the agent, he was entitled to the stipulated commission.—GREEN v. BARTLETT (1863), 14 C. B. N. S. 681; 2 New Rep. 279; 32 L. J. C. P. 261; 8 L. T. 503; 10 Jur. N. S. 78; 11 W. R. 834; 143 E. R. 613.

Pl'tfs. advertised the ship, & put her up to auction, but she was not sold. Shortly afterwards S. purchased her by private contract. S. had heard of the auction from a person who had been in communication with pl'tfs.:—Held: pl'tfs. were entitled to their commission although neither the purchaser nor his agent had seen pl'tfs.' publication, as he had been led to make an offer by hearing of it.—*BAYLEY v. (pl'tfs.), inquired where she could find W. & W. She afterwards met deft. & bought the property:—Held: the property having been placed in pl'tfs.' hands for sale & the sale having taken place through their means, & before the authority to sell was revoked, pl'tfs. were entitled to their commission.—WATKIN v. CRISFORD (1883), 4 N. S. W. L. R. 133.—AUS.

246 ii. ——— Not brought about by auctioneer.]—The administrator of the estate of a deceased person instructed an auctioneer to submit the real estate of deceased to public auction. One property did not reach the reserve & was passed in. The property was subsequently sold privately by the administrator at a sum below the reserve, but higher than the same beneficiary's best bid at the auction. The auctioneer thereupon claimed commission on the sale on the grounds that the property had never been withdrawn from his hands & that the sale had been the result of the buyer having attended the auction owing to his efforts & advertising:—Held: the sale was not brought about by the efforts of the auctioneer, & he was not entitled to

246 iii. .]—Pl'tf. was employed by deft. to sell property by auction; a sale was not effected at the auction, but the property was shortly afterwards sold by deft. to a private purchaser:—Held: as the sale was not effected at the auction, & as the subsequent purchaser was not introduced through pl'tf., a claim for auctioneer's fees did not lie.—BURNS v. LANGFORD (1901), 35 I. L. T. 148.—IR.

250 ii. ——— Sale through other agents—Custom.]—A custom that where property is placed in the hands of an auctioneer for sale, & afterwards withdrawn & sold without the intervention of such auctioneer within three months from the time when so placed in his hands for sale, such auctioneer is entitled to be paid the full commission on such sale, as if he had himself effected it, is unreasonable & bad.

instrumentality, even although by the act or default of the vendor the contract is rescinded; & it is for the jury whether the same commission as on sales by auction is reasonable.—CLARK v. SMYTHIES (1860), 2 F. & F. 83.

249. Sale by court—Sale after auction—Practice.]—In an administration action an order was made for the sale of lands forming part of the real estate, & an auctioneer was employed to conduct the sale & the usual recognisance was given by him. At the auction the lands were not sold, but shortly afterwards an advantageous sale was effected, not by the auctioneer nor on his introduction, though probably as a consequence of the attempted sale by auction. The auctioneer, whose recognisance had not been vacated, applied to the ct. to be allowed commission on the sale so effected, & there was evidence by auctioneers of experience & eminence to the effect that it was the practice of the ct. to allow commission in such a case. KEKEWICH, J., doubting the existence of such a practice, & a master, to whom the question was referred, stating that he did not know of any practice of the Ch. Div. to allow an auctioneer employed by the ct. a commission on a sale effected after the auction but within a reasonable time thereafter, & before recognisance vacated, such sale not being effected by the auctioneer himself or on his introduction, & that he had always absolutely refused to allow such commission, the application was dismissed.—Re MAITLAND, PICKTHALL v. DAWES (1903), 47 Sol. Jo. 709.

250. Withdrawal of instructions—Sale through agency of auctioneer.]—There is no custom that where property is put into an auctioneer's hands for sale & before he has had an opportunity of selling it, is withdrawn & sold through another channel, the auctioneer is entitled to a commission of 2½ per cent. on the price realised. It is otherwise if the auctioneer can show that the sale was brought about by something which he has done.—WILLIAMS v. TUCKETT (1900), Times, March 9.

251. ——— Evidence of usage.]—Pl'tf. was employed to sell ground rents by auction, on the terms of receiving a commission of 1 per cent. "on sale." After he had advertised the sale, but before the day of sale, deft. sold the ground rents by private contract. Three auctioneers proved the custom of the trade to be that after an auctioneer was employed & the property advertised by him, he was Pl'tfs., auctioneers, sued for work & labour & commission. The contract was contained in a letter from defts. to pl'tfs. in these terms: "The lowest price for the whole of the property is £29,000. . . . As an inducement to your effecting a speedy sale, we agree, provided you obtain our price as named herein, to pay you the full commission of 2½ per cent." Pl'tfs. made efforts to effect a sale, but without success. Defts. withdrew the property from pl'tfs.' hands, & sold it through other agents:—Held: pl'tfs. were not entitled to recover anything from defts.—HARDIN v. BROWN (1886), 7 N. S. W. L. R. 303.—AUS.

250 iii. Sale through agency of auctioneer.]—L. instructed V., an auctioneer, to sell certain stock by public auction at a commission of 5 per cent. Before the date fixed for the sale L. disposed of the stock privately. V. sued L. for commission at the agreed rate on the price realised:—Held: V. was entitled to a reasonable remuneration for his services in the matter, & the transaction having been brought about by his advertisement of the sale & particulars obtained by the purchasers from him, his remuneration should be fixed at 5 per cent. of the purchase price of the stock thus sold, in addition to his expenses actually incurred in advertising the sale.—VIGNE v. LEO, 9 H. C. 229.—S. AF.

entitled to the full commission on a sale being effected, although not through his direct agency. The question left to the jury was, whether this custom was so notorious that defts. must have known it, & that if so, it was engrafted in the contract. The jury found for pltf. for the full commission.—RAINY v. VERNON (1840), 9 C. & P. 559.

252. — Renewal of previous negotiations.]—Defts., trustees of an estate, being directed to sell the property, offered it to D. for £60,000 but without effect, as D. did not feel inclined to give more than £51,000 for it. Before this pltf. was applied to by defts. to know on what terms he would undertake to “knock down” the property. Pltf. replied that he should expect 20 guineas for preliminary expenses & 1 per cent. commission for an actual sale, but that in the event of the property being bought in, he should only claim 50 guineas & all disbursements, these latter being included in the 1 per cent. commission on a sale. These terms were assented to, & pltf. took his measures to dispose of the estate on Aug. 31. Before that day defts. renewed their treaty with D., who, on Aug. 30, concluded it by becoming the purchaser at the price originally named by the trustees. This took place without the privity of pltf., who, when acquainted with the matter, put in his claim to the 1 per cent. commission, & called several eminent auctioneers on his behalf to prove that by the custom of the trade the full amount was payable in the circumstances of the case. It was left to the jury to say whether, although pltf. might have had nothing to do with the actual sale to D., he was not fairly entitled to his full commission on the purchase-money paid by D., as though he had “knocked down the estate” to him. The jury returned a verdict for pltf. for the full amount claimed.—ROBINS v. BURKE (1846), 5 L. T. O. S. 322.

253. Settled land—Sale on behalf of tenant for life—Charges payable out of capital.]—Settled lands were sold under Settled Land Act, 1882 (c. 38), by the tenant for life, who had mtged. his interest. At the auction the reserve price was not reached, but on the following day the property was sold at that price by private contract. The auctioneer's charge for conducting the sale was to be  $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. commission:—Held: the trustees should pay the auctioneer's commission, & the tenant for life was entitled to have the auctioneer's charges paid out of the purchase-money.—Re BECK, Re CARTINGTON ESTATE (1883), 24 Ch. There had been a previous course of dealing between the parties, on which a balance arose in favour of the auctioneers. The owner became bkpt.:—Held: the auctioneers were entitled to a lien over the horses in their stables for the general balance due to them on all their transactions with him.—*MILLER v. The tenant, was sequestrated on Jan. 11, 1901. At the date of the sale, as the result of a series of transactions between the auctioneers & the tenant, the tenant was due to the auctioneers a balance of £244, part of the balance being alleged to be an advance of £200 made by the auctioneers to the tenant on Sept. 26, 1900. In a question with the tenant's trustee in bkpcy., the auctioneers claimed to retain the sum of £244, being part of the proceeds of the dispenishing sale, in payment of the debt due to them by the tenant:—Held: the auctioneers having no right to retain for a general balance were not entitled to retain the proceeds of the sale in order to repay in full unsecured advances made by them to the tenant.—*CRAIG'S TRUSTEE v. Pltf. was a creditor of defts.' customer, & he by letter charged the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in favour of pltf. Defts. wrote to pltf. acknowledging the receipt of the letter of charge. Defts. afterwards paid their customer the balance of the price of the furniture, & appropriated the part of the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in their hands to the payment of their charges:—Held: (1) the letter of charge & defts.' acknowledgment thereof amounted to a good equitable assignment in favour of pltf.; (2) defts., as auctioneers, had a lien for their charges upon the part of the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in their hands; (3) defts.' acknowledgment of the letter of charge was not a waiver of their lien; (4) defts. were at liberty to appropriate the part of the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in their hands to the payment of their charges, & were not bound to take payment of their charges out of the price of the furniture in order to enable pltf. to obtain payment of his charge; (5) the doctrine of marshalling did not apply.—WEBB v. SMITH (1885), 30 Ch. D. 192; 55 L. J. Ch. 343; 53 L. T. 737; 1 T. L. R. 235, C. A.

257. When lien excluded—Repudiation of owner's title.]—A picture was intrusted by pltf. to B. for sale, & B. deposited it with deft., an auctioneer. When pltf. demanded it (without tendering anything for warehouse-rent), deft. refused to deliver it up until a debt of £8 due to him from B. was discharged:—Held: the repudiation of pltf.'s title precluded deft. from afterwards setting up a lien on the picture for warehouse-rent.—DIRKS v. RICHARDS (1842), 4 Man. & G. 574; 5 Scott, N. R. 534; 6 Jur. 562; 134 E. R. 236.

258. Pleading lien.]—In an action of detinue in respect of fifty trees, it appeared that pltf. bought the trees at a sale by auction, at which deft. acted as auctioneer, but that deft. claimed that he had a lien on the trees for his commission & charges. The question being whether in an action of detinue a lien could be set up under a plea denying that the goods were pltf.'s:—Held: the plea let in the defence of lien.—LANE v. TEWSON (1841), 12 Ad. & El. 116, n.; 1 Gal. & Dav. 584; 11 L. J. Q. B. 17; 5 Jur. 1037; 113 E. R. 754.

259. Revocation of authority—Liability previously incurred.]—An owner may, at any time before the contract is legally completed, interfere & revoke the auctioneer's authority, but he does so at his peril; & if the auctioneer has contracted any liability in consequence of his employment & the subsequent revocation or conduct of the owner, he is entitled to be indemnified.—WARLOW v. HARRISON (1859), 1 E. & E. 309; 29 L. J. Q. B. 14; 1 L. T. 211; 6 Jur. N. S. 66; 8 W. R. 95; 120 E. R. 925, Ex. Ch.

260. Employer not owner—Damage incurred by owner—Indemnity by employer.]—Pltf., an auctioneer, sold goods under order of deft., who had no right to dispose of them, & the true owner afterwards recovered against pltf. A declaration in case, which alleged that deft., being possessed of the goods, represented to pltf. that he was entitled to dispose of them, that pltf. in consequence at deft.'s request sold them by auction &, after deducting certain charges for his trouble, paid the residue of the proceeds to deft., that deft. deceived pltf. in this, that he was not at the time of the sale entitled to dispose of the goods; that the true owner afterwards recovered the value from pltf. & that deft. refused to reimburse him:—Held: sufficient after verdict.

Every man who employs another to do an act, which the employer appears to have a right to authorise him to do, undertakes to indemnify him for all such acts as would be lawful if the employer had the authority he pretends to have. Auctioneers do not take regular indemnities. These would be indeed surprised, if, having sold goods for a man & paid him the proceeds, & having suffered afterwards in an action at the suit of the true owners they were to find themselves wrongdoers, & could not recover compensation from him who had induced them to do the wrong (BEST, C.J.).—*ADAMSON v. 261. Costs of legal proceedings—Action for reimbursement.]—Where an auctioneer has sold an estate, the title of which is objected to, & on his refusal to return the deposit, & action is brought, in which he afterwards pays the costs, the auctioneer cannot recover these costs against the principal in an action for money paid to his use; he must declare specially.—SPURRIER v. ELDERTON (1803), 5 Esp. 1.

262. Action for slander of title—Mistake as to identity.]—Defts. instructed pltf., an auctioneer carrying on business in Paris, to advertise for sale a mare which they represented to him was a thoroughbred mare entered & described in the English stud book under the name of P. Pltf. accordingly advertised the mare for sale as so named & described. A Frenchman, the owner of a thoroughbred mare also called P., brought an action in France against pltf., alleging that he had suffered damage through defts.' mare being advertised for sale under that name, & recovered damages. In an action by pltf. against defts. for an indemnity, it was found as a fact that the representation made by defts. as to the identity of their mare was true:—Held: defts. were not liable, the damages recovered from pltf. not being due to any wrongful act on their part but to the mistake made in the French ct. as to the identity of the mare.

The mere fact of the employment of an auctioneer does not render the employer liable to indemnify such auctioneer in respect of all acts done by him within scope of his authority (BRUCE, J.).—*HALBRONN v. PART VII. SECT. 8.

263 i. Costs of action against auctioneer.]—Where an auctioneer sells land under conditions providing for payment of a deposit to him "as agent for the vendor" he is not liable in an action to recover the deposit; & if he suffer judg-

taxed as between solr. & client.—WILLIAMS v. LISTER & Co., LLEWELLYN BROTHERS, THIRD PARTIES (1913), 109 L. T. 699, C. A.

264. Negligence—Repayment of deposit.]—An auctioneer failed to insert a clause in the conditions of sale that the vendor of a leasehold should not be called upon to show the title of the lease, in consequence of which the sale went off, through the purchaser calling for the title, which the vendor could not furnish:—Held: the auctioneer was not entitled to recover from the vendor the amount of the deposit he had been compelled to pay back to the purchaser.—DENEW v. DAVERELL (1813), 3 Camp. 451.

Annotations:—Consd. Sonter v. Drake (1834), 3 L. J. K. B. 31. Mentd. Pike v. Wilson (1854), 1 Jur. N. S. 59.

265. Auction duty—Liability for.]—An action of special assumpsit to recover from deft. money paid by pltf. to the collector of excise, for the auction duty payable on the sale of a real estate, cannot be maintained by an auctioneer against the highest bidder at a sale by auction, to whom he knocked down the lot, upon deft.'s undertaking, founded on a condition that the excise duty should be paid by the purchaser, where the auctioneer so conducted the sale intrusted to him, that the bidding could not, in the circumstances, be considered a valid legal contract on the part of the bidder, with reference to the conditions, nor the bidder an actual purchaser of the lot, who would be bound to complete his purchase. Such action cannot be supported on the count for money paid to deft.'s use, because deft. not having been a purchaser, was not liable to the payment of any duty, nor was the auctioneer compellable or authorised to pay the duty on deft.'s account. The proper course to be pursued by an auctioneer, who has been called upon to pay the excise duties on sales at auction, is to proceed by action, on the implied assumpsit, raised by law, against the vendor, his employer, which he may maintain if he has done his duty, leaving the owner to proceed against the bidder upon the express contract arising on the terms of the conditions.—JONES v. NANNEY (1824), M'Cle. 25; 13 Price, 76; 148 E. R. 11.

266. — Mistake as to law.]—An auctioneer was employed to sell an estate, the lowest price of which was fixed by the owner & written down by him on a piece of paper, which was put under a candlestick at the time of sale, with the privity of the auctioneer, but not signed by the owner, nor any notice in writing given to the auctioneer of the price so set down, nor had the auctioneer given the previous notice of the sale to the collector of the duty, as required by Auction Duties Act, 1779 (c. 56), & 28 Geo. 3, c. 37; but being asked at the sale whether he had taken the proper precautions to avoid the duty in case there were no sale, he said that it was his mode to fix a price under the candlestick, & if the bidding did not come up to that price, it was no sale or duty:—Held: (1) the duty had attached, though there were no sale, for want of taking the precautions required of the owner by the Acts in such circumstances; (2) the auctioneer, having been sued for the duty on his bond to the Crown, & compelled to pay it, could not recover it over against the owner, he having warranted that proper precautions had been taken to prevent the duty attaching in the event, though both parties were mistaken in the law.—CAPP v. TOPHAM (1805), 6 East, 392; 2 Smith, K. B. 443; 102 E. R. 1337.

267. — Refusal of payment by purchaser—Purchase by puffer.]—Pltf., an auctioneer, was employed to sell lands of two defts. One deft., without pltf.'s knowledge, employed H. to bid for one of the lots, in order to raise the price, & pltf. knocked down the lot to H. Pltf. then sold two other lots belonging to different persons, & at the close of the entire day's sale demanded the auction-duty from H., who refused to pay it. The conditions of sale stated that the auction-duty was to be paid by the purchaser "immediately after the sale." In an action by the auctioneer against defts. for the amount of the auction-duty:—Held: (1) H. was to be considered as the highest bidder; (2) there was a valid demand of the duty from H.—WILLSON v. CAREY (1843), 11 M. & W. 368; 12 L. J. Ex. 289; 152 E. R. 846.

Note: Auction Duties Act, 1779 (c. 56), & 28 Geo. 3, c. 37, are now repealed.

268. — Action for money paid.]—Where an auctioneer was employed to sell an estate by auction, which was bought in at the sale, & the Comrs. of Excise refused to remit the duty thereon, & ultimately compelled the auctioneer to pay it:—Held: he might recover the duty from his employer in an action for money paid.—BRITTAIN v. LLOYD (1845), 14 M. & W. 762; 15 L. J. Ex. 43; 153 E. R. 683.

269. Expenses of abortive sale.]—Semble: apart from express contract, auctioneers are entitled to the expenses of abortive attempts at sale, but it is not reasonable that they should charge not only expenses & a fixed fee, but also commission.—CLARK v. SMYTHIES (1860), 2 F. & F. 83.

270. Sale under fi. fa.—Sheriff not liable.]—There is no implied promise on the part of a sheriff to indemnify an auctioneer, who sells goods seized under a fi. fa., when employed so to do by the sheriff's officer, to whom the warrant was directed & pltf.'s solr. in the original cause, although the sheriff certified to the excise office that he himself had seized & sold the goods, & he in fact received his poundage from the produce of the sale; & if an action of trespass is brought by the owner of the goods against the auctioneer, the sheriff & others, all the damages awarded in which are levied upon the auctioneer alone, he has no action for a contribution against any of his co-defts. Qu.: whether, if the sheriff had himself actually employed & directed the auctioneer to sell the goods there would have been an implied promise of indemnity.—FAREBROTHER v. ANSLEY (1808), 1 Camp. 343.

271. Interpleader—Insolvency of vendor.]—An auctioneer, who is sued by an intended purchaser for the deposit, upon a sale not taking effect, will not be allowed the benefit of Interpleader Act, 1831 (c. 58), without bringing the money into ct. & giving security for costs, if there be any question as to the solvency of the vendor; nor is an auctioneer in such circumstances entitled to have the costs of the application paid out of the fund in ct.—DELLER v. PRICKETT (1850), 15 Q. B. 1081; 20 L. J. Q. B. 151; 16 L. T. O. S. 212; 15 Jur. 168; 117 E. R. 769.

272. — Claim for reimbursement allowed.]—In an action against an auctioneer to recover back a deposit, the vendor claiming to be entitled to the money, deft. obtained a rule under Interpleader Act, 1831 (c. 58). Vendor subsequently abandoning his claim:—Held: deft. having acted bonâ fide, was entitled to his costs out of the fund, pltf. having a remedy over against vendor.—PITCHERS v. EDNEY (1838), 4 Bing. N. C. 721; 1 Arn. 267; 6 Scott, 582; 7 L. J. C. P. 276; 132 E. R. 966.

273. Right to sue—Price of goods sold.]—An auctioneer, employed to sell the goods of a third party by auction, may maintain an action for goods sold & delivered against a buyer, though the sale was at the house of such third party, & the goods were known to be his property.—*WILLIAMS v. ### PART VIII. SECT. 1.

1. Right to sue—Distinction between sale of goods & sale of land.]—Upon a sale of real estate the auctioneer has no such right to sue in his own name as he has on a sale of goods arising from his qualified property in them; while on a sale of real estate the right to sue depends on the written contract alone.—CHERRY v. ANDERSON (1876), 10 I. R. C. L. 204.—IR.

273 i. ——— Price of goods sold.]—An auctioneer may maintain an action in his own name for goods sold by him at auction.—COATE v. TERRY (1875), 24 C. P. 571.—CAN.

273 ii. ——— Counterclaim on vendor's warranty.]—Two horses were sold by auctioneers at an auction sale as a pair of carriage horses; the auctioneer's salesman at the sale read out an advertisement, including a statement made with the authority of the vendor, that they were thoroughly educated to their work. In an action by the auctioneer on a cheque given for the price:—Held: the statement amounted to a warranty by the vendor, though not by the auctioneers, & no counterclaim for breach of it could be maintained against them.—CAMPBELL v. SMITH (1887), 13 V. L. R. 439.—AUS.

273 iii. ——— Conacre lettings.]—The rule enabling an auctioneer to sue in his own name for the price of goods sold by him applies to an auction of conacre, such auction being more of the nature of a sale of goods than of a sale of land or of an interest in land.—M'ILROY v. QUIGLEY (1916), 50 I. L. T. 23.—IR.

273 iv. ——— Sale on credit—Action before expiry of period—Set-off.]—Where by the conditions of sale purchasers were to have six months' credit, giving approved indorsed notes:—Held: (1) the sale was an unconditional sale on credit & could not be treated as a sale for cash on the purchaser's refusal to give an indorsed note; (2) an action for goods sold & delivered would not lie till the period of credit expired; (3) a plea of set-off was, therefore, inadmissible in an action by the auctioneer, before the period of credit had expired, for failing to give the indorsed note on demand.—

WAKEFIELD v. GORRIE (1848), 5 U. C. R. 159.—CAN.

273 v. ——— Loss on resale.]—In an action to recover from the purchaser of goods by auction the loss on the resale, it appeared that the goods had been resold to a person who was a partner of the auctioneer, though not in the auctioneer's business:—Held: this afforded no defence to the action.—CLARKSON v. NOBLE (1846), 2 U. C. R. 361.—CAN.

273 vi. ———.]—Pltf., an auctioneer, sued deft. to recover the difference between the amount of the purchase-money of a horse sold at auction to deft. & the amount realised on a resale. The conditions of sale provided that if any purchaser failed to complete his purchase the lot should be resold at his risk. The horse was knocked down to him; immediately after the sale the horse was taken to his stables, & remained there until the next day, when pltf. delivered an account for the price. Deft. then sent the horse back to pltf.'s stables, where pltf. resold it & sued for the difference:—Held: there was sufficient evidence of delivery & acceptance, & pltf. was entitled to resell.—O'BRIEN v. BARKER, 4 J. R. N. S. 64.—N.Z.

273 vii. ——— Misrepresentation.]—V., an auctioneer, sold cattle by public auction on account of R. They were described in the advertisement as "immunised beasts," & the auctioneer stated that he had ascertained from the military authorities that, while the usual "permit" under martial law would be required, there would be no obstacle to their removal to any place in the district which was not an infected area or which the authorities considered safe. L. purchased some of the cattle. On applying to the military for a permit for their removal, he was told that he must first obtain a certificate from a certain veterinary surgeon that the cattle themselves were free from disease, which certificate on being applied for was refused. L. repudiated the purchase, & V. resold the cattle at a loss, & sued L. for damages for breach of contract:—Held: an auctioneer can maintain an action against a purchaser for the price of goods sold or for damages

275. ———.]—Sale on auctioneer's premises by owner.]—A horse, having been offered for sale by auction, & having been bought in, was subsequently sold on the auctioneer's premises by the owner to deft. By the conditions of sale the auctioneer was entitled to the same commission as if he had sold the horse, & he paid the owner the price of it, less such commission. Deft. was acquainted with the practice at the auction rooms:—Held: the auctioneer could maintain an action for the price of the horse.—FREEMAN v. FARROW (1886), 2 T. L. R. 547.

276. ——— I.O.U. taken in payment of deposit.]—Pltf.'s auctioneers were employed to sell certain premises, which were put up to auction for sale & knocked down to deft. as the highest bidder & purchaser. Deft. signed a contract in writing, acknowledging himself the purchaser, & that he had paid by way of deposit a sum in part of the purchase-money. He had not in fact actually paid any part of the purchase-money, but had given an I.O.U. to the auctioneers for the deposit:—Held: the auctioneers were entitled upon an account stated to recover the sum for which the I.O.U. was given, as the giving of the I.O.U. was the same as if the auctioneers had lent the money & then received it in respect of the deposit for vendor.—CLEAVE v. MOORE (1857), 28 L. T. O. S. 255; 3 Jur. N. S. 48; 5 W. R. 234.

for breach of contract, but the contract had been induced by misrepresentation, without which L. would not have purchased, & he was not liable for the breach.—VIGNE v. LEO, 9 H. C. 196.—S. AF.

273 viii. ——— Auction duty.]—Civil bill by an auctioneer against the purchaser of lands sold by auction for the amount of the auction duty on the purchase-money. The terms of sale were that the highest bidder was to be the purchaser, & was to pay the auction duty:—Held: the remedy by action for auction duty was, by 54 Geo. 3. c. 82, s. 12, amended by 58 Geo. 3. c. 79, only given to the auctioneer as against the person who had employed him to sell.—MURPHY v. KELLY (1841), 2 Craw. & D. 216.—IR.

273 ix. ——— Poundage fee.]—When pltf. & deft. in an execution agree that a poundage fee shall be paid by the purchaser to the auctioneer, & the purchaser is aware of such agreement, the auctioneer may sue him for his fees. A condition of sale to the above effect is evidence of such agreement, in an action against the purchaser.—SIDLEY v. M'DONNELL (1833), Hayes & Jo. 221.—IR.

276 i. ——— I.O.U. taken in payment of deposit.]—Under conditions of sale by auction the deposit was payable to the auctioneer immediately after the sale. The auctioneer, without the consent of the vendor, took the purchaser's I.O.U. for the amount:—Held: an action lay at the suit of the auctioneer against the purchaser for the amount of the I.O.U.—HODGENS v. KEON, [1894] 2 I. R. 657, 662.—IR.

276 ii. ——— I.O.U. taken for auction fees.]—Where a purchaser at an auction is, under the conditions of sale, liable to pay auction fees, & gives to the auctioneer an I.O.U. for the amount of such fees, the auctioneer can, even if the sale subsequently falls through by reason of the vendor's failure to make title, recover against such purchaser the amount of the I.O.U. as due on an account stated.—GULEN v. GIBSON (1909), 44 I. L. T. 17.—IR.

276 iii. ——— Promissory note for fees.]—Certain land was knocked down to deft.

277. Cheque taken in payment—Vendor guilty of misrepresentation.]—At a sale by auction deft. purchased pictures, which, upon the instructions of the owner, were described as being by well known artists, & deft. gave the auctioneer a cheque for the price. Two days later the auctioneer settled with & paid the owner. Subsequently deft. repudiated the contract & stopped payment of the cheque. In an action upon the cheque the jury found that deft. was induced to purchase the pictures by misrepresentations fraudulently made by the owner, but not fraudulently made by the auctioneer:—Held: the auctioneer was entitled to recover the amount of the cheque from deft.—HINDLE v. BROWN (1908), 98 L. T. 791, C. A.

278. — Vendor not owner—Express promise—Cannot sue.]—A. having proved the will of B., in which she supposed herself to be appointed extrix., employed C., an auctioneer, to sell the goods of B. They were sold to D., who, as an inducement to C. to let him remove the goods without payment, expressly promised to pay C. as soon as the bill should be made out. Probate was afterwards granted to E., the real extrix., who gave notice to D. not to pay the price to C.:—Held: notwithstanding the express promise, C. could not sue D. for the price.

The auctioneer's right to sue subsists, where the right of no third person intervenes, but where such right is established, & the person employing the auctioneer is proved not to be the owner, it then becomes clear that the auctioneer, who can have no interest in the goods but what he derives from his employer, has no longer any claim upon the property against the right owner (DENMAN, C.J.).—DICKENSON v. NAUL (1833), 4 B. & Ad. 638; 1 Nev. & M. K. B. 721; 110 E. R. 596.

279. — Statute of Frauds—Cannot sue on note signed by himself as agent for purchaser.]—The agent contemplated by Stat. Frauds, s. 17, who is to bind deft. by his signature, must be a third person, & not the other contracting party; & where an auctioneer wrote down deft.'s name by his authority opposite to the lot purchased:—Held: in an action brought in the name of the auctioneer, the entry in such book was not sufficient to take the case out of the Act.—FAREBROTHER v. SIMMONS (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 333; 106 E. R. 1213.

280. — Goods resold on purchaser's default.]—Pltfs., auctioneers, sold shares by auction to deft. at £79 on condition that if not paid for by a particular time, the owner might resell them. Deft. not paying, pltfs. exercised the right of resale, & at an auction by pltf., the auctioneer. Deft. gave the vendor a promissory note for the deposit & gave pltf. another note for his fees as auctioneer under the conditions of sale. The vendor issued a writ for the amount of the note given to him, & the action was compromised on the terms that the purchaser was to pay the vendor his costs, & the vendor was to cancel the note given him. In an action by the auctioneer on his note a judgment was entered for him for the full sum. A motion was brought that the judgment be changed into a judgment for deft. on the ground that there was no sale, & that as the auctioneer could not have directly recovered his fees from the purchaser there was no consideration for the note:—Held: there was sufficient consideration & the auctioneer could recover.—MONTGOMERY v. FLEMING (1905), 39 I. L. T. 229.—IR.

277 i. — Cheque taken in payment—Vendor guilty of misrepresentation.]—A cheque for the price of horses was given by the purchaser to the auctioneers, who retained the cheque but paid part of the price to the vendor. The horses turned out not educated to their work, & deft. tendered them back to the auctioneers, who refused them. Deft. then instructed them to resell the horses, which they did for a less price. Upon an action brought by the auctioneers on the cheque against the purchaser:—Held: he was not entitled to set up the difference in price as a set-off, & pltfs. were entitled to recover the full amount of the cheque.—CAMPBELL v. SMITH (1887), 13 V. L. R. 439.—AUS.

277 ii. — — —.]—An auctioneer sold two horses by public auction to a purchaser who settled for the price by giving the auctioneer his cheque, post-dated several days after the sale, & the auctioneer then gave his cheque for the purchase price, less his commission, to the owner of the animals. The purchaser took possession of the horses, but, sold at £63. Pltfs. sued in assumpsit to recover £79, & were non-suited:—Held: the non-suit was right, as pltfs. were not agents of deft. to resell, but pltfs. might have recovered in an action for damages the loss on resale & expenses.—LAMOND v. DAVALL (1847), 9 Q. B. 1030; 16 L. J. Q. B. 136; 11 Jur. 266; 115 E. R. 1569.

281. — Payment to owner.]—If an auctioneer sells goods & delivers them, without notice of any lien or claim which he has on the owner, & the buyer, without such notice, settles for the goods with the owner, the auctioneer cannot sue the buyer for the price of the goods. So, if the auctioneer sells the goods of B. as the goods of A., & the buyer, without notice, takes the goods with the auctioneer's assent, & pays the price of them to A., the auctioneer cannot afterwards maintain an action for the price. No implied contract to pay arises on the auctioneer's giving up his lien by delivery of the goods.—COPPIN v. WALKER (1816), 7 Taunt. 237; 2 Marsh. 497; 129 E. R. 95.

Annotations:—Consd. Robinson v. Rutter (1855), 4 E. & B. 954. The first part of the marginal note in Coppin v. Walker is not justified by the decision; and in the very next reported case of Coppin v. Craig the ct. appears to have expressed an opinion that the auctioneer had a lien as well on the proceeds of the sale as the specific article sold (CAMPBELL, C.J.). Reid. Coppin v. Craig (1816), 2 Marsh. 501. Mentd. Isberg v. Bowden (1853), 8 Exch. 852; Holmes v. Tutton (1855), 1 Jur. N. S. 975.

282. — — —.]—To a declaration for the price of a horse sold & delivered by pltf. to deft., deft. pleaded that pltf. sold the horse, as auctioneer agent & trustee for K., & that deft. had paid K. before action brought:—Held: a bad plea.—ROBINSON v. RUTTER (1855), 4 E. & B. 954; 24 L. J. Q. B. 250; 25 L. T. O. S. 127; 1 Jur. N. S. 823; 3 W. R. 405; 3 C. L. R. 1195; 119 E. R. 355.

283. Commission & charges paid.]—Pltf., an auctioneer, was employed by W. to sell goods by auction. W. was indebted to deft. in £60, & before the sale it was agreed between W. & deft. that any goods deft. might buy at the auction should go in payment of his claim against W. Pltf. had no notice of this agreement at the time of the sale. Deft. bought several lots, to the amount of £49, & pltf. allowed him to take them away on the faith of his paying for them, but deft. supposed that he was taking them in pursuance of the agreement with W. The day after the sale pltf. paid W. £90 on account of the sale. Afterwards deft. informed on the following day, discovering that a third person held a lien on them, stopped payment of the cheque:—Held: the auctioneer was entitled to recover the amount of the cheque from the purchaser.—TRAPP v. PRESCOTT (1912), 17 B. C. R. 298; 50 S. C. R. 263; 21 W. L. R. 521; 2 W. W. R. 650; 5 D. L. R. 183.—CAN.

277 iii. — — — Mistake.]—A purchaser at auction, by consent of the auctioneer, paid the deposit by cheque instead of in cash, as the contract provided. The purchaser subsequently stopped payment of the cheque on the ground that the contract was induced by mistake. The auctioneer sued the purchaser at law upon the cheque. In a suit to rescind the contract & stay the action at law, the ct. refused to grant an interlocutory injunction to the hearing except on terms of the purchaser paying into ct. forthwith the amount of the deposit.—LISTER v. COWDERY (1900), 21 N. S. W. Eq. 4.—AUS.

pltf. of the agreement between deft. & W., & after this notice pltf., on the demand of W., paid over to him the balance due on the sale, including the £49 alleged to be due from deft., after deducting his (ptf.'s) commission & charges as auctioneer. Pltf. having brought an action against deft. for the amount of his purchases at the sale:—Held: the action was not maintainable because (1) pltf.'s lien for his charges had been satisfied before action; (2) the facts, which showed that W. would not have been entitled to recover, established a defence to the action by pltf.; (3) there was no deceit practised by deft. on pltf.; (4) there were no facts beyond the mere receipt of the goods from which a promise on the part of deft. to pay could be inferred; (5) the payment by pltf. to W. after notice of the agreement between him & deft. could not prejudice the rights of deft.—GRICE v. KENRICK (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 340; 39 L. J. Q. B. 175; 22 L. T. 743; 18 W. R. 1155.

284. — Use & occupation—Lands let for disclosed principal.]—In an action for use & occupation of lands by the sufferance & permission of ptfs., it appeared that the lands were let by auction by ptfs., E. & T., auctioneers, to deft., under conditions which stated the letting to be “by E. & T., auctioneers.” One of the conditions was: “The rent is to be paid into the hands of E. & T., auctioneers, or to their order, at two payments,” etc. At the foot of the document was written, “Approved by me, D. J.” D. J. was the tenant at the time of the sale. Nothing else appeared in the conditions to show on whose behalf the letting was. Ptfs. gave evidence to show that D. J., being indebted to them, had authorised them to let the lands as above, pay the rent due to D. J.'s landlord, & retain any surplus in satisfaction of their own debt. Evidence to a contrary effect was given for deft. The judge, in summing up, left it to the jury whether ptfs. had let the lands as agents for D. J. or on their own behalf:—Held: (1) the conditions imported a letting by D. J., E. & T. acting as his agents; (2) the document ought to have been so explained to the jury, & the judge not having so explained it, a new trial must be granted. Semble: in such a case the auctioneer could not maintain use & occupation.—*EVANS v. 285. — Lands let without disclosure of agency.]—In an action for the hire of land, let by pltf. to deft., it appeared that, by permission of O. Corpn. & a committee of freemen, races were held annually on P. M. Common, the fee of which was in the corpn., & on which the freemen had a right of depasturing cattle, & a committee, under whose management the races were, erected a temporary grand stand, & caused the land adjoining to it & part of the racecourse to be let by public auction for the erection of booths, stalls, etc. In 1864 pltf., who was employed by the race committee, issued handbills announcing that “the ground for booths, stalls, etc., will be let by auction by Mr. J. F. on, etc.” The conditions for sale were headed “Conditions for letting standings for booths, etc., on P. M. Common during the races. By Mr. J. F.” At the auction deft. was declared the taker of one of the lots, & he took possession of & occupied it during the races:—Held: (1) there was evidence of a contract by deft. with pltf. personally; (2) an action for use & occupation was maintainable.—FISHER v. MARSH (1865), 6 B. & S. 411; 34 L. J. Q. B. 177; 12 L. T. 604; 29 J. P. 646; 11 Jur. N. S. 795; 13 W. R. 834; 122 E. R. 1247.

Where the auctioneer had sold to deft. the goods of A. in a sale of the goods of B.:—Held: this was such fraud, that deft. might set off a debt due to him from B. against the price of the goods of A.—COPPIN v. CRAIG (1816), 7 Taunt. 243; 2 Marsh. 501; 129 E. R. 97.

288. — Agreement between owner, purchaser & auctioneer.]—Ptfs., auctioneers, were employed by F. to sell cattle for him by auction. Prior to the sale F. had given orders to certain of his creditors directing ptfs. to pay these creditors out of the proceeds of the intended sale, & ptfs. agreed to act upon these orders. Pending the sale F. had also become indebted to ptfs. for money lent & paid & for services rendered upon the terms that they should repay themselves out of the proceeds of the sale. The sale was held upon the condition (inter alia) that the price of any cattle bought was to be paid to ptfs. Whilst the sale was proceeding an arrangement was entered into between F. & deft., to whom F. was indebted to a considerable extent, that the price of any cattle bought by deft. might be set off against F.'s debt to deft., but this arrangement was not communicated to ptfs. either during or directly after the sale. Deft. bought a number of cattle at the sale, the purchase price of which exceeded the amount of F.'s debt to him, & being known to ptfs. was allowed to remove the cattle without having paid for them. Excluding the amount of deft.'s purchases, ptfs. received sufficient money to satisfy their lien for commission & charges in respect of the sale, but not sufficient to pay F.'s creditors or their own debt; but, including the amount of deft.'s purchases, the sale realised sufficient to satisfy all claims, leaving a small sur-

287 i. — Set-off between owner purchaser—Delivery without payment.]—Pltf., an auctioneer, was employed by M. to sell her furniture & effects by public auction, the terms & conditions of sale being that each purchaser should pay cash before removing the articles purchased. Defts. purchased goods, which they removed without paying for. When the auctioneer called to collect the money they claimed to deduct certain debts alleged to be due by M. incurred prior to the auction, & tendered the balances of their purchase-moneys to the auctioneer. In an action for goods sold & delivered by the auctioneer:—Held: defts. were not entitled to set off as against the auctioneer the debts due to them by M., & the mere fact of being allowed to remove the articles without paying for them on the spot did not put them in any better position.—MAX-

287 ii. — Extent of set-off.]—In an action by an auctioneer for the price of goods sold by him, the purchaser may rely on any set-off that he may have against the owner of the goods, but the set-off is limited to the amount which the auctioneer would be bound to hand over to the owner.—*TRAYNOR v. plus. Deft. having refused to pay pltf's. the price of the cattle which he had bought, upon the ground that he was entitled to rely on the arrangement with F. as to set-off, pltf's. brought an action to recover the whole of the price of the cattle bought by deft. Before action deft. tendered & subsequently paid to pltf's. the difference between the amount of F.'s debt to him & the price of the cattle which he had bought:—Held: (1) deft. was not entitled, in the circumstances, to set up as an equitable defence to pltf's. claim the arrangement as to set-off made between him & F., as such arrangement could not defeat the previous agreement between F. & pltf's. as to the disposition of the proceeds of the sale, on the faith of which agreement pltf's. had acted; (2) deft. was only entitled to be paid by pltf's. the surplus remaining after deducting from the total amount realised by the sale the debts owing to the other creditors, as well as what was owing to pltf's. in respect of F.'s debt to them & their commission & charges for conducting the sale, this surplus being the only amount which pltf's. would have been bound to pay over to F.—MANLEY & SONS, LTD. v. BERKETT, [1912] 2 K. B. 329; 81 L. J. K. B. 1232.

289. ——— After settlement of auctioneer's charges.]—At a sale by auction of A.'s goods, B., a creditor of A., became a purchaser, & contrary to the conditions of sale, removed the goods without paying for them:—Held: if the auctioneer, after satisfaction of his charges, could maintain an action against B. for the price, B. might in that action, or in a similar action by the assignees under the subsequent bkpcy. of A., set off the amount of A.'s debt to him, by way of equitable defence, if not at law.—HOLMES v. TUTTON (1855), 5 E. & B. 65; 24 L. J. Q. B. 346; 25 L. T. O. S. 177; 1 Jur. N. S. 975; 3 C. L. R. 1343; 119 E. R. 405.

290. Action for price—Statute of Frauds—Delivery.]—An auctioneer at a sale, where it was one of the conditions that a deposit should be paid immediately, & the remainder before the goods were delivered, knocked down a lot & handed it to the bidder, who looked at it for three or four minutes, & then returned it to the auctioneer, saying that he was mistaken in the price. The auctioneer said he would take it back only to keep for his use. No part of the price was paid:—Held: it was a question of fact for the jury whether, in such circumstances, there had been a delivery to satisfy Stat. Frauds.—PHILLIPS v. BISTOLLI (1824), 2 B. & C. 511; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 822; 2 L. J. O. S. K. B. 116; 107 E. R. 474.

291. Resale under conditions—Claim for differences—Statute of Frauds—Acceptance.]—On the sale of horses advertised as the property of P. by auction the conditions of sale provided (inter alia) that the sale was to be for ready money, that horses sold were to be paid for & taken away at the close of the sale, but that they were not to be taken away unless paid for, & if not paid for were to be resold & purchaser charged with the difference. The horses were knocked down to deft. for 100 guineas. He paid no deposit, but, with the auctioneer's assent, left the horses in P.'s stables till the following Monday, when he refused to pay for them on the ground that they were not the property of P. & that as regards one of them there was a breach of warranty. The auctioneer then resold the horses for £47 & sued deft. for the difference & his expenses:—Held: the conduct of deft. in leaving the horses, with the assent of pltf., in the stables was evidence of an acceptance of the horses within Stat. Frauds, s. 17.—FARRER v. KIRKBY (1888), 4 T. L. R. 543.

297. — Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (c. 71), s. 4.]—At a public auction a horse was put up for sale by the auctioneer without reserve & was knocked down to pltf., the highest bonâ fide bidder, for £15 15s. Before the auctioneer had entered pltf.'s name in his book as purchaser he discovered that he ought to have offered the horse with a reserve price of £25, & he thereupon put up the horse again & himself bid 17 guineas, & the horse was bought in. The principal's name was disclosed by the auctioneer at the auction. In an action against the auctioneer for (inter alia) the delivery up of the horse, or 25 guineas, its value:—Held: (1) an action might, in certain circumstances, be maintained against an auctioneer for the wrongful refusal to deliver a chattel sold at a public auction, although the principal's name was disclosed to the buyer at the time of the sale; (2) the action could not be maintained, on the ground that there was no signed contract, as required by the above sect., the value of the article being about £10.—RAINBOW v. HOWKINS, [1904] 2 K. B. 322; 73 L. J. K. B. 641; 91 L. T. 149; 53 W. R. 46; 20 T. L. R. 508; 48 Sol. Jo. 494, D. C.

Vendor's name subsequently disclosed—Election to sue vendor.]—The purchaser of a horse at an auction, at which the name of the owner was not disclosed, brought an action against the auctioneer, to whom he alleged the price had been paid, & also against the principal, who had subsequently disclosed, for repetition of the price:—Held: purchaser not entitled to sue both the auctioneer & the principal, & having raised his action against the latter along with the auctioneer, he must be held to have elected to sue the principal.—FERRIER v. DODS & GRAY (1865), 3 Macph. (Ct of Sess.) 561; 37 Sc. Jur. 270.—SCOT.

299. Delivery—What constitutes—Goods on land of third party.]—Defts., auctioneers, sold by public auction to pltf. a rick of hay, the produce of a crop distrained for rent, & which remained upon the land. By the conditions of sale, the lot was to be taken away at the purchaser's expense, within one week; but, at the time of the sale the auctioneers obtained from the tenant, & read in the auction-room, a written consent that the hay should remain upon the premises for an extended period. Before the expiration of that time, pltf., having paid for the hay, received from defts. an order upon the tenant to permit him to carry it away. The tenant refusing to allow the hay to be removed, pltf. sued defts., who pleaded "that they did deliver to pltf. the possession of the rick of hay, according to their promise in that behalf":—Held: a good answer to the action, since as between pltf. & defts. there was a sufficient delivery of the hay, as defts. had done all in their power to give pltf. possession of it.

301. — Action of tort.]—Pltf., a dealer, bought a hydraulic press from deft., an auctioneer, at a sale, under conditions of sale requiring payment before delivery. Time was allowed for payment. Payment was tendered within the time allowed, but deft. refused to deliver the press, having contracted to resell it, & in fact reselling it, subsequent to the tender. Pltf. had also contracted to sell the press, after delivery, at a profit. In an action the sole issue in dispute, viz., whether there had been tender within the time allowed for payment, was found in favour of pltf., & evidence of pltf.'s loss of profit on resale having been given as a measure of damage, judgment was given for pltf. for £29 15s. 3d. Deft. contended that the action was one for breach of contract, & that costs could only be recovered on the county ct. scale:—Held: (1) the action was for a wrongful conversion subsequent to & independent of the contract passing the property; (2) it was an action of tort in which, more than £20 having been recovered, costs followed on the High Ct. scale.—COHEN v. FOSTER (1892), 61 L. J. Q. B. 643; 66 L. T. 616; 8 T. L. R. 519.

302. Auctioneer accepting fictitious bids—Action for rescission.]—Pltf., who had bought property at an purchaser for implement & damages.—FENWICK v. MACDONALD, FRASER & CO. (1904), 6 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 850.—SCOT.

302 i. Auctioneer accepting fictitious bids—Action for deceit.]—An auctioneer misrepresented to a purchaser certain bogus bids as genuine, whereby the purchaser was induced to give an inflated price for a farm. The purchaser suspected the fraud & refused to complete, whereupon the vendor sued him for specific performance. The purchaser action & paid a deposit to the auctioneers, brought an action against the vendors & the auctioneers to have the contract rescinded, the deposit repaid with interest, the costs of the action paid, & for damages. The statement of claim alleged that all, or nearly all, of the biddings previous to that of pltf. were fictitious, & were either biddings by the vendors or their agents or were announced by the auctioneers without any bidding having in fact been made. The auctioneers applied for liberty to pay the deposit into ct., & to have the action dismissed against them on such payment being made. An order was made that, the vendors undertaking to pay the auctioneers their costs of the action, without prejudice to how they should ultimately be borne, & to pay any interest & damages, to which pltf. might be held entitled, & the auctioneers undertaking in the event of the vendors not carrying out their undertaking to pay to pltf. interest on the deposit up to the time of payment into ct. & the costs of the action up to & including that application in the event of the ct. holding pltf. entitled to such interest & costs, the auctioneers should be at liberty to pay the deposit into ct., & that all further proceedings against them should be stayed:—Held: the order must be discharged, the auctioneers not having submitted to give pltf. all the relief which he could in any event be entitled to against them, for if the allegations in the statement of claim were established, pltf. would be entitled to have judgment against them for the deposit with interest, & to have an order for costs of the action against all defts.—HEATLEY v. NEWTON (1880), 19 Ch. D. 326; 51 L. J. Ch. 225; 45 L. T. 455; 30 W. R. 72, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 2.—FOR BREACH OF IMPLIED WARRANTIES.

303. Of authority to sell.—Pltf. agreed with defts., auctioneers, to purchase an estate for £975, & it was agreed he should pay the deposit in nine days & give his note for it at that date, which he did. T., one of defts., by the desire of his partner D., gave pltf. a receipt for the deposit & signed a printed particular which together amounted to an agreement in writing. In a few hours after this transaction D. & T. called on a friend of pltf.'s to having no proof of the fraud entered into a consent settling the action, & each party bore his own costs of the action. The purchaser then sued the auctioneer in deceit, & the auctioneer admitted the fraudulent bids:—Held: the costs of the action for specific performance were recoverable against deft. as damages.—INGRAM v. GILLEN (1910), 44 I. L. T. 103.—IR.

m. Fees paid by purchaser to auctioneer—Sale of land—Failure to make title.—Where a sale was declared off in consequence of the vendor's inability to make title:—Held: auctioneer not liable to repay the auction fees to the purchaser.—ADAMS v. M'KEOWN (1892), 26 I. L. T. Jo. 504.—IR.

n. Commission paid to auctioneer—Right to recover—Abortive sale.—Lands were sold by auction upon condition that the highest bidder on being declared the purchaser should pay the auctioneer's commission at the rate of 5 per cent. on the whole of the purchase-money. The purchase subsequently fell through owing to the vendor not being able to make title:—Held: purchaser entitled to recover the commission from the auctioneer.—MURPHY v. HARTE (1912), 46 I. L. T. 197.—IR.

p. Express warranty of title.—An auctioneer at an attempted sale of goods warranted them, saying they were his own, & he would stand between the purchaser & loss. Having sold the property by auction a few days subsequently to a bidder on the former occasion, & the goods having been claimed & taken by a third party under a chattel mtge. which covered them, the auctioneer was held responsible to the purchaser.—SOMERS v. O'DONOHUE (1859), 9 C. P. 208.—CAN.

PART VIII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.

303 i. Of authority to sell.—An auctioneer who offers goods for sale by auction warrants his authority to sell them. acquaint him they had just received a letter stating that the estates were sold for more money & requesting the particular & receipt to be returned, & pltf. refusing to relinquish the agreement, they by the next post sent to him his note of hand & a particular signed by him, both of which he instantly returned. The money in payment of the note having been tendered & refused. Pltf. filed a bill against the owner of the estate & his trustees for sale, who denied the authority of defts. to sell, in consequence of which pltf. was advised not to proceed with his bill. In an action against defts. in which he proved that the estate was worth £2,117 10s.:—Held: as defts. had no authority to sell, pltf. was entitled to recover £261 for costs, interest, expenses, etc., but not any damages for the loss of his bargain.—*JONES v. 305. — Action for deceit.—Where an auctioneer sold goods taken in execution by the sheriff, without communicating to the bidders that the goods were also claimed by the assignees of the judgment debtor, & received the proceeds:—Held: (1) the auctioneer was liable to the purchaser, the measure of damages being the extent to which purchaser had been damnified; (2) it was no defence that the auctioneer had requested purchaser to give him a written notice not to pay over the proceeds & that, purchaser having omitted to give such notice, the auctioneer paid them over.

An action for money had & received does not lie;

303 ii. — Sale of land—Measure of damages.—Defts., professing to have authority from the owner, contracted to sell land to pltf.; they had no such authority, & the sale was never carried out. Pltfs. brought an action against defts. for breach of contract. The only evidence given at the trial of the market value of the land at the time the contract was made was that the land was sold eighteen months afterwards at an advance of £120. The judge on this evidence, considering the price brought at the resale, gave a verdict for pltf., with £120 damages. On a motion for a new trial:—Held: the measure of damages was the difference between the contract price & the market value of the land at the time of the contract, but the judge was wrong in taking as such market value the price for which the land was sold eighteen months afterwards. Other evidence ought to have been given to show what was the market value at the time of the contract. A new trial was ordered.—HOLLAND v. HARDY (1882), 3 N. S. W. L. R. 450.—AUS.

AUCTION AND AUCTIONEERS.

Sect. 2.—Liability of auctioneer to purchaser: Subsect. 2. Part IX. Sects. 1 & 2.]

the action lies on the ground that pltf. has been deceived & is the worse for the deceit (GIBBS, C.J.).—PETO v. BLADES (1814), 5 Taunt. 657; 128 E. R. 849.

Annotations:—Consd. Baylis v. London Bp., [1913] 1 Ch. 127, C. A. Peto v. Blades is so ill reported that there is some doubt whether deft. was the sheriff himself or only his auctioneer (HAMILTON, L.J.).

306. Of authority to sell without reserve.—An auctioneer, who puts property up for sale without reserve, contracts that the sale shall be without reserve, & this contract is made with the highest bonâ fide bidder, & in case of a breach of it, he has a right of action against the auctioneer.

Deft., an auctioneer, advertised the sale of a horse by auction, without reserve. Pltf. bid the highest except the owner, & deft. knocked down the horse to the owner. Pltf. claimed it as being the highest bonâ fide bidder. In an action against the auctioneer alleging that pltf. was the highest bidder, & that deft. was the agent of pltf. to complete the contract on behalf of pltf. for the purchase of the horse, deft. traversed those allegations:—Held: (1) (MARTIN & WATSON, BB., & BYLES, J.) although deft. was entitled to the verdict on the issue upon the second allegation, pltf. was entitled to recover upon the facts, inasmuch as his contract with deft. had been broken; (2) (WILLES, J. & BRAMWELL, B.) deft. had not authority to sell without reserve, & an action could be maintained, alleging an undertaking by him that he had such authority, & a breach of that undertaken.—WARLOW v. HARRISON (1859), 1 E. & E. 309; 29 L. J. Q. B. 14; 1 L. T. 211; 6 Jur. N. S. 66; 8 W. R. 95; 120 E. R. 925, Ex. Ch.

307. —.—A declaration alleged that deft., an auctioneer, published handbills representing that at a certain day & place he would offer certain premises for peremptory sale by public auction, that pltf., confiding in those representations, attended at that time & place, & his bid was the highest except a sum bidden by an agent on the part of the vendor, but deft. would not accept pltf. as a purchaser. It appeared in evidence that the handbills stated that on the day & place in question the premises would be offered by deft. "for peremptory sale by auction, by direction of the mtgee. with a power of sale, subject to such conditions as will be then declared. For further particulars apply to Mr. H., solr., or to the auctioneer." H. was the person who bought in the premises:—Held: no contract on which deft. could be sued personally was proved. Semble: where an auctioneer, without disclosing his principal, advertises a sale without reserve, he personally contracts that there shall be a sale without reserve. MAINPRICE v. WESTLEY (1865), 6 B. & S. 420; 34 L. J. Q. B. 229; 13 L. T. 560; 30 J. P. 103; 11 Jur. N. S. 975; 14 W. R. 9; 122 E. R. 1250.

308. — Sale void for want of writing.—Deft., an auctioneer was instructed by the owner of a pony to sell it at a public auction with a reserve price of £25. When the pony was put up at the sale the name of the vendor was disclosed, but deft. inadvertently stated that the sale was without reserve. The pony was knocked down to pltf. for 15 guineas.

311 i. None as to vendor's title.—An auctioneer who sells goods as auctioneer only, though not naming his principal, does not warrant the title to the goods sold; he does no more than engage that he is authorised by his principal to sell.

Deft. immediately afterwards discovered his error & put the pony up for sale again, when it was bought in for 17 guineas. No note or memorandum of the sale to pltf. was made. Pltf. brought an action against deft., claiming (inter alia) damages for breach of warranty of authority by deft.:—Held: there was in the circumstances a contract binding on the vendor on which he could (but for the absence of a written memorandum) have been successfully sued by pltf. & there had been no breach of warranty of authority by deft.—RAINBOW v. HOWKINS, [1904] 2 K. B. 322; 73 L. J. K. B. 641; 91 L. T. 149; 53 W. R. 46; 20 T. L. R. 508; 48 Sol. Jo. 494, D. C.

Annotations:—Consd. McManus v. Fortescue, [1907] 2 K. B. 1, C. A. A principal who gives authority to an auctioneer to sell subject to a reserve price gives no power to the auctioneer, either expressly or impliedly to accept a less price; the case of Rainbow v. Howkins, so far as it is inconsistent with this view, cannot be regarded as in harmony with well-established principles (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).

309. — Sale subject to reserve.—At a sale by auction subject to a reserve price on the article sold, where the fact that there is a reserve is known, the offer of the auctioneer to sell, the bidding, & the knocking down of the article to the highest bidder are all subject to the condition that the reserve price should be reached, & the fact that the auctioneer knocks down the article to a bidder who has bid a less price than the reserve gives the latter no right of action against the auctioneer for breach of warranty of authority to accept the bid.—MCMANUS v. FORTESCUE, [1907] 2 K. B. 1; 76 L. J. K. B. 393; 96 L. T. 444; 23 T. L. R. 292; 51 Sol. Jo. 245, C. A.

310. Of authority to make representations—Not claim for indemnity.—The vendor of a house brought an action against the purchaser, & the auctioneer who advertised & sold it, for specific performance of the contract or damages. Purchaser stated that he was induced to purchase the house in consequence of the advertisement in the newspapers inserted by the auctioneer, representing that the purchase-moneys would be allowed to remain on mtge. The representation was alleged to have been unauthorised, & purchaser applied by summons under R. S. C., Ord. 16, r. 55, for leave to serve his co-deft., the auctioneer, with a notice claiming indemnity from him against the claim of vendor:—Held: (1) this was not a case for indemnity within the rule; (2) the summons must be dismissed.—CATTON v. BENNETT (1884), 26 Ch. D. 161; 53 L. J. Ch. 685; 50 L. T. 383; 32 W. R. 485.

But where an auctioneer receives goods into his custody & on selling them hands them over to purchaser with a view of passing the property in them, he is liable for conversion, & is not in the position of a packing agent or carrier who merely purports to change the position of the goods & not the property therein.—*BARKER v. ## PART IX. SECT. 1.

a. Interest in or possession of goods.—Pltfs., auctioneers, sold certain furniture belonging to H. by public auction to B., who was allowed to remove the furniture; he sold & delivered it to K., who sold & delivered it to deft. After the sale by auction pltfs. paid the price to H., they having warranted payment. There was no evidence that H. was present at the sale or was aware of a condition of sale that all goods were to remain the property of the auctioneers until paid for, whether removed or otherwise. Four days after the sale pltfs. sought to collect the price from B., but he was not to be found. In an action to recover the furniture or its value:—Held: (1) in order to succeed, pltfs. must first prove that the property in the furniture had passed to them, & that, in the absence of proof that H. knew of the condition or that it was an usual condition of auction sales, no contract between him & pltfs. could be implied that the property was to pass to the auctioneers upon their selling it to a bidder; (2) the payment of the price by pltfs. to H. had not the effect of transferring the property to them, inasmuch as at the time of such payment pltfs. had already parted with the possession of the furniture.—MARCUS v. STAMPER & ZONTENDYK (1910), A. D. 58.—S. AF.

317. — Return to person from whom received.—A., a tenant, owed rent to B., his landlord. B. distrained for more rent than was due, & removed the goods to the auction rooms of C., & A. gave C. notice not to sell, & C. delivered the goods back to the person from whom he received them:—Held: as some rent was due from A. to B., C. was not liable to A. in an action of trover.—WHITWORTH v. SMITH (1832), 5 C. & P. 250; 1 Mood. & R. 193.

318. — Sale under execution.—A pianoforte of the pltf.'s was lent by him to W., in whose possession in Sept., 1845, it was seized by his landlord under a distress for rent. The landlord remained in possession of the goods, with W.'s consent till Oct. 15; on that day an execution was put into the premises at the suit of L., under which the officer seized the pianoforte & removed it to the premises of deft., an auctioneer, for sale, & deft. afterwards refused to deliver it to pltf., & sold it under the directions of the sheriff's officer:—Held: pltf. entitled to recover in trover.—TURNER v. FORD (1846), 15 M. & W. 212; 15 L. J. Ex. 215; 10 J. P. 426; 153 E. R. 826.

319. — Goods sold—Goods returned—Measure of damages.—An auctioneer, having been requested by A. to sell certain goods, agreed to do so at a warehouse where they were stored by A. The day before the sale he received notice that B., A.'s wife, claimed the goods, notwithstanding which he put them up for sale & returned to A. those not sold. B. having proved her right to the goods:—Held: (1) the auctioneer was liable for the value of the goods returned to A., as well as of those sold; (2) an inquiry must be granted to ascertain the value of the goods at the date of the notice.—DAVIS v. ARTINGSTALL (1880), 49 L. J. Ch. 609; 42 L. T. 507; 29 W. R. 137.

320. — Sale of hired goods.—Pltf. by agreement let some cabs on hire to P., who took them to deft., an auctioneer, & obtained from him an advance upon them. Deft., by P.'s instructions, & without any notice of pltf.'s property in the goods, subsequently sold them by auction, & having recouped himself for his advance, commission, & expenses, handed over the balance to P.:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover damages from deft. for conversion of the goods.

Supposing a man were to come into an auctioneer's yard holding a horse by the bridle & to say: "I want to sell my horse; if you will find a purchaser, I will pay commission," & the auctioneer says, "Here is a man who wants to sell a horse; will any one buy him?" If he then & there finds him a purchaser & the seller himself hands over the horse, there could be no act on the part of the auctioneer which could render him liable to an action for conversion (BRAMWELL, L.J.).—COCHRANE v. RYMILL

PART IX. SECT. 2.

320 i. Conversion—Sale of hired goods.—A piano was hired from a firm by K. & given to an auctioneer, who sold it with other effects:—Held: the firm who owned the piano, & who were owed some instalments of the amount of hire, were entitled to recover from the auctioneers the value of it.—THOMPSON v. GAMBLE (1873), 8 L. L. T. Jo. 500.—IR.

r. — Sale of consigned goods.—Pltfs. were assignees of a bill of lading for one hundred casks of spirits of turpentine & five hundred & one barrels of resin, for which they had discounted the shipper's draft on R., the consignee.

321. Factors Act, 1889 (c. 45), s. 9.]

Pltfs. let a piano by a hiring agreement, the piano on payment of all the instalments to become the property of the hirer. The hirer delivered the piano to deft., an auctioneer, to be sold by auction, some instalments being then unpaid. Deft. received the piano in good faith, without notice of pltfs.' rights, sold it, & paid the proceeds to the hirer. In an action for conversion of the piano:—Held: (1) the hirer had agreed to buy, & had obtained, with the consent of pltfs., possession of the piano ; (2) the delivery by the hirer to deft. had the same effect as if the hirer were a mercantile agent ; (3) the words "delivery under any agreement for sale" in the sect. were not confined to delivery to the person receiving the goods pursuant to a sale by the person delivering them ; (4) the words "agreement for sale, pledge, or other disposition" included a delivery of goods to be sold, by the person receiving, for the benefit of the person delivering ; (5) deft. was protected from liability by the above sect.—SHENSTONE & CO. v. HILTON, [1894] 2 Q. B. 452 ; 63 L. J. Q. B. 584 ; 71 L. T. 339 ; 10 T. L. R. 557 ; 10 R. 390.

322. — Goods consigned to agent for sale—Factors Act, 1889 (c. 45), s. 9.]—Goods were consigned by pltfs. to H., a mercantile agent, for sale by him on their behalf for cash or on the hire system. H. sent the goods to defts., a firm of auctioneers for sale by auction, & obtained from them an advance upon the goods in contemplation of their sale. In an action by pltfs. against defts. for conversion of the goods:—Held: (1) the transaction was not "a sale, pledge, or other disposition of the goods made by a mercantile agent when acting in the ordinary course of business of a mercantile agent" within

323. — Goods subject to bill of sale.]—B., an undischarged bkpt., to whom his creditors had given, by a resolution duly passed, a certain quantity of his furniture, assigned that furniture by bill of sale to pltf., & afterwards sent it to deft., an auctioneer, who sold it & paid the money received to bkpt. In an action for conversion:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the furniture, for bkpt. could, under the resolution of his creditors, dispose of it to pltf., & there was no jus tertii which deft. could set up.—BROWN v. HICKINBOTHAM (1881), 50 L. J. Q. B. 426, C. A.

324. — —.]—Pltfs. were the holders of a bill of sale, including certain horses & harness. The grantor of the bill of sale without pltfs.' knowledge took the horses & harness to deft.'s repository in the city of London for sale by auction, they were entered in the catalogue, deft. knowing nothing of the bill of sale. Before the auction the grantor of the bill of sale sold the horses & harness by private contract in deft.'s yard. The purchase-money was paid to deft. who deducted commission & paid the balance to the seller, & the horses & harness were delivered to the purchaser. Horses were sold under the same conditions in deft.'s yard whether sold privately or by auction. In an action for conversion of the horses & harness:—Held: deft. was not guilty of conversion.—NATIONAL MERCANTILE BANK v. RYMILL (1881), 44 L. T. 767, C. A.

325. — —.]—An auctioneer who, in the ordinary course of his business, sells by public auction for A. goods ostensibly belonging to A., but really belonging to B., & without notice pays over the proceeds of sale to A., is not guilty of a conversion.

The grantor of a bill of sale which included a cow took the cow to a public market kept by N. corpn. & placed it in one of the pens rented by deft., an

They forwarded the draft to their agents with instructions to deliver the bill of lading to R. when the draft was paid. R. accepted the draft, but did not pay the same, & the bill of lading was retained by pltfs.' agents. The invoice was sent to R., to whom the captain of the vessel, by which the goods were shipped, delivered the goods without the production of the bill of lading. Subsequently R. delivered ninety barrels of the turpentine to defts., auctioneers, for the purpose of being sold by defts. on account of R., upon which they advanced R. $1,000. Defts. after advertising the sale sold the turpentine at public auction & paid the balance of the net proceeds to R., & defts. did not know that R. had not possession of the bill of lading until pltfs., by notice in writing, demanded the turpentine of them:—Held: (1) pltfs. were entitled in an action of trover to recover from defts. the invoice of the turpentine, with interest on the amount from the day the demand was made ; (2) the instructions from pltfs. to their agents to deliver the bill of lading upon payment of the draft, was admissible evidence in the action.—*PEOPLE'S NATIONAL BANK OF CHARLESTON v. 323 ii. — Payment to vendor after notice.]—M., who was possessed of a farm, was in the habit of employing deft., an auctioneer, to let the grazing & manage the land for her. Deft. sometimes paid in advance the rents & taxes, & when he let the meadows or sold the crops he received the money, & after deducting what was due he paid the balance to M. M. had deposited with deft. the title-deeds of the farm by way of equitable mtge. In Nov., 1900, M. applied to pltf. for advances to pay off the amount due to deft., & also some rent that was due, which pltf. agreed to make upon the security of the agreement hereinafter stated, & also upon getting the title-deeds. On Dec. 29, 1900, M. signed an agreement, whereby, in consideration of pltf. paying for M. £200, she assigned to pltf., as security therefor, the authority to let & manage her farm, & out of the proceeds of such letting to retain such sums to liquidate the above, & M. appointed pltf. her auctioneer & salesman to dispose of same & to retain the sums advanced out of the proceeds, together with commission & expenses, & hand M. the balance ; this agreement to be irrevocable. Pltf. paid off deft., & paid the rent due. Pltf. in Jan., 1901, advertised the meadows for grazing, but owing to the action of M. the attempt to let them proved abortive, & the grass was allowed to spring into meadow. On July 5, pltf. advertised the meadows for sale, but they were not sold. M. subsequently employed deft. to sell her meadows, & they were sold on July 16. On July 19 pltf.'s solr. wrote to deft., informing him of the agreement of Dec. 29, 1900, & cautioning him not to pay over the proceeds of the sale to M. Notwithstanding this, deft. paid over the balance of the money to M., after deducting the expenses of the auction & commission:—Held: deft., having had notice of the agreement of Dec. 29, 1900, before he paid the balance of the proceeds of the sale to M., was liable to pltf. for the amount of the balance.—*COONAN v. s. Injunction — Parting with proceeds of sale of tenant's goods—Landlord's claim for rent.]—Pending the proceedings in an action for rent, & before judgment, deft. called an auction of all the stock & effects on the farm tenanted, on which pltf. had been prevented from distraining in consequence of the disturbed state of the district:—Held: an injunction should not be granted to restrain the auctioneer from parting with the proceeds of the sale pending the recovery of judgment.—*MAX v. 323 i. — Goods subject to bill of sale.]—An auctioneer who, at the instance of the mtgor., sells at auction in the ordinary course the goods in a chattel mtge., valid & in full force as regards the parties to it, & delivers possession of the goods to the purchaser, is liable to the mtgee. for conversion of the goods.

auctioneer, whom he instructed to sell it. Deft. had before this sold several cows in the same way for him. Deft. without notice or knowledge of the bill of sale in question, or that the cow was not the property of the person instructing him, sold the cow, & immediately after he received the money paid it over to the ostensible seller, he having previously paid the auctioneer in cash the amount of his commission:—Held: the grantee of the bill of sale could not maintain an action against the auctioneer for the value of the cow.—*TURNER v. The grantor of a bill of sale for £54 on certain furniture, after paying off £29, employed deft., an auctioneer, to sell a portion of the furniture. In an action for conversion against the auctioneer by the holder of the bill of sale:—Held: pltf. was only entitled to recover the damage actually sustained.

There being moneys due in respect of such debts, pltf's. sent their bailiff with a written authority to distrain for the amount, who showed his authority to deft., an auctioneer then on the premises, took an inventory & made a valuation. D. & deft. thereupon proceeded to sell the goods in disregard of such distress, deft. putting up & knocking down the goods by auction, the tenant handing them to the purchasers:—Held: though pltf's. had not such possession as to enable them to sue for conversion, they could maintain an action for rescue against deft., for knowingly assisting in transferring the dominion & property in the goods seized to the respective purchasers.—*IREDALE v. ## Part I.—In General.

SECT. 1.—DEFINITION AND CLASSIFICATION OF BAILMENT.

1. General principle.—There are six sorts of bailments. The first sort of bailment is a bare, naked bailment of goods, delivered by one man to another to keep for the use of the bailor; & this I call a depositum. The second sort is when goods or chattels that are useful are lent to a friend gratis to be used by him; & this is called commodatum, because the thing is to be restored in specie. The third sort is when goods are left with the bailee to be used by him for hire; this is called locatio et conductio, & the lender is called locator & the borrower conductor. The fourth sort is when goods or chattels are delivered to another as a pawn to be a security to him for money borrowed of him by the bailor; & this is called in Latin vadium & in English a pawn or pledge. The fifth sort is when goods or chattels are delivered to be carried, or something is to be done about them for a reward to be paid by the person who delivers them to the bailee, who is to do the thing about them. The sixth sort is when there is a delivery of goods or chattels to somebody who is to carry them or do something about them gratis, without any reward for such his work or carriage (LORD HOLT, C.J.)—COGGS v. BERNARD (1703), 2 Ld. Raym. 909; 1 Com. 133; 92 E. R. 107.

2. — Founded on Roman law.—No one who has read the treatise of Story J. on Bailments, the essay of Sir William Jones, & the judgment of Lord Holt in Coggs v. Bernard (No. 1, supra) can doubt that the common law of England as to bailments is founded upon, though it has not exactly adopted, the Roman law. It is true that Lord Holt rests as for authority solely on Bracton; but the treatise of Bracton adopts all the divisions of the Roman law in the very words of the Roman text, & further adopts the exception of the Roman law & the Roman reasons for it. The divisions may be the logical divisions of the subject, & so be naturally adopted by all in every country who treat the subject logically; but the exception [i.e., in the case of common carriers], both in the Roman Empire & in England, was no natural exception, but one depending entirely on public policy, arising from the manner in which some particular kinds of business were carried on in both places. It is obvious that Bracton, or English judges before him, adopted into the English the Roman law (BRETT, J.).—NUGENT v. SMITH (1875), 1 C. P. D. 19; 45 L. J. Q. B. 19; 33 L. T. 731; 24 W. 3. — The great case of *Coggs v. Bernard (No. 1, supra) is now the leading case on the law of bailments, & Lord Holt, in that case, referred so much to the Civil law that it might perhaps be thought that this principle was there derived direct from the civilians, & was not generally applicable in English law except in the case of bailments; but the same law had been already adopted by the English law as early as the Book of Assizes.—*TAYLOR v. 4. Bailment is delivery upon condition.]—It is not correct to use the expression "contract of bailment" in a sense which implies that every bailment must necessarily in itself be a contract. I do not so understand the definitions of the term "bailment." It is perfectly true that in almost all cases a contract either express or implied by law accompanies a bailment, but it seems to me that there may be a complete bailment without the contract. According to all the definitions, as for instance, those given in Sir William Jones, Blackstone, & Kent's Commentaries, it would appear that a bailment consists in the delivery of an article upon a condition or trust. It is true that the authors of those various definitions go on to say that there is a promise or contract to restore the goods, but this is not, as it seems to me, the bailment itself, but a contract that arises out of it (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.).—R. v. McDONALD (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 323; 52 L. T. 583; 49 J. P. 695; 33 W. R. 735; 1 T. L. R. 465, 561; 15 Cox, C. C. 757, C. C. R.

Annotation:—Fold. R. v. Ashwell (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 190, C. C. R.

5. —.]—It is only necessary that a person should have care of a chattel to make him a bailee; a contract is not essential.—R. v. ROBSON (1861), Le. & Ca. 93; 31 L. J. M. C. 22; 5 L. T. 402; 26 J. P. 179; 8 Jur. N. S. 64; 10 W. R. 61; 9 Cox, C. C. 29, C. C. R.

Annotation:—Reid. R. v. McDonald (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 323, C. C. R.

6. —.]—To constitute a person bailee of a chattel there must be a bailment, & not a mere delivery of the chattel. There must be a delivery of a chattel upon contract express or implied to return it or obey the mandate with which the delivery is clogged, or, in other words, a delivery upon condition (SMITH, J.).

Bailment is not a mere delivery on a contract, but is a contract itself. Sir William Jones speaks of it as that contract which the lawyers call bailment. "Bailment or delivery of goods to another person for a particular use," says Sir William Blackstone. "Bailment is a compendious expression to signify a contract resulting from delivery" (Story on Bailments). Twice over in Story on Contracts the author speaks of bailment as itself a contract. "Depositum (that is, bailment) is a contract," says Grotius in his introduction to Roman-Dutch law. "The contract of bailment" is not a mere loose & common phrase, but is the accurate expression of a legal idea (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.).—R. v. ASHWELL (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 190; 55 L. J. M. C. 65; 53 L. T. 773; 50 J. P.

PART I. SECT. 1.

11 i. Contract of bailment—Identical subject-matter not to be returned—Sale distinguished.]—Where the holder of a hotel licence lends to another hotel licensee liquors, upon terms requiring the borrower to return goods of like quality & quantity, the transaction constitutes a sale or barter, & not a bailment.—O'FLYNN v. CARSON (1908), 7 W. L. R. 463; 1 Sask. L. R. 47.—CAN.

11 ii. —.]—When merchandise is received in a warehouse on such terms that the identical goods are so mixed up with others that they cannot be returned, & the well understood course of the business is that, unless a price is agreed on, the party delivering the goods can only require an equivalent amount of the same kind & quality to be accounted for to him, the contract is really one of sale & not of bailment.—LAWLOR v. NICOL (1898), 12 Man. L. R. 224.—CAN.

11 iii. —.]—Wheat was delivered by pltf. to deft., a miller, under a receipt stating that same was received in store "at owner's risk," & that pltf. was entitled to receive the current

11. — Sale distinguished.]—A bailment on trust implies that there is reserved to the bailor the right to claim a redelivery of the property deposited in bailment. Wherever there is a delivery of property on a contract for an equivalent in money, or some other valuable commodity, & not for the return of the identical subject-matter in its original or an altered form, this is a transfer of property for value—it is a sale & not a bailment.

Corn was deposited by farmers with a miller, to be stored & used as part of the current consumable stock or capital of the miller's trade, & was by him mixed with other corn deposited for the like purpose, subject to the right of the farmers to claim at market price therefor when he called for his money. The wheat to pltf.'s knowledge was mixed with wheat of the same grade & ground into flour. The mill with all its contents was subsequently destroyed by fire, but there had always been in store a sufficient quantity of wheat to answer pltf.'s receipt:—Held: the receipt & the facts in connection therewith constituted a bailment of the wheat, & not a sale.—CLARK v. McCLELLAN (1893), 23 O. R. 465.—CAN.

11 iv. — Delivery of seed under agreement to plant.]—Where seed is delivered by one person to another to be grown any time an equal quantity of corn of the like quality, without reference to any specific bulk from which it was to be taken, or in lieu thereof the market price of an equal quantity, on the day on which he made his demand, with a small charge for general purposes:—Held: such a transaction amounted to a sale by the farmer to the miller, & was not a bailment of the corn.—SOUTH AUSTRALIAN INSURANCE CO. v. RANDELL (1869), L. R. 3 P. C. 101; 6 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 341; 22 L. T. 843; 16 E. R. 755, P. C.

12. — Room let as store.—A person let a room in his house at 2s. a week, for the purpose of goods being deposited in it. The room was broken open, & the goods stolen by some one belonging to the family:—Held: he was not a bailee of the goods & not answerable for the loss.—PEERS v. SAMPSON (1824), 4 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 636; sub nom. BEERS v. SAMPSON, 2 L. J. O. S. K. B. 212.

13. — Licence to use real property.—Pltf., a timber merchant, having sold some boards to deft., an innkeeper, gratuitously permitted him to have them made into a signboard in one of three sheds belonging to him:—Held: there was no demise of the shed as real property, nor anything in the nature of, or analogous to, a bailment of it as a chattel, by pltf. to deft., but it was a mere licence to deft. to use it for the purpose of making the signboard.—WILLIAMS v. JONES (1865), 3 H. & C. 602; 13 L. T. 300; 29 J. P. 644; 11 Jur. N. S. 843; 13 W. R. 1023; 159 E. R. 668, Ex. Ch. Annotation:—Mentd. Whitmore v. Pearson (1868), 16 W. R. 649.

14. — Goods left in room without notice.—A committee hired defts.' concert hall. The memorandum of letting for an evening concert contained no mention of a rehearsal, but a rehearsal was held in the hall on the same afternoon without objection. When it had ended pltf., without request or notice to the hall-keeper, placed his double-bass violin safely in a small room attached to the concert-hall, but in the way of the gas bracket. The hall-keeper was defts.' servant, & his duties were to prepare & clean the rooms, open & shut the doors & attend to the gas. In order to

on the land of the latter, the produce thereof to be returned & paid for at a fixed price per bushel, the transaction is a bailment & not a sale.—STEWART v. SCULTHORP (1894), 25 O. R. 544.—CAN.

11 v. — Delivery of grain.—Pltf. delivered wheat to defts., millers, from time to time receiving on delivery tickets, in the following form:—"22/11" (date) "H. L. Cargo 85 B. Wht. J. & E.K." (defts.' miller). Pltf. alleged a sale of the whole; defts. a purchase of part of the wheat delivered & a bailment of the remainder:—Held: (1) the tickets showed delivery only & the question of sale or bailment must be determined by extrinsic evidence; (2) on the evidence defts. entitled to judgment.—CARGO v. JOYNER (1899), 4 Terr. L. R. 64.—CAN.

a. — Scow lent to vendor of cargo.—Master of ship chartered by purchaser.—Deft. was master of a ship, which had been chartered by C. & Co., to carry a load of deals. C. & Co. purchased the deals from J. & Co., & employed them to deliver same alongside the vessel. C. & Co. paid J. & Co. for the scowage & then charged the vessel with the amount so paid for scowage. J. & Co. borrowed a scow from pltf., which they left loaded with deals alongside the vessel, & fastened to her as directed by the mate. The next morning the scow was missing:—Held: the relation of bailor & bailee did not exist as between pltf. & deft.—WETMORE v. MCKENZIE (1877), 1 P. & B. 557.—CAN.

15 i. — Charter of tug.—Deft. hired a tug from pltf. under the following contract: "I agree to charter tug . . . to tow two barges from . . . for which I agree to pay . . . owner to supply engineer & captain":—Held: not a demise of the tug, but a contract of hiring.—THOMPSON v. FOWLER (1893), 23 O. R. 644.—CAN.

b. — Deposit of certificates for safe keeping.—Pltf. deposited the certificates for shares with defts. for safe-keeping. Defts. executed & delivered to pltf. a document under seal, by which they held in their safe deposit vaults to the order of pltf. any dividends received in respect thereof, & guaranteed to pltf. that the certificates would be kept safely & delivered upon demand under proper authority. The document also provided for the remuneration of defts. The certificates were put into the name of defts. Three hundred & seventy-five of the shares had been acquired by pltf. under an agreement with A. Co., who had an interest in the prospective profits to be derived from the sale of the shares:—Held: defts. were merely bailees & not trustees.—ELGIN LOAN & SAVINGS CO. v. NATIONAL TRUST CO. (1905), 5 O. W. R. 406; 10 O. L. R. 41.—CAN.

c. — Undertaking by steward to return goods sold to seamen.—Goods were sold to certain seamen, who signed their own names to the contract, & deft. undertook that he would return the goods to pltf. in the event of their not being paid for:—Held: deft., if liable at all, was liable as bailee of the goods, & pltf. could not recover in an action for goods sold & delivered.—LEVINE v.

17. — Infant—Cannot make contract of ball-

SEBASTIAN (1911), 9 E. L. R. 311.—CAN.

d. — Telephone service.—The contract for a telephone service between a city & a subscriber is one of bailment, & the relationship between them is one of landlord & tenant.—EDWARDS v. EDMONTON (1915), 8 W. W. R. 441; 25 D. L. R. 825.—CAN.

e. — Notes delivered for specific purpose.—Pltf., the manager of the O. Bank, placed in the hands of D., a broker, thirteen Govt. currency notes, on D.'s representation that there was some co.'s paper which he could procure at a more reasonable rate than in the Calcutta market, if the money were given him to purchase it. If the paper was not procurable, the notes were to be returned to pltf. D. went into a house hired for gambling, & lost at cards & paid away to deft. some of the notes he had received from pltf. Pltf. sued deft. to recover the notes so intrusted to D., on the allegation that they had been intrusted by him to D. for a specific purpose, & that deft. was not a bond fide holder for value. Pltf. stated in evidence "that if the paper had been bought he would either have taken the paper at the most favourable market price for the bank, or have sold it & given D. the profit":—Held: upon the case put forward by pltf., the transaction was a short loan, & not a bailment, but upon the evidence the notes were the property of the bank, & remained so in D.'s hands, & pltf. was entitled to recover on behalf of the bank.—BULDEO NARAIN v. SCRIMGEOUR (1871), 6 B. L. R. 581.—IND.

ment].—Pltf. declared that at deft.'s request he had delivered a mare to deft. to be moderately ridden, and that deft. maliciously intending, etc., wrongfully & injuriously rode the mare, so that she was damaged, etc.:—Held: deft. might plead his infancy in bar, the action being founded on contract.—JENNINGS v. RUNDALL (1799), 8 Term Rep. 335; 101 E. R. 1419.

18. ———— Liable in detinue.]—Pltf. delivered skins to deft. to be finished, upon the supposition that deft. was of full age. Pltf., being desirous to have his goods again, applied to deft., who refused to return them, but offered to buy them & pay for them at £5 per month. Pltf. having declined that offer, deft. stated that he was under age, & would contest the matter at law. Pltf. brought an action in detinue, the declaration alleging, in the first count, a bailment of goods to be delivered on request, & in the second count, that the skins came to deft.'s hand by finding:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover upon the second count.

The contract being incomplete, on account of the minority of deft., the case is totally different from those which have been founded upon a bailment. In this case, for want of a capacity in deft. to make a complete contract, no bailment was made. This being the case, the action is brought in detinue instead of trover (MANSFIELD, C.J.).—MILLS v. GRAHAM (1804), 1 Bos. & P. N. R. 140; 127 E. R. 413.

19. ———— .]—Goods were bailed to an infant to show to his mother, who, the infant said, would probably buy them. The goods were not bought, nor were they returned on demand:—Held: the infant was liable to an action for detinue.—BURTON v. LEVEY (1891), 7 T. L. R. 248.

20. ———— Liable for torts outside contract.]—Deft., an infant, hired a horse for a ride on the road, the owner expressly refusing to allow the horse to be used for jumping. Deft. lent the horse to a friend, who rode it with deft.'s permission across the fields, & at fences, in endeavouring to jump which the horse was injured:—Held: this was an actionable wrong independent of any contract, & deft., notwithstanding his infancy, was liable for the injury which had been done to the horse.—BURNARD v. HAGGIS (1863), 14 C. B. N. S. 45; 2 New Rep. 126; 32 L. J. C. P. 189; 8 L. T. 320; 9 Jur. N. S. 1325; 11 W. R. 644; 143 E. R. 360.

21. ———— .]—Deft., an infant, hired from pltf. a mare, which was let to him on condition that he should drive on a certain road & that only one person besides himself should be carried in the trap drawn by the mare. Deft. drove by a different road, & had three other persons in the trap. The mare was seriously injured by deft.'s negligence. In an action for damages:—Held: the plea of infancy was no defence, as this was a tort ultra the contract.—WALLEY v. HOLT (1876), 35 L. T. 631; 41 J. P. 56.

22. ———— .]—The delivery of goods on a condition to an infant creates in him a special property. His property, however, is not absolute; it can only exist till the condition is fulfilled; & the owner then can demand the return of the property & maintain an action for the conversion of it if not redelivered. The law thus recognising a special property in the infant, he is to all intents & purposes a bailee of the goods, though the law does not in his case imply a contract to perform the terms of the bailment.—R. v. McDONALD (1885) 15 Q. B. D. 323; 52 L. T. 583; 49 J. P. 695; 33 W. R. 735; 1 T. L. R. 465, 561; 15 Cox, C. C. 757, C. C. R.

23. ———— .]—Deft., who was an infant of twenty years of age, & at the time in question had an allowance of £80 a year, hired from pltf. a motor-car, in order to drive it to a place six miles off to fetch his bag. Pltf. alleged, but did not establish, that the car was to be at deft.'s risk. Deft. having arrived at the place, took a friend for a drive twelve miles farther on. In the course of this additional part of the journey the car was damaged without any negligence on deft.'s part. In an action for damages for breach of contract or for wrongful use of the car:—Held: (1) deft. was not liable in tort as nothing which he had done made him an independent tortfeasor; (2) he was not liable in contract, as the mere hiring of the car did not render him liable for its loss owing to causes not depending upon any want of skill or care on his part. Semble: although the hiring of the car for the purpose in question by an infant in the position of deft. might be a necessary, if hired at taxi-cab rates or on reasonable terms, it would not be so if an onerous term, such as that the car should be at the infant's risk, formed part of the contract of hiring.—FAWCETT v. SMELTHURST (1914), 84 L. J. K. B. 473; 112 L. T. 309; 31 T. L. R. 85; 59 Sol. Jo. 220.

24. Married woman.]—A tradesman supplying a married woman, living apart from her husband, with furniture upon hire does not thereby divest himself of the present right of property in such goods, inasmuch as the married woman was incapable of acquiring it by any contract, & if the sheriff take such goods in execution at the suit of the husband's creditor, trover lies by the tradesman.—SMITH v. She afterwards broke open the box, & stole the money. The husband had nothing to do with the transaction. Upon a case reserved on an indictment containing counts against prisoner as a bailee & for larceny:—Held: (1) either she was a bailee by licence, & guilty on that count, or, if she was not a bailee, was guilty of larceny; (2) the husband was not a bailee, as he knew nothing about the transaction, & could not be made a bailee against his will.—R. v. 29. — Master porter employed by warehouseman—Master & servant.]—A master-porter employed by a warehouseman to hoist or lower goods must be considered not in the light of a bailee, but of a servant, & the party employing him is liable for any injury caused through his negligence or want of skill.

This is very different from the case of a carrier. He is a bailee, & has the entire charge of the property. Here, the porter was employed to do a certain thing, that is merely to remove the goods from the premises (PATTESON, J.).—RANDLESON v. MURRAY (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 109; 3 Nev. & P. K. 30. — Cab driver & cab proprietor.]—Pltf., a cab driver, obtained from deft., a cab proprietor, a horse & cab on the usual terms, which were that the driver should at the end of the day hand over to the proprietor 18s., retaining for himself all the day's earnings over that sum, the day's food for the horse being supplied by the owner, & the latter having no control over the driver after leaving the yard. The horse with which the driver was furnished, which was fresh from the country & had never before been harnessed to a cab, bolted & overturned the cab & injured the driver. The horse was not reasonably fit to be driven in a cab:—Held (WILLES, J., diss.): the relation between the parties was that of bailor & bailee, & the proprietor was responsible for the injury sustained by the driver.—*FOWLER v. 32. Restaurant keeper.]—Plt. entered deft.'s restaurant for the purpose of dining there. A waiter took pltf.'s overcoat from him without being requested to do so, & hung it on a hook behind pltf. The coat was stolen while pltf. was dining:—Held: there was evidence to warrant a verdict for pltf., on the grounds (1) there was evidence from which a jury might properly find that deft. was bailee of the coat, & had been guilty of negligence while it was in his custody; (2) assuming a bailment of the coat, there was evidence of negligence on the part of deft. as bailee.—*ULTZEN v. f. — Crown — Customs officer.]—When goods are in the customs examining warehouse for examination & appraisal, the Crown is not a bailee. g. — Police constable.]—A police constable having arrested pltf. on a charge, took charge of four camels which were in his possession. The charge having been ultimately dismissed, pltf. demanded the return of the camels, but the constable refused to deliver them pending instructions. Ultimately three were delivered, the fourth, which had been turned out with the others to graze, having died. In an action for recovery of damages for the loss, the magistrate accepted the evidence of the constable, that after the arrest he had retained possession of the camels at the request of pltf., & was a gratuitous bailee, & dismissed the claim.—Held: the original possession by the constable having been wrongful, & he having still

h. — Person retaining possession of goods after conveyance to trustees.]—Deft. conveyed all his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. 35. .]—On the occasion of buying some hats from pltfs. it was arranged that pltfs. should send to defts. with the hats certain furs & blouses on approval. Subsequently pltfs. sent three boxes to defts.' house which were taken in & signed for. Shortly afterwards, before any of the boxes had been unpacked, a man called at the house, & by pretending to the servant that a mistake had been made, fraudulently obtained possession of two of the boxes. Pltfs. sued defts. for the price of the stolen goods alleging in the alternative (1) that defts. had not taken reasonable care of the goods as bailees, & (2) that defts. had contracted to return or pay for the goods. As to a great part of the stolen goods defts. relied on the defence that they had not requested such goods to be sent to them :—Held : (1) prima facie the loss fell on the owners of the stolen goods, i.e., on pltfs. ; (2) to shift the loss on to defts. pltfs. would have to prove that the goods were delivered upon such terms as would make defts. responsible for their safety ; (3) defts. could not be liable for the goods they had not requested to be sent to them.—BATISTONI v. DANCE (1908), Times, Jan. 18.

36. Goods refused by consignee—Carriers.]—Carriers, after a refusal of the goods at the consignee's address, are involuntary bailees, & are only bound to act with reasonable care & caution with respect to the goods.

Pltfs., acting upon a supposed order, forwarded goods by defts.' line to the address of a co. from which the order purported to come, but which had, in fact, ceased to carry on business. Defts. tendered the goods at the co.'s late place of business, & the goods were refused. Defts. took back the goods to the station, & posted an advice note to the co., requesting instructions for their delivery. A few days afterwards, N., the person who had written & sent the order in the co.'s name, brought to the station the advice note & a delivery order purporting to be signed by himself for the co., & obtained delivery of the goods :—Held : it was a question for the jury whether defts. had acted with reasonable care & caution with respect to the goods after their refusal at the consignee's address, & the jury having found for defts., the ct. refused to disturb the verdict.

Defts.' character of carriers had ceased, & whatever character they filled it was not that. Their position has been not inaptly described as that of involuntary bailees ; without their own default they found these goods in their hands, in circumstances in which the character of carriers under which they received them had ceased (KELLY, C.B.).—*HEUGH v. 37. .]—A railway co. carried goods from one of its stations to another. 38. Bailee must act reasonably.]—Pltfs. sent to deft. an invoice for barley, which stated that the barley was bought by deft. of pltfs. through G. as broker, & also a delivery order, which made the barley deliverable to the order of the consignor or consignee. Deft. had not in fact ordered any barley of pltfs. G. called on deft., who showed him the documents, & told him it was a mistake. G. said that it was so, & asked deft. to indorse the order to him, for the purpose, as he said, of saving the expense of obtaining a fresh delivery order. Deft. indorsed the order to G., who possessed himself of the barley & disposed of it, & then absconded. On the trial of an action of trover for the barley, the jury found that deft. had no intention of appropriating the barley to his own use, but

PART I. SECT. 2.

36 i. Goods refused by consignee—Carriers.]—Pltf. received a notice that "the undermentioned goods consigned to you have arrived here this day ; we will thank you to send for them as soon as possible, as they remain here at your risk & expense." The goods were spring goods, which had been placed by defts. in a bonded warehouse, being subject to duties. Being unseasonable at the time of receipt of the notice, pltf. refused to take them :—Held : the goods being bonded goods, subject to duty, & defts. having conveyed them within a reasonable time to the warehouse, where they were bound by law to deliver them, they were not bound to give notice of their arrival there, & their duty as common carriers had ceased.—O'NEILL v. GREAT WESTERN RY. Co. (1858), 7 C. P. 203.—CAN.

36 ii. .]—F. Brothers, having sold iron to R. Co., directed pltfs. to deliver certain cars containing iron to R. Co. R. Co. refused to accept delivery on the ground that the iron was not according to their contract :—Held : pltfs. were not liable either as carriers, the transitus having come to an end by refusal of R. Co. to receive the goods, or as warehousemen, as they could only be liable as such for gross negligence & the question of negligence had never been tried.—GRAND TRUNK RY. Co. v. FRANKEL (1903), 33 S. C. R. 115.—CAN.

36 iii. Right of sale.]—Goods, which deft. co. had carried for pltf., having been in the co.'s possession for a long time, were handed over by the co. to auctioneers to be sold to pay the co.'s charges. The auctioneers sold a part of the goods which, according to their statement, realised less than the amount of the charges. Pltf. alleged improper accounting & a conversion, & claimed from the co. a proper account of the goods sold & the value of the goods converted, or damages for the conversion :—Held : (1) the consignee was bound to take the goods away within twenty-four hours after arrival, & her refusal or neglect to receive the goods put an end to the transit, & the co. became warehousemen or involuntary bailees ; (2) the co.'s obligation was to take reasonable care & to deliver the goods when the consignee came for them, & the question was whether the co. was liable for the acts of their agents if those acts amounted to such negligence as would make them liable as bailee or would constitute conversion.—*SWALE v. a. Misdirection by consignor—Letter returned by post office.]—Pltf., wishing to send $1,010 to his brother, procured at the office of defts. an envelope such as they use in forwarding money by express, enclosed bank notes to the amount of $1,010, & mailed the letter & registered it. The letter not being delivered, owing to its being defectively addressed, the officials of the Dead Letter Department sent it by registered mail to defts. It was delivered to defts.' cashier, who received it in a protected cage in which he performed his duties. After receiving the package the cashier laid it unopened on the chief clerk's desk, which stood open to the public & to all defts.' officials. The chief clerk was not at his desk when the package was placed there & said he never saw it & there was nothing to show what became of it afterwards :—Held : defts. owed no duty to pltf. to take care of the letter & pltf. could not recover.—COSSENTINO v. DOMINION EXPRESS Co. (1906), 16 Man. L. R. 563 ; 4 W. L. R. 498.—CAN.

38 i. Bailee must act reasonably.]—Deft. having ordered a car of apples from pltfs. cancelled the order & ordered indorsed the order for the purpose of correcting what he believed to be an error, & returning the barley to pltf. :—Held : deft., having indorsed the order without any occasion to do so, & without authority, was liable.

Pltfs. had not, by what they had done, placed the deft. in any position of difficulty, as is often the case with an involuntary bailee who has received property into his possession for a purpose which cannot, as it afterwards appears, be exactly carried into effect, & who does his best & acts in a reasonable manner for carrying into effect the purpose of the bailment. In such cases the bailee has a duty to perform in relation to the goods, & he is placed in a difficulty in the discharge of that duty by the default of the pltf., who ought not to be allowed to complain if, under that difficulty, the bailee has acted in a manner which is considered reasonable & proper (CLEASBY, B.).—*HORT v. ### SECT. 1.—DEPOSIT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—WHAT CONSTITUTES A DEPOSIT.

39. Goods lodged for safe custody.]—H. lodged jewels for safe custody in the hands of S., a jeweller, inclosed in a paper that was sealed & put in a bag, which was also sealed with H.'s seal, & his clerk gave the following receipt : "Which bag, I promise to take care of for H. for my master S." :—Held : this was a deposit of goods.—*HARTOP v. 40. When bailment not gratuitous—Goods left in warehouse of carrier—No charge for storing.]—Goods were forwarded by a carrier's waggon to A. in London, & delivered by the carrier to him. A. sent them back to the carrier's warehouse, with directions that they should remain there to await his orders. They remained there for upwards of a year, when they were lost out of the warehouse. A printed bill issued by the carrier, & sent to A. with the goods, stated that "any goods that should have remained three months in the warehouse without being claimed, or on account of the non-payment of the charges thereon, would be sold to defray the carriage or other charges thereon, or the general lien, as the case might be, together with warehouse rent & expenses." The carrier had often before carried goods for A., but no goods of his had before lain in the carrier's warehouse :—Held : (1) the carrier was not, in the circumstances, a mere gratuitous bailee of the goods at the time of their loss ; (2) A. might recover against him the value of the goods, on a declaration in assumpsit alleging that they were delivered to deft. to be safely kept for pltf., for certain reasonable compensation & reward to be therefor paid by him.—CAIRNS v. ROBINS (1841), 8 M. & W. 258 ; 10 L. J. Ex. 452 ; 151 E. R. 1034.

41. [Deft., a carrier & wharfinger, received into his warehouse goods of pltf., on the terms that they should be conveyed by deft.'s barges to London when pltf. should direct, at the usual freight, & that in the meantime they should be kept by deft. without charge for warehousing. In an action for not keeping the goods safely :—Held : deft. was not a gratuitous bailee.—WHITE v. HUMPHERY (1847), 11 Q. B. 43 ; 10 L. T. O. S. 183 ; 12 Jur. 417 ; 116 E. R. 391.

42. —Returned empties.]—A railway co. were sued as common carriers for the loss of empty packages, which had already traversed the line of railway of defts. when full, & for the return carriage of which, when empty, it was the custom not to make any further charge. The packages another car from R. Pltfs. & their Ontario purchasing agent were notified, but they sent a car to deft., who took in the apples & stored them, believing they came from R. A few days later the car from R. came along :—Held : deft. was a bailee for pltfs., & was not liable, having taken the usual & proper precautions in selling at the best price, after notifying pltfs. they were held at their risk.—PIONEER v. LITSCHLE (1909), 12 W. L. R. 94.—CAN.

b. Goods salvaged — After railway accident.]—Where effects salvaged after a railway accident are allowed by the consignors to remain in the co.'s possession, & are partially destroyed by rats, the co. will not be held liable for such destruction where it is not proved that the loss occurred through their fault or negligence.—ROSENBLOOM v. GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. (1899), Q. R. 16 S. C. 360.—CAN.

c. —After robbery.]—In the absence of the true owner, a store, in which his goods were, was broken open by thieves. In order to protect the property deft. took possession of the goods, but thereafter the Govt. commandeered them :—Held : deft. not liable to the true owner for the value of the goods removed.—AMOD SALIE v. RAGOON (1903), S. C. 100.—S. AF.

PART II. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

d. Goods sold by weight remaining in vendor's possession.]—Where goods are sold by weight & the property remains in the possession of the vendor, the vendor becomes in law a depository, & if the goods while in his possession are damaged through his fault & negligence, he cannot bring an action for their value.—ROSS v. HANNAN (1891), 19 S. C. R. 227.—CAN.

e. Tools left with employer — Rule that employers must leave tools in certain place.]—A contract of deposit involving the liability of the employer, in the event of their loss, is not brought into existence by a rule whereby his employees must, while the construction work upon which they are employed lasts, leave their tools in a special place reserved for that purpose.—HEBERT v. MONTREAL HARBOUR COMRS. (1912), Q. R. 42 S. C. 439.—CAN.

f. Money paid to solicitors on account of costs in pending action.]—When a client advances a sum of money to a firm of attorneys on account of costs in a pending action, the contract between them is not one of depositum, but is a contract whereby the client indemnifies the attorneys against loss owing to the costs of the action to the extent of the advance with a right in them to use the money & no right in himself to re-claim it unless they should, on a successful issue of the suit, be reimbursed by the opposing party.—NGANGELIZWE KAMA v. YATES & MURRAY (1903), 17 F. D. C. 60.—S. AF.

40 i. When bailment not gratuitous.]—Defts. agreed to make for pltf. certain tools &, in consideration of being allowed to use the tools, to make also a number of hubs :—Held : while using the tools defts. were bailees thereof for hire, & after ceasing to use them, gratuitous bailees.—LEGG v. WELLAND VALE MANUFACTURING CO. (1901), 21 C. L. T. Occ. N. 374 ; 2 O. L. R. 45.—CAN.

40 ii. —Cotton sent to screw-house—No rent paid for godown room.]—A. sent cotton to B.'s screw-house to be screwed, & it was placed in B.'s godowns. B. provided dunnage ; no rent was paid for godown room, but on several occasions when cotton had been left by owners for some time in the godowns & removed unscrewed, rent had been paid, & it was for the mutual interest of both parties that the cotton should be so kept. The custom was that the screwing charges should be paid by the purchasers of cotton, to whom it was delivered by B. by the direction of the vendors :—Semle : B. was a bailee for custody, but not a gratuitous bailee (MARKBY, J.).—*MOOLCHAND v. were delivered to defts. at a station on their line of railway, addressed to a station on another line, to which place defts. were not carriers. The person who delivered the goods signed the two following conditions:—(1) The co. will not be answerable for the loss, or detention of, or damage to wrappers, or packages of any description charged by the co. as "empties"; (2) Nor in respect of goods destined for places beyond the limits of the co.'s railway; &, as respects the co., their responsibility will cease when such goods shall have been delivered over to another carrier in the usual course for further conveyance. Any money which may be received by the co. as payment for the conveyance of goods beyond their own limits will be so received only for the convenience of the consignors, & for the purpose of being paid to the other carrier. The goods were safely carried by defts. to the termination of their own line of railway, & there delivered to another co. They were lost on the railway of the latter co.:—Semble: in respect of the empty packages, defts. were not gratuitous bailees, & the first condition was not just & reasonable within Railway & Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (c. 31), s. 7.

47 i. Duties of bailee — To take care of chattel.]—Pltf., a guest at defts.' hotel, on leaving left a valise & contents in charge of the clerk to keep for him till his return. Pltf. expected to pay for the storage, but it was not shown whether defts. intended to make a charge. Upon pltf.'s return the valise could not be found, & pltf. sued for its value & the value of the contents:—Held: treating defts. as gratuitous bailees, their duty was to take the same care of the valise as a reasonably prudent & careful man might fairly be expected to take of his own property of the like description.—SUTHERLAND v. BELL & SCHIESEL (1911), 18 W. L. R. 521.—CAN.

48. Degree of care varies with nature of bailment.]—The degree of care required by law from a bailee varies with the nature of the bailment: a gratuitous bailment imposes upon the bailee a less degree of responsibility than a bailment for reward. Whatever the nature of the bailment, it appears to have been usual to charge generally a duty to use due care, & a breach of that duty. The degree of attention to the safety of the thing with which deft. is intrusted is regulated by a reference to the character he fills (ERLE, J.).—ROSS v. HILL (1846), 2 C. B. 877; 3 Dow. & L. 788; 15 L. J. C. P. 182; 7 L. T. O. S. 112; 10 Jur. 435; 135 E. R. 1190.

49. ———.]—The failure to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence is gross negligence. What is reasonable varies in the case of a gratuitous bailee & that of a bailee for hire. From the former is reasonably expected such care & diligence as persons ordinarily use in their own affairs, & such skill as he has.—BEAL v. SOUTH DEVON RY. CO. (1864), 3 H. & C. 337; 11 L. 50. Where bailor knows bailee's character.]—A man may, with respect to his own property, encounter risks from views of particular advantage, or from a natural disposition of rashness, which would be entirely unjustifiable in respect to the custody of goods of another person; but where property is confided to the care of a particular person by one who is or may be supposed to be acquainted with his character, the care which he would take of his own property might be considered as a reasonable criterion.—THE WILLIAM (1806), 6 Ch. Rob. 316.

Annotation:—Mentd. The Ostsee (1855), 2 Ecc. & Ad. 170, P. C.

51. Bailee must carry out terms of bailment.]—Where an order is given, previously to the delivery of goods to a bailee, to deal with them when delivered in a particular manner to which he assents, & afterwards the goods are delivered to him, a duty arises on his part on receipt of the goods to deal with them according to the order previously given & assented to, & the law infers an implied promise by him to perform such duty.—STREETER v. HORLOCK (1822), 1 Bing. 34; 7 Moore, C. P. 283; 130 E. R. 15.

52. ——— Special conditions.]—If goods be delivered by A. to B. to keep safely, B. is answerable for them to A., though he be robbed of them. It is otherwise if they be delivered to B. to keep as his own goods, etc.—KETTLE v. BROMSALL (1738), Willes, 118; 125 E. R. 1087.

53. ———.]—Bills of exchange were deposited with resp. for the purpose of securing the payment of certain other bills given by C. to applts. By the terms of the agreement between the parties with respect to the deposit, resp., "constituting himself the voluntary depositary of the bills," undertook to be responsible for them to applts. "until the effectual encashment thereof, which encashment was entrusted to C." Resp. signed the agreement as "depositary only." When the bills became due, resp. delivered some of them to C. for the purpose of being cashed. C. obtained payment of & retained the money:—Held: (1) there was no breach of duty under the contract on the part of resp.; (2) assuming that resp. was guilty of negligence in allowing C. free access to the chest in which the bills were placed, such negligence afforded no ground of action, since it was not followed by any consequences affecting applts.' interests.—TREFFTZ v. CANELLI (1872), L. R. 4 P. C. 277; 9 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 22; 27 L. T. 252; 20 W. R. 842, P. C.

54. ——— Banker.]—In an action for damages against a bank as bailees for the negligent keeping of certain railway debentures placed in their care by a customer in the ordinary way of their business as bankers, it appeared that the box containing the securities (of which the customer kept the key) was kept in a strong room in the bank with the boxes of other customers & specie & other securities belonging to the bank. Access to this room was only obtained by passing through a compartment where a cashier sat by day & a messenger slept at night. The strong room had two iron doors, which were opened by separate keys, which during the day were kept by the cashier who occupied the compartment. One of the keys was kept at night by the cashier of the bank, & the other key by another officer of the bank. Beyond this strong room there were two other rooms; in the outer of the two uncoined gold & in the inner bullion & unsigned notes were kept. The manager of the bank kept the key of the outer of these rooms, & one of the directors of the bank that of the inner. The owner of the box had free access to the room where his box was deposited during banking-hours, in the presence of one of the bank clerks, when he had occasion to take out coupons from his debentures for collection. While in such custody the cashier of the bank abstracted the debentures from the box, & made away with them:—Held: the bank, as gratuitous bailees, were not bound to exercise more than ordinary care of the deposits intrusted to them, & the negligence for which alone they would be made liable would have been a want of that ordinary diligence which a reasonably prudent man took of his own property of the like description. The application of the term "gross negligence," in the case of gratuitous bailees, considered & commented on.—GIBLIN v. McMULLEN (1869), L. R. 2 P. C. 317; 5 Moo. P. C. C. N. S.

51 i. ——— Bailee must carry out terms of bailment.]—Deft., who had offered to take care gratuitously of pltf.'s sheep, received a telegram from him: "On no account let any one have sheep." Later he allowed a third party to remove the sheep, having seen a telegram from pltf.: "Can remove wire money sharp otherwise I must realise sheep reply." By an error the word "can" had been substituted for "can't":—Held: it was the duty of deft. to have communicated with pltf. & he was liable.—MARAS v. ANDERSON (1909), E. D. C. 76.—S. AF.

52 i. Special conditions.] — A bailee, even if unpaid, must bestow upon the custody of the thing delivered to him the care of a prudent administrator, & must at least see that it does not perish through his fault. The parties can derogate from this rule by agreement; & when a bailor is warned by the bailee that the store where the goods are placed is liable to inundation from high tides, he is deemed to have assumed the risk.—FRY v. QUEBEC HARBOUR COMRS. (1896), Q. R. 5 Q. B. 340.—CAN.

55. ——— Honorary treasurer of club.]—

Deft., the honorary treasurer of a club, received on a Monday night from the steward of the club £68 in a cigar box, & placed the box containing the money in an unlocked cupboard in his bedroom, covering it over with a piece of curtain. He intended to pay it into the bank on Wednesday according to his usual custom, & as much as £3,000 a year passed through his hands in this way. On Tuesday night he found that the money had been stolen. In an action by the trustees of the club to recover the money:—Held: the loss was not attributable to want of diligence on deft.'s part, & he was not liable.—TROKE v. FELTON (1897), 13 T. L. R. 252.

56. ——— *Bailee must not grossly neglect chattel.]—*In the case of a simple deposit without a reward the law raises only a promise not grossly to neglect or abuse the deposit.—MYTTON v. COCK (1738), 2 Stra. 1099; 93 E. R. 1057.

57. ——— *Mutilation of chattel.]—*A person applying to be employed in a public office deposited with the head of the office a certificate of previous good character, by way of testimonial, & on his ceasing to be so employed, such document was returned to him by the head of the office in a mutilated state:—Held: the head of the office was not prima facie responsible for the mutilation.—TAYLOR v. ROWAN (1835), 7 C. & P. 70; 1 Mood. & R. 490.

58. ——— *—.]—*The proprietor of a metropolitan stage carriage, before returning to a conductor employed by him the licence granted to him under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 86, wrote on the licence words signifying that the conductor had been dismissed from his service for dishonesty. To an action brought by the conductor for thus writing on the licence, complaining that it had been thereby damaged, & rendered of no value to him:—Held: it was no answer for the proprietor to plead, by way of justification, the truth of what he had so written, as the declaration was not based on any libel or slander on pltf., but on the ground that deft. had wrongfully & maliciously damaged & defaced the licence.—ROGERS v. MACNAMARA (1853), 14 C. B. 27; 23 L. J. C. P. 1; 17 Jur. 1166; 2 W. R. 19; 2 C. L. R. 569; 139 E. R. 12.

59. ——— *Evidence of negligence.]—*A. sent his horse, for the night, to B., who turned it out after dark into his pasture field, separated from a field of C. by a fence, which C. was bound to repair. The horse, from the bad state of the fence, fell from one field into the other, & was killed:—Held: (1) B. was a gratuitous bailee, & as such owed it to A.

59 i. ——— *Evidence of negligence.]—*Pltf., a travelling trader, used to bring goods to defts. to sell on commission. On one occasion he requested defts. to keep the purchase money until he should call for it. Defts. put the money with some of their own in a locked drawer in their premises, as they had done before to the knowledge of pltf. Three days later the money was missed, having probably been stolen by a visitor:—Held: defts. as gratuitous bailees had exercised due diligence & were not liable.—WONG KWAU KEE v. THE WOONG THING (1916), 11 Hong Kong, 89.—HONG KONG.

59 ii. ——— *—.]—*Pltf. sent a sow to be served by a boar in charge of his servant, & the sow remaining overnight not to put the horse into a dangerous pasture, & if he did not exercise a proper degree of care he would be liable for any damage which the horse might sustain; (2) turning the horse into a pasture to which it was unused after dark was a degree of negligence sufficient to render B. liable.—ROOTH v. WILSON (1817), 1 B. & Ald. 59; 106 E. R. 22.

60. ——— *—.]—*In an action of detinue against a gratuitous bailee there must be evidence of a wrongful act, or carelessness on his part, leading to the loss. The action for detention supposes that deft. has the document or has wrongfully parted with it.—ROUX v. WISEMAN (1857), 1 F. & F. 45.

*Storage in place other than that agreed on.]—*The captain of a ship, to avoid expense, accepted the gratuitous offer of defts. to tranship some goods temporarily on board one of their vessels. The goods were afterwards, without the consent of the captain, removed to another vessel for the greater convenience of defts., but it was unfit to hold the goods, & they were lost:—Held: either this was such a breach of the bailment as amounted to a trespass, taking the goods to a place to which the owners did not consent to their being taken, or defts. must be taken to have retained the character of bailees subject to the obligation to take reasonable care, which they had not fulfilled.—RONNEBERG v. FALKLAND ISLANDS CO. (1864), 17 C. B. N. S. 1; 4 New Rep. 243; 34 L. J. C. P. 34; 10 L. T. 530; 10 Jur. N. S. 940; 12 W. R. 914; 2 Mar. L. C. 30; 144 E. R. 1.

62. ——— *—.]—*Pltf. let his house to deft., & was allowed by deft. to leave a carriage belonging to him in the coach-house to remain there with deft.'s own carriages. Some weeks after the letting deft. discovered that pltf.'s carriage was infected with moth, & in consequence removed it from the coach-house, where his own carriages were kept, into an outbuilding in which light carts were kept. At the end of the letting pltf. found his carriage damaged by damp & mildew owing to the unsuitability of the building in which deft. had kept it. A verdict for £20 having been found for pltf.:—Held: there was sufficient evidence of negligence on the part of deft. to sustain the verdict.—TURNER v. MERRYLEES (1892), 8 T. L. R. 695.

63. *Act of bailee to prevent injury.]—*Wine, in pipe & bottles, had been deposited by C. for pltf. in deft.'s cellar, by her leave. C. became bkpt., & his assignees claiming the wine, pltf.'s solrs. warned deft., by letter, in Dec., 1826, not to give it up to any person unauthorised by them. Deft. kept the wine, & bottled part of it at, or soon after, the end of 1826, at which time it was becoming injured by remaining in the wood. There was no evidence of any arrangement between pltf. & deft. as to the bottling:—Semble: in these circumstances the bottling was not an improper act by deft.—PHILPOTT v. KELLEY (1835), 3 Ad. & El.

(at deft.'s instance) was put by pltf.'s servant & deft. into a proper sty in a disused labourer's cottage, not belonging to deft. During the night the sow got choked between the bars of the gate of the pigsty:—Held: deft., who acted as a gratuitous bailee, was not guilty of such negligence as to entitle pltf. to recover.—SULLIVAN v. KELLEHER (1896), 30 I. L. T. Jo. 205.—IR.

64. Onus on bailor to prove negligence.]—Pltf. deposited a picture with defts. for safe keeping, & on his asking for its return three years afterwards they were unable to find it. In an action brought by pltf., defts. gave evidence that in their belief the picture, which they had undertaken to take care of without reward, had been burnt in a fire which had occurred on their premises :—Held : the verdict given for pltf. must be set aside & a new trial be had, as there had been nothing more than a prima facie case of negligence against defts., & to make them liable there must be direct evidence of negligence on their part.—POWELL v. GRAVES & Co. (1886), 2 T. L. R. 663.

66. Loss of bailee's own goods.]—A coffee-house keeper having custody of money without reward lost it. He had put it, with a larger sum of money of his own, into his cash-box, which was kept in his tap-room, which had a bar in it, & was open on a Sunday, but the rest of his house, which was inhabited, was not open on Sunday, & the cash-box, with his own & pltf.'s money, had been stolen on that day. In assumpsit the judge left it to the jury whether deft. was guilty of gross negligence, & he told them that the loss of deft.'s own money did not necessarily prove reasonable care. The jury having found for pltf. :—Held : (1) the question of gross negligence was properly left to them ; (2) there was evidence upon which they might find for pltf.—*DOORMAN v. Onus on bailor to prove negligence.]—Pltf. on leaving deft.'s inn, after paying his bill, was allowed to leave a box in the room of the inn used for storing luggage, etc. Pltf. did not call for the box for several weeks afterwards, when it was discovered that it was lost ; there was no other evidence of any negligence in the matter :—Held : pltf. could not recover.—PALIN v. REID (1884), 10 A. R. 63.—CAN.

64 ii. —.]—Pltf., a traveller, asked permission to leave his valise with deft., a hotel-keeper, & on being allowed to do so went away & did not return to lodge in the house. On his return the next day the valise had disappeared. There being no proof of bad faith on the part of the landlord or his servants :—Held : pltf. had no action against the landlord for the loss, as the delivery to him was a dépôt volontaire.—HOLMES v. MOORE (1867), 17 L. C. R. 143.—CAN.

65 i. Onus on bailee—Loss of goods.]—A. sent cotton to B.'s screw-house to be screwed, & it was placed in B.'s godowns. B.'s durwan kept the key of the godowns, dunnage ; no rent was paid room, but on several occasions cotton had been left by for some time in the godowns & removed unscrewed, rent had been paid ; & it was for the mutual interest of both parties that the cotton should be so kept. The custom was that the screwing charges should be paid by the purchasers of cotton, to whom it was delivered by B., by the direction of the vendors. In an action by A. for the non-delivery of some of his cotton :—Held : B. was a gratuitous bailee of the goods & he was only bound to account for the manner in which they had been kept, which he had satisfactorily done.—*MOOLCHAND v. Pltf. left certain engraving plates in the custody of defts., in circumstances which imposed upon them the duty of taking as much care of them as a reasonable man would take in the case of his own goods. While in defts.' custody the plates were taken away by some one & lost. There was no evidence to show how they were taken away, but defts. proved that the plates were kept in a proper place & under the charge of proper persons, & that the arrangements for their safe keeping were reasonably sufficient :—Held : defts. had proved that they had used such care in the custody of the plates as a reasonable man would use in the case of his own property, & they were not liable.—BULLEN v. SWAN ELECTRIC ENGRAVING Co. (1907), 23 T. L. R. 258, C. A.

68. — Injury to goods.]—An agreement was made for the purchase of a pony by pltf. from defts., & it was arranged that the pony should be left in the custody of defts. for some days. While the pony remained in the custody of defts. it was injured, & pltf. claimed to recover damages in respect thereof. Defts. did not show how the injuries were caused, or establish that they had taken reasonable care of the pony :—Held : defts. were liable, inasmuch as they were, as gratuitous bailees, under an obligation to take such care of the pony as a reasonably prudent owner would take of his own property, & they had failed to show that they had taken such care of the pony.—WIEHE v. DENNIS BROTHERS (1913), 29 T. L. R. 250.

During the night a fire consumed the abattoirs & destroyed the meat. The deposit of the meat was not a necessary deposit :—Held : appts. having proved that they had exercised prudent care upon the preservation of the meat, & that the fire had happened without their fault, were not responsible for the loss, & had not to show the origin of the fire.—*COMPAGNIE DE L'UNION DES ABATTOIRS DE MONTREAL v. 75. Rights of finder against all but true owner—Damages—Presumption as to value.]—Pltf., being a chimney sweeper's boy, found a jewel & carried it to the shop of deft., a goldsmith, to know what it was, & delivered it into the hands of the apprentice, who, under pretence of weighing it, took out the stones, & called to the master to let him know it came to three half-pence. The master offered the boy the money, who refused to take it, & insisted to have the thing again, whereupon the apprentice delivered him back the socket without the stones. In trover against the master:—

Held: (1) the finder of a jewel, though he did not by such finding acquire an absolute property or ownership, had such a property as would enable him to keep it against all but the rightful owner, & might maintain trover; (2) several of the trade having been examined to prove what a jewel of the finest water that would fit the socket would be worth, the jury, unless deft. produced the jewel, & showed it not to be of the finest water, should presume the strongest against him, & make the value of the best jewels the measure of their

76. —.]—A finder of a chattel can successfully maintain an action against any person except the true owner, who may dispossess him of it. A person possessed of a chattel has a good title against every stranger, & any one who takes from the possessor having no title in himself is wrongdoer, & cannot defend himself by showing that the real title was in some third person (LORD CAMPBELL, C.J.).

A finder in actual possession of a chattel, the property of another, can recover its value in an action of trover against a wrongdoer who takes from him (CROMPTON, J.).—*JEFFRIES v. 77. Money found in shop.]—A person entering a shop found on the floor a bundle of bank-notes, which had been accidentally dropped there by a stranger. The party who lost them could not be found:—Held: as against every one but the true owner, the property in the notes belonged to the finder & not to the owner of the shop, notwithstanding the finder had, immediately on picking up the bundle, handed it over to the latter, with a view to its being restored to the true owner if he should return, & the owner of the shop had advertised the finding in the newspaper, the finder not having intended to waive his title, & having, before he demanded the notes back, offered to repay the expense of the advertisements, & to indemnify the shopkeeper against any claim.—*BRIDGES v. 78. — Who is a finder.]—Various quantities of tallow, the property of different persons were deposited in warehouses on a bank of the Thames. A fire took place, in consequence of which the tallow melted & flowed down into the main sewers, & thence into the river, from which several portions of it were unwarrantably taken by different persons. A., one of those persons, sold some of it to B., but it was taken from him by the police, & he was charged before a police magistrate with the possession of tallow supposed to have been

70 i. stolen or unlawfully obtained. The magistrate dismissed the charge, but ordered the tallow to be detained, under Metropolitan Police Cts. Act, 1839 (c. 71), s. 29, & it was sold by direction of the Comr. of Police before the twelve months limited by s. 30 of that Act had expired. C. having purchased the tallow from the police:—Held: A. had no property in the tallow entitling him to maintain an action against C. for its conversion.

Possession alone is sufficient to maintain trover or trespass against a wrongdoer who takes property from a person having possession of it. It is not clear that pltf., or the person from whom he purchased this tallow, was a finder of it. He is more in the position of a person who has unlawfully or feloniously, perhaps the latter, obtained possession of it, whereas the term finder means an innocent finder (CROMPTON, J.).—BUCKLEY v. 80. Goods found on land or property—Rights of land or property owner.—The possessor of private land is generally entitled as against the finder to chattels found on the land.

Deft., while cleaning out, under pltf.'s orders, a pool of water on their land, found two rings. He declined to deliver them to pltf., but failed to discover the real owner. In an action of detinue:—Held: pltf. were entitled to the rings.

Where a person has possession of a house or land, with a manifest intention to exercise control over it & the things which may be upon or in it, then if something is found on that land, whether by an employee of the owner or by a stranger, the presumption is that the possession of that thing is in the owner of the locus in quo (LORD RUSSELL OF KILLOWEN, C.J.).—SOUTH STAFFORDSHIRE WATER CO. v. felonious taking, as not being warranted by the purpose, for which it was delivered. If a pocket book containing bank notes was left in the pocket of a coat sent to be mended, & the tailor took the pocket book out of the pocket & the notes out of the pocket book, that is a felony. So, if the pocket book was left in a hackney coach, if ten people were in the coach in the course of the day, & the coachman did not know to which of them it belonged, he acquires it by finding it, but not being intrusted with it for the purpose of opening it; & that is a felony (LORD ELDON, C.).—CARTWRIGHT v. 82. Goods or money found in article bought—Larceny.—A person purchased, at a public auction, a bureau in which he afterwards discovered, in a secret drawer, a purse containing money, which he appropriated to his own use. At the time of the sale no person knew that the bureau contained anything whatever:—Held: if the buyer had express notice that the bureau alone, & not its contents, if any, was sold to him, or if he had no reason to believe that anything more than the bureau itself was sold, the abstraction of the money was a felonious taking, & he was guilty of larceny, in appropriating it to his own use, but if he had reasonable ground for believing that he bought the bureau with its contents, if any, he had a colourable right to the property, & it was no larceny.—MERRY v. 83. Duties of finder—Must not abuse goods found.—When a man comes to goods by trover, he has liberty to take possession of them, but he cannot abuse them, kill them, or convert them to his own use, or make any profit of them, & if he do, it is great reason that he be answerable for the same, but if he lose such goods afterwards, or they be taken from him, then he shall not be charged, for he is not bound to keep them (ANDERSON, J.).

If a man finds my horse, & rides upon him, whereby he becomes lame, or otherwise by excessive travel misuseth him, so as my horse is the worse thereby, he may be ready to deliver me my horse, & yet this action will lie, for such an abusing of the horse is a conversion to his own use (WINDHAM, J.).—VANDRINK & ARCHERS CASE (1590), 1 Leon. 221; 74 E. R. 203.

84. ——— Not liable for decay.—In trover & conversion for six barrels of butter, the count was that they came to the hands of deft. & after the trover they were impaired & decayed by reason of negligent custody:—Held: no action, for he who found goods was not bound to preserve them, but if goods were used & by usage made worse, action would lie.—MOSGRAVE v. by the side of it. When leaving she forgot the brooch, & it was handed by an assistant to the shopwalker, who put it in his desk. On the following Monday morning it could not be found. By defts.' rules it ought to have been taken to their lost property office. In an action by pltf. against defts. for negligence, the judge at the trial found that defts. had not exercised proper care, & he awarded pltf. damages:—Held: there was evidence to support the judge's finding.—NEWMAN v. BOURNE & HOLLINGSWORTH (1915), 31 T. L. R. 209.

87. Finder not bound to take custody of goods found—Must deliver up to owner if he does.]—When a man finds goods, if he dispossesses himself of them, by this he shall not be discharged, for he who finds goods is bound to answer him for them who has the property; & if he deliver them over to any one, unless it be to the right owner, he shall be charged for them, for at the first it is in his election, whether he will take them or not into his custody, but when he has them one only has then right to them, & he ought to keep them safely. If a man finds goods, if he be wise, he will search out the right owner of them, & so deliver them to him; if the owner comes to him, & demands them, & he answers him, that it is not known to him whether he be the true owner of the goods, or not, & for this cause he refuses to deliver them, this refusal is no conversion, if he keeps them for him.—ISAACK v. 89. ———.]—A quantity of timber, placed in a dock on the bank of a navigable river, being accidentally loosened, was carried by the tide to a considerable distance, & left at low water upon a towing path. A. finding it in that situation, voluntarily conveyed it to a place of safety, beyond the reach of the tide at high water:—Held: A. had no lien on the timber for the trouble or expense to which he might have put himself in the carriage of it, but was liable to an action of trover, unless he delivered it up to the owner on demand, though nothing were tendered him by the owner by way of compensation:—Semble: in such a case A. might maintain an action against the owner for a compensation.

It is a case of mere finding, & taking care of the thing found for the owner. This is a good office, & meritorious, at least in the moral sense of the word, & certainly intitles the party to some reasonable recompense from the bounty, if not from the justice of the owner, & of which, if it were refused, a ct. of justice would go as far as it could go, towards enforcing the payment. So it would be in every other case of finding that can be stated, the claim to the recompense differing in degree, but not in principle (EYRE, C.J.).—NICHOLSON v. CHAPMAN (1793), 2 Hy. 92 i. Duty of finder to seek owner—Evidence of negligence.]—R. was employed by the promoters of a political demonstration to drive B. & others to a meeting, but had not been hired by his passengers. B. had a plaid with him in the carriage & left it there. The plaid was not marked, & next day R., not knowing to whom it belonged, took it to the person who had employed him to be delivered to the owner, but it never was delivered & was lost. B. subsequently applied to R., for it, but was received with abusive language:—Held: R. was at most a bailee by finding, & as such was not guilty of any culpable negligence.—RAMSAY v. BELL (1872), 1 P. E. I. 417.—CAN.

93 i. Appropriation by finder—When larceny.]—Prisoner's child found six sovereigns in the street, which she brought to prisoner. The latter counted the money & told some bystanders that the child had found a sovereign & offered to treat them. Prisoner & the child then went down the street to the place where the child had found the money & found a half sovereign & a bag. Two hours afterwards the owner made hue & cry in the vicinity, & on the same evening prisoner was told that a woman had lost money. Prisoner told her informant to mind her own business & gave her a half sovereign for herself. Prisoner admitted on arrest that she had got the money from the child:—Held: these facts did not warrant a conviction for larceny, as there was nothing to show that at the time of finding prisoner had reason to think that the owner could be found.—R. v. DEAVES (1869), 11 Cox, C. C. 227.—IR.

& appropriates them with intent to take the entire dominion over them, really believing, when he takes them, that the owner cannot be found, it is not larceny. Nor is it larceny if, after having so taken them, he obtains knowledge of the ownership, & then appropriates them to his own use, but if he takes goods so lost, or supposed to be lost, reasonably believing at the time of taking that the owner can be found, it is larceny.

The prisoner was indicted for stealing a bank-note. He had picked it up in the road, & meant to appropriate it to his own use, but he had not then any means of ascertaining the owner or any reason to believe that the owner knew where to find it. He afterwards was informed who the owner was, but notwithstanding he changed it & appropriated the money. The jury found that he had reason to believe it to be the prosecutor's property before he changed it:—Held: he was not guilty of larceny.—R. v. THURBORN (1849), 1 Den. 387; T. & M. 67; 18 L. J. ## SECT. 2.—MANDATE.

96. General principle.—The owners trusting him [the bailee] with the goods is a sufficient consideration to oblige him to a careful management. If the agreement had been executory, to carry these brandies from the one place to the other on such a day, deft. had not been bound to carry them. But this is a different case, for assumpsit does not only signify a future agreement, but in such a case as this it signifies an actual entry upon the thing, & taking the trust upon himself, and if a man will do that, & miscarries in the performance of his trust, an action will lie against him for that, though nobody could have compelled him to do the thing (LORD HOLT, C.J.).—*COGGS v. The makers declining to discount the notes, deft. left them with V., to be retained subject to order of the owners. V. deposited the notes in a sealed envelope in the C. Bank at P., but afterwards fraudulently took pltf.'s note from the envelope, got it discounted by the makers, & appropriated the proceeds to his own use. Deft. ascertaining the fact of the failure, or fearing it, went to P. & secured his own note:—Held: deft., being a mandatary, or bailee without reward, had not been guilty of such negligence or misfeasance in dealing with pltf.'s note as to render him liable in an action for the loss resulting from V.'s breach of trust, the evidence showing that deft. had put his own note in the same hazard with that of pltf.—HARRIS

103 v. Onus of proof.—The driver of a conveyance was in the habit of obliging the clerk to a parish council by acting gratuitously as his messenger to & from a bank in a neighbouring town. On one occasion he lost a packet containing a sum of money which had been received by him at the bank for conveyance to the clerk. In an action against him at the instance of the clerk, in which no evidence was led to establish how the loss had occurred:—Held: in executing his commission defender had failed to exercise reasonable care, & was liable. Semble: the onus was on defender to explain the loss or to prove that he had exercised reasonable care.—*COPLAND v. 107. When contract applies.]—A railway co. carried goods on their rail, at mileage rates, stipulating that the owners should unload them at the station. The co. kept a crane at the station, the use of which they allowed gratuitously to such owners, using it themselves when they unloaded goods there. A consignee, while attempting to raise the goods by his own servants & those of the co., requested pltf., who was the servant of neither, to assist, which he was doing when the crane broke & injured him:—Held: the issue on defts.' plea of not guilty must be found for defts. because they had not lent the crane to pltf. at all, nor for the purpose of its being used by pltf.—*BLAKEMORE v. 108. Duties of borrower—Measure of diligence.]—As to the second sort of bailment, viz., commodatum or lending gratis, the borrower is bound to the strictest care & diligence to keep the goods so as to restore them back again to the lender, because the bailee has a benefit by the use of them, so as if the bailee be guilty of the least neglect he will be answerable; as if a man should lend another a horse to go westward, or for a month, if the bailee go northward or keep the horse above a month, if any accident happen to the horse on the northward journey, or after the expiration of the month, the bailee will be chargeable, because he has made use of the horse contrary to the trust he was lent to him under. But if the bailee put the horse in his stable, & he were stolen from thence, the bailee shall not be answerable for him. But if he or his servant leave the house or stable doors open, & the thieves take the opportunity of that & steal the horse, he will be chargeable, because the neglect gave the thieves the occasion to steal the horse.—*COGGS v. 107 i. When contract applies.]—V. having left a watch with pltf. for repair, pltf. loaned to V. a watch to be kept till the repairs were completed. The watch so loaned becoming out of repair, V. took it to debt. for repair. Pltf. learning that his watch was at debt.'s shop, demanded it, but debt. refused it, setting up a lien for repairs:—Held: the loan of pltf.'s watch to V. was a mere gratuitous bailment existing during the mere pleasure of the lender, passing no special property to V. & debt. could not set up any lien for the repairs.—MCDONALD v. STIRSKY (1879), 12 N. S. R. 520.—CAN.

127. — — — Money.—Deft., acting gratuitously in the collection of debts, etc., under a trust deed, mixed the money he received with his own money by placing it in his bankers' hands in his own name & upon his own general account. The bankers were in the habit of paying him interest of 3 per cent. upon money in their hands. T. & Co. transmitted the bills of lading to the M. Bank, who on receiving payment from G. & Co., but not till then, were to indorse them over to G. & Co. G. & Co., with knowledge of those facts, procured pltf.'s station agent on arrival of the hogs there to deliver up the hogs to them, & killed the hogs & mixed the pork & lard made therefrom with other pork & lard in their factory. Subsequently G. & Co. delivered to deft., who was aware of its not having been paid for, the pork & lard, together with other pork & lard, & so mixed as to be indistinguishable except by G. & Co. & their servants. Pltf. claimed the pork & lard so made from the hogs obtained from pltf., & issued writs of replevin therefor. At the time of the issue of the writs the pork continued so mixed with the other pork, & the sheriff, neither deft. nor his servants giving him any assistance in distinguishing it, in executing the writs, unavoidably took some pork not the produce of pltf.'s hogs, but left with deft. an equal quantity in amount & value of pltf.'s pork:—Held: neither G. & Co. nor deft. could set up G. & Co.'s wrongful mixture & confounding of the property in order to defeat pltf.'s right to recover.—*GREAT WESTERN RY. belonged to plffs., & were insured by defts. against the usual perils. In the course of her voyage the ship was wrecked near Key West; all the cotton was more or less damaged; some of it was lost, & some was so damaged that it had to be sold at Key West. The rest of the cotton was conveyed in another vessel to Liverpool. The marks on a very large number of the bales were so obliterated by sea-water that none of the cotton lost or sold at Key West, & a portion only of that carried to Liverpool, could be identified as belonging to any particular consignee. Two only of plffs.' forty-three bales were identified, & they were delivered to plffs.:—Held: in respect of the cotton lost & that sold at Key West, there was a total loss of a part of each owner's cotton, & all the owners became tenants in common of the cotton which arrived at Liverpool, & could not be identified, the share of each owner's loss in the cotton totally lost or sold at Key West, & his share in the remainder which arrived at Liverpool, being in the proportion that the quantity shipped by him bore to the whole quantity shipped according to the rule in cases of general average, where it was not known whose goods were sacrificed.

Where goods are mixed so as to become undistinguishable by the wrongful act or default of one owner, he cannot recover, & will not be entitled to his proportion, or any part of the property, from the other owner; but no authority has been cited to show that any such principle has ever been applied, nor indeed could it be applied, to the case of an accidental mixing of the goods of two owners; & there is no authority nor sound reason for saying that the goods of several persons which are accidentally mixed together thereby absolutely cease to be the property of their several owners, & become bona vacantia (per CUR.). — SPENCE v. UNION MARINE INSURANCE Co., LTD. 132. Mixture by default of shipowner—Shortage of cargo—Consignee's right to unidentified residue.]—Resps.' ship carried a general cargo of jute, shipped under a number of separate bills of lading. Of this cargo applts. shipped eleven parcels, the numbers & marks on which were duly recorded in the margins of the respective bills of lading. The goods shipped under nine of those bills of lading were duly delivered, but of the goods shipped under the remaining two there was a shortage of six bales. Three other consignees also complained of short delivery to the extent of four, eight, & seven bales respectively, & the number of bales delivered to those consignees fell short of the number specified in the respective bills of lading by those amounts. Upon the discharge of the ship eleven bales were found which corresponded to none of the bills of lading. The goods shipped by applts. under the bills of lading in question purported to be of at least two different qualities, & the eleven bales found on the ship did not correspond in quality with any portion of those goods, & there was no evidence to show that any of the eleven bales formed part of the parcels shipped by applts. under the two bills of lading under which there was short delivery:—Held: resps.' contention that where there was a residue of unidentified goods & a shortage in delivery the shipowner could compel the consignees to take the unidentified goods as a pro tanto fulfilment of the contract to deliver failed both in law & on the facts.

It is not a matter of difficulty to define the legal consequences of the goods of A. becoming indistinguishably & inseparably mixed with the goods of B. If the mixing has arisen from the fault of B., A. can claim the goods. He is guilty of no wrongful act, & the possession by him of his own goods cannot be interfered with, & if by the wrongful act of B. that possession necessarily implies the possession of the intruding goods of B., he is entitled to it. But if the mixing has taken place by accident or other cause, for which neither of the owners is responsible, a different state of things arises. Neither owner has done anything to forfeit his right to the possession of his own property, & if neither party is willing to abandon that right, the only equitable solution of the difficulty, & the one accepted by the law, is that A. & B. become owners in common of the mixed property. If a small portion of the goods of B. became mixed with the goods of A. by a negligent act, for which A. alone was liable, it is quite possible that the law would prefer to view it as a conversion by A. of this small amount of B.'s goods, rather than do the substantial injustice of treating B. as the owner of the whole of the mixed mass (LORD MOULTON).—SANDEMAN & SONS v. TYZACK & BRANFOOT S.S. It was agreed that the engine should remain on the boat for a time on the understanding that deft. would endeavour to sell the boat & engine together. In which case the sum of $350 was to go to T. Co. & the balance to H. Co. Deft. carried on business as a ship-broker, & the boat, while lying at his wharf, was damaged in a storm, & partly filled with water. Deft. had insured the boat & made a claim upon the insurance co. as for a total loss, which the co. declined to recognise, but beyond that he took no steps for the protection of the boat or the engine, both of which were eventually lost, & he gave no notice to the co. of the risk to which their property was exposed.—Held: deft. was not a gratuitous bailee, & when the owners of the engine entrusted their property to deft.'s care they had a right to expect that he would hold it with the skill which his profession or occupation implied, & as he had neglected to use such skill, he was responsible in damages for the consequences.—CANADIAN GAS POWER

Bernard*, No. 1, ante, viz., a delivery to carry or otherwise manage for reward to a private person, not exercising a public employment, & he is bound to take reasonable care.

The obligation, to take reasonable care of the thing intrusted to a bailee of this class, involves in it an obligation to take reasonable care that any building in which it is deposited is in a proper state, so that the thing deposited may be reasonably safe in it, but no warranty or obligation is to be implied by law on his part that the building is absolutely safe.—*SEARLE v. No negligence was shown in the construction of the building, or in not discovering the existence of the dry rot, & except therefore the building would have been capable of sustaining the weight put on it.—Held: the owner of the warehouse was not liable for damages sustained to the goods warehoused in the building.—*PAGE v. 138. Special contract.—The rate table of a dock co. contained the following provisions: "Wines & spirits (rum & British spirits excepted) landed in the docks will be chargeable with the following rates. The co. will not be responsible for deficiencies on wines or spirits imported in casks not made of oak, nor on spirits exceeding 20 per cent., overproof, but are answerable for deficiencies in quantity on those contained in other casks housed with the co., beyond one gallon per cask for each year or part of a year the goods shall remain in their custody, provided such deficiencies be claimed of the co. within six months after delivery, & shall be satisfactorily established by the Customs' gauge on landing & delivery . . . Rates & charges on rum . . . When rum is imported in casks made of proper oak, the co. engages to be responsible for deficiencies in measure, which shall exceed one gallon per cask for each year," etc. In an action for loss of brandy housed with the co.:—Held: (1) under the above provisions, they would not be liable for a diminution in alcoholic strength though exceeding one gallon per cask, the deficiency contemplated being a deficiency in actual bulk; (2) if such diminution was caused by their negligence, they were liable apart from contract.—LAMARE v. LONDON & ST. KATHERINE DOCKS CO. (1878), 39 L. T. 330.

139. — Goods stored "at owner's risk."—Cheese was received by defts. "to be stored at owner's risk," & defts. were not to be responsible for damage or loss caused by certain specified matters or "from any other cause whatever." The cheese was kept at too low a temperature, there being want of skill on the part of defts. The trial judge held, as the act was intentionally done, & as, although defts. did not know the consequence of their act, they ought to have known, they were liable:—Held: (1) there was nothing to do away with the owner's risk clause, for although the act was intentionally done that did not amount to wilful misconduct; (2) defts. were not liable.—CORDEY v. CARDIFF PURE ICE CO. (1903), 88 L. T. 192; 19 T. L. R. 256, C. A.

138 i. Special contract.—The owner of a yard, into which cattle were taken on fair days for payment, is liable as a bailee for hire for the safe custody of them, although he had a notice to the contrary hung up in the yard, which was not brought to the knowledge of the owner of the cattle.—*WILLIAMSON v. 141 i. Onus of proof—When bailee must disprove negligence.—The proprietor of a garage is a paid bailee &, as such, is answerable for the loss by fire of an automobile confided to his care, unless he proves that the loss was not due to any fault on his part.—BRUNET v. PAINCHAUD (1915), Q. R. 48 S. C. 59.—CAN.

141 ii. — — — — ——Pltf. left his horse with deft., a livery-stable keeper, for hire, & while under his care it was shorn of its mane & tail:—Held: deft. responsible for such damage, &, without proof to the contrary, the damage would be presumed to have been committed by his servants, or in consequence of their owner's wharf in the Thames under a contract, which exempted the barge-owner from liability "for any damage to goods however caused which can be covered by insurance." While the barge was lying alongside the wharf with the goods on board before being unloaded, the barge-owner's lighterman, who was in charge of the barge, negligently left her unattended at night, & the barge, after taking the ground at low tide, became submerged as the tide rose, & the goods were damaged. In an action against the barge-owner to recover damages for the loss so caused there was no direct evidence as to the cause of the barge being submerged, & the evidence left it in doubt whether the submerging was or was not attributable to the negligent act of deft.'s servant in leaving the barge unattended:—Held: the above term of exemption in the contract relieved deft. from liability for damage caused by the negligence of his servant, & he was entitled to judgment.—TRAVERS (JOSEPH) & SONS, LTD. v. COX (1840), 9 C. & P. 632.

142. — — — — ——A person staying at deft.'s hotel purchased a dog, which was delivered at the hotel & handed by pltf. to defts.' manager, who undertook to take care of it on the premises until the evening. When the evening came the dog was missing:—Held: (1) as the dog was given into the sole custody of defts., & accepted by them as bailees, the onus was upon them to show that they had taken reasonable care of it; (2) as no evidence was adduced by defts. negating negligence on their part, they were liable for the value of the dog.—*PHIPPS v. The fire float sank while being towed in heavy weather, the reason why she sank being unknown, because there was no one on board her, as there ought to have been. The evidence was conflicting as to whether the loss could have been averted if the men had been on board:—Held: deft., as bailee for hire & reward, was bound to show that he took reasonable & proper care for the due security & proper delivery of the bailment, the proof of which rested upon him.

sary for the safety of the thing bailed to him, & which might have prevented the loss. His breach of contract has the additional effect of making it impossible to ascertain with precision, & difficult to discover at all, what was the true cause of the loss. I cannot think it is good law that in such circumstances he should be permitted to saddle upon the parties who have not broken their contract the duty of explaining how things went wrong. It is for him to explain the loss himself, & if he cannot satisfy the ct. that it occurred from some cause independent of his own wrong-doing he must make that loss good (LORD LOREBURN, C.).—*MORISON, POLLEXFEN & BLAIR v. He caused them also to be entered in the clearance & manifest of a steam-vessel about to sail for the Isle of Man. It was proved that on former occasions, when goods had been brought by K. for deft., he had desired that they might remain at the wharf till he sent for them. 160 i. Liability for negligence—Receipt given to shipowner—That goods in apparent good order & condition.]—Two packages of merchandise, consigned by sea to resp., were delivered from the ship to applt. as wharfinger, & a receipt was given by his clerk to the shipowners, whereby the packages were expressed to have been "received in apparent good order & condition, weight, contents, & value unknown." Resp., upon examining the packages, found that some of the goods were missing, & he refused to take delivery of either package, & sued applt. for recovery of their full value & incidental charges. The case in which the missing goods were contained was a "repack" or second-hand case, & was outwardly in good condition when received by the clerk, nor was there any evidence to show whether the interference with the package had taken place while in the possession of the shipowners or applt.:—Held: applt. had not been guilty of negligence affecting resp.'s rights against the shipowners by giving such receipt to the shipowners, & resp. was not entitled to recover from applt. for the goods lost.—R. v. B.'s manager effected the insurance, & the goods subsequently being burned, the insurance co. successfully resisted payment on the ground that the goods were not situate in the premises described by the policies:—Held: B.'s manager, who upon receiving the policies did not examine them when the error in description would have been apparent, failed to exercise that degree of care & diligence, which in the circum-

to whom goods were sent to be shipped, for neglecting to take out a sufferance, which it was part of the wharfinger's duty to obtain, & for want of which the goods were seized:—Held: (1) it was not necessary to aver or prove that the goods were condemned by a sentence in rem; (2) it was sufficient to aver that "for want of such sufferance the goods were seized as forfeited, whereby same became wholly lost to pltf."; (3) proof of a seizure in fact by the officer for a just cause of forfeiture was sufficient to sustain the declaration, as the injury was sustained in consequence of deft.'s negligence.—*BAKER v. 161 i. — Goods not stored in place agreed.]—If a man undertakes for a consideration to take care of the goods of another as a warehouseman, & without authority places them in charge of another warehouseman, he is liable for any loss sustained, even apart from proof of actual negligence. Semble: liability may only be avoided, if the warehouseman can sustain the onus of proving that his breach of contract did not cause the loss.—*GREAT WEST SUPPLY CO. v. 161 ii. — — — — —.]—Furniture was stored in a brick warehouse, but was afterwards removed by the warehousemen, without the owner's consent, to a frame building, part of which was used as a stable:—Held: (1) the warehousemen, in the absence of reasonable precaution to prevent injury therefrom, were liable for injuries caused by rats in the last named building, the existence of which the warehousemen were aware of, & for certain of the goods which were lost, & they were not protected by a condition in the warehouse receipt which relieved them from the responsibility for loss or damage caused by irresistible force, or inevitable accident, or from want of special care or precaution; (2) they were not liable for damages caused by alleged dampness, in that it might have been due to changing temperature, which it did not appear would not have had the same effect in the original place of storage.—*MIALL v. 161 iii. — Evidence of negligence.]—Pltf. landed with his goods in the night at defts.' wharf. Defts.' watchman got the key of their warehouse, & all pltf.'s goods were put into it, except a packing case, for which there was no room. Next day pltf. got all his goods except the case, which was lost. Pltf. was asked by one of defts. to go & look at a box in the town which was thought to be his, not to speak of the loss, & to furnish a list of the things contained in the case:—Held: there was sufficient evidence to go to the jury to charge defts.—*TOWERS v. 161 iv. — — — — —.]—Certain packages were sent from New York addressed to pltf. at Hamilton, to go on by the G. Railway from the Falls. In consequence of a telegram of which deft. knew nothing, the address to Hamilton entered on the bill was struck out, & Toronto substituted, & G. Railway was also struck out, & E. & O. R. R. put in its place, but the address on the packages was left unchanged. They were brought by the E. O. R. R. to Lewiston, & thence shipped to Toronto, where deft., a wharfinger, received them, with an abstract in which they were described as addressed to pltf. at Toronto. Deft., relying on the address to Hamilton, which still remained on the case, shipped them to that place, & they were burned on the passage:—Held: it was properly left to the jury to say whether deft. was guilty of negligence by not going by the address in the abstract instead of that on the packages, & they rightly decided in his favour.—*HUNTER v. The origin of the fire was not shown. Just before the fire, a gasoline tank under the garage was being filled from a tank-wagon in the building, the gasoline being carried from the wagon to the underground tank in buckets of five-gallon measure in contravention of a municipal bye-law:—Held: there was no evidence of anything having been done or left undone by defts. to constitute a breach of the bye-law, & even if there was, a contravention would not constitute negligence.—*BEARS v. 164. Duty to protect bailor's title—Failure to give notice to bailor of adverse claim.]—Pltf., a married woman living apart from her husband, deposited certain goods belonging to her with deft., a warehouseman, the charge to be made by deft. for the storage of the goods being agreed between pltf. & deft. Pltf. gave her address to deft. Pltf.'s husband subsequently went to deft.'s premises & claimed to be the owner of the goods, & upon deft. refusing to deliver them to him except under a magistrate's order, the husband & a representative of deft. attended before a magistrate. Deft.'s representative informed the magistrate that the goods had been deposited with deft. by pltf. & that deft. for his protection required an order of the magistrate that he should deliver the goods to the husband. Thereupon a summons was issued by the magistrate under Metropolitan Police Cts. Act, 1839 (c. 71), s. 40, against deft. Deft. did not give notice to pltf. of the husband's claim to the goods or of the issue of the summons. They also notified pltf. by telegram of the discovery in the bin, but did not themselves examine the remainder of the corn, nor did pltf. ask them to do so. When, on June 3, the corn was run out to be shipped, a quantity of it was found to be in an advanced condition of fermentation:—Held: defts. had been guilty of negligence, & were liable to pltf. for the loss sustained by him.—*DUNN & CO. v. order that deft. should deliver the goods to the husband. Deft. delivered the goods to the husband, & the next day wrote to pltf. informing her that the goods had been removed by order of a magistrate. Pltf. brought an action in the county ct. claiming from deft. the return of the goods or their value, & damages for their detention, & the county ct. judge directed the jury that deft. would be responsible for the loss of the goods if he, by his negligence, allowed the magistrate's order to be made without giving notice to pltf., whose address he knew, of her husband's claim to the goods or asking the magistrate to summon pltf. before him so that she might be heard. The jury found that there was negligence on the part of deft.:—Held: there had been a failure on the part of deft. to fulfil his obligations as a bailee, & he could not rely for protection upon the order made by the magistrate, & pltf. was entitled to judgment.—*RANSON v. to a third person, who is at the same time authorised to fill it up by inserting a given number of parcels, warehouse-keepers are justified in delivering the whole number of parcels appearing on the face of the order, & are not liable in trover, notwithstanding that such third person's authority was limited to a less number of parcels than the actual number he inserted, & that he had fraudulently exceeded his authority by inserting a greater number. It is otherwise where the signed form of order was duly filled up with a certain number of parcels to be delivered before it was intrusted to such person, & he, fraudulently taking advantage of a blank space in the form immediately above the signature of those who intrusted him, has inserted an additional number of parcels.—*UNION CREDIT BANK, LTD. v. 168. — Redelivery to bailor—Measure of damages.—Defts. were in possession of pltf.'s goods as bailees, under orders not to part with them except upon delivery orders signed by pltf's. Defts. parted with the goods upon the order of G., who was pltf.'s agent for the sale but not for the delivery of the goods. Shortly afterwards pltf's. sent a delivery order for the same goods to T., who indorsed it to G., who lodged it with defts. to cover the previous delivery. Afterwards pltf's. being unable to obtain the price of the goods from T., sued defts. for the conversion of the goods, & claimed the full value:—Held: (1) there had been a conversion in respect of which pltf's. were entitled to recover; (2) what had occurred with respect to the delivery order was equivalent to a return of the goods by defts. to pltf's.; (3) (BRAMWELL & THESIGER, L.JJ.) in the circumstances the damages could only be nominal; (4) (BAGGALLAY, L.J.) pltf's. were not entitled even to nominal damages.—*HIORT v. 165 i. Delivery to wrong person.—The contract between a distiller who sends spirits to a bonded warehouse, & the keeper of the warehouse, is a contract of deposit, & the keeper of the warehouse holds the goods for the distiller, not for the purchaser; & he is not entitled to deliver them either to the purchaser, or to anyone else, without authority from the distiller.—*SMITH v. F., for whom the goods were intended, but to whom deft. was directed not to deliver them without payment, paid the duty at the custom house, & obtained a permit to release the goods from the public warehouse, & then got possession of them from deft.'s clerk:—Held: deft. was liable to pltf. for the goods.—GUNNISON v. THOMAS (1861), 5 All. 148.—CAN.

168 i. — Redelivery to bailor.—Pltf. declared that G. had deposited with deft. certain wheat, & obtained from him a warehouse receipt therefor, that by the course of trade such receipt was transferable by indorsement, & the property in the wheat would pass to an indorsee, that G. sold the wheat to pltf., & indorsed to him the receipt, but that, when he presented it to deft., the latter refused to deliver to him the wheat. Deft. pleaded that, before he had any notice or knowledge of such transfer or sale, the wheat was taken out of his warehouse by G.:—Held: a good defence.—GLASS v. WHITNEY (1863), 22 U. C. R. 290.—CAN.

n. Special contract — "Specially binned"—Manitoba Grain Act.—Pltf. delivered wheat to deft.'s elevators, receiving receipts therefor in the form of storage tickets mentioned in Manitoba Grain Act. The agent marked the words "specially binned" on the tickets, but it was shown he had express instructions not to accept any wheat to be specially binned. The amount of wheat shipped from the bins in which pltf.'s wheat was stored was greater than that mentioned in the tickets, & he claimed such wheat:—Held: (1) pltf. was entitled only to delivery in accordance with the Act, when the grain was stored under storage tickets; (2) the indorsement of the words "specially binned" on the ordinary storage receipts would not give any greater privilege than those to which pltf. was entitled under storage tickets.—CASWELL v. WESTERN ELEVATOR CO. (1909)

169 i. Undertaking to transport goods—Liability for non-delivery.—On Apr. 3, 1871, defts. received at M. a case of hats to be carried to T., consigned to pltf's. The goods arrived in due course at T. & were placed in defts.' warehouse, but were not delivered to pltf's. until June 15 following, whereby the sale of the goods was lost, & their value very considerably deteriorated. The goods were carried under the following special condition: "The co. will not be responsible for any goods left until called for or to order, warehoused for the convenience of the parties to whom they belong, or by or to whom they are consigned, & the delivery of the goods will be considered complete & the responsibilities of the co. will be considered to terminate when placed in the co.'s shed or warehouse." It was the custom of defts. to deliver to the consignees goods brought by them & warehoused, & to charge for the cartage in the freight:—Held: the condition would only relieve defts. from liability as common carriers, but not as warehousemen, & being bound in the latter capacity to deliver the goods, they were liable for the loss sustained by the detention.—*MCCROSSON v. Pltfs. gave an order to defts. to cart & deliver the goods to various persons, & in compliance with such order defts. carted & delivered part of the goods. The remainder were destroyed by fire while still at the wharf:—Held: notwithstanding defts. had carried some of the goods at the order of pltfs. they held them while at the wharf as wharfingers & not as common carriers, & in the absence of negligence were not liable for the loss of the goods.—*CHATTOCK & CO. v. He is liable, in the absence of express stipulation, for the safe custody of the goods intrusted to his care; & if the goods are destroyed by fire, he is liable in law for breach of duty in not so carefully attending to the goods that no fire could destroy them. It is no answer on this point to say, "I was not guilty of negligence," because it is negligence not to have prevented accident, & for this purpose it is not necessary to show that he was guilty of actual negligence or actual default; he is liable for not properly taking care of the goods (JESSEL, M.R.).—*NORTH BRITISH & MERCANTILE INSURANCE CO. v. There was also an allegation of a contract by defts. for storage of the goods & delivery to pltf. when requested, & a lack of proper care whereby the goods were lost. The goods were destroyed by fire caused by the negligence of defts.' servants while stored in a building owned by defts.:—Held: (1) as to the goods delivered to A. Co., as the goods were received for carriage under the terms of a special contract which provided that defts. would not be liable for the loss of goods by fire, & that goods stored should be at sole risk of the owners, the cause of action failed, whether founded in tort or on contract; (2) as to the goods delivered to the cos. other than A. Goods of S. & Co. carried by the partners from London to F. under that agreement were deposited in the warehouse at the latter place, & destroyed by accidental fire:—Held: the character of the partnership as carriers was suspended from the time of the arrival of the goods at F. until their delivery to S. & Co., & during such interval they were not liable for the value of the goods burnt.—Re Webb (1818), 2 Moore, C. 177. “Goods left till called for.”—A package of goods was delivered to defts. & another to L. Ry. Co. for carriage to defts.’ station at W., both packages being addressed to pltf. “to be left till called for.” One of the packages arrived at W. on Mar. 24, the other on the 25th. On their arrival they were placed in the station warehouse in the spring. Some sales having been made before navigation opened in the spring, an accidental fire destroyed the remainder, without any default or negligence of defts.:—Held: defts. not responsible.—THIRKELL v. MCPHERSON (1845), 1 U. C. R. 318.—CAN.

175 ii. —[Defts. contracted to carry goods to B., & there to deposit & keep them for pltf., for reward, etc. Pltf. frequently applied for the goods, when the answer was “not arrived.” On May 9 the answer was, “burnt up.” The goods arrived on May 5 or 6, & were stored in a warehouse in defts.’ control, & were burnt on the 8th or 9th, & no notice of arrival was sent to the consignee:—Held: defts.’ liability as common carriers had ceased, & that of warehousemen commenced, & they were not liable.—BOWIE v. BUFFALO, BRANTFORD & GODERICH RY. CO. (1858), 7 C. P. 191.—CAN.

175 iii. —[Under a condition in a railway shipping bill the delivery of goods was to be considered complete, & the responsibility of the co. to terminate, when the goods were placed in the co.’s warehouse at their destination. The goods were carried to the station at the place of delivery & were placed in the co.’s shed there used for the purpose of storing goods, where they were subsequently destroyed by fire. The station was some five miles distant from the village where pltf.’s place of business was:—Held: after the goods were placed in the shed the co.’s liability was at an end.—RICHARDSON v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. CO. (1890), 19 O. R. 369.—CAN.

175 iv. —[Although the stat. law of Canada prevents a railway co. from relieving itself from liability for damage caused by fire arising from any negligence or omission of it or its servants, still such a condition, when the damage arises otherwise than from any negligence or omission of the co. or its servants, is valid, & there is no law in Canada requiring that such a condition shall be just & reasonable.

Goods arrived on Apr. 21, notice of their arrival was given to the owner on the same day, & they were destroyed on the 26th:—Held: the owner had a reasonable time within which to remove the goods, & not having done so, defts. were not liable.—McMORRIN v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. CO. (1901), 21 C. L. T. 292; 1 O. L. R. 561.—CAN.

175 v. —[Defts. between Apr. 30 & May 4 received goods from pltf. for carriage to Q. The goods arrived at Q. from day to day between the 5th & noon of May 12, & were apparently on the same days put in defts.’ freight sheds; they were destroyed by fire on May 13. Pltf.’s agent at Q. was aware each day of the arrival of the goods:—Held: defts.’ duties as common carriers had ceased before the fire, & they were liable, if at all, only as warehousemen.—WALTERS v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. CO. (1887), 1 Terr. L. R. 88.—CAN.

175 vi. —[When a shipper stores goods from time to time in a railway warehouse, loading a car when a car-load is ready, the responsibility of the railway co. in respect of such of the goods as have not been specifically set apart for shipment is not that of carriers but of warehousemen, & in case of their accidental destruction by fire the shipper has no remedy against the co.—*MILLOY v. 175 vii. —[Goods were to be delivered from the ship’s tackles as fast as the steamer could discharge, failing which the agents were to be at liberty to land the goods at their godowns. The steamer, on arrival, commenced unloading at the custom-house godowns without giving the consignees the option of landing the goods from the ship’s tackle. The consignees did not object to the goods being landed at the godowns, & they paid a sum for the wharfage of a part of the goods in their godowns:—Held: if the goods were in the possession of the shipowners as wharfingers, they were not liable for loss of the goods by fire, as the goods were destroyed by fire without any default on their part.—*CHIN HONG & CO. v. to await their being called for. Defts. did not know the address of pltf., who travelled about the country with drapery goods. The goods had not been called for when, on the morning of Mar. 27, a fire having accidentally broken out, the warehouse was burned down & the goods were consumed by fire. Pltf. on the same day after the fire called for the goods &, not receiving them, brought actions against defts. as common carriers to recover their value:—Held: after the interval of time which pltf. had suffered to elapse since the arrival of the goods, the liability of defts. as common carriers in respect of the goods had ceased, & they had become mere warehousemen of them, & the actions were not maintainable in the absence of any evidence of negligence on the part of defts.—*CHAPMAN v. 175 viii. —Goods delivered to carrier at season when carriage impossible.—[Pltf. sent his goods to defts., common carriers, at a season when they could not be forwarded, & defts. received them into their store to be forwarded at the earliest opportunity. Before the navigation had opened, the goods were destroyed in defts.’ storehouse without their default, by an accidental fire:—Held: it was a question for the jury whether defts. received the goods as carriers or warehousemen, & the circumstances of the navigation being closed by the ice every year at the season of the receipt of the goods, & also at the time of the fire, did not necessarily determine, as a matter of law, that defts. must be looked upon as having acted in their character of warehousemen only.—HAM v. MCPHERSON (1842), 6 O. S. 360.—CAN.

r. Accidental destruction—Goods delivered to carrier at season when carriage impossible.—[Pltf. loaded defts.’ vessel, which was frozen in the ice, with a cargo of peas, to be carried in the vessel on the opening of navigation to K. While the goods were on board the vessel struck a sunken rock, which caused her to sink, damaging the cargo:—Qu.: whether defts. were responsible as carriers, or as warehousemen.—CLUNTON v. DICKSON (1876), 27 C. P. 170.—CAN.

s. —Before carriage commenced.—[Pltf. purchased tickets from a railway co. on Dec. 23, & checked their baggage through, but delayed their journey until the next day. On the morning of Dec. 25, at 9 o’clock an explosion occurred in the baggage room, caused by two sections of defts.’ hot water heater or boiler giving way, & causing damage to pltf.’s trunk & contents:—Held: even though defts. were chargeable as warehousemen, they were not liable, as the accident was not due to negligence on their part.—CARLISLE v. GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. (1912), 20 O. W. R. 860; 25 O. L. R. 372; 3 O. W. N. 510; 1 D. L. R. 130.—CAN.

carriage or other charges thereon, or the general lien, as the case might be, together with warehouse rent & expenses." The carrier had often before carried goods for A., but no goods of his had before lain in the carrier's warehouse:—Held: the carrier was not, in these circumstances, a mere gratuitous bailee of the goods at the time of their loss; & A. might recover against him the value of the goods, on a declaration in assumpsit alleging that they were delivered to deft. to be safely kept for pltf. for certain reasonable compensation & reward to be therefor paid by him.

A party may have so large a compensation as a carrier as to be sufficient also to remunerate him for acting as a warehouseman, as is the case with many canal cos., & it is quite consistent with both these characters that he will for a certain time, until further orders, or for a reasonable time, keep the goods, considering the general remuneration for carrying sufficient to cover this risk also (LORD ABINGER, C. B.).—CAIRNS v. ROBINS (1841), 8 M. & W. 258; 10 L. J. Ex. 452; 151 E. R. 1034.

179. ———.]—Pltf. deposited between three & four tons of hops at a warehouse at M., belonging to deft., who carried on the business of a wharfinger & carrier there, on the terms that they should be conveyed by deft.'s barges to London, when pltf. should direct, at the usual freight, & that, in the meantime, they should be kept by deft. without charge for warehousing. The hops remained in the warehouse for about thirteen months; & then, upon pltf.'s order, deft. conveyed them to London. On their arrival, it was discovered that they had been damaged by mice while in deft.'s custody: Held: the advantage of carrying the hops for hire might be considered as payment for the warehousing, & deft. was not a gratuitous bailee, & was liable in an action for not keeping the hops safely.—WHITE v. HUMPHERY (1847), 11 Q. B. 43; 10 L. T. O. S. 183; 12 Jur. 417; 116 E. R. 391.

180. Limitation of liability by notice.]—Pltf. was consignee of some flax sent by defts.' railway to N. station. On its arrival at N. station, defts. sent to pltf. an advice-note of its arrival, requiring him to remove it, & stating that they, defts., would hold it "not as common carriers, but as warehousemen, at owner's sole risk, & subject to the usual warehouse charges." Soon after the receipt of this notice, pltf. went to the station & removed two tons of the flax, but left the rest at the station for more than two months. There were no warehouses at the station, & the flax remained on open ground insufficiently covered, & became damaged by wet. In an action for the damage it was admitted that if defts. were bound to take reasonable care of the flax they had not done so:—Held: (1) treating the advice-note acquiesced in by pltf. as a contract, the terms of it, taken altogether, did not exempt defts. from all liability for negligence, & they were bound to take reasonable care of the goods as bailees for hire; (2) defts. were liable.—MITCHELL v. LANCASHIRE & YORKSHIRE RY. CO. (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 256; 44 L. J.

180 i. Limitation of liability by notice.]—Railway cos. storing goods on their arrival, & making a charge therefor, are bailees for hire, & a notice by them to the consignees, stating that the goods have arrived & that the co. would not be responsible for any damage caused by fire, the act of God, civil commotion, vermin or deterioration in quantity or quality by storage or otherwise, will not relieve them from their responsibility as such bailees, though their responsibility had ceased as carriers.—GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. v. GUTMAN (1871), 3 R. L. 452.—CAN.

180 ii. ———.]—On the back of the request note & shipping receipt given & received by pltf. on the shipment of goods from M. to T., & the freight advice-note received by him on the arrival of the goods at T., & specially referred to on the face thereof respectively, were a number of conditions under the heading: "General notices & conditions of carriage," one of which was that the co. should not be liable for any goods left until called for or to order, or warehoused for the convenience of the parties to whom they belonged, etc., & that the warehousing of all goods would be at the owner's risk & expense. On the arrival of the goods at T. they were placed in defts.' warehouse there, & pltf., on receipt of the freight advice-note, called at the warehouse, & obtained permission to leave them there, nothing being said about storage. The goods were subsequently lost.—Held: pltf. could not recover.—MAYER v. GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. (1880), 31 C. P. 248.—CAN.

180 iii. ———.]—One of the conditions in a contract to carry goods to P., a place beyond the terminus of the co.'s line, provided that the co. "should not be responsible for any loss, misdelivery, damage or detention that might happen to goods sent by them, if such loss, misdelivery, damage or detention occurred after the goods arrived at the stations or places on their line nearest to the points or places which they were consigned to, or beyond their limits":—Held: the loss having occurred after the goods had been delivered at P., the liability of the co. as carriers had ceased, & the condition reduced the contract to one of mere bailment, & exempted the co. from liability as warehousemen.—GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. v. McMILLAN (1889), 16 S. C. R. 543.—CAN.

180 iv. ———.]—Goods were carried on a bill of lading issued by a railway co., which contained an express provision that owners should incur all risk of loss of goods in charge of the co., as warehousemen. The goods were destroyed by fire, while stored in a warehouse belonging to the railway co.:—Held: such condition was a reasonable one, as the co. only undertook to warehouse goods of necessity & for convenience of shippers.—LAKE ERIE & DETROIT RIVER RY. CO. v. SALES (1896), 26 S. C. R. 663.—CAN.

180 v. ———.]—Goods sent to pltf., were stored upon arrival in the railway station, & notice was given to pltf. of their arrival & of the charge that would be made for their storage. The notice contained a clause that the goods would be "at owner's risk" while stored. The goods were burnt:—Held: the goods were at owner's risk, & pltf. could not recover their value.—ANDERSON v. REID (1900), 8 Nfld. L. R. 372.—NFLD.

180 vi. ———.]—Defts. let to the pltf. a storage hulk, & pltf. undertook to supply frozen sheep to be stored therein for shipment, paying a stipulated rate for the storage, etc. Defts. undertook to provide engineers, coal, etc. The contract provided that no responsibility in any way whatsoever, or claim for damage, should be recognised by defts. It was further provided that defts. should not be held responsible for any loss or damage while the hulk was in harbour. The sheep were put on board by pltf. but the manipulation on board was done by defts., pltf. having an inspector present who superintended the handling of the sheep. By the negligence of deft.'s servants the sheep were injured by the influx of water into the hold while the hulk was in harbour:—Held: (1) defts. were not common carriers; (2) the hulk must be looked upon as a store & not a ship; (3) damage to the sheep was within the conditions limiting the responsibility of the defts.—CANTERBURY FROZEN MEAT & DAIRY EXPORT CO., LTD. v. t. Goods warehoused pending customs examination.]—A transatlantic shipping co., which, after arrival of the ship, consents to keep a traveller's effects until they have been examined by the custom house officers, & puts them into its sheds, is liable as carrier who has become bailee by necessity.—DAVIDSON v. CANADA SHIPPING CO. (1890), 19 R. L. 558.—CAN.

v. Goods loaded at port.]—By the custom of the port of Bombay the master of a ship was not bound to wait fifteen days before commencing to land his cargo, but within a reasonable time after the arrival of his ship, forty-eight hours in the case of a sailing vessel, & somewhat less in the case of a steamer, he was at liberty to land goods if the consignee had not sent boats for them: & such landing of the goods & setting them apart for the consignee did not constitute a delivery of them to the consignee, but such goods, after being so landed, continued in the possession of the master:—Qu.: whether, in the special circumstances of the case, the goods, when so landed, remained in the custody of the master in his capacity of common carrier or as a warehouseman.—HONG KONG & SHANGHAI BANKING CORPN. v. BAKER (1870), 7 Bom. O. C. 186.—IND.

x. Notice by carrier to remove goods.]—Coals were consigned to a railway co. & arrived at their destination. Notice was sent to the owner that the coals had arrived & lay at the station at his risk, & requesting pltf. to remove them from the trucks. By the direction of a servant of pltf., the coals were placed on a siding next pltf.'s yard, but after nine days were emptied by defts. out of the trucks in which they lay on to a place at the side of the railway, where they were much injured & rendered almost useless:—Held: the notice to pltf. to remove the goods amounted to a constructive delivery, & defts.' duty as common carriers was fully performed, & there being no count in trover, pltf. could not recover against the co. as common bailees.—BRADSHAW v. IRISH NORTH WESTERN RY. CO. (1873), 7 I. L. T. Jo. 158. IR.

182. Season-ticket holder travelling to wrong station.—A season-ticket holder on a railway between B. & K. gave his bag, which was otherwise unlabelled, at B., to a porter, & saw it labelled for K., & put on to a barrow with other luggage to be put into the train. Contrary to the terms on which he held his season ticket he travelled in the train as far as C., an intermediate station, where he got out, & he continued his journey to K. by the next train. On his arrival at K. his bag was missing, & he thereupon sued the railway co. for its value. Qu. whether, in the above circumstances, from the stations of C. to K., the liability of the co. was higher than that of gratuitous bailees.—CUTLER v. 183. Measure of damages.—A commercial traveller deposited in depts.' waiting-room a case of patterns, which was lost. In an action against depts. as warehousemen for negligence:—Held: there was no undertaking on the part of warehousemen to be answerable beyond the actual value of the article, except by special contract, & pltf. could not recover damages beyond the actual value of the article lost.—ANDERSON v. NORTH EASTERN RY. CO. (1861), 4 L. T. 216; sub nom. HENDERSON v. NORTH EASTERN RY. CO., 9 W. R. 519.

184. Measure of diligence.—Resps. delivered a dog to applts. for carriage on their railway. Applts. received it, not as common carriers, but as ordinary bailees. The dog was delivered with a collar on it & a strap attached thereto. During the journey there was a change of trains; for security during the interval of change applts. fastened the dog up by means of the strap, & the dog slipped through the collar, got on to the railway, & was killed:—Held: applts. were not liable.

It is found as a fact that the co. were not common carriers of dogs, so as to have an absolute responsibility imposed on them to carry dogs. Consequently the co. were, with reference to the dog in question, in the position of ordinary bailees, & only liable for its loss in the event of negligence on their part, & would not be liable if its loss was by reason of negligence of the person who delivered the dog to the co. SUB-SECT. 4.—BOARDING-HOUSE KEEPERS.

185. Liability for negligence of servants.—Declaration, that deft., being a boarding-house keeper, received pltf. with her baggage, for reward, as a guest in deft.'s house, on the terms (inter alia) that deft. should "take due & reasonable care" of pltf.'s baggage while in the house. Breach, that by negligence of deft. & her servants pltf.'s baggage was lost. Pleas, not guilty, & a traverse of the receipt on those terms. On the trial, it appeared that pltf. was received, with her baggage, as a guest, but nothing was expressed as to the care to be taken of the goods. The goods were stolen from the house whilst pltf. was a guest, & there was evidence that the theft was facilitated by deft.'s servant having left the front door ajar, & there was also some evidence that deft. was aware of habitual negligence of the servant in that respect. The trial judge told the jury that a boarding-house keeper was bound to take due & reasonable care about the safe-keeping of the guest's goods, which he explained to be such care as a prudent housekeeper would take of the house for the purpose of protecting her own goods, that the leaving the door ajar might be a want of such care, but that deft. was not answerable for such negligence in the servant, unless she had herself been guilty of some negligence, as in keeping such a servant with knowledge of his habits. A verdict was given for deft. on the plea of not guilty, & for pltf. on the other plea:—Held: (1) a boarding-house keeper was not bound to keep a guest's baggage safely, to the same extent as an innkeeper, but she undertook, by implication of law although nothing was expressed, to take due & proper care of a guest's baggage, & neglecting to take due care of the outer door might be a breach of such duty, & so far the direction was right; (2) (ERLE & WIGHTMAN, JJ.) unless deft. herself was guilty of negligence, the act of the servant, in leaving the door ajar, was not one for which deft. was responsible, it not being a neglect of any public duty which was owing to pltf., & not being a breach of a contract between pltf. & deft., but merely negligence of the servant towards his mistress, & the direction was right; (3) (LORD CAMPBELL, C.J., & COLERIDGE, J.) the act of the servant was, in the circumstances, the act of deft., & there was no distinction between the personal negligence of deft. & that of her servant in her employment, deft. being equally answerable for both, & the direction was wrong.—DANSEY v. RICHARDSON (1854), 3 E. & B. 144; 23 L. J. Q. B. 217; 18 Jur. 721; 2 C. L. R. 1442; 118 E. R. 1095; subsequent proceedings, 3 E. & B. 722.

187. Liability for theft by inmate.]—Pltfs. became boarders in a boarding-house kept by deft. They informed deft.'s manager that they had property which they wished to keep under lock & key, & asked for a key of their bedroom door. They were told by the manager that a second key could not be supplied, & that they must not remove the key from the lock, as it was required for the purpose of giving the servants access to the room, & that the room would be quite safe as the people in the house were all known. On a subsequent occasion pltfs. again became boarders in deft.'s boarding-house, & occupied the same bedroom, in which a chest of drawers had in the meantime been placed. They asked the manager for a key of the chest of drawers, but none was supplied. The female pltf. having left some jewellery in a locked handbag in one of the drawers, it was stolen by another inmate of the house, who had been admitted as a boarder without references, or introduction, or inquiry concerning him, & who turned out to have been previously convicted of theft. In an action by pltfs. against deft. for the loss of the jewellery :—Held : (1) (COLLINS, M.R., & MATHEW, L.J.) there was a duty on the part of a boarding-house keeper to take reasonable care for the safety of property brought by a guest into his house & evidence for the jury of a breach of that duty; (2) (ROMER, L.J.) there was a duty on the part of a boarding-house keeper to carry on his business with reasonable care, having regard to the nature & normal conduct of the business, as known to the guest, or as represented to the guest by him, & evidence of a breach of that duty whereby pltfs.' property was lost.—*SCARBOROUGH v. 188. Not a guarantor.]—It is the duty of a boarding-house keeper to take reasonable care that the door of the premises should be kept shut, in order to prevent the entry of thieves, but such duty does not amount to a guarantee that the door will be kept shut (COLERIDGE, J.).—PATERSON v. NORRIS (1914), 30 T. L. R. 393.

ceeded to the cloak-room for his luggage, but found no one in attendance, & in consequence of delay in obtaining his luggage he missed the train by which he intended to leave the station :—Held : the luggage was not deposited with the co. as ordinary warehousemen, but the contract on the part of the co. was to deliver the luggage at a reasonable time on a reasonable request, & pltf. was entitled to a verdict.—STALLARD v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1862), 2 B. & S. 419; 31 L. J. Q. B. 137; 26 J. P. 548; 8 Jur. N. S. 1076; 10 W. R. 488; sub nom. STANNER v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO., 6 L. T. 217; 121 E. R. 1129.

190. Company not responsible for package over £10—Loss by negligence of company's servant.]—Pltf., a passenger by defts.' railway, on arriving at their terminus, deposited in the cloak-room there a bag containing wearing apparel & jewellery to a value considerably exceeding £10, receiving as a voucher a ticket, on the back of which was printed the following notice :—“The co. will not be responsible for articles left by passengers at the station, unless same be duly registered, for which a charge of 2d. per article will be made, & a ticket given in exchange, & no article will be given up without production of the ticket, or satisfactory evidence of the ownership being adduced. A charge of 1d. per diem, in addition, will be made on all articles left in the cloak-room for a longer period than twenty-four hours. The co. will not be responsible for any package exceeding the value of £10.” A similar notice printed in large characters was posted up in the office, but pltf. swore that she did not see it. She was not asked whether or not she had seen the notice on the back of the ticket, but she produced it when she applied for the bag. Through the negligence of the co.'s servants, part of the contents of the bag was abstracted whilst it was in their custody :—Held : the co., having received the deposit, not as carriers, but as ordinary bailees, upon the terms contained in the printed notice, which pltf., having the means of ascertaining them, must be taken to have consented to be bound by, were not responsible for the loss, & the case was neither within Carriers Act, 1830 (c. 68), nor Railway & Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (c. 31).—*VAN TOLL v. 191. Delay in delivery.]—Where an article deposited in the cloak-room of a railway co. exceeds £10 in value, a notice on the ticket given to the depositor that “the co. will not be responsible for any package exceeding the value of £10” protects the co. from liability, not only for the loss of such an article, but also for delay in delivering it, at least where the delay is caused by no wilful act or default of the co., & without their privity or knowledge.—*PEPPER v. #### PART III. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 5.

b. Liability for loss.]—A bag, containing £10 in money, was deposited in the cloak-room of a railway co.'s station.

The owner paid 1d., & obtained a ticket acknowledging the receipt of the bag, but not containing any conditions restrictive of the co.'s liability. He did not inform the clerk in charge of the cloak-room that the bag contained money. There was not any negligence in the manner in which the bag was fastened. The money having been abstracted while the bag was in the cloak-room :—Held : the railway co. were liable for the amount.—ROCHE v. CORK, BLACKROCK v. PASSAGE RY. CO. (1889), 24 L. R. 192 i. “Company not responsible for package over £5”—Loss of luggage left in vestibule.]—A passenger on his arrival at a railway station in the evening left a trunk with the porter at the left posited with a clerk of depts. at their cloak-room, & the person depositing it received a ticket, which was headed "Luggage & cloak office," & on the face of which was printed, in type easily legible, "left, subject to the conditions on the other side. This ticket to be given up when the luggage is taken away." On the other side, after a statement of the "sums to be paid for warehousing passengers' luggage," there was a notice that "the co. will not be responsible for loss of, or injury to, any package beyond the value of £5, unless at the time of the delivery of such package the true value & nature thereof shall have been declared, & a sum at the rate of 1d. per pound sterling be paid in addition to the before-mentioned ordinary warehouse charges. The co. will not be responsible for loss of, or injury to, articles except left in the cloak-room." The value of each package was more than £5, but no declaration of value or additional payment was made. The person who deposited the luggage knew that there were conditions on the back of the ticket, but did not know what those conditions were. The luggage was not put by depts.' servants into the cloak-room, but was left in a vestibule, without any other protection, & was stolen owing to that negligence of depts.' servants:—Held: (1) the luggage must be taken to have been deposited subject to the conditions on the back of the ticket; (2) (LUSH, J., diss.) the conditions were applicable to the loss, & protected depts., although the luggage was not deposited in the cloak-room.—HARRIS v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 515; 45 L. J. Q. B. 729; 34 L. T. 647; 40 J. P. 628.

193. Misdelivery to third party.—The owner of a bag exceeding the value of £5 deposited it for safe custody in a railway station cloak-room, paying 2d. & receiving a ticket with the following condition, of which he had notice, upon it: "The co. are not to be answerable for loss or detention of, or injury to, any article or property exceeding the value of £5 unless at the time of its delivery to them the true value & nature thereof be declared by the person delivering same, & a sum, at the rate of 1d. for every 20s. of the declared value be paid for such article of property for each day, or part of a day, for which same shall be left, in addiluggage office, & in return for it got a receipt, bearing on the face "the co. only receive the within-mentioned articles upon the condition expressed on the back of this ticket." One of the conditions was that when any "article deposited in the co.'s cloak-room or warehouse" exceeding the value of £5 was lost the co. would not be liable, unless, at the time when the package was delivered, its true value was declared, & a corresponding additional charge paid. A notice to the same effect was likewise posted inside the office. Owing to the press of traffic the trunk was left by the co.'s officials upon the station platform, immediately outside the left luggage office, & disappeared. The value exceeded £5, & had not been declared:—Held: the railway co. were liable for the loss, as they were not in a position to enforce the condition above specified, the article not having been "deposited in the co.'s cloak-room or warehouse."—HANDON v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO. (1880), 7 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 966.—SCOT.

192 ii.—A commercial traveller deposited a hamper of goods of the value of £84 at the left luggage office of a railway co., & received a left luggage ticket therefor. The ticket bore on the face of it a notice that the co. only received articles upon the conditions printed on the back of the ticket. One of the conditions was that the co. would not be responsible for the loss of any article left for custody when the value of it exceeded £5, unless, at the time of delivery, the true value was declared & a special rate paid. The value of the hamper was not declared nor was the special rate paid. The traveller was aware of the notice on the ticket, but denied that he had read the condition on the back. Owing to press of traffic the hamper was not placed by the co.'s servants in the left luggage office, but was left outside on the platform & was lost:—Held: (1) the hamper was deposited subject to the conditions printed on the ticket; (2) the value being over £5 & not having been declared, the railway co. were not liable tion to the above-mentioned charge." The bag was delivered by mistake by a servant of the co. to a wrong person & never recovered. In an action by the owner to recover from the co. the value of the bag:—Held: as the word "loss" in Railway & Canal Traffic Act, 1854 (c. 31), s. 7, the words of which were followed by the condition to be construed, included "misdelivery" the word "loss" in the condition must be construed as having the same meaning, & judgment must be entered for depts.—SKIPWITH v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1888), 59 L. T. 520; 4 T. L. R. 589.

194. — Damage while in cloak-room.—A condition upon a cloak-room ticket issued by a railway co., that they "will not be responsible for any package exceeding the value of £10," protects the co. from liability, not only for the loss of an article deposited in the cloak-room, but also for damage or injury thereto while in their custody.—PRATT v. SOUTH EASTERN RY. CO., [1897] 1 Q. B. 718; 66 L. J. Q. B. 418; 76 L. T. 465; 45 W. R. 503; 13 T. L. R. 326, D. C.

195. Receiving or booking-office—Liability for loss—Proof of negligence.—In an action by the consignor of goods against the proprietor of a general booking-office for the transmission of parcels by coach, etc., charging negligence, whereby the consignor lost his goods, it is not sufficient to prove that they never reached their destination nor were accounted for. The office-keeper's duty is to deliver to a carrier, & some evidence must be given showing specifically a breach of that duty.

A tradesman, having made up goods by order, delivered them at a booking-office, with the customer's address, & booked them, paying a fee of 2d., to be forwarded to him, not specifying any particular conveyance, & no particular mode of transmission having been pointed out by the customer:—Qu. whether the consignor could maintain an action against the office-keeper for a negligent loss of the goods while under his charge.—GILBART v. DALE (1836), 5 Ad. & El. 543; 2 Har. & W. 383; 1 Nev. & P. K. B. 22; 6 L. J. K. B. 3; 111 E. R. 1270.

Annotation:—Folld. Mid. Ry. Co. v. Bromley (1856), 17 C. B. 372.

196. Power to limit liability by notice—Receiving-house keeper.—A keeper of a booking-house cannot set up a notice, that he will not be answerable for goods, if above a certain value, as a defence against the effect of negligence in himself or his servants.

Deft. kept a house for the purpose of receiving trunks, to be conveyed by carriers. Pltf. delivered a trunk, containing wearing apparel, to be delivered at S., & paid 2d. for booking fee. There was a notice at the house, stating that deft. would not be for the loss.—LYONS & CO. v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO. [1909] S. C. 1185.—SCOT.

195 i. Receiving or booking office—Liability for loss.—Deft. was pltf.'s agent to book & receive parcels to be forwarded by pltf.'s post carts. For this service he received remuneration. A box of specie was delivered by a bank to deft. to be forwarded by the post cart. The deft. handed the box to his servant for delivery to the post cart driver. The servant instead of so delivering the box, stole it:—Held: deft. was negligent, & liable to pltf. for the loss of the box. Semble: though deft. received remuneration he was not a mere depositary, but also a mandatary, whose duty it was to deliver parcels received to the driver of pltf.'s carts, & as such, would be liable to make good any loss sustained through any default either of himself or of his servants, however slight.—THOMAS v. BENNING (1878), Buch. 16.—S. AF.

answerable for goods above the value of £5, unless specially paid for. The trunk was lost & pltf. sued deft., who relied on the effect of the notice:—Held: the notice did not assist deft., as he was not in the situation of a carrier, or of an insurer.

Notice does not protect a carrier against negligence, & deft. can only be liable for negligence. Not being bound to receive parcels at all, deft. may by contract limit his responsibility, but he must give distinct notice to that effect (BEST, C.J.).—NEWBORN v. JUST (1825), 2 C. & P. 76.

197. — Railway cloak-room.]—Where a person delivers a parcel at the cloak-room of a railway co., & receives a ticket with conditions on the back limiting the co.'s liability, he is not bound if he does not know there is writing on the ticket; but if he knows there is writing containing conditions he is bound; if he knows there is writing, but does not know it contains conditions, he is bound, if, in the opinion of the jury, reasonable notice is given that it contains conditions.

Pltf. delivered a parcel of a value exceeding £10, at defts.' cloak-room, paid 2d., & received a ticket, on which were the words "see back." On the back was a condition that defts. would not be responsible for packages exceeding the value of £10. The parcel was lost, & pltf. sued for its value. The jury were asked whether pltf. knew of the condition, & whether he was under any obligation in the exercise of reasonable caution to make himself aware of it. They answered in the negative, & found for pltf.:—Held: (1) (MELLISH & BAGGALLAY, L.J.J.) there was a misdirection, & there must be a new trial; (2) (BRAMWELL, L.J.) judgment should have been entered for defts.—PARKER v. SOUTH EASTERN RY. CO., GABELL v. SAME (1877), 2 C. P. D. 416; 46 L. J. Q. B. 768; 36 L. T. 540; 41 J. P. 644; 25 W. R. 564, C. A.

198. — Repository for sale.]—Where a person delivers goods for sale to the proprietor of a sale repository, & accepts without objection a receipt, containing the words "subject to the conditions as exhibited upon the premises," he is bound by these conditions, whether he reads the receipt or not.

Pltf. delivered to deft., the proprietor of a repository for sale on commission of horses, carriages, & harness, a waggonette, & received a printed receipt containing in italics the words "subject to the conditions as exhibited on the premises." The conditions set out the charges made, & contained a clause giving deft. liberty to sell by public auction, with or without notice, any property left for more than a month, unless all expenses were previously paid. Pltf. did not read the receipt, & mislaid it for some months. Deft. having sold the waggonette under the conditions, pltf. brought an action to recover its value. At the trial the jury being directed that the question was whether deft. had or had not given pltf. reasonable notice of the conditions, found for pltf.:—Held: (1) the case was within the rule that where a common form stating terms of a proposed contract was delivered by one contracting party to another & accepted without objection, he was bound by its contents, whether he read it or not unless (a) the nature of the transaction was such that he might reasonably suppose that the document contained no terms, or (b) there was fraud, or (c) the document was misleading, & did actually mislead, or (d) the conditions were unreasonable; (2) the jury were misdirected, the question being whether deft. took reasonable means to give notice of the conditions to pltf., & that being a question of fact, to which on the undisputed facts of the case, by law one answer only would be given, it was the same thing as a question of law, & judgment must be entered for deft.—WATKINS v. the other contracting party intends to apply the subject-matter of the contract to an immoral purpose cannot recover upon the contract; it is not necessary that he should expect to be paid out of the proceeds of the immoral act.

Deft., a prostitute, was sued by *pltf.*s., coach-builders, for the hire of a brougham. There was no evidence that *pltf.*s. looked expressly to the proceeds of deft.'s prostitution for payment, but the jury found that they knew her to be a prostitute, & supplied the brougham with a knowledge that it would be, as in fact it was, used by her as part of her display to attract men:—Held: *pltf.*s. could not recover.—PEARCE v. So, if a party hire anything else of the nature of goods & chattels, the party furnishing the goods is bound to furnish that which is fit to be used for the purpose intended. 206. ———.]—A person letting out a carriage to hire for a specific purpose, by so doing warrants that it shall be reasonably fit for that purpose, & (if negligence is necessary to be proved) it is negligence in any one to let out to hire a carriage to convey either persons or merchandise, without previously taking care to ascertain that it is reasonably safe.

A person, who, on hiring a carriage, looks at it merely to test its capacity to hold a certain number of persons, does not by so doing select it so as thereby to relieve the party letting it to hire from liability with respect to its safety.—JONES v. PAGE (1867), 15 L. T. 619.

207. ———.]—Pltf. entered into an agreement with defts. to supply a band to perform on the sea front. It was a term of the contract that defts. should hire out five hundred chairs to pltf. for a certain period at a fixed rental. Pltf. was entitled to let the chairs to the public, & was under covenant to repair & redeliver them in good order at the end of the term. Pltf. alleged that many of the chairs as delivered were unfit for use, & that defts. had been guilty of a breach of an implied term in the contract by allowing persons to use free seats near the band. He brought an action for damages. Defts. counter-claimed for damages for non-repair of the chairs. The jury found that some of the chairs as delivered were unfit for use, that pltf. had suffered damage owing to the use of the free seats, & that pltf. had failed to repair some of the chairs:—Held: (1) there was an implied warranty that the chairs as delivered should be fit for use, but it was not a further implied term of the agreement that defts. should not let out free seats; (2) it could not be laid down as a proposition of law universally applicable to every contract that whenever something was done by a grantor, which prevented or had a tendency to reduce the profits which the grantee would naturally expect to get out of the contract, there was a good cause of action, but each particular contract must be considered by itself.—*DARE v. The horse with which the driver was furnished, which was fresh from the country & had never before been harnessed to a cab, bolted & overturned the cab & injured the driver. The horse was not reasonably fit to be driven in a cab:—Held: (WILLES, J., diss.) the relation between the parties was that of bailor & bailee, & the proprietor was responsible for the injury sustained by the driver.—*FOWLER v. 211. ———.]—Pltf. hired from deft. a job-master, for a specified journey, a carriage, a pair of horses, & a driver. During the journey a bolt in the under part of the carriage broke, the splinter bar became displaced, the horses started off, the carriage was upset, & pltf. injured. In an action against deft. for negligence, the jury were directed that, if in their opinion deft. took all reasonable care to provide a fit & proper carriage, their verdict ought to be for him. The jury found a verdict for deft., & in particular that the carriage was reasonably fit for the purpose for which it was hired, & that the defect in the bolt could not have been discovered by deft. by ordinary care & attention:—Held: the direction was wrong, for it was the duty of deft. to supply a carriage as fit for the purpose for which it was hired as care & skill could render it, & the evidence was not such as to show that the breakage of the bolt was, in the proper sense of the word, an accident not preventible by any care or skill, or to warrant the finding of the jury that the carriage was reasonably fit for the purpose for which it was hired.

A person who lets out carriages is not responsible for all defects discoverable or not; he is not an insurer against all defects, nor is he bound to take more care than coach proprietors or railway cos. who provide carriages for the public to travel in, but he is bound to take as much care as they, & although not an insurer against all defects, he is an insurer against all defects which care & skill can guard against. His duty is to supply a carriage as fit for the purpose for which it is hired as care & skill can render it, & if whilst the carriage is being properly used for such purpose it breaks down, it

Plts. might have discovered the defect in the chain by the exercise of reasonable care. The workman brought an action for compensation under Employers' Liability Act, 1880 (c. 42), ss. 1, 2, against plts., who settled the action by paying the workman £125, which sum they sought to recover from deft. as damages for breach of his contract. It was not disputed that the settlement of the action brought by the workman was a proper one:—Held: plts.' liability to pay compensation to their workman was the natural consequence of deft.'s breach of contract, & such as might reasonably be supposed to have been within the contemplation of the parties when the contract was entered into, & the damages claimed were not too remote.—MOWBRAY v. Before leaving the carriage the traveller locked the door. The driver then went into a coffee-house, leaving the carriage unattended in the street. A thief drove the carriage away & stole the jewels. The jeweller brought an action against the jobmaster to recover the value of the stolen jewels:—Held: it was the duty of deft. to provide a driver, who should take ordinary care of the carriage during the temporary absence of the traveller, & the theft of the jewels was the natural & ordinary result of a breach of such duty, so as to make deft. liable for the loss suffered by pltf.—ABRAHAMS v. 220. ———.]—After a hired horse is exhausted & has refused its feed the hirer is bound not to use it.—BRAY v. MAYNE (1818), Gow, 1, N. P.

221. ———.]—Deft. hired a horse for the purpose of its being ridden on the stage of a theatre during the performance of a play. While being so ridden the flooring of the stage gave way, & the horse fell & was injured. Deft. had hired the theatre for a week, & there appeared to be nothing wrong with the flooring, but deft. did not examine it before the horse went on the stage. Apart from such want of examination, there was no suggestion of negligence on the part of any one:—Held: (1) deft. being an ordinary bailee for hire, was bound only to take such care of the horse as a prudent man would take of his own property, & he was not bound to discover the defect in the flooring before taking the horse on the stage; (2) judgment should be entered for deft.—TILLING v. BALMAIN (1892), 8 T. L. R. 517, D. C.

222. ——— Onus of proof.]—In an action for not taking proper care of a hired horse, whereby his knees were broken, pltf. must give some positive evidence of negligence, & it is not enough to prove that the animal was returned by deft. with his knees broken, although he had often been let out to hire before without having fallen down.—COOPER v. BARTON (1810), 3 Camp. 5, n., N. P.

223. ———.]—In a contract of hiring there is an obligation upon the hirer to restore the chattel at the end of the bailment in as good condition as he received it, or, if he cannot do that, to show that he exercised reasonable care in the keeping of the chattel.

Pltf., a jobmaster, for several years let carriages & horses to deft. by the year, & let to deft. a pair of horses, which were quiet in harness & satisfactory to deft.'s coachman. The horses were kept in stables adjoining mews, & while being groomed in the mews one of them bolted & was injured. In an action by the jobmaster for damages, the jury returned a verdict for pltf.:—Held: (1) it was incumbent on deft. to prove that he exercised reasonable care in the keeping of the horses, & whether he had done so or not was a question of fact for the jury; (2) there were not sufficient grounds for disturbing the verdict at which the jury had arrived.—DOLLAR v. GREENFIELD (1905), Times, May 19, H. L.

224. Must keep in repair.]—Where a person hires a specific thing for the purpose of using it, there is an implied contract on the part of the hirer that he will in the meantime keep the thing in repair, i.e., that he will not by want of reasonable care after the contract is made allow it to become worse

PART III. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

222 i. Obligation to take care—Onus of proof.]—A bailee for hire, who returns the property bailed in a damaged condition, & who, being the only person with full knowledge of the circumstances causing the damage fails to give any explanation of same, is presumed to have been negligent. This applies to the hirer of a horse & carriage from a livery stable keeper.—GREMLEY v. STUBBS (1908), 39 N. B. R. 21 6 E. L. R. 33.—CAN.

222 ii. ———.]—The lessee, always obliged to employ the thing rented properly & carefully, is, in the case of a fire, subject to a stricter rule, since there is against him in that case a presumption of negligence, e.g., he is presumed not to have so acted & to have been the cause of the fire; & he can repel this presumption only by showing that, whatever may have been its cause &

whether known or not it did not result from his negligence.—LARBE v. MURPHY (1896), 27 S. C. R. 126.—CAN.

222 iii. ———.]—The question of the burden of proof in cases of accidental injury to goods bailed depends upon the particular circumstances of each case. In some cases, from the nature of the accident, it lies upon the bailee to account for its occurrence, & thus to show that it has not been caused by his negligence. In such cases it is for him to give a prima facie explanation in order to shift the burden of proof to the person who seeks to make him liable. If he gives an explanation which is uncontradicted by reasonable evidence of negligence, & is not prima facie improbable, the ct. is bound in law to find in his favour, & the mere happening of the accident is not sufficient proof of negligence.—SHIELDS v. WILKINSON (1887), L. L. R. 9 All. 398.—IND.

222 iv. ———.]—A horse was delivered into the possession of a bailee under a contract of bailment, & while in the possession of the bailee met with an accident which resulted in its death:—Held: the death of the horse was prima facie inconsistent with the exercise of reasonable care by the bailee, & the onus was on the bailee to prove that he had not been guilty of negligence.—OLDHAM v. LYONS, LTD. (1908), 27 N. Z. L. R. 535.—N.Z.

Breach, that, though requested to redeliver the horse he refused. Plea, that the horse was sick & died, & pltf. made the request after its death:—Held: the bailee was discharged from his promise by the death of the horse without default or negligence on the part of deft.

Let it be admitted that he promised to deliver it on request, if the horse die before, that is become impossible by the act of God, so the party shall be discharged as much as if an obligation were conditioned to deliver the horse on request, & he died before it (per cur.)—WILLIAMS v. LLOYD (1628), W. 226. .]—In all contracts of loan of chattels or bailments, if the performance of the promise of the borrower or bailee to return the thing lent or bailed becomes impossible because it has perished, this impossibility (if not arising from the fault of the borrower or bailee from some risk which he has taken upon himself) excuses the borrower or bailee from the performance of his promise to redeliver the chattel. In an action by a jobmaster against the hirer of a pair of horses the jury found that there was no custom in the trade that the hirer should be liable for injuries to the horses:—Held: apart from such custom, if proved, the hirer was only bound to use reasonable care to employ a competent coachman.—ARBON v. Held: defts., having neglected to send the tools to pltf. after repeated requests, were liable to him in nominal damages only, & pltf. could not, upon the destruction of the tools by an accidental fire while retained by defts., recover from them their value, that destruction not being damage such as might fairly & reasonably be considered as arising from the breach, or in contemplation of the parties.—LEGG v. The goods during the term were destroyed by fire without the lessee's default:—Held: (1) the absolute words of the covenant were controlled by the implied condition that the goods should continue to exist, & the lessee was not liable on the covenant for not restoring them at the end of the term; (2) the exception "reasonable wear & tear excepted," did not amount to a guarantee of the coachman at the time when the injury was done to the carriage was not acting in the course of his employment, deft. was not liable.

The obligation on deft. as bailee was only to take reasonable care, & so far as the act of his servant was to be taken as the act of the deft. he would be bound by it; & if the servant in the course of his employment & acting within the scope of his employment did not use reasonable care in the custody of the carriage, the master would be responsible. If a burglar broke into the coach-house & took away the carriage & caused damage to it & brought it back, no liability would attach to the bailee, because the act would not be his, & he would not be responsible for the acts of a person between whom & himself there was no connection (COLLINS, M.R.).—SANDERSON v. A. asked the ostler to allow him to drive, which he did on deft.'s saying she would be responsible. A. drove unskilfully, & the horse ran away, the waggonette was smashed, & the horse so injured that it had to be killed:—Held: it was part of the contract that the ostler should drive, & if A. was driving at deft.'s request or with her consent, & the accident happened through A.'s default, she was liable, but if the reins were taken by A. without her consent, or if a reasonable time before the accident she withdrew her consent, she was not liable.—STEAD v. a horse, while driving the horse stopped it on a road with a steep grade & close to an overhead bridge, on which cable tramcars were continually passing, & without leaving any one to hold the reins, or in charge of the horse, fastened one wheel of the conveyance, & then stood by the side thereof presumably for the purpose of obtaining a parcel from the conveyance for delivery at a neighbouring house. The passing of a cable-car frightened the horse, & it bolted, & was so injured that it had to be destroyed:—Held: there was sufficient evidence to support the finding of negligence.—OLDHAM v. 241. When agreement to buy—Factors Act, 1889 (c. 45), ss. 2, 9.]—An agreement was entered into between H., a furniture dealer, & L., who was referred to throughout as "the hirer," for the hire & purchase of certain chattels, & it was provided that "the hirer" should pay to H. "as & by way of rent for the hire & use" of the chattels the sum of £1 on May 6, the the further sum of £96 4s. on Aug. 1. Other provisions forbade the hirer to remove the chattels, & it was declared that "no property or interest in the chattels should rest in the hirer until the whole of the payments of rent" should have been actually made:—Held: the agreement was an agreement for purchase within s. 9.—*LEE v. 241 v. —.]—A firm of piano merchants brought an action for delivery of a piano let to defender at the rate of 15s. a month, in respect that defender had failed to pay the monthly payments. Defender maintained that the piano was his property in virtue of a verbal contract of sale between pursuers & himself, in which payment was to be made by instalments. Pursuers intended to let out the piano on the hire-purchase system, but the words used by them were consistent with the contract being understood by defender as a sale of the piano at a price payable by monthly instalments, & they were so understood by defender, & though pursuers had printed forms for signature by parties making hire-purchase contracts, defender had not signed one, though on several subsequent occasions he had been asked to do so:—Held: the contract was one of sale with deferred payment & not a hire-purchase agreement, & pursuers' proper remedy was an action for the instalments of the price so far as not paid.—MURHEAD & TURNBULL v. DICKSON (1905), Sc. L. R. 578.—SCOT.

243. —.]—W. obtained possession of goods from pltf's., under an agreement by which W. agreed to hire the goods, value £23, " & to pay the sum of 12s. 6d. per month for the hire thereof commencing with the date of this agreement, & payable in advance on the seventh day of each succeeding month until the full sum of £23 be paid, at which time, & on the completion of such payments, the co. agree to give up all claim to the goods." There was a stipulation that, upon default in payment, W. would give up possession of, & that pltf's. might seize, the goods, & there was also a declaration that the goods should remain the property of pltf's. until the sum of £23 was paid, & that they were only lent on hire:—Held: owing to the absence of any option to the hirer to give back the goods at any time without the consent of the other party, the agreement was not a mere hiring agreement, but was an agreement to buy within s. 9.—THOMPSON & SHACKELL, LTD. v. VEALE (1896), 74 L. T. 130, C. A.

244. —.]—By an agreement W. agreed with deft. to hire goods of a certain value " & to pay her the sum of £1 on signing this agreement & the balance in instalments of £1 per month until the full amount of the value be paid," when the goods were to become the property of W. The agreement contained a clause: " but in default being made in payment of such sums of £1 per month," W. agreed " to give up all claims to the goods, & to deliver same free from damage or injury beyond fair wear & tear " to deft. or to her agents on demand:—Held: W. was a person who had " agreed to buy goods " under s. 9.

It is a very artificial & inartistic agreement, but as it stands W. has a binding obligation to pay, & has power to dispose under s. 9. It is a clear agreement to buy & sell. The provision as to default does not enable the purchaser to return the goods & put an end to the agreement (PHILLIMORE, J.).—WYLDE v. LEGGE (1901), 84 L. T. 121, D. C.

The hirer received the piano, paid a few of the instalments, & pledged it:—Held: upon the true construction of the agreement, the hirer was under no legal obligation to buy, but had an option either to return the piano or to become its owner by payment in full, & by putting it out of his power to return the piano he had not become bound to buy, & he had not " agreed to buy goods " within s. 9.—HELBY v. MATTHEWS, [1895] A. C. 471; 64 L. J. Q. If the hirers did certain things, of which parting with the possession of the vehicle without the owners' consent in writing was one, it was made lawful for the owners, & they were authorised to take possession of the vehicle & terminate the agreement:—Held: the effect of the agreement was that, having paid twenty-four instalments, the hirers had an option either to become purchasers of the vehicle or to return it & claim back the £50 paid in advance, & the agreement did not impose acts which might imperil the owners' rights, she should forfeit the security money & any other moneys paid, & the owners might at once seize the instrument; (5) the piano should be insured in the joint names of the owners & the hirer; & (6) should the hirer at any time desire to purchase the instrument, the owners agreed to sell same to her provided she had not committed a breach of the agreement or forfeited the money already paid under clause 4, & on her paying them £55 10s., including the moneys previously paid, but until such purchase the piano was to remain the absolute property of the owners:—Held: the hirer had an option at the end of the thirty-two months either to keep the piano, or to return it & receive back the £7 10s. security money, & was under no legal obligation to purchase the instrument, & was not a person who had " agreed to buy goods " within the above sect.—*KAYE & SON v. agreement for sale being conditional, & punctual payment being essential to it. Nothing was paid by M. on the piano as purchase-money or rent:—Held: no property in the piano passed to M., that being the intention of the parties, & the legal effect of the instrument.—*STEVENSON v. 248 iv. —.]—A. having been allowed to take possession of chattels upon a contract of location, but under an obligation to purchase them, by a certain time, at a fixed price:—Held:

Although the words “lessors” & “hirer” are used & the word “rent” also occurs, it is perfectly plain that the agreement is one of sale & purchase, & nothing else; but it does not in the least follow that, because there is an agreement of sale & purchase, the property in the thing which is the subject-matter of the contract has passed to the purchaser. That is a question which entirely depends upon the intention of the parties (LORD WATSON).—McENTIRE v. CROSSLEY BROTHERS, LTD., [1895] A. C. 457; 64 L. J. P. C. 129; 72 L. 250. —.]—Pltf., being desirous of borrowing money, applied to defts. for a loan of £30 on a bill of sale of his household furniture. It was arranged that in lieu of a bill of sale pltf.’s landlord, to whom rent was owing, should put in a friendly distress, & that the distress should include the tools of pltf.’s trade, that defts. should purchase the goods from the broker, & that pltf. should then enter into an engagement for hire & repurchase from defts. A distress for a quarter’s rent (£25) was put in, & goods, which by agreement of the parties included the tools of pltf.’s trade, were seized. The goods were worth £63, but were appraised at £29 5s. Pltf. signed a memorandum requesting the broker to sell the goods to defts. at the condemned price, & they thereupon paid the broker £29 5s., & got a receipt from him. The next day pltf. signed a hire-purchase agreement for the goods, by which he agreed to pay defts. monthly instalments until the total amount of £50 was paid, & that, in case of default in performance of any of the stipulations of the agreement, defts. should be entitled to enter & seize the goods. Pltf. having made default, defts. entered & seized under the bill of sale. In an action by pltf. for trespass:—Held: (1) the true conclusion of fact from all the circumstances was that the intention of the parties was that there should be an absolute sale to defts. in form, but that the beneficial property should not pass until a hire-purchase agreement was executed; (2) though the legal estate passed to defts., it was subject to a resulting trust in favour of pltf. until this agreement was executed, so that defts. had no complete legal & equitable title to the goods independently of the hire-purchase agreement.—*BECKETT v. By the agreement A. had the option to purchase the car at any time within the six weeks by payment of the sum of £712 10s., but until the purchase was effected the car was to remain the property of B. A. paid two sums of £100 each, & gave B. a cheque for the remainder of the price. ## SUB-SECT. 2.—RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE PARTIES.

251. Payment—Right of hirer to anticipate payment of instalments.]—Defts. agreed to hire forty-four waggons from pltf., paying in respect of twenty specified waggons an annual rent of £285 for five years, & in respect of the other twenty-four an annual rent of £249 for three years. It was agreed that the waggons should, at the expiration of the respective terms of the demise, & after payment of the rents reserved during the terms respectively, become the absolute property of the lessees without any further payment, & that until full payment of the several rents respectively reserved the ownership of the waggons respectively should remain in the lessors. Defts., having paid the first two years' rent in respect of the twenty-four waggons, sent to pltf. the whole of the remaining one year's rent, with a letter stating that this sum was paid in discharge of all rent or other payment due in respect of the twenty-four waggons. The rent in respect of the other twenty waggons was then in arrear. Pltf.'s agent declined to receive the payment upon the terms of the letter, & entered it in pltf.'s ledger as a payment in respect of the entire number of waggons:—Held: (1) the contracts in respect of the twenty-four waggons & the twenty were several, & the hirers were entitled to the property in the twenty-four waggons upon payment of all the instalments that remained to be paid in respect of them, notwithstanding that there were unpaid instalments in respect of the twenty; (2) the contract being in effect one of sale, & the provision for payment by instalments a provision solely in favour of the purchaser, he was entitled to anticipate the time fixed for the transfer of the property in the waggons by anticipating the time for payment.—*LANCASHIRE WAGGON CO., LTD. v. Subsequently, one instalment remaining outstanding, the machine was impressed by the War Office, who paid compensation therefor to defts.:—Held: pltf. were entitled in an action for money had & received to an amount equal to that of the last instalment with interest.—BRITISH BERNA MOTOR LORRIES, LTD. v. INTER-TRANSPORT CO., LTD. (1915), 31 T. L. R. 200.

253. Liability of owner to repair—Accidental injury.]—Under a hire-purchase agreement for a carriage the owner undertook to keep it in repair until all the instalments were paid. During that period the carriage was injured by accident:—Held: the owner was liable to repair the injury so caused, his liability not being limited to doing repairs to remedy the result of fair wear & tear.—HART v. WRIGHT (1885), 1 T. L. R. 538.

254. Hirer to keep in repair—Authority to order repairs.]—By a hire-purchase agreement pltf. let a dog-cart to a person, who in the course of time sent the cart to be repaired to deft., a coach-builder. The hire-purchase agreement contained a clause by which the hirer undertook "to keep & preserve the dog-cart from injury." Some instalments under the agreement being unpaid, pltf. sought to recover the cart, but deft. claimed a lien upon it for the cost of the repairs:—Held: in the circumstances the hirer had authority to send the cart to be repaired, & deft.'s lien was good, not only against the hirer, but also against pltf.—KEENE v. THOMAS, [1905] 1 K. B. 136; 74 L. J. K. B. 21; 92 L. T. 19; 53 W. R. 336; 21 T. L. R. 2; 48 Sol. Jo. 815, D. C.

During the currency of the agreement the car was injured by an accident, & the hirer sent it to defts. to be repaired. Defts. were informed that the car was held on a hire-purchase agreement. After the car was sent to defts., & before the contract for the repairs was made, default was made in the payment of an instalment under the hire-purchase agreement. Pltf. did not terminate the agreement until after the repairs had been commenced, when he demanded the car from defts. but did not tender the amount then due for the cost of the repairs. Defts. refused to deliver it up, claiming a lien on the car for the costs of the repairs; & the repairs were subsequently completed:—Held: the hirer was entitled to have the car repaired, without any express authority from the owner, so as to enable him to use it, & defts. had a lien on the car as against pltf. for the cost of the repairs.—*GREEN v. 251 i. Payment—Right of hirer to anticipate payment of instalments.]—An agreement for the hire-purchase of furniture had endorsed on it an inventory of the furniture with cash prices annexed, amounting to £7,543. The agreement stipulated for payment by the hirer of annual sums of varying amount, the total of which was £8,649, & further provided that the hirer might at any time become the purchaser of the furniture "by payment in cash of the hereon endorsed price, under deduction of the whole sums previously paid by the hirer to the owners." The hirer, who had paid sums amounting to £4,966, desiring to become the purchaser of the furniture, tendered to the owners the sum of £2,577, being the difference between the sums so paid & £7,543, the "endorsed price":—Held: as in a contract of hire-purchase the instalments were calculated so as to provide for interest on so much of the capital as remained unpaid, the expression "whole sums previously paid" referred to the portion of the sums paid attributable to capital, to the exclusion of the portion attributable to interest, & pursuer not entitled to become the purchaser of the furniture on payment of the sum tendered.—*TAYLOR & WYLIE v. 256 i. Right of owner to possession—Default.]—Deft. rented to pltf. a harmonium for twenty-one months for $5 cash, & afterwards $15 every three months, on condition that if the payments were made regularly, immediately upon the expiration of the twenty-one months, pltf. should become owner of the harmonium, but that if pltf. neglected to pay, deft. should have the right without notice or demand, to take & carry away the instrument, & for those ends, to enter any room of pltf.'s where the instrument might be, without being arrested for having committed an illegal act, & upon such taking of possession, the term of pltf.'s right to retain the instrument should cease, without prejudice to the rights of deft. for arrearages of rent. The twenty-one months expired, & pltf. still owed deft. a balance of $25:—Held: (1) deft. had not the right to use violence or to enter at undue hours pltf.'s house in order to take the instrument, or to take it away in circumstances where there would result, needlessly, an injury for pltf.; (2) deft. had the right to enter in the daytime pltf.'s house, & there in presence of his family, pltf. being absent, after having demanded the payment of the $25, remaining due, & that not being paid, & no one objecting thereto, to take & carry away the harmonium, after having read the agreement, & leaving there, in the house, the promissory note fallen due for such balance.—*LUCAS v. 257. Effect of seizure—Release of surety.—Pltfs. let G. certain chattels, £125 being paid in advance, & the balance, £243, to be paid by monthly instalments. There was a power to seize in case of default, & if all instalments were met, the chattels were to belong to G. Default having been made, pltfs. seized. Deft., in consideration of the return of the chattels to G., guaranteed the remaining instalments. Further default was made as to two instalments, & pltfs. again seized, & afterwards sued deft. for the amount of the two instalments:—Held: pltfs. had determined the original contract, & could not recover from the surety.

258. — No waiver of arrears.—The owner of furniture agreed to let it on hire, on the terms of the hirer paying a lump sum in consideration of an option to purchase it at any time during the period of hiring, & further paying a monthly sum by way of rent. The agreement provided that the hirer might at any time terminate the hiring, on giving a week's notice & delivering up the goods without prejudice to the owner's right to recover any arrears of rent, & that if the hirer did not duly perform the agreement, the owner might retake possession of the furniture. The hirer being in arrear with the rent, the owner retook possession under the agreement:—Held: the owner by so retaking possession had not abandoned his right to sue for the arrears of rent.—BROOKS v. BEIRNSTEIN, [1909] 1 K. B. 98; 78 L. J. K. B. 243; 99 L. T. 970.

259. Rights of owner—Effect of seizure & sale.—Furniture was let for hire with an option to purchase under a hire-purchase agreement, which contained a clause giving the owners the right without previous notice to determine the hiring & retake possession of the furniture, if it should at any time be seized or taken in execution. The in payment of the last instalment, the bailor may retake possession of the chattel, & the ct. has no equitable jurisdiction to grant relief.—CAMPBELL v. BUCKMAN'S OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE (1909), 28 N. Z. L. R. 875.—N.Z.

256 iii. — Whether subsequent tender too late.—A. signed a hire-purchase agreement for a sewing machine, the agreement providing (inter alia) that in case he made default in paying the rent, pltfs. might take possession of the machine, & he would forfeit any rent paid, & pltfs. agreed if A. paid the rent, they would sell the machine to him for 1 cent at the expiration of nine months. A. having made default in paying the monthly rent, pltfs. demanded the machine, which was in possession of deft. under a bill of sale from A. Deft. refused to give it up, but afterwards, & before action brought, tendered pltfs. $14, the balance of the $65 unpaid:—Held: even if the property did not vest in A. till the whole price was paid, the tender of the $14 before action would prevent pltfs. from recovering.—WHEELER & WILSON MANUFACTURING CO. v. CHARTERS (1882), 21 N. B. R. 480.—CAN.

256 iv. — Forcible entry.—Under a hire receipt of an organ sold by R. to pltf.'s son, & signed by the latter, R. was authorised on default of payment to resume possession of the organ, & he & his agent were given full right & liberty to enter any house where the organ might be, with authority to remove same, without resorting to any legal process. On default R. sent his book keeper & two assistants, with instructions to get the organ. The book-keeper, taking the hire receipt as his authority, went to pltf.'s house, where the organ was, opened the house door & entered the hall, but on his attempting to open the door of the room in which the organ was, pltf.'s wife resisted his entrance, when a scuffle ensued, & pltf.'s wife was injured:—Held: R. was responsible for the acts of his servant, the book keeper.—FERGUSON v. ROBLIN (1888), 17 O. R. 167.—CAN.

256 v. ——Pltf. took a piano from deft. co. on the hire-purchase system, under an agreement containing a licence to the co. in certain events to enter & retake the piano. Pltf. having fallen into arrears, the co. sent four men up to his house. These men were admitted to the hall, & finding the door locked of the room in which the piano was, burst it in, using considerable violence:—Held: the licence empowered the co. to break an inner door in a proper case, but there was evidence that the co. had acted unreasonably, & the case should have gone to the jury upon furniture was taken in execution by the high bailiff of a county ct., & no claim having been made to it, was appraised & sold under the execution & the proceeds paid into ct., & the furniture delivered to the purchaser. On the day after the sale the owners heard for the first time of the seizure & sale of the furniture, & gave notice of their claim to the proceeds. An interpleader summons was issued at the instance of the high bailiff, & in the course of the interpleader proceedings the execution creditor admitted the title of claimants, who gave a notice claiming damages against the high bailiff in respect of the alleged conversion of the furniture by selling it:—Held: as under the hiring agreement claimants had a right to its possession immediately upon its being taken in execution, the sale by the high bailiff amounted to an act of conversion for which he was responsible in damages to them.—JELKS v. HAYWARD, [1905] 2 K. B. 460; 74 L. J. K. B. 717; 92 L. T. 692; 53 W. R. 686; 21 T. L. R. 527; 49 Sol. Jo. 685.

260. Assignment by owner — Validity.—An agreement for the hire, & ultimate purchase by the hirer, of specified articles of furniture, provided that, on payment by the hirer of an agreed price, which was to be paid in a fixed number of periodical instalments, the articles should become his property, but that, until the agreed price had been fully paid, they should remain the property of the lender. It was further provided that, if default should be made in the punctual payment of the hire, the lender might immediately enter upon the dwelling-house of the hirer & take possession of, & remove & sell the goods. During the currency of the agreement the lender assigned all his right & interest under the agreement to a person who had lent him money, as security for the advance, authorising him, if default should be made in repayment of the loan as agreed, to exercise all the powers contained in the hiring agreement, until the balance due to him should have been repaid:—Held: the licence to enter & take possession of the goods was not capable of being assigned.—*Re DAVIS & Co., Ex p. e. Right of owner to remove chattel at his option—Reasonable grounds.—Pltfs. supplied deft. with a piano upon a hiring agreement, under which pltfs. were at liberty to remove the piano whenever they might deem it proper to do so:—Held: they might exercise the power, on the ground that they had by mistake supplied the piano too cheap.—*BEALE v. 259 i. Rights of owner — Effect of seizure.—The proprietors of a hall let it furnished to a tenant at a rent payable weekly in advance, to be used as a cinematograph theatre. The tenant having hired a mechanical piano on the hire-purchase system, brought it into the hall for use in the theatre. The property in the piano remained in the owners until the whole of the instalments of the price was paid. Before the whole of the instalments was paid the tenant failed to pay his rent, though he remained in possession, & the proprietors of the hall attached the piano:—Held: in the circumstances the landlord's hypothec did not extend to the piano & the sequestration in so far as it included the piano, recalled.—EDINBURGH ALBERT BUILDING CO., LTD. v. GENERAL GUARANTEE CORPN., LTD. (1917), 54 Sc. L. R. 191.—SCOT.

262. Assignment by hirer—Sale of chattel—Alleged conversion—Measure of damages.]—Pltfs. let a piano on the usual terms of a hire-purchase agreement, the hirer to have the option of purchase by paying a certain number of quarterly instalments, with the right to terminate the agreement at any time by returning the piano. After paying several instalments, the hirer, without informing pltfs., sold the piano to deft., representing it to be her actual property. Upon learning the facts pltfs. sued deft. in an action of detinue & conversion, & claimed the return of the piano. Deft. paid into ct. a sum representing the amount of instalments still unpaid:—Held: (1) as at the date of the sale there had been no breach of the agreement, & no present right in pltfs. to resume possession, the option to purchase the piano was, in the absence of any provision in the contract to the contrary, assignable to deft., who had acquired all the rights of the hirer & had the right in equity to compel the hirer to complete the contract for her benefit; (2) in equity where pltf. alleged the money value of a chattel it was not the practice of the ct. to order its specific delivery, & the measure of pltfs.' damages was the amount of the unpaid instalments, which had been satisfied by deft.—WHITELEY v. HILL, [1918] 2 K. B. 808; 87 L. J. K. B. 1058; 34 T. L. R. 592; 62 Sol. Jo. 717, C. A.

the boat should belong, the holder in the meantime paying to the society for the use of it £5 per cent. on the sum expended by the society in its completion, "as such boat shall not be the property of the member to whom same shall be allotted, until the society shall be discontinued, but belong to the committee for the time being in trust for the society." The rules further stipulated that, until the dissolution of the society, every boat should be kept in good repair "by the member to whom same shall be allotted, & at such dissolution the boats shall become the absolute property of the respective persons to whom they shall have been allotted." The rules also provided that if any member, "after he shall have obtained a boat by allotment, shall make default in paying the remainder of his subscription money, forfeits, & interest, in respect of every share he may hold in this society, when due, it shall be lawful for the committee, without any notice whatever, to seize every such boat so allotted to such defaulter, & to let out same for hire, for the benefit of all the members of the society, & the defaulter shall not be entitled to resume the possession of, or use such boat, until the expiration of three calendar months after he shall have fully paid all subscriptions, forfeits, & interest due from him." W., a member of the society, became the allottee of a boat, & subsequently sold it to A., his landlord, for a certain sum credited to W. in his rent, A. at the time not having notice of the nature of the title of W., who subsequently became a defaulter to the society, who thereupon seized the boat:—Held: the society was entitled to the boat as against W.—*ATTWOOD v. Before payment of the last instalment T. sold the chattel to applt. In an action by resps. against applt. to recover the chattel or the amount of the last instalment applt. contended that resps. were estopped under Sale of Goods Act, 1908, s. 23 (1), from denying T.'s authority to sell, as the agreement was not registered, & as they had allowed T. to remain in possession of chattels under two other bailments after default entitling them to recover possession of same:—Held: resps. had done nothing amounting to an estoppel, & were entitled to judgment, the sole effect of non-registration being that specially provided in Chattels Transfer Act, 1908.—GALYER v. MASSEY-HARRIS Co., LTD. (1914), 33 N. Z. L. R. 1392.—N.Z.

264 iv. — — —.]—A customer obtained a harmonium from M. & Co., a firm of music-sellers, under a contract, whereby she undertook "to pay to them a deposit of 30s. on delivery of the harmonium, & a further sum of £1 every four weeks thereafter as hire, until the full price shall have been paid, when the goods shall be the property of the hirer, without any further payment whatever." It was further stipulated that until the full sum was paid "the hirer should have no property in the goods otherwise than as a hirer." The sum stipulated was deposited on delivery, & one instalment of 20s. was paid; thereafter the customer left the country, & on her instructions her furniture, including the harmonium, was sold by public roup. In an action by M. & Co. against the purchaser:—Held: they were entitled to delivery thereof.—MURDOCH & Co., LTD. v. GREIG (1889), 16 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 396; 26 Sc. L. R. 323.—SCOT.

1. Wrongful transfer by hirer — Remedy against third party.]—R. purchased furniture from pltfs. under a hire-purchase agreement. Before completing her payments, she stored the furniture with deft., a warehouseman, without the knowledge of pltfs., who some months afterwards, on discovering the fact, demanded delivery up of the furniture under the terms of their agreement. Deft. refused to deliver until his warehouse charges were paid:—Held: deft. was not entitled to retain the goods until his charges were paid.—SMITH (D. A.), LTD. v. CAMPBELL (1911), 16 B. C. R. 505.—CAN.

CHARTERS* (1882), 21 N. B. R. 480.—CAN.

265 i. Wrongful pledge by hirer — Remedy against third party.]—C. obtained a piano from P. & Co. on hire, under an ment with S., on the conditions that S. was to pay a weekly rent, & to keep the chattel on her own premises, with power to pltf. to retake possession in default of performance of the terms of the agreement. S. could terminate the agreement by delivery of the chattel to pltf., or by payment of a certain sum could become the purchaser of it. S. did not exercise that option, & pledged the chattel with deft. :—Held: at common law pltf. were the owners of the article pledged, & entitled to the possession of it, for the bailment to S., the pawner, had been determined when it was pledged to deft., & deft. was liable to pltf. in trover.—SINGER MANUFACTURING CO. v. CLARK (1879), 5 Ex. D. 37; 49 L. J. Q. B. 224; 41 L. T. 591; 44 J. P. 59; 28 W. R. 170.

266. — Seizure on default—No right against third party.]—Defts. let a piano to A. on a hire-purchase agreement. Before the instalments were all paid A. pawned it to B. on a three months' contract, & after the three months B. sold it to pltf. Defts. having discovered that the piano was in pltf.'s possession, sent their men to his house, & having obtained entrance, forcibly took away the piano. In an action by pltf. for trespass :—Held: persons who, like defts., let chattels on hire were not entitled to follow their property & seize it, regardless of where it was or the claim or title of the person in whose possession it might be, but must proceed to recover their property by legal methods, & otherwise they were liable in damages for trespass.—MILLER v. STROHMENGER (1887), 4 T. L. R. 133.

267. — Measure of damages.]—During the currency of a hire-purchase agreement, there being a sum due & unpaid on account of hire, the hirers, without the consent of the owners, pledged the chattel to a pledgee, who took it in good faith & without notice of the owners' rights. Subsequently the owners, hearing of the pledge, demanded the chattel from the pledgee, who refused to restore it. At the date of such demand & refusal there was a sum of £58 9s. due & unpaid on account of hire :—Held: the pledgee took no better title than the hirers had, & had an interest in the vehicle, & the measure of damages was not the full value of the vehicle, but was only the value of the owners' interest therein, i.e., the amount of hire & purchase money remaining unpaid.—BELSIZE MOTOR SUPPLY CO. v. COX, [1914] 1 K. B. 244; 83 L. J. K. B. 261; 110 L. T. 151.

268. Default—Distress—Landlord's rights.]—A. let furniture to B., who agreed that if the weekly hire should remain unpaid for seven days, A. might retake the furniture, & enter for such purpose the premises of which S. was tenant. The hire was unpaid for more than seven days, & C., who was B.'s landlord, informed A. that, as B. owed him rent, he refused to give him his furniture. A. then seized his furniture by means of force, threats, & intimidation. C. summoned A. under Metropolitan Police Cts. Act, 1839 (c. 71), s. 40, for detention of the furniture. The magistrate, without deciding whether any rent was due to C., or whether any formal or effective distress had been made by C. on the furniture, ordered A. to deliver up the goods to C. as an "owner" under the sect. :—Held: the case must go back to the magistrate to determine whether any rent was due from B. to C., & whether C. had levied a distress on A.'s furniture.—FRANKS v. TOWNSEND (1904), 68 J. P. Jo. 341.

Sec, generally, WORK AND LABOUR.

269. Duty of bailee—To preserve thing bailed.]—A workman for hire is not only bound to guard the thing bailed to him against ordinary hazards, but likewise to exert himself to preserve it from any unexpected danger to which it may be exposed.—LECK v. MAESTAER (1807), 1 Camp. 138.

agreement which provided that in default of any instalment P. & Co. might resume possession without previous demand, & that C. should pay interest upon the purchase-money at 7 per cent. C. paid only two instalments amounting to $150 & then became insolvent. On P. & Co. claiming the piano, they were opposed by H., a creditor of C., who claimed under an assignment made to him by C. as security for his debt, & received by him without any knowledge of the agreement with P. & Co. The assignment was duly filed & registered :—Held: P. & Co. should have the piano on paying to H. the amount they had received on its account from C.—RE PYKE (1873), 9 N. S. R. 342.—CAN.

h. Special contract—Hirer to bear loss by fire.]—Defts., on June 5, 1903, hired from pltf. a piano at 10s. 6d. a month on the terms (inter alia) that defts. might become the purchasers if they paid to pltf. in respect of rent £31 10s., that they should remain bailees of the piano until they paid such sum, that they might at any time return the instrument, that defts. in case of damage by fire or otherwise, during the hiring, should bear the loss, that if the hiring was terminated by defts. within twelve months they should pay pltf. such sum as, with the sums previously paid, would amount to the rent for twelve months. In Aug. & Oct., 1903, defts. called on pltf. to remove the piano, but they declined to do so, unless the full hiring rent for twelve months was first paid. On Nov. 7, 1903, a fire occurred at defts.' residence, for which defts. were not responsible :—Held: pltf. entitled to the value of the piano at the time it was burnt, & to the rent up to the day previous to the burning.—CRANE v. GALWAY (1905), 39 I. L. T. 94.—IR.

1. — Warranty of fitness.]—Applts. delivered to resps. a harvester under a hire-purchase agreement containing (inter alia) the following terms :—"All our machines are warranted to be well made & of good material, & to do good work with proper management when set up & correctly operated. If upon starting any one of our machines it should not work well, immediate written notice must be given to George P. Harris, Scarfe & Co., Ltd., Perth, & the local agent from whom it was purchased, & reasonable time allowed to get it & remedy the defects, if any (the hirer rendering necessary & friendly assistance); if it cannot be made to do good work, it shall be returned free of charge to the place where received, & the payment of money & notes will be returned. Failure immediately to give notice as above, or continued possession of the machine, whether it is kept in use or not, shall be conclusive evidence that the machine fulfils every warranty." The machine when tested after delivery was not in good working order, but no notice of any kind was given to applts. for over six weeks :—Held: no notice having been given to applts. as required by the contract, resps. were precluded from raising any question as to a breach of warranty, & in the circumstances there was no waiver of notice.—HARRIS, SCARFE & CO., LTD. v. BROWNIE BROTHERS (1915), 18 W. A. L. R. 55.—AUS.

PART III. SECT. 4.

269 i. Duty of bailee—To preserve thing bailed—Accidental destruction.]—Where a dress is left with a dyer & cleaner, the latter will be held only to the obligation of a prudent administrator, if the dress is destroyed by fire. He is not obliged to prove that the loss was occasioned by vis major. That burden rests with pltf., unless the dyer is guilty of negligence.—MOORE v. ALLEN (1915), Q. R. 47 S. C. 417.—CAN.

269 ii. — Sub-bailment of chattel.]—A tailor who receives a suit of clothes to repair &, without the authorisation of the owner, sends it to a dye works to be cleaned, will be answerable for its loss as the consequence of a fire in the latter establishment.—GADBOIS v. LAUZON (1915), Q. R. 47 S. C. 276.—CAN.

269 iii. — Special contract.]—Pltf. left his motor car at the works of defts. to have it repaired by them. He subsequently told them that he intended to insure the car, but, on being told by defts.' manager that the car was insured by them, he refrained from insuring it. The car was destroyed by fire while at

270. Liability for acts of servant.]—A. entrusted B., a watchmaker, with a watch to be repaired. B. suffered his servant to sleep in the shop in which the watch was deposited:—Held: B. was liable to A. for its value, B.'s servant having stolen it, & B. at the time when the theft was committed having deposited his own watches in a more secure place.—CLARKE v. EARNshaw (1818), Gow, 30, N. P.

Annotation:—Distd. Jobson v. Palmer, [1893] 1 Ch. 71.

271. — To redeliver.]—Pltf. sent a watch to deft. to be repaired. Deft., having repaired it, took it back to pltf. & asked for payment, & pltf. requested deft. to take the watch to his uncle A., who would pay for the repairs. Deft. could not find the uncle, but delivered the watch to pltf.'s uncle B., from whom it was stolen:—Held: deft. had not delivered the watch either to pltf. or to his authorised agent, & he was liable for its loss.—WILSON v. POWIS (1826), 3 Bing. 633; 11 Moore, C. P. 543; 4 L. J. O. S. C. P. 192; 130 E. R. 658.

272. Failure to redeliver within reasonable time—Goods destroyed by fire.]—Pltf. entrusted books to deft., a bookbinder, to be bound under a contract to deliver them when bound to pltf. within a reasonable time as & when required by him. Pltf. having required deft. to deliver the whole of the books then bound, deft. failed to deliver them within a reasonable time, & they were subsequently burnt in an accidental fire on his premises:—Held: deft. was liable in damages for the loss of the books, & he was not absolved by Fires Prevention (Metropolis) Act, 1774 (c. 78), s. 89.—SHAW & CO. v. SYMMONS & SONS, [1917] 1 K. B. 799; 86 L. J. K. B. 549; 117 L. T. 91; 33 T. L. R. 239.

273. Right to redelivery.]—Where chattels are bailed to an artisan for the purpose of his executing certain work upon them at an agreed price, the bailor may reclaim the chattels before such work is fully executed & the bailee has only a lien upon them to the extent of what would be a fair price for so much of the work as has then actually been executed.—*LILLEY, ETC. 274. — Measure of damages.]—If a profit would arise from a chattel, & it is left with a tradesman for repair, & detained by him beyond the stipulated time, the measure of damages is prima facie the sum which would have been earned in the ordinary course of employment of the chattel in the time.—*Re TRENT & HUMBER CO., Ex p. ## Part IV.—Considerations Common to all Classes of Bailment.

SECT. 1.—GENERAL RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF BAILOR AND BAILEE INTER SE.

SUB-SECT. 1.—OBLIGATION OF BAILEE TO REDELIVER.

275. General principle.]—A bailment of goods to be redelivered imports an agreement to redeliver; all special bailments import a contract to redeliver when the purpose for which the goods were deposited is answered (MANSFIELD, C.J.).—MILLS v. GRAHAM (1804), 1 Bos. & P. N. R. 140; 127 E. R. 413.

See, also, Nos. 44—46, 225—240, ante.

276. Failure of purpose of bailment—Shares to order of German bank.]—Pltf., a British subject, instructed his London bankers to transfer certain shares to defts. "to the order of" a German bank, which had arranged to transfer them to New York. The shares were accordingly handed over to defts. "to the order of" the German bank, but the latter failed to give directions for their transfer to New York, & when war broke out between England & Germany the shares were still in defts.' hands. Pltf. claimed them back from defts. & brought an action for their delivery to him. The German bank had no lien upon the shares:—Held: as pltf. had a right, as against the German bank, to the delivery of the shares, defts. were bound to hand them over to pltf.—WETHERMAN v. LONDON & LIVERPOOL BANK OF COMMERCE, LTD. (1914), 31 T. L. R. 20.

277. Discharged by redelivery to bailor.]—If I bail goods to a man to keep for me & he delivers them to another man, & that second man delivers them to a third man, the second bailee is chargeable to the owner of the goods & to every one who had the possession; but if the second man redeliver the goods to the first bailee, then he is discharged. So it is if the King's butler or other official bails goods of the King to a third person & then the bailee redeliver the goods to the butler, he is discharged. The same law governs, where I am in possession of the deeds of land of a third person & I deliver them to my servant to exhibit to my counsel, & afterwards my servant redelivers defts.' works, & defts. then discovered that it was not covered by the policy of insurance taken out by them:—Held: the effect of the conversation between pltf. & defts.' manager was to introduce a new term into the contract to repair, viz., that thenceforth defts. would keep pltf.'s car insured while at their works, & pltf. entitled to recover damages for the breach of it.—M'NEILL v. MILLIN & CO., LTD., [1907] 1 I. R. 328, 339; 40 I. L. T. 91, 154.—IR.

PART IV. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

275 i. General principle.]—It is a primary duty of a depositary to return the thing deposited when it is required of him, & if he is unable to do so, he cannot escape liability without proving that his inability does not arise out of his own negligence.

It is no valid defence to an action by a depositor for the return of the goods deposited, or for damages, that the depositary has sold them, unless it is clear that the sale was in the circumstances necessary & for the benefit of the depositor, in which case the depositary would only be liable for the price realised, less his expenses.—MEDALLIE & SHEIFF v. ROUX (1903), 20 S. C. 438; 13 C. T. R. 683.—S. AF.

277 i. Discharged by redelivery to bailor.]—Deft. agreed to return a steamer chartered on a certain day in good repair, dangers of the lake excepted:—Held: a plea "that before the day arrived pltf. took the boat from deft. without his consent, & kept her," was sufficient, though not in express terms confessing & avoiding the fact of not returning the boat.—LARNED v. MCRAE (1844), 1 U. C. R. 99.—CAN.

277 ii. — Or his servant.]—Pltf. bailed a horse to deft., to be returned to him at a certain time. Before the time elapsed, deft. returned it to H., who was the same to me, then my servant is discharged so soon as he has delivered them to him to whom he was obliged to restore them. So it is if I am possessed of the goods of one who has been outlawed for trespass & deliver them to the escheator, I am discharged (KEBLE, J.).—A.-G. v. CAPEL (1494), Y. B. 10 Hen. 7, fo. 7, pl. 14.

278. Discharged when chattel perishes.]—In all contracts of loan of chattels or bailments, if the performance of the promise of the borrower or bailee to return the thing lent or bailed becomes impossible because it has perished, this impossibility (if not arising from the fault of the borrower or bailee from some risk which he has taken upon himself) excuses the borrower or bailee from the performance of his promise to redeliver the chattel (BLACKBURN, J.).—TAYLOR v. CALDWELL (1863), 3 B. & S. 826; 2 New Rep. 198; 32 L. J. Q. B. 164; 8 L. T. 356; 27 J. P. 710; 11 W. R. 726; 122 E. R. 309.

in pltf.'s employment both at the time of bailment & return, & who told deft. that pltf., had sent him for the horse. H. was known to deft., & to others generally, as being in the employment of pltf., as a general manager of his business. In trover for the horse:—Held: the delivery to H. was a good delivery to pltf.—BOUCHETTE v. ANDERSON, temp. Man. R. Wood, 64.—CAN.

m. Measure of damages.]—Defts. agreed to hold certain share certificates belonging to pltf. & guaranteed that the certificates would be kept safely in deposit vaults & delivered upon demand under proper authority. Afterwards pltf. demanded the certificates from defts., but the latter refused to deliver them up:—Held: pltf. entitled to damages for the detention based on estimates of what had been lost by the detention & the measure of damages

n. —.]—A bailee who, by reason of the loss of the article deposited, is not in a position to restore it, is bound to pay the value to the bailor, but he is not responsible for the loss of profits which the latter might have derived from the article; & the owner of a drawing, left with an engraver to be reproduced for advertising purposes, may recover the value if the article is not returned, but not damages for the loss of profits, which might have accrued from the publicity, which the distribution of the article ordered would have procured.—GIGNAC v. WOODBURN (1906), Q. R. 29 S. C. 431.—CAN.

279. Mortgage by bailor—Demand by mortgagee.]—When a bailor mortgages the chattel bailed, & the mtgee. has a right to demand possession from the bailee & does demand it, the bailee may refuse to give the chattel up to the bailor at the expiration of the term of the hiring.

Pltfs. delivered a ship to defts. under a contract, which provided (inter alia) that defts. should, during the continuance of the contract & while the ship remained in the possession & use of defts., pay & discharge certain claims which would arise against the owners of the ship for its expenses, & upon the determination thereof redeliver the ship to pltfs. Pltfs. afterwards mtged. the ship, & certain expenses were incurred within the above provision, & then the mtgees. demanded possession under their mtge.:—Held: the mtge. & demand were an answer to the claim of pltfs. to have the ship redelivered to them, but were no answer to their claim to have the expenses paid.—EUROPEAN & AUSTRALIAN ROYAL MAIL CO., LTD. v. ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET CO. (1861), 30 L. J. C. P. 247; 8 Jur. N. S. 136.

280. Parting with possession under contract—Liability.]—If a bailee chooses to avail himself of the powers of the contract by which he is bailee to intrust the goods to other persons on contractual terms, so that he parts with the possession of the goods & can only have a right to get possession again under the terms of the contract he has made with these other persons, he is responsible if he does not get them back. He could no longer plead that he merely held them as bailee & had not been guilty of negligence. He has availed himself of the special terms of his contract & made a contract, by which the goods are delivered to third persons, with whom his bailor has nothing to do, & who may not have known his bailor, & he can no longer say, "I am not liable unless I personally have been negligent." If he cannot get them back under that contract so as to hand them back to his bailor he is liable (FLETCHER MOULTON, L.J.).—GENN v. WINKEL (1912), 107 L. T. 434; 28 T. L. R. 483; 56 Sol. While the goods lay at his warehouse, a person came there, who said the goods were his. & claimed them from the carrier. The carrier said he could not deliver them, but that if he were indemnified, he would keep them, & not deliver them according to order. An indemnity was Such course of dealing was in accordance with the usage of the trade. A. afterwards brought to the warehouse flour, which had not been manufactured at the time of giving the warehouse receipts, & which was assigned to pltf., who had made advances on it, after it was stored. 282. — One of two joint obligees of bond.]—Pltf., one of two joint obligees of a bond, handed the bond to deft. to be safely kept & given back to pltf. Deft. would not give the bond back, though often requested, & without pltf.'s leave gave it to the obligor:—Held: action was properly brought by one of the obligees, because the delivery was by one only.—TANTON v. HARRIS (1626), Lat. 124; 82 E. R. 306.

283. — Adverse claim abandoned.]—Deft., a wharfinger, received malt from & for B., who made a colourable sale of the malt to pltf., deft. transferring the malt in his books to pltf. B. became bkpt. & his assignees sued pltf. in trover for the malt. Deft. had no lien against pltf. Deft. sought to answer pltf.'s claim by showing that the property in the malt was in B.'s assignees & to set up their right against pltf.:—Held: deft. had no right to dispute the validity of pltf.'s title.

To allow a depositary of goods or money, who has acknowledged the title of one person, to set up the title of another, who makes no claim or has abandoned all claim, would enable the depositary to keep for himself that to which he does not pretend to have any title in himself whatsoever (LORD DENMAN, C.J.).—*BETTFELLY v. 286. Bailee discharged by eviction by title paramount.]—Pltf. declared that whereas he was possessed of a horse, & lent it deft. to ride to Y. & afterwards to deliver it back such a day, deft. promised in consideration thereof to redeliver the horse on the day mentioned in the declaration. Deft. by way of bar confessed the former matter, but laid the true property of the horse to be in S. before pltf. had anything in it, & that when deft. had ridden to Y. & was ready to have delivered back the horse to pltf. 287. — Or its equivalent.]—The estoppel against a bailee from disputing the title of his bailor, & setting up a jus tertii, ceases when the bailment on which the estoppel is founded is determined by what is equivalent to an eviction by title paramount. It is not enough that the bailee has become aware of the title of a third person, or that an adverse claim is made upon him, so that he may be entitled to an interpleader.

Goods of R. were seized by pltf. under a distress for rent of a house, alleged to have been demised by pltf. to R., & were delivered by pltf. to deft. to sell as his auctioneer. When the sale was about to begin R. served a notice on deft. that the distress was void, & requiring him not to sell, or, if he sold, to retain the proceeds for him. Deft. sold the goods, but refused to pay over the proceeds to pltf., & defended an action by pltf., relying on the right & by the authority of R. The distress was void & tortious, as the relation between pltf. & R. was not that of landlord & tenant, but although pltf. was a wrongdoer, there was no fraud on his part, & he thought he had a right to distrain:—

Although M. had notified defts. of his claim & made a demand for the goods, he had, in fact, sued pltf. & recovered his whole claim from him. cartload of wheat on commission for C. They paid for it themselves, & shipped it by defts., taking the railway receipt in their own name as consignees. The car was addressed to the care of C., at W., M. & Co. being aware that it was to be ground there for C. At W., the wheat was delivered by defts. upon C.'s order to his brother, who had a mill there. It was mixed by him with other wheat & ground, & fifty-five barrels of flour, the equivalent for it, were delivered by him to defts. for C. C. became insolvent before the draft matured, & M. & Co. took it up & got the railway receipt indorsed to them. C. as assignee having sued defts. in trover & detinue for the flour, they in privity with M. & Co. denied pltf.'s right to it, & set up the title of M. & Co.:—Held: defts. entitled to set up the title of M. & Co. as a defence.—*MASON v. On leaving he desired to take the goods away with him, but deft. refused to let him do so, claiming a right to retain them for a debt. Pltf. sued for their recovery, claiming damages for their detention. Deft. contended that, as the goods belonged to pltf.'s trustees under the deed, he could not recover. There was no evidence that the trustees actually claimed the goods, or authorised deft. to detain them:—Held: deft., being a bailee, could not set up the right of the trustees to the goods, not having shown that he was authorised by them to detain them.—*PEACOCK v. Pltf. demanded the wine from deft.'s clerk, producing the delivery warrant which had been issued by deft. to B., a former owner, & indorsed by him to H., & by H. to pltf. Deft.'s clerk said that there was a difficulty in consequence of the attachment, & referred pltf. to deft., whom he could not find. Pltf.'s attorney thereupon wrote, demanding the wine before eleven o'clock the next morning. Deft.'s attorney replied, asking for time for inquiry; but a writ was issued before that answer was received:—Held: (1) there was some evidence of a conversion; (2) the conduct & position of deft. was evidence from which the jury might infer whether or not he had been guilty of a conversion of the wine, & before arriving at a conclusion it was proper for the jury to consider whether deft. had a bonâ fide doubt as to pltf.'s title to the wine, & whether a reasonable time for clearing up that doubt had elapsed before the action was commenced; (3) the goods were not in custodia legis.—PILLOTT v. On the order being presented to C. he stated that he had only five sacks to spare, but that B. might have them; & they were delivered accordingly. The order was filed by C., in the way that orders accepted generally were filed by him in the usual course of his business, without any indorsement being made on it of a partial acceptance only. Application was made the following day for the remaining fifteen sacks of flour, when C. replied that B. should have it as soon as he got any. A demand being afterwards made, C. refused to deliver any more, saying that he had no flour of A.'s in his possession. These warrants were negotiated, & were in Jan., 1886, in the possession of B. & E. Deft. took over the business of the wharfingers, & in 1885 his servants, without his knowledge & by mistake, delivered the goods to certain persons, instead of goods to which those persons were entitled. In Jan., 1886, deft. wrote two letters to the brokers, whose business had been taken over & was then being carried on by pltf., informing them, as the persons supposed to be interested in the goods, that the goods were in hand, & that warrants were out that rent was due, & that the goods would be sold unless the rent was paid. Pltf. did not reply to those letters, but in consequence of them he inquired for the warrants, & purchased them from B. & E., & applied to deft. for the goods, when deft. first discovered & informed pltf. that the goods were no longer in his possession. In an action for damages for wrongful conversion:—Held: deft. was liable, because, having by negligent misrepresentation led pltf. to believe that the goods were in his possession, & such misrepresentation having been the real cause of pltf.'s loss, he having purchased the warrants in consequence thereof, deft. was estopped from denying that he had the goods specified in the warrants.—*SETON, LAING & Co. v. 298 i. — Representation that goods in his possession.]—Defts. gave a receipt to C. & Co., stating that they had received & held on their (C. & Co.'s) account 500 bushels of wheat. Pltf. relying upon the receipt, & the representations made by C. & Co., purchased from them the supposed 500 bushels of wheat, & took an assignment of the receipt as evidence of his purchase, & as authority to defts. to deliver same. Defts. at the date of the receipt had, in fact, only received 270 bushels on account of C. & Co.:—Held: defts. having given their receipt for 500 bushels of wheat, were estopped from setting up that they had not at the date thereof that quantity of wheat in store for C. & Co.—HOLTON v. SANSON (1862), 11 C. P. 606.—CAN.

298 ii. Fraud of bailor.]—D., a customer of S. Bank, handed over to U. Co. wool to be warehoused, & G., a servant of the co., whose duty it was to receive produce into the co.'s warehouses, gave a receipt, addressed to the bank, acknowledging that the co. had received a specified quantity of wool "under pledge to the bank for account of D., which the co. holds at the disposal of the bank until released by the bank." D. fraudulently obtained from G. receipts for more wool than was actually delivered to the co., & induced him to part with wool for shipment for which no release had been given by the bank. Bills of exchange were drawn by D. upon the consignees for the value of the wool, those bills with bills of lading annexed were purchased by the bank, cheques were drawn by D. upon his general account with the bank, & the amount of such cheques was placed to the credit of his produce advance account:—Held: as G. had no authority to do more than give the usual receipts for wool actually received, the co. was not liable in respect of wool, for which receipts had been given, but which was never delivered.—*STANDARD BANK v. —A., by contract, sold to B. a quantity of tallow, then lying at a wharf, at so much per cwt., & on the same day gave a written order upon the wharfingers to weigh, deliver, transfer, & rehouse same. B. having entered into a contract to sell tallow to C., obtained from the wharfingers & gave to C. a written acknowledgment that they had transferred the tallow to the account of C., & that C. was to be liable to charges from a given date. B. having stopped payment, A. gave notice to the wharfingers not to deliver the tallow to B.'s order. 302. — Transfer obtained by fraud.]—The owner of goods lying at a warehouse was induced by the fraud of F. to instruct the warehouseman to transfer the goods to the order of F., & the goods were placed at F.'s disposal. F. then sold the goods to an innocent purchaser, who, before paying the price, obtained a statement from the warehouseman that he held the goods at the purchaser's order. On the discovery of F.'s fraud, the warehouseman refused to deliver the goods to the purchaser. In an action by the purchaser against the warehouseman:—Held: the warehouseman, having attorned to the purchaser, was estopped from impeaching his title, & his refusal to deliver was a conversion.

The true owner, having enabled F. to hold himself out as the owner, could not set up his title against that of the purchaser (LORD HALSBURY).—HENDERSON & CO. v. WILLIAMS, [1895] 1 Q. B.

302 i. — Transfer obtained by fraud.]

—A. by artifice obtained an order from B., directed to his agent, to deliver wheat to A., which order A. presented, not to the agent, but to deft., a wharfinger, in whose warehouse B. had wheat. Deft. gave him his certificate for the wheat deliverable on demand, & A., after notice by deft. that he would not deliver, transferred his right to the wheat, but not the certificate, to plffs.:—Held: deft. not estopped by his certificate from denying plffs.' title.—DAVIS v. BROWN (1852), 9 U. C. R. 193.—CAN.

303 i. What constitutes attornment.]—C. & W. stored goods with J., who admitted their right. C. & W. sold some of the goods to P. The goods sold to P. were not identified or set apart. J. signed a document thus worded: "Received for storage on the conditions on the back hereof from P." The goods sold to P. were sold by him to B. & Co., & P. left the colony without paying C. & W. In an action by B. & Co. against J. for the stored goods sold to B. & Co.:—Held: the admission of the right of P. made by J. in the receipt to him, could not be used by B. & Co.—BECK v. 303 ii. —.]—A keeper of a bonded warehouse sold upon credit goods of his own in such warehouse, & indorsed to the purchaser certificates, stating that the vendors were the bailors. On a demand by a sub-purchaser upon the warehouse clerk to have the goods transferred into his name, the clerk (in pursuance of general instructions) required time to communicate with his employer, who, however, was aware of the insolvency of his vendee:—Held: the warehouseman had a right to stop delivery.—LANGE v. 303. What constitutes attornment.]—Goods in bales were sent from the country to the wharf of defts., wharfingers in London, consigned to B. & Co., factors, for sale, & made deliverable to them or their assigns. M. having bought of B. & Co. forty-eight bales of goods, so consigned, & lying at defts.' wharf, B. & Co. ordered defts. to weigh & deliver same to M. Defts. weighed the goods, & communicated the weight to B. & Co., who sent to M. an invoice, stating the weight, together with the price. Five of these bales were afterwards delivered by defts., on the order of M., to a party to whom M. had resold them. The rest remained at defts.' wharf, & were afterwards stopped by B. & Co. as unpaid vendors. No transfer of any of the bales was made in defts.' books from B. & Co. to M., nor was any warehouse rent paid by him. M. afterwards became bkpt., & his assignees brought an action against defts. for non-delivery of the goods:—Held: (1) the above facts did not make defts. wharfingers to bkpt., so as to entitle plffs. to sustain the action; (2) the part delivery of bkpt. to his vendees was not sufficient to defeat defts.' right of stoppage in transitu.—TANNER v. The wharfinger handed to the shipping agent a delivery-warrant, whereby the goods were made deliverable to him or his assignees by indorsement, on payment of rent & charges:—Held: the warrant was no more than an engagement by the wharfinger to deliver to the consignee, or any one he might appoint, & the wharfinger's possession was that of the consignee, until an assignment had taken place, & the wharfinger had attorned to the assignee, & agreed with him to hold for him, & then, but not till then, the wharfinger was the agent or bailee of the assignee, & his

The proprietors of the hotels stated that they were paid their commission by the collector & that they had not received notice of any change in ownership. The collector of the moneys earned by the machines stated that he had pointed out all the machines to resp. & had accounted to him for all the moneys earned after July:—Held: the bailees of the machines, i.e., the hotel proprietors, had never attorned to H. & had no knowledge of him:—RUBBI v. 308. Condition requiring clean receipt before shipment.]—N. & Co. engaged with defts., ship-owners, for the shipment of a large quantity of oil, & it was arranged that defts. were to receive no goods on board "unless a clean receipt were given." A. sold fifty barrels of oil to N. & Co. & delivered them to defts. Defts. received the oil, but refused to give a clean receipt for it. A. demanded redelivery, which defts. refused, as other cargo had been stowed on the top of it. N. & Co. having agreed to pay A. for the oil in cash in exchange for mate's receipt, refused to pay for the fifty barrels. A. brought an action against defts. for conversion & afterwards amended the writ by adding N. & Co.:—Held: (1) on the delivery & acceptance of the goods on the above terms, there was a complete contract of bailment between A. & defts., & a duty arose on defts.' part to give A. a clean receipt before they stored the goods on board; (2) in the circumstances A. had waived his right to demand redelivery of the goods, & no action lay against defts. for conversion.—*ARMSTRONG v. A. continued in possession of the chattels according to the agreement until Dec. 13, 1849, when he became bkpt., & his assignees (defts.) on Feb. 19, 1850, sold the whole of the chattels absolutely, & not merely bkpt.'s interest in them. No demand had been made on A. by B., or by pltf. (the assignees of B.), for the principal money or interest in the meantime:—Held: the sale by A.'s assignees destroyed the bailment, & was equivalent to a sale by the bailee himself, & trover would lie by B.'s assignees against A.'s assignees for the conversion by the sale of the goods during the term.—FENN v. B. was to be paid a percentage upon the amount received, & to bring back the clothes not sold. Instead of selling any he fraudulently pawned some, & kept the rest for his own use:—Held: (1) as there was but a single bailment of all the articles, the misappropriation of part determined the bailment as to the rest; (2) B. was properly convicted of larceny of the articles which he had kept.—*R. v. At the time of making the contract, C. was a partner with A., but this was unknown to B., the business being carried on in the name of A. only. Before the expiration of the first three years the partnership between A. & C. was dissolved, A. having assigned all his interest in the business & in the contract in question to C., & the business was afterwards carried on by C. alone. B. was informed by C. that the partnership was dissolved, & that C. had become the purchaser of the carriage then in his, B.'s, service. The latter answered that he would not continue the contract with C., & that he would return the carriage to him at the end of the then current year, & he did so return it. An action having been brought in the names of A. & C. against B. for the two payments which, according to the term of contract, would become due during the last two years of its continuance:—Held: the action was not maintainable, the contract being personal, & A. having transferred his interest to C., & having become incapable of performing his part of the agreement.—*ROBSON v. Pending the agreement an order was made for the winding up of pltf. co., under the supervision of the ct., in pursuance of a resolution previously passed by the co., & liquidators were appointed, who joined the co. in assigning the benefit of the contract to another co., upon the terms that such co. should perform the stipulations by the assignors contained in the original contract. The assignees took over the repairing stations of pltfs. & the staff of workmen employed by them, & were always ready & willing to execute all necessary repairs to the waggons:—Held: defts. had no defence to an action for rent, upon the ground that pltfs. had incapacitated themselves from performing their contract, for (1) the voluntary liquidation of the co. was immaterial, the liquidators having power under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), ss. 95, 131, to continue the letting of the waggons, & (2) the repair of the waggons by the co. to whom the contract was assigned was a sufficient performance by pltfs. of their agreement to repair.—*BRITISH WAGGON CO. v. 325. Assignment of contract by bailee—Effect of.]—Pltfs. let a piano under an agreement whereby the hirer had an option to purchase it by payment of a certain number of quarterly instalments, but was to remain a bailee only until the last of the instalments should be paid, the hirer having the right at any time to terminate the agreement by returning the piano to pltfs. The hirer paid several of the instalments, but before they were fully paid sold the piano to deft. In an action of detinue & conversion in the county ct. the county ct. judge held (inter alia) that deft. had acquired the rights of the hirer under the agreement before anything had been done to terminate it, & that pltfs. were not entitled to recover the piano or its full value, but only the amount of the remaining unpaid instalments. The Divisional Ct. reversed that decision on the ground that deft. had acquired no interest in the piano, for the hirer by wrongfully selling it had ipso facto repudiated the agreement & had no interest in it to convey:—Held: the question being one of fact, & not of law, it was not open to the Divisional Ct. to take a different view of the facts from that taken by the county ct. judge, & to find that the sale amounted to a repudiation of the agreement, & the county ct. judge's judgment must be restored.—*WHITELEY v. Afterwards the goods were demanded by pltf. of defts., to whom he tendered the wharfage for same, but the goods were not delivered to him:—Held: this being a bare omission, & no evidence of a conversion, trover would not lie, but the remedy was by action upon the case.—ROSS v. JOHNSON (1772), 5 Burr. 2825; 98 E. R. 483.

333. — Not for negligent dealing.]—A negligent dealing by a bailee with goods is not a conversion, & a bailee is not liable for a conversion arising out of a negligent dealing with the goods by him, but which is not an act participated in by him. He may be liable to an action of another description, but not to an action of trover, which only lies where some dominion is asserted by deft. over the chattel which is the subject of the action. One who unlawfully takes possession of goods, which are in consequence lost to the owner, is to a certain extent guilty of a conversion. But where there is no unlawful taking of possession, or assertion of dominion over the goods, although the goods may be destroyed, there is no conversion, unless the bailee is a participator in the act which causes their destruction.—*HEALD v. In an action of detinue for the goods:—Held: the above stat. ran from the date of the demand & refusal, & not from that of the sale, as plffs. in such a case, though entitled if they had discovered the sale to sue immediately for a conversion of the goods, were also entitled to elect to sue upon the breach of the bailee's duty in the ordinary course by the refusal to deliver up on request. Semle: where an action of detinue is founded upon a bare taking & withholding of the property of another, without any circumstances to

The relation of bailor & bailee must arise out of some agreement of the minds of the parties to it. Where such a relation is established, if pltf. can maintain his action by showing the breach of a duty arising at common law out of that relation, he is not obliged to rely on a contract within the meaning of the rule; but if his cause of action is that the deft. ought to have done something, which would not be embraced by the common law liability arising out of the relation of bailor & bailee, then he is obliged to rely on a contract within the meaning of the rule (COLLINS, L.J.).—TURNER v. to whom they were addressed, who called for them. Many of the trees were injured, & the evidence was contradictory as to the state in which they arrived, & as to whether such injury was caused by deft.'s treatment of them, or whether it was necessary, as he alleged, to open the boxes & deliver them without delay. Pltf. having brought trover:—Held: deft. had done nothing which would in law amount to a conversion.—LOVEKIN v. PODGER (1866), 26 U. C. R. 156.—CAN.

335 i. ——— Detinue—Demand by bailor.—When the lessee of movables remains in possession after the expiration of the period for which they were leased, the owner can at all times demand that such possession cease & that the movables be surrendered to him, but notice to the lessee is required, failing which, he is not held to be in default, nor liable for damages or costs.—MONARCH MANUFAC-

341. Right to retake chattel—Wrongful sale by bailee—Sale in market overt.]—If a man bails goods to another at such a day to rebail, & before the day the bailee sells the goods in market overt, yet at the day the bailor may seize the goods, for the property of the goods was always in him, & not altered by the sale in market overt.—ANON. (1609), Godb. 160; 78 E. R. 98.

342. Right of action—Detinue—Wrongful sub-bailment.]—If a bailee bails the goods over to another, detinue lies against the second on a devenerunt ad manus.—ISAACK v. CLARK (1615), 2 Bulst. 306; 1 Roll. Rep. 126; 80 E. R. 1143.

343. — Trover—Wrongful pledge by bailee.]—Pltf., in 1729, lodged jewels for safe custody in the hands of B., a jeweller, inclosed in a paper that was sealed, & put in a bag, which was also sealed with pltf.'s seal, & deposited at B.'s house, & the same day his clerk gave a receipt for them in the following words, "Which bag, so sealed, I promise to take care of for [ptf.], for my master B.; signed C."; & in the receipt all the jewels were specified. In Feb., 1735, B. broke both the seals, took out the jewels, & carried them to deft., a banker, borrowed £300 of him, & deposited the jewels as his own proper goods & as a security for the £300, & gave his promissory note for the same sum. On deft.'s refusing to deliver the jewels to pltf. he brought an action of trover & conversion against him:—Held: pltf. entitled to judgment.—HARTOP v. PART IV. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.

344 i. Right of action—Trover—Wrongful sale by bailee.]—Where a person lends his cattle to the proprietors of a station, with authority to use them for stocking purposes, & such proprietors afterwards sell the cattle with the station to a third person, who pays for them without notice of the true owner's claim, & in the bonâ fide belief that they are the property of his vendors, the true owner is not estopped from recovering the cattle or their value from the purchaser.—SLY v. CAMPBELL (1887), 2 Q. L. J. 192.—AUS.

344 ii. —.]—Trover is maintainable by the owner of property, where a third party, to whom the owner has given the use of the property, has sold it without authority.—SIBLEY v. SIBLEY (1871), 8 N. S. R. 325.—CAN.

iii. —.]—A. hired pltf.'s horse to go a certain distance, but went further, & sold the horse to deft. in such circumstances as to lead to the presumption that he intended to steal the horse at the time of hiring:—Held: pltf. could not maintain trover against deft. until he had done everything in his power to prosecute A. for the felony.—PEASE v. MCALOON (1840), 1 Kerr, 111.—CAN.

344 iv. —.]—S. left with C. a buffalo & a calf, to be taken care of during his absence from home. C. sold the animals to M. S. sued to recover them:—Held: the bailment by S. to C. was a gratuitous one, or else a mere custody by C. for S., & S. was at the time of sale in constructive possession of the animals, & C. could not transfer to M. an ownership that he had not himself.—SHANKAR MURLIDHAR v. MOHANLAL JADURAM (1887), 1 L. R. 11 Bom. 704.—IND.

344 v. —.]—It is not an unqualified rule of law that if any one to whom a thing has been lent or otherwise entrusted, alienates it without authority, the owner has no action against the person who had obtained it by a just title & in good faith. If the thing has been so entrusted in circumstances which might reasonably lead others to believe that the ostensible owner was the true owner to dispose of it, the owner cannot claim it from a person who has acquired it in such belief & for value, without tendering to repay such value.

A., the driver of a post-cart owned by pltf., a post-contractor, left one of pltf.'s horses, which became disabled in the road, in charge of B., & borrowed a mule from B. to prosecute the journey. B. sold & delivered the horse to deft.:—

344. — Wrongful sale by bailee.]—A. let a horse on hire to B. for one month. B. kept it for two months, & then sold it to C.:—Held: A. might recover the value of the horse from C., although C. had acted bonâ fide, & had paid B. the full value.

B. had only a limited interest; when he sold it, he could give deft. no better title than he had got himself (BOSANQUET, J.).—SHELLEY v. FORD (1832), 5 C. & P. 313.

345. —.]—A. conveyed goods by bill of sale to B. B. allowed A. to use the goods at a weekly rent, A. undertaking to deliver them up on demand. A. afterwards sold & delivered the goods to C., a bonâ fide purchaser:—Held: B. might maintain trover against C.—COOPER v. WILLOMATT (1845), 1 C. B. 672; 14 L. J. C. P. 219; 5 L. T. O. 347. —.]—A coachbuilder let a brougham for a year, & according to the custom of the trade, the hirer's arms were painted on the panels. The hirer put the brougham up for sale by auction at Aldridge's, & it was purchased by a commission agent & horse dealer. In an action of trover by the owner against the purchaser of the brougham:—Held: by allowing the arms to be painted on the panels, the owner did not render himself responsible for the fraudulent sale by the hirer, & the purchaser was liable.—MARNER v. BANKS (1867), 17 L. T. 147; 16 W. R. 62.

348. — Bailee convicted of larceny.]—Where a hirer in possession of goods, under a hire purchase agreement, sells them to a bonâ fide purchaser without notice before all instalments agreed upon are paid, & is prosecuted to conviction for larceny as a bailee, the owner can maintain an action for conversion against the purchaser.—

Held: in the absence of proof of circumstances as above stated, the magistrate erred in granting absolution from the instance in an action by pltf. against deft. for delivery of the horse.—ADAMS v. MOCKE (1906), 23 S. C. 782; 16 C. T. R. 652.—S. AF.

344 vi. — Salvage sale by bailee.]—Pltf. ordered from defts. 4,000 bushels of wheat, paid therefor, & obtained from defts. orders for the 4,000 bushels upon the agent in charge of a railway elevator, where defts. had 20,000 bushels stored. Pltf. had received only 1,000 of the 4,000 bushels, & still held the orders, when a fire occurred which damaged all the wheat in the elevator. After the fire, pltf. demanded his wheat. Both the elevator man & defts. refused, the latter alleging that they had bought the wheat at the sale of the salvage by the insurance cos. The appraisal of the loss had been made on the assumption that defts. alone were interested in all the wheat. Pltf. did not assent to the proceedings to adjust the loss, was not notified, & was not a party to the sale:—Held: the sale vested no title to the wheat in defts., & defts. were liable for the conversion.—INGLIS v. RICHARDSON & SONS, LTD. (1913), 29 O. L. R. 229; 4 O. W. N. 1519; 14 D. L. R. 137.—CAN.

349. — Before determination of bailment.]—The charterers of pltf.'s ship for three voyages, on her return home from the second, removed the anchors & cables to defts.' wharf. Shortly afterwards the ship was seized under an Admty. warrant, & sold for debts due on bottomry bonds & the wages of the crew. Four days previous to the sale, pltf. demanded the anchors, etc., which were not included in the sale account of the ship, from defts., who refused to deliver them up:—Held: (1) pltf. was not entitled to recover the anchors & cables in trover against defts., although they had been removed by the charterers to avoid the process of the Admty. Ct., & not in the ordinary course of business, as pltf. had no right of possession until after the sale; (2) the removal of the articles from the ship to the wharf was no injury to pltf.'s reversionary interest.—FERGUSON v. CRISTALL (1829), 5 Bing. 305; 2 Moo. & P. 524; 7 L. J. O. S. C. P. 91; 130 E. R. 1078.

350. — On determination of bailment.]—Brewers in Dublin supplied porter in casks to a customer, on the terms that the empty casks were to be returned to Dublin at the customer's expense, within six months from the date of the invoice, or paid for at the invoice price at the option of the shippers:—Held: under such contract as soon as the casks were empty, the customer was in the situation with respect to them of a mere bailee during pleasure, & the brewers had such an immediate right of possession of the empty casks as would entitle them to maintain trover against any person who converted them to his own use.—MANDERS v. WILLIAMS (1849), 4 Exch. 339; 18 L. J. Ex. 437; 13 L. T. O. S. 325; 154 E. R. 1242.

Deft. carried the bill to R.'s account with his creditor, & though afterwards apprised of the circumstances in which R. held the bill, refused to restore it:—Held: deft. liable to pltf. in trover.—CRANCH v. WHITE (1835), 1 Bing. N. C. 414; 1 Hodg. 61; 1 Scott, 314; 4 L. J. C. P. 113; 131 E. R. 1176.

352 i. — Wrong-doer taking possession from bailee.]—T. sold to pltf. 2,000 out of 3,000 bushels of wheat owned by him & lying in the warehouse of S., whose receipts he held for same, & which he indorsed to pltf., who paid him for the quantity sold to him. The wheat remained in the warehouse for some time. T. & S. left the country, when defts. seized & converted the whole quantity to their own use & pltf. sued them in trover & detainue. The evidence of T., so far from showing that he repudiated the sale, fully upheld it, & proved that he told S. to appropriate all the wheat in one of the bins to pltf., & S. stated that he would not, after the notice of the sale to pltf., have delivered any of the wheat to any one but pltf., without retaining enough to satisfy pltf.'s 2,000 bushels. Qu.: whether defts., as wrong-doers, could set up the objection of the property not passing by reason of non-appropriation or non-severance.—COFFEY v. QUEBEC BANK (1869), 20 C. P. 110.—CAN.

352 ii. — Special contract.]—Beer bottles were let out by pltf. to brewers, on the terms that they should belong to pltf.s., who, after they had been used for one sale of beer, should be entitled to recover possession of them. The bottles had blown in the glass pltf.s.' trade mark, & the words "the property of" followed by pltf.s.' name. Brewers having filled the bottles with beer sold the beer to retail dealers & gave them express notice that the bottles were the sole property of pltf.s. A similar notice was advertised in newspapers. Retail dealers sold the beer in the bottles without giving the purchaser any such notice. No evidence having been given that any person who bought beer in the bottles was induced to believe that he had bought the bottles also:—Held: pltf.s. entitled to recover from deft., who knew the real facts, bottles which had been so let out by them & had been acquired by him from purchasers from retail dealers, & to an injunction restraining him from purchasing, collecting, or dealing in similar bottles.—CURTIS v. PERTH & FREMANTLE BOTTLE EXCHANGE CO., LTD. (1914), 18 C. L. R. 17.—AUS.

Pltf. entrusted the chattel to his co-owner for the purpose of its being taken to an auctioneer for sale. The co-owner lodged the chattel with deft. as security for a debt due from him to deft.:—Held: the transaction amounted to a bailment by pltf. to his co-owner for a special purpose, which he did not carry out, & on failure of the trust pltf.'s right to immediate possession of the chattel accrued at once, & pltf. had a right to recover it from deft. in an action of detainue.—NYBERG v. Replevin.]—F. being indebted to pltf., brought him £15 towards payment of the debt, but requested & obtained permission to lay the money out in the purchase of a horse & cart, which were to be the property of pltf., but of which F. was to have the possession & the use, subject to such occasional use as pltf. might require to have of them, & to their being given up to pltf. when he should demand them. After F. had purchased the horse & cart, & had the possession & use of them for some time, he determined to emigrate. The horse & cart were used in transporting his effects to the pier at which he was to embark, & deft., to whom he owed money for fodder supplied to the horse, went with him to procure payment if he could. At parting, F. delivered the horse & cart to him, telling him to take them for the debt, but adding that he owed pltf. money also, & that if he would discharge the debt due to deft., which was much less than their value, he was to give them up to him. Pltf. for some time remained in ignorance of what had passed, & afterwards coming to the knowledge of it, demanded them, but deft. refused to deliver them unless his debt were paid, whereupon pltf. proceeded to replevy them. On the plea of non cepit:—Held: there was no taking of the horse & cart which would entitle pltf. to maintain replevin.

Pltf. bought & paid for a ship stranded on the English coast, but the transfer was not regular; he tried to save her, but she went to pieces, & deft. possessed himself of parts of the wreck, which drifted on his farm:—Held: pltf.'s possession enabled him to recover for them in trover.—SUTTON v. The owner of furniture let it to pltf. on hire, under the terms of a written agreement, pltf. placed it in a house occupied by the wife of a person who had become bkpt., & it was seized by order of the assignees:—Held: pltf. might recover in an action of trover, without producing the agreement, although it was insisted that he had a mere qualified interest, which could not be proved without the production of that instrument.—*BURTON v. wharf. The co. were also delivering other material at the same wharf, & P. agreed with the co. to tow their scows from their own wharf to pltf.'s wharf & to tie them up there securely at a certain specified rate per scow. While the scow which had been tied up at pltf.'s wharf by the co. was in the custody of pltf., P. brought in & tied up at the wharf one of the co.'s scows, under the above arrangement, but so negligently that it came in contact with the scow in the custody of pltf., & injured it. Pltfs. procured temporary repairs to be made to the injured scow, & brought an action to recover the cost of the repairs & consequent demurrage, & also the cost, to be incurred, of making permanent repairs:—Held: pltfs., as bailees, were entitled to recover from P. damages based upon the whole injury done to the scow, as if they were the actual owners of the scow, or had already reimbursed the owners, & notwithstanding that the money had not yet been expended in making the permanent repairs.—*COTTON CO., LTD. v. the suit of a possessor. The principle being the same, it follows that he can equally recover the whole value of the goods in an action on the case for their loss through the tortious conduct of the deft. It involves this also, that the wrong-doer who is not defending under the title of the bailor is quite unconcerned with what the rights are between the bailor & bailee, & must treat the possessor as the owner of the goods for all purposes quite irrespective of the rights & obligations as between him & the bailor (COLLINS, M.R.).—THE WINKFIELD, [1902] P. 42; 71 L. 385. The captain of a ship, who had taken goods on freight, & claimed, though wrongly, to have a lien upon them, delivered them to a bailee. The real owner demanded them of the latter, who refused to deliver them without the directions of the bailor:—Held: the bailor not having a lien upon the goods, the refusal by the bailee was sufficient evidence of a conversion.

387. — — — — — Certain cases of wine were ordered by L. of pltf. & were shipped by pltf. consigned to L., who deposited the bill of lading with deft., a wharfinger, with directions to take delivery & warehouse the wine on L.'s account. The wine, on its arrival, was entered at deft.'s wharf in L.'s name, subject to a stop for the freight. L. afterwards refused to accept the wine, on the ground that it was not according to contract; pltf. agreed to take it back, & L. promised to send a delivery order to enable pltf. to obtain it, but on the same day L. indorsed the bill of lading to M., which M. took to deft.'s wharf & procured a transfer of the wine into his own name. Pltf. was afterwards informed by L. that the wine was at the disposal of pltf., but subject to charges amounting to £17 14s. 9d. & £5 for loss of profit. At an interview between M. & pltf., M. offered to give up the wine on payment of the above sums. Pltf. tendered the former sum, which M. would not accept. Pltf.'s attorney afterwards offered to deft. to pay all charges, & to indemnify him against the claim of any other person. Deft. refused to deliver the wine to pltf., alleging that he had given warrants to M. The wine was ultimately delivered to a third person by M.'s order. M. had in fact paid the freight, & obtained warrants to him or his order. The jury found that the transaction between M. & L. was colourable & with knowledge on the part of M. of the intention of L. to deprive pltf. of the wine:—Held: (1) deft. received the wine as bailee to L., & after the payment of the freight could have no better title than his bailor; (2) by the finding of the jury M. had no better title than L.; (3) as pltf. had tendered the amount of charges both to M. & deft., pltf.'s title was as valid against deft. as it would have been against L., & deft. was liable to pltf. for the value of the wine.—BATUT v. HARTLEY (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 594; 41 L. J. Q. B. 273; 26 L. T. 968; 20 W. R. 899; 1 Asp. M. L. C. 337.

388. — — — Conversion—Setting up bailor's title.—Where a bailee sets up or relies upon the title of his bailor, in answer to a demand made by the true owner of the goods, his refusal is evidence of a conversion by him.

A. lost a horse & found it at R.'s stable, but R. refused to deliver it up, & said it belonged to B., & then both B. & R. refused. Afterwards B. said he bought it at X.'s (not being market overt), which turned out to be true. A. then offered R. & B. separately an indemnity if they would deliver the horse up, but R. refused to let it go, & B. said he left the matter entirely to R. In an action of trover against B. & R.—Held: there was sufficient evidence of conversion by R.—LEE v. BAYES & ROBINSON (1856), 18 C. B. 599; 27 L. T. O. S. 157; 20 J. P. 694; 139 E. R. 1504; sub nom. LEE v. ROBINSON & BAYES, 25 L. J. C. P. 249; 2 Jur. N. S. 1093.

389. Person for whom benefit of bailment intended—May sue bailee.]—A. being indebted to C., & B. to A., it was agreed between A., B. & C. that B., in discharge of his debt to A., should discharge the debt of A. to C. by delivering to C. certain goods in B.'s possession belonging to A. B. did not deliver the goods to C., but after A.'s death converted them to his own use:—Held: C. could sue B. for conversion.

If a man bails goods to one, to bail them over to another, if he to whom this bailment was thus made, contrary to the trust in him reposed, does not deliver them over, as he was to have done, but converts them to his own use, he has by this deceit made himself liable to an action, both of the first bailor, & also of the party to whom they were to have been bailed over, & either of them may well have his action against him for this. And notwithstanding the third person here, to whom the goods ought to have been bailed, had never the possession of them, yet this conversion & non-feasance, of that which he ought to have done, is a wrong, & very prejudicial to C., the third person. For this wrong & prejudice, he may have his action upon the case, as well as the first bailor. But both of them shall not have their actions. But he that first begins his action, shall go on with the same (per CUR.).—FLEWELLIN v. RAVE (1610), 1 Bulst. 68; 80 E. R. 769.

By C.'s mismanagement the horse & chaise were driven against & injured pltf.'s horse:—Held: an action on the case might be maintained for the injury against A., on a declaration charging that he was possessed of & driving the horse & chaise, & that by his negligent driving the injury was occasioned.—*WHEATLEY v. 393. Joint bailment—What constitutes.]—A box containing goods, some of which were the property of A., & some the property of B., was delivered on their behalf by a third person at a railway station, to be carried from W. to L. The box was addressed to A., & was received by him in L., & he paid the carriage:—Held: there was evidence of a joint bailment, in respect of which a joint action might be brought by A. & B. for the loss of the goods.—METCALFE v. LONDON, BRIGHTON & SOUTH COAST RY. CO. (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 307; 27 L. J. C. P. 333; 31 L. T. O. S. 166; 4 Jur. N. S. 487; 6 W. R. 593; 140 E. R. 1102.

394. ——— Demand by one—Trover.]—If a thing be deposited by one, with the authority of another, & received by the bailee, to keep on the joint account of the two, one alone cannot lawfully demand it without the authority of the other, so as to maintain trover upon the bailee's refusal to deliver it.

It was agreed between the assignor & assignee of a lease that, to save the expense of a counterpart, it should be deposited in the hands of a third person, & the assignee delivered it to the bailee to keep, but without mentioning that it was on the joint account, & no communication was made of the deposit to the assignor, who never interfered further in the matter. Deft. afterwards (with the privity of the bailee, who acted as his agent) procured an illegal & void conveyance of the property in it from the assignee:—Held: the assignee or his legal representatives might alone maintain trover for it, after demand & refusal.—MAY v. HARVEY (1811), 13 East, 197; 104 E. R. 345.

395. ———.]—Four partners pledged goods with deft., with a power of sale, as security for repayment of an advance made by deft. to them. Afterwards the partnership was dissolved, & the property of three of the four partners vested in pltf. under several deeds of assignment. Pltf., without authority from the fourth partner, tendered to deft. the amount for which the goods were a security, & demanded the whole of the goods. Deft. refused to deliver the goods to pltf.:—Held: the refusal by deft. was not such a conversion of the goods as would entitle pltf. to maintain an action of trover against deft.—HARPER v. GODSELL (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 422; 39 L. J. Q. B. 185; 18 W. R. 954.

396. ——— Detinue.]—Where several joint owners of a chattel deliver it to a third person, he may detain it until all the joint owners require him to return it. If some of them ask him to return it, & others desire him to keep it, the bailee is not liable to an action at the suit of those who so ask for a return. If that were not so, each might have an action & so the bailee might be harassed with as many actions as there were joint owners. If two joint owners of a chattel concur in depositing it with a third person, one alone cannot by demanding it entitle himself to bring detinue for it (MAULE, J.).—ATWOOD v. ERNEST (1853), 13 C. B. 881; 22 L. J. C. P. 225; 21 L. T. O. S. 185; 1 C. L. R. 738; 138 E. R. 1449; sub nom. ATTWOOD v. ERNEST, 17 Jur. 603; 1 W. R. 436.

397. ———.]—One of two persons, who have equal rights to a chattel, cannot bring an action at law in detinue against the holder without the other (COTTON, L.J.).—WRIGHT v. ROBOTHAM (1886), 33 Ch. D. 106; 55 L. J. Ch. 791; 55 L. T. 241; 34 W. R. 608, C. A.

398. Delivery to one.]—Action by J., & two other pltfs. on a contract, on the deposit of goods by the three pltfs. with deft., not to give them up without the joint order of the three pltfs. Breach, that they were given up without the joint order. Plea, that they were given up to J., one of present pltfs., at his request :—Held : a good plea, for J. being disabled from suing for what he himself procured, could not at law sue, though joining other pltfs. with him.—BRANDON v. SCOTT (1857), 7 E. & B. 234 ; 26 L. J. Q. B. 163 ; 28 L. T. O. S. 264 ; 3 Jur. N. S. 362 ; 3 W. R. 235 ; 119 E. R. 1234.

401 i. Joint bailees—Liability for negligence.]—Defts. hired from pltf. a team of horses. One of defts., having control of the horses, shot one of them, alleging that it was diseased. Before the shooting pltf. informed such deft. that the horse was not diseased. Deft. acted on his own opinion merely, & the evidence showed that he was wrong :—Held : defts. were jointly liable for the value of the horse.—MORRIS v. ARMIT (1887), 4 Man. L. R. 152.—CAN.

400. Mortgagor & mortgagee.]—If deeds are deposited with A. by mtgor. & mtgee., before the condition broken, A. is trustee for the mtgor., afterwards for the mtgee. ; & if A. deliver them to the mtgee., equity will not decree them to be delivered to the mtgor.—ANON. (undated), 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 284 ; 22 E. R. 239.

401. Joint bailees—Liability for negligence.]—In an action against two, for negligently driving a chaise, if the two have hired it jointly, & were jointly in the possession of it, both are liable for the accident. It is otherwise if it belonged to one only, & the other was merely a passenger.—DAVEY v. CHAMBERLAIN (1803), 4 Esp. 229, N.P.

402. ——— Partners.]—If two partners hire a horse & cart for the purposes of their business, & one of them, while driving the cart in the usual course of their business, negligently injures the horse & cart, both partners are responsible to the person from whom they have hired the horse & cart (per CUR.).—*COUPÉ Co. v. #### SUB-SECT. 2.—TRANSFER OF STOCK.

A. In General.

3. General principle.]—The Bank does not profess to hold money in trust for anybody. There is nothing in their Act or charter constituting them trustees for that purpose. If the Bank voluntarily enters in its own books a trustee's account, it may, in certain circumstances, become liable for the obligation of those trusts. But the Bank is merely a public servant, & is generally under the obligation to transfer the fund to the person in whom it is vested. Therefore, unless the bank choose to involve themselves in any transaction, there is nothing to implicate them. The only way in which they can be affected is by giving them distinct notice of a liability to which the stock is made subject (POLLOCK, C.B.).—HUMBERSTONE v. CHASE (1836) 2 Y. & C. Ex. 209; 160 E. R. 373.

4. — Effect of National Debt Act, 1870 (c. 71).]—The transfer of stock in the public funds is regulated by Act of Parliament, & the statutory mode of transfer is by an instrument in the books of the Bank to be signed by the transferor. Although the above Act recognises an acceptance by the transferee, yet it does not make that acceptance necessary or essential, for s. 22 provides that "the person to whom a transfer is so made may, if he thinks fit, underwrite his acceptance thereof" (COTTON, L.J.).

The transfer of stock & the rights of stockholders, i.e., of persons in whose names the stock is standing, depends partly on general principles & partly on the above Act. By this stat. a transferee of stock primâ facie acquires the legal title to it; & if his transferor had himself a good title to the stock & a right to transfer it, & has transferred it, the transfer cannot be treated by him or by the Bank as a nullity. Nor is there any method by which the transferor can get back his stock without the concurrence of the transferee or some order of a competent ct. requiring him to execute a retransfer. Formal acceptance by the transferee of the transfer to him is not necessary to complete his legal title (see s. 22). Although a donee may dissent from & thereby render null a gift to him, yet that gift to him of property, whether real or personal, by deed, vests the property in him subject to his dissent. The same principle is applicable to transfers of stock in the books of the Bank of England. If the assent of the transferee were necessary to complete his legal title, the Legislature would not have made his formal acceptance of a transfer to him unnecessary, as it has done by the sect. to which I have already alluded. It would be very embarrassing to the Bank if acceptance of a transfer were necessary, & yet that no evidence of it in their books should be so (LINDLEY, L.J.).—STANDING v. BOWRING (1885), 31 Ch. 12. — Fraudulent transfer by—Consent of Bank obtained by misrepresentation—Liability of Bank.]—S. made a specific bequest of the dividends of certain stock to W. & his wife for their lives, the principal, after the decease of the survivor of them, to go to such of their children as should attain twenty-one, & in default of such children, to sink into the residue. Upon the death of testatrix, the various bequests of the will were appropriated to the respective legatees, & W. regularly received his dividends, the principal stock still standing in the name of testatrix. Afterwards, the wife of W. died, leaving one child by W. In consequence of this event, the extrix. of S., colluding with W. & other interested parties, applied to the Bank to have part of the stock transferred to the residuary legatee, upon the representation that there was no child of W. The Bank consented to the transfer, but took a bond of indemnity containing recitals from which it appeared that they had notice of the will, & of the appropriation of the legacies. The stock in question was transferred to the residuary legatee & ultimately sold out:—Held: the Bank were not liable for the misapplication of the stock.

The Bank stand in relation to stock as a depository of goods in relation to the goods. The Bank can only be made responsible for a transfer of stock after distinct notice given to them of an existing claim upon the stock. Although the Bank are bound to allow the transfer to or by the exor. of stock specifically bequeathed, if the exor. has not assented to the legacy, yet it does not follow that, if he has assented to the legacy, the Bank are bound to transfer it to the legatee.—HUMBERSTONE v. CHASE (1836), 2 Y. & C. Ex. 209; 160 E. R. 373.

13. — Trusts of will—Transfer by executor with legal title—Duty of Bank.]—The Bank are not to look, beyond the legal title, to the trusts of the will, & cannot prevent the exor. from selling out or transferring stock into his own name.—BANK OF ENGLAND v. PARSONS (1800), 5 Ves. 665; 31 E. R. 794.

14. Trustee—Charging order obtained by judgment creditor—Duty of Bank to transfer at direction of trustee.]—Where a judgment creditor has obtained a charging order absolute upon the contingent equitable interest of a judgment debtor in Govt. & Bank of England stock, standing in the name of a trustee, the Bank is compellable to transfer the respective stocks at the direction of the trustee, notwithstanding that notice of the charging order has been served upon the Bank. The judgment creditor can protect his rights by giving notice to the trustee & by issuing a notice in lieu of distringas upon the Bank.—ADAM v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1908), 52 Sol. Jo. 682.

15. Refusal to transfer—Action—Mandamus.]—The ct. will not on the application of exors. grant a mandamus to the Bank to transfer stock, because there is a remedy by an action on the case, if they refuse.—R. v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1780), 2 Doug. K. B. 524; 99 E. R. 334.

The law in this respect has, however, been altered by Bodies Corporate (Joint Tenancy) Act, 1899, c. 20. EADY, J.

C. Under forged Powers of Attorney.

See, generally, COMPANIES.

17. Right of true owner to recover.]—Held: a party might recover from the Bank the dividends arising on his stock in the funds, though at the time the dividends were payable he knew the stock had some months previously been placed, under a forged power of attorney, to the name of another person, & omitted to inform the Bank of the circumstances, & did not demand payment of the dividends till after the escape of the offender.

23. By broker—Liability of Bank—Liability of broker to indemnify Bank.]—S., a stockbroker, produced to the Bank a power of attorney for the sale & transfer of consols standing in the names of pltf. & another person, a solr., the form of power having been obtained in ordinary course from the Bank by S. upon the instructions of the solr., who professed to act on behalf of pltf. as well as himself; but pltf. knew nothing of the matter. The power purported to be signed by both stockholders, & at the foot was the usual "demand to act" signed by S. Acting on that "demand," & in pursuance of their statutory duty, the Bank allowed S. to execute the transfer in the bank-books as "attorney" for the two stockholders. S. received the purchase-money under the power & paid it to the solr., who applied it to his own use. Subsequently it was discovered that pltf.'s signature to the power had been forged, whereupon, in an action by pltf. against the Bank, the latter were ordered to transfer to him the like sum of consols, & also to pay to him all back dividends, together with the costs of the action. The Bank then claimed indemnity as against S. under a third-party notice. No blame was attributable either to S. or to the Bank for what had happened:—Held: a warranty was to be implied as against S. of the authority upon which he "demanded" of the Bank the performance of their statutory duty, & this implied warranty rendered him liable to indemnify the Bank.—STARKEY v. 24. Fraudulent impersonation of transferor—Liability of person preparing transfer—To indemnify Bank.]—Under the stats. authorising the issue of India stock, transfers of that stock were invalid unless they were entered & registered in a book kept at the Bank, & were signed therein by the transferor or his attorney. For the purpose of enabling the Bank to be satisfied that the party claiming to transfer India stock was the person entitled to it, it was the custom of the Bank to keep a list of stockbrokers whose identification of intending transferors would be accepted by them. The Bank would also accept identifications made by some of their own officials, or by the representatives of private banks. In the case of transfers of amounts exceeding £2,000, the Bank usually made an independent inquiry as to the identity of the transferor, but in the case of smaller amounts it was practically impossible to do so. Def. was on the above-mentioned list of stockbrokers. A woman fraudulently personated another who was a registered holder of India stock, & having procured herself to be introduced to def. as the holder of that stock, instructed him to prepare a transfer. Def. accordingly sent to the Bank a "ticket," i.e., a statement of the names of the transferor & transferee, the nature of the stock, & the amount to be transferred, from which ticket the Bank prepared a transfer in the transfer-book,

& the personator attended & forged the holder's signature in the book, deft. identifying her as being the holder. The transfer being for a nominal consideration, deft., according to the usual practice in such cases, received a fee of one guinea for his services & attendance at the Bank from the transferor. The stock was subsequently transferred to G., who purchased it bonâ fide & for value. On discovery of the forgery the original stockholder claimed to be reinstated on the register as the holder of the stock, & the Bank, in satisfaction of that claim, purchased stock of a like amount & transferred it into her name. The Bank then sued deft. for indemnity in respect of their loss as upon a breach of warranty of the identity of the transferor:—Held: there was evidence on which the ct. could find, & the proper inference of fact was, that deft. requested plffs. to permit the entry & registration of the forged transfer, which involved the legal consequence that deft. contracted to indemnify plffs. against any liability resulting therefrom, & plffs. were entitled to recover as damages the loss to which they had been put by having to purchase stock as aforesaid.—*BANK OF ENGLAND v. 25. Means of knowledge—Gross negligence of true owner.—The exors. of a stockholder sued the Bank for refusing to transfer stock of testatrix, & to pay the dividends. Nearly all the stock had been sold & transferred in the lifetime of testatrix by her nephew C., who had brought another woman to personate her, & forge her signature. After the sale, testatrix had repeatedly received the warrants for the reduced dividends in person, & had signed the warrants & the bank books, being on those occasions accompanied by C., who mentioned the amount of dividend in her presence. The jury found that she had the means of knowing of the transfer, but that there was no evidence of actual knowledge, & that she had been guilty of gross negligence, & that defts. had not been guilty of any:—Held: (1) the facts were a defence on the plea of not guilty; (2) they furnished evidence in support of pleas denying that testatrix was proprietor of the stock; & a plea denying that sufficient money had been received by defts. for paying the dividends.—COLES v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1839), 10 Ad. & El. 437; 2 Per. & Dav. 521; 9 L. J. Q. B. 36; 4 Jur. 266; 113 E. R. 166.

26. Appointment of receiver by court—Order to bring stock into court.—Under Lunacy Act, 1890 (c. 5), s. 116, the judge or master in lunacy has jurisdiction to make an order appointing a receiver of dividends on stock standing in the Bank in the name of a person who is, "through mental infirmity arising from disease or age, incapable of managing his affairs," & under ss. 133 & 146, the Bank may safely act on such order: but, as it is unusual to appoint a receiver of dividends on Bank of England stock standing in the name of another person, the better course in such cases, in the absence of any special reason to the contrary, is to bring the stock into ct. Such an order should not be intituled "In Lunacy."—Re BROWNE, [1894] 3 Ch. 412; 63 L. J. Ch. 729; 71 L. T. 365; 43 W. R. 175; 10 T. L. R. 656; 38 Sol. Jo. 679; 7 R. 580, C. A.

27. ——— Form of order.—By an order made under Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 116, by the master in lunacy, a receiver was authorised, in the name & on behalf of a lady who had been found through mental infirmity to be incapable of managing her affairs, "to receive & give a discharge for all dividends, interest, & income & all arrears thereof respectively to which she is or may become entitled"; & it was ordered that the securities & bonds belonging to her then deposited with her bankers were not to be dealt with until further order. Among the securities belonging to the lady were certain stocks registered in her name in the books of the Bank; but the officials of the Bank declined to act upon the order until it had been amended by the insertion in the body thereof of particulars of the stocks in the bank-books which were sought to be dealt with thereby:—Held: (1) although there was jurisdiction to do so, the practice was not to appoint a receiver of the dividends only of stocks standing in the books of the Bank, but to order the stocks to be transferred into ct. in the name of the Paymaster-General, & then to let the receiver obtain the dividends from him; (2) the officials of the Bank were perfectly justified in declining to act upon so vague & general a direction as was contained in the order, & the practice had always been to have a schedule to such an order detailing the stocks which were sought to be dealt with thereby.—Re AUCHMUTY (1908), 99 L. 28. ——— Payment of arrears of dividends to receiver.—Where an order is made by a master in lunacy under Lunacy Act, 1890, s. 116, appointing a receiver, on completing his security, to receive all dividends & arrears thereof to which a person suffering from "mental infirmity" is or may become entitled, "including dividends accrued & to accrue due before lodgment upon the funds to be lodged pursuant to the lodgment schedule," & directing the lodgment in ct. of certain Bank of England securities, the Bank must pay all arrears of dividends accrued before lodgment direct to the receiver & not into ct. The Bank may safely act upon an order in such form, & in so doing are clearly within the indemnity provided by ss. 146 & 333.—Re SPURLING, [1909] 1 Ch. 199; 78 L. J. Ch. 198; 99 L. T. 898, C. A.

29. Committee—Order by court authorising committee to appoint new trustees and new trustees to call for transfer.—The ct. having authorised a lunatic's committee to exercise on her behalf the power of appointing new trustees, by the same order directed such trustees to call for a transfer of bank annuities into their own names. The bank objected that there should have been two orders, one authorising the committee to appoint new trustees, the other vesting in such trustees the right to call for a transfer:—Held: the Bank were bound to obey the original order.—Re SHORT- RIDGE, [1895] 1 Ch. 278; 64 L. 30. Lunatic trustee—Transfer by order of court of consols in name of—Form of order.—A person of unsound mind not so found being sole trustee of a sum of consols, the judge in lunacy, upon the application of A., made an order, under Lunacy Acts, 1890 (c. 5) & 1891 (c. 65), that the right to call for a transfer of, & to transfer into his own name, the consols standing in the name of the lunatic, & to receive the dividends thereon, should vest in A., & that he should transfer the consols into his own name to be held by him upon the trusts applicable thereto. The Bank refused to act upon such order on the ground that some proper officer of the Bank should have been appointed to make the transfer:—Held: the order made by the judge was right, & the Bank must act upon it, & must allow the consols to be transferred accordingly.—*Re C. 31. Memorandum by Bank—Suspected defect of title—Whether permissible.—Transfer of moneys in the Bank, in the name of a feme covert, made by the husband, which moneys, it was suspected, she held by virtue of a trust to her own separate use. A memorandum was made by the Bank, on transferring the stock, of a defect of title suspected:—Held: to make such memorandum must not be allowed, nor would any secret trust, as against the party who had open legal title, affect the Bank.—MAYO'S (LADY) CASE (1772), Lofft, 65; 98 E. R. 535.

32. Consols in name of married woman & other persons—Necessity for husband's consent—Married Women's Property Act, 1870 (c. 93), ss. 3, 7.—The above Act does not empower a married woman, entitled under s. 7 to a sum of stock for her separate use, to transfer such stock without the concurrence of her husband, unless & until the stock has been placed, under s. 3, in her name as a married woman entitled for her separate use.

A sum of consols was standing in the name of three persons, one of whom was a married woman, who had been deserted by her husband & was entitled beneficially to the stock under s. 7 of the above Act. Those persons applied to the Bank to be permitted to transfer the stock without the concurrence of the husband of the married woman; & the Bank having refused:—Held: the Bank could not be compelled to permit such transfer.—HOWARD v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1875), L. R. 19 Eq. 295; 44 L. J. Ch. 329; 31 L. T. 871; 23 W. R. 303.

33. Married woman also executrix—With order for protection of property—Consols in name of testatrix—Costs.—A married woman, deserted by her husband, was left extrix. & residuary legatee under a will, after proving which, she obtained from a magistrate, under Divorce & Matrimonial Causes Act, 1857 (c. 85), an order for the protection of her property:—Held: she was entitled to transfer consols standing in the name of her testatrix in the books of the Bank of England, & to receive dividends thereon as if she were a feme sole. Semble: the same rule would have applied if she had been merely extrix., without taking any beneficial interest under the will. Rule as to costs where the Bank of England is deft.

It is a question of the greatest nicety, & one requiring to be settled for the protection of the public at large. The property in question is consols, as to which the bank are public trustees. If it had been bank stock, which is their own property, a different question might have arisen. As it is, I cannot possibly say that the bank ought to pay costs (PAGE-WOOD, V.-C.).—*BATHE v. D. to Bkpcy. Act, 1861 (c. 134), which was duly registered under s. 192 of that Act. P. had then a sum of £500 Bank of England stock in his own name, but he died without transferring it to the trustees, & left no personal representative. The Bank refused to make the transfer in their books:—Held: under Bkpcy. Acts, 1849 (c. 106) & 1861, the ct. had jurisdiction to order the Bank to make an entry in their books to the effect that the stock was the property of the trustees. Form of order made.—Re PRICE, Ex p. BANK OF ENGLAND (1867), 2 Ch. App. 662; 36 L. J. Bcy. 24; 16 L. T. 760; 15 W. R. 1066, L.J.J.

G. Proceedings against Bank in respect of Stock.

37. Action to compel transfer—Application to restrain litigants from proceeding—Bank as stakeholder—Interpleader.—Where money in the public funds is the subject of a suit, to which the Bank are made defts., the ct. will not, on the application of the Bank, make any order on the litigating parties to restrain them from proceeding at law against the Bank to compel a transfer, but they must file a bill of interpleader. The Bank must be considered as private persons who are stake-holders, & as such are most certainly entitled, if they think proper, to file a bill of interpleader, but it is certainly necessary for the Bank to apply in the shape of plffs. (LORD THURLOW, C.).—BIRCH v. CORBIN (1784), 1 Cox, Eq. Cas. 144; 29 E. R. 1101.

42. Notice to prevent transfer—Application to allow transfer—Interim injunction.]—A notice having been served on the Bank under Ord. 46, rr. 4, 7, to prevent the transfer of stock or the payment of dividends thereon without notice to the persons serving the notice, the Bank gave notice to them that an application had been made to the Bank to allow the transfer of the stock & to pay the dividends thereon, & that they should comply with the application, unless an order of the ct. should be served on them within eight days. A motion having been made ex p. for an order to restrain the Bank from permitting the transfer or paying the dividends:—Held: the proper course was to grant an interim injunction over the next regular motion day, & notice of the order must be served on the legal owners of the stock.—Re BLAKSLEY'S TRUSTS (1883), 23 Ch. 43 Transfer by order of court—Indemnification of Bank.]—S. having recovered judgment against J. N. & R. N. in the K. B. Div. & obtained a charging order on stock standing in their respective names in the books of the Bank, commenced proceedings in the Ch. Div. against J. N. & R. N. to obtain a sale of so much of the stock as would provide sufficient to pay the amount due under the charging order, & on June 29 an order was made for sale by S. out of ct. of portions of the stock, & that the proceeds should be received by S. in discharge of the amount found due to him, & that within seven days after service of the order J. N. & R. N. should transfer to S. the stock ordered to be sold, & in case they should neglect to do so, the ct. appointed the Stock Exchange broker of the ct. to execute the transfer, & ordered him to do so. The Bank's advisers not being satisfied that they were protected by the order, the Bank were by arrangement joined as defts. in the proceedings in the Ch. Div., & thereupon S. applied to the ct. asking that, as J. N. & R. N. had neglected to transfer the stock, the Bank might be ordered to act on the order of June 29, & to suffer a transfer of the stock ordered to be sold to be executed in the books of the Bank by the ct. broker, or, alternatively, for a fresh order for sale of the stock to satisfy the claim of S. The Bank objected that (1) any order made should be intitled "In the matter of Jud. Act, 1884 (c. 61)"; (2) the ct. could not, under s. 14 of that Act, make one anticipatory order for (a) execution of a transfer by stockholders, &

(b) for execution of the transfer by some other person in case of non-compliance; (3) it was not clear that, under an order framed in the manner proposed, the Bank would be entitled to any indemnity under National Debt Act, 1870 (c. 71):—Held: (1) it was unnecessary & inconvenient to alter the title of the order by referring to the Jud. Act, 1884, although as a matter of convenience the order might state that it was made under s. 14 of that Act; (2) without deciding that there was no case in which the ct. could make an anticipatory order, before making an order under s. 14 the ct. ought as a rule to be satisfied that the person originally ordered to execute a document had neglected or refused to comply with the order, & in the present case an anticipatory order ought not to be made; (3) as execution by the ct. broker of the transfer would in effect be the act of the stock-brokers, the Bank would be indemnified under National Debt Act, 1870.

The matter was subsequently brought before the ct., when the Bank urged that; (1) in a case like the present there was no indemnity to the Bank; (2) if the Bank were ordered to allow a transfer by the ct. broker it should only be on a condition imposed under s. 14 that S. should indemnify the Bank:—Held: (1) when once an order had been made under s. 14, & acted on, the transfer executed by the appointed person had the same effect as if it had been executed by the stockbroker, & the Bank were at any rate impliedly indemnified for acting on the order, even if the order turned out to have been invalidly made; (2) even if the condition asked for could be imposed under s. 14, it ought not to be imposed in the present case. Form of order.—SAVAGE v. NORTON, [1908] 1 Ch. 290; 77 L. J. Ch. 198; 98 L. T. 382.

44. Evidence—Proof of death—Discretion of Bank.]—Evidence which the Ct. of Ch. may now, in uncontested cases, consider sufficient to prove a death, is not necessarily binding & conclusive upon, or to be accepted as satisfactory by, the Bank. The Bank have a discretion to exercise for their own protection & the benefit of the public; & the ct. will not compel them, when exercising that discretion bonâ fide, to depart from their own settled practice.

An injunction to restrain the Bank from requiring an examined copy of a burial certificate purporting to be duly signed was refused.—PROSSER v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1872), L. R. 13 Eq. 611; 41 L. J. Ch. 327; 26 L. T. 60; 20 W. R. 362.

SUB-SECT. 3.—PAYMENT OF DIVIDENDS.

46. Government funds—No duty until dividends received from Government.]—In an action against the Bank, the declaration stated that pltf. was lawfully possessed of certain 3 per cent. annuities in the care of defts., & standing in their books in the name of pltf., for the purpose (inter alia) of paying him all the dividends which might accrue due in respect of the stock, whilst same should not be transferred in the books with the authority of pltf., & that pltf. was entitled to the stock, & that it had not been transferred in the books to any person by his order or authority, & thereupon it became the duty of defts. to pay to pltf. the dividends whilst same was not transferred, yet defts., although requested, had not paid them:—Held: the declaration was bad, as it did not appear the dividends had ever been issued by Govt. to the Bank, & until they were issued, it was not the duty of the Bank to pay them.—BANK OF ENGLAND v. DAVIS (1826), 5 B. & C. 185; 7 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 828; 4 L. J. O. S. K. B. 145; 108 E. R. 69.

47. Interest charged under judgment debt—Right of executors to dividends.—A., being possessed of £12,058 6s. 8d. new 3½ per cent. stock, bequeathed to C. an interest in £5,000, parcel thereof. A judgment having been obtained against C., the judgment creditor obtained a judge's order under Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), ss. 14 & 15, charging such latter sum with the judgment debt, which upon cause shown was made absolute as to so much of the dividends as were payable to C. for her own use. The orders having been served upon the Bank, the Bank refused to pay the dividends upon the £12,058 6s. 8d. to the exors. under A.'s will, & they brought an action against the Bank to recover those dividends. The Bank having applied for a stay of proceedings on payment of a portion of the dividends:—Held: there was no ground or necessity for the application, the Bank being bound to pay the dividends to the legal owners, the exors., who were answerable for their proper application.—FOWLER v. CHURCHILL, CHURCHILL v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1813), 11 M. & W. 323; 2 Dowl. N. S. 767; 12 L. J. Ex. 233; 7 Jur. 353, 538; 152 E. R. 827.

48. — Execution of transfer — Transferor cannot dispute transferee's title — Necessity for transferee to subscribe acceptance—Inspection.—A party having executed a transfer of stock in the form prescribed by 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 13, s. 13, cannot, in an action against the Bank, dispute the title of the transferee on the ground that he has not subscribed an acceptance of the transfer as directed by that clause.

Pltf., having been a holder of 3½ per cent. stock, brought an action against the Bank for refusing to pay the dividends. Defts. pleaded, denying that pltf. was proprietor of the stock in manner & form, etc., & their defence in fact was that, before the dividends became due, the stock had been transferred out of pltf.'s name. The ct., on motion, made an order that pltf. should be at liberty to inspect that particular entry, in the transfer book at the Bank, which related to the transfer of the stock in question, but not any other part of the bank-books.—FOSTER v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1846), 8 Q. B. 689; 15 L. J. Q. B. 212; 7 L. T. O. S. 61; 10 Jur. 565; 115 E. R. 1032.

49. Dividend warrants—Negotiability—Bonâ fide payment to holder—Liability of bank.—Pltf. sued the Bank for refusing to pay a dividend warrant issued by them in respect of a dividend due on Apr. 5. Pltf. had given a power of attorney to W. to receive his dividend. & on Apr. 6 W. received the warrant from defts. The cashiers of the Bank would not pay such warrants until the 8th. On April 7 W. transferred the warrant to bankers for value, & they received payment of the amount. W. absconded. Pltf. afterwards applied to defts. for the money, but they refused to pay him. Defts. pleaded (inter alia) that by usage & custom of bankers & merchants in London, for sixty years past, dividend warrants were transferable & assignable by delivery only, & a bonâ fide holder thereof was entitled to payment by defts. on demand:—Held: the warrant was not negotiable, not being payable to bearer, to order or to assigns, & the usage pleaded could not alter the general rule of law, by which the dividend warrant would only confer a right of action on the payee, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—PARTRIDGE v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1846), 9 Q. B. 396; 15 L. J. Q. B. 395; 8 L. T. O. S. 195; 10 Jur. 1031; 115 E. R. 1324, Ex. Ch.

50. Distribution of extraordinary profit—Capital or income.—An extraordinary division of a sum of money by the Bank among the proprietors of Bank stock, beyond the usual dividend:—Held: capital, & not the absolute property of the tenant for life, notwithstanding the division was in money, not stock, & it was to be presumed to be profit arising in the time of the tenant for life.—PARIS v. PARIS (1804), 10 Ves. 185; 32 E. R. 815.

51. — — — — ——Distribution by the Bank of extraordinary profit, beyond the regular dividend, not by way of increased dividend, but as a bonus:—Held: capital, & the manner in which it was given, made no difference. Whatever conduct or language the Bank may hold, if they do not increase the dividend, but take this mode of distributing the profit, it is a part of the capital, & does not belong to the tenant for life. The Bank may so conduct themselves as to avoid the question altogether, for they may increase the dividend, & that increased dividend would be the ordinary fruit of the stock. But, if they do not take that course, the manner, in which they give the bonus, cannot make a difference. Though they may express it differently, the thing in fact is the same (LORD ERSKINE, C.).—WITTS v. STEERE (1807), 13 Ves. 363; 33 E. R. 330.

A. Notes as Tender and Payment.

52. Before Bank of England Act, 1833 (c. 98)—Effect of objection—Annuity Act, 1777 (c. 26).—Held: Bank of England notes were a good tender,

Sect. 1.—The Bank of England: Sub-sect. 4, A. B. C. & D.; sub-sect. 5, A.]

if not objected to.—WRIGHT v. REED (1790), 3 Term Rep. 554; 100 E. R. 729.

Annotation:—Mentd. Cousins v. Thompson (1795), 6 Term Rep. 335.

53. ————.]—Held: a tender of a Bank of England note was good, if not objected to at the time.—BROWN v. SAUL (1803), 4 Esp. 267, N. P.

54. ———— 37 Geo. 3, c. 45.]—Defts., bankers, tendered to pltf. a Bank note for £5 & 5s. in silver in payment of one of their own notes for five guineas. Pltf. insisted on being paid wholly in cash, which defts. refused to do:—Held: Bank of England notes were not made legal tender by the above Act.—GRIGBY v. OAKES (1801), 2 Bos. & P. 526; 126 E. R. 1420.

55. ———— Considered as money—Statement of consideration of annuity.]—Bank of England notes are considered as money within Annuity Act, 1777 (c. 26); & therefore if bank notes & cash be given as the consideration of an annuity, the whole may be stated in the memorial as so much money.—COUSINS v. THOMPSON (1795), 6 Term Rep. 335; 101 E. R. 581.

B. Altered Notes.

56. Alteration of number—Material alteration—Avoidance of note.]—In an action against the Bank for non-payment of notes payable to bearer which had been regularly issued by the Bank, it appeared that the notes had been bonâ fide purchased by pltf. for value, but that before pltf. took them the notes had been altered by erasing the numbers upon them & substituting others, with the object of preventing the notes from being traced, as payment had been stopped & a notice issued specifying their numbers:—Held: although the alteration did not vary the contract, it was material in the sense of altering the notes in an essential part, & the notes were vitiated, so that pltf. could not recover in his action on them against the Bank.—SUFFELL v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 555; 51 L. J. Q. B. 401; 47 L. T. 146; 46 J. P. 500; 30 W. R. 932, C. A.

57. Alteration of number & date—Material alterations—Avoidance of note—Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), ss. 64, 89.]—A Bank of England note which has been materially altered in number & date is worthless, & the Bank are entitled to refuse to pay on it.

A Bank of England note had been materially altered in number & date shortly before the passing of the above Act:—Held: (1) before the Act, the Bank were not liable on the altered note, which was worthless; (2) s. 64 of the Act was not retrospective, but even if it were so, the "necessary modifications" referred to in s. 89 would exclude bank-notes altogether from the operation of s. 64, & even if the proviso of s. 64 would otherwise have affected the altered bank-note, the alteration was "apparent," as the Bank could at once discern & point out to the holder of the note that it had been materially altered, although the alteration was not obvious to everybody.—LEEDS & COUNTY BANK, LTD. v. WALKER (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 84; 52 L. J. Q. B. 590; 47 J. P. 502.

C. Lost Notes.

58. Proof of loss—Action by executors—No proof of loss or possession by testator—List of notes made by testator.]—A bill was filed by exors. for payment of lost bank-notes, upon giving security to refund

& indemnify the Bank in case any other claim should be made on them. There was no proof of actual loss, or that the notes had been in the possession of testator, other than a list of them & other notes marked as received by him. No issue was ever tried whether the notes were testator's:—Held: there was no proof of loss, the list not being admissible evidence.—GLYNN v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1750), 2 Ves. Sen. 38; 28 E. R. 26, L.C.

Annotations:—Mentd. Walmsley v. Child (1749), 1 Ves. Sen. 341, L.C.; Gleadow v. Atkin (1833), 1 Cr. & M. 410; Briggs v. Wilson (1853), 5 De G. M. & G. 12, L.J.J.

59. Proof of property in—Possession primâ facie evidence.]—In trover for a lost bank note, it is not a primâ facie case for pltf. to prove that the note belonged to him, & that deft. afterwards converted it, & deft. will not be called upon to show his title to the note, without evidence from the other side that he got possession of it malâ fide or without consideration.—KING v. MILSON (1809), 2 Camp. 5, N. P.

60. Notice to Bank—Indemnity—Holder's right to note of equal value—Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), ss. 69, 70.]—Where the holder of a Bank of England note has lost it, the proper course for him to take is to notify his loss to the Bank under Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 69, & to get another note of equal value from the Bank on giving a good indemnity; & upon an indemnity being given to the satisfaction of the master, the Bank will be restrained from setting up the loss as a defence to an action on the note.—GILLETT v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1889), 54 J. P. 7; 6 T. L. R. 9.

D. Notes stolen or obtained by Fraud.

61. Rights of bonâ fide holder—Bank refusing to pay—Liability of Bank.]—F., being possessed of a Bank of England note, sent it by post to O. The mail was robbed & the note stolen, & it ultimately came into the possession of pltf., who took it in good faith & for value. Payment of the note was stopped, & when pltf. presented it at the Bank for payment, deft., a clerk in the Bank, refused either to pay the note, or to redeliver it to pltf.:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover the value of the note in an action of trover.—MILLER v. RACE (1758), 1 Burr. 452; 2 Keny. 189; 97 E. R. 398.

Beard* (1860), 8 C. B. N. S. 372; Re Craven, Crewdson v. Craven (1908), 99 L. T. 390.

62. ———— Means of knowledge.]—Pltf., having been asked by L. to cash a note for £100, obtained change for it from the bank with whom he kept his account, & handed such change to L. The Bank refused to cash the note, as it had been stolen, & pltf.'s account at his bank was debited with the amount:—Held: as pltf. was the holder of the note & as there was no question as to his bona fides, there must be a verdict for him.—RANSTED v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1900), 21 Journal of Institute of Bankers, 157.

63. ———— Forgetfulness & carelessness—Liability of Bank.]—One who takes a bank-note or other negotiable security bonâ fide—that is giving value for it & having no notice at the time that the party from whom he takes it has no title—is entitled to recover upon it, even although he may at the time have had the means of knowledge of that fact, of which means he neglected to avail himself.

A money-changer in Paris, twelve months after he had received & filed a printed notice of a robbery of bank-notes at Liverpool, took one of the stolen notes at Paris, giving cash for it, less the current rate of exchange, from a stranger, to whom he merely required to produce his passport & write his name on the back of the note :—Held : the circumstance of his forgetting or omitting to look for the notice was no evidence of mala fides.—RAPHAEL v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1855), 17 C. B. 161 ; 25 L. J. C. P. 33 ; 26 L. T. O. S. 60 ; 4 W. R. 10 ; 139 E. R. 1030.

64. — Suspension of payment—Enquiry as to title of holder.—The holder of a bank-note is entitled prima facie to prompt payment ; but if another party has been plundered of it before, & has applied to the Bank, no impropriety can be imputed to them for suspending the payment, till it is ascertained that the party tendering it for payment is not contaminated with the guilt.—*SOLOMONS v. 65. — Title of agent—Onus of proof as to title of principal.—A Bank of England note, which was stolen in England in Feb., 1826, was remitted in May, 1827, by a merchant in Paris to pltf., his correspondent in London. On his presenting it at the Bank it was stopped as a stolen note, & payment of it refused. The foreign merchant, when he remitted it, was indebted to pltf. in a sum exceeding its amount, but pltf. did not before its stoppage make him any further advance on the credit of it ; in trover for the note :—Held : (1) pltf. must be considered only as the agent of the foreign merchant, & could recover only on his title ; (2) pltf. was bound to show that the foreign merchant gave such value for it as to exempt him from all suspicion of knowing that it had been improperly obtained.—DE LA CHAUMETTE v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1829), 9 B. & C. 208 ; Dan. & Ll. 318 ; 7 L. J. O. S. K. B. 179 ; 109 E. R. 78 ; subsequent proceedings (1831), 2 B. & Ad. 385.

66. — Notes obtained by fraud—Taken for value.—Bank-notes cannot be followed by the legal owners into the hands of bonâ fide holders for a valuable consideration without notice.

A trader, after a commission of bkpcy. issued against him, wishing to redeem a bill of exchange which he had before remitted to his bankers, to whom he was indebted beyond the amount, secretly employed an agent, in whose hands he placed for that purpose four other bills of about the same value, & such agent, after endeavouring in vain to prevail on the bankers to take in exchange such four bills for the one, passed off the four bills in the market, & obtained bank-notes for same, with which bank-notes he took up the first bill out of the bankers' hands in the usual way :—Held : the assignees of bkpt. could not recover from the bankers the amount of such bank-notes, the produce of the four bills, part of bkpt.'s estate, though disposed of by him after his bkpcy., the bankers having taken the notes bonâ fide for a valuable consideration, & without notice.—LOWNDES v. ANDERSON (1810), 13 East, 130 ; 104 E. R. 317.

67. Rights of true owner—Note cashed for stranger without inquiry.—Defts., bankers in a small town, gave notes of their own to a stranger, of whom they asked no questions, in exchange for a £500 Bank of England note :—Held : pltf., from whom the £500 note had been stolen, & who had duly advertised their loss, might recover the note of defts.—SNOW v. PEACOCK (1826), 3 Bing. 406 ; 11 Moore, C. P. 286 ; 4 L. J. O. S. C. P. 120 ; 130 E. R. 569.

68. — Note received in payment of bet.—Deft., according to one witness, having admitted taking "from his bankers, or at Doncaster," & according to another, "from a stranger at Doncaster races, for bets won," a Bank of England note, without inquiring or taking any account of the number of the note, & the jury, in an action by pltf., from whose servant the note had been stolen, & who had duly published their loss, having found a verdict for them, the ct. granted a new trial.—*SNOW v. The note was paid to deft., as he said, upon a bet on the Derby in 1832, but he could not say by whom :—Held : pltf. was entitled to recover in trover.—*EASLEY v. 71. Bank refusing to pay—Title of agent—Trover.—A. paid a Bank of England note to B. in discharge of a debt. B. paid it to C., who presented it at the Bank, where it was stopped, on the ground that it had been fraudulently obtained from a former holder :—Held : although A. thereupon paid the amount of the note to C. in discharge of the debt due to the latter from B., A. could not maintain trover for the note against the Bank.—*BENJAMIN v. #### SUB-SECT. 5.—RESTRICTION ON ISSUE OF BANK NOTES, ETC., BY OTHER BANKS.

A. Bank Notes.

72. By banking company of more than six persons—Whether issue unlawful.—S. carried on business at Carlisle as agent for L. Banking Co. of Scotland. The co. sent S. from time to time for he purpose of circulation parcels of notes of L. Banking Co. signed by the accountant & cashier of the co. & made payable to the bearer on demand at the co.'s office in L. The co. consisted of more than six partners & S. was himself a partner:—Held: the issue of the notes was illegal & in violation of the stats. passed for the protection of the Bank of England.—Re HOBSON, Ex p. RANDLESON (1828), Mont. & M. 86; subsequent proceedings (1833), 2 Deac. & Ch. 534, Ct. of R.

73. By bankers ceasing to carry on business—Whether issue unlawful.]—A firm of bankers lawfully issuing notes on May 6, 1844, & accordingly permitted by Bank Charter Act, 1844 (c. 32), under certain conditions, to continue so to do, sold their business to a limited co., “excepting their right to issue notes, but including agreed benefit of the issue”; & it was agreed that they might continue to issue their notes, but through the co.'s officers only, that the co. should allow them interest on the circulation at 2 per cent. less expenses, that to continue the issue new partners might be admitted, but not without the co.'s consent, that if their right of issue were taken away any compensation given them should go to the co. unless it should get an equal right of issue, & that if it should acquire a right of issue their right of issue was to cease. The firm ceased to carry on business except under that agreement:—Held: after the making of the agreement the firm had “ceased to carry on the business of bankers” within ss. 12 & 28 of the Act, & the issue of the notes was unlawful.—A.-G. v. BIRKBECK (1884), 12 Q. B. D. 605; 53 L. J. Q. B. 378; 51 L. T. 199; 32 W. R. 905.

74. Banking company ceasing to issue notes—Change of place of business & amalgamation—Payment of composition.]—In 1834 the H. Banking Co. was established at S., & the deed of settlement provided that “the bank shall be carried on at S. & nowhere else.” In 1841 the H. bank, by agreement with the Bank of England, ceased to issue its own notes, & the H. Banking Co. was scheduled as one of the banks entitled to a composition from the Bank of England under Bank Charter Act, 1844 (c. 32), s. 23. The H. bank passed through many changes, & in 1876 it opened a branch in London. In 1876 also, a new banking business was acquired & a new co. was formed under the name of the “H. & N. W. Banking Co.” In 1878 this latter co. acquired another business in London, & the name was changed to that of the “C. & C. Bank,” which was registered in 1880 under Cos. Acts. The Bank of England had continued to pay to the “C. & C. Bank” the yearly composition due in respect of the H. Banking Co., but in 1886 they refused to pay on the ground that the right to the composition was lost by carrying on business in London & by amalgamation with other banks:—Held: pl'ts. were entitled to recover the composition, as it was granted to the H. Banking Co. under the Act as a persona designata, and they had not lost this right by ceasing to carry on business exclusively at S., or by absorbing other banks, in conjunction, or change of name.—*CAPITAL & COUNTIES BANK v. 75. Ceasing to carry on business—Payment of composition.]—Five firms, two of which were London bankers without right to compensation, & three country bankers with such right under Bank Charter Act, 1844, ss. 23, 24, agreed to sell their businesses to a limited co., the considerations being shares in the co., & agreed in future not to carry on business as bankers. The co. carried on business at the old banks with the old staffs:—Held: the banks had ceased to carry on business, & the co. was not “such banker or bankers” as the three country firms, & neither the firms nor the co. were entitled to be paid any composition by the Bank of England.—*PRESCOTT, DIMSDALE, CAVE, TUGWELL & CO., LTD. v. ### B. Bills of Exchange.

76. Payable at less than six months from acceptance—By non-trading corporation—Whether unlawful.]—Pl'ts. sued as indorsees of a bill of exchange for £200 accepted by a corpn. payable three months after date:—Held: pl'ts. could not recover, as the bill was an illegal infringement of the stats. for the protection of the monopoly of the Bank of England.—*BROUGHTON v. 77. — By banking copartnership of more than six persons—Whether unlawful.]—The L. & W. Bank was a copartnership consisting of more than six persons carrying on business as bankers in London. M. was a banker at St. Albans & kept an account with the L. & W. Bank, who were his London agents. M. drew a bill of exchange for £25 on the L. & W. Bank payable twenty-one days after date to the order of R. The L. & W. Bank accepted the bill, having at the time moneys in their hands belonging to M. exceeding £25:—Held: the acceptance of the bill by the L. & W. Bank was an unlawful infringement of the privileges of the Bank of England, having regard to Bank of England Act, 1833 (c. 98), & the other Acts then in force respecting the Bank of England.—BANK OF ENGLAND v. ANDERSON (1837), 3 Bing. N. C. 589; 2 Keen, 328; 2 Hodg. 294; 4 Scott, 50; 6 L. J. C. P. 158; 1 Jur. 9, 12; 132 E. R. 538; subsequent proceedings, 7 L. J. Ch. 265.

78. —.]—A joint-stock bank, consisting of more than six partners, & carrying on the business of bankers in the City of London, entered into an agreement with a bank in Canada, that P., manager of the London bank, but not a partner therein, should accept bills drawn on him by the Canada bank, payable at less than six months from the acceptance thereof, & that the London bank should provide funds for the due payment of such bills, the money transactions arising thereupon being, in the accounts between the two banks, to be treated as transactions between the banks:—Held: (1) the acceptance of such bills, in execution of such agreement, was unlawful, having regard to the Acts in force respecting the Bank of England; (2) such acceptances would not be lawful, even if the London bank, at the time of the acceptances, had in hand funds on account of the Canada bank equal to the amount of the bills so accepted; (3) the acceptances of such bills would not be lawful if the London bank had not, at the time of the acceptances, any funds in hand belonging to the Canada bank, but the bills were accepted on the credit of a contract by that bank to remit funds to meet such acceptances before the bills became payable; (4) the Bank of England might maintain an action against the London bank for the infringement of its privileges.—BOOTH v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1840), 7 Cl. & Fin. 509; 6 Bing. N. C. 415; West, 298; 1 Scott, N. R. 701; 4 Jur. 762; 7 E. R. 1163, H. L.

C. Promissory Notes.

79. By commercial firm—Note at less than six months by partners—Whether valid.]—A commercial firm consisting of seven partners made a promissory note payable three months after date. Defts. objected that the note was illegal under Bank of England Act, 1741 (c. 13), s. 5:—Held: a valid note as the above Act must be construed secundum subjectam materiam, & it was the manifest object of the legislature, in framing the Act, to protect the Bank of England against rival banks.—WIGAN v. FOWLER (1816), 1 Stark. 459; 2 Chit. 128.

80. ——— Not appearing to be made by banking partnership—Whether valid.]—A joint & several promissory note, at a shorter date than six months, signed by more than six individuals, not appearing to be made by persons in partnership for the purposes of banking, is valid.—PERRING v. DUNSTON (1826), Ry. & M. 426.

SUB-SECT. 6.—BANK BOOKS.

81. Bank bills—Copies admissible in evidence.]—A copy of a bank bill on the file of the Bank is good evidence, the Bank being a public body established by Act of Parliament for public purposes.—MAN v. CAREY (1697), 3 Salk. 155; 91 E. R. 748.

82. Books—Copies admissible in evidence.]—Parol evidence cannot be given of the transfer of stock, but copies from the books of the Bank must be proved.—BRETON v. COPE (1791), Peake, 43.

84. ——— Production of originals.]—Copies of the books of the Bank are evidence, but upon a question, whether the signature to a transfer is the genuine hand-writing, the book must be produced.—AURIOL v. SMITH (1811), 18 Ves. 198; 34 E. R. 292, L. C.

Annotation:—Apld. Davis v. Bank of England (1824), 2 Bing. 393.

85. ———.]—In order to prove the acceptance of stock by deft., evidence was adduced that a person unknown to the clerk in the Bank came there with T. & made an entry of his acceptance of the stock, & a witness was then called, who proved that he had inspected the Bank books, & that the signature to the acceptance of the stock was in deft.'s handwriting:—Held: this evidence was admissible to prove the acceptance of the stock by deft., & it was not necessary that the Bank books themselves should be produced, they not being removable on the ground of public convenience.

It has been established that the books of the Bank being of great concernment to the whole of the national creditors, the removal of them would be so inconvenient, that copies of them might be received in evidence (LORD ABINGER, C.B.).

The documents produced show a transfer & acceptance in point of form, but these being only copies, they do not show that the stock was transferred to & accepted by deft., unless some acts of his, done at the time when he is at the Bank, in the Bank books, be also shown. The Bank books are not capable of being produced without so much public inconvenience, that the cts. have directed them to remain in the Bank, & copies of them to be received in evidence for the purpose for which the books are receivable (ALDERSON, B.).—MORTIMER v. M'CALLAN (1840), 6 M. & W. 58; 9 L. J. Ex. 73; 4 Jur. 172; 151 E. R. 320; subsequent proceedings, 7 M. & W. 20; sub nom. M'CALLAN v. MORTIMER (1842), 9 M. & W. 636, Ex. Ch.

Production of—Bill for discovery of stock.]—To a bill against the Bank for discovery of stock standing in the name of pltf.'s late father either alone or jointly, for twenty years before & at his death, & for an inspection of the Bank books containing the entries of such stock, the Bank in their answer set forth an account of the stock, but declined to set forth a list of the books containing the entries:—Held: they were not exempted from the production of their books, & ought to set forth a list of them.—HESLOP v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1833), 6 Sim. 192; 58 E. R. 566.

SECT. 2.—BANKS IN SCOTLAND.

89. Royal Bank of Scotland—Transfer of stock—Proprietor debtor to bank—Bye-law.]—A bye-law of the Royal Bank of Scotland, "that no proprietor, who is or shall become a debtor to the bank, shall be allowed to transfer his stock, or any part thereof, but in presence of a ct. of directors, to the end such ct. of directors, if they think fit, may stop such transfer until such proprietor

ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND* (1797), 6 Bro. Parl. Cas. 465; 2 E. R. 1202, H. L.

90. — Power to issue notes.]—Prisoner was indicted for forging a note of the Royal Bank of Scotland:—Held: it was not necessary to prove that any of its charters gave the bank power to issue notes, as such power was sufficiently recognised by 48 Geo. 3, c. 149, s. 16, & 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, s. 23.—R. v. M'KEAY (1826), 1 Mood. C. C. 130.

94. Official manager of Irish bank—Enforcing judgment against.]—Judgment was obtained in a ct. of record at Dublin against the official manager of an Irish joint-stock banking co. for a large sum. The amount due was reduced by subsequent payments in the name of deft. Pltf. executed a warrant of attorney (under 6 Geo. 4, c. 42, s. 12) to confess judgment for the sum remaining due, & judgment was signed in England. Subsequently pltf. executed a fresh warrant to confess judgment for the sum for which judgment had been signed in the Irish Ct.; the judgment was signed accordingly. On this latter judgment a sci. fa. issued against a shareholder. On his motion to set it aside:—Held: the provisions in 6 Geo. 4, c. 42, s. 12, for enforcing judgments against the public officers of banking cos. in Ireland, were, by Joint Stock Cos. Winding-up Act, 1848 (c. 45), made applicable to judgments against official managers, & the judgment on which the sci. fa. proceeded was regular.—WALKER v. GOODYERE (1857), 7 E. & B. 960; 29 L. This bank having stopped payment, three creditors filed a petition on behalf of themselves & others, the creditors of the bank, seeking to have the trusts of 33 Geo. 2 declared as against the bank & the several shareholders thereof, but the other creditors of the individual shareholders were not made parties:—Held: (1) the joint-stock bank was not a banker within 33 Geo. 2, & that stat. had no application to joint-stock banks, the provisions of the joint-stock bank stats. being irreconcilable with it & impliedly repealing it; (2) even if 33 Geo. 2, c. 14, did apply to a joint-stock bank, then all the creditors of the several shareholders ought to have been made parties. Seemle: 8 & 9 Vict., c. 98, applied to Irish joint-stock banks. An order to wind up was made in Bkpcy., & afterwards a petition to wind up in Ch. was presented, on the ground that the co. was not a banking co., & that there was no jurisdiction to wind up in Bkpcy. It was proved that the co. was not registered under either of Banking Cos. Acts, 1857 (c. 49) & 1858 (c. 91), that money could not be withdrawn except upon a stated period of notice, that cheques could not be drawn in the ordinary form, & that the co. itself kept an account with a banking-house:—Held: (1) the co. was not a banking co. within the stats. regulating joint-stock cos.; (2) being a co. of limited liability registered under the Act of 1856, it must be wound up as directed by that stat. in the Ct. of Bkpcy.—Re DISTRICT SAVINGS BANK, LTD., Ex p. COE (1861), 3 De G. The award did not state when the deficiency in the funds of the savings bank arose, or that A. was then a trustee.—Held: (1) the circular was insufficient to enable the arbitrator to proceed ex p.; (2) the award, on the face of it, showed that the arbitrator had wholly mistaken & exceeded his jurisdiction; (3) the arbitrator was empowered to award a personal liability against the trustees, in favour of the depositors, & not merely against the institution itself, in cases coming within s. 14, but such award should be restricted to the proportion of the deficiency in such deposits occasioned by the default of the trustees.—*LYNCH v. There were notices of other depositors, to the amount of £700, payable on Apr. 10, & there were other notices payable on the 17th. Between Apr. 10 & 17, deft., as treasurer, received £900:—Held: (1) there was no appropriation in law of any part of the £900 to pltf.'s use, & deft. was not liable, as treasurer, on the ground of specific appropriation; (2) the funds of the bank having been vested in deft. & other trustees, to the use of the institution & of the depositors, an action for money had & received to pltf.'s use did not lie.—*FITZGERALD v. #### 99. Compromise of claim—Dispute—Arbitration.]

—On the failure of a savings bank, depositors agreed to a compromise & accepted a composition. They afterwards disputed the settlement, on the ground that certain persons were liable for the whole of the deficit, & the dispute was referred to the registrar of friendly societies. The trustees of the bank entered on their defence before the registrar, but subsequently applied for a prohibition restraining him from proceeding with the arbn., on the ground that there was no "dispute" within Savings Banks Act, 1863 (c. 14), s. 48:—Held: there was such a dispute, & the registrar had power to determine it.—*CARDIFF SAVINGS BANK & ABERDARE DISTRICT OF ODDFELLOWS, Ex p. 1. Action against president & directors—Joint & several liability.]—A charitable institution for the relief of the poor appointed delegates to establish a savings bank. These delegates elected a president & directors who adopted a regulation prohibiting any profit to the officers of the institution. Deposits were received to be repaid with interest, & promissory notes were discounted upon the credit of individuals. Upon these discounts a percentage was taken by the directors, & a portion of the funds was appropriated to their own use for their services. The bank was ultimately closed as being insolvent, & a portion of the debts due as special deposits was bought up by the directors at a composition in the pound. In an action in assumpsit by one of the depositors:—Held: the president & directors were jointly & severally liable to such depositor.—PREVOST v. ALLAIRES (1861), 11 L. C. R. 293.—CAN.

101. Surplus funds—Misapplication—Breach of trust.]—In pursuance of 9 Geo. 4, c. 92, the increased stock or fund of the A. Bank, up to Nov. 20, 1828, was ascertained & found to amount to £742 15s. 11d. One of the rules provided that no trustee nor any person having any control in the management of the institution (except the actuary) should derive any benefit from any deposit made therein. The trustees were owners of property in the town & county, & liable to be rated for the repairs of the bridge at A. Applt. was bridge-warden in 1828. At a meeting of the trustees it was resolved that £592 15s. 11d., being surplus funds, be paid over to applt. & three other trustees for the purpose of paying the expense incident to widening the public bridge over the river at A.:—Held: a misapplication of the fund, & a breach of trust, & though the money was expended on the bridge, the parties to the payment were personally liable to refund it.—*HOLMES v. 102. — Alteration of premises—Commissioners refusing to certify payment.]—A sum exceeding £500 was standing to the credit of a savings bank in the books of the Comrs. of National Debt. The trustees deemed the accommodation then existing in the banking premises insufficient & determined to enlarge the old premises. This required a sum of £500, & the trustees had no moneys available other than the surplus funds. They accordingly applied to the Comrs. for the withdrawal of £500 from the surplus funds. The Comrs. considered that the proposed extension was not required & refused to certify the payment. The trustees acted in good faith, but the fact that the expenditure was required had not been proved to the satisfaction of the Comrs.

A peremptory writ of mandamus commanding the Comrs. to sign a certificate for payment of £500 out of the surplus funds, & to pay that amount to the trustees, was refused, on the ground that it must be found as a fact that the money was required, & the trustees were not the exclusive judges of the question.—R. v. NATIONAL DEBT COMRS. (1870), 34 J. P. Jo. 116.

103. Liability for neglect of duty—Frauds by actuary—Insolvency of bank.]—The late actuary of a savings bank had for many years systematically defrauded the bank, which consequently became insolvent & was ordered to be wound up. The frauds of the actuary could not have been committed unless Savings Banks Act, 1863 (c. 14), & the rules of the bank, especially as regards checking the sums paid into & withdrawn from the bank &

the auditing of accounts, had been constantly disregarded by the trustees & managers. The liquidator having made an application to have D., a former trustee & manager, settled in the list of contributories & declared liable for misfeasance:—Held: (1) D. was not liable to be placed on the list of contributories, but his neglect to enforce the observance of the rules was a misfeasance for which he was liable under s. 11 of the Act; (2) an inquiry should be directed, under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), s. 165, what sum he ought to contribute in respect thereof to the assets of the co.—Re CARDIFF SAVINGS BANK, DAVIES' CASE (1890), 45 Ch. D. 537; 59 L. J. Ch. 450; 62 L. 104. .]—The standard of duty for an unpaid trustee or manager of a savings bank under Savings Banks Act, 1863, cannot be placed higher than that of a director of a trading co.

In the winding-up of a savings bank, whose insolvency was caused by the frauds of the actuary, the liquidator sought to make B. liable as a trustee & manager. The father of B. had been president of the bank until his death in 1848. B. was then only six months old, but during the whole period of his minority his name was retained as president of the bank without his ever having been formally elected. He once, in the year 1869, attended a meeting of the bank & signed the minutes, but since then he had never attended any meeting of the bank, or taken any part in its management; but his name had always appeared in the copies of the rules, pass-books, & annual reports of the bank; & copies of the annual reports & circulars were sent to him, though he did not remember having received them. The ct. was satisfied that he was ignorant of the irregularities which had taken place in the management of the bank:—Held: B. not having attended the meetings & not knowing & having nothing to call his attention to the fact that the regulations were not being observed, could not be rendered liable. Semble: under the rules of the bank, the president must be regarded as one of the trustees & managers of the bank.—Re CARDIFF SAVINGS BANK, BUTE'S (MARQUIS) CASE, [1892] 2 Ch. 100; 61 L. g. Excessive deposits in fictitious names—Illegality—Forfeiture.]—C. placed various sums of money on deposit in a savings bank in fictitious names with the knowledge of the officers of the bank. He had also deposits remaining in his own name. The deposits in the aggregate exceeded considerably £200, notwithstanding the Comrs. for the reduction of the National Debt had deposited money in a savings bank in the name of B., & afterwards, without B.'s authority, received back the amount & delivered up the duplicate account book:—Held: B. still continued to be a depositor & was entitled to a mandamus to compel the bank to refer his claim to arb'n. under 9 Geo. 4, c. 92, s. 45.—R. v. CHEADLE SAVINGS BANK (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 323, n.; 3 Nev. & M. K. B. 418; 2 Nev. & M. M. C. 296; 3 L. T. M. C. 84; 110 E. R. 1228.

107. — Intention to evade restrictions on amount of deposit—No trust.—A., after depositing in his own name in a savings bank to the full extent allowed, by Savings Bank Act, 1828 (c. 92), made further deposits to another account in the name of himself & a sister, but nominally as trustee for her. The sister died, but A. still went on depositing to the same account & sometimes withdrawing sums until the account reached the full limit allowed. A. subsequently opened a third account in the name of another sister. He never informed his sisters of the existence of these accounts. By the terms of the Act of Parliament he retained control over both accounts. After A.'s death the moneys were claimed on behalf of the sisters:—Held: no trust was created, the probable intention for opening the accounts being to evade the provisions of the Act, limiting the amount to be deposited in one name.—FIELD v. LONSDALE (1850), 13 Beav. 78; 19 L. J. Ch. 560; 15 L. T. O. S. 452; 14 Jur. 995; 51 E. R. 30.

Money deposited in name of club—Disputes among members—Appointment of arbitrator.—Where a sum is deposited in the name of a benefit club in a savings bank, the bank have a right to be satisfied that parties claiming to have back the deposit really represent the club; & where disputes had arisen among the members of the club, & app'nts., who, it was said on one side, had been expelled by order of magistrates, claimed to be stewards of the club, & alleged that the order of magistrates was void, the ct. refused to grant a mandamus to appoint an arbitrator under 9 Geo. 4, c. 92, s. 45.

k. Instructions with deposit—Payment on presentation of pass-book—Rules of bank—Liability to refund.—Defts. associated themselves together to conduct a savings bank, but before they were organised under 4 & 5 Vict. c. 32, their treasurer received a deposit from B. of £75, which he swore was made by B. with the express understanding that any person producing his pass-book should be entitled to receive it. B. died, & the sum was paid to a relative, who presented the pass-book. The payment was made in pursuance of certain rules adopted by defts., but which were not filed according to the Act for some months after:—Held: such payment was unauthorised, & defts. were liable to B.'s administrator for the money.—*HUNTER v. The manager made the entry in the form of a credit to M. & E., "payable to either or survivor":—Held: neither a donatio mortis causa nor a gift inter vivos, & the bank was not a trustee.—*SPRUCE v. The institution having refused to appoint an arbitrator, at the instance of the husband, under 9 Geo. 4, c. 92, s. 45, lest such appointment should operate as an acknowledgment that the husband was the depositor, a rule nisi for a mandamus to appoint was made absolute.—*R. v. Claim by husband & wife's next of kin—Appointment of arbitrator—Lapse of time.—

A married woman deposited money in a savings bank & died in 1826 leaving her husband surviving. The moneys were afterwards paid out to F., who claimed as exor. of the depositor's grandfather. One of the rules of the bank provided that in case any depositor should have been dead seven years, & the money not claimed within that time, the trustees should be entitled to hold it for the general purposes of the trusts. Upon a claim by the husband in 1838, the ct. refused to grant a writ of mandamus to compel the trustees & managers to appoint an arbitrator.—*R. v. 133 iv. — Embarrassing defence.—To an action by the official manager of a joint-stock bank against the acceptor of a bill indorsed to the bank, with a count for money lent, deft. pleaded that a previous action was brought "against deft. for the same cause" in the Ct. of Exch., "for the benefit of the bank, by S., a public officer of the bank, which action is still pending." The ct. set aside the defence as embarrassing.—M'DOWELL v. DAVYS (1859), 8 I. C. L. R. Ap. xlii.—IR.

133 v. — Two or more public officers.—The privilege of suing in the name of any one of their public officers, given by Banking Act, 1825 (c. 42), s. 10, to banking cos. established pursuant to that Act, does not authorise the institution of a suit in the names of two or more public officers.—THOMSON v. BIRNIE (1840), 2 I. L. R. 234.—IR.

133 vi. — — — — —.—It is irregular to sue in the names of two public officers of a banking co.; but the ct. will, even after appearance, amend the writ by striking out the name of one of the public officers.—GRIMSHAW v. BOWDEN (1847), 11 I. L. R. 399.—IR.

k. Assent to deed for benefit of creditors—Executed without authority—Binding on bank.—A joint-stock banking co.:—Held: bound by a trust deed for the benefit of creditors, from the conduct of their public officer & others in assenting to it, though neither the co. nor directors had given any authority to execute it, & the arrangement was an improvident one for them.—DUDGEON v. O'CONNELL (1849), 12 I. Eq. R. 566.—IR.

m. Promissory note made to — Outlawry of officer—Note indorsed to official manager—Right of indorsee to sue.—A promissory note was made to S., the public officer of a joint-stock bank, as such public officer, & for a debt due to the bank. S. was outlawed upon an indictment for misdemeanour, & after the outlawry, & while it was in force, he indorsed the note to M., the official manager of the bank, under Winding-up Acts:—Held: M. had no title to sue upon the note.—M'DOWELL v. BERGIN (1861), 12 I. C. L. R. 391.—IR.

officer:—Held: it sufficiently showed pltf. to have been the public officer at the time of the commencement of the action.

The declaration recited 1826 Act as “an Act of Parliament made & passed in the 7th year of the reign etc., for (amongst other things) the better regulating copartnerships of bankers in England”:—Held: a sufficient recital of the Act.—ESDAILE v. MACLEAN (1846), 15 M. & W. 277; 16 L. J. Ex. 71; 153 E. R. 854.

137. — Denial of existence of bank at commencement of suit.]—In an action by the public officer of a banking copartnership, the ct. allowed a plea which denied that the copartnership were, at the commencement of the action, carrying on the trade & business of bankers, in addition to pleas of the general issue, & of accord & satisfaction.—ROE v. FULLER (1852), 7 Exch. 220; 21 L. J. Ex. 104; 18 L. T. O. S. 200; 155 E. R. 924.

138. — Liable to answer interrogatories.]—Held: under C. L. P. Act, 1854 (c. 125), s. 51, interrogatories might be administered to the public officer suing on behalf of a banking co., carrying on business in copartnership, under 1826 Act.—*M'KEWAN v. 139. — Against directors — Losses and unauthorised speculations—Bank ceasing to carry on business—Parties.]—A joint-stock banking co., subsisting under 1826 Act, having become insolvent, & ceased to carry on business, the public officer instituted a suit, charging certain of the directors, as defts., with losses during the time when the business was carried on, by reason of unauthorised speculations in shipping & collieries, & of a fraudulent transaction by a deed of arrangement with a debtor to the co., who was also made deft., & praying relief in respect of all the matters, & particularly to have the deed set aside:—Held: (1) the suit was properly instituted by the public officer, although the co. had ceased to carry on business, & it was not necessary to make the directors & trustees, who were not charged with the improper transactions & fraud, parties; (2) it appearing that the manager was mixed up in the transactions, it was necessary to make him a party.—HARRISON v. BROWN (1852), 5 De G. & Sm. 728; 64 E. R. 1318.

140. — Removal of officer—Judgment entered & execution issued in name of successor.]—A cognovit having been given in an action brought by the public officer of a banking co., under 1826 Act, by which it was provided that, upon default in payment of a sum of money, pltf. should be at liberty to enter up judgment, & issue execution:—Held: sufficient to authorise signing judgment in the name of another public officer, upon a suggestion of the removal of original pltf. being entered.

In an action brought by such public officer, judgment having been entered, & execution issued in his name, after he had ceased to be such officer, the ct. permitted a suggestion of his removal & the name of another officer to be entered nunc pro tunc upon the roll, & the judgment of ca. sa. to be amended by the insertion of the fresh officer's name without costs, though the party had been arrested, & had applied to set aside the proceedings for irregularity.—WEBB v. TAYLOR (1843), 13 L. J. Q. B. 24; 2 L. T. O. S. 106; 8 Jur. 39.

— Death after issue of writ of ca. sa.—Abatement of action]—The public officer of a banking co., who was pltf. in an action, died after the issuing of a writ of ca. sa., but before its execution:—Held: it was not necessary to bring a sci. fa.; & deft. was not entitled to be discharged on the ground that the action had abated. Semble: if there was no registered officer of the co. after the death of pltf., deft. might apply to the ct. to have one appointed in order to give deft. a discharge.—TODD v. WRIGHT (1847), 16 L. J. Q. B. 311; 11 Jur. 471.

142. — Death after issue joined — No formal suggestion of death.]—A. sued as public officer of a banking co. under 1826 Act, & 1857 Act, but died after issue joined. The Nisi Prius record was made up from the plea-roll, as though A. was alive. The venire had been awarded accordingly as between A. & defts., & no entry was made on the plea-roll of the death of A., or of the appointment of another public officer. After the Nisi Prius record was so made up, a memorandum was entered upon it, stating the fact of the death of A., & that B., another public officer of the copartnership, had been appointed to continue the proceedings, but this was not stated by way of suggestion to the ct., nor was it followed by any statement of confession by defts., or a nient dedire: & after such entry had been made, the cause was entered for trial as “B. v. (Defts.),” & was tried by the jury returned on the venire in the cause of “A. v. (Defts.).” Three defts. appeared at the trial, under protest, the fourth had suffered judgment by default, & a verdict was found for pltf.:—Held: the entry so made upon the Nisi Prius record was irregular, & did not authorise the trial in the name of B. as pltf. Qu.: whether a formal suggestion of the death of A. would have been traversable.—BARNEWALL v. SUTHERLAND (1850), 9 C. B. 380; 1 L. M. & P. 159; 19 L. J. C. P. 290; 15 L. T. O. S. 7; 14 Jur. 720; 137 E. R. 940.

Enforcing judgment against — Execution — Sci. fa.]—Where pltf. obtains judgment against the public officer of a joint-stock banking copartnership, pursuant to 1826 Act, s. 9, he may issue execution against deft. without first suing out a sci. fa.—*HARWOOD v. 144. Evidence — Proof of appointment — Stamp office returns.]—To entitle a banking co. to sue by its public officer pursuant to 1826 Act, it is sufficient if, in the return made to the Stamp Office, he be described as A. B. Esq. of, etc., a “public officer” of the copartnership; at least in the absence of proof that he had any specific office, it will not be presumed that he was more than an officer appointed for the purpose of suing & being sued. The right of such co. to sue by its public officer is not defeated if it appear that, in the return to the Stamp Office, the places of abode of one or more partners are omitted, there being no evidence that the return varies in this respect from the co.'s books. If such proof were given:—Semble: the return, if correct as to the public officers, would still be sufficient to maintain the action.—ARMITAGE v. HAMER (1832), 3 B. & Ad. 793; 1 L. J. K. 146. — Continuation of office—Presumption in absence of contrary evidence.—The office of public registered officer of a banking copartnership not being an annual office, a person once appointed to such an office is presumed to continue in it until the contrary be shown; & a return made to the Stamp Office in Mar., 1841, verified by affidavit, stating a person to be a public officer of the co.:—Held: evidence of his being so in Nov., 1842.—STEWART v. DUNN (1844), 12 M. & W. 655; 1 Dow. & L. 642; 13 L. J. Ex. 324; 2 L. T. O. S. 423; 8 Jur. 218; 152 E. R. 1361.

147. — Lists of proprietors filed at Stamp Office after expiration of time fixed by statute.—In a sci. fa. against proprietors, on a judgment against a public officer, of a banking co., under 1826 Act:—Held: lists of the proprietors filed at the Stamp Office, but not within the time limited by the Act, were not receivable in evidence as against pltf., to show that at a given time the garnishees were not proprietors.—PRESCOTT v. BUFFERY (1845), 1 C. B. 41; 135 E. R. 450.

148. Bankruptcy—Suing out fiat—Against member of bank—Form of affidavit.—Held: 1826 Act & Joint Stock Banks Act, 1838 (c. 96), were to be taken together, & the public officer of a banking co. was authorised to sue out a fiat in bkpcy., against one of the members of the co.

The affidavit of a public officer stated “that he was a registered officer, duly authorised to sue on behalf of the co., united for the purpose of carrying on business, pursuant to the Act of Parliament,” without stating that he was duly nominated, or that the co. were then actually carrying on business:—Held: this was a sufficient allegation in the affidavit of the officer’s authority, & the co. were then in fact carrying on business.—Re HALL, Ex p. HALL (1838), 3 Deac. 405; 1 Mont. & Ch. 365; 8 L. J. Bey. 5; subsequent proceedings (1839), 8 L. J. Bey. 57.

150. Action by manager—Not being public officer—Pleading.—Pltf. sued as the payee of a note made payable on demand to “the Manager of the National Provincial Bank of England,” but did not sue as public officer:—Held: (1) upon proof that he was in fact the manager & that a demand had been duly made on behalf of the bank, pltf. was entitled to recover; (2) in the absence of a plea that the bank was established under 1826 Act, & that pltf. was not the public officer, it was not necessary for pltf. to show that he was, nor competent to deft. to show that he was not such public officer.—ROBERTSON v. SHEWARD (1840), 1 Man. & G. 511; 1 Scott, N. R. 419; 133 E. R. 434.

146 i. Evidence—Continuation of office—Presumption in absence of contrary evidence.—When a party has been appointed the public officer of a banking copartnership, pursuant to Banking Act, 1825 (c. 42), & has acted as such after the certificate of his appointment is out of force, & when it appears that no other appointment has been registered according to the Act, the ct. will consider that there is sufficient evidence to go to a jury of his continuance as such public officer.—DURAND v. POTTER (1841), 1 Leg. Rep. 224; Long. & T. 253.—IR.

151. Warrant of attorney given to trustees of bank—Judgment entered in name of public officer—Debt due to copartnership.—Where a warrant of attorney is given to three trustees of a joint-stock bank, to secure a debt due to the copartnership, the judgment thereon is properly entered up in the name of the public officer for the time being.—BELL v. FISK (1852), 12 C. B. 493; 138 E. R. 999.

152. Amalgamation of banks—Guarantee given before—Right of public officer to sue.—In 1833, a joint-stock bank was established under 1826 Act, by the name of M. & H. District Banking Co. In 1836 A. & Co., bankers, relinquished their business in favour of, & all took shares in, the co., & it was subsequently agreed that the title of the bank should thenceforth be W. R. Union Banking Co., that the capital should be increased by the creation of new shares, & that additional directors should be appointed:—Held: the public officer of W. R. Union Banking Co. might, notwithstanding the change of name, & the accession of new proprietors, maintain an action on a guarantee given to M. & H. District Banking Co., before their junction with A. & Co., for advances made by them.—WILSON v. CRAVEN (1841), 8 M. & W. 584; 10 L. J. Ex. 448; 151 E. R. 1171.

153. Public officer within jurisdiction—Liability of shareholders to be sued—Debt due from copartnership.—The creditor of a banking copartnership, established & carrying on business under 1826 Act, cannot sue an individual member of the co. for his debts, but must proceed against the public officer, pursuant to s. 9, at least, where it appears that there is a public officer, & that he is within the jurisdiction.

A plea to an action against an individual member of the co. stated that the causes of action accrued against a certain banking copartnership established under the above Act, & not otherwise, of which copartnership deft. was a member, that the causes of action accrued against deft. as such member & not otherwise, that B. & D. had been duly appointed, & registered pursuant to the Act, as public officers of the copartnership, to sue & be sued on behalf of same, & that such persons, so being, & being duly nominated & appointed & registered as such public officers, at the time of the commencement of the suit, were living & resident in England, & within the jurisdiction of the ct.:—Held: (1) a good answer to the action; (2) the plea, taking it altogether, sufficiently alleged that the two persons therein mentioned actually were public officers of the co.—STEWART v. GREAVES (1842), 10 M. & W. 711; 2 Dowl. N. S. 485; 12 L. J. Ex. 109; 6 Jur. 1116; 152 E. R. 658.

published a report, representing the flourishing state of the bank, which was calculated to induce parties to purchase shares. The representation was false, but not false within the knowledge of the directors, who published it without any intention to deceive:—Held: they were not liable for loss sustained by the purchase & retention of shares on the faith of the report, though the jury found them guilty of gross negligence in publishing it.—*TAYLOR v. v. Fraudulent sale of shares—Absence of quorum.]—The deed of a banking co. provided that three directors were necessary to constitute a "Ct. of Directors," & that such of the original shares as had not been subscribed for might be sold by the "Ct. of Directors," but that the purchaser of them should not be considered as their proprietor until he had paid for them. Three directors were appointed. One having died, & another ceased to act, S. alone remained director. He ordered a large number of unappropriated shares to be entered in the name of F., a nominal party, & having circulated false balance sheets of the bank, sold them to G. & others as original shares on which dividends had been paid, the transfer deeds from F. being signed by S. & two others, not directors:—Held: (1) the issuing of the shares by S. was ultra vires & void; (2) in any case the contract was vitiated by the fraud.—Re GINGER (1856), 8 Ir. Jur. 373.—IR.

w. Liability for neglect of duty—Improper advances—Pleading.]—Relevant allegations in an action against directors of a banking co. for negligence in allowing the whole management to fall into the hands of a manager who had made improper advances, & for fraudulent concealment of losses leading to dissolution of the co., or alternatively for gross negligence in failing to ascertain & disclose such losses.—WESTERN BANK v. BAIRDS (1862), 24 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 859.—SCOT.

x. — Shareholder acting as director.]—By the contract of copartnership of a joint-stock banking co. it was declared that no shareholder could be legally a director who resided more than ten miles distant from the head office, & that a director ceased to be one if he had not attended a meeting of directors for six months. In an action by the bank against a shareholder, who had been elected & occasionally acted as a director, for loss said to have been caused by his gross negligence:—Held: defender, having assumed the position of a director, & acted as such, could not plead these clauses of the contract in bar of the action.

In an action by a joint stock banking co. against a director, pursuer alleged that defender had grossly neglected his duty in having permitted improper advances to be made by the manager:—Held: (1) with regard to alleged losses by advances on accounts-current, closed at the time when defender ceased to be a director, pursuer had set forth a case sufficiently relevant to be admitted to probation; (2) defender could not be made liable for losses on advances on accounts-current to those persons to whom the bank had continued to make advances after he had left office; (3) any liability, which defender might have incurred in allowing advances by way of discounts on bills, had been extinguished by the subsequent actings of the bank in renewing the bills & in making new advances; (4) any liability for losses by certain insurance policies had been extinguished by the sale of the policies by the bank, without notice to defender.—*WESTERN BANK OF SCOTLAND v. y. Making false return—Evidence.]—The president of a bank was tried for having wilfully made a false & deceptive return to the Govt. respecting the affairs of the bank. On the trial, other returns, made both before & after that in respect to which the indictment was laid, were received in evidence without the jury having been cautioned:—Held: there must be a new trial.—*R. v. 154 i. Misrepresentation in report—No knowledge of falsity.]—Pltf. sued doft. as directors should be not fewer than five nor more than seven, that three or more should constitute a board, & be competent to transact all ordinary business, & that the directors should have power to compromise debts, etc. Agents might be appointed by the directors to draw & accept bills, etc., without reference to the directors. The number of directors became less than five; four directors, being the whole number then existing, executed a deed compromising a large debt due to the bank, taking from debtor a mining concern, & covenanting with him on behalf of the co. to indemnify him against certain bills of exchange. In an action of covenant by debtor for not indemnifying him:—Held: such covenant did not bind the co., for this was not ordinary business, & no smaller number than five directors was competent under the deed to transact it. Qu.: whether a board of three directors could transact even ordinary business unless it was a board of three out of five directors.—*KIRK v. director of a bank, alleging that in a report made to the shareholders, & a statement accompanying it, doft. falsely & fraudulently misrepresented the condition of the bank, thereby inducing pltf. to believe it sound & to purchase stock:—Held: (1) there was no evidence of false statements knowingly made by doft. with a fraudulent intent; (2) the report was not a representation within C. S. U. C. c. 44, s. 10, so as to require it to be signed by doft.; (3) if the statements were false & fraudulent, doft. would be liable, although they were made to the stockholders, for they were intended & used for public information.—*PARKER v. 156. Borrowing money—Discontinuance of bank—Liability of bank to repay loan.]—By a deed of settlement, a joint-stock banking co. was established as a bank of issue & deposit at Sydney, in New South Wales. The deed contained clauses conferring powers upon the directors “for the better management of the concerns of the co., etc.,” whereby it was declared that they should have, & be expressly invested with, “full power & authority to superintend, order, conduct, regulate, & manage all & singular the affairs & business of the co., to the best of their discretion & judgment, under & subject to the provisions thereafter contained.” Such board of directors were further empowered to “devise & make such provisions, rules, orders & regulations, touching the government, carrying on, & management of the affairs of the co., same not being repugnant to the general rules & regulations therein contained, as they should think expedient.” In 1843, the banking co. became involved in pecuniary difficulties, whereupon the directors at Sydney applied to the A. Bank for a loan, & borrowed from that bank, at various times, the sum of £154,000, for which the directors gave their promissory note. Upon the negotiation of this loan, the directors of the banking co. entered into an agreement with the A. Bank, whereby they stipulated that the banking co. should cease to be a bank of issue, deposit & discount, & should become a loan co., & that no transfer of shares or stock should be made without the consent of the A. Bank; they also agreed to wind up & get in their capital as a loan co. Payment of the note for £154,000 was refused by the shareholders of the banking co., on the ground that the stipulations contained in the agreement were ultra vires the directors. In an action brought by the A. Bank on the promissory note against the chairman of the banking co.:—Held: (1) the directors of the banking co. had the powers of managing partners in an ordinary banking partnership, & amongst these, was the power of borrowing money for the purpose of discharging the existing liabilities of the co. till the assets should be realised, & of discontinuing the co. if they thought such conduct essential to the interests of the shareholders; (2) the circumstances of the engagements of the directors to repay the loan being accompanied by other stipulations, some of which were ultra vires, did not discharge the co. from liability to repay the loan, as the only effect of those stipulations was that they could not be enforced.—BANK OF AUSTRALASIA v. 157. From company—Company's lien on borrower's shares sufficient security.]—Clause 15 of the arts. of assocn. of a limited banking co. provided that the co. should have a paramount lien on all the shares held by any shareholder for all his debts to the co., & empowered the directors, in case of non-payment of any such debt, or in the event of the bkpcy. of the shareholder, to sell his shares, & apply the proceeds in discharge of his debt. Clause 98 empowered the directors to lend the funds of the co., or give credit, with or without security, & provided that no advances without security should be made or credit given to any director:—Held: the lien given by clause 15 was a security within clause 98, & a loan might be made to a director without any other security than the lien, if the board considered his shares to be of sufficient value.—Re NATIONAL BANK OF

158. Promissory notes—Deed of settlement—Liability of shareholders.]—The directors of an unincorporated & unregistered joint-stock banking co., called the R. Bank of A., made & issued promissory notes in the following form:—“We, directors of the R. Bank of A., for ourselves & the other shareholders of the co., jointly & severally promise to pay” . . . “for value received on account of the co.” (Signed) “A. Chairman, B. & C. Directors”:—Held: assuming that the parties signing were authorised to sign promissory notes on account of the partnership, this form of note showed sufficiently an intention to bind the partnership jointly, & though the attempt to bind the shareholders severally was ultra vires, & void, yet the shareholders were bound jointly.

An action was brought on the notes; they were at five years' date; & attached to each were coupons for half-yearly interest at the rate of 5 per cent. till the principal sum would become due. They were issued through a broker, employed by the directors; & plffs. paid him the full value. In the advice notes from the broker to plffs. the transaction was called a sale of debentures. The money thus raised was employed as capital, in starting branches of the bank abroad. The deed of the co. authorised the establishment of branches of the bank in all places east of the Cape of Good Hope, & gave very full powers to the directors to manage the whole concern:—Held: the deed authorised the directors to issue notes, & borrow money, as they had done, for the purpose of starting the branches.—MACLAE v. 160. ———.]—The directors of a joint-stock bank issued instruments in the following form: “U. Bank Post Bill.—At sixty days after sight of this our first bill of exchange (second & third of the same tenor & date not paid), We promise to pay on account of the proprietors of the U. Bank of C., to the order of L. & Co., the sum of co.'s rupees, ten thousand. Value received (Signed) R., G., directors.” By their deed of settlement the business of the co. was to consist in issuing promissory notes, payable to bearer on demand, for any sum not less than eight co.'s rupees, & not exceeding one thousand, & bills of exchange payable at such time after date or sight as the directors should fix, to parties who should require same & deposit the amount of such bills in the bank, & in all other branches of business usually transacted by bankers in C. It was also provided that no promissory notes or bills of exchange should be issued otherwise than of the description & in the manner above mentioned. 161. Agreement as to remuneration of officer—Deed of settlement.—The governing body of a joint-stock co. have no right to do acts out of the common routine of the co.'s business except such as they are authorised by their deed of settlement to do.

Where, in pursuance of a prior contract, the directors of a co. by deed agree to give to a general manager a remuneration which may by possibility be payable after the cessation of the concern, such instrument is not only proper but valid, under the deed of settlement, where it gives the directors power to pay & allow to the general manager, etc., such remuneration as they shall think proper, & to confirm all acts done by persons acting as directors in the formation of the co. A sum of money secured annually for a fixed number of years to an officer of a joint-stock banking co., which may exceed in time the duration of the co., is not in the nature of a superannuation allowance.—WILKINS v. ROEBUCK (1858), 6 W. R. 644.

162. Undertaking to pay money to bank—Joint & several liability—Material alteration of document—Discharge of director.—Several directors of a banking co., amongst whom was deft., signed a document whereby they severally undertook to pay a sum of money to the bank, the intention, however, being that they should only be bound each for a proportion thereof. The deft. & some others paid their proportion, & the secretary then struck out their names without the knowledge of deft., being under the impression that the legal effect of the document was what had been intended. An action was brought against deft. on this document to cover the whole amount secured :—Held : the document was in the custody of the bank as distinguished from the individual directors, & the above material alteration discharged deft.—BANK OF HINDOSTAN, CHINA, & JAPAN v. 163. Continuance of business at loss—With assent of shareholders.—The deed of settlement of a banking co. provided that if at any time the losses of the co. should have exhausted the whole of the surplus fund, & also one-fourth of the paid-up capital of the co., the directors should, as soon as possible, call a special general meeting of the proprietors, & submit to it a full statement of the affairs of the co., & if it should appear at such meeting that the losses of the co. had exhausted the surplus fund & also one-fourth of the paid-up capital, the co. was to be dissolved. Losses having been incurred to the extent of more than one-fourth of the paid-up capital, a special meeting was called in 1842, at which it was resolved that the co. should go on, & from that time till 1863 the co. continued to be carried on, the directors issuing favourable balance-sheets & declaring dividends. Further capital was lost, but no meeting was called again, & when the co. was wound up, in 1863, the debts very considerably exceeded the assets. Upon a bill filed by the official liquidator, seeking to make the directors liable for the losses subsequently incurred :—Held : as the shareholders were aware of the position of affairs when it was resolved to continue the bank, the directors were not liable for not calling another meeting & stopping the concern.—TURQUAND v. 164. Resolution to wind up company—Acceptance of bill of exchange by director after liquidation.—A resolution to wind up a banking co. voluntarily was confirmed on Nov. 22, & advertised in the London Gazette on the 26th. On the 24th one of the directors, who had been appointed one of the liquidators, accepted, as director, a bill of exchange on the bank. This bill was afterwards indorsed for value to a person who had no notice that the bank was in liquidation :—Held : the bill was not a bill of the co., & the holder could not prove against the co. for the amount.—Re LONDON & MEDITERRANEAN BANK, BOLOGNESI'S CASE (1870), 5 Ch. 165. Fraudulent breach of trust—Judgment that directors guilty—Reversal of judgment—Liability of individual directors.—In Dec., 1865, I. Co. guaranteed the subscription of forty thousand shares in L. Co., & the payment of £5 per share thereon to the N. Bank. L. Co. then applied to the bank to discount the promissory notes of I. Co. for £200,000, which the bank agreed to do upon the undertaking of L. Co. that until the amount of the notes should be paid to the bank there should stand to the credit of L. Co. an amount equal to the sum which might remain unpaid on the notes, & that if the notes were not paid at maturity, the bank should pay same out of the balance standing to the credit of L. Co., & cancel the notes. The bank thereupon discounted the notes. I. Co. thus fulfilled its guarantee, & L. Co. obtained a settling day on the Stock Exchange. The notes were not paid at maturity & the bank repaid itself out of the balance standing to the credit of L. Co. In Feb., 1869, a decree was made in a suit by a shareholder in L. Co. against the directors of that co. & the bank that the directors had been guilty of a breach of trust, & that the bank, having been participators in that breach of trust, must refund the £200,000. In July, 1869, an agreement between the official liquidator of L. Co. & the bank for the compromise of the latter's liability under the decree was confirmed by the ct. Subsequently the bank filed a bill against three of its directors to make them refund the amount which the bank had paid & might have to pay under the compromise, & it was held that the directors were liable to refund the amount. From that decision the directors appealed, & before judgment was given the Ct. of Appeal reversed the decree made in Feb., 1869 :—Held : as the decision on which the compromise was based was wrong, & the bank was not really liable to pay that which they had been decreed to pay, the directors were not liable to make good the amount paid by the bank under the compromise.—PARKER v. LEWIS (1873), 8 Ch. App. 1035; 43 L. J. Ch. 281; 29 L. T. 199; 21 W. R. 928, L.J.J.

166. Making private profit—Sale of shares—Liability to refund.—M., V., L., & H. were four of the directors of the N. Bank. A resolution was passed by the directors to increase the capital of the bank by the issue of twenty thousand new shares, to be offered in the first instance to the holders of the old shares at a premium, the shares not taken up by them to be offered at an increased premium to other persons. The directors entered into an arrangement with S. that he should take up all the shares not taken up by the old shareholders, & the result was that more than ten thousand of the new shares were allotted to S. The arrangement with S. was not disclosed to the shareholders. S. was unable to take up the shares, & authorised the directors to transfer some of them to other persons, at the same price as that at which he was to have taken them, & four thousand three hundred of the shares were transferred to M., V., L., & H., who sold them at a profit, the shares being then at a higher premium than at the time of issue:—Held: M., V., L., & H. were bound to refund to the bank all the profits they had made on the resale of the four thousand three hundred shares.—*PARKER v. There was a provision in the deed that in case of any difference amongst the parties a case should be laid before counsel, which plff. had not done. Upon this ground, & also upon a strong opinion that the ct. had not jurisdiction in the case unless all the shareholders were made parties, the injunction was refused.—*SUGRUE v. Retirement—Cancellation of shares—Validity.]—The deed of settlement of a joint-stock banking co. contained a stipulation that, in all cases not provided for by that or any supplemental deed of settlement, the directors might act in such manner as to promote the interests & welfare of the co.:—Held: this clause did not enable the directors to cancel the shares of a retiring director, so as to exempt him from responsibility, & on the co. being wound up upwards of ten years after such a cancellation, the retiring director was properly placed upon the list of contributories.—*Re ST. The co. was subsequently ordered to be wound up & the ct. decided that the transactions on the retirement of S. were invalid, & that he was a contributory. Before the winding-up, W., another director, had paid money to satisfy the claims of creditors, & the master made a call upon all the contributories for the payment of such money to the exor. of W., but that order was discharged, so far as respected S.:—Held: the retirement & cancellation of his shares having been declared invalid, S. was not entitled to any indemnity, & must contribute towards the call.—*Re ST. K., V., & S. constituted the "ct." K. tendered, by letter to S. alone, his resignation, & from that time, Mar. 22, 1855, ceased to act as director. On Mar. 29 K. transferred all his shares to S., but the formalities required upon a transfer of shares were not observed:—Held: K. was bound to

It also empowered them to purchase shares in the co., & hold them as part of its property:—Held: the directors were empowered to accept the resignation of one of their body, & afterwards to release him from the acceptance of certain shares which he had taken, & to restore to him a promissory note which he had given in respect of them, the resignation & the relinquishment of the shares being altogether distinct transactions, & no fraud being suggested.—Re ROYAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA, COCKBURN'S CASE (1850), 4 De G. & Sm. 177; 20 L. M'DONALD (1843), 6 I. L. R. 163.—IR.

177 iv. ——— Stoppage of payment by bank.—In a scire facias against a shareholder of a joint stock banking co., upon a judgment obtained against the public officer under Banking Act, 1825, deft. pleaded that the bank was one within 33 Geo. 2, c. 14, & being in debt, had stopped payment, & that its property & effects were under the administration of the Ct. of Ch., but without stating the nature of the administration proceeding:—Held: in the absence of such a statement, it could not be assumed that the property was being administered under 33 Geo. 2, c. 14, so as to raise the question whether that Act was repealed by 1825 Act, & the liability of the co.'s property to be applied in a ct. of equity, under the former Act, for the benefit of the creditors, afforded no defence to a proceeding at law, under the latter Act.—CARROLL v. 177 v. ——— Breach of agreement to compel non-subscribing shareholders to contribute.—By an arrangement for winding up the affairs of a banking co., which had stopped payment, the assets were assigned to T., a shareholder, & to S., who undertook its liabilities. It was part of the arrangement that S. should obtain a judgment against the public officer, to be used only to compel non-subscribing shareholders to contribute. S. became bkpt., & his assignee issued a scire facias against T. On a bill by T. to restrain him:—Held: the judgment made for a scire facias against the members at the time of the contract, on affidavit that before the judgment all the shareholders who possessed any available property, except two, had ceased to be shareholders, & that the new shareholders were possessed of no property:—Held: a rule should be refused, for though a creditor of a banking copartnership was not bound to proceed at any particular time on his judgment against the public officer, yet whenever he issued execution he ought to endeavour to make it available against all the then members of the copartnership.

A member of a banking copartnership sold his shares before the date of the contract on which the co. was sued, & his name was omitted in the return made to the Stamp Office, a wrong form of sched. having been adopted:—Held: the question as to his being a shareholder at the time of the contract was a matter to be tried on a scire facias.

A fi. fa. issued against a public officer, who was also a member of the co.:—Held: it was a question to be tried, whether it issued against him as a member for the time, or merely nominally against him as public officer. Semble: a scire facias for execution against members at the time of the contract ought to state the prior execution against those who were members at the time of the execution.—BANK OF ENGLAND v. 186. Proof of membership.—To obtain a scire facias against former members of a banking copartnership, under 1826 Act, ss. 12, 13, it is enough to show that executions, after scire facias, have been issued against several of the present partners, & nulla bona returned, that reasonable inquiry has been made as to the solvency of all, & that there is, on such inquiry, ground for believing that execution would not be effectual against any. On this last point a prima facie case is sufficient. To prove that a party, against whom such application is made, was a shareholder at a given time, it is enough to produce certified Stamp Office returns made, under ss. 4 & 5, by a person styling himself "cashier" of the co.

A party was named as a shareholder in one of such returns, but, in the next return exhibited to the ct., being of the same year, his name did not appear. On pltf.'s part, affidavit was made of belief that the last mentioned return was incorrect in omitting the name, & that the party continued a member beyond the time when it was made :—Held : sufficient ground for presuming that he did so continue, the party himself making affidavits in answer, & not stating any time when, or manner in which, he ceased to be a member, though he denied generally having been a member when the contracts sued upon were made, & some of these were made before & some after the second return.—HARVEY v. The rule was afterwards enlarged, & was finally abandoned on payment of the costs by pltf. :—Held : pltf. was not to be precluded from coming again to the ct. for leave to issue such scire facias. Semble : the general rule, that a matter could not be agitated twice, did not apply to the case of an application to issue a scire facias upon fresh materials.—DODGSON v. One of the alleged members obtained a rule nisi for setting aside the warrant of attorney, & the ct.

ordered an issue to be tried upon the question whether the shareholders of the latter co. were indebted to the former in any, & what, sum :—Held : debts. on such issue could not object that some parties on the record were members of both cos.—BOSANQUET v. In Apr., 1847, a creditor of the banking co. became such, & so continued long after testator's death. In 1849 the creditor obtained judgment against the public officer of the co. for his debt. Under a decree for the administration of testator's estate the creditor, after he had obtained his judgment, brought in his claim against testator's estate :—Held : as it was not suggested that the banking co. had ceased to carry on business, or that there had been any attempt to enforce the judgment against the present shareholders, who were primarily liable, the creditor had not made out a case to charge testator's assets, which were liable only in the second degree, & the petition must be dismissed.—HEWARD v. The co.'s deed of settlement provided that the husband of any female shareholder should not be a member in respect of such shares, but should be at liberty to sell them, or at his option to become a member on complying with certain requisitions, which debt. did not do :—Held : debt. was not a member for the purpose of execution by scire facias on a judgment against the public officer.—NESS v. Deft. was aware that his wife was a shareholder, but never interfered in the matter, & when applied to for a call said he would have nothing to do with it. The deed of settlement provided that the husband of any female shareholder should not be a member in respect of such shares, but might either dispose of the shares so vested in him, or at his option become a member on complying with certain requisitions:—Held: deft. was not a member of the co. for the purpose of execution against him by scire facias on a judgment against the public officer.—*DODGSON v. 201. Charging shares—Whether banking company is "public company."—Deft. held shares in the U. Bank, & judgment having been obtained in an action against him, a judge at chambers made an order, under Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), s. 14, charging such shares with the judgment debt. On application to set aside such order, it appeared that the bank consisted of a great number of shareholders, & was carried on pursuant to the terms of a deed of settlement, by which it was provided that the shares should not be transferred except by the consent of the directors, & also that if any order or decree was made against any proprietor by which his shares became charged, they were to be forfeited to the co. The co. was not registered under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 110, but was entitled to sue & be sued by a public officer under 1844 Act, s. 47, and 1826 Act:—Held: it being doubtful whether the co. was a public co. or not, the order ought not to be set aside.—*GRAHAM v. 205. Obtained against secretary in India.]—To enable a bank to sue & be sued in the name of their secretary or treasurer, it was enacted that all actions, etc., against the co. should be brought against the secretary or treasurer for the time being as nominal deft., that a memorial of the names, etc., of the directors, secretary, & treasurer, & of the several persons members & proprietors of the bank, should be inrolled in the manner therein mentioned, & that every judgment, etc., in any action, suit, or proceeding in India against the secretary or treasurer should, subject to the express provisions of the Act, "have the like effect & operation upon & against the property & funds of the bank, as if such judgment, etc., had been made or pronounced against all its members, & as if all the members had been parties before the ct. to such action, suit, & proceeding, & as if the Act had not passed." The Act then provided that, in case execution upon any judgment in such action, etc., obtained against the secretary or treasurer, should be ineffectual for obtaining satisfaction against the funds of the bank, execution might issue against proprietors for the time being, & that proving ineffectual, then against persons who were proprietors at the time of the contract, provided that no such execution should issue against any other person than the actual party to the suit, without leave of the ct. in which the action was brought:—Held: there was nothing in the Act to prevent a creditor, having obtained a judgment against the secretary of the bank in India, from enforcing it by action against a shareholder in this country, the special provisions as to execution merely regulating the mode of procedure in India, & that the non-inrolment of a memorial in pursuance of the Act was no answer to an action upon such judgment.—KELSALL v. The particulars of demand stated that the action was brought to recover "cash deposited or received by deft. as pltf.'s banker." At the trial, pltf. began, & called a witness, who proved that she had a banking account, on which a balance was due to her to the amount stated in the particulars, with a banking co. called the Isle of Man Joint Stock Bank, which had since become insolvent, & in which the persons mentioned in the plea, & others also, were shareholders. The witness was cross-examined as to the state of the banking account, & not as to the fact of deft.'s being also a shareholder, but pltf. gave no affirmative evidence to prove that he was one:—Held: that fact was sufficiently admitted by the pleadings & proceedings at the trial to entitle pltf. to recover.—CRELLIN v. CALVERT, CRELLIN v. BROOK (1845), 14 M. & W. 11; 14 L. J. Ex. 375; 5 L. T. O. S. 75; 9 Jur. 810; 153 E. R. 368.

208. Right to transfer—Approval by directors—Reasonable exercise of power.]—By the deed of settlement of a banking co. it was declared that no person should be entitled to become a transferee of a share unless he was approved by the ct. of directors:—Held: the directors must exercise their power reasonably, & would be controlled by a ct. of equity. Qu.: whether it was a reasonable ground of objection that the proposed transferee was the nominee of a rival bank with which the shares had been deposited as security.—*ROBINSON v. 209. ——— Irregular mode of transfer — Effect in equity.]—A banking co. was established under 1826 Act. By the deed of settlement of the co. it was declared that no transfer of shares should be permitted, except upon notice to the directors, & on the consent thereto of a board of directors, such consent to be signified by a certificate in writing signed by three directors at the least. If such consent was refused, the shareholder might require the directors to buy his shares at the market price of the day. After a consent given the name of the transferee was entered in the share register book, & the entry there was conclusive against him. No shareholder could compel an inspection of the books of the co. S. was a shareholder; he desired to transfer his shares to different individuals, & he sent the proper notices to the directors; he received back consents signed by three directors, on which he completed the transfers; the transferees' names were entered in the share register book; & the returns made to the Stamp Office under the Act omitted the name of S. from the list of shareholders, & inserted it in the list of those who had ceased to be shareholders. The transferees afterwards received the regular notices of meetings, etc. The directors subsequently sought to impeach these transfers, on the ground that the notices had never been submitted to a "board of directors," nor the consents given by such "board," but that the consents had merely been examined by the managing director alone, then signed by him, & afterwards signed by two other directors. This mode of transacting the business of the co. had existed ever since the formation of the co.:—Held: the directors could not set up their own want of observance of the formalities required by the deed as a ground on which to fix S. with liability as a continuing shareholder, & their course of dealing bound them, & he was released.—BARGATE v. SHORTRIDGE (1855), 5 H. L. Cas. 297; 3 Eq. Rep. 605; 24 L. J. Ch. 457; 25 L. T. O. S. 204; 3 W. R. 423; 10 E. R. 914, H. L.

211. ——— Notice of transfer.]—By the deed of settlement & charter of a bank it was provided that, upon a transfer of shares taking place, seven days' previous notice in writing of the proposed transfer, specifying the various particulars, should be given to the directors before any transfer could be made, & that after the consent of the directors had been given, the transfer should be executed & delivered to the secretary to be registered, whereupon a new certificate was to be delivered to the transferee. The co. had departed from this form, & the usual practice had been for the secretary to deliver out a blank form of transfer without any previous notice, & when returned filled up & executed, it was registered, & new certificates handed to the transferee. Certain shareholders who had executed the transfer, but whose transfers had not been registered, objected to being placed upon the list of contributories, on the ground that the consent of the directors had been practically dispensed with in all previous transfers:—Held: although the seven days' notice had been waived for the sake of facilitating transfers, the consent of the directors was necessary, which consent was proved by the registry on the books of the co.; & consequently the objecting shareholders were liable as contributories.—*Re ROYAL BRITISH BANK, Ex p. paramount lien on all the shares of any shareholder for all moneys due to the co. from him alone, or jointly with any other person, & the co. might decline to register any transfer of shares whilst the shareholder making same was, either alone or jointly with any other person, indebted to the co. on any account whatsoever. P., a shareholder in the bank, was indebted to it on three bills of exchange. Before those bills became due they were renewed by the bank taking from P. three others. It did not appear whether the bank retained the former bills or not. Before the second bills were due, P. transferred his shares for value to H. P. signed the transfer in blank, & afterwards suspended payment. H. subsequently requested the bank to register the transfer, which they refused to do, on the ground (inter alia) that they had a lien on the shares of P. for their debt:—Held: at the time when the bank refused to registered in the name of each member for his debts & liabilities to the co., & further, that "every person, who accepts any share in the co. & whose name is entered on the register, & no other person, shall for the purposes of these articles be deemed to be a member, & no notice of any trust express implied or constructive shall be entered in the register or be receivable by the co., nor shall the co. be in any manner bound thereby." In 1889 the co. became registered as a limited co. under Cos. Act, 1864. In 1884 certain shares in the co. in the estate of a deceased person S. were transferred into the name of H., & stood in the register book of the co. in the name of H., together with an entry opposite H.'s name in the words "administrator of S. deceased." Upon the registration of the bank as a limited co., the administrator was entered upon the register then compiled, in his own name as owner of the shares, but that register did not disclose that H. in fact held the shares as administrator. In 1892 pltf. was appointed trustee of the estate, & the administrator H. signed a transfer of the shares to him in due form, & he forwarded the transfer to the co. & applied to be registered. The co. refused to register pltf. on the ground that they held a lien over the shares standing in H.'s name, because he had become indebted to the bank on his own account:—Held: debts had no lien over the shares, & pltf. was entitled as damages to the value of the shares at the time of debts' refusal to register him.—McLAUGHLIN v. BANK OF VICTORIA, LTD. (1894), 20 V. L. R. 433.—AUS.

213 iii. — Resolution of shareholders.]—In an action against applt., a shareholder, to recover a call, he defended on equitable grounds, that before call or notice thereof he made a transfer of the shares to a person authorised & qualified to receive same, & he & the transferee did all things necessary for the valid & final transferring of the shares, but pltf., without legal excuse & without reason, refused to record such transfer, or to register same in the books of the bank. At a special general meeting of the shareholders of the bank, it had been resolved that a loan should be obtained to enable the bank to carry on business, & "that the shareholders agree to hold their shares without assigning them until the principal & interest due on such loan shall be fully paid." Deft. was not present when the resolution was passed. Subsequently to the resolution, & prior to the transfer of deft.'s shares a large number of other shares had been transferred in the books of the bank:—Held: deft. could not be deprived of his legal right under Banking Act (34 Vict. c. 5) to transfer his shares, & to have the transfer recorded in the books of the bank, &

the plea was a good equitable defence to the action.—SMITH v. BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA (1882), 8 S. C. R. 558.—CAN.

213 iv. — — —.]—Pltf., the holder of a number of shares in the L. Bank, sold same to S. & forwarded to him a power of attorney authorising the registry of the transfer. At the same time he forwarded to the manager of the bank his stock certificates to be cancelled on the transfer being registered & notified the bank of the transfer. S. paid the consideration for the shares, & forwarded the transfer to the manager, whom he requested & authorised to register his acceptance. The bank declined to register the transfer until after payment of a certain loan which had been procured in pursuance of a resolution passed at a meeting of shareholders at which pltf. was present, & which purported to bind the shareholders to hold their shares without assigning them until the principal & interest due on such loan had been fully paid:—Held: there being evidence that the loan was effected on other security than the resolution, & that the resolution was never acted upon, pltf. was not deprived by the passage of the resolution of the legal right to transfer his shares & to have the transfer registered in the books of the bank.—BARRE v. 213 v. — Contingent liabilities—No assent of directors—Bye-laws of bank.]—Deft., the registered owner of shares in the U. Bank, by order requested the manager to transfer the shares to the savings bank. This order was not complied with because (1) deft.'s promissory notes were held by the U. Bank, & the shares were not transferred in order that if the notes were dishonoured, the shares would be there to respond; (2) to constitute a valid transfer the assent of two directors was necessary under a bye-law of the bank:—Held: (1) the bank had no power to hold the shares except for a liability actually due & existing; (2) the above bye-law was void in law, & a remedy existed for the savings bank against the U. Bank.—AINSWORTH v. CUSACK (1859), 4 Nfld. L. R. 352.—NFLD.

213 vi. — Transferor paying calls—Indemnity from transferee.]—The transferor of shares, where registration of the transfer is lawfully refused by the directors of the co., is entitled to recover from the transferee the amount of subsequent calls which he has been compelled to pay. Such liability of the transferee is not affected by Bank of New Zealand Share Guarantee Act, 1894, s. 4, or Bank Directors & Shares Transfer Act 1894, s. 2, where the shares were Bank of New Zealand shares, & were transferred subsequently to the passing of the said liable. B. having obtained judgment against the bank, sued out a scire facias thereon against A. as a shareholder. A perpetual injunction was granted to restrain B. from proceeding at law against A. upon the scire facias, & to restrain the bank from placing A.'s name on the next ensuing annual register.

214. Liability after assignment—No new return—Delay in deed of transfer.]—A. appeared, by the return under 1826 Act, to be a shareholder of a banking co. up to Nov., 1838. He then agreed to assign his shares to B., who was appointed by the co. a director in respect of those shares. In Feb., 1839, the co. indorsed bills to petitioners. The bank officials purported to accept & register the transfer to resps., but to reject the transfer from them. Neither transfer was approved by the directors or authorised in writing by the president as required by Bank of New Zealand Share Guarantee Act, 1894, s. 4, the then directors & president being in London. The bank having sued for a call, resps. denied they were shareholders when the call was made:—Held: even if the requirements of the above sect. could be waived, there was no waiver, & no facts existed which would estop resps. from setting up the sect.—BANK OF NEW ZEALAND v. After their death their representatives agreed to transfer the stock to C.'s widow, & the certificates were handed over to her, & she afterwards received the dividends, but no transfer was made in the bank books as required by its charter & bye-laws:—Held: the exors. were properly placed on the list of contributors for the stock standing in their names on the register, & not C.'s name.—Re WEST-MORLAND BANK, PRESIDENT, ETC., Ex p. stock bank to B., the shares to be transferred by A. to C., who was to hold same as trustee for B., but charged with the purchase-money & interest at 5 per cent., payable half-yearly, until the principal was fully paid. The shares were transferred by A. to C., but the deed of settlement required a notice of all proposed transfers to be left at the office of the directors, which was not done. The assignment not having been registered when the first dividend after the transfer became due, A. received it & retained the surplus on account of another debt due to him by B. A subsequent dividend was received by C. & paid over by him to A., who appropriated it as he had done with the former dividend :—Held : A. was properly included in the list of contributories. Seem : non-compliance with the formal conditions required by the deed of settlement of a co. for transfer of the shares does not vitiate a transfer by a shareholder.—*Re TIPPERARY J. 214 viii. — — — Shares transferred to bank—Transferor's name fraudulently replaced on register.]—A., a shareholder in the A. Bank, sold, in 1837, his shares to the co., who entered the sale in their books. The printed deed of transfer required by law was filled up & executed by pltf., but not by any of the trustees of the bank, & no memorial of transfer was executed. In the register, filed in Nov., 1837, A.'s name appeared as having ceased to be a partner, & it was omitted in the annual register of shareholders filed in the years 1838, '39, '40, '41, & '42. In 1843 A.'s name was again replaced on the register of shareholders, in pursuance, as alleged by A., of a fraudulent arrangement between the bank & B., in order to make A.

222. Stoppage of payment—Fresh registration—Voluntary winding up—Order by court.]—In 1836 a joint-stock banking co., having a capital of fixed amount, divided into shares of fixed amount, was constituted under 1826 Act by deed of settlement. It carried on business on Aug. 17, 1857, when 1857 Act was passed, but on Nov. 26, 1857, it stopped payment. At a meeting of the co. held on the 26th of the following month it was resolved that the co. should be registered under 1857 Act, & such registration was accordingly effected on Dec. 30, 1857. At a subsequent meeting of the co., held on Jan. 22, 1858, it was resolved that the co. should be forthwith dissolved under the provisions of its deed of settlement, & that it should be voluntarily wound up, & liquidators for that purpose were appointed at that meeting:—Held: (1) notwithstanding the co. had stopped payment before it was registered, it fell within 1857 Act, & the ct. had power to make an order approving of such voluntary winding up; (2) in the circumstances an order should be made for winding up by the ct.—Re NORTHUMBERLAND & DURHAM DISTRICT BANKING CO. An insurance co., in order to deposit $50,000 with the Minister of Finance & receive a licence to do business in Canada according to Insurance Act (R. S. C. c. 124), deposited the money in a bank & forwarded the deposit receipt to the Minister. The money in the bank drew interest, which, by arrangement, was received by the co. The bank having failed, the Govt. claimed payment in full of this money as money deposited by the Crown:—Held: it was not the money of the Crown but held by the Finance Minister in trust for the co., & it was not subject to the prerogative of payment in full in priority to other creditors.—*MARITIME BANK v. 225. — Purchase of new shares — Fraudulent reports of directors.]—The charter of a banking co. empowered the directors to increase the capital by the issue of new shares of £100 each, but not by less than £10,000 at a time, & it was provided that the additional capital derived from such new shares should not be published & declared as a portion of the capital of the co. till the Board of Trade was satisfied that the whole amount of the increase of capital from time to time determined on had been subscribed for the shares issued, at least £50 per share paid up, & a supplementary deed executed by the persons taking the shares. An issue of two thousand new shares was determined upon, the subscribers to be entitled to £5 per cent. interest on the sums paid by them until they had paid up £50 per share, & afterwards to participate in dividends. M. took some of them, paid up £50 per share, & executed a supplementary deed, obtained certificates of shares & received interest, but only a small part of the two thousand shares was ever subscribed for. The sums received in respect of them were entered in the reports under the head of liabilities:—Held: M. was a shareholder liable to be placed on the list of contributories, & not entitled to rank as a creditor for what he had paid.

The directors of a co. from time to time made to the general meetings of shareholders & printed & published false & fraudulent reports of the affairs of the co. In 1911 the society was ordered to be wound up & questions of priority arose between the outside creditors, the unadvanced shareholders, & the bank customers on current & deposit account (for convenience called the depositors). The assets were insufficient for payment of all claimants in full, but were more than sufficient for payment of the outside creditors & the shareholders:—Held: (1) the carrying on of the banking business was ultra vires: (2) the depositors were not entitled to recover money paid by them on an ultra vires contract of loan on the footing of money had & received by the society to their use; (3) the assets remaining after payment of the outside creditors must be taken to represent in part moneys which the depositors could follow, as having been invalidly borrowed, & in part moneys which the society could follow, as having been wrongfully employed by its agents in the banking business, & subject to any application by any individual depositor or shareholder with a view to tracing his own money into any particular asset, & to the costs of the liquidation, ought to be distributed pari passu between the depositors & the unadvanced shareholders according to the amounts respectively credited to them in the books of the society at the commencement of the winding up; (4) the right to follow money was not confined to cases where there was a fiduciary relationship.—*SINCLAIR v. 232. Industrial society—Carrying on business of banking—Illegal loans.—An industrial society, formed & registered under Industrial & Provident Societies Act, 1862 (c. 87), had by its rules, when founded, power to obtain loans on the security of bonds & subject to certain formalities. In 1877 the society passed a rule that money should not be received on deposit. Notwithstanding those rules the society had from time to time received loans on deposit without any bond, & had entered such loans in a book in the form of an ordinary banking book. The deposits were added to & withdrawn from at will, & carried interest. In 1887 the society passed a rule purporting to render the loans valid, & to make them a first charge upon the assets of the society. On a petition by the liquidator of the society for directions as to the distribution of the assets:—Held: (1) the rule of 1887 was invalid & not binding on the society; (2) the society, by taking loans on deposit in the manner it had done, had in reality carried on the business of a banker as prohibited by s. 3 of the above Act & by Industrial & Provident Societies Act, 1876 (c. 45), s. 10 (2), (3).—Re BOTTOMGATE INDUSTRIAL CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY (1891), 65 L. u. "Manager"—"Officer"—Act No. 557, s. 13.—The word "manager" in the above sect. means, with reference to a banking corp., either the head manager at the head office wherever situate, or the manager of the branch bank at which the debt is due. An inspector in Melbourne, of a bank having its head office in New South Wales is only an "officer" within that sect., & if he make the affidavit of renewal of a bill of sale, must depose of his own knowledge to the facts.—*BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES v. She assented, & gave him her deposit note, for which he gave her a fresh deposit note for the difference between the amount of the former note & the purchase-money, & retained the residue for the purpose of making the investment. This money the local manager appropriated to his own use, & the bank refused to bear the loss:—Held: they were liable, the jury having found that the manager intended & induced the lady to believe that he was acting as the agent of the bank, & also prosecuted under Bank Act, s. 153, for signing a false statement in the Govt. returns:—Held: it must appear that accused knew that he was signing a false statement, & the signing did not afford a presumption juris et de jure of wilful intent or guilty knowledge.—*R. v. 235 ii. —.]—Defts. employed D. as manager of a branch bank at C., where D. kept his own private account. M., a customer of the bank, devised his house to his wife, & bequeathed a policy of insurance to pltf., & appointed D. his exor. M. died in 1886, at which date the house was subject to a mtge. for £300, & the policy of insurance was vested in defts. as security for an overdraft of M., the latter on M.'s death amounting to £161 13s. 10d. D. proved the will, & on defts. receiving the proceeds of M.'s policy of insurance, amounting to £690, that amount was placed to M.'s credit in the bank. Shortly afterwards D. drew out on his own cheque the balance remaining after payment of M.'s overdraft & lodged it to the credit of his own private account in the bank, which was then largely overdrawn, M.'s account being closed. In 1887, the sum of £300, portion of pltf.'s trust funds, was invested by D., with the consent of pltf., on a transfer to D. of the mtge. on the house devised to M.'s widow, & the latter, who had a private current account in the bank, thereafter paid by her own cheque the yearly interest on the mtge., the cheques being handed each year by one of pltf.s. to D. to add to the money in the bank; & those cheques were also in each year placed to D.'s private credit in the bank, thereby reducing his over-draft for the time being. In 1893 M.'s widow borrowed from her daughters £134, & the transaction was carried out by D. entering £134 to her credit in her bank pass-book, & by her & her son, on the requirement of D., signing two undated promissory notes in the ordinary form used by the bank, for £100 & £34 respectively, D. saying that he required that to be done "to keep the bank safe, & himself safe." In 1901 M.'s widow, who owned a deposit receipt for £300 in the bank, made a present to pltf.s. of such sum, & indorsed the deposit receipt to them, & one of pltf.s. brought the deposit receipt to the bank, & handed it across the counter to a junior official, D. being absent, & told him they wished it added to their other money in the bank. On the same day the deposit receipt was lodged to the credit of D.'s private account, thereby reducing a large overdraft. D. each year furnished pltf.s. with an account purporting to show the balance due to pltf.s., & adding interest at a fixed rate, & interest on the mtge., the last of such accounts being dated Jan. 1, 1909. D. left defts.' employment in 1909, when his own private account was largely overdrawn (the overdraft, however, being secured to the bank), & died shortly afterwards. In an action by pltf.s. against deft. co. to recover the amount named in the account last furnished as due on an account stated & settled, & for money had & received for pltf.s.' use:—Held: defts. were liable.—*MALONE v. Bank, which was then also in liquidation. Two days after he sold these bills to E. C. Co., then but recently incorporated, of which, by the articles of assocn., he was sole director:—Held: (1) P. must be taken to have acted as agent for E. C. Co., which was not affected with notice of the fraud committed by him on the O. Bank, for he could not be taken to have disclosed his own fraud; (2) as the bills were overdue when E. C. 239. False representation —Guarantee as to payment of cheque—Liability of bank.]—Pltf. having for some time, on a guarantee of defts., supplied D., a customer of theirs, with oats on credit, for carrying out a Govt. contract, refused to continue to do so unless he had a better guarantee. Deft.'s manager thereupon gave him a written guarantee to the effect that the customer's cheque on the bank in pltf.'s favour in payment for the oats supplied should be paid, on receipt of the Govt. money, in priority to any other payment, "except to this bank." D. was then indebted to the bank to the amount of £12,000, but this fact was not known to pltf., nor was it communicated to him by the manager. Pltf. thereupon supplied the oats to the value of £1,217; the Govt. money, amounting to £2,676, was received by D. & paid into the bank, but D.'s cheque for the price of oats drawn on the bank in favour of pltf. was dishonoured by defts., who claimed to retain the whole sum of £2,676 in payment of D.'s debt to them. Pltf. having brought an action for false representation, & for money had & received:—Held: (1) there was evidence to go to the jury that the manager knew & intended that the guarantee should be unavailing & fraudulently concealed from pltf. the fact which would make it so; (2) defts. would be liable for such fraud in their agent; (3) the fraud was properly charged in the declaration as the fraud of defts. Qu.: whether pltf. could have recovered under the count for money had & received.—BARWICK v. 241. Discounting bills—Ordinary course of business of bank—No bad faith proved.]—A banking co. brought an action against their late manager & cashier to recover moneys belonging to the bank, alleged to have been improperly applied in discounting bills, etc., for his own advantage, for the benefit of parties & cos. with whom he was connected, & in which he was interested. Such transactions were all in the ordinary course of the business of the bank, & he had not exceeded the power & authority with which he was intrusted, & no case of bad faith could be proved against him:—Held: in the circumstances, no such action could be sustained.—*BANK OF UPPER CANADA v. 242. Statement by—To purchaser of bill—Stoppage of bank—Rights of purchaser.]—Pltfs. purchased from the N. O. Bank a bill of exchange drawn on the L. Bank. The manager of the N. O. Bank, at the time, told pltfs. that there was or would be at the maturity of the bill a balance at the L. Bank of more than sufficient to meet the bill, & that there was no doubt it would be paid. The course of dealing between the N. O. Bank & the L. Bank was that the former drew bills on the latter, & employed them also to collect the moneys receivable on bills remitted to them, the agreement being that the L. Bank was never to be under cash advances, & the funds remitted had always been sufficient to meet its acceptances. Soon after the purchase, the N. O. Bank suspended payment, & the L. Bank refused to accept the bill. The funds in the hands of the L. Bank were abundantly sufficient to meet all their acceptances for the N. O. Bank, & also to pay the bill:—Held: the statements of the manager were merely a correct statement of the course of business between the two banks, & did not give the purchaser of the bill any lien on the funds in the hands of the L. Bank.

If what was said by the manager had amounted to a contract to charge the funds, the clearest proof would have been necessary that he had authority to make such a contract (JAMES, L.J.).—THOMSON v. SIMPSON (1870), 5 Ch. App. 659; 39 L. J. Ch. 857; 18 W. R. 1090, L.C. & L.JJ.

The bank having gone into liquidation, the accounts were debited with this advance as made to the bank, & the bank in ignorance of the facts, acquiesced in this statement of account:—Held: acquiescence & ratification must be founded on a full knowledge of the facts, & must be in relation to a transaction which might be valid in itself, & not illegal, & to which effect might be given as against the party by his acquiescence in & adoption of the transaction, & there was no ratification by the bank.—*BANQUE JACQUES-CARTIER v. He obtained money from the branch establishment, on cheques signed by him as exor., he not having opened an account in that character, with which he made further advances upon property on which his testator had a lien. Upon this being discovered by the directors, he assigned the security to them:—Held: the bank were bound by his knowledge as their manager, & were not entitled to a first charge on the property.—COLLINSON v. 240 i. Misrepresentation—Inducement to sign bills of exchange & promissory notes.]—Held: the representations of the manager of pltfs.' branch bank inducing deft. to sign four bills of exchange & five promissory notes were within the scope of the authority of a manager of a bank.—BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA v. FISH (1894), 32 N. B. R. 434; new trial ordered (1895), 24 S. C. R. 709.—CAN.

to lend him his name to cheques, to buy shares of the bank, promising that for any money paid by him in connection therewith, he would be reimbursed by the manager. Applt. gave his cheques, which the bank paid in due course. In an action by the bank claiming the amount so paid:—Held: applt. was bound to honour his cheques & had no recourse against the bank for the warranty given by the manager without their authorisation or knowledge.—PYKE v. SOVEREIGN BANK (1915) Q. R. 24 K. B. 198—CAN.

240 iii. — Inducement to accept drafts.]—The local manager of a bank, having received a draft to be accepted, induced the drawer to accept, by representing that certain goods of his own were held by the bank as security for the drafts. In an action on the draft against the acceptor:—Held: the bank were not bound by such representation, & by taking the benefit of the acceptance they had not adopted the manager's statement in procuring it.—RICHARDS v. BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA (1896), 26 S. C. R. 381.—CAN.

247. Inducing customer to sign cheque by fraud—Transaction fraudulently entered in bank books as loan from bank—Right of bank to recover from customer.—The manager of pltf.'s bank obtained the signature of deft. to a cheque, purporting to be drawn upon the bank by deft., under the pretence that it was a receipt (deft. being unable to read it), & then paid him a private debt of his own with the banker's money. The transaction was entered in the books of the bank as a loan from the bank to deft., upon his cheque:—Held: the banker was not entitled to maintain an action against deft. to recover back the money, the cheque having been obtained by the fraud of his agent.—FOSTER v. GREEN (1862), 7 H. & N. 881; 31 L. J. Ex. 158; 6 L. T. 390; 158 E. R. 726.

248. Negligence—Deed of settlement—Measure of liability.—The declaration in an action against the manager of a banking co., after alleging the retainer & employment of deft. & the nature of his duties as manager, stated that he "did not nor would take due & proper care not to advance the money of the co. to persons of doubtful, insufficient, or bad means or credit, or on doubtful, insufficient, or bad securities, or to discount bad or forged bills & notes, & negligently & improperly advanced the money of the co. to persons of doubtful, insufficient, & bad means & credit, & on doubtful, insufficient, & bad securities, & discounted & renewed bad & forged bills & notes, & wholly neglected to take due & proper care or to use or employ due & proper skill & diligence in & about the management of the affairs of the bank & the discharge of the duties of manager as aforesaid." Plea to so much of the breach as above set out, that the deed of settlement of the co. contained a clause, which provided that "none of the directors, trustees, or other officers, should be answerable or accountable for the insufficiency or deficiency of any security or fund in or upon which the moneys of the co. might be placed out or invested, or for any loss, damage, or misfortune which might happen to the moneys, funds, effects, or property of the co., unless same should happen in consequence of the wilful neglect or default respectively of such director, trustee, or other officer of the co.," that deft. was the manager & an officer of the co. within the deed of settlement, & was employed as such upon the terms of the last-mentioned clause, & that the alleged breaches to which the plea was pleaded did not happen by reason or in consequence of the wilful neglect or default of deft. as such manager as aforesaid:—Held: the plea was a good answer as to so much of the breach to which it was pleaded.—WARD v. GREENLAND (1865), 19 C. B. N. S. 527; 144 E. R. 803.

249. Transfer of shares—Signing as "manager in trust."—Shares were transferred to a bank, whose manager transferred them to applts. The words "manager in trust" were appended to the manager's signature:—Held: these words meant in trust for the bank, & not a fiduciary relation to any other person, & were not so ambiguous as to cast upon applts. the duty of making inquiry.—LONDON & CANADIAN LOAN & AGENCY CO., LTD. v. DUGGAN, [1893] A. C. 506; 63 L. J. P. C. 14; 9 T. L. R. 600; 1 R. 413, P. C.

250. Representations as to credit—Misrepresentation by manager—Liability of bank.—Pltf. sued J. & G. jointly for a false representation with respect to the solvency of R. J. was sued as the public officer of a banking co. formed under Country Bankers Act, 1826 (c. 46), & G. was the manager at one of their branches. Pltf. was a customer of the S. Bank, & requested the manager of that bank to inquire for him as to R.'s credit. The manager wrote a letter addressed to the manager of defts.' banking co., requesting information whether R. was responsible to the extent of £50,000. G. replied in his own name, signing his letter as manager, & giving a favourable account of R.'s responsibility. Pltf., in consequence of this letter, supplied R. with goods, for which he never was paid, in consequence of R.'s insolvency. The statement made by G. was false to his knowledge. Defts.' banking co. had no knowledge, otherwise than through G., that such letter had been written, & gave him no express authority to write the letter;

248 i. Negligence — Recording lists of proprietors.—Where a manager of a bank delegates the duty of recording the list of proprietors of the bank to a clerk, under Bank & Bank Holidays Act, 1898, No. 9, s. 9, & the list filed is incomplete, such manager is not liable to a penalty for omitting or neglecting to cause such list to be recorded, in the absence of evidence of personal neglect or default on his part.—MILES v. HENDERSON (1907), 7 S. R. N. S. W. 19.—AUS.

t. Petitioning in bankruptcy.—A bank manager, with power to institute "actions, suits, or other legal proceedings" on behalf of his bank, has power to petition in bkpey. for it.—Re MACKAY, 2 J. R. N. S. 150.—N.Z.

u. Promise to credit customer for private debt—Customer's cheques honoured—No credit in bank books—Right of bank to recover.—A bank is not bound by a promise of its manager to pay a private debt of his own to a customer, by placing the amount to the customer's credit with the bank, unless such promise be carried into effect by corresponding entries in the bank books.

A customer drew cheques upon the faith of such a promise, & the manager, without having placed any money to the customer's credit, honoured such cheques. The customer's account was thus, without his knowledge, overdrawn:—Held: the customer was liable to the bank for the amount of the over-

250 i. Representations as to credit — Misrepresentation by manager—Liability of bank.—A bank agent informed an intending cautioner that debtor's account was overdrawn, without mentioning certain bills on which he was liable:—Held: there was no duty on the agent to disclose debtor's total indebtedness to the bank.—ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND v. GREENSHIELDS, [1914] S. C. 259; 51 Sc. L. R. 260.—SCOT.

250 iii. — — — — —]—Expression of opinion.—A bank manager untruthfully, but unknowingly, told an intending surety that K. was "all right & would be able to meet his liabilities":—Held: a mere expression of opinion, & surety liable.—NATIONAL BANK OF NEW ZEALAND v. MACINTOSH (1881), 3 N. Z. L. R. 217, C. A.—N.Z.

v. Representation as to future payment — Whether personal contract.—Deft., the manager of a bank, represented that certain moneys would be paid by the bank on behalf of a debtor as a composition to his creditors, & gave the agent of himself & debtor authority to draw on his bank for the composition payable to the several creditors:—Held: deft. had not entered into any contract upon which he was individually responsible.—HENTY v. HOLT (1875), 3 C. A. 20.—N.Z.

x. Selling bank shares — Agreement to reassume a specified date & price.—It is beyond the scope of the duties & powers of a bank manager to sell shares of his bank under a condition that the bank will reassume them within a specified date, at an agreed price, effecting, thereby, the stock transaction known as a "put."—*COATES v. 251. ————.]—In an action against the G. Bank & K., the manager of one of their branches, for a false representation as to the solvency of an individual, the statement of claim alleged as follows:—that plffs., through their bankers, S.'s Banking Co., caused the following letter to be written & sent to the G. Bank: "Private.—S. Bank, Bristol, Oct., 1875.—We shall feel obliged by your favouring us with your confidential opinion as to the general character & responsibility in the way of business of F. to the extent of £1,000 to £2,000"; that in answer to the letter the G. Bank, intending thereby to deceive plffs. & induce them to give credit to F., caused a letter of reply to be sent to S.'s Banking Co., which was written & signed by K. upon paper belonging to the G. Bank, & supplied by them to K. for the express purpose of answering such inquiries, & was in the words following: "G. Bank, Stroud, Oct. 6, 1875.—Confidential.—For your private use & without responsibility on the part of this bank or the manager.—S.'s Banking Co., Bristol.—Gentlemen,—The person you inquire about is respectable & doing a good business, but we consider his means are not sufficient for his requirements in trade. The amount you state (£2,000) seems rather large for a single transaction.—We are, etc., K., manager"; that the words "G. Bank, Stroud, 1875.—Confidential.—For your private use & without responsibility, etc.," were printed upon the paper by the instructions of the G. Bank, before it was supplied to K.; that at the time the reply was written & sent by defts., F., to their knowledge, was insolvent, & owed more than £1,000 beyond his assets, & was largely indebted to the G. Bank, & defts. were interested in inducing corn merchants to give him credit; that, in consequence of the reply, plffs. were induced to sell & deliver goods to the value of £818 10s. 6d. to F., on credit, in Feb. 1876, in which month he filed a petition for liquidation of his affairs, & plffs. lost the whole of the £818 10s. 6d. so due & owing to them as aforesaid:—Held: defts. were not liable for the misrepresentation of K., the manager.—*HOSEGOOD v. 254. Advice as to investments—Negligence.—Pltf. in 1911 went to Canada on pleasure stayed at Montreal with the general manager of defts., who gave him a letter of introduction to the branch managers asking them if he applied for assistance or advice to place themselves at his disposal. In 1912 he again visited Canada, seeking investments, & presented the letter of introduction to G., defts.' branch manager at V., upon whose oral advice he invested the sum of £25,000 upon a mtge. to secure a loan to a Canadian co., who were customers & debtors of the bank. The advice, which was honestly given, involved oral representations as to the credit of the co. The co. having failed to pay either interest or principal, pltf. brought an action against defts., claiming

a. Waiving liability of maker of promissory note.—In the absence of evidence as to the actual authority of a bank manager, it is within the scope of his implied authority to waive, for good consideration & in the course of transacting the bank's business, the liability of the maker of a promissory note held by the bank, but beyond the scope of his authority to waive that liability without consideration & as a mere matter of favour.—*COLONIAL BANK OF AUSTRALASIA v. damages for negligence & breach of duty while acting as his bankers & advisers. It was admitted that G. had no general authority to advise as to investments:—Held: (1) Stat. Frauds Amendment Act, 1828, s. 6, did not apply to the action; (2) (LORDS FINLAY, C. & SHAW OF DUNFERMLINE, diss.) there was no evidence upon which the jury could reasonably find that G. had authority to advise pltf. as to his investments, or that defts. owed any duty to pltf. to advise him carefully or at all; (3) defts. were entitled to judgment.—*BANBURY v. 255. Fraudulent report of directors—Inducement to buy shares—Liability of officers.—Where a fraudulent report of a joint-stock bank is issued, signed by the directors, & calculated to deceive the public, if one of the public, relying on such false report, buy shares & suffer loss, he can sue for the loss not only the directors who signed such report, but also the manager, secretary, or other officers who concurred in & assisted in concocting it, though the latter did not sign it, & their names or existence were not even known at the time to the party deceived. In such a case the officers of the bank are not protected from liability by reason of their being servants of the directors, for both they & the directors are servants of the shareholders, & even if they were servants, that would be no defence to such officers.—*CULLEN v. k. Misrepresentation by — Inducement to accept bills.—L. drew bills of exchange on pltf. which he accepted for the accommodation of defts., who agreed to guarantee the payment of them at maturity: the bills would fall due on Sept. 2, 1868. On Aug. 11, L. drew other bills on pltf., also for defts.' accommodation. Pltf., not having received funds from defts. to take up the bills falling due on Sept. 2, telegraphed to L. that unless those funds were sent he would not accept the bills drawn on Aug. 11. L. had become insolvent, & left the country. L.'s trustees took the telegram to the bank cashier, who knew that L. had absconded, & an answer was sent to pltf. by cable, in the name of L., stating that funds had been sent by the last mail, which was the fact. In consequence of this answer pltf. accepted the bills drawn on Aug. 11, & was obliged to pay them. The telegram was in the handwriting of one of L.'s trustees but was sent to the telegraph office by the cashier of the bank, & the cost of transmitting it charged to L. in the bank books. In an action against the bank for falsely representing by the telegram that L. was in St. John, whereby pltf. was induced to accept the bills:—Held: answering the telegram addressed to L. was not within the scope of the cashier's duties, & it should have been left to the jury to find whether the answer was sent by the authority of the directors.—*MCKAY v. 259 i. Scope of employment—Misappropriation of funds—Liability of cashier's sureties.—The sureties of an absconding bank cashier are not relieved from liability, by showing that the bank employed their principal in transacting what was not properly banking business, in the course of which he appropriated the bank funds to his own use, the claim against the sureties being for the moneys so appropriated by the principal, & not for losses occasioned by such illegal transactions.—*SPRINGER v. SUB-SECT. 3.—CLERK.

261. Scope of employment—Loss of money—Liability of clerk's sureties.]—C. entered into the service of bankers as their clerk at B., & gave a bond with sureties for the faithful discharge of his duties, & they covenanted thereby to make good all losses which might accrue to the bankers through the negligence, etc., of C. D., a customer of the bank, lived twelve miles from B., & requested the bankers to send over a person to receive his rents on a certain day. C. was sent over, received the cash from D.; & lost it on his way home. In an action of covenant against the sureties for the amount of the money lost by C., the jury found that it was not the custom for bankers at B. to send over & receive money from their customers in the country :—Held : (1) the money was received by C. in the course of his employment as bankers' clerk ; (2) the receipt of the money by C. was a receipt by the bankers, & they were entitled to recover.—MELVILLE v. DOIDGE (1848), 6 C. B. 450 ; 18 L. J. C. P. 7 ; 12 L. T. O. S. 127 ; 12 Jur. 923 ; 136 E. R. 1324.

262. Retirement or dismissal—Right to pension—Rules of bank.]—When a clerk breaks an unwritten but well recognised rule of his employer, & receives in consequence a letter requiring him to resign, that notice, although polite instead of peremptory language was used, is a dismissal.

Pltf. having received such a notice :—Held : he was not entitled to a retiring allowance, one of the conditions on which such an allowance was granted being that appct. "retired with the consent of the directors."—*STEPHENSON v. SUB-SECT. 4.—AUDITOR.

pointed in accordance with Cos. Act, 1879 (c. 76), is an officer of the co. within Cos. (Winding-up) Act, 1890 (c. 63), s. 10.

The duty of an auditor is confined to ascertaining & certifying to the shareholders the true financial position of the co. at the time of the audit, but in discharging that duty it is not sufficient to ascertain that the balance-sheet corresponds with the books ; he must take reasonable care to ascertain that the books themselves show the true position of the co.

An auditor of a banking co. regulated by Cos. Act, 1879, certified that the balance-sheet was a correct summary of the accounts of the co. as recorded in the books, & added that the value of the assets was dependent on realisation. The principal asset consisted of loans to customers, which were put down in the books at far too high a figure, no allowance being made for bad or doubtful debts. The auditor made a private report to the directors, calling their attention to the unsatisfactory nature of the securities held for most of these loans :—Held : the certificate did not comply with 1879 Act, & the auditor was guilty of a misfeasance under Cos. (Winding-up) Act, 1890, s. 10, in withholding from the shareholders the information to which he called the attention of the directors, & he & the directors were jointly & severally liable for the amount of a dividend paid out of the capital of the co. in pursuance of a resolution of the shareholders, founded on the recommendation of the directors & upon the balance-sheet certified by the auditor.—Re LONDON & GENERAL BANK, [1895] 2 Ch. 166, 673 ; 64 L. q. Clerk—Filling up blank drafts for unauthorised purposes.]—If a clerk in a bank, having or honestly believing that he has an implied or express authority to fill up blank drafts signed by the cashier or assistant-cashier of the bank, fills up such blanks for other purposes than those for which he knew them to have been signed, with intent to defraud, he thereby commits forgery.—Ex p. HOKE (1886), 14 R. L. 705.—CAN.

r. — Misappropriating accepted cheque—Liability of bank.]—The bank clerk, who receives an accepted cheque with directions to pay certain drafts, & instead of carrying the cheque to the credit of the depositor, pays himself a part of the proceeds of the cheque, renders the bank liable to an accounting for the money so received. The burden of proof is upon deft. to explain what was done with the money.—SERCHUCK v. BANQUE NATIONALE (1915), 21 R. L. 396.—CAN.

t. Teller of bank Authority to receive deposits—Subject to special conditions.]—Though a teller of a bank may not in fact have authority to receive deposits, except on the ordinary terms, yet if he receive a deposit, subject to special conditions as to its appropriation which ought to be communicated by him to the manager, & the deposit is retained by the bank, the bank will be bound by such condition.—*CHAMBERLAIN v. *plication of funds—Scope of employment.]—*In an action on a deed, whereby deft. guarantees that A. shall, during his service as clerk or in any other capacity whatsoever, be faithful in his conduct, render proper accounts, pay money, etc., a plea that before the breach of duty alleged A. was, without deft.'s consent, changed from the situation of clerk to that of teller whereby his responsibility was entirely changed & increased, is bad.—ROYAL CANADIAN BANK v. YATES (1869), 19 C. P. 439.—CAN.

v. — Mode of checking cash—Evidence.]—Pltfs.* granted a bond for the intromissions of a teller in a bank. Previous thereto, a "proposal for guarantee" had been submitted by the teller to pltfs., containing answers to queries. One of the queries, to the effect "How often the employer would balance appct.'s accounts, & what are the checks used to secure accuracy of accounts," was answered. His cash is checked weekly by a brother teller, & by the cashier separately, & monthly by the directors." This answer was signed by the bank & by the teller. The teller failed to account for his intromissions :—Held : (1) the jury had been rightly directed that the question whether there was an undertaking on the part of the bank depended on the point whether the matter represented was material to the interests of the party putting the question, & if the jury thought the representation material, then, taking the "proposal" as questions put to employers before pltf. entered into their obligation, it was an undertaking given to them on which they might rely ; (2) evidence on the part of defenders as to the usual mode of checking in other banks was inadmissible, merely to show that what they had done was fairly within ordinary practice. — BRITISH GUARANTEE ASSOCN. v. WESTERN BANK OF SCOTLAND (1853), 25 Sc. Jur. 502.—SCOT.

w. — Right to sue for shortage.]—Pltf.* was teller of a bank, at which a note of deft. became due. Deft. paid in to pltf. a sum afterwards discovered to be £25 short, & pltf. was compelled to make it good to the bank :—Held : he could recover it from deft. as money paid to his use.—*RIVERS v. x. Holding shares in trust for bank — Indemnity—Winding up of bank—Right of proof.]—B., a clerk in the M. bank, held a number of shares in various cos. in trust for the bank, the bank having for certain reasons transferred such shares into his name. The bank gave B. an indemnity against all liability in respect of such shares. B. was made insolvent in respect of shares so held by him in one of these cos., & all the cos. put in proofs in respect of uncalled capital against his estate. The various cos. had all gone into liquidation, & all the unpaid capital therein had been called up. The M. bank also went into liquidation, some of these cos. being still indebted to it :—Held : the trustees of B.'s estate were entitled to prove in the liquidation proceedings of the M. bank in respect of the whole amount of calls in respect of those shares for which B. was liable.—*Re THE MERCANTILE BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. 267. — Loss—Fraud.]—The trade of a banker in an especial manner demands the strictest fair dealing, as it is one of confidence; & where a banker had carried on his business for eighteen years at an unvarying loss, & with a knowledge of it, & continued to receive deposits to the last day before becoming bkpt.:—Held: the Bkpcy. Ct. would visit such conduct with the severest punishment, & refuse his certificate.—Re JOHNSON (1848), 10 L. T. O. S. 378.

PART II. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

a. Essential characteristics.]—The essential characteristics of the business of banking are the collection of money by receiving deposits upon loan, repayable when & as expressly or impliedly agreed upon, & the utilisation of the money so collected by lending it again in such sums as are required.—STATE SAVINGS BANK OF VICTORIA COMRS. v. PERMEWAN WRIGHT & CO., LTD. (1915), V. L. R. 81; 19 C. L. R. 457.—AUS.

b. —.]—A. carried on business as a banker, or money-lender in three towns. The premises, where the business was carried on, consisted of two rooms in a house in each of the towns, one of which was occupied by A., & the other by his clerk. He attended one day in each week in each place. The course of business was as follows: Money was lent on promissory notes, payable in twelve weeks, with interest at the rate of  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. in the pound per week. Advances were also made on intges. The firm had been in the habit of receiving large sums of money on deposit, for which it gave promissory notes, payable three months after date. It afterwards substituted deposit receipts similar in form to those issued by banks, & the amount of money received on these was very large. The firm also lent small sums, up to £5, without taking any security, & cashed "crop notes" & small American drafts. The books kept were of the most primitive sort, & not such as were usually kept by bankers. A. did not issue notes, cheques, pass-books, letters of credit, or bills on foreign or British banks, & there were not any current accounts kept with the firm. The establishment was commonly known as A.'s bank, & the officials of the Bank of Ireland had also called the firm bankers:—Held: A. was a banker within 33 Geo. 2, c. 14.—Re SHIELDS' ESTATE, BANK OF IRELAND (GOVERNOR & CO.), d. Central bank—Obligations imposed by charter.]—After part performance of a contract, from which the declaration required by 4 Will. 4, c. 44, s. 20, has been omitted, & receiving property under it, the bank cannot set up such omission in answer to a suit for specific performance of such contract. Qu.: whether such omission would render the contract void.—*PICKARD v. f. Land bank — Being both vendor & purchaser—Duty of bank.]—A land bank, whose business was the buying & selling of land, having a property under offer to them for £14,000, found a syndicate of five persons, of whom H. was one, ready to take over the property from the bank for £20,000. The bank purchased the property, but, on offering it to the syndicate, one of the original five was no longer ready to purchase, & the bank put forward C. to take the place of the fifth member of the syndicate, & the sale was then completed. H. entered into the arrangement, relying on his own judgment as to the value of the property, & he knew that C. was the nominee of the bank:—Held: although the bank was both vendor & purchaser it was not the promoter of the syndicate so as to owe any duty to H. to disclose

268. — Representation as to solvency.]—The position of a banker differs from that of an ordinary trader. The ordinary trader by the mere fact that his premises are open & that his business is being carried on does not represent that he is solvent. In the case of a banker, the mere fact of his keeping his doors open for business & carrying on business may afford some evidence from which a jury may find that he impliedly represents he is solvent.—R. v. PARKER & BULTEEL (1916), 80 J. P. 271; 25 Cox, C. C. 145.

269. Wrongful use of bank name.]—A declaration stated that pltf. had established a bank in London called "The Bank of London," & was the first person who had established a bank by or under that name, & had established the bank at great expense, & caused the name to be published & affixed on the offices of the bank, so that same might be seen & known by the public, & had caused prospectuses of the bank to be printed & circulated with the name & title of "The Bank of London" thereon, & the bank was then commonly known by the name of, & was the only bank named or styled, "The Bank of London," whereby pltf. had acquired & was acquiring great gains & profits. It then proceeded to allege that defts., intending to injure pltf. in his bank & the business of his bank, afterwards, & while his bank was the only bank named or styled "The Bank of London," wrongfully & fraudulently established a certain other bank in London under the name, style, & title of "The Bank of London," in imitation of, & as representing, the Bank of London of pltf., & wrongfully & fraudulently transacted business at the bank so established by defts. under such name, & under the false colour & pretence that to him the price originally given for the property, nor did the relationship existing between the bank & H. prevent the bank from making a profit at the expense of H., as he knew that the bank was vendor as well as purchaser, & that it was the business of the bank to make a profit out of land sales.—*REAL ESTATE BANK, LTD. v. h. Purchase of goods at execution — To acquire outstanding charge.]—Held: under 19 & 20 Vict. c. 127, s. 21, the bank had a right to purchase goods at a sheriff's sale other than on an execution at their own suit, if in that way they wished to acquire an outstanding claim or charge on the property of a debtor of the bank.—*KINGSMILL v. k. Receipt of money in trust to purchase shares—Receipt outside bank.]—Under Bank Act (R. S. gation, A. was entitled to judgment on the contract.—BANK OF CHINA, JAPAN & THE STRAITS, LTD. v. AMERICAN TRADING Co., [1894] A. C. 266; 63 L. J. P. C. 92; 70 L. T. 849; 6 R. 494, P. C.

SUB-SECT. 2.—THE RELATION OF BANKER AND CUSTOMER.

272. Relation of debtor & creditor.—The relation between a banker & customer, who pays money into the bank, is the ordinary relation of debtor & creditor, with a superadded obligation arising out of the custom of bankers to honour the customer's drafts; & that relation is not altered by an agreement by the banker to allow the interest on the balances in the bank.

The relation of banker & customer does not partake of a fiduciary character, nor bear analogy to the relation between principal & factor or agent, who is quasi-trustee for the principal in respect of the particular matter for which he is appointed factor or agent.—*FOLEY v. Pending an appeal S. agreed to withdraw his proceedings in consideration of the bank giving an undertaking to meet the liabilities on E.'s shares so long as they held them as security, & E.'s trustees by arrangement with the bank sold E.'s shares which were purchased for the bank in the name of nominees:—Held: the purchase of the shares by the bank in the circumstances was not violation of its Act of incorporation as investing its funds in a trading or mercantile speculation not within the ordinary & legitimate purposes & operations of banking establishments.—*HARRISON v. q. — Purchase of pig-iron.—A decree was pronounced against a banking co. for the price of pig-iron bought by its directors. & assign the lease of the milling property. At the same time another agreement was executed, by which one of the partners was to act as manager & continue the business in the firm's name, the bank indemnifying the partnership against all liability incurred while doing so:—Held: the carrying on of the business for the purpose of & to the extent provided for by the agreement, was not ultra vires of the bank under Bank Act, R. 275. — Deposits by customer—Bank bound to pay on demand.]—The operation of banking is this. We speak of deposits by customers, & of their keeping money at a banker's; but both in fact & in contemplation of law they give their money or securities for money to the banker, who becomes their debtor & is bound to repay it on demand. So the operation of a cash credit is the reverse of the former; the customer becomes debtor to the bank by so much as the bank advances on his drafts, & the surety becomes bound to pay that debt if the customer fails (LORD BROUGHAM).—*SWAN v. 275 i. Relation of debtor & creditor—Deposits by customer.]—The ordinary relation between a banker & customer in respect of moneys paid by the latter to the former is that of debtor & creditor, & no fiduciary relation will be created in the absence of directions by the customer which convert the banker into a trustee in respect of the sums so paid. A trust will exist when the banker is to collect & remit, but not where he is to use & repay. Where a customer remits money to a banker, with directions to receive such money in fixed deposit for a certain period together with another sum to be remitted, the banker does not, when the latter amount is not paid, hold the former sum in trust by virtue of such direction, although he cannot claim to hold it as a fixed deposit payable only after the limited period.—MADRAS OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. SMITH (1908), I. L. R. 32 Mad. 68.—IND.

275 ii. ——— Bank bound to repay on demand.—Money held by a banker after his customer had demanded repayment is not held by him in a fiduciary capacity. 275 v. ——— Direction to apply in particular manner.] — A customer instructed his banker to purchase a Govt. promissory note with money standing to his credit with the banker:—Held: a mere direction by a customer to a banker to apply money at credit of the former's account in a particular way did not alter the relationship between banker & customer (MILLER, J.).—MADRAS OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. The mtges. recited the indebtedness of the mtgor. to the bank for money advanced & promissory notes past due & unpaid, & his agreement to execute the mtges. as collateral security for payment of the past due indebtedness, " & also as collateral to any further or future advances which may from time to time be made by the bank to the mtgor. or which may be represented by bills of exchange or promissory notes made or indorsed by the mtgor. from time to time held by the bank or for any renewal or renewals thereof." The proviso for redemption followed the terms of the recital:—Held: the mtges. were not taken for the purpose of enabling the bank to make a loan upon real estate, but for the purpose of securing the indebtedness of S. to the bank, & were not made in pursuance of a colourable & collusive scheme to defeat the restriction imposed by the Act.—*THOMSON v. The power of attorney was not produced to the bank at the time the note was given & the advance made:—Held: the signing of the note by the attorney put the bank on inquiry, & there being no evidence that the wife was interested or concerned in the note, she was not liable on the note.—*BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA v. a. ——— As collateral security — Release by bank manager — Liability of bank.]—Plffs., a banking corp., held defts.' promissory note for $9,000. As collateral security for the payment of the note, plffs. held two promissory notes of C., aggregating the same amount. By a private arrangement between plffs.' manager & C. the manager returned to C. his promissory notes, undertaking with C. to be liable to plffs. for what C. would have to pay. In an action by plffs. upon defts.' note, defts. disputed liability on the ground that plffs. were not in a position to return to them C.'s notes, which were their property & pledged by them as collateral security for the payment of the note sued on:—Held: a good ground for counterclaim.—*HOCHELAGA BANK v. 835. Advance to agent—Upon bills drawn on principal—Failure of principal—Liability of agent.—A banking co., whose chief office was in London, but who had offices & carried on business in Australia, made advances at the request of M. & R. to C., the agent of M. & R. in Australia, upon bills of exchange drawn by him upon M. & R. These bills were dishonoured by M. & R., who had entered into a deed of composition with their creditors, which was executed on behalf of the banking co. Dividends had been received under this deed by the banking co. who had brought an action in Australia against

C. for the amount of their advances upon the bills, & damages for their non-acceptance. An injunction was granted restraining the banking co. from proceeding in the action, they having been distinctly informed that the bills were drawn by C. as agent for M. & R., whom they had relieved by executing the deed, & taking a dividend thereunder.—*WALKER v. 836. Advance to company—On bills remitted to cover acceptances—Winding up of company—Right of remitting bank to recover.—The L. Bank established a credit agency with G. Co. in London, & agreed to send remittances within ninety days to cover drafts. G. Co., being in difficulties, obtained an advance of money from the P. Bank, to be repaid out of expected remittances from the L. Bank to cover bills then current, & the P. Bank employed as agents to receive & select from the expected securities the managing director of G. Co., & their own managing director, who had been, two years previously, the manager of G. Co., & was cognisant of & party to the arrangement with the L. Bank. The securities were selected by & handed over to the P. Bank upon their arrival, & the following day G. Co. stopped payment & was wound up:—Held: the L. Bank had no title to recover the securities from the P. Bank. BANCO DE LIMA v. ANGLO-PERUVIAN BANK (1878), 8 Ch. D. 160; 38 L. T. 130.

to keep up the stock of sulphite from time to time. The sulphite was made into paper & sold, the proceeds being turned over to pltf., on account of other advances made. Deft., in an action on the notes, contended that he should be credited with the value of the sulphite in the paper so sold, of which pltf. received the proceeds, which amount would extinguish his liability on his promissory notes:—Held: pltf. entitled to judgment for full amount.—*BANK v. d. — Accommodation indorsement—Unauthorised pledge as collateral security—Bank holder in due course.—The bank having refused further loans to a trading co. until its current liability to the bank was reduced, a note by the co. in favour of its directors was specially indorsed to the bank by them & handed to the co.'s manager, who had charge of its financial affairs, with instructions to have the note discounted, but without authority to pledge it. Without informing the bank of his restricted power to deal with the note, the manager deposited it with the bank as collateral security for the co.'s current liability &, in consideration of the deposit, obtained fresh advances from the bank by discounts of the co.'s trade paper. At the maturity of the note, the trade paper had been retired & an overdraft on the co.'s account had been covered, but the general indebtedness of the co. for former loans still subsisted:—Held: the bank entitled to enforce payment of the note as holder in due course for valuable consideration & to recover thereon the amount of the co.'s general indebtedness remaining unsatisfied.—*COX v. by deft., who pleaded that it was indorsed on the express understanding that he was not to be called upon to pay it, & that he was discharged by the bank subsequently taking security from the makers. The jury found that the bank, on taking security, had agreed that the note in suit should be paid out of the proceeds of collateral held by the bank, & gave a verdict in deft.'s favour:—Held: a new trial must be ordered, as the finding of the jury did not warrant the verdict for deft.—ST. STEPHEN'S BANK v. BONNESS (1895), 24 S. C. R. 710.—CAN.

f. — Defect in title of customer—Knowledge of bank.—Qu.: whether, in the absence of other evidence, the fact that a banker knew that a small percentage of many notes, made to a certain customer in respect of other transactions & pledged by him as collateral security, were tainted with fraud would reasonably lead the banker to suspect that all notes made to that customer were so tainted.—*UNION INVESTMENTS Co. v. Rights of bank as bond fide holder in due course—Notes of third party as collateral security—Failure of consideration between maker & payer.—Deft. made a note in favour of S. for the amount of a bill of exchange. S. failed, & the bill was dishonoured. Before the note came due, & before the failure of S., it was deposited by him with a number of other notes with pltf., as collateral security for the payment of certain bills of exchange, on which he was liable to pltf., the agreement being, that if the bills were not paid, the proceeds of the notes were to be applied in payment of the amount, but if the bills were paid, pltf. were to collect the notes & place the amount to the credit of S. The amount of notes deposited by S. with the bank as collateral security never exceeded his indebtedness, & at the time the note in question was indorsed to pltf., & when S. failed, there was a considerable deficiency:—Held: pltf. were bond fide holders for value, & were not affected by the failure of consideration between deft. & S.—COMMERCIAL BANK v. PAGE (1871), N. B. Dig. 113.—CAN.

h. Defect in customer's title.—The mere existence of a liability of a customer to a bank on a promissory note not yet due is not a sufficient consideration, under Bills of Exchange Act, R. S. C., 1906 (c. 119), s. 53, for the transfer by the customer to the bank of the promissory note of a third party as collateral security, so as to constitute the bank the holder in due course of such promissory note or to give the bank a better title to it than the customer had as against the maker, unless there is evidence that such note was transferred pursuant to a previous agreement to give security.—BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA v. McCOMB (1911), 21 Man. L. R. 58.—CAN.

k. "Negotiation"—Renewal of note.—A renewal of a note is not a "negotiation" of it within Bank Act, 53 Vict. c. 31, s. 75, so as to support a security taken at the time of the renewal in substitution for a previously existing security.—BANK OF HAMILTON v. SHEPHERD (1884), 21 A. R. 156.—CAN.

l. — Person giving security not at liberty to draw against proceeds of bill or note.—A bill or note taken by a bank on acquiring a security in form C to Bank Act, 53 Vict. c. 31, ss. 74, 75, is not "negotiated" at the time of the acquisition thereof within the latter sect., when the person giving the security, & to whose account the proceeds of the bill or note are credited, is not at liberty to draw against them except on fulfilling certain other conditions.—BANK OF HAMILTON v. HALSTED (1897), 27 O. R. 135; 24 A. R. 152; 28 S. C. R. 235.—CAN.

"Customer"—Person having current or deposit account—Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82.—To make a person a "customer" of a bank within the above sect. there must be some sort of account, either a current or a deposit account, or some similar relation.—GREAT WESTERN RY. 293. Drawing cheque—Customer's duty to bank.—A customer of a bank owes a duty to the bank in drawing a cheque to take reasonable & ordinary precautions against forgery, & if, as the natural & direct result of the neglect of those precautions, the amount of the cheque is increased by forgery, the customer must bear the loss as between himself & the banker.—LONDON JOINT STOCK BANK v. MACMILLAN & ARTHUR, [1918] A. C. 777; 119 L. T. 387; 34 T. L. R. 509; 62 Sol. Jo. 650, H. L.

295. Treasurer of guardians—Also bank manager—Loss from bank paying forged orders—Liability of bank.—Pltfs., guardians of the poor, appointed deft., the manager of a bank, to be their treasurer. He received no remuneration from them nor profit from the sums deposited in his hands, those sums being dealt with by the bank as other funds deposited by customers. B., the clerk to the guardians allowed L., a clerk in his employ, to draw up orders on the treasurer for payment of money. These orders were paid across the bank counter, as cheques usually were. L. drew up orders in such a manner as to enable himself to increase the amount after they had been duly signed by the guardians & countersigned by deft., & he did increase them accordingly by various sums, in most instances by £10, the syllable "teen" being added after the written word four, six, seven, or nine, & a 1 being inserted before the figure 4, 6, 7, or 9, in spaces left by L. for the purpose. The orders thus fraudulently increased were presented at the bank & paid in the ordinary way, & the payment of the excess was due solely to the fact that deft.'s clerks were misled by want of proper caution on the part of the guardians & their clerk in signing the orders. In some cases L. forged the indorsement of payees; in others he both increased the amounts & forged the indorsements. The guardians sued their clerk for negligence in his duty, but settled the action on his consenting to a judge's order to stay proceedings on payment of a certain sum. They then brought a similar action against deft.:—Held: (1) the clerk & the treasurer were not joint tortfeasors so as to make the compromise of the action against the one a bar to the action against the other; (2) pltfs. were disentitled, by the negligence of themselves & their clerk, to recover against deft.; (3) although the treasurer was not within the protection afforded to a "banker" by 16 & 17 Vict. c. 59, s. 19, yet the account of the guardians must be deemed to have been kept with the bank itself, & the Act operated to discharge the bank, & deft., its servant, from liability in respect of the payment of the orders of which the indorsements were forged.—HALIFAX UNION v. WHEELWRIGHT (1875), L. R. 10 Exch. 183; 44 L. J. Ex. 121; 32 L. T. 802; 39 J. P. 823; 23 W. R. 704.

296. Liability of bank for acts of partner—Loss to customer from fraud of partner—Transaction not in scope of banking business.—Pltf., a customer of a banking firm, was advised by W., one of the partners in the bank, to dispose of certain Dutch bonds, & to place the money upon better security. He then proposed that it should be lent to his own son. This proposal was acquiesced in by pltf. in consequence of her having great confidence in the firm. The money was paid out by a cheque upon the bank to a third person named, or bearer, & pltf. received a promissory note for repayment, with a guarantee from W. W. absconded, & the security proved to be worthless. Upon bill filed against the other members of the firm:—Held: they were not liable for the loss, as the transaction was not within scope of a banker's business, & was not recommended or sanctioned by the other partners.—BISHOP v. JERSEY (COUNTESS) (1854), 2 Drew. 143; 2 Eq. Rep. 545; 23 L. J. Ch. 483; 22 L. T. O. S. 326; 18 Jur. 765; 2 W. R. 247; 61 E. R. 673.

297. Advising customer as to investments—Whether part of banking business.—While it is not part of the ordinary business of a bank to give advice to customers as to investments generally, yet there may be occasions when advice may be given by a banker as such & in the course of his business (LORD FINLAY, C.).—BANBURY v. 298. British customer of foreign bank—Remittances sent on request—Obligation of bank—Impossibility of performance.—Pltfs., a British firm in London, had an account with defts., a bank in Berlin. From time to time, at pltfs.' request, the bank were accustomed to make remittances by

c. 14, s. 4, is not applicable to cases of mutual dealings between a banker & his customer, these being of the nature of transactions between debtor & creditor.—CLANCARTY (LORD) v. LA TOUCHE (1810), 1 Ball & B. 429.—IR.

cheque in sterling on their branch in London, & for the purpose of such remittances they purchased drafts or bills on London. In July, 1914, when war with Germany was pending, pltfs. requested defts. to remit to them a part of their balance, & in reply were informed that no exchange on London could be procured in Berlin, & that the remittance could not be made:—Held: the implied obligation of defts. to pltfs. was to use reasonable care to purchase & forward remittances at pltfs.' risk & expense, & it was not an absolute undertaking to remit when requested whether there was exchange or whether drafts on England could be purchased or not.—LEETE (JOSEPH) & SONS v. DIRECTION DER DISCONTO GESELLSCHAFT (1915), 85 L. J. K. B. 281; 114 L. T. 332; 32 T. L. R. 158.

SUB-SECT. 3.—BRANCH BANKS AND BANKING AGENTS.

A. Branch Banks.

299. Changing Bank post bill for bankrupt — Notice of bankruptcy to head office—Notice to branch.]—N. committed an act of bkpcy. on Mar. 12, & on the same day absconded with two £500 Bank post bills drawn in London, payable to himself, which he afterwards indorsed in blank. Application was made by solrs. on the 16th to the Bank of England to stop the bills, describing them, & stating that N. had absconded with them. On Apr. 8 the same solrs. again applied at the Bank to the same effect, & it was then stated that a fiat of bkpcy. against N. was expected by every post. At Gloucester, where a branch bank of the Bank of England was established under Country Bankers Act, 1826 (c. 46), s. 15, N. delivered the bills to S., saying he wanted gold for them. S., who was known at the branch, delivered them to the agent there on Apr. 12, & received £1,000 in gold, first indorsing them, at the agent's desire, to the Governor & Co. of the Bank of England. S. paid over the whole £1,000 to N., having no interest in the bills, & having acted merely as his friend & agent. The commission had not then issued. Neither S. nor the bank agent knew of the act of bkpcy. The bills were sent to the Bank of England from the branch, uncanceled. The practice at the branch banks, when bills were changed there, was to take an indorsement & send them up uncanceled:—Held: (1) the delivery of the £1,000 to S. for the bills was a transaction between the Bank of England & N., bkpt., by their respective agents; (2) there was sufficient notice to the Bank to take away the protection of 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 82, & such notice to the Bank operated as notice to the branch bank, a reasonable time having elapsed for transmitting it before the bills were received there from S.—WILLIS v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1835), 4 Ad. & El. 21; 1 Har. & W. 620; 5 Nev. & M. K. B. 478; 5 L. J. K. B. 73; 111 E. R. 694.

PART II. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

300 i. Different branches—Separate indorsements to—Independent indorsers.]—Different branches of the same bank may be indorsers from one to the other, & in case of dishonour notice need not be given direct to the head office, but each branch in succession is entitled to notice.—R. v. Lovitt, [1912] A. C. 212, P. C.—CAN.

bank & its branches are but one concern.—BAIN v. TORRANCE (1884), 1 Man. L. R. 32.—CAN.

302 i. Account at one branch—Cheque presented at different branch.]—A cheque presented at a different branch of a bank than the one where the customer keeps his account need not be cashed as the obligation of a bank to pay cheques rests primarily on the branch at which the customer keeps his account.—R. v. Lovitt, [1912] A. C. 212, P. C.—CAN.

300. Different branches—Separate indorsements of bills of exchange to—Independent indorsees.]—A bill of exchange was indorsed to a branch of a bank at Portmadoc, who sent it to the Pwllheli branch of the same bank, who indorsed it to the head establishment in London:—Held: each of the branch banks was to be considered as an independent indorsee, & each entitled to the usual notice of dishonour.—CLODE v. BAYLEY (1843), 12 M. & W. 51; 13 L. J. Ex. 17; 2 L. T. O. S. 123; 7 Jur. 1092; 152 E. R. 1107.

301. Separate agencies of one principal—Not separate banks.]—Branch banks must be considered only as agents of the principal bank, not as separate & distinct banks.

Appls. were payees of a promissory note payable at a branch bank of resps. When the note became due the manager of the branch bank cancelled it as paid, & remitted to the principal bank a draft for the amount in favour of applts.' bankers. The note was not in fact paid, but was dishonoured, & the next day the manager of the branch bank wrote to the manager of the principal bank, requesting him to cancel the draft, & returning the dishonoured note, indorsed "cancelled in error." No intimation was given to applts. or their bankers that the note had been paid:—Held: the branch banks must be treated as separate agencies of one principal, the resp. corp., & applts. could not maintain an action for money received to their use.—PRINCE v. ORIENTAL BANK CORPN. (1878), 3 App. Cas. 325; 47 L. J. P. C. 42; 38 L. T. 41; 26 W. R. 543, P. C.

302. Account at branch in one country—Payment demanded at branch in another country — Obligation to pay.]—There is no obligation on a bank to pay in one country a debt due to a customer on current account in another country.

Pltfs. had an account at the Berlin branch of deft. bank, which had its head office in Germany & a branch in London. They wrote to the London branch demanding payment of the balance due on the account at the Berlin branch, & upon refusal to pay sued the bank without having made any request to the bank in Berlin to pay or to remit the balance to London:—Held: pltfs. were not entitled to demand payment from the London branch, & there had not been any breach by the bank of any obligations to pltfs.—CLARE & CO. v. DRESDNER BANK, [1915] 2 K. B. 576; 84 L. J. K. B. 1443; 113 L. T. 93; 31 T. L. R. 278; 21 Com. Cas. 62.

B. Banking Agents.

304. Agent to country bank—Drawing bill in own name on account of bank—Dishonour of bill—Liability of agent.]—An agent to a country bank, to whom pltf. sent a sum of money, in order to procure a bill upon London, drew in his own name for the amount upon a banking firm in London, the persons constituting that firm & the country bank being the same:—Held: the agent was liable as drawer, although pltf. knew that he was agent, & supposed that the bill was drawn by him as such, & on account of the country bank, to which the agent paid over the money.—LEADBITTER v. FARROW (1816), 5 M. & S. 345; 105 E. R. 1077.

305. London banker & correspondent abroad—Dishonour of bills of correspondent—Notice of dishonour.]—A banker in London corresponding with a banker abroad has the same right, with respect to English bills of his correspondent becoming due while in his hands, as an English banker has with respect to his customer in England; & if such a bill be dishonoured, he may send it, when returned, to his correspondent abroad; but semble: if the foreign correspondent be afterwards in London in possession of the bill, he ought not to send it again to the London banker, but should himself give notice of dishonour to the party who indorsed it to him.—DALY v. SLATTER (1830), 4 C. & P. 200.

306. Agents for collection—Payment of bill—Neglect to credit principal—Liability for loss occasioned by sub-agents.]—M. employed R. & Co., bankers in Edinburgh, to obtain for him payment of a bill drawn on a person resident in Calcutta. R. & Co. accepted the employment & wrote promising to credit him with the money when received. R. & Co. transmitted the bill in the usual course of business to C. & Co., of London, & by them it was forwarded to India, where it was duly paid. R. & Co. wrote to M. announcing the fact of its payment, but never actually credited him in their books with the amount. The house in India failed:—Held: (1) R. & Co. were the agents of M. to obtain payment of the bill; (2) payment having been actually made, they became ipso facto liable to him for the amount received, & he could not be called on to suffer any loss occasioned by the conduct of their sub-agents, as between whom & himself no privity existed.—MACKERSY v. o. Municipal treasurer—Also bank agent.]—S., treasurer of the county of Middlesex, & agent of the G. Bank, opened an account with the bank without the knowledge of the council, & having misapplied the moneys of the council, overdraw that account to pay debts due by the county, which he ought to have paid out of the moneys received by him as treasurer. S. having absconded, the bank sued the council for the amount thus overdrawn, as money paid to their use:—Held: no portion of it could be recovered.—GORE BANK v. COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX (1859), 16 U. C. R. 595.—CAN.

q. Member of firm—Also bank agent—Discounting for own accommodation.]—K., agent of a bank & also a member of a business firm, procured accommodation drafts from a customer of the bank which he discounted as such agent &, without indorsing them, used the proceeds, in violation of his instructions, in the business of his firm. The firm having become insolvent, the question arose whether those drafts constituted a debt due from the estate to the bank, or whether the bank could repudiate the act of its agent & claim the whole amount from the solvent acceptors:—Held: the drafts were debts due & owing from the insolvents to the bank, & the agent being bound to account to the bank for the funds placed at his disposal he became a debtor to the bank, on his authority being revoked, for the amount of those drafts as money for which he had failed to account.—MERCHANTS' BANK OF HALIFAX v. WHIDDEN (1891), 19 S. C. R. 53.—CAN.

r. Cashing cheque unaccepted by principal bank.]—A bank acting as agent for another bank is not authorised, in the absence of express agreement, to cash a cheque drawn upon the principal bank, but unaccepted by it.

No compensation arises between the principal bank & its agent, entitling the latter to set off moneys paid under an unaccepted cheque upon the principal bank against moneys held by the agent & due to the principal bank.—MARITIME

u. Indorsement on power of attorney for transfer of stock—Not representation binding on bank.]—The owner of bank stock being about to assign the same, procured from one of the agents of the bank a memorandum on the back of a power of attorney for the transfer of the stock in the words: "No liability at G. office":—Held: not such a representation, made to the intending transferee, as bound the bank.—COOK v. ROYAL CANADIAN BANK (1873), 20 Gr. 1.—CAN.

w. Losing cheque—Liability of bank.]—Pltf.'s agent paid money into the agency of the G. Bank at S., partly in cash & partly by cheque on the C. Bank at T., to be placed to pltf.'s credit with the G. Bank at H. The agent at S. took upon the whole sum the usual commission of a quarter of one per cent. for transmission, but the cheque was lost bonds were sold, & deft. received the balance, & retained it, without the knowledge of the bank. On a bill filed on behalf of the bank for payment of this balance, & also for a general account:—Held: although deft., by his answer, said the result of the general account when taken would be in his favour, yet he was not entitled to withhold payment of the balance received by him in respect of the bonds until the general account should be taken, & a decree for payment of that balance & interest must be made, & also the decree for taking the general account.

A banking co., who were mtgees. of certain Spanish bonds, employed deft. to raise money upon them by deposit in his own name. The party with whom deft. deposited them called on deft. for repayment, & on default, sold the bonds, with the concurrence of deft., without the knowledge of the co., & paid the balance of the proceeds to deft. The co. were afterwards compelled by their mtgor. to replace the bonds or their value:—Held: deft. was answerable to the co. for the market price of the bonds at the time of the actual sale, & he was not answerable for the value of the bonds at any other time.—GORDON v. PYM (1843), 3 Hare, 223; 67 E. R. 364.

308. Misappropriation by agent with limited authority—Extent of authority—Liability of bank.—In an action by resp. to recover from the applt. bank moneys paid to their compradore or Chinese agent at their Hong Kong branch, for the purpose of a telegraphic transfer to resp.'s nominee at Shanghai it appeared that the compradore, to the knowledge of resp., had no authority without the express approval of the bank manager to receive the money or to fix the rate of exchange or other terms on which the transfer was to be effected:—Held: the bank were not liable for the compradore's misappropriation of the moneys.—RUSSO-CHINESE BANK v. LI YAU SAM, [1910] A. C. 174; 79 L. J. P. C. 60; 101 L. T. 689; 26 T. L. R. 203, P. C.

c. Money deposited with branch agent—Private agreement as to rate of interest—Liability of bank to repay.—A. deposited two sums with a country branch of an Edinburgh bank through their accredited agent, receiving regular official receipts of the same date as the deposits. The agent granted to A. two letters marked "private," agreeing to make up the interest on the sums deposited to more than the ordinary bank interest. Of the two sums the first was entered in the bank books, the second was not entered. The agent having absconded:—Held: the bank were liable in payment of the second sum as well as of the first, with interest at the ordinary rate, both being bank transactions.—CRAW v. COMMERCIAL BANK (1849), 3 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 193.—SCOT.

d. Preparing will & benefiting thereunder—Fiduciary relationship.—A country bank agent, not a law agent, prepared & saw executed the will of a testator. He was himself the residuary legatee:—Held: (1) the rule that a person in a fiduciary relation could not obtain a gift did not apply, as this was the case of a legacy & not a gift; (2) there was no rigid rule of law against the agent, but merely a presumption of fact, & though the onus of supporting the will was on him yet if he gave a clear & consistent account of his conduct which satisfied the judge of his perfect honesty, & if his own evidence, being credible in itself, was supported by the other evidence in the case, & if he was able to displace any inference of fact which might be prima facie unfavourable, there was no ground for holding that he must be found to have failed in discharging the onus. Qu.: whether the bank agent's position fell to be treated as the same as that of a law agent.—*LOWS v. 305. London banker & correspondent abroad—Dishonour of bills of correspondent—Notice of dishonour.]—A banker in London corresponding with a banker abroad has the same right, with respect to English bills of his correspondent becoming due while in his hands, as an English banker has with respect to his customer in England; & if such a bill be dishonoured, he may send it, when returned, to his correspondent abroad; but semble: if the foreign correspondent be afterwards in London in possession of the bill, he ought not to send it again to the London banker, but should himself give notice of dishonour to the party who indorsed it to him.—DALY v. SLATTER (1830), 4 C. & P. 200.

306. Agents for collection—Payment of bill—Neglect to credit principal—Liability for loss occasioned by sub-agents.]—M. employed R. & Co., bankers in Edinburgh, to obtain for him payment of a bill drawn on a person resident in Calcutta. R. & Co. accepted the employment & wrote promising to credit him with the money when received. R. & Co. transmitted the bill in the usual course of business to C. & Co., of London, & by them it was forwarded to India, where it was duly paid. R. & Co. wrote to M. announcing the fact of its payment, but never actually credited him in their books with the amount. The house in India failed:—Held: (1) R. & Co. were the agents of M. to obtain payment of the bill; (2) payment having been actually made, they became ipso facto liable to him for the amount received, & he could not be called on to suffer any loss occasioned by the conduct of their sub-agents, as between whom & himself no privity existed.—*MACKERSY v. Voluntary assignment by deed of moneys at bank—Notice after death of assignor—Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25 (6).]—R., who kept an ordinary banking account at defts.' bank, by deed in 1881 assigned to pltf. "all moneys then or thereafter to be standing to his credit in the books of or at defts.' bank" upon certain trusts. The assignment was a voluntary one. No notice of it was given to defts. till after R.'s death, when a much larger sum was standing to his credit at defts.' bank than at the date of the assignment:—Held: (1) though the assignment was a voluntary one, it was not competent to defts., who were mere strangers, to raise this objection: (2) this was an assignment of a debt or legal chose in action within the above sub-sect.; (3) the notice was good: (4) pltf. was entitled to the moneys standing to the credit of R. at defts.' bank at the date of R.'s death.—*WALKER v. 313. Transfer of shares on conditions—Conditions not performed—Transferor's right to return.]—Pltf., a British subject, instructed his London bankers to transfer certain shares to defts. "to the order of" a German bank, which had arranged to transfer them to New York. The shares were accordingly handed over to defts. "to the order of" the German bank, but the latter failed to give directions for their transfer to New York & when war broke out between England & Germany the shares were still in defts.' hands. Pltf. claimed them back from defts. & brought an action for their delivery to him. The German bank had no lien upon the shares:—Held: as pltf. had a right, as against the German bank, to the delivery of the shares, defts. were bound to hand them over to pltf.—WETHERMAN v. LONDON & LIVERPOOL BANK OF COMMERCE, LTD. (1914), 31 T. L. R. 20.

314. Moneys of married woman deposited at bank—Rights of husband against trustees—Costs.]—A married woman, living apart from her husband in adultery, acquired moneys, which she deposited with bankers. She then married again, her first husband being still alive, & on such marriage settled the money so deposited for the benefit of herself & second husband & two illegitimate children. Shortly afterwards she was convicted of murder, & executed. Previous to her trial, she & her trustees applied to the bankers for the fund, in order to employ it in her defence, which the trustees conducted in an extravagant manner, but the bankers refused to pay it over. After her execution, the trustees & the first husband severally brought actions against the bankers to recover the money, which were stayed under an interpleader rule, & an issue was directed to try the question between the first husband & the trustees under which a verdict was found for the first husband:—Held: (1) he was entitled to the money; (2) on showing cause against a rule for paying over the money to pltf., the bankers should be allowed their costs out of the fund, which were to be retained by them on paying it over to pltf.; (3) the trustees, not having acted bonâ fide, should repay the costs of the bankers to pltf., & also pay all the costs incurred by him in the course of the proceedings. Semble: if the trustees had acted bonâ fide, they would not have been charged with such cost.—*AGAR v. 315. Administration of estate—Moneys in hands of bank—Claim of judgment creditors.]—Administration of an estate, where a creditor had obtained judgment upon a plea of plene administravit by two of the exors., & a confession of assets to a certain amount by another exor.—such assets consisting of money in the hands of bankers not yet reached by the execution—which the two exors. prevented from being paid upon the cheque of the third exor. to the judgment creditor, & which was afterwards paid into ct.

With regard to the claim of the judgment creditor to the sum in the banker's hands, money in the hands of a banker is not in the nature of a chattel deposited with a third party, but is merely a simple contract debt (WIGRAM, V.-C.).—GAUNT v. TAYLOR (1843), 2 Hare. 413; 67 E. R. 170.

Garnishee order—Attachment of all moneys in hands of bank—Funds in excess of judgment debt—Right to dishonour cheques of debtor.]—A garnishee order nisi which attached all debts owing or accruing due from the garnishee to the judgment debtor was served on the garnishee, who had in his hands as banker on current & deposit accounts moneys belonging to the judgment debtor exceeding the amount of the judgment debt. The judgment debtor having brought an action against the garnishee for refusing to honour cheques which the judgment debtor drew on the balance over & above the amount of the debt:—Held: (1) an order made

317 i. Garnishee order—Judgment obtained by fraud—Liability of bank to repay.]—A bank paid money of a depositor into ct. on a garnishee order absolute obtained by an alleged judgment creditor of the depositor. The judgment had in fact been obtained by fraud, the depositor having died a month before the proceedings commenced, but there was no suggestion that the bank had not acted bonâ fide:—Held: the bank had not been negligent & as the money had been paid under compulsion of law, pltf.'s claim, as administratrix of the depositor, to the money failed.—*LAU KAN SHI v. 317 iii. — Money in trust account.]—Deft. at one time carried on business in partnership, against which pltf. recovered judgment. Deft. was also a county ct. clerk, & acted as agent for four cos. In connection with these employments he opened an account in a bank which was styled, "F. A. trust," in which were deposited trust moneys. Pltf. obtained an order garnishing the amount at the credit of the account, & applied to have the money paid over to them. Deft. had drawn out from the account moneys for his own purposes, or moneys to repay other trust moneys received by him before the opening of the account, which he had used:—Held: (1) the improper withdrawal from & use by a trustee of moneys from a trust account would never deprive other trust moneys lying at the credit of the account of their trust character; (2) unless the money was money with which debtor could deal as his own, it could not be garnished.

Where the account is a mixed one, the onus is on the party seeking to attach it, to show that the money is debtor's with which he can deal & in the absence of proof that the account or so much of it is his, the money will be treated as all trust money.—*STOBART v. 318. Moneys standing at Companies Liquidation Account at Bank of England.—Money standing at the Cos. Liquidation Account at the Bank of England is not attachable under the garnishee procedure at the suit of a judgment creditor of a person entitled, as a shareholder in a co. that has been wound up, to money at that account representing surplus assets of the co. There is no relation of debtor & creditor in respect of such money between any person & the judgment debtor.—SPENCE v. COLEMAN, [1901] 2 K. B. 199; 70 L. J. K. B. 632; 84 L. T. 703; 49 W. 319. — Proceeds of cheque obtained by false pretences — Rights of drawer against execution creditor.—K. obtained a cheque for £70 from plff. by false pretences. The proceeds of the cheque were represented by a balance at a bank standing to the credit of K. A judgment creditor obtained a garnishee order attaching this balance. Plff. disaffirmed the transaction & claimed to follow the proceeds of the cheque & to be entitled to such proceeds in priority to the execution creditor:—Held: plff. could avoid the transaction & follow the proceeds of the cheque & as between plff. & the execution creditor the former had the better title.—LEVENE v. MATON (1907), 51 Sol. Jo. 532.

320. — Retired pay collected on Army pay warrants—Liability to attachment—Army Act, 1881 (c. 58), s. 141.—Deft., a retired officer of the Army, was entitled to retired pay in respect of past services. The retired pay was payable quarterly, & on each occasion a form of pay warrant had to be filled in & signed by deft., which contained a declaration that he was entitled to retired pay at a certain rate for the last quarter, followed by the words “Received of H.M. Paymaster-General this      day of      , 190      , the sum of      pounds, being the amount of retired pay due for the period stated in the above declaration.” At the end of the form were the words “This receipt must be presented for payment by a London banker, but may be negotiated in the country or abroad, & is to be left by the banker at the Paymaster-General’s office one day for examination.” Deft. opened an account at a bank for the sole purpose of collecting his retired pay, no other moneys being paid into this account, & he drew against this account by cheques in the ordinary way. On Jan. 1, 1909, a sum of £6 13s. 8d. was standing to his credit at the bank, this sum being the balance of the retired pay previously received by him from the Paymaster-General, & on that day a pay warrant on the form given above, duly filled in & signed, for the sum of £17 12s. 6d., being the amount of his retired pay due to him on that day for the preceding quarter, was handed by him to the bank for collection, & the bank at once credited his account with the amount. On the same day, after the amount had been so credited, a garnishee order nisi was served on the bank, at the instance of a judgment creditor of deft., attaching all debts owing or accruing due from the bank to deft. to answer the judgment debt. The pay warrant was paid by the Paymaster-General on Jan. 7. Deft. contended that both the above sums were protected from execution by the above sect.:—Held: (1) the £6 13s. 8d. had lost its character of retired pay as it had been received from the Paymaster-General at the time when the garnishee order was served, & was liable to attachment; (2) the £17 12s. 6d. was not liable to attachment, notwithstanding that the amount had been placed by the bank to deft.’s credit, as it retained its character of retired pay until it had been paid by the Paymaster-General.

It is impossible to contend that the bank could have sued the Crown or the Paymaster-General upon this document (DARLING, J.).—JONES & Co. v. COVENTRY, [1909] 2 K. B. 1029; 79 L. J. K. B. 41; 101 L. T. 281; 25 T. L. R. 736; 53 Sol. Jo. 731, D. C.

321. — Incorrect designation of judgment debtor & account—Duty of bank to retain money—Onus of proof.—Unless a garnishee order nisi correctly designates the judgment debtor & the account which he has with a bank, the bank on which the order is served need not retain the money of the customer which the order purports to attach, since the onus of ascertaining whether the order in truth & in fact applies to a particular customer’s account does not rest with the bank.—KOCH v. of bank to first creditor.—A. obtained on July 8 a conditional order from the Ct. of Q. B. to attach dividends “accruing” on a sum of stock in the Bank of Ireland. B. subsequently obtained a conditional order from the Ct. of Common Pleas to attach same fund. A.’s order was made absolute on Nov. 10, & B.’s order subsequently, on Nov. 12. The bank paid over the dividends under the absolute order obtained by B.:—Held: the bank was liable to pay over again to A. the dividends which had accrued due on the stock since the date of the service of his conditional order.—SALAMAN v. 317 vii. — Bank in liquidation.—Money due on a deposit receipt by a bank, which is being wound up under liquidators, is attachable under a garnishee order against the liquidators, although the amount payable depends on that of the future dividends that may be declared on the realisation of the assets.—SMITH v. 317 viii. — Money of two persons on deposit receipt—Attachment by creditor of one.—The earnings of a vessel owned in equal shares by two brothers, A. & B., were lodged in bank on deposit receipt, “to be drawn by either or the survivor.” Arrestment having been used by a creditor of A., the bank refused to pay to B., though holding the receipt:—Held: the sum in the deposit receipt must be divided equally between the trustee & B., reserving all questions of accounting. Qu.: whether the sum in the deposit receipt could be effectually attached by arrestment used at the instance of A.’s creditor.—BANK OF SCOTLAND v. This sum was lying upon a deposit receipt, which was in these terms:—“Received from A. & B., payable to either or survivor.” The arrestor obtained decree in the original action, but during its dependence the bank paid the sum in question to B. on presentation of the deposit receipt indorsed by B. In an action against the bank for breach of arrestment pursuer averred that payment had been made with knowledge & in bad faith:—Held: the bank was not bound to pay to B., & the above averments were relevant.—ALLAN’S EXECUTOR v. Pltf. executed a power of attorney authorising M. & Co., bankers, to sell consols. The power was transmitted to M. & Co. through A. & W., of Shrewsbury, pltf.'s bankers, of whom M. & Co. were the London agents. They sold the stock & placed the proceeds to the credit of A. & W., to whom they had subsequently paid & from whom they had received large sums in the course of business. A. & W. failed, & pltf. brought an action to recover the proceeds of the stock from M. & Co. 330. Mistake of fact—Payment to wrong bank—Liability to refund.—K. & Co. sent £5,300 to S. & Co. to meet bills which were drawn by K. & Co. upon, & accepted by, S. & Co., payable at the Bank of England, on Oct. 5, & which K. & Co. had got discounted. On the 2nd S. & Co. found that they must become insolvent, & placed £5,300 in the N. Bank in the names of two partners of S. & Co. On the 3rd S. discovered that out of K. & Co.'s £5,300 only £3,300 had been paid into the Bank of England, the remaining £2,000 having been by a clerk's mistake paid into S. & Co.'s general account at the L. Bank, which refused to let S. draw out the £2,000, claiming a lien on it. The same evening S. & Co. stopped payment. K. & Co. took up the bills, obtained £3,300 of the £5,300 deposited in the N. Bank, & agreed to let the £2,000 be put into the hands of an accountant until the right to it should be decided. Subsequently S. & Co. filed a liquidation petition, having up to that time committed no act of bkpcy.:—Held: the £2,000 must be paid to K. & Co. on the ground that, S. & Co. having never intended to misappropriate it, no relation of debtor & creditor with respect to it arose between S. & Co. & K. & Co., & S. & Co. could have properly employed the £2,000 to meet the bills.—*Re SMITH, FLEMING & Co., Ex p. Defts. on being advised thereof debited the New York bank, & credited R. in account with the amount thereof, & being afterwards advised of the mistake claimed to retain & use the moneys in reduction of R.'s account with them:—Held: on being advised of the mistake defts. were bound to repair it, & pltf. bank had a sufficient interest in the moneys to recover them as moneys received to their use.—COLONIAL BANK v. EXCHANGE BANK OF YARMOUTH, NOVA SCOTIA (1885), 11 App. Cas. 84; 55 L. J. P. C. 14; 54 L. T. 256; 34 W. R. 417, P. C.

332. ————.]—Defts., foreign bankers, were in the habit of making advances to K., who then purchased goods which defts. held as security, & when K. found a purchaser he assigned the right to receive the purchase-money to defts., who accordingly released the goods. K. also carried on the same system with B. & Co. Pltfs. bought from K. two parcels, the one released by defts. & the other by B. & Co. K. instructed pltfs. to pay defts. & B. & Co. respectively for the goods so purchased. By mistake pltfs. paid both sums to defts., who credited K.'s account, notifying K. of their having done so. Defts., acting bonâ fide, continued to make advances to K., who knew of the mistake, but did not disclose it, & afterwards became bkpt. Pltfs. sought to recover from defts. the sum which should have been paid to B. & Co. as money paid under mistake of fact:—Held: defts. were liable to refund the money which had been paid to them under a mistake of fact, even though they had paid it away to a third party in ignorance of the mistake.—*CONTINENTAL CAOUTCHOUC & GUTTA PERCHA Co. v. Sometimes they released goods in order that they might be sold; sometimes they advanced money to buy goods on the terms that when sold the proceeds should be remitted direct by the purchasers to applts. Resps. used to buy goods from K., & in Sept. he directed them to send all remittances direct to applts. K. at the same time was borrowing on similar terms from other bankers, B. & Co. In Jan. K. delivered goods to resps. & directed them to pay the price to B. & Co., who had an equitable mtge. on the goods. Resps. agreed to do so, but by an oversight remitted the money to applts. The payment was made & received in good faith, applts. believing it represented a sum due to them from K. After discovery of the mistake resps. were held liable to pay the amount to B. & Co., & then sued applts. for the amount as being money paid under a mistake of fact:—Held: resps. were entitled to recover, as the position of applts. had not been altered to their disadvantage.—*KLEINWORT, SONS & Co. v. n. Account over-credited — Right of bank to repayment.—Pltfs., under instructions from one of their branches, telephoned to one of their sub-agencies to credit deft. with $2,000. The sub-agency, by some misunderstanding, credited him with $3,000, which he drew out. The $2,000 had been paid into the branch bank by way of an advance on the shipping bills of cattle bought from deft. for about $2,800, but of this pltfs. had no notice. Deft. refused to repay the difference between the $2,000 & the price of the cattle, on the ground that in faith of the payment to him he had allowed them to be shipped abroad, which by his agreement for sale was not to be done till payment of the price in full.—Held: deft. was bound to repay the excess over the $2,000.—BANK OF TORONTO v. 335. — Bond given as continuing security—Discharge.—In an ordinary banking account the first item of the debit side is discharged by the first item on the credit side.

One of defts., upon opening an account with pltfs., bankers, borrowed of them £1,000, for which he, together with the other defts., became bound to pltfs., with a condition for repayment with interest by a certain day, & continued afterwards to pay in & draw out money upon the usual footing of a banker's account. The first sum entered to his debit on the account was partly made up of the £1,000, to secure which the bond had been given:—Held: the bond was not satisfied by sums subsequently paid in exceeding in amount the £1,000, as the bond was intended to secure pltfs. against such advances as they should from time to time make to deft.—HENNIKER v. 336. — Debt due from company—Liability of shareholders.—The principle of appropriation of payments laid down in Clayton's Case, No. 334, ante, applies to dealings between a co. & its bankers, so that a former shareholder, who has transferred his shares, is exonerated from contributing to the co.'s debt to its bankers if before the winding up sufficient money had been paid to the bank to cancel what was due to the bank when such shareholder ceased to be a member.—Re DEVONPORT & SOUTH DEVON STEAM FLOUR MILL CO., BATEMAN'S CASE (1873), 42 L. 340. Sale of goods wrongfully obtained—Bill given against proceeds—Right to follow.—H., having stolen a steamer, proceeded with it to Santos & shipped a cargo of coffee consigned to purchasers at Genoa. H. took the vessel to the Cape of Good Hope, where he sold the cargo for over £10,000. He paid £8,000 into the Cape Town branch of deft. bank & took bills of exchange for that amount drawn on the London branch, payable at 90 days' sight to the order of H. £4,000 worth of these bills, having been seized by the sheriff in Australia, were in the possession of plffs. A bill for £500 had been negotiated, & the whereabouts of the remaining bills was not known. Plffs. were persons interested in the cargo which had been fraudulently disposed of:—Held: plffs. were entitled to follow the proceeds of sale & to payment of £4,000 on the bills held by them, the further consideration of the case being adjourned to enable plffs. to obtain possession of the outstanding bills.—COMITÉ DES ASSUREURS MARITIMES v. STANDARD BANK OF SOUTH AFRICA (1883), Cab. & El. 87.

341. Fraud on Government—Money payable to Government.—A person, who had been convicted & punished for fraud on the Govt., had paid into the bank certain money, the proceeds of such fraud:—Held: such money was payable to the Govt., & the depositor's claim to the money must be rejected.—

342. Closing of account—Property mortgaged to secure advances—Appointment of receiver.—In 1899 a customer of a bank mtgd. certain lands to the bank to secure the balance for the time being owing on foot of overdrafts, bills of exchange, promissory notes, credits, advances, interest, commission, discount, & premiums on policies of insurance. The security was to bear interest computed from day to day at the current bank rate up to 6 per cent. The deed contained a proviso that no greater principal sum than £5,700 should be recoverable on the security. In keeping the mtgor.'s current account, which was continued from the date of the mtge. until after action brought & was approved each half-year by the mtgor., the interest was charged from day to day with half-yearly rests, so that the interest was capitalised every half-year. In 1903 the mtgor. owed to the bank on his current account & on promissory notes a sum in excess of £5,700, & on his failure to reduce his overdraft, the bank refused to honour his cheques, except certain cheques drawn by him for the preservation of the subject-matter of the security, & for this purpose the bank also made certain payments, which they debited to the overdrawn account. In Dec., 1904, the bank appointed a receiver of the mtgd. premises under Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1881 (c. 41). The bank paid to the credit of the mtgor.'s current account all sums received by them from the receiver out of rents & profits & also the proceeds of sale of part of the mtge. security sold by them in exercise of their powers under the mtge., with the result that in this way more than £5,000 was appropriated to the payment of principal. In an action to enforce their security the bank claimed that an account should be taken as between mtgor. & mtgee., & that the current account should be treated as closed as from the date of the appointment of the receiver:—Held: (1) the current account was not closed by the appointment of the receiver, but continued as an operative account to which the provisions of the mtge. deed applied; (2) the bank had no lien for salvage in respect of the moneys paid to preserve the subject-matter of the security, inasmuch as those payments were not made by the bank, but by the mtgor. out of moneys advanced to him by the bank; (3) with regard to the surplus on the receiver's account, the application of the moneys in reduction of the interest in the manner prescribed by Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1881, was capable of alteration by the consent of the parties interested, & such consent ought to be inferred from the facts, & it was not competent to the bank to object to the appropriation of these moneys to the payment of principal as illegal.—YOURELL v. HIBERNIAN BANK, LTD., [1918] A. C. 372; 87 L. J. P. C. 1; 117 L. T. 729, H. L.

343 i. Liability of bank—Trust moneys credited to private account.—At a sale of real estate, it was agreed that the purchasers' acceptances should be placed in the hands of pltf., solr. to the vendors, to be deposited by him with defts. in a trust account, which was opened immediately after the sale by pltf., & certain bills of exchange deposited by pltf. for collection. Among the bills of exchange was one for £443 4s., drawn by the vendors & accepted by the purchaser as follows: "S. & G., trust account, per R.," & indorsed "Pay defts. or order, S. & G. for trust account per R." This bill never came into the possession of pltf. but was lodged by the vendors with defts., discounted, & the proceeds placed to their credit. Defts. having refused to acknowledge pltf.'s right to the bill or the proceeds:—Held: defts. were bound to have placed the proceeds of the bill to pltf.'s account, & not to that of S. & G.—REID v. BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, 3 J. R. N. S. 40.—N.Z.

date, was made the subject of a marriage settlement. About the time the note became due it was arranged to change the trustees of the settlement. In payment of the note a bill at seven days was drawn by a country bank on a bank in town in favour of the outgoing trustees, & it was sent to one of them to indorse, who, having indorsed it, sent it for the same purpose to D., the other trustee, a solr., who had been instructed to invest the proceeds of it, when paid, in stock in the names of the new trustees. D. delivered the bill to the registered officer of a bank with which he had dealings, desiring him "to take charge of it," & saying that he "should want to purchase some stock." The officer noticing that the bill was payable seven days after sight, D. desired him to place it to his private account. The bill was paid & D.'s private account credited. The same day D. drew for the amount to invest in the trusts of the settlement, but the bank refused to part with it unless D. made good certain liabilities in respect of bills discounted for him, not due at the time the bill in question was delivered, but some of which had then been dishonoured. In a suit by the trustees & cestuis que trust of the settlement against D. & the officer of the bank to recover the trust fund, D. by his answer stated that he told the officer that the bill was in payment of trust money, but the officer denied that he heard anything about a trust, or had received special directions, & alleged he had only been told to take charge of the bill, & D. said he should want some stock:—Held: (1) the bank were not liable to make good the trust fund; (2) D.'s answer was not evidence against the bank.—HAWKS v. HOWARD (1847), 10 L. T. O. S. 2.

344. — Bankruptcy of customer—Rights of cestuis que trust.—Country bankers, with whom A. had a current account, received from their London agents a sum of money to be placed to the credit of A.'s trust account. A. had no trust account with the bankers, & they placed it to the credit of his current account & advised him thereof. A. knew it was trust money, but gave no instructions to the bankers to open a trust account & continued to draw on his account as usual. At the time the trust money was credited to his current account A. was overdrawn on securities deposited with the bankers, & the effect of so crediting him was largely to reduce his overdraft temporarily. A. however was in good credit, & the bankers had no intention of benefiting themselves & no suspicion that A. contemplated a breach of trust, & they continued to allow him a further & extended overdraft on further securities deposited with them until his bkpey. some time afterwards:—Held: the bankers were not liable to make good to A.'s cestuis que trust the trust money that had been lost.—*COLEMAN v. the banking account of the trust in this own branch. He secured his co-trustee's signature to a blank cheque upon some misrepresentation, filled up of interests — Rights of assignees.] — A. by his will directed moneys to be paid into the B. Bank to the credit of "the beneficiaries under the will of A." The income was to be paid to C. during her life, & after her death the corpus was to be equally divided amongst grandchildren. The exors. drew a cheque for £1,375 upon their exorship. account in favour of C. & each of the twelve grandchildren entitled in remainder with a direction to pay the interest to C. for life. The exors. asked the bank to place the cheque to the credit of a deposit account entitled "the beneficiaries under the will of A." This the bank refused to do, but they accepted the cheque & placed the amount to the credit of a deposit account in the names of C. & each of the twelve grandchildren, annexing a direction to pay the annual interest to C. for life. Two of the grandchildren assigned their interests to pltfs. Pltfs. believing C. to be dead, applied to have these shares paid to them, but the bank refused to do so, except on the signature of the beneficiaries. Pltfs. sued the surviving exor. & the bank, & having discovered that C. was alive, asked for a declaration that they were entitled, subject to C.'s life interest, to two-twelfths of the moneys held by the bank. Not one of the persons in whose names the account stood was a party to the action:—Held: pltfs. were not entitled to the relief asked.—Re EDWARDS. FIELDINGS, LTD. v. FRANKLIN (1900), 44 Sol. Bank, & also separate accounts headed "Police Account" & "Superannuation Account," the cheques drawn against these being similarly headed. He on several occasions transferred special sums from his private account to these accounts. The bank knew that he held the office of county treasurer. He was subsequently made bkpt., & at that time his private account was largely overdrawn, but the Police & Superannuation Accounts were in credit:—Held: (1) the titles of the accounts amounted to notice that the moneys paid in were trust moneys; (2) the bank could not combine the accounts against the county authorities or set off the moneys due on the trust accounts against the balance due to the bank on the overdrawn private account.—*Re GROSS, Ex p. The co. subsequently opened a third account known as No. 3, into which trust moneys were paid, & these moneys stood to the credit of that account when the co. failed, owing a large balance to applts. The trustees claimed payment of £1,800 & interest out of the moneys so standing to the credit of the co.:—Held: there was nothing on the face of the No. 3 account to indicate a trust, & it not being shown that applts. had otherwise notice of the trust they were at liberty to treat such moneys as belonging to the customer & set them off against the overdrawn accounts.—

B., who had another private account with the bankers, paid the cheque into that account:—Held: on the facts the bankers were justified in applying it to that account, the drawer's writing the name of the bankers of the payees of the cheque across it not being, according to the custom of trade, information to the bankers that the money was that of the payees.—*STEWART v. 350 i. Notice of trust—Effect of—Breach of trust—Benefit to bank.—Bankers who pay cheques drawn by the trustee of a trust fund deposited with them as bankers are liable to the beneficiaries of the trust, if such cheques are, to the knowledge of the bankers, drawn by the trustee in breach of his trust. Mere incidental knowledge is insufficient to establish liability on the part of the bank. Any benefit to the bank arising out of an alleged breach of trust is cogent evidence of privity of the bank to a breach of trust, but it is not necessary, to establish the liability of the bank, to prove that the bank benefits by the transaction.

Bankers are not justified in paying to one of two or more trustee depositors moneys deposited by all of them as such trustees, without the consent of the other trustee or trustees to such payment.—LAWSON v. COMMERCIAL BANK OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA, LTD. (1888), S. A. L. R. 56, 74.—AUS.

350 ii. — Trust account & private account—Transfer to private account.—In June, 1884, a bank received on fixed deposit three sums of £10,000, £5,000 & £500 from A., with notice that they were trust funds. In Dec. the deposit for £5,000 matured, whereupon A. voluntarily & without pressure from the bank directed the bank to pass the amount to his private account, which was then overdrawn, but in a few days the account was placed more than £5,000 in credit. In June, 1885, the deposits for £10,000 & £500 matured & the amounts were on A.'s direction passed to the credit of his private account, which at the time was in credit. Cheques to the amount of £2,100 had previously been drawn by A. on his private account in favour of the trust estate. The deposits not being recovered from A. & being lost to the trust estate, it was sought to make the bank liable as being privy to a misapplication of trust funds:—Held: the relation of banker & customer was created as well by the deposit of money for fixed periods as by deposit on current account, & the bank, in the absence of notice of any intended misapplication of the trust funds by A., were bound to honour A.'s order to pay the amount of the deposits on maturity into his private account.—*DIXON v. The bank, knowing that the administrator, who had an overdrawn account at the bank, was not beneficially entitled, allowed him to transfer sums at different times from the trust account to his private account:—Held: the representatives of the estate could recover from the bank the sums so allowed to be transferred, & it was immaterial whether or not the bank knew what were the circumstances of the trust, & also whether or not the bank profited by the transfer from one account to the other, so long as they were aware that the money dealt with was trust money.—*BERTHEAU v. All cheques for the payment by a bank of money belonging to an insolvent estate are required by sect. 100 of the Insolvent Ordinance truly to express the cause of such payment, & the name of the person in whose favour the cheque is drawn, & to be signed by all the trustees, or by one of them for himself & co-trustees, & the bank may refuse to pay the cheques unless signed by all the trustees, or require the production of a power from the co-trustee before paying cheques signed by only one trustee.—

On an application by one of the trustees for a declaration that of the last-mentioned sum £1,600 was trust money & did not form part of the general estate of the insolvent bank:—Held: there was nothing to show a receipt, either by the bank or by their London agents, of any actual sum of £1,600 so as to enable it to be identified & followed as trust money.—Re HALLETT & Co., Ex p.

361. — Improper investment by banking partners—Failure of bank—Liability as trustees.]—A trustee under a will permitted the trust fund, as the money was from time to time realised, to be paid into the hands of a firm of bankers, all of whom knew that such money was subject to the trusts of the will. Two of the partners with the knowledge of the other partners, but without the assent of the trustee, invested part of the fund with other money on mtge. The security was insufficient & improper. By a subsequent deed poll, the two partners declared themselves to hold part of the mtge. money in trust for the trustees of the will. The firm became bkpt. On a petition by the trustees of the will alone:—Held: as between the bankers & the trustees, the bankers were not jointly & separately liable in the character of trustees, but they only incurred a liability as between banker & customer, & the trustees could only prove against their joint estate for such balance as was in their hands at the time of the bkpcy.—Re BIDDULPH, Ex p. BURTON (1843), 3 Mont. D. & De G. 364, Ct. of R.

363. — Mixing trust money with private account—Right of cestui que trust.]—If money held by a person in a fiduciary character, though not as trustee, has been paid by him to his account at his bankers, the person for whom he held the money can follow it, & has a charge on the balance in the bankers' hands.

If a person, who holds money as a trustee or in a fiduciary character, pays it to his account at his bankers, & mixes it with his own money, & afterwards draws out sums by cheques in the ordinary manner, the rule in Clayton's Case, No. 334, ante, does not apply, & the drawer must be taken to have drawn out his own money in preference to the trust money.—*Re HALLETT'S ESTATE, KNATCHBULL v. such payments in of moneys belonging to A. & B., the balance to the credit of the account was £522 odd; on Nov. 5 it was £301 odd, but in the meantime £1,367 odd more had been paid in, so that in that period about £1,600 in all had been drawn out. On Nov. 15 a judgment creditor of the stockbroker obtained a garnishee order nisi against the balance of £301:—Held: A. & B. were entitled to the money as against the judgment creditor, for, the question arising, not as between competing cestuis que trust against a deficient fund, but between their trustee & a judgment creditor of his, the rule in Clayton's Case, No. 334, ante, did not apply.—*HANCOCK v. 365. Payment of proceeds of sale to overdrawn private account — Bank reducing overdraft — Right of vendors.]—An auctioneer received moneys from sales of stock, & paid them into his private account at defts.' bank. His account was overdrawn to an amount not exceeding £2,500, but, under an arrangement which was then subsisting, he was permitted to overdraw up to £2,500, & he had no suspicion at the time when he paid in such moneys of any intention on the part of the bank to close his account. The bank shortly afterwards closed the account, & applied the proceeds of the sales in reduction of the overdraft. The bankers knew that moneys paid in often represented the proceeds of sales, but they did not know what proportion the customer was entitled to retain as commission or otherwise. An action was brought by pltf., on behalf of all the vendors, against the bank, to recover their respective purchase-moneys, less the auctioneer's commission:—Held: the auctioneer paid the proceeds of the sale to his private account in the ordinary course of business, & was not guilty of a breach of trust in so doing, & pltf. had no remedy against the bank.—MARTEN v. ROCKE, EYTON & Co. (1885), 53 L. T. 946; 34 W. R. 253; 2 T. L. R. 140.

B. Executors' Accounts.

366. Trust account & private account — Bank authorised to realise assets—Debiting & crediting private account—Liability of bank.]—Exors. employed their bankers (with whom they had a private account) to collect & realise assets of testator, & they opened a separate account as exors., which was credited with the proceeds of assets realised. The private account was overdrawn. The exors. subsequently authorised the bankers to sell securities, & drew bills on their bankers in anticipation of the sums they expected would be received. The bankers remitted the amount of the bills to the exors., & the overdraft on the private account was thereby considerably increased. The proceeds of the securities were afterwards credited to the private account, but the overdraft thereon (not taking into account the amounts remitted) was not reduced. The bankers had no notice that the sums remitted had not been applied for the purposes of the will:—Held: the bankers incurred no liability.—KEANE v. ROBERTS (1819), 4 Madd. 332; 56 E. R. 728.

367. Balance due on executorship account—Executor also residuary legatee—Right to set off.]—Pltf., as trustee in the bkpcy. of K. & Co., bankers, sued deft. for money lent, the balance due upon his private account. Deft. had another account with the bank as exor. of A., & at the time of the bkpcy. the balance of this account was in his favour. Under the will of A. deft. was both exor. & residuary legatee, & at the time of the bkpcy. he had assets in his hands, exclusive of the balance in the bank, more than sufficient to provide for all bequests which remained unpaid & to leave a balance due to him as residuary legatee:—Held: the only effect of opening the account as exor. was to give the bank notice of any equities attaching to the fund, but, there being no such equities, deft. had the right to treat the balance as a fund to which he was beneficially as well as legally entitled, & he could set off the balance on the exorship. account against pltf.'s claim.—BAILEY v. FINCH (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 34; 41 L. J. Q. B. 83; 25 L. T. 871; 20 W. R. 294.

The bank had notice that the money so lodged was trust money, but had no notice that A. intended to commit a breach of trust, & placed the money to the credit of A.'s account in the ordinary way. A. afterwards became insolvent, & his account was overdrawn. B. brought an action against the bank & A. to have it declared that the bank were trustees of the money so lodged on behalf of B. & A., as exors. of C.:—Held: the bank were not liable.—SHIELDS v. BANK OF IRELAND (GOVERNOR & Co.), [1901] 1 I. R. 222.—IR.

The bank, by authority of the son, transferred the money to his individual account, taking a discharge from him quod exor., & then transferred it to an account in name of the co., whereby the debt due to the bank was extinguished. The Ct. of Session having found the bank not liable to account, the House of Lords remitted an issue to ascertain whether the bank knew that the money was part of the funds of testator & held by the son quod exor., & subject to the trusts of the will, & that those trusts were not satisfied.—*TAYLOR v. c. Deceased's estate consisting partly of property belonging to first wife—Money from both estates paid into one account—Rights of heirs of first wife.]—After the death of A. B., his widow, continued to manage his estate without making any distinction between what property belonged to the estate of the husband & what to that of his first wife C. The whole money was paid into one account, headed "succession A.," in the hands of applt. bank, of which the heirs of C. claimed half:—Held: as between the heirs of C. & the bank there was no relation of creditor & debtor, nor any fiduciary relation, nor any priority whatever, & the claim of C.'s heirs failed.—*GIRALDI v. divided among her children. Part of the property consisted of life policies which were put into the hands of the bankers, together with the probate of J.'s will, & they received the amount of the policies, made up their accounts, & after deducting their own unsettled claims, declared a certain sum to remain due from themselves to the extrix. She continued her husband's business with his late partner under the style of J. & M., & a new account was opened with the bankers in the name of the new firm, & she, as extrix, drew a cheque for the amount due to her & paid it into the bankers, to be credited to the firm of J. & M. & it was so credited & paid out with other money on account of cheques drawn by the new firm:—Held: these circumstances were not in themselves sufficient to show that a breach of trust had been committed, & that the bankers knew of the intention to commit it, so as to render them liable (in a suit by the children of testator) to replace the money.—GRAY v. JOHNSTON (1868), L. R. 3 H. L. 1; 16 W. R. 842, H. L.

The mere circumstance, however, of the money deposited being partnership property, is not sufficient for that purpose.—COOKE v. SEELEY (1848), 2 Exch. 746; 17 L. J. Ex. 286; 154 E. R. 691.

381. Receiver of rents—Transfer to private account—Liability to make good.]—Three accounts were opened by a customer with his bankers, one of which was called the "R. Account." This account was opened by the customer as the receiver of the rents of an estate of that name belonging to pltf., & the bankers, knowing that such was a receivership account, allowed the customer to draw a cheque on that particular account to liquidate a balance due from the customer to the bankers on his "office account":—Held: the bankers were liable to make good to the owner of the estate the balance so allowed by them to be carried over from the R. account to the credit of the customer's private account.—*BODENHAM v. e. Bank acting as estate agents—Payment of money for rents into "agency account"—Fiduciary relation.]—Defts., a banking co., also carried on the business of estate agents, & as such collected money for rents for pltf. Defts. placed the money so collected in a separate account in their books, entitled "agency account," & credited pltf. with the amount thereof, & mixed it with their own moneys:—Held: defts. were in a fiduciary relation to pltf., & the rules as to following trust moneys applied, & pltf. was entitled on defts. going into liquidation to be paid such money in full in priority to the other creditors of defts.—SEELEY v. MERCANTILE BANK OF AUSTRALIA (IN LIQUIDATION) (1892), 18 V. L. R. 485.—AUS.

380 i. Stockbroker—Payment in of client's money—Right to follow.]—Money identified as belonging to a customer of deceased, a stockbroker, was lodged by him to the credit of his current account with his bank. After his death, which occurred on the day after the lodgment, the bank transferred the balance due to deceased on his current account to a loan account, on which he was indebted to the bank, & sold so much of certain stocks & shares (which they held as security for any balance which might be due to them on the loan account) as were sufficient to pay off the entire amount remaining due to them, & thereupon transferred the remaining securities to the credit of the matter to administer deceased's estate:—Held: the customer was entitled to follow the money identified as his, & to stand in the place of the bank, & to have the benefit of their lien on the securities lodged in ct.—Re REYNOLDS, M'MAHON v. FETHERSTONHAUGH, [1895] 1 I. R. 83.—IR.

f. Account naming principal—Second account not naming principal—Right of bank against principal on second account.]—An agent kept an account in a bank as the agent expressly of his principal, but on a new account being opened it was opened in his name as agent simply, without specifying a principal. In an action by the bank against the principal named in the first account it was proved that in the second account the agent had kept the funds & drawn on account of different principals:—Held: deft. not liable.—METROPOLITAN BANK v. SYMES ET VIR (1876), 21 L. C. J. 201.—CAN.

g. Agreement to cash drafts for agent—Drafts utilised to reduce agent's indebtedness—Notice of breach of trust—Liability of bank.]—By special contract defts.

agreed to supply currency from one of their branches to plifs. by "cashing" the drafts drawn by plifs.' agent Y. upon them at Winnipeg. Y. was to use the proceeds of the drafts to purchase grain for plifs., & this was known to defts.' manager at the branch in question. Y. had a personal account & a firm account in the same branch bank, both of which were overdrawn. Y. would deposit drafts drawn for the purchase of grain to his own account or his firm account, to the knowledge of the local manager of defts., & frequently upon his insisting upon a reduction of the overdrafts. The drafts were all paid by plifs. without knowledge of the fraud or breach of trust. Plifs. upon learning of the transactions sued for & recovered judgment for the full amount of the drafts so dealt with:—Held: there was sufficient notice to the bank of the breach of trust & sufficient benefit accruing to defts. to make them liable.

Plifs.' agent was given a cheque by Y. for $1,000 to settle accounts, & there not being sufficient funds to meet the cheque, Y. deposited a draft upon plifs. which was duly honoured & out of which the cheque was paid:—Held: the bank should not be held liable for this amount.—*BRITISH AMERICAN ELEVATOR CO. v. 382. Mixing trust moneys with private account—No notice of trust to bank—Right to set off.—A., a solr. in the country, received from a client a sum of money, which was to be paid by him into the Ct. of Ch. on the client's account. A. obtained a bill for the sum from a country banker, & remitted it to his bankers in London without stating the reason for which the amount had been paid to him. At the same time he was indebted to his bankers in £450, for which they held securities & as to which they kept an account separate from his general account. A. died, & a few days afterwards the bill became due & was paid, & the bankers carried the amount to A.'s general account. The bankers, for some time after they had received notice from the client of the circumstances in which the amount of the bill had been paid to A., continued to keep the accounts separate, but ultimately they deducted the £450 from the proceeds of the bill & paid the balance to his extrix. :—Held: as there was no agreement binding the bankers to keep separate accounts as to the £450 & the amount of the bill, & as they had no notice till after the amount was received of the purpose for which it was intended to be applied, the client was not entitled to recover from them any part of the proceeds of the bill.—GRIGG v. COCKS (1831), 4 Sim. 438; 58 E. R. 163.

383. ———. ]—A partner in a firm of solrs. opened three accounts in his own name with defts. which were kept under the titles, "office account," "deposit account," & "private account." Defts. were told that clients' moneys would mostly be paid into the deposit account. In Dec., 1891, the deposit account was closed & the balance transferred to the office account, & thenceforward until June, 1893, clients' moneys were paid into the office account. On that date the office account was in credit £5,287, & the private account was overdrawn to an amount exceeding that sum. The firm of solrs. having claimed payment of £5,287 :—Held: the bank had no notice of any trust & was entitled to set off the credit balance against the overdraft.—GREENWOOD TEALE v. WILLIAMS (WILLIAM), BROWN & Co. (1894), 11 T. L. R. 56.

settlement.—Re MAWSON, Ex p. HARDCASTLE (1881), 44 L. T. 523; 29 W. R. 615.

385. ———. Balance at death—Appropriation of payments. ]—A solr. paid money, which he had received for a client, to his own banking account. From that time up to the death of the solr. there was always to the credit of the account a balance exceeding the sum so paid in. But on many days during that period the credit balance was less than the amount of other clients' moneys, which the solr. had paid in subsequently to his payment of the money of the first client & had not withdrawn :—Held: the rule in Clayton's Case, No. 334, ante, applied, & the money of the first client must be taken to have been drawn out by the solr., & not to have formed part of the balance to the credit of the account at the time of his death, & the first client was not entitled to be paid out of that balance specifically.—*Re STENNING, WOOD v. ### D. Companies and Corporations.

386. Deposit by applicant for shares—Transfer to overdrawn general account—Invalid allotment—Liability of bank. ]—Defts. were the bankers of G. Co., Ltd. In 1880 pltf. applied for one thousand preference shares in G. Co., & deposited £500 with defts., the co.'s bankers. The money was acknowledged as "being a deposit of 10s. per share," & on instructions from the co. was placed to a separate account headed "G. Co., Preference Shares Account." Other deposits were placed to this account, & when allotments were made, the proper amount was transferred to the co.'s general account. Before allotment the deposits were considered by defts. to be the property of appcts. for shares. On May 25, 1881, the co. passed a resolution to wind up & purported to allot five hundred preference shares to pltf., but pltf. immediately repudiated the allotment & gave notice to defts. not to part with the deposit. After receipt of such notice, defts. at the request of the co. transferred the £500 to the co.'s overdrawn general account. Before doing so defts. knew that a meeting had been held to wind up the co. with a view to its reconstruction. The allotment was invalid :—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover the £500 from defts.—GREENWELL v. NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK (1883), Cab. & El. 56.

387. Company's account & managing director's account—Company cheques improperly credited to private account—Liability of bank. ]—A trader carried on his own business in conjunction with that of a co., of which he was managing director, & by himself or his nominees held all the shares. The co.'s account & the trader's account were in the same bank, & blank cheques were given to the bank

PART II. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.—C.

382 i. Mixing trust moneys with private account—No notice of trust to bank—Right to charge up cheques. ]—Pltf. placed a mtge. in the hands of J., a solr., to enable J. to receive payment of the mtge. money, which it was arranged between pltf. & J., in the presence of the local manager of a bank, of which J. was the solr., should be deposited in the bank to the credit of pltf., & a deposit receipt obtained. J. received $6,455, which he deposited in the bank to his private account. About ten days afterwards he drew upon his account for $3,000, which he deposited in the same bank to the credit of pltf., obtained a deposit receipt in favour of pltf., & transmitted same to pltf., telling pltf. that "the balance will be sent next week." He drew upon the fund for his own purposes, & died, without rendering any account :—Held: the bank was not affected with notice of the money so deposited being trust moneys, so as to render the bank liable for J.'s misappropriation.

After the deposit of pltf.'s money J. recovered $1,182.95 for S., as her solr., which he also deposited in the same account. Up to the time of J.'s death the amount at his credit always exceeded this sum :—Held: the moneys so deposited by J. had been held by him in a fiduciary character, & might be followed, but as between pltf. & S., S. had a first charge upon the sum at the credit of J. for the full amount of her deposit, & the balance was applicable to the discharge of pltf.'s demand.

The bank claimed the right to charge against the account in priority to the claims of pltf. & S. cheques & notes of J. presented or maturing after notice to the bank of J.'s death :—Held: they could not do so.—BAILEY v. JELLETT (1883), 9 A. R. 187.—CAN.

j. Municipal account—Agreement as to. ]—An agreement made by a municipality to keep its current account in a certain bank does not call for the deposit therein of all its money, particularly a sum of money borrowed for a special purpose. The fact that during twenty years it had always deposited all its cash in the bank in question has no bearing on the contract.—CAISSE D'ECONOMIE v. QUEBEC (1913), Q. R. 23 K. manager in respect of each account to be filled in with amounts necessary for the purpose of adjustment of the two accounts. Blank cheques of the co. were improperly filled in by the trader with amounts which were credited to his account:—Held: in the absence of notice on the part of the bank of the state of accounts between the trader & the co., the bank were not liable to refund the money.—BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES v. GOULBURN VALLEY BUTTER CO. PROPRIETARY, [1902] A. C. 543; 71 L. J. P. C. 112; 87 L. T. 88; 51 W. R. 367; 18 T. L. R. 735, P. C.

388. Company not entitled to commence business—Claim by bank for services rendered—Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 6 (3).]—A co. incorporated under Cos. Act issued a prospectus inviting applications for shares in the co., & the moneys subscribed were paid into the co.'s bank. The co. never obtained a certificate from the registrar under the above sub-sect. that they were entitled to commence business & never were so entitled. The bank claimed to be paid out of the moneys in their hands a certain sum for services rendered:—Held: as the bank must rely upon some contract with the co. & as by the above sub-sect. a contract made by a co. before the date at which it was entitled to commence business was provisional only & not binding until that date, the bank were not entitled to be paid.—NEW DRUCE-PORTLAND CO., LTD. v. BLAKISTON (1908), 24 T. L. R. 583.

389. Moneys of husband—Deposit by wife in name of infant son—Claim by husband—Liability of bank.]—A. having received a sum of money bequeathed by will to his wife, gave it to her to take care of. The wife, without his knowledge, deposited it in a bank, in the name of her son by a former marriage, who was then an infant, & took from the bankers an accountable receipt in the son's name, bearing interest:—Held: the bankers not being bound to pay the money to any other person were liable to A. for the amount in an action for money had & received.—*CALLAND v. Joint account of husband & wife—Deposit by husband as provision for wife—Death of husband—Title of wife.]—Money deposited in a bank by a husband, in the joint names of himself & his wife, as a provision for her in case of his death, upon his death becomes the absolute property of the wife.—WILLIAMS v. DAVIES (1864), 3 Sw. & Tr. 437; 4 New Rep. 301; 33 L. J. P. M. & A. 127; 10 L. T. 583; 28 J. P. 664.

391. — Transfer of account by husband—Cheques drawn by wife at husband's direction—Title of wife to balance.]—The husband of pltf., being in failing health, transferred his banking account from his own name into the joint names of himself & his wife, & directed the bankers to honour cheques drawn either by himself or his wife, & he afterwards paid in considerable sums to this account. All cheques were afterwards drawn by pltf. at the direction of her husband, & the proceeds were applied in payment of household & other expenses. The husband never explained to pltf. what his intention was in transferring the account, but he was stated by the bank manager to have remarked at the time of the transfer that the balance of the account would belong to the survivor of himself & his wife. After the death of her husband (which took place a few months after the transfer) pltf. claimed to be entitled to the balance:—Held: the transfer of the account was not intended to be a provision for pltf., but merely a mode of conveniently managing her husband's affairs, & she was not entitled.—*MARSHAL v. 392. Account in name of wife—Cheques initialled by husband & paid by bank—Bankruptcy of husband—Liability of bank.]—On a notice of motion a declaration was obtained that certain moneys at the credit of bkpt.'s wife in a bank were the moneys of bkpt., & upon that an order that the bank should pay same to the trustee in bkpey. Between the date of the receiving order & the date of that order, the bank honoured the wife's cheques to the extent of £216 18s., & the trustee sought to make the bank liable to pay this amount over again to him:—Held: as the account had been opened as the wife's (although by arrangement her cheques were to be initialled by bkpt.), the bank, having no notice that the moneys were bkpt.'s, were bound to honour her cheques until the trustee obtained a declaration that the moneys were bkpt.'s, & the bank having so honoured the wife's cheques between the date of the receiving order & the date of the declaration, could not be called upon to pay the amounts over again.—*Re MONTAGUE, Ex p. 393. Allen domiciled abroad—Refusal by bank to deliver up property—Administrateur provisoire—Order of court.]—G., domiciled & resident in Belgium, deposited with an English bank for safe custody, in his name, certificates & scrip for securities of great value. On his death in 1892 his widow, then also domiciled & resident in Belgium, took out administration in England to his estate, & had the securities then standing to his account, & also a sum of cash representing dividends thereon collected by the bank on his account, transferred to a new account opened by her at the bank in her own name. In 1897 she became lunatic, though she was not so declared judicially, & was placed in a foreign lunatic asylum. D., a Belgian, was appointed by the Belgian ct. her administrateur provisoire, with power to collect & get in her personal estate, & subsequently D. obtained in England letters of administration de bonis non to G.'s estate, whereupon he brought an action in England against the bank in the names of himself & of Madame G. (the writ not stating that she was of unsound mind or that he was suing as her next friend), claiming, in his double capacity of legal personal representative of G. & of administrateur provisoire of Madame G., to have the certificates, scrip & cash standing in her name delivered up to him. Upon the action coming on for trial, a preliminary objection was taken that it was improperly constituted in that Madame G., being of unsound mind, could not sue without a next friend, whereupon D. was appointed next friend, & the title of the action was amended accordingly:—Held: (1) as D. & Madame G. had together a clear legal title to the property sought to be recovered, D. was entitled, suing in his own name & as next friend of Madame G., to demand the delivery of her property to him & could give the bank

a good discharge; (2) the ct. was bound to recognise the order of the Belgian ct. giving D. leave to prosecute the appeal & to obtain & give a good discharge for the property; (3) the bank were perfectly justified in not complying with D.'s demands without an order of the ct. & must be paid their costs of the action. P. requested defts. to transfer the property to him, offering to prove the orders of the French ct. appointing him administrator in any manner satisfactory to defts., but they declined to transfer the property without an order of an English ct.:—Held: in view of *Didisheim v. m. At what place payment enforceable.—L. whose domicile was in Nova Scotia, had, when he died, $90,000 on deposit in the branch of the B. Bank at St. John, N.B. The deposit receipt provided that the amount would be accounted for by the bank on surrender of the receipt & would bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum. Fifteen days' notice was to be given of its withdrawal. ### SECT. 3.—RECEIPT OF MONEY ON DEPOSIT ACCOUNT.

SUB-SECT. 1.—THE DEPOSIT ACCOUNT.

Annotation:—Distd. David v. Ellice (1825), 7 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 690.

397. — [Previously to 1872 A. & B. were partners as bankers. In that year they took in two new partners. Very shortly after the partners were taken in A. died. In 1874 B. died. In 1875 the bank went into liquidation. The bank were in the habit of issuing deposit receipts to customers who left money with them. When the account on deposit was altered the note was changed. The depositors at the time of the bkpey. all proved the receipt by the bank of the deposit without any intention to accept it on behalf of the alleged donees as a donation to them did not amount to such an inchoate acceptance as would become complete upon its being ratified on their behalf after the death of the donor.—*DE KOCK v. o. — Not established.—O., parish priest of B., on June 15, 1905, lodged £60 for Masses on deposit receipt in the branch of the K. Bank. The deposit receipt was as follows: "Received from the parish priest of B. the sum of £60 for Masses, to be accounted for at our office here." On the same day he lodged on deposit receipt in the same bank in a similar form a sum of £50 for repairs & building to church. On the same day he also lodged two sums of £385 each in the joint names of himself & each of two nieces. This was done in consequence of a conversation with the bank manager, during which O. stated that he wished to give the two sums of £50 & £60 for the purposes mentioned, but he did not wish to make a will. Two days after O. drew out the £50 lodged on deposit receipt for repairs to the church, & placed the amount to the credit of his current account. On Sept. 21, 1905, O. lodged a sum of £100 on deposit receipt in the same bank for repairs & building to the church. This was done in consequence of a conversation with the bank manager, at which two other persons were present, in which O. stated that he desired to leave this sum of money to his successor for repairs to the church. This £100 was made up by taking £50 from each of the deposit receipts in favour of the nieces. O. died on Nov. 15, 1905:—Held: as the money on deposit receipt remained in the possession & under the control of O. during his life, the relationship of the bank & O. was that of debtor & creditor, & a valid trust had not been created.—O'FLAHERTY v. BROWNE, [1907] 2 I. R. 416.—IR.

p. Insurance of money on deposit—Default in repayment by bank.—Pursuer, having lent money on deposit-receipt to a bank, insured the deposit with defenders, an insurance co., who guaranteed payment of the deposit with interest, if the bank made default in repayment of the deposit for more than twenty-one days after the date named in the receipt. The policy was subject (inter alia) to the condition that the assured on receiving payment should hand over to the assurers "the deposit & all his rights in respect thereof." The deposit was due to be paid on May 15, 1893. On Apr. 4 the bank suspended payment. On Apr. 26 a scheme of compromise was sanctioned, which transferred the liability of the bank to a new co. On June 19 this scheme was approved:—Held: the bank made default by failing to repay the deposit when it became due, & pursuer satisfied the condition of the policy by offering to transfer the deposit & his rights in respect thereof as then existing, & was entitled to a decree for the amount of his deposit receipt.—*LAIRD v. against the estate of the two surviving partners for the amount of their claims, but those who had deposits prior to the admission of the new partners desired to prove against the estate of A. Three test cases were taken, one in which the deposit receipt had not been changed since the new partners had been admitted; another, where the note had been changed & the account increased; another, where the note had been changed & the account diminished. All the depositors had received interest from the new partners:—Held: in all three cases there had been complete novation, & the depositors were not entitled to prove against A.'s estate.—*BILBOROUGH v. 400 i. Payment to unauthorised person—Liability of bank.—A factor, who had power to superintend the management of the estate, but not to draw the money of his constituent out of his bank account, uplifted from a bank a sum standing in his constituent's name on a deposit receipt. No action was brought till the factor was dead, & till thirteen years had elapsed. Factorial accounts had been settled between the constituent & the exors. of the factor, & the constituent failed to prove that the factor had unwarrantably obtained possession of the bank receipt & drawn the money:—Held: the constituent not entitled to recover as against the bank.—STEWART v. CENTRAL BANK OF SCOTLAND (1859), 21 Dunl. (Cl. of Sess.) 1180; 31 Sc. Jur. 644.—SCOT.

400 ii. ———. ]—A., who had placed £100 on deposit receipt with a bank, wrote from abroad to the bank requesting them to pay £60 out of the £100 to his brother, who was unknown to the bank, on presentation of the indorsed receipt. At the same time A. wrote to his brother, enclosing the indorsed receipt & a letter addressed to the bank in similar terms to the letter sent direct to them. The letter to the brother was stolen in the course of post. Thereafter a person, pretending to be the brother, presented the indorsed receipt & letter to the bank, & after having been required to indorse the receipt himself, which he did in the brother's name, received payment of the money:—Held: the bank, being authorised to pay the money only to A.'s brother, & having in fact paid it to someone else, must bear the loss.—WOOD v. CLYDESDALE BANK, LTD., [1914] S. C. 397.—SCOT.

400 iii. ———. ]—A sum forming part of a trust estate was deposited with a bank on a consignment receipt bearing that the money was received from the truster's exors. & was to be payable on the signature of a legal firm, who were the law agents to the trust. The firm was subsequently dissolved; & some years afterwards B., one of the former partners, indorsed the receipt with the firm name, & uplifted & embezzled the money. In an action against the bank at the instance of the beneficiaries under the trust for payment of the sum deposited:—Held: as the uplifting of the deposit was necessary, either to wind up the affairs of the partnership or to complete transactions begun but unfinished at the time of the dissolution of the firm, within Partnership Act, 1890 (c. 39), s. 38, the bank was warranted in paying over to B. the money deposited; & action dismissed as irrelevant.—*DICKSON v. 400 iv. ———. ]—Payment after depositor's death.—In an action by L.'s administratrix to recover a sum deposited by L. in his lifetime with debts., debts. pleaded that (1) the moneys were claimed under a deposit receipt, which, after L.'s death & before debts. had any notice or knowledge thereof, was duly presented to debts. properly indorsed by L., & debts. in due course of business, & in their usual mode of dealing with such receipts, paid the sum mentioned therein to the person presenting same with L.'s indorsement thereon, & debts. took up & had ever since held same, as they were entitled to do; (2) L. in his lifetime indorsed & delivered the receipt to B., his wife & afterwards his widow, who, being possessed thereof by virtue of the indorsement, presented it to debts., who, without any notice or knowledge of L.'s death, duly paid same to her:—Held: both pleas were bad.—*LEE v. 400 v. ———. ]—Whether depositor estopped from claiming.—Pltf., an ignorant man, & a foreigner, deposited a sum of money with debts. on Sept. 24, 1884, & received from them a non-negotiable deposit receipt for the amount, in which it was stated that debts. would "account to" pltf. therefor, etc., & pltf.'s signature was left with debts. for the purpose of identification. Pltf. left the receipt with S. for safe keeping, & went away. In Apr., 1885, S. informed him that he had drawn the money, & promised to return it. Debts. had paid the money without proper identification, & without comparison of the signature of S. with that of pltf. Ignorant of the method by which the money had been obtained & of his rights against debts., pltf. did

Transfer from current account.—A customer of a banking partnership, after the death of one of the partners, removed money from his current account to a deposit account bearing interest at the same bank, & received a deposit note from the surviving partner:—Held: there was sufficient evidence of novation to discharge the estate of the deceased partner from liability for the amount placed on deposit.

This case is the same as if the customer had drawn a cheque for the £500, & received the money across the counter, & then gone to the other side of the bank where the deposit accounts were kept, & opened a deposit account there by depositing the same £500. There was in effect payment out from the current account when the customer gave notice for the money to be on deposit, & a new contract was then entered into (LOPES, J.J.).—*Re HEAD, HEAD v. 400. Payment to unauthorised person—Liability of bank.—A., deceased, deposited with a bank £200 for which he held two accountable receipts, carrying interest. After his death, B., his nephew, having got possession of the receipts, fraudulently indorsed his own name thereon, & the bank in ignorance cashed same, & then cancelled them. The administrator of A. filed his bill against the bank, praying an account, discovery, & payment; or, in the alternative, the delivery up of the documents:—Held: (1) pltf. was entitled to delivery up of the receipts, which had wrongfully come into nothing further until Dec., when pltf. was informed of his rights, & consulted a solr., who failed to attend to the matter. In Apr. 1886, pltf. consulted another solr., when a demand was made on debts., & on their refusal an action was brought:—Held: (1) pltf.'s failure to make a demand or sue debts., when he first heard his money had been obtained by S., did not operate against him so long as his claim was not barred by Stat. Limitations; (2) no legal duty was cast on pltf. to notify debts.—SADERQUIST v. ONTARIO BANK (1887), 14 O. R. 586; 15 A. R. 609.—CAN.

400 vi. ———. ]—S., a ship-master, deposited $1,000 with a bank in 1883, & received a deposit receipt. He left the receipt with R., the managing owner of his vessel. Soon afterwards he went to sea & remained away till July, 1887. In Dec. 1884, R. took the receipt to the bank with the name of S. indorsed on it, & gave the receipt to the bank, receiving a deposit receipt for the same amount payable to himself. On the return of S., R. admitted that he had drawn the money & used it, & upon S. threatening him with criminal proceedings he begged S. not to expose him, & said that if he would wait he would pay him, & he gave R. a bill of exchange & a mtge. S. said nothing to the bank about the matter, but went away again & did not return for two years. R. left the country in Nov., 1888. On the return of S. in July, 1889, finding that the bill was dishonoured & that nothing was realised on the mtge., he demanded the money from the bank, & on their refusal to pay brought an action for the amount:—Held: S. was estopped by his conduct from recovering against the bank.—*SCOTT v. r. Payment refused—Claim by third party—Interpleader.—Pltf. deposited with debts. a sum of money on fixed deposit for six months. It was afterwards claimed by the assignees of the insolvent estate of pltf.'s father, but no notice of the nature of the claim was given. Pltf. presented the deposit receipt & demanded payment, which was refused. She then commenced an action against debts. for damages for the possession of the bank; (2) equity would assume jurisdiction at once to decree payment, though the demand was purely legal.—PEARCE v. CRESWICK (1843), 2 Hare, 286; 12 L. J. Ch. 251; 7 Jur. 340; 67 E. R. 118.

401. ———.]—Pltf. held a deposit receipt upon the terms that the money should be accounted for to her or anyone authorised by her to receive it, on production of the document with her receipt indorsed thereon. Pltf. parted with the deposit receipt to L., to secure (as she alleged) a trifling loan. L. subsequently obtained payment from defts. on delivery up of the deposit receipt purporting to be signed by pltf. Pltf. alleged her signature was a forgery. Defts. cashed the note after requiring proof of identity:—Held: (1) pltf. was entitled to recover & was not estopped, even if the signature was genuine, because defts. had not relied on the signature: (2) the document was a receipt & did not purport to be an authority.—EVANS v. NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND (1897), 13 T. L. R. 429.

402. Withdrawal conditional on production of deposit note—Statute of Limitations.—Seemle: where money is paid to a deposit account upon the terms that it shall be repayable upon notice or production of the deposit note, Stat. Limitations will only commence to run after the money has become repayable in accordance with the prescribed

s. ———.]—A. lodged money of B.'s at a bank, took a deposit receipt in the name of B., & afterwards lodged a small additional sum, & took a deposit receipt for the whole, by B.'s authority, in the name of B.'s daughter, X., stating it was a provision for her. After B.'s death, A. refused to give the deposit receipt to X., & set up a claim to the money as B.'s administrator. The bank refusing to pay X. without the receipt, X. & A. brought actions against it:—Held: the effect of the dealing was conclusively to constitute the bank debtor of X. only, & they could not sustain an interpleader suit.—COCHRANE v. O'BRIEN (1845), 8 L. Eq. R. 211; 2 Jo. & Lat. 380.—IR.

BANK OF HAMILTON* (1895), 25 O. R. 641; 22 A. R. 414.—CAN.

u. Set-off of debt on promissory note against deposit.]—A testator, having a deposit to his credit in a bank at the time of his death, was indebted to the bank on a note under discount, which had not then matured. The deposit remained with the bank until after the maturity of the note:—Held: the deposit not having been withdrawn or demanded before maturity of the note, the bank was entitled to set off the debt on the note against the deposit, & to rank for the balance.—ONTARIO BANK v. ROUTHIER (1900), 32 O. R. 67.—CAN.

w. Deposit account changed into joint names—Presumption of gift to survivor.]—Testator, having moneys on deposit in certain banks, some time before his death, with the consent of the banks, made such moneys payable either to himself or his wife, & in two instances took new deposit receipts in their joint names with the right to the survivor to withdraw the moneys:—Held: as the deposit accounts were changed & put in their joint names as a matter of convenience & not with the intention of vesting the moneys in testator's wife, no presumption of advancement was to be raised.—BEVIEA v. DIOCESAN SYNOD OF FREDERICTON (1912), 10 E. L. R. 48.—CAN.

a. Order to bank—Whether direction to change deposit account into joint names.]—Six months before her death, & when laid up in hospital with bronchitis, A. wrote to a bank, "Arrange my money in B.'s name so she can draw it":—Held: such order did not constitute B. a joint owner of the money on deposit, but was only given for the convenience of A.—EVERLEY v. DUNKLEY (1912), 23 O. W. R. 415; 4 O. W. N. 406; 27 O. L. R. 414; 8 D. L. R. 839.—CAN.

b. Joint deposit by two—Death of one—Right of survivor—Against administrator]—A sum of money was deposited in a bank, for which a receipt was given in the following words: "Received from P. C. & H. C., to be drawn by either of them, or the survivor $1,400, for which we are accountable, with interest, on receiving fifteen days' notice." On P. C.'s death:—Held: the right to receive the money vested in H. C., & P. C.'s administrators could not recover it from the bank.—CONDON v. BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA (1870), N. B. Dig. 376.—CAN.

c. ——— To sue—Set-off.]—Where moneys are deposited in a bank in the joint names of two depositors, & nothing more is said when the deposits are made, the liability as between the depositors & the bank is to the two jointly, & the right to sue in respect of it inures to the surviving creditor only.

A bank held a number of notes made by the survivor of two such depositors which it had discounted for deceased depositor. These notes all matured before the deposit receipts matured. On Mar. 3, 1895, the day on which the depositor died, one of these notes was overdue; the others were of various conditions.—Re TIDD, TIDD v. OVERELL, [1893] 3 Ch. 154; 62 L. J. Ch. 915; 69 L. T. 255; 42 W. R. 25; 9 T. L. R. 550; 37 Sol. Jo. 618; 3 R. 657.

403. Deposit in foreign currency—Repayment.]—A deposit of roubles equivalent to £7,000 at the rate of ten roubles to the pound, which had been lodged with defts.' head office in Petrograd, was credited to an account in London & held at pltf.'s disposal in Russian currency according to statement made in 1914 to pltf. by the London branch of defts. In Feb., 1918, pltf. demanded payment from defts. in London in specie, but defts. refused & denied that they were, by any agreement or by the practice of bankers in London or in Petrograd, under any obligation to pay in London the amount either in Russian currency, or in Russian gold or silver specie. Metallic coinage was no longer current in Russia:—Held: (1) defts. were not bound to pay in Russian coin, but must pay in English currency such a sum as was represented by the roubles held by them, both Imperial Russian notes & Kerensky (but not Bolshevik) notes being treated as currency; (2) pltf. were not entitled to be paid in specie.—*LINDSAY, GRACIE & Co. v. #### SUB-SECT. 2.—RECEIPTS ON DEPOSIT.

dates & current. On Mar. 4, 1895, notice was given to the bank that the deposits were affected by a trust. When the deposits were made the bank had no notice of any trust:—Held: the rights of the parties were fixed on Mar. 4, when the bank first received notice of the trust, & the bank entitled to set off the amount of the notes against the deposits.

By memorandum dated Jan. 17, 1895, deceased depositor agreed to sub-mtge. to the bank, to secure his overdraft, mtges. representing a sum of £300 given to him by the surviving depositor. The sub-mtge. was never executed, & it did not appear that on Mar. 4, 1895, the surviving depositor had any knowledge of the agreement. The principal moneys secured by the mtges. did not necessarily become due till after the maturity of the deposit receipts:—Held: the mtge. moneys could not be set off against the deposits.—DOWNEY v. BANK OF NEW ZEALAND (1895), 13 N. Z. L. R. 723.—N.Z.

d. ——— Claim to retain against debt due by one.]—A deposit receipt was granted by a bank, bearing that a sum of money had been received from A. & B., "payable to either or the survivor of them." In an action by B. with concurrence of A. against the bank for payment of the sum in deposit receipt, the bank averred that the money truly belonged to A., & pleaded that they were entitled to retain it in security of a debt of larger amount due to them by A.:—Held: the defence stated was irrelevant, & the bank was bound in respect of the express terms of their deposit receipt to make payment to B.—ANDERSON v. NORTH OF SCOTLAND BANK (1901), 4 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 49; 39 Sc. L. R. 75; 9 S. L. T. 249.—SCOT.

e. Obtained by misrepresentation—Rights of bank.]—Money was lodged in a bank on deposit receipts in the names of M. & E., who at the time of the lodgment represented herself to be a widow, although the wife of F., & M. & E. subsequently exchanged such receipts for a new one in the name of M. alone, E. still representing herself as a widow. on the terms of having a deposit note, by which B. should engage to pay the principal, at ten days' sight, with 3 per cent. interest, until the day of acceptance. A note was given accordingly. On receiving interest on this note, A. was told that B. could not afford to pay more than  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. in future, & "3" was struck out, & " $2\frac{1}{2}$ " inserted instead:—Held: (1) the note became void by the alteration for want of a fresh stamp, but it could be used to show the terms on which the money was deposited, & debt. was liable on the debt created by the original loan; (2) the term "acceptance" in such instrument meant "demand" as the maker had no option to exercise, the note need not be left with him for acceptance.—SUTTON v. TOOMER (1827), 7 B. & C. 416; 1 Man. & Ry. K. B. 125; 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 49; 108 E. R. 779.

405. Presentment for payment of interest—Statute of Limitations.—From 1825 to 1837 A., B. & C. carried on business in partnership as bankers, & during that period D. deposited with them various sums of money, for which the bank gave him promissory notes in the following form:—"I promise to pay three months after sight D. or order £—, with interest at £3 10s. per cent. per annum, Jan. 21, 1826. For A. & Co. (signed) B." A. died in 1837, & B. & C. continued the business until 1842. Interest was paid yearly on the notes by A., B. & C., & by B. & C. after A.'s death up to Dec., 1842, the payment being indorsed upon the notes & the indorsement signed by one of the partners or their clerk. D. filed a bill against the exors. of A. & the devisees under his will to recover the amount of the notes. Debts. set up Stat. Limitations:—Held: the presentment of the notes for payment of the interest was a "sight," & the stat. began to run from such presentment.—WAY v. BASSETT (1845), 5 Hare, 55; 15 L. J. Ch. 1; 6 L. F. apprised the bank that E. was his wife after the deposit receipt had been given to M., & brought an action against the bank for the money which was originally lodged by E. M. also brought an action against the bank on his deposit receipts:—Held: as the deposit receipt to M. had been obtained by a misrepresentation, the bank was entitled to an injunction to stay the actions.—COSTELLO v. MARTIN (1867), 1 L. L. T. Jo. 82.—IR.

f. Re-issue of—Not new investment.]—Seemle: the re-issue by a bank, according to its practice, of new deposit receipts, whenever interest is drawn, does not amount to a new investment.—FOX v. F. (1863), 15 L. Ch. R. 90.—IR.

g. Transfer of beneficial interest in—Assignment unnecessary.]—In order to transfer the beneficial interest in a deposit receipt, a written assignment is unnecessary. It is sufficient if the deposit receipt is surrendered to the bank, & a new deposit receipt taken out, with intent to pass the beneficial interest, in the names of the persons to whom the depositor intends to pass the beneficial interest.—MCENEANEY v. SHEVLIN, [1912] 1 L. R. 278.—IR.

h. Not testamentary disposition.]—A brother invested £400 belonging to himself & his sister on a deposit receipt with a bank in England in their joint names repayable to them or the survivor of them. The brother survived the sister four days. The deposit receipt was in the possession of the sister at the time of her death; & in her will she declared that "it was never my intention that the deposit receipt should be issued as repayable to the survivor":—Held: (1) while any question between the depositors & the bank might very well be governed by English law, any question between the depositors themselves or their representatives must be governed by Scots law; (2) by Scots law, a deposit receipt taken in the name of the depositor & another or the survivor was not liable as a testamentary disposition, & the property was not effectually transferred from the predecessor to the survivor.—*DINWOODIE'S EXECUTORS v. 407. Whether "securities for money"—Drawing cheques against deposit note payable on demand.]—Bankers' deposit notes in the following form:—"Received of A. B. £150 to account for or on demand" are not "securities for money" so as to pass under a bequest in a will of all testator's "bonds, promissory notes & other securities for money & the money secured thereon."

408. Subject of donatio mortis causâ—Death of testator before completion of gift—Practice of bank.]—A testator, who held a banker's deposit note for £2,700, in his last illness, two days before his death, expressed a wish to give £500, part of the amount, to his wife. At his request a friend filled up a seven days' notice to the bank to withdraw the deposit, & testator signed it. The friend then took the notice to the bank. Testator afterwards signed a form of cheque, which was on the back of the note, "Pay self or bearer £500." The note was then handed to the wife. Testator died before the expiration of the seven days' notice. The practice of the bank was, when a customer withdrew part of a sum which he had placed on deposit, to give him a fresh note for the balance:—Held: there had not been a valid donatio mortis causâ of the £500, as the cheque for that amount was not payable till after testator's death.—*Re MEAD, AUSTIN v. Assignment by indorsement & delivery—Appointment of assignee as executor.]—The indorsement & delivery over of a banker's receipt, with the intention to make a gift, constitute a good equitable assignment, even though the receipt itself is on its face declared to be not transferable, & no notice is given to the bank. Such an assignment, even if incomplete, is perfected after the death of the assignor by the appointment of the

SUB-SECT. 3.—INTEREST ON DEPOSITS.

412. Compound interest—Annual balance of accumulated interest—Death of customer.]—A Scotsman in Calcutta opened an account with a banking house there in 1786, & died in May, 1810, having been insane from 1793. In 1812 the firm rendered an account current from 1787 to Apr. 30, 1810, to the customer's relatives, bringing out annual balances in his favour, composed of annual accumulations of Indian interest, the last balance expressed "to bear interest at 9 per cent. per annum." In 1835 the personal representatives of the customer

410 i. Whether negotiable instrument.]—Deposit receipts for money, given by a bank, are not negotiable instruments in equity any more than at law so as to entitle the holder to demand payment of the fund secured by them.—MANDER v. ROYAL CANADIAN BANK (1871), 20 C. P. 125; 21 C. P. 492.—CAN.

410 ii. —.]—A certificate of deposit in a bank is a negotiable instrument, & is transferable by indorsement & delivery.—VOYER v. RICHER (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 461; 5 R. L. 591.—CAN.

410 iii. —.]—A bank issued deposit receipts in the following form: "Received from . . . the sum of $ . . ., which this bank will repay to . . . or order, with interest at 4 per cent. per annum, on receiving fifteen days' notice. No interest will be allowed unless the money remains with this bank six months. This receipt to be given up to the bank when payment of either principal or interest is required":—Held: It was competent under Bank Act, R. S. C., c. 120, to issue such deposit receipts, & even if they did not possess all the incidents of promissory notes, yet they were so far negotiable as to pass a good title to a bona fide purchaser for value taking without notice of any infirmity of title. Seem: the deposit receipts were negotiable instruments under which the holders were entitled to recover as upon a promissory note made by the bank.—Re CENTRAL BANK, MORTON & BLOCK'S CLAIMS (1889), 17 O. was not a negotiable instrument passing by indorsement.—MOORE v. ULSTER BANKING CO. (1877), L. R. 11 C. L. 512.—IR.

k. Deposit receipt unable to be produced—Refusal of bank to pay.]—M. deposited a sum with plffs., & absconded. The bank had given him a receipt, stating that the money was payable on the production of that document. L. was appointed official assignee, & demanded the money without producing the receipt, which never came into his possession. Plffs. had notice of the attachment & of L.'s appointment:—Held: plffs. ought to have paid over the money, & must do so.

A condition, on a bank deposit receipt, that the receipt shall, on payment, be given up to the bank, may not be void, but it does not entitle the bank to retain the money in case the receipt is not forthcoming; & the depositor is entitled, on proof of loss & indemnity (if required), to relief in equity.—BANK OF MONTREAL v. LITTLE (1870), 17 Gr. 685.—CAN.

l. Market value less than sum payable on face—Value for probate.]—Where the market value of a deposit receipt is less than the sum appearing as payable on the face of it, executors may treat the market price as the value for purposes of probate, though the bank in which the deposit is made is not insolvent.—MASTER IN EQUITY v. PEARSON (1896), 75 L. T. 526, P. C.—AUS.

m. Evidence of payment into bank—Duplicate slip initialled.]—A duplicate bank deposit slip initialled by a clerk & coming from the possession of plffs. is admissible in evidence to prove a payment into a bank authorised by sued on the account current, claiming interest at 9 per cent. on the last balance & upon the annual accumulations thereof:—Held: the debt did not carry compound interest from 1810.—*FERGUSON v. 413. Ordered by court—Judgment for balance of money deposited—Rate usually allowed by bank.]—On a judgment recovered against bankers for a balance due from them of money deposited in their bank by a customer:—Held: interest should be added, after the same rate at which it was the usage of the bank to allow it to their customers.—IKIN v. BRADLEY (1818), 5 Price, 536; 8 Taunt. 250; 2 Moore, C. P. 206; 146 E. R. 687, Ex. Ch.

414. Agreement that interest not payable—Refusal to repay—Whether subsequent interest payable.]—V. & Co., bankers, were assignees of a judgment obtained in Scotland against H. for £4,100. In 1829 H. deposited with V. & Co. £4,100, & by a memorandum in writing it was agreed that that sum should be deposited in their hands for safe custody on account of H., & that from the time such deposit should be made & during its continuance V. & Co. were not to pay any interest thereon, & all interest should cease in respect of the amount due upon the judgment. H. afterwards became bkpt., & his assignees demanded from V. & Co. the £4,100, which they refused to pay:—Held: they were not liable to pay interest on that sum from the time when payment of the principal was demanded.—EDWARDS v. VERE (1833), 5 B. & Ad. 282; 2 Nev. & M. K. B. 120; 2 L. J. K. B. 190; 110 E. R. 795.

415. Claim to increased rate—Uncommunicated resolution before stoppage—Power of liquidator to allow.]—In the winding-up of a joint-stock banking co. the creditors on deposit claimed interest at 4½ per cent., being an increase on the previous rate, by virtue of a resolution passed by the directors shortly before the stoppage of the bank, but not communicated to the depositors, & a subsequent

n. Liable to stamp duty.]—Certain fixed deposit receipts were issued by deft. bank, upon its reconstruction under Joint Stock Cos. Arrangement Act, 1894, to persons who had deposited money with the bank before suspension. At the time of issuing the receipts no money passed between the bank & the depositors, the receipts being given simply in substitution for the receipts issued by the old bank for similar amounts in the aggregate, but payable at different & later dates:—Held: these receipts were liable to pay stamp duty.

442. ——— Notes treated as cash—Position of surety.—The treasurer to the guardians of the L. Union was a banker, & one of the duties prescribed by the orders of the poor law comrs. was to pay out of the money for the time being in his hands, belonging to the guardians, all orders for money properly drawn upon him. On Friday several orders of the guardians were presented by their clerk at the treasurer's bank, & paid partly in £5 bank-notes of the bank. At about eleven o'clock in the morning of the following Monday other orders of the guardians were presented by their clerk, & paid partly in £200 of similar bank-notes, & a common banker's draft upon bankers in London was received in exchange for a draft by the guardians in favour of persons in London. At three o'clock in the afternoon of the same Monday the bank stopped payment, & on the following day the treasurer was declared a bkpt. At the time the orders were presented the treasurer had in his hands money of the guardians sufficient to meet them. At the time the bank stopped payment the guardians had in their hands £95 of the notes received on the Friday, & the £200 received on the Monday; the draft on London was returned dishonoured. The guardians brought an action against the surety of the treasurer to recover these amounts:—Held: the surety was not liable, because (1) as to the notes received on Friday, the guardians by keeping them in their hands over the Saturday had elected conclusively to treat them as payment; (2) as to the notes received on Monday (as well as those of Friday) by receiving notes, & as to the draft upon London by receiving the draft, when they might have demanded cash, they had satisfied the obligation of the surety.—*LICHFIELD UNION GUARDIANS v. Deft. wrote that, on receipt of the second half, he would send a stamped acknowledgment. The arrangement with W. afterwards went off, & pltf. required deft. to return the half-notes:—Held: the property in the half-notes had not passed to deft., as there was a mere inchoate & conditional payment to be completed on the arrival of the other halves, & neither pltf. nor deft. intended that the half-notes should be treated as payment or half-payment of W.'s debt.—*SMITH v. 444. Payment of notes into bank—Credit given by paying bank—Failure of paying bank—Rights of customer.—A. on Mar. 18, 1824, paid into the T. country bank a quantity of notes of a bank at D., to bear interest from that day. The T. bankers sent the notes early on the following morning to the D. Bank. Upon the receipt of them there the latter, according to their usual course of dealing with the T. bankers, gave them credit in account for the amount of the notes. The course of business between the two banks was that if the T. Bank received notes of the D. Bank in the course of the day, they sent the notes on the following morning to the D. Bank. If the D. Bank received notes of the T. Bank, they, at the close of the business of the day, sent them to the T. Bank. If the balance of the day was in favour of either bank, the amount was paid by a bill upon their respective agents in London. The D. Bank continued to pay their notes until the evening of the 19th:—Held: as between A. & the T. bankers, the taking of credit in account for the amount of the D. notes was equivalent to payment to the T. bankers, & A. was entitled to recover the amount from them.—GILLARD v. WISE (1826), 5 B. & C. 134; 7 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 523; 4 L. J. O. S. K. B. 88; 108 E. R. 49.

The co. gave a receipt as follows:—"Received of W. £80, for which we are accountable. £80, at £3 per cent. interest, with fourteen days' notice." The co. sent the notes, on the same day, to their agents in London, who presented them on the following day, when they were dishonoured. The agents sent them back by that evening's post to the co., who, on the following day, gave notice of dishonour to pltf. & on pltf.'s giving fourteen days' notice of withdrawal, tendered the notes back, which pltf. refused. The co. refused to pay the amount of the notes. The country bank, which was about five miles from the office of the co., had stopped payment from the close of the day on which the notes were deposited, but neither party at the time of the deposit was aware of the bank being about to stop payment:—Held: pltf. could not recover the amount of the notes from the co., either as money lent or as money had & received.—*TIMMINS v. 449. ——— Notice & tender but no presentment—Recovery of amount.]—Where a bank have suspended their payments, & notes of such bank have been promptly returned or tendered back to the party from whom they were received, the want of presentment at the bank is no defence to an action for money had & received brought to recover the amount of the notes. Deft., after banking hours on Saturday, sent a £5 note of P.'s Bank to the public-house of pltf. requesting change, which was given in money. On Monday morning the bank was open for two hours, but no payments were made, & a placard held before the door intimated that they had suspended payment. Early on the same day pltf. sent back the note requesting to have the money returned, which deft. promised, but on Wednesday refused. An action was brought to recover the money, when the jury found that (1) the bank stopped payment on Saturday; (2) the note would not have been paid if presented on Monday, & (3) in fact "it was not presented":—Held: (1) pltf. had done all he was bound to do; (2) where a presentment on the bank could not reasonably be expected to produce payment, the material obligation was to give notice promptly & to tender back the note to the party from whom he received it, as that enabled that party not merely to present it at the bank, but to have recourse to the former holder if he himself should have so dealt with the note while he held it, as to have preserved any rights

The bill had been lost by pltf. in London. In an action of trover defts. contended pltf. had not used diligence in making known the loss, & that the bill having been received by defts. in the ordinary course of their business, in circumstances not calculated to excite suspicion, they were not liable to the real owner for the amount:—Held: (1) defts. were liable, as they did not exercise reasonable caution in taking it; (2) the want of caution by the person who lost the note did not preclude him from recovering against another who had been guilty of negligence in taking it, & the kind of notice to be given depended on the manner of the loss.—*STRANGE v. ### SECT. 5.—COLLECTION OF CHEQUES.

SUB-SECT. 1.—OBLIGATION TO PRESENT PROMPTLY.

457. Due presentment—Dishonour of cheque—Right of collecting bank to recover sum advanced on cheque.—Deft. asked plffs., country bankers, to cash a cheque for him drawn on London bankers by M. & Co. Plffs. gave him country notes, which were duly paid, & sent off the cheque by coach on the morning of the following day instead of by post on the same day. The London bankers, who were plffs.' agents in town, presented the cheque for payment on the day after its receipt, when it was dishonoured :—Held : the cheque was duly presented for payment & plffs. were entitled to recover the sum advanced on it.—RICKFORD v. RIDGE (1810), 2 Camp. 537, N. P.

458. ——— Cheque given for debt after banking hours—Debt still due.—A cheque for £4,700 drawn upon the L. Bank was given to A. at L. on Apr. 20, after banking hours, in payment for an estate. A., who lived three miles from L., immediately handed the cheque to B. to be placed to A.'s account at the R. Bank. R. was six miles from L. On the arrival of the cheque the same day at R., the R. Bank had closed, but the cheque was deposited with one of the partners of that bank for the night, & in the morning of Apr. 21 it was paid into the bank, & on the same day transmitted by post to the L. Bank with directions to send the amount to London. The L. Bank received the cheque early on the 22nd. At half-past one o'clock on that day they stopped payment :—Held : the deposit of the cheque with the R. Bank was a reasonable & probable course on the part of A., & the presentment to the L. Bank was in time to prevent the cheque from becoming his cheque, & the debt was still due to him.—BOND v. WARDEN (1845), 1 Coll. 583; 14 L. J. Ch. 154; 4 L. T. O. S. 351; 9 Jur. 198; 63 E. R. 553.

459. ——— No unreasonable loss of time.—On Friday, at nine o'clock p.m., deft.'s son called at the residence of plffs.' salesman, five miles from Blackburn, & paid him a cheque on a Liverpool bank. The salesman was ill at the time, but on the following Monday he handed the cheque to plffs. at their place of business at Blackburn, & it was sent off the same day by plffs. to their agents at Liverpool, & on Tuesday morning it was presented & payment refused :—Held : there was no unreasonable loss of time on plffs.' part in presenting the cheque for payment.—FIRTH v. BROOKS (1861), 4 L. T. 467.

PART II. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 1.

457 i. Due presentment—Dishonour of cheque—Recovery of amount paid.—Plff., having a bank account with defts. at S., deposited with them on Saturday morning, about 11.30, a cheque of £. on another bank in the same place, for £350, payable to plff. or bearer, & not indorsed. The sum was credited in the plff.'s pass-book as cash, & the cheque stamped “The property of the Q. Bank, S.” On Monday morning it was presented for payment, & dishonoured, but it would have been paid if presented on Saturday before the bank closed, which was about one o'clock. Defts. charged the amount of the cheque to plff., who sued them for money had & received & money lent :—Held : he could not recover, for defts. were not guilty of laches. Seemle : they could have recovered back the amount from plff. even if they had paid it to him.—OWENS v. QUEBEC BANK (1870), 30 U. C. R. 382.—CAN.

457 ii. ——— Transmission to drawee by post.—The Dominion Govt. having a deposit account of public moneys with the P. E. I. Bank upon which they were entitled to draw at any time, the Deputy Minister of Finance drew a cheque thereon, which he sent to the branch of the M. Bank. The branch bank thereupon placed the amount of the cheque to the credit of the Dominion Govt. in the books of the bank, & the cheque was sent by mail from the head office of the M. Bank to the P. E. I. Bank for collection, but was not paid by the latter bank, which, subsequently to the presentment of the cheque, suspended payment generally :—Held : (1) the M. Bank were entitled on the dishonour of the cheque to reverse the entry in their books & charge the amount thereof against the Govt.; (2) the mode of presenting a cheque on a bank by transmitting it to the drawee by mail was a legal & customary mode of presentment; (3) there was no unreasonable delay in presentment & in giving notice of non-payment, & the Crown was not relieved from liability as drawer of the cheque.—R. v. BANK OF MONTREAL (1886), 1 Exch. C. R. 154.—CAN.

457 iii. ——— According to local usage.—There was a usage amongst local bankers with respect to the presentment of cheques for payment by exchange at certain hours known as the exchange :—Held : if cheques were presented by one bank to another for payment in such manner, they must be presented within the hours recognised by such usage, but, notwithstanding any such usage or arrangement, a bank was at liberty to present instruments for payment in the ordinary way at any time during business hours in precisely the same manner as an individual.—BIRD v. NATIONAL BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, 2 J. R. N. S. 96.—N.Z.

b. Delay in presentment—Suspension of drawee bank after acceptance, but before payment.—On July 11 defts. gave L. & Co. a cheque drawn upon the Quebec branch of the P. Bank. The next day L. & Co. deposited the cheque to the credit of their account in plffs.' bank at Montreal, & plffs. on July 13 sent it by mail to their branch at Quebec. The cheque was received there on the 14th, on Sunday, & the next day, instead of having it paid by the branch of the P. Bank, which had sufficient funds on hand, the Quebec manager contented himself with having it accepted, intending the next day to have a general settlement with the P. Bank of the cheques of which the two banks were respectively the holders. The same evening the P. Bank closed its doors, & the cheque was never paid :—Held : plffs. could not recover from defts. the amount of the cheque.—BANQUE JACQUES-CARTIER v. LIMOILU CORPN. (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 211.—CAN.

receiving from a customer a cheque for presentment drawn upon another country banker not resident in the same town, is not bound to transmit it for presentment by the post of the day on which he receives it, but has until post time of the next day for so doing.

A., a banker at W., received from B., a customer, a cheque drawn upon C., a banker at L. (which was distant about eighteen miles from W.), on the morning of July 8, & sent it that evening by post to his London correspondent, D., for presentment through the "country clearing-house." D.'s clerk handed the cheque at the clearing-house on the morning of the 9th to the clerk of E., the London correspondent of C., who sent it down by the post of that evening to C.:—Held: the presentment was in due time.—*HARE v. 461. — Dishonour of cheque.—The payee of a cheque drawn upon a bank at F. paid it on Tuesday to the credit of his account in a bank at T., which was about ten miles from F. The T. Bank having no agents at F., sent the cheque by the post of the same day to their London agents, who received it on Wednesday morning. On the same day the cheque was handed by the agents through the clearing-house to the London agents of the F. Bank, & by the latter forwarded by the post of the same day to the F. Bank, who received it on Thursday morning. On the same morning the London agents of the F. Bank failed, & the agents of the T. Bank wrote at once to the F. Bank requesting them to pay the cheque or return it. The F. Bank replied by letter on Friday, refusing to pay the cheque or return it. On Saturday the F. Bank stopped payment. On the same day the manager of the T. Bank informed the payee of the non-payment of the cheque, & subsequently informed him that his account had been debited with the amount of it, though it was not so debited till about a fortnight afterwards. It was the usage of bankers, when a cheque was paid in by a customer, to enter the amount to his credit, & if the cheque was not paid, then immediately upon its dishonour to return it to the customer, & upon so doing to debit his account with it. With regard to cheques drawn upon one Cornwall bank & paid into another, there had been during several years an arrangement by which the cheque was sent by post to the bank upon which it was drawn, & the accounts between the two banks adjusted at a weekly settlement. The T. Bank had never been a party to this arrangement, & if they had followed it, the cheque in question would have been received by the F. Bank on Wednesday, & the payee credited with the amount:—Held: the T. Bank were entitled to debit the payee with the amount of the cheque, as the cheque had been presented within reasonable time, & the payee had received reasonable notice of its dishonour.—PRIDEAUX v. CRIDDLE (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 455; 10 B. & S. 515; 38 L. J. Q. B. 232; 20 L. T. 695.

462. Usual course of business.—It is the usual course of business for bankers in the country to send up cheques to be presented to the agents in London & cleared in the usual way. The time occupied in such an operation would not be considered such delay as to constitute laches on the part of the country banker should the cheque, by reason of such delay, be dishonoured on presentation.—WILTS & DORSET BANK v. COOK (1889), 53 J. P. 791; 5 T. L. R. 703, D. C.

463. — Stoppage of bank—Cheque for debt—Debt not paid.—Deft., on Jan. 27, gave to pltf., in payment of a debt, a cheque drawn upon a Jersey bank. On the 28th pltf. paid it into his bankers in London, who, as was customary with English bankers, sent it to Jersey, where it was received by the bankers on the 29th, on which day deft. had funds in their hands. No notice was taken by them of a request for payment sent with the cheque. Pltf.'s bankers had not any agent in Jersey. They applied again for the cheque or the amount thereof on Feb. 6. In answer to this application the cheque was sent back to them with the words "refer to drawer" written upon it. The Jersey bank had stopped payment on Feb. 1:—Held: there had been a good presentment of the cheque, no laches on the part of pltf. or his bankers, & the receipt of the cheque by pltf. did not amount to payment of the amount due.—HEYWOOD v. PICKERING (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 428; 43 L. J. Q. B. 145.

464. Delay in presentment—Dishonour of cheque.—It is not necessary to present for payment a cheque payable on demand till the day following the day on which it is given. A person receiving a cheque on a banker is equally authorised in lodging it with his own banker to obtain payment as he would be in paying it away in the course of trade, although in consequence thereof the notice of its dishonour is postponed a day, one day being allowed for notice from the payee to the drawer, after the day on which notice is given by the bankers to the payee.—*ROBSON v. 465. — Cheque cashed by collecting bank—Right to recover amount paid for cheque.—Deft., on Apr. 5, paid pltf's, bankers, a cheque for £20 drawn on the M. Bank & received pltf's, notes in exchange. Pltf's, kept the cheque all the 5th & 6th & sent it by carrier to M. on the morning of the 7th. The carrier reached M. at nine o'clock on the 7th; but the M. Bank had not opened that morning. If the cheque had been sent by the post of the 6th it would have reached M. at eight o'clock on that day:—Held: pltf's, had been guilty of laches & could not recover the value of the cheque from deft.—BEECHING v. — (1816), Holt, N. 464 i. — Dishonour of cheque—Clearing house regulations.—A firm drew two cheques upon a Toronto branch of the S. Bank in favour of defts. The cheques were dated Sept. 30 & Oct. 1, 1913, & were indorsed by defts. & cashed by pltf. bank at one of its branches in Toronto, early in the forenoon of Oct. 1. On the 2nd, at 10 a.m., the cheques were taken by the representatives of pltf. bank to the Toronto clearing house, & formed part of the claim there presented against the S. Bank, & so entered into the clearing that then took place.

The cheques were received at the branch of the S. Bank upon which they were drawn during the forenoon of the same day. There were not sufficient funds to the credit of the drawers to pay the cheques, & the manager kept them till the 3rd, & then presented the cheques at his own bank, & they were dishonoured. At a quarter to twelve on the 4th he sent the cheques to pltf. bank: & on the same day pltf. bank handed the cheques to its notary, who again presented them & protested them. Notices of dishonour were sent to defts.

on the 6th, but did not reach them until Oct. 8:—Held: (1) the presentment on Oct. 4 was not a presentment within a reasonable time of cheques indorsed to pltf. bank on the 1st; (2) the clearing house was an institution created for the benefit of bankers, & its regulations could not modify Bills of Exchange Act, R. S. C., 1906, c. 119.—BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA v. HASLIP, BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA v. ELLIOTT (1914), 25 O. W. R. 622; 5 O. W. N. 684; 30 O. L. R. 299; affd. 20 D. L. R. 922; 31 O. L. Bank at Melksham, twelve miles from Bath; on the 31st it was presented at Bath & dishonoured:—Held: the presentment was not in time to give the N. W. Bank any claim against deft., the town in which the cheque was cashed having the ordinary mode of conveyance by the daily post.—MOULE v. BROWN (1838), 4 Bing. N. 467. Collection through London agent. Notice of dishonour. —.]—On May 6 A. received at M. a cheque drawn upon M. & Co., bankers at R., about ten miles distant. On the 8th he paid it into his bankers at M., & they on the same day sent it by post to their London agents, the C. Bank, to be passed through the country clearing-house there. The drawees' London agents were B. & Co., whose names appeared in a printed memorandum at the foot of the cheque, but their account with them was closed on the 7th. The cheque being refused by B. & Co. at the clearing-house, the C. Bank sent it by post on the 9th for payment to the drawees, who kept it until the 15th & then returned it to the C. Bank, who received it on the 16th, & sent it by that day's post to their correspondents, the M. Bank, who, receiving it on the 17th, sent notice of the dishonour by the post on the 19th to the drawer, whom it reached on the 20th. A run upon the bank of M. & Co. commenced on the 11th, & on the 13th, at noon, they finally stopped payment. In an action by the M. Bank against the drawer, it was proved that the drawees sent cash through the post to country bankers, in payment of cheques drawn upon them, as late as the 11th, but did not honour any cheques forwarded to them by London bankers after the 7th, that if the cheque in question had been received by them by post from the C. Bank on the 8th, it would not have been paid, but that if presented across the counter at any time before the final stoppage on the 13th, it would have been paid:—Held: (1) the presentment was not in due time; (2) the mention of the names & address of the London agents in a memorandum at the foot of a country banker's cheque did not make the cheque payable at the place so indicated. Seemle: the notice of dishonour was too late.—BAILEY v. BODENHAM (1864), 16 C. B. N. S. 288; 33 L. J. C. P. 252; 10 L. T. 422; 10 Jur. N. S. 821; 12 W. R. 865; 143 E. R. 1139.

A debtor paid his creditor by a crossed cheque, & the latter on the same day transmitted it to his banker. The banker negligently (as was alleged) omitted to present it at the clearing-house in time for that day

(when it would have been paid), & on the next it was dishonoured, the firm on which it was drawn having stopped payment:—Held: the supposed negligence of the banker, though it might render him liable to his customer, did not discharge the drawer, the holder of the cheque being entitled to present it the day after its receipt.—BODDINGTON v. SCHLENCER (1833), 4 B. & Ad. 752; 1 Nev. & M. K. B. 540; 2 L. J. K. B. 138; 110 E. R. 639.

469. —.]—The holder of a cheque paid it in to his bankers on the day after its receipt, & they presented it for payment on the day following but after the stoppage of the drawer's bankers:—Held: the drawer was discharged, as the holder of a cheque was, in general, bound to present it for payment not later than the day following that on which he received it, whether the presentment was made by himself or through his bankers.—ALEXANDER v. BURCHFIELD (1842), 7 Man. & G. 1061; 3 Scott, N. R. 555; 11 L. J. C. P. 253; 135 E. R. 431.

470. Rights of bank as holders — Dishonour of cheque—Notice of dishonour.]—In an action on a banker's cheque it appeared that plffs., bankers, had received the cheque on account of a railway co., who kept an account with them. One of the witnesses stated his belief that the action was brought for the railway co.:—Held: sufficient evidence for the jury that plffs. were holders, & entitled to sue upon the cheque.

Deft., after drawing & issuing the cheque, directed his bankers not to pay it:—Held: good evidence of a notice of dishonour.—LAURIE v. DAVIS (1846), 8 L. T. O. S. 90.

In fraud of deft., C. on the 29th paid it into his account with L. Banking Co., who, upon the presentment & dishonour of the cheque on the same or the following day, sued the drawer for the amount. There was no evidence of the absence of bona fides on the part of plffs., or that they had notice of the alleged fraud of C.:—Held: plffs. were entitled to recover.—*LONDON & COUNTY BANKING CO. v. 474. Drawer & payee both customers of bank—Bank acting as agents for payee—Appropriation of payments in.]—Pltf. paid into his own bankers a cheque of £250, drawn upon them by a third person, which they received without any objection, & in the course of the same day the drawer of the cheque paid in a sum of money, part of which he particularly appropriated, leaving a balance unapprohaving stopped payment on May 23. On May 28 certain cheques drawn by M. on his account came in, which pltf. paid & charged up. Pltf. twice sent the $1,000 cheque to the clearing house, but it was on each occasion returned unpaid, pltf. on each occasion crediting & debiting M.'s account with the $1,000. Pltf. sued W. & Co. on the cheque. M. had not given consideration for it, & if he were holder, he could not recover on it:—Held: pltf., by crediting M.'s account with $1,000 on receipt of the cheque sued on, became holders for value of the latter.—*BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA v. Pltf. urged he was entitled to succeed on the ground that the bank was not a holder in due course:—Held: the bank had no notice of any defect in the title of the person negotiating it.—ROSS v. CHANDLER (1909), 11 O. W. R. 898; 1 O. W. N. 104; affd. 45 S. C. R. 127.—CAN.

H., who had a private account with deft. bank, deposited with deft. bank cheques amounting in value to several thousands of pounds drawn in favour of the society or order, & indorsed by himself as secretary. Deft. bank received the proceeds of the cheques from the drawers, & allowed H. to draw the same in the usual course in his individual capacity. Deft. bank had no notice or suspicion of H.'s dishonesty, but might, on inquiry from the society, have ascertained that the secretary's instructions were to pay all cheques indorsed by him to the society's bankers:—Held: the bank had taken the cheques in good faith & for value & without notice of any defect in H.'s title, & was a holder in due course.—*CAPE OF GOOD HOPE BUILDING SOCIETY LIQUIDATORS v. 475. Duty of bank to payee—Time for obtaining payment & giving notice of dishonour.]—

A cheque drawn by one customer in favour of another was paid into the bankers on whom it was drawn by the payee, & he requested that the amount might be placed to his credit. The bankers, at the time when it was so paid in, knew that the drawer of the cheque had no effects in their hands, but gave no intimation to the payee whether it would be placed to his credit or not:—Held: the bankers must be considered as having received the cheque as agents of the payee, & not of the drawer, & they were not bound to tell the payee at the time when he so presented it that they had no funds, but they had the same time to obtain payment & give notice of the dishonour of the cheque as if it had been drawn on any other bankers.—BOYD v.

entitled to receive the money, handed it to pltf. to be collected, telling their manager that he saw M. indorse it & that he knew him, but when the manager offered to cash it at once if H. would indorse it, he declined, stating that he knew nothing of it, & it might not be paid. For purpose of collection H. signed his name as witness to the indorsement, writing beneath his signature "without any recourse to me whatever." Pltf. collected the money & credited proceeds to H., who accounted for them to M. The New York bank subsequently demanded the money back, alleging M.'s indorsement to be a forgery, & pltf. paid back amount received & brought an action against H. & M.:—Held: M. was liable to repay the amount.—*BANK OF OTTAWA v. f. Bank not collecting full amount—Liability to payee.]—Pltf. was payee of a cheque for $250 on the H. Bank. He indorsed it to J. C. & Co., of Montreal, who deposited it for collection with deft. bank, who remitted it to the N. Bank with instructions to collect only $2.50 on it, & they so collected. At the time the drawer had sufficient funds to pay the full amount, but he subsequently failed:—Held: the bank was liable to pltf. for $247.50 with interest & costs.—*NADÉAU v. Cheque lost in collection — Obligation of drawer to give fresh cheque—Right of bank against drawer—To recover amount paid to payee.—A. & Co., bankers of B., received on his account a cheque for £100 from C., drawn upon C.'s bankers, & lost it. C. was called upon by A. & Co. to give another cheque for the same amount, upon receiving an indemnity against the cheque that was lost, & C. promised from time to time to give another cheque, & also desired his bankers would not pay the lost cheque, if presented. A. & Co., being called upon, were obliged to pay the amount of the lost cheque to B. In an action by A. & Co. against C. for money paid & on an account stated :—Held : the action would not lie.—LUBBOCK v. TRIBE (1838), 3 M. & W. 607; 1 Horn & H. 160; 7 L. J. Ex. 158; 150 E. ### SUB-SECT. 3.—CROSSED CHEQUES.

478. Effect of crossing.—Semble : the custom of writing the name of a banker across a cheque is only for the purpose of securing that the payment shall be made to some banker, not to the banker originally named, for the holder may substitute another for him; and this even when the name of the particular banker is originally written, not by himself, but by the drawer.—STEWART v. LEE (1828), Mood. & M. 158, N. P.

479. Cheque crossed to account of customer — Amount placed to customer's account—Dishonour of cheque—Rights of bank.—S. gave a cheque to M., which he sent to his bankers, the N. Bank, to be placed to his credit. The cheque was payable to his order, & was crossed "Account of M. N. Bank." The bank placed the amount to M.'s credit, & allowed him to draw on account of it before the amount had been paid to them. On presentation at the bank of S. the cheque was dishonoured, which left M.'s account at the N. Bank overdrawn. As M. did not refund the amount, the N. Bank sued S. for the amount of the cheque :—Held : the words written across it did not render the cheque not negotiable, & it having been sent to the bank to be placed to the credit of M., & M. having been allowed to draw on account of it, the bank were bonâ fide holders of the cheque for value in due course, & could sue S. for the amount.—*NATIONAL BANK v. 480. Delay in presentment—Dishonour of cheque—Rights of holder.—A cheque crossed in blank, being given in payment of a bill, was duly paid by the holder into his bankers, who, two days afterwards, presented it for payment, when it was returned dishonoured. In an action on the bill :—Held : the plea alleging that the cheque had not been presented within a reasonable time could not be sustained, as the crossing of the cheque was a direction to the holder to pay it only through a banker, & the holder had done all that was required of him to comply with that request by paying it into his bankers within a reasonable time, & could not be held responsible for any delay that afterwards took place.—STRINGFIELD v. LANEZZARI (1867), 16 L. T. 361.

PART II. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 1.

h. Rights of bank as holders — Giving customer credit for specific amounts.—A bank which has received a negotiable instrument for a customer, who has overdrawn his account, but does not take it in respect of the overdrawn account, crediting the customer with a specific amount, is not a holder in due course for valuable consideration, & is not entitled to sue on the instrument.—NATIONAL BANK OF CHINA, LTD. v. LEMAIRE & CO. (1906), 1 Hong Kong L. R. 167.—HONG KONG.

481 i. Presentment for acceptance—Liability of bank for failing to present.—Held : the bank liable to plffs. for want of presentment of a note indorsed to them for collection, notwithstanding a notice issued by them, which plffs. had received, that all notes delivered to them for collection should be wholly at the risk of the persons leaving them, & that defts. would be responsible only for moneys actually received in payment of such notes, but not for any omissions, informalities, or mistakes, in respect of such notes.—BROWNE v. COMMERCIAL BANK (1853), 10 U. C. R. 129.—CAN.

k. Acceptance by & failure of drawee bank—Rights of collecting bank against payee.—Deft. indorsed a draft to plff. bank & received the money thereon. The bank sent the draft to the clearing house, & it was accepted by the drawee bank, which failed, & plff. bank brought an action to recover the amount paid deft. :—Held : plffs. had accepted the drawee bank as their debtor & could not recover from deft., as there was no evidence to render deft. subject to the rules of the clearing house.—STERLING BANK v. LAUGHLIN (1912), 21 O. W. R. 221; 3 O. W. N. 643.—CAN.

l. Collecting bank agent of payee — To receive payment.—A bank, to which a promissory note is indorsed "for collection," becomes for that purpose the agent of the indorser, to whom it is bound to account for the amount collected.—PERRAULT v. MERCHANTS' BANK (1905), Q. R. 27 S. C. 149.—CAN.

m. — — — Not of maker.—Promissory notes made payable at the N. S. Bank were given to the agent of the K. Bank for collection. The agent testified these notes "were in the head office at

H. when they became due, & after they became due were returned" to him. There was no evidence deft. or any one representing him was at the place where the notes were made payable to meet his engagement :—Held : the bank was agent of the payee to receive payment & not of the maker to pay.—PULLEN v. SANFORD (1883), 4 R. & G. 212.—CAN.

n. Collecting bank agent of drawee—Not of drawer.—A bill was sent to a bank for collection, & notice was sent on a Saturday to the drawee that it lay there for payment. The drawee was not able to go to the bank until Monday, when he paid the sum, & was told that the bill had been returned to the bank's correspondents, but that the bank would get it & hand it over to him. The bank did not do so, but by some mistake denied that they had the money, & refused to pay it to the drawee of the bill. In an action by the drawer against the drawee for payment of the sum :—Held : the bank received the money as the agents of the drawee & not of the drawer, & though no blame was imputable to him, he must suffer for the mistake of the bank.—MAYER v. HAMILTON

482. — Acceptance refused—Omission to notify customer—Damages.]—A. & Co., resident in America, employed B., resident in England, to purchase & ship goods for them. On account of such purchases they sent to B. a bill, drawn by C. in America on D. in London, but did not indorse it. B. employed his bankers to present the bill for acceptance. D. refused to accept, but of this the bankers did not give notice until the day of payment, when it was again presented, & dishonoured. Before the bill arrived in England C. became bkpt., & he had not, either when the bill was drawn, or at any time before it became due, any funds in the hands of D., the drawee. In an action by B. against the bankers for neglecting to give notice of the non-acceptance of the bill:—Held: (1) A. & Co., not having indorsed the bill, were not entitled to notice of the dishonour, & remained liable to B. for the price of the goods sent to them, & the drawer was not entitled to notice, as he had no funds in the hands of the drawee; (2) B. could not recover the whole amount of the bill, but such damages only as he had sustained in consequence of having been delayed in the pursuit of his remedy against the drawer.—VAN WART v. WOLLEY (1824), 3 B. & C. 439; 5 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 374; 3 L. J. O. S. K. B. 51; 107 E. R. 797.

483. — Negligence of agent—Cancellation of acceptance—Damages.]—The A. Bank were indorsers of a bill drawn by G. on G. & Co. at Melbourne at 15 days after sight. The bill was transmitted by the bank to the B. Bank, their agents at Melbourne, for presentment. The B. Bank received the bill at one o'clock on Friday, & at two o'clock on the same day the bill was presented by their clerk to the drawees, G. & Co., for acceptance, & left with them for that purpose. On Saturday, the following day, an acceptance was written by

o. Lien note left for collection & payment received—Liability of bank purchasing assets of collecting bank.]—A lien note or agreement in favour of pltf. was left at the T. Bank for collection, & the note was surrendered at the bank upon payment by one of the makers. The bank afterwards sold & transferred all its assets to the R. Bank, which, as part of the consideration, covenanted to assume & pay all the liabilities of the T. Bank. Pltf. demanded a return of the note or the money due thereunder:—Held: the covenant by the R. Bank to pay the liabilities of the T. Bank became a statutory obligation after the agreement containing it had been approved by the Governor in Council.—CAMERON v. ROYAL BANK OF CANADA (1915), 30 W. L. R. 865; 8 W. W. R. 375.—CAN.

q. Remitting bank indebted to collecting bank—Insolvency of remitting bank—Rights of collecting bank.]—A bank, creditor of another bank for the amount of a note discounted for it, received from the bank indebted to it (then solvent) sundry drafts for collection:—Held: debtor bank having become insolvent before any amounts were received on the drafts, compensation did not take place between the amount collected by creditor bank and the debt due to such bank.—EXCHANGE BANK OF CANADA v. CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE (1885), M. L. R. 2 K. B. 176; 10 L. N. 110.—CAN.

r. Bill specially indorsed to bank for collection—Bill transferred to third party without indorsement.]—A bill of exchange drawn by the A. Co. was indorsed "Pay to the order of the N. S. Bank, A.," & by the agent of the bank at A. "Pay to the order of the N. S. Bank, H., for collection." The bill was not paid, & was returned to A. While the bill was still in the hands of the agency of the bank there it was purchased by deft. & was handed over to him, but without any indorsement being made other than those already on the bill:—Held: the bill having been specially indorsed to the bank, could not be transferred to the deft. except by indorsement.—FORSYTH v. LAURENCE (1886), 7 R. & G. 148; 7 C. L. T. 174.—CAN.

s. Note lost—In post—Liability of bank.]—Where a bank receives a note for collection, & in the regular course of business places the same in the hands of a responsible & perfectly solvent agent, it is not liable for the loss of the note in the mails. In any case, the bank's offer to give security to the makers & indorser that they will never be troubled if they pay the note is sufficient.—LITMAN v. MONTREAL CITY & DISTRICT SAVINGS BANK (1897), Q. R. 13 S. C. 262.—CAN.

t. — Through criminal act of bank's servant—Liability of bank.]—A. sent a hundi by post to a bank. The bank presented it for payment by one of its servants, B., who brought it back, reporting that payment had been refused. The manager of the bank, with the intention of returning it to A., placed it in an envelope, sealed & stamped, which was laid upon the table ready for the post, it being the custom of the bank to post all letters in that manner. B. presented the hundi for payment the following day, & obtained cash for it:—Held: the bank was guilty of such neglect as to render it liable to A. for the amount of the hundi.—PEOPLE'S BANK v. OBBARD (1864), 2 Hyde, 57.—IND.

u. Crediting proceeds to wrong person—Liability of bank.]—Pltfs. drew upon J. a bill for £200, payable to their order, which they indorsed to the G. Bank, by whom it was sent to the agent of defts. for collection. When it fell due J., with the agent's consent, drew upon pltfs. to meet it, but the proceeds of such draft, contrary to J.'s direction, were placed to his credit with defts. against other acceptances of his, & pltfs. paid both drafts:—Held: they might recover the proceeds of the second bill from defts. as money had & received. Qu.: whether they might also recover as for money paid.—RIDDELL v. BANK OF UPPER CANADA (1859), 18 U. C. R. 139.—CAN.

w. Bill of exchange sent with bill of lading—Duty to retain bill of lading until payment.]—Pltfs. sent to defts., a bank at T. for collection, a bill drawn by A. at M. on B. at T., payable forty-five days after date, together with a bill of lading indorsed by A. for wheat consigned by A. to B.:—Held: (1) In the absence of any instructions to the contrary, defts. not bound to retain the bill of lading until payment of the draft by B., but were right in giving it up to him on obtaining his acceptance; (2) evidence as to the custom of merchants in such cases in the United States could not be material.—*WISCONSIN MARINE & FIRE INSURANCE CO. b. Bank's right of action against customer on bills deposited for collection.]—Bills of exchange deposited by a customer with his banker for collection, & indorsed for that purpose, cannot be put in suit against the customer, although the banker may have a right to indorse payment of the bills against all other persons liable thereon. Nor does the circumstance that the customer's account with the banker is overdrawn give the banker a right of action on the bills against the customer.—COMMERCIAL BANK v. DYER, Mac. 509.—N.Z.

c. Right of collecting bank to prove on liquidation of customer & original giver of bills.]—A co., being the holder of bills of exchange indorsed to it by another co., which in turn had received the bills from a third co., lodged the bills with its bankers for collection at maturity. At the time of lodging the bills the co. depositing them was indebted to its bankers in a sum exceeding the amount of the bills lodged. The bills were dishonoured at maturity, & all the cos. subsequently went into liquidation. As between the depositing co. & the original givers of the bills they were otherwise satisfied:—Held: the bankers entitled to prove against the assets of the original givers of the bills.—Re CITY SAWMILLING CO., LTD. (1898), 17 N. d. Expenses of collection—In addition to interest—Whether usurious.]—Under C. S. U. C. c. 58, if a bank procure a note to be made payable elsewhere solely for the purpose of obtaining the rate allowed by s. 5, for the expenses of collection, in addition to the 7 per cent. interest, the transaction is usurious & void. They are not called upon to inquire as to the reason for making a note thus payable when the parties themselves have so chosen to draw it.—BANK OF MONTREAL v. REYNOLDS (1866), 25 U. C. R. 352.—CAN.

one of the firm of G. & Co. across the face of the bill, & the bill so accepted was handed to a clerk to be delivered in the usual course of business, & at half-past eleven o'clock on that day a clerk of the B. Bank called upon the drawees & asked for the bill. He was told by the clerk of the drawees that the bill had been mislaid, & requested to call again on Monday, which he agreed to do, as according to the custom in Melbourne business closed at twelve o'clock on Saturdays. On Monday the clerk of the B. Bank called again upon the drawees, & was told that the bill was ready to be delivered, but that in the absence of the clerk who had charge of it, it could not then be got at, & he was requested to call on Tuesday. The clerk called on that day & obtained the bill, but the acceptance of the drawees was cancelled on the face of the bill, the drawees having obtained the information in the interval that the remittance was not likely to be forwarded by G. to meet the bill. G. became insolvent, & the A. Bank having received nothing in respect of the bill, brought an action against the B. Bank, as their agents, for negligence. The evidence did not show any uniform usage at Melbourne to present bills the same day for acceptance. The custom to close at twelve o'clock on Saturdays was proved. The judge put it to the jury whether they thought that the B. Bank were guilty of negligence or a breach of duty in not demanding that the bill should be delivered up on Saturday accepted or unaccepted, & the jury answered that, strictly speaking, there was a neglect, but considering the respectability of the drawees, & Saturday being a short day, the B. Bank were excusable in leaving the bill. The jury found for plffs. with nominal damages, & plffs. applied to increase the damages to £3,000, the amount of the bill:—Held: (1) there was no such negligence by defts. as agents as to entitle plffs. to substantial damages; (2) although the judge was wrong in directing the jury on what was a matter of law & not fact, yet the substance of the answer of the jury was, that it being the ordinary course to leave a bill for acceptance for 24 hours, & the 24 hours running out on Saturday, but not before twelve o'clock, it was an excusable neglect to postpone the demand for an answer until the opening of the drawees' counting-house on Monday.—*BANK OF VAN DIEMEN'S LAND v. 484. Unauthorised indorsement—Payment to bank by acceptor—Recovery of amount by drawee—Rights of acceptor against bank.—An English merchant, resident at Fort St. George, in the East Indies, executed a power of attorney to his correspondent in England, in the common general form. A servant of the East India Co., by the direction of the Governor in Council, drew three bills of exchange on the co., payable in London in favour of that merchant. The correspondent received the bills; they were accepted by the co., & the correspondent indorsed & delivered them to a firm of merchants, who, having also indorsed them, paid them in account to their bankers, but almost immediately drew the amount thereof out of the hands of the bankers. The bankers, having put their names on the back of the bills, sent them when due to the co. for payment. The co., after inspecting the power of attorney, paid the amount of the bills. The English merchant died, & his administrator de bonis non recovered the amount of the bills from the co., in consequence of the ct. deciding that the correspondent had not authority by the power of attorney to indorse bills. The co. gave notice of that judgment to the bankers, who at that time had no proceeds in their hands of their customers. The co. brought an action against the bankers on the ground that their names being on the bills was a warranty that the prior indorsements were legal. The jury having found that the co. paid the bills, not on the faith of the indorsements of the bankers, but on the faith of the power of attorney:—Held: the action could not be maintained, for no such warranty could be implied from the indorsement, & if it could, the facts of the case showed that the co. did not act upon it.—EAST INDIA CO. v. TRITTON (1824), 3 B. & C. 280; 5 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 214; 3 L. J. O. S. K. B. 24; 107 E. R. 738.

485. Payment to sub-agent of bank—Omission to credit customer—Failure of sub-agent—Liability of bank.—M. employed R. & Co., bankers in Edinburgh, to obtain for him payment of a bill drawn on a person resident in Calcutta. R. & Co. accepted the employment, & wrote promising to credit him with the money when received. R. & Co. transmitted the bill in the usual course of business to C. & Co., of London, & by them it was forwarded to India, where it was duly paid. R. & Co. wrote to M. announcing the fact of its payment, but never actually credited him in their books with the amount. The house in India failed:—Held: R. & Co. were the agents of M. to obtain payment of the bill, & payment having been actually made, they became ipso facto liable to him for the amount received, & he could not be called on to suffer any loss occasioned by the conduct of their sub-agents, as between whom & himself no privity existed.—*MACKERSY v. 486. Restrictive indorsement on bill—"For collection per account"—Payment by bank to indorser—Right to sue acceptor.—D. drew a bill on defts. payable 60 days after sight & discounted it with the M. Bank in America. The M. Bank indorsed the bill to plffs., bankers, "for collection per account of the M. Bank." Plffs. presented the draft to defts. for acceptance, & they accepted same. Plffs. thereupon allowed the M. Bank to draw upon them for the amount of the bill. Before the bill matured D. paid the M. Bank the amount of the bill, & wrote to defts. releasing them from their liability as acceptors. Defts. never received any value on account of the bill. Both D. & the M. Bank became bkpt.:—Held: plffs. having taken the bill under a restrictive indorsement could not recover against the acceptors.—WILLIAMS, DEACON & CO. v. SHADBOLT (1885), 1 Cab. & El. 529; 1 T. L. R. 417.

487. Mistake as to bill being honoured—Payment under mistake—Refusal of customer to repay—Liability of collecting bank.—B. was the indorsee for value of a bill of exchange payable in Brussels. Defts. as agents for B. indorsed the bill to plffs. for collection. Plffs. indorsed the bill for that purpose to their agents at Antwerp. Afterwards plffs. informed defts. that the bill had been collected, & they handed them a cheque for the amount, less their charges. Defts. informed B. that the bill had been collected & credited him with the amount. The bill had in fact been dishonoured. Plffs. sued defts. for the return of the money, which B. refused to repay to them:—Held: defts. having accounted to B. before they were informed of the mistake, plffs. were estopped from recovering.—DEUTSCHE BANK (LONDON AGENCY) v. BERIRO & CO. (1895), 73 L. T. 669; 12 T. L. R. 106; 1 Com. Cas. 255, C. A.

488. Unauthorised acceptance of conditional payment—Refusal of holders to agree—Liability of bank—Assignment of holders' rights.—The agent of a bank offered to try to obtain payment of a bill which had been protested for non-payment, & the holders accepted the offer. The acceptors offered to pay the bill & the protest charges on the condition that they should not be called upon to pay interest & expenses. The bank's agent communicated this condition to the holders, &, without waiting for authority, took payment of the bill & protest charges, marked the bill paid, & delivered it to the acceptors, who deleted their names thereon. Thereafter the holders intimated their refusal to agree to the conditions on which payment had been made, refused to accept the sum tendered to them by the agent of the bank, & received back the bill cancelled. They sued the acceptors on the bill, but the latter became bkpt. The holders then sued the bank for the amount of the bill, with interest, & for the expenses of their action against the acceptors:—Held: the bank were liable, but were entitled to an assignation of the rights of the holders against the drawers of the bill.—BANK OF SCOTLAND v. DOMINION BANK (TORONTO), [1891] A. C. 592. H. L.

489. Drawn against goods—Free delivery allowed—Appropriation of payments to particular goods.]—A banker, who was employed by the consignor of goods to collect the proceeds of bills drawn against such goods, & for that purpose received the shipping documents, was instructed to allow a free delivery of goods to the consignee up to a fixed amount:—Held: the banker was under no obligation to ascertain that the payments made from time to time by the consignee represented the proceeds of any particular goods.—BAERLEIN & CO. v. CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON & CHINA (1896), 1 Com. Cas. 366.

490. Bank giving receipt for promissory note—Failure of maker—Whether receipt absolute acknowledgment of money received.]—A., a goldsmith, having £150 of B.'s money in his hands, gave him a note for it payable to him or order on demand. B. gave the note to plff., to whom he was indebted in the like amount, without indorsement. Plff. took the note & a bill for £80 on J. to his bankers, & they gave him a receipt for £230 on account, stating in the margin, "B. £150, J. £80." The bankers sent their dunnor on several days to try to collect the note for £150, but before payment A. failed: Held: the receipt was an absolute acknowledgment of so much money received on plff.'s account, & bankers were liable.—TROWELL v. EVANS (1710), 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 375; 21 E. R. 1113.

491. Notice of dishonour—Bank acting for drawer & acceptor—Acceptor's instructions to stop payment—No notice to drawer.]—F. & Co. deposited a bill of exchange with defts., bankers, for the amount of which they were given credit in account. The bill was drawn by F. & Co. upon T., payable to the order of the drawers at S. & Co.'s in London, & was remitted by defts. to them. T. also kept a banking account with defts. Before the bill became due T. asked defts. to direct S. & Co. not to pay the bill.

PART II. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 2.

494 i. Notice of dishonour—To wrong branch—Failure of bank to correct mistake.]—Plff., a customer of defts.' branch bank at C., handed to the manager there for collection a note made by G. to, & indorsed by, T., both of whom lived at D., where the note was made & payable. The C. manager, without indorsing the note, sent it to their W. branch for collection without any instructions as to the place of residence of the indorser. Payment having been refused upon presentation, the agents of the W. branch handed it to a notary, who duly protested it but inclosed the notice for T., in the envelope containing the notice to the W. branch, addressed to the manager of that branch. The C. manager received the protest, & could have seen from it, in time to defts. gave such directions, & the bill was returned to them the day after it became due. It was contended that defts. could not charge F. & Co. by reason of the default of the acceptor, when they themselves by their notice to S. & Co. were the cause of the non-payment of the bill, & that at all events defts. ought to have given notice of this circumstance to F. & Co., their customers:—Held: it was not the duty of defts. to give notice to F. & Co. of T.'s directions, as they acted confidentially & were not at liberty to communicate T.'s orders without betraying their trust, & as T. might have provided for the bill elsewhere.—CROSSE v. SMITH (1813), 1 M. & S. 545; 105 E. R. 204.

492. — Reasonable time for giving.]—A country banker, with whom a bill of exchange, payable in London, is deposited, has an entire day after receiving notice of its dishonour to transmit same to his customer, so that notice by the next day's post, though it be not the next post, will be time enough.

The indorsee of a bill payable at a banker's in London deposited it with his bankers in the country, who caused it to be duly presented for payment on the 14th, when it was dishonoured & notice sent by the post to the country bankers on the 15th, which reached them on the morning of the 17th (being Sunday). On the next day they sent notice by the post to the indorsee, but not before twelve at noon, at which time the post set out for the place where the indorsee resided:—Held: this notice was within time.—BRAY v. 493. Presentment through branch banks—Rights as independent indorsees.]—A bill of exchange was indorsed to a branch bank at P., who indorsed to another branch of the same bank at B., who indorsed to the head bank in London:—Held: the branch banks were independent indorsees, & each entitled to the usual notice of dishonour, & it was reasonable the bill should be sent successively to the branch banks through which it had come to the principal bank before giving notice of dishonour to the holder.—CLONE v. BAYLEY (1843), 12 M. & W. 11; 13 L. J. Ex. 17; 2 L. T. O. S. 7 Jur. 1092; 152 E. R. 1107.

494. To wrong branch of country bank—Subsequent telegram to right branch.]—A branch of a country banking co. received from a customer a bill of exchange & forwarded it to a London bank for presentation. The bill was dishonoured, & the London bank on the following day sent notice of dishonour by post to a branch of the country banking co., but not to the branch from which they had received the bill. On the next day they discovered the mistake & telegraphed notice of dishonour to the branch from which they had received the bill. The notice given by that branch & all subsequent notices, including that to deft., who was an indorser of the bill, were sent in due time. In an action by the holder of the bill:—Held: sufficient notice of rectify the mistake, that the notice for T. had been addressed to the W. agent. —Held: on sending the note to their W. agent defts. should have given proper information as to the residence of the indorser for the guidance of the notary. & the C. branch having notice from the protest, which they should have examined, that the notice for the indorser had been sent to W., they should at once have had a proper notice served in D.

dishonour had been sent by the London bank to comply with Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), 49 (12), (13).—FIELDING & Co. v. CORY, [1898] 1 Q. B. 268; 67 L. J. Q. B. 7 77 L. T. 453; 46 W. R. 97; 14 T. L. R. 35 42 Sol. Jo. 45, C. A.

495. — Casual customer—Notice not given—Usage of bankers.—Pltf. handed defts. a bill for £272 for collection. He had no account with them, but they collected negotiable paper for him for a commission. The bill fell due on Nov. 24, & on Nov. 18 pltf. left it with defts.' cashier. On Nov. 30 pltf. called at the bank & was informed of the dishonour of the bill. The immediate & prior indorsers denied liability to pltf., on the ground of want of due notice of dishonour. In an action to recover the value of the bill, defts. set up a usage of bankers not to give notice of dishonour to casual customers, who were told to call on the day the bill would be returned, & a verdict was given for defts. on the ground that by the general usage of bankers, defts. were under no obligation to give pltf. notice of dishonour.—ASHWORTH v. MILLER (1865), cited Grant's Law of Banking, 6th ed., p. 53, n.

496. Customer credited on receipt of bill for collection—Indorsement as agent—Right to sue agent on dishonour.—A solr., under the authority of an administrator & as his local agent, collected debts due to the estate of an intestate. He received, in the course of his agency, money which it was his duty to remit to the general agent of the administrator. In order the more conveniently to remit this money he procured a banker's bill, which had been accidentally drawn in his favour, & which he had to indorse. He indorsed it to the general agent & deposited it with a banker, to be presented for acceptance & payment by the drawee. The banker gave him credit for the amount, knowing the circumstances of the transaction & the relative situation of the parties:—Held: the Ct. of Equity would restrain an action on the indorsement, whether brought by the indorsee or by the banker against the solr.—KIDSON v. DILWORTH & WELCH (1818), 5 Price, 564; 146 E. R. 695.

497. — Payment by acceptor to customer after dishonour Bank's rights against acceptor.—Def't. accepted a bill of exchange drawn by C., who indorsed it to his bankers; they entered it on the credit side of C.'s account, but, the bill having been dishonoured, entered it afterwards on the debit side. A few days after the dishonour def't. paid to C. the amount of the bill, but omitted to take it out of the bankers' hands. C. subsequently paid in to the bankers on his general account more than enough to cover all the items of the account preceding the bill item, & that item also, & the bankers, for a space of three years, treated the bill as paid; they then sued def't. on his acceptance:—Held: he was not liable.—FIELD v. CARR (1828), 5 Bing. 13; 2 Moo. & P. 46; 6 L. J. O. S. C. P. 203; 130 E. R. 964.

f. Note dishonoured but not protested—Liability of indorsers to pay interest.—A promissory note was dis-honoured at maturity, but was not protested by the holders (a banking corp'n.) because of a waiver by the indorsers of presentment & notice:—Held: the indorsers were not liable to pay interest thereon as a debt, nor could a contract to pay interest be deduced from a usage of banks to charge interest on overdue debts, & to collect it if possible.—Re McDougall (1885), 12 A. 498. Balance against customer at time of dishonour—Previous allowance of overdrafts by bank—Bank's right against acceptor.—A. drew a bill on B., & indorsed it to a bank, at which he (A.) had an account. B. accepted the bill, but, not paying it, it was returned noted to the bank who entered it on the debit side of A.'s account, "B.'s return, £100 6s." The state of A.'s account at the time of the entry, & up to the commencement of the bank's action against B., was against A. to the amount of about £400. It was proved that the bank had, on former occasions, allowed A. to overdraw his account to the amount of £500 or £600, but there was not any agreement that they should do so:—Held: these facts did not prove a plea that the bank had received from A. £100 6s. in satisfaction of the bill.—RYDER v. WILLETT (1836), 7 C. & P. 608.

499. Payment by drawer after dishonour—Rights of bank against acceptor.—On Apr. 3, 1889, S. drew a bill on C. & Co., by whom it was accepted. Pltfs., bankers, credited S. in his account with the full amount of the bill, & debited him with the discount. On Aug. 6 the bill was dishonoured. On Aug. 7, the amount of the bill was debited to S.'s account, & on the same day, pltfs. issued a writ against S. & C. & Co. in an action to recover the amount of the bill. Many payments into his account were made by S. every day after Aug. 9, & it was contended by C. & Co. that the bill had been discharged by payment:—Held: it was no defence to an action by the holder against the acceptor of a bill that the holder had been paid by the drawer.—BROWN, JANSON & Co. v. CAMA & Co. & SALBERG (1890), 6 T. L. R. 250.

500. Collection of note by branch bank—Notice of dishonour to holder—Cancellation in error—Liability for money had & received.—The holder of a promissory note presented it at the head office of the bankers of the maker for payment. They sent it to their branch at the place where the note was payable, where the clerk cancelled the signature, wrote "Paid" on the note, & transmitted a draft in respect of it to the head office. The note was in fact dishonoured. Notice of dishonour was given to the holder, making no reference to what had occurred between the branches of the bank:—Held: (1) the head office & branch being one & the same bank, the act of the clerk did not operate to charge the bank with money had & received to the use of the holder; (2) the mere fact of cancelling the signature & writing "Paid" on it, corrected before the note was sent back to pltfs. by a memorandum thereon "Cancelled in error," was not effectual to charge the bank with the receipt of the money.—PRINCE v. ORIENTAL BANK CORPN. (1878), 3 App. Cas. 325; 47 L. J. P. C. 42; 38 L. T. 41; 26 W. R. 543, P. C.

Given in exchange for acceptances by bank—Insolvency of bank—Liability of assignees to refund.]—Pltf. employed J. as his banker in London, & drew bills on him under an agreement to make remittances to answer same when due. In Nov., J. was liable for over £1,000 on bills accepted by him for pltf., & pltf. sent by post to J. two bills which became due in the following Jan. J. became a bkpt. in Nov., & defts., as his assignees, received payment of the bills remitted by pltf. These bills had been written short in J.'s books. J. did not meet his acceptances, but they were afterwards paid by pltf. Pltf., however, owed J., for commission & interest, a balance of £195 13s. 2d. :—Held: pltf. was entitled to the proceeds of the bills after discharging the balance of £195 13s. 2d.—*ZINCK v. 507. Property in as between banker & customer—Insolvency of bank—Cash balance in favour of customer—Liability of assignees to refund.]—D. & Co. were bankers at Birmingham, with whom pltf. kept a banking account. In Nov. pltf. indorsed & paid into the bank three bills of exchange, which became due in Dec. & Jan. following. Before these bills became due D. & Co. were made bkpts., & there was at that time a considerable balance due to pltf. on their cash & bills (due) account. It was the practice of D. & Co. & other country bankers to enter approved undue bills, if they had not a long time to run, in a gross sum with cash to the credit of the customer, giving him either cash or liberty to draw on them to that amount. The bankers would, as convenience required, pay them away to other customers, or transmit them to their own agents in London. Interest was charged on both sides of the account on such transactions. London bankers did not carry undue bills to the credit of the customer, but entered them short. The assignees received the proceeds of the bills:—Held: the assignees were liable to refund these proceeds to pltf.—GILES v. PERKINS (1807), 9 East, 12; 103 E. R. 477.

508. ———— .]—A customer was in the habit of indorsing & paying into his bankers' hands bills not due, which, if approved, were immediately entered (as bills) to his credit, to the full amount, & he was then at liberty to draw for that amount by cheques on the bank. The customer was charged with interest upon all cash payments to him from the time when made, & upon all payments by bills from the time when they were due & paid, & had credit for interest upon cash paid into the bank from the time of the payment, & upon bills paid in from the time when the amount of them was received. The bankers paid away such bills to their customers as they thought fit. The bankers became bkpts. :—Held: (1) the customer might maintain trover against their assignees for bills paid in by him, & remaining in specie in their hands, the cash balance, independently of the bills, being in favour of the customer at the time of the bkpcy.; (2) the banker was only justified in negotiating the bills when that was rendered a reasonable course by the state of the customer's account.—*THOMPSON v. 511. ————.]—Petitioner deposited India bills drawn, or rather signed, by order of the Governor in Council of Bombay on the Ct. of Directors of the East India Co. with her bankers specially indorsed by her to receive the amount when they should become due. The balance of petitioner's banking account was then in her favour, & continued so up to the bkpcy. of the bankers. The bankers charged discount on the bills in their account with petitioner, who might have drawn upon them for the amount, it being the custom of the bankers to consider ordinary bills so deposited as cash. The bankers paid the bills away to a creditor, with whom the assignees afterwards settled an account, charging him with the amount of the bills, & receiving a balance due to the estate. This appropriation of the amount of the bills petitioner contended was unjustifiable, & claimed that the amount ought to be refunded to her by the assignees as the proceeds of the bills:—Held: petitioner was entitled to be reimbursed the whole amount of the bills from the assignees.—*Re FORSTER, Ex p. He also sent to them a bank post bill for £48 9s. 10d. inclosed in a letter, directing them to place it to his account. Before the bill of exchange became due, a fiat issued against the bankers:—Held: the customer was entitled to be paid in full the amount of the bill of exchange which had been received by the assignees under the fiat, on the bill becoming due, & he was also entitled to the bank post bill, or to the amount thereof, if received.—Re WISE, Ex p. ATKINS (1842), 3 Mont. D. & De G. 103; 12 L. J. Bcy. 28; 7 Jur. 95.

change were from time to time remitted to a banker by a customer & indorsed to the banker. The course of dealing was that the bills were not entered short, but though they were distinguished in the account as bills, the full amounts were entered in the cash column under the date on which the bills were paid into the bank, & the customer was at all times at liberty to draw cheques to the extent of the balance in his favour, as appearing on the account thus made out. Interest was allowed by the banker upon the bills only from the time when their amount was received:—Held: (1) in the absence of evidence of the customer's acquiescing in or authorising the banker treating the bills as his own from the time of their being paid in, they remained the property of the customer, subject to the lien of the banker for his cash balance, & the banker had no right to negotiate them unless the balance of the account was in his favour; (2) on the bkpcy. of the banker, such of them as remained in his hands in specie did not pass to his assignee, but, subject to such lien as above mentioned, belonged to the customer.—*Re HARRISON, Ex p. B. paid two bills into the bank at S., which did not fall due until after the bkpcy. Bkpt. remitted the bills to K. & Co., who received the proceeds after the bkpcy. & paid them over to the assignees. B. had employed bkpt. for many years & had been in the habit of paying bills & cash indiscriminately into his bank, which were entered without distinction in a general running account. B. had occasionally, though rarely, overdrawn his general account:—Held: B. was entitled to the proceeds of the bills, unless on inquiry it should appear that with B.'s knowledge, or from the habits of dealing between the parties, the bills were to be considered as cash, & the onus of that proof lay on bkpt.—*Re BURROUGH, Ex p. S. & Co. then procured the bill to be accepted, & made an entry in their books of having discounted it. A commission of bkpcy. having issued against S. & Co.:—Held: the permission to discount was, by the terms of the agreement, limited to the purpose for which the bill was remitted; & S. & Co. ought not to have received or discounted the bill without executing the trust reposed in them; & it must be delivered up to F. & Co.—*Re SIKES & Co. A. was credited with the bills when paid in & debited with interest on each payment by the bank to him in cash from the day of such cash payment, & credited with interest from the time when each bill paid in by him became due:—Held: D. & Co. had no right to transfer the property in the bills, & A. was entitled to be indemnified from the surplus security held by B. & Co.—*Re DILWORTH, Ex p. ### SUB-SECT. 1.—DIVIDEND WARRANTS.

526. Receipt for trustees—Fraudulent sale of stock by partner of bank—Dividends entered in bank books as received & credited to customer—Right of trustees.]—Certain stock was vested in trustees, upon trust (inter alia) to pay the dividends to A. during his life, & after his death, upon trusts for his widow & children. M. & Co. were the bankers of the trustees, & employed by them to receive the dividends. During the life of A., the amount of the dividends on the stock was regularly carried to the account of A., in the books of the firm, & drawn for & received by him. A. died on Jan. 23, 1824, & on his death, a new account was opened with the trustees in the books of M. & Co., & in that account, credit was given to the trustees for dividends, amounting to £1,403 as received in Apr. & July, 1824, & the trustees were debited with several sums, amounting to £225, paid to cheques drawn upon the house on the presumption that the dividends had been actually received. In point of fact the above dividends had not been received by M. & Co., F., a partner in that house, having in the lifetime of A. sold & transferred the stock in question by means of forged powers of attorney. F. continued, after this transfer, to enter in the day-book of M. & Co. the amounts of the half-yearly dividends, on the days when they would have become due, as if he had duly received same at the Bank of England, which amounts were, in the ordinary course of business, regularly posted from such day-book to the credit of the trustees by the clerks of M. & Co. Commissions of bkpcy. issued against the members of the firm of M. & Co., in Sept. & Oct., 1824:—Held: at the date of those commissions, bkpts. were not indebted to the trustees for the balance of the dividends appearing by the books to have been received.—*HUME v. 527. Transfer of dividends under power of attorney—Notification to bank of new power of attorney—Whether revocation of authority.]—T., a married woman, being entitled for her separate use to the dividends of certain govt. stock standing in the name of pltf. as her trustee, pltf. gave to defts., a banking co., a power of attorney to receive the dividends & at the same time directed them to pay the dividends to T. T. directed defts. to pay the dividends to S. & B., bankers at Brussels, to whom she had pledged them for advances made by S. & B. to her husband. Defts. for some time paid the dividends to S. & B., but at length T. wrote to defts. as follows:—"I think it right to inform you that in consequence of the death of one of my trustees, as well as my having left Brussels, I have been obliged to have a new power of attorney made to receive my own dividends, & I shall not have occasion to trouble you to do so." No new power of attorney was made out & debts. received the ensuing half-yearly dividend & transmitted it to S. & B. Pltf. having sued debts. for that dividend :—Held : the letter of T. did not amount to a revocation of the authority she had given debts. to pay the money they received on her account to S. & B., & pltf. could not recover.—*CLERK v. ## SUB-SECT. 2.—POST OFFICE MONEY ORDERS.

528. Defect in customer's title—Conversion—Conduct of true owner.—Pltfs. banked with debts. It was the duty of pltfs.' secretary to pay all moneys received by him on behalf of pltfs. into debts.' bank to the credit of pltfs. The secretary, without the knowledge of pltfs., kept an account at debts.' bank. He paid into the bank to his own credit certain post office orders belonging to pltfs. which debts. subsequently cashed. The post office regulations with regard to post office orders provided that, when presented for payment by a banker, they should be payable without the signature by the payee of the receipt contained in the order, provided the name of the banker presenting the order was written or stamped upon it :—Held : (1) there had been a wrongful conversion of the post office orders by debts. & pltfs. were not estopped by their conduct from recovering ; (2) the regulations of the post office with regard to the payment of post office orders presented through bankers did not give to those instruments in the hands of bankers the character of instruments transferable to bearer by delivery so as to give debts. a good title to the post office orders independently of the authority given to pltfs.' secretary.—*FINE ART SOCIETY, LTD. v. h. — Payment before due date.—A post-dated cheque is a bill of exchange payable at a future date, & a banker may render himself liable to an action by the customer for negligence, if he pay such cheque before the day it bears date.—HINCHCLIFFE v. BALLARAT BANKING Co. (1870), 1 V. R. L. 229.—AUS.

Dishonour of cheques—Damages.—Pltf. issued to a creditor a post-dated cheque, which was put in circulation by the creditor & received in the ordinary course of banking exchange by debts., who paid it & debited it to pltf.'s account before the date appearing on the face of the cheque. In consequence of this debit two other cheques drawn by pltf. were dishonoured :—Held : (1) the true date of a post-dated cheque issued by the drawer was the date of its issue ; (2) debts., who received the cheque in question from bond fide holders for value, were themselves holders for value, & the amount of the cheque was properly debited to pltf.'s account before the date appearing on its face.

It appeared from pltf.'s own evidence that, before drawing the second cheque, the dishonour of which was complained of, he had, on being informed of the dishonour of the first, obtained from debts. his pass-book, which showed that the post-dated cheque had been debited to his account, & that the balance to his credit was insufficient to meet the cheque which he then proceeded to draw, & that he knew that he would not be allowed to overdraw his account :—Held : an action could not be maintained for the dishonour of a cheque drawn in such circumstances.—MAGILL

SUB-SECT. 1.—POST-DATED AND INSUFFICIENTLY STAMPED CHEQUES.

529. Post-dated & unstamped cheques—Given for advances—Liability of bank for payment.—The N. Bank, having a branch establishment at F., sixteen miles from N., opened an account with B., a customer residing twenty miles from N., & gave him a credit with the branch bank for such advances as he might require. B. received various sums from time to time from the branch bank, which he did not draw for in the regular way, but applied for by letter to the agents at the branch bank when he wanted them, & every week gave the agent an unstamped cheque, post-dated, for the amount of the advances during the preceding week, which the agent transmitted to the bank at N., as a voucher for himself :—Held : this was not a draft or order issued for the payment of money to the bearer on demand, within Stamp Act, 1815 (c. 184), s. 13, & the bankers were not subject to the penalties imposed by that sect. for paying money on an unstamped cheque, post-dated, or issued beyond the prescribed distance.

A customer issues unstamped cheques more than fifteen miles from the bank on which they are drawn. The bankers are not liable to the penalties of the Act for paying such cheques, unless they know that the cheques were issued beyond the prescribed distance, or did not truly specify the place where they were issued. But striking balances in a running account between a banker & a customer, will not prevent the operation of the penal sect. of the Act.—*Re BRERETON, Ex p. being presented for payment on the 13th, payment was refused, & the cheque was given back marked "post-dated." On the following day (the 14th) it was again presented for payment, when payment was again refused, upon the ground that it appeared to have been post-dated:—Held: the bankers were justified in refusing payment. Semble: a post-dated cheque is not an illegal instrument, & but for special circumstances a banker is not justified in refusing payment of it.—EMANUEL v. ROBERTS (1868), 9 B. & S. 121; 17 L. T. 646.

532. ——— Validity—Stamp—Admissibility in evidence.]—There is nothing in any of the stats. to invalidate a post-dated cheque on a banker payable to order on demand, & in determining what is the requisite stamp to make such an instrument admissible in evidence, the instrument alone is to be looked at; & a post-dated banker's cheque payable to order is available in the hands of a person who took it with knowledge that it was post-dated, & is admissible in evidence with only a penny stamp.—*BULL v. 534. ——— Payment stopped by drawer — Immediate credit given to holder.]—Deft. drew a cheque for £250 dated Aug. 10, & payable to H. The cheque was in fact drawn on Aug. 3, & forwarded to H., who handed it to M. Pltfs. received the cheque from M. on Aug. 8 & gave her immediate credit for it in account. Deft. stopped payment of the cheque & in an action to recover the amount of it, it was objected that the cheque was not sufficiently stamped:—Held: a post-dated cheque, bearing a penny stamp, though taken by the holder before its date, was a valid cheque, & an action could be maintained upon it by the holder after its date.—ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND v. TOTTENHAM, [1894] 2 Q. B. 715; 64 L. J. Q. B. 99; 71 L. T. 168; 43 W. R. 22; 10 T. L. R. 569; 38 Sol. Jo. 615; 9 R. 569, C. A.

535. Unstamped cheque—Stamped by intermediate holder—Validity.]—Deft. bought a horse from B. & gave him an unstamped cheque on blank paper for the price. B. put an adhesive stamp on the cheque & transferred it to pltf., who took it in good faith & for value. B. stopped payment of the cheque, the stamp on which was cancelled by some one before it was presented for payment:—Held: pltf. could not recover on the cheque as it was not duly stamped, since by Stamp Act, 1870 (c. 97), s. 54, only the drawer or the banker on whom the cheque was drawn could affix & cancel an adhesive stamp.—HOBBS v. CATHIE (1890), 6 T. L. R. 292.

SUB-SECT. 2.—MODES OF PAYMENT, PAYMENT WITHOUT AUTHORITY, RECOVERY FROM PAYEE.

A. Modes of Payment.

536. Money placed on counter—Stolen from counter—Liability of bank.]—If A. go to a banker's to receive a draft of £100, & is desired to take £80 in part, which B. is come to pay, & A. counts out £50 from the £80 & puts it into a bag, & lays it on the counter, this is a good part payment of the draft, & if the bag be stolen from the counter, the banker shall be only answerable for the remaining £50.—CARTER v. SHEPHERD (1698), 5 Mod. Rep. 398; 12 Mod. Rep. 189; Comb. 475; 2 Salk. 507; 87 E. R. 728; sub nom. CANTER v. SHEPHEARD, 1 Ld. Raym. 330.

537. ——— Forcible recovery by cashier—Liability of bank.]—Pltf. presented (on behalf of his employer) a cheque at defts.' banking-house. Defts.' cashier counted out the amount in notes, gold, & silver, & placed it on the counter. Pltf. took it & counted it, & was in the act of counting it a second time, when the cashier (having discovered that the drawer's account was overdrawn) demanded the money back, & upon pltf.'s refusal, detained him & took it from him by force:—Held: the property in the notes & money had passed from the bankers to the bearer of the cheque, & the payment was complete & could not be revoked.—CHAMBERS v. MILLER (1862), 13 C. B. N. S. 125; 1 New Rep. 95; 32 L. J. C. P. 30; 7 L. T. 856; 9 Jur. N. S. 626; 11 W. R. 236; 143 E. R. 50.

538. Constructive payment.]—On Feb. 19, 1901, B., who was very ill & in expectation of death, drew a cheque for £300 in favour of E., to whom it was at once handed. E. indorsed the cheque, & on Feb. 23, it was presented for payment at B.'s bank, where his account was overdrawn. The bank manager refused payment, stating that the signature of the drawer was not like the ordinary signature of B., & that he required some confirmation of the signature. The manager was minded to "lend" the money to pay the cheque if he found that the signature was genuine. B. died on Feb. 25, 1901, without the cheque having been cashed:—Held: there was not a valid donatio mortis causa.

If a cheque were given by a donor who was dangerously ill, & the drawee went to a branch of the bank in the country & asked for payment, & the manager said, "The cash is locked up for the night, come to-morrow & I will pay you," & the drawer died in the night, it might very well be that then there was an appropriation by the undertaking to answer the cheque & a good donatio mortis causa (BUCKLEY, J.).—Re BEAUMONT, BEAUMONT v. FEWBANK, [1902] 1 Ch. 889; 71 L. J. Ch. 478; 86 L. T. 410; 50 W. R. 389; 46 Sol. Jo. 317.

n. By packages of silver—Payment short—When bank liable.]—In an action to recover $20, which the bank had paid short on a cheque:—Held: banking institutions were not liable for any deficit in packages of silver paid out by the presentation of a cheque drawn upon it in favour of applts., failed to pay same in such manner as to be discharged of its obligation.—LALL CHAND v. AGRA BANK (1891), L. R. 18 Ind. App. 111.—IND.

539. "Banker's payment"—Bank as payee of cheque—Validity as payment.]—Pltfs., a bank, being holders for value of a bill of exchange accepted by one of defts., received from another of defts. who was an indorsee of the bill, a cheque drawn upon his account at the L. & C. Bank for the amount due upon the bill. Pltfs.' collector presented the cheque for payment at the L. & C. Bank, but, instead of being paid in cash, he received a document called a "banker's payment," as was customary when a bank, being payee of a cheque, presented it for payment. Immediately after receiving the "banker's payment," pltfs.' collector was induced by an unfounded representation of a clerk in the L. & C. Bank to return it to the clerk. Pltfs. did not afterwards obtain cash for the cheque, which was treated by pltfs. & the L. & C. Bank & the indorsee of the bill as a cheque which had not been paid:—Held: though the delivery of the "banker's payment" to pltfs.' collector was in law a payment of the cheque, yet as pltfs. had in fact never been paid the amount due upon the bill, the bill had not been discharged, & pltfs. as holders for value were entitled to recover the amount from the acceptor of the bill.—LONDON BANKING CORPN., LTD. v. HORSNAIL, HAYWARD & COOPER (1898), 14 T. L. R. 266; 3 Com. Cas. 105.

540. By crossed cheques—Exchange of cheques—Authority of cashier so to receive payment—Holding out.]—Applts.' cashier presented at resps.' bank cheques drawn on resps. in favour of applts. & crossed generally; in exchange he was handed cheques for the same amounts drawn by resps. upon other banks & crossed generally. Applts. had by their conduct held out their cashier as having authority to deal with the cheques in that way. The cashier fraudulently paid the cheques handed him by resps. to his own banking account & misappropriated the proceeds:—Held: the cheques drawn on resps. were paid by the cheques given in exchange within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 79 (2), but applts. were estopped from denying the authority of their cashier to receive payment in that manner & were not entitled to recover damages.—*MEYER & CO., LTD. v. #### B. Payment without Authority.

541. To wrong person before due date—Post-dated cheque lost by payee.]—A cheque was lost by the payee, & the banker paid to a stranger the day before it bore date:—Held: the banker was liable to repay the amount to the person who had lost it.—DA SILVA v. FULLER (1776), Bayley on Bills, 5th ed., p. 326; Chitty on Bills, 11th ed., p. 188.

q. Cheque payable to order—Indorsed by B. for A.—Bank put on inquiry.]—A cheque was payable to the order of "W. BANK D'HOUELAGA* (1908), Q. R. 18 K. B. 237.—CAN.

s. Cheque given to bank to meet acceptance—No appropriation by bank—Payment of altered cheque—Rights of drawer.]—Pltf., a customer of defts.' bank, having a note payable there on Jan. 28, 1873, made a cheque payable to himself or bearer, & left it with defts. to meet the note. The cheque was not used for that purpose nor returned to pltf., but the note was paid by defts., & charged to pltf.'s account. The cheque was afterwards, on Jan. 31, 1874, presented to defts. by some one unknown, the year having been changed from 1873 to 1874, & it was paid by defts. without noticing the alteration, & charged to pltf.'s account. How it got out of defts.' bank was not ascertained:—Semble: the cheque must be considered to have been paid when the note for which it was given was handed over by defts. to pltf., & pltf. could not have been made liable upon it.—BELTZ v. MOLSONS BANK (1877), 40 U. C. R. 253.—CAN.

t. On unauthorised indorsement—Of company manager—Authority only to indorse for deposit.]—A local manager of an incorporated co., who was authorised only to indorse cheques for deposit with the B. C. Bank, indorsed & cashed at the M. Bank cheques payable to the co. drawn on that bank:—Held: the M. Bank liable to the co. for the amount of the cheques so cashed.—HINTON ELECTRIC CO. v. BANK OF MONTREAL (1903), 9 B. C. R. 545.—CAN.

u. — Of company secretary—Course of dealing.]—A bank cashed a cheque payable to the order of a co., upon the indorsation of the secretary alone, who had on several previous occasions cashed other cheques in the same way, & acted as general agent of the co.:—Held: the bank was justified in cashing the cheque, although the bye-laws of the co. required that the cheque should be countersigned by the president.—THOROLD MANUFACTURING CO. v. IMPERIAL BANK (1887), 13 O. R. 330.—CAN.

w. — Of station-master.]—Pltfs.' instructions to one of their agents was to receive cheques for freight, & forward same to the M. Bank, pltfs.' agents for collection. A son of the station agent having embezzled moneys belonging to pltfs. & collected for freight, the agent, in order to make up the losses, indorsed cheques made payable to the co., & received for freight, signing the co.'s name, per himself as agent, & received proceeds from defts. This he employed to make up his son's defalcations:—Held: defts. should have obtained an authority from pltfs. before accepting the agent's indorsations, & were liable to pay pltfs. the amount of the cheques.—CANADIAN PACIFIC v. BANK D'HOUELAGA (1908), 5 E. L. R. 569.—CAN.

a. — Of club secretary.]—Actions to recover amounts of various cheques sent to pltfs.' secretary by the members or received by him as club moneys, & cashed by or deposited with defts. by the secretary, in fraud of pltfs.:—Held: it was one thing to cash a cheque over the counter to an official, who had power to indorse & to receive the proceeds for his employer, & quite another to receive it & apply it, not for the employer's but for the official's use, & there might reasonably in the former case be a presumption that the official would deal honestly with the proceeds, but in the latter, where he in effect put the money into his own pocket, the presumption would be all the other way.—TORONTO CLUB v. DOMINION BANK, TORONTO CLUB v. IMPERIAL BANK, TORONTO CLUB v. IMPERIAL TRUSTS CO. (1911), 20 O. W. R. 781; 3 O. W. N. 460; 25 O. L. R. 330.—CAN.

b. — Of partner.]—A loan to a partnership was paid by a cheque made payable to the order of all the partners by name. The active partner had authority by power of attorney to sign his partners' names to all deeds & conveyances necessary for carrying on the business, but had no express authority to indorse cheques:—Held: (1) having authority to effect the loan & receive the amount in cash, he could indorse his partners' names on the cheque, & the drawees had a right to assume that he did it for partnership purposes, & were justified in paying it on such indorsement; (2) if the payment by the drawees was not warranted the drawers had in the circumstances acquiesced in the payment.—MANITOBA MORTGAGE CO. v. BANK OF MONTREAL (1889), 17 S. C. R. 692.—CAN.

c. Cheque of insolvent—Acceptance by bank—Rights of holder in due course.]—A cheque representing a sum of money in his hands, drawn by the depository to the order of a public officer, & returned to the depositor, who turns it over to such public officer, ceases to form part of the drawer's estate from the moment of its acceptance by the bank. If the drawer becomes insolvent & makes an abandonment of his property, the curator has no right to the amount represented by such cheque, & a Judge of the Superior Ct. may permit him to vary the form of the cheque by making it payable to bearer. The latter thereupon becomes the holder in due course & has a right to recover the amount thereof from the bank.—BROSSARD v. STERLING BANK (1912), Q. R. 43 S. C. 133; 8 D. L. R. 889.—CAN.

544. To directors of company—No authority of directors — Whether bank put on inquiry.]—Bankers who have funds of a co. formed under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), in their hands may, acting bonâ fide, lawfully honour the cheques of the directors of the co., signed according to a form sent by them to the bank, without being bound previously to inquire whether the persons pretending to sign as directors have been duly appointed to office, in conformity with the memorandum & articles of assocn.

W., in concert with some friends & dependents of his, started a mining co. The memorandum & articles of assocn. were registered. Subscriptions were obtained from persons becoming shareholders, & these subscriptions were paid into a bank, described in the prospectuses of the co. as the bank for the co. The bankers received a formal notice, signed by the person who described himself as the secretary of the co., that they were to pay the cheques signed by "either two of the following three directors," & countersigned by himself, in accordance with a "resolution passed this day," & the names of the three persons described as directors, & their signatures, were inclosed with the "resolution." The bankers from time to time, while the business of the co. appeared to be going on, received cheques signed & countersigned as described, & duly honoured them. When the fund had been, almost entirely, drawn out, the co. was ordered to be wound up. It then appeared that there never had been a meeting of shareholders, nor any appointment of directors or of a secretary, but that the persons who had got up the co. had treated themselves as directors & secretary & appropriated the money obtained from the subscriptions:—Held: the official liquidator could not recover from the bankers the amount of the cheques which, in the above circumstances, they had thus bonâ fide paid.

The sub-agency, by some misunderstanding, credited him with $3,000, which he drew out:—Held: deft. bound to repay the excess over the $2,000.—BANK OF TORONTO v. HAMILTON (1896), 28 O. 545. To agent—Notice of limitation of authority —Liability of principal.]—A line of steamers, the property of different sets of co-owners, was managed by T. & Co. T. & Co. assigned to pltfs. money alleged to be due to them from the owners of two of the steamers, & in consideration of the assignment pltfs. cashed cheques drawn by T. & Co. "per pro. the owners." At the date of the assignment nothing was in fact owing from the owners to T. & Co., & the cheques were dishonoured. In an action by pltfs. against the owners:—Held: pltfs. having taken the cheques with notice that the authority of T. & Co. was limited, the owners were not liable for the amounts of the cheques.—THE GONCHAR & THE IZGAR (1896), 1 Com. Cas. 318.

546. Mistake of authority—Customer's account debited.]—One of the essential terms of the contract between a banker & his customer is that the banker will not part with the customer's money without his authority. Circumstances in which it was held that defts. were not justified in debiting pltf.'s account with a payment made under a mistake as to the authority to make it.—*BALE v. C. Recovery from Payee.

547. Cheque post-dated—Drawer insolvent—Knowledge of person presenting—Bonâ fide payment by bank.]—Defts. knowing a cheque to be post-dated, & that the drawers were insolvent, presented it for payment to pltfs., bankers, who, without knowledge of those facts, paid its amount, although they had no funds of the drawers in their hands at the time, but expected some in the course the cheque to his credit in deft. bank. Defts. refused to advance more than $25 on the cheque until they should learn that pltfs. would pay it. They then stamped the name of their bank on the back of the cheque & put it through the clearing-house in the usual way, after which it was paid by the pltfs. Defts. then honoured the cheques of the forger for $800 more, shortly after which the forgery was discovered:—Held: the stamping of the name of deft. bank on the back of the cheque had the legal effect of an indorsement in blank by deft. bank, & defts. were liable to repay the amount of the cheque to pltfs.—UNION BANK v. DOMINION BANK (1907), 17 Man. L. R. 68; affd. 40 S. C. R. 366.—CAN.

g. Cheque sent "for credit"—Payment by head office—Dishonour by branch—Privily of contract.]—Defts. forwarded to their agents, the C. Bank, in M., a cheque drawn by T. on pltfs.' branch bank at S. M. A letter accompanying the cheque stated that it was sent "for credit of this bank," as opposed to "for collection." The agents passed the cheque through the clearing-house to pltfs.' head office in M. Pltfs. forwarded it to their S. M. branch, on which it appeared that T. was not in funds. On action brought by pltfs. against defts. to recover the amount of the cheque:—Held: (1) as the cheque was sent by pltfs. to their agents by way of payment for a debt due & not for collection, there was no privity between pltfs. & defts., & pltfs. could not recover; (2) even if the cheque had been sent for collection, there would be no privity.—UNION BANK OF AUSTRALIA v. MERCANTILE BANK OF SYDNEY (1888), 9 N. S. W. L. R. 560.—AUS.

h. Winding up—Acceptance of cheque against notes—Unjust preference.]—The bank suspended payment on Sept. 15, 1883. Winding-up proceedings were commenced Nov. 23, & an order made Dec. 5. C. & S., depositors in the bank, drew a cheque for $4,000 on Nov. 1, on their deposit account, which was given to D., a debtor of the bank on notes maturing the following Dec. & Jan. D. gave mtge. security to C. & S. for the cheque on Oct. 31. The cheque was not presented to the bank until Nov. 23, when it was accepted as payment of the maturing notes. In an action by the liquidators of the bank against C. & S., to which D. was not a party, to recover the amount thus paid on the cheque as having been paid to defts. after the winding-up proceedings were commenced, & being an unjust preference, etc.:—Held: there was no payment by the bank to C. & S.—*EXCHANGE BANK OF CANADA v. 548. Cheque drawn on one branch—Payment at another—Dishonour on presentation.]—A banking co. had banking establishments or branches at G. & B. The co. was one, & had one public officer, but each establishment had a separate manager, kept separate accounts with separate customers, & delivered out distinct cheque books, with the name of the place at which it carried on business. H. kept an account with the establishment at G., & having to make a payment to deft., paid him on the 17th of the month by a cheque drawn on the G. establishment. Deft., being at the time of receiving it in the neighbourhood of B. presented it on the same day there ; he was known to the officers there, & they gave him cash for it. The cheque was sent by the first post to the G. establishment, where it was delivered in the course of the 18th. On the morning of that day H. had a balance there in his favour, which had been drawn out before the cheque arrived, & the cheque was refused payment :—Held : the co. might recover the amount of the cheque from deft. as money had & received, on the ground that H. had no authority to draw the cheque on the co. simply, or on the B. branch separately, & the B. branch paid the cheque on the credit of deft.—WOODLAND v. 549. Bank bound to pay—Within reasonable time after receipt of sufficient funds—Customer's right of action—Actual damage unnecessary.]—A banker is bound by law to pay a cheque drawn by a customer, within a reasonable time after the banker has received sufficient funds belonging to the customer ; & the latter may maintain an action against the banker for refusing payment of a cheque in such circumstances, although he has not thereby sustained any actual damage.—MARZETTI v. 550. Refusal to treat credit as immediately available—No evidence of special damage—Measure of damages.]—Pltfs. were merchants & shipowners & deft. bank, having wrongfully refused to treat a credit of £900 as immediately available, dishonoured three cheques & an acceptance of pltfs. There was no evidence of special damage, & the jury awarded pltfs. £500 damages :—Held : pltfs. were entitled to recover substantial, but reasonable & temperate damages, without proof of any actual loss, & by agreement the damages were reduced to £200.—ROLIN v. 551. Payment by bank after dishonour by mistake—Whether drawer can recover damages for loss of payee's custom.]—Pltfs. were furriers & drew a cheque for £256 7s. 6d. in favour of I., a bill discounter, with whom they were in the habit of dealing. I. represented the cheque personally, & it was dishonoured, the bank clerk having overlooked a large credit. Later in the day I. represented the cheque, when the mistake was satisfactorily explained & the amount paid. I. however refused to continue dealing with pltfs. :—Held : pltfs. could not recover damages for the loss of I.'s custom.—MORRIS v. LONDON & WESTMINSTER BANK (1885), Cab. & El. 498 ; sub nom. MEYER, MORRIS & CO. v. LONDON & WESTMINSTER BANKING CO., LTD., 1 T. L. R. 360.

552. Cheques of married woman trader—Right to sue—Married Women's Property Act, 1870 (c. 93), s. 11.]—A married woman, carrying on business separately from her husband as a sole trader, & having in that capacity a banking account, sued her bankers for damages for dishonouring her cheques, they having funds of hers at the time to meet them :—Held : she was entitled to maintain the action, it being a remedy for the protection & security of her wages, earnings, money, & property, within the above sect.—SUMMERS v. CITY BANK (1874), L. R. 9 C. P. 580 ; 43 L. J. C. P. 261 ; 31 L. T. 268 ; 38 J. P. 744.

553. Cheques of undischarged bankrupt — Dishonoured after discovery of bankruptcy.]—Pltf. opened an account with defts., concealing the fact that he was an undischarged bkpt. On discovering the fact, defts. declined to honour his cheques until they had obtained the consent of his trustee in bkpcy. At that time pltf. had a credit balance & had given four cheques amounting to a total of less than his credit balance. On his asking defts. to honour the four cheques, they declined to do so &

PART II. SECT. 8, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

549 i. Bank bound to pay—Cheque against funds partly collected.]—A bank is bound to pay a cheque drawn for a part only of funds collected by it, & is liable in damages for refusal to do so.

—PERREAULT v. MERCHANTS BANK (1905), Q. R. 27 S. C. 149.—CAN.

549 ii. — Incorrect bank ledger.]—If a bank refuse to pay a cheque having sufficient funds of the drawer for the purpose, the holder can compel payment in equity. But the fact of there sufficient at the drawer's credit in the bank ledger when the cheque was presented is immaterial, if the ledger did not show the true state of the account.—GORE BANK v. ROYAL CANADIAN BANK (1867), 13 Gr. 425.—CAN.

556 i. Uncleared cheques—Immediate credit to customer—Damages for breach of implied contract.—Deft. bank was in the habit of crediting a customer with the amount of the cheques as soon as they were paid in, & if any cheque was subsequently dishonoured, of debiting the amount of such cheque to the customer. The customer frequently drew against such cheques immediately after they had been paid in, without any objection on the part of the bank. After a certain cheque had been paid in, but before it had been cleared, the bank dishonoured a cheque drawn against the amount so paid in:—Held: there was an implied contract that the customer should at once have credit for cheques paid in & be entitled to draw against them before clearance, & the customer was entitled to damages for breach of same occasioned by the dishonour.—FREEMAN v. STANDARD BANK OF SOUTH AFRICA, LTD. (1905), W. H. C. 26.—S. AF.

556 ii. ——— Death of customer.—A bank having refused payment of a cheque on the ground that it had received notice of the death of the drawer, the holder of the cheque, in an action against the bank, claimed payment of the amount on the ground that to that extent the cheque operated as an assignment of a sum standing at the drawer's credit on his account current in the hands of the bank. The bank books showed a balance due to the drawer on his account current more than sufficient to pay the cheque, but they also showed that, on his other accounts, the drawer was due to the bank for advances a larger sum than that standing to his credit on the account current. For these advances the bank held securities:—Held: (1) the cheque, as a cheque, having lapsed at the death of the drawer, pursuer could not avail himself of the rule by which a bank, which is in the habit of honouring a customer's cheques on a current account, is not entitled without notice to refuse payment because on a balance of all accounts the customer is a debtor to the bank: (2) the cheque did not operate as an assignment.—KIRKWOOD & SONS v. CLYDESDALE BANK, [1908] S. C. 20.—SCOT.

558 i. ——— No agreement to treat as cash—Remittances sent through post.—Pltf. sued for the dishonour by defts. of a cheque for £4. The first count was in the usual terms, & the second count alleged an agreement by defts. to treat known good cheques paid in by pltf. as cash. To the second count defts. pleaded non-assumpsit. The jury found a verdict for pltf. in the first count, & for defts. on all the other issues:—Held: as the only funds that could have been in the hands of the bank were cheques, & as the jury had found by the verdict on the second count that there was no agreement to treat cheques as cash, there must be a new trial: Semble: if, by the orders of a bank, the postmaster keeps letters till called for, delivery to the post office is delivery to the bank, & the bank cannot set up the defence of not sufficient funds, if a letter containing a remittance is lying at the post office when the cheque dishonoured is presented.—EDDY v. BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES (1877), Knox, 299.—AUS.

558 ii. ——— No right to draw
A customer is not entitled to treat cheques paid in as cash & draw against them in the absence of a special agreement.

A cheque upon the A. Bank, S., was paid into a branch of the B. Bank at N. to the credit of a customer in the forenoon of Jan. 14. It was credited in the ledger on the same day as "cheque." According to the ordinary course of post, after the cheque was sent to the head office in S. to be cleared, notice of its being paid would not be received at the branch till the morning of the 16th. A cheque was presented on the 15th & dishonoured:—Held: the District Ct. Judge ought to have admitted evidence (1) as to the time it took to clear cheques from the suburban branches of the banks & between the banks in the city; & (2) to show the meaning of the entry in the ledger.—BOSLEY v. BANK OF AUSTRALASIA (1880), 1 N. S. W. L. R. 287.—AUS.

k. Unaccepted cheque—Refusal of payment—Rights of holder.—R. gave pltf., in payment of a debt, a cheque drawn on deft. bank. Upon presentation payment of the cheque (which was not accepted) was refused, the clerk stating that, as it was for the balance of the sum to R.'s credit, his pass-book must be produced before payment. Within a few days R. became insolvent, & pltf. lost payment of his debt. The bank admitted that there were funds of R.'s to meet the cheque when presented, & it was not set up that production of the pass-book when the balance was withdrawn was a custom of the bank:—Held: pltf. had no right of action against defts. for damages incurred by reason of their refusing to pay the unaccepted cheque.—SILVERSTONE v. BANK D'HOCHELAGA, 21 C. L. T. Occ. N. 309.—CAN.

l. Customer credited after discount—Retention of sum sufficient to meet bill.—A bill drawn by A. & accepted by B. was discounted by a banking co., & the proceeds placed to A.'s credit in account with the bank. A. thereafter drew out the whole amount standing at his credit, with the exception of a balance sufficient to meet the bill, & for that balance his order was presented before the bill arrived at maturity, but the bank

PART II.—BUSINESS OF BANKING.

559. London or country—Delay in clearance—Custom of London banks.]—Pltf. before 3 p.m. on May 21 paid a cheque for £500 into his account, which was headed as follows:—"Norwich Union Life Insurance Society, No. 889. Norwich, May 20, 1901. Barclay & Co., Ltd., with which has been incorporated Gurneys, Birkbecks, Barclay & Buxton, Bank Plain, Norwich, or head office, 54, Lombard Street, London." Where cheques drawn on city banks were paid in before 3 p.m., the Bank of England allowed them to be drawn against on the next day. The bank presented the cheque through the country clearing-house & in consequence a cheque of pltf.'s which was presented on the following day, before the proceeds of the N. U. cheque had been credited to his account, was dishonoured. The jury found that the cheque was a cheque on a city bank & that there was a general & recognised custom among London bankers to treat such cheques as London cheques:—Held: pltf. was entitled to damages.—FORMAN v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1902), 18 T. L. R. 339.

560. Advance for definite period—Duty to honour—General drawing account.]—Semble*: when a banker makes an advance to a customer for a particular period, he is bound to honour cheques upon the general drawing account of his customer to the last farthing of the amount standing to his credit.—THOMAS v. HOWELL (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 198; 30 L. T. 244; 22 W. R. 676.

561. Agreed overdraft—Cheques drawn & circulated before notice of withdrawal.]—Semble*: where bankers have agreed to give an overdraft they cannot refuse to honour, within the limit of that overdraft, cheques which have been drawn & put into circulation before notice to the customer that the limit is to be withdrawn.—ROUSE v. BRADFORD BANKING CO., LTD., [1894] A. C. 586; 63 L. J. Ch. 890; 71 L. T. 522; 43 W. R. 78; 7 R. 127, H. L.

562. Secured overdraft—Dishonour of cheques within—Inconsistent agreement—Parol evidence.]—Pltf. recovered damages for the dishonour of his cheque, the jury having found that defts. had agreed to present it at another wicket. There was no evidence that this was done, & a telegram was sent out by the first-mentioned bank that the drawer of the cheque had no account:—Held: the trial judge was right in taking the case from the jury & dismissing the action for want of sufficient evidence.—REAR v. THE IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA (1908), 13 B. C. R. 345; 42 S. C. R. 222.—CAN.

refused to honour the draft:—Held: the bank were not entitled for their own security to retain the amount, it not being alleged that at the time either the acceptor or the drawer of the bill was bkpt., or insolvent or vergens ad inopiam.—PAUL & THAIN v. ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND (1869), 7 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 361.—SCOT.

m. Specific deposit to meet cheque—Applied to reduce overdraft—Damages.]—Pltf., who had an overdrawn account with deft. bank, paid in a sum of money with instructions that it was to be applied to meet a certain cheque which would be presented, & the money was received by the teller on those conditions. The manager was informed of the conditions of the deposit, but, without notice to pltf., he applied the deposit in reduction of his overdraft, & the cheque was dishonoured:—Held: pltf. entitled to damages for the dishonour of the cheque.—HUENERBEIN v. FEDERAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA (1892), 13 N. S. W. L. R. 244.—AUS.

o. Presentment at wrong wicket—Mistake of clerk—Evidence.]—A clerk from one bank presented at another bank a cheque of a customer of such last-mentioned bank, but at the wrong ledger-keeper's wicket, & was directed to advance £2,000 for six months, that the contract was not terminable at the defts.' discretion at any time before the expiration of the six months, & that defts. had so agreed on the guarantee of pltf.'s mother & the deposit of her deeds as security. Defts. sought to rely on a written & printed application for overdraft dated Oct. 4, 1894, signed by pltf. after the above-mentioned agreement was come to, under which the loan was expressed to be repayable on "Apr. 4, 1895, or on demand at your discretion." Parol evidence was admitted to the effect that when this document was signed it was not intended to give defts. power to recall the overdraft at any time:—Held: the evidence was properly admitted to explain the circumstances in which pltf.'s name was appended to a document which was no part of the agreement but which was placed before him for signature by defts. after the agreement was concluded.—BANK OF AUSTRALASIA v. PALMER, [1897] A. C. 540; 66 L. J. P. C. 105, P. C.

563. —Second charge on same property—Right to terminate overdraft.]—Pltf. deposited title deeds with defts. to secure any balance that might become due on his current account, & he was permitted to overdraw. In Oct., 1887, pltf. conveyed the same property by way of security to another person & notice of the charge was given to defts., whereupon they "ruled off" the account & calculated interest on it up to that date. Defts. repeatedly demanded payment of the overdraft. Fourteen months later pltf. paid moneys into his account & drew a cheque which defts. dishonoured, applying the moneys received in payment of the balance due to them. Pltf. sued for damages for the dishonour of his cheque:—Held: defts. were not liable, because the security was the foundation for the overdraft, & pltf. having destroyed its value as to further advances, defts. became entitled to close the account without notice.—PARKINSON v. WAKEFIELD & CO. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 646, C. A.

564. —Security deposited by agent—Special damage—Evidence.]—Pltf.'s agent obtained from defts. a promise to pay certain cheques drawn by pltf., in consideration of his depositing with them a store warrant in lieu of the cash which pltf. had

q. Attachment of all moneys due by bank—Reasonable time for inquiries—Damages.]—T. & A. carried on business in partnership & had an account with defts. On a Friday the bank was served with an order attaching all money due by the bank to T. & P. On Saturday two of T.'s cheques, aggregating $401, were presented & refused, the bank not having by that time determined what position it should assume. In an action for damages for such refusal the trial judge told the jury that, if they were of opinion that the bank had exceeded a reasonable time for making all necessary inquiries for their protection, the damages should be substantial but temperate. The jury found a verdict for pltf. for $1,000:—Held: (1) there was no misdirection; (2) the bank had acted with proper, reasonable despatch; (3) the damages were unreasonable & unjust.—TODD v. UNION BANK OF CANADA (1887), 4 Man. L. R. 201.—CAN.

r. Cheque drawn on estate account—Insolvency of estate—Claim of bank.]—A bank, which held on account current £113 belonging to an executory estate, refused to cash a cheque for £100 drawn on the account, on the ground that the estate was insolvent, & that the bank, which had a claim for £130, intended to apply for sequestration of it:—Held: the bank were not entitled to withhold payment of the cheque.—IRELAND v. NORTH OF SCOTLAND BANKING CO. (1880), 8 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 215.—SCOT.

instructed him to pay to the credit of pltf.'s account. The store warrant belonged to pltf., was under pledge to the agent, & was accepted by defts. with full knowledge of the circumstances. In an action for dishonouring the cheques:—Held: (1) the agent in substituting the deposit for cash did not exceed his authority, but even if he had, the contract was complete, for there was consideration for defts.' promise, & in the circumstances they could not be heard to say that that consideration did not move from pltf.; (2) evidence of special damage—that is, of pltf.'s loss of custom & credit from particular individuals—was wrongly admitted, special damage not having been alleged.—FLEMING v. BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, [1900] A. C. 577; 69 L. J. P. C. 120; 83 L. T. 1; 16 T. L. R. 469, P. C.

565. Cheque marked "reason assigned not stated"—Meaning—No presentment by mistake.]—Pltf. drew a cheque upon his bank in favour of a customer, who paid it into deft. bank, where he kept an account, for collection. Defts. by some mistake did not present it for payment to the bank upon which it was drawn, & later on it was found at deft. bank in the box in which returned cheques from pltf.'s bank were usually left. Pltf. had ample assets at his bank to meet the cheque. A clerk of defts., thinking that the cheque had been returned unpaid & not knowing for what reason, attached a slip to it on which the words "Reason assigned" were printed, & against those words he wrote "Not stated." The cheque with the slip attached was sent to the person in whose favour it was drawn, who communicated with pltf., & the cheque was paid. Pltf. brought an action of libel, alleging that the words meant that the cheque had been dishonoured through want of assets: Held: (1) the words on the slip, coupled with the return of the cheque, were not in their natural meaning libellous, & it lay upon pltf. to prove facts & circumstances leading to the conclusion that they would naturally be understood by reasonable persons as conveying

565 i. Cheque marked "refused payment"—Cheque never presented—Irregular indorsement.]—A. deposited pltf.'s cheque, drawn on a bank at S., in deft. bank at M. for collection. The same day defts. returned the cheque to A., with a printed form "that it had been refused payment at the place where payable." The cheque had not left M., owing to the discovery of an irregularity in the indorsement, & had not been presented. There was no evidence of malice. In an action for libel:—Held: there was no privilege, for, as there had been no presentation, there had been no dishonour & no duty to communicate to A.—BROWNE v. BANK OF AUSTRALASIA (1881), 2 N. S. W. L. R. 325.—AUS.

s. Cheque marked "indorsement irregular"—Notification of dishonour to customer—Liability for libel.]—H. gave a cheque on the U. Bank to W. & Sons, payable to J. & J. W., the words "or bearer" being erased. W. & Sons indorsed the cheque "W. & Sons" & paid it into the N. Bank for collection. The U. Bank returned the cheque to the N. Bank with the words "indorsement irregular" on the back. The N. Bank gave notice to W. & Sons that the cheque had been dishonoured. H. then brought a libel action against the N. Bank:—Held: the cheque was, in fact, dishonoured, & the communication by the bank to their customers was privileged.—HALL v. BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES (1889), 10 N. S. W. L. R. 292.—AUS.

the libellous imputation alleged; (2) pltf. not having proved this, there was no case to go to the jury.—FROST v. LONDON JOINT STOCK BANK, LTD. (1906), 22 T. L. R. 760, C. A.

566. Cheque marked "refer to drawer"—Meaning—Question for jury whether libellous.]—Defts. wrongfully dishonoured pltf.'s cheques & marked them "refer to drawer":—Held: the words "refer to drawer" meant the cheque had been dishonoured & it was a question for the jury whether they constituted in fact a libel on pltf.—SZEK v. LLOYDS BANK (1908), Times, Jan. 15.

567. ——— Effect of moratorium proclamation.]—Pltf. had an account with defts. & on Aug. 5, 1914, she drew a cheque for £4 5s. in favour of a co., from whom she was in the habit of buying newspapers. On Aug. 5, a moratorium proclamation was issued, providing that all payments of not less than £5 due & payable before Aug. 6, or on any day before Sept. 4, in respect of any cheque drawn before Aug. 4, "or in respect of any contract made before that time," should be deemed due & payable one month after the original due date or on Sept. 4. The cheque was presented on Aug. 10, & returned with the words "Refer to drawer" upon it. On Aug. 10, pltf. had £6 16s. 5d. to her credit on the pre-moratorium account & £3 9s. 3d. on the post-moratorium account. In an action by pltf. against defts. for breach of contract & libel:—Held: (1) defts. were protected by the moratorium, as the case was one of a payment in respect of a contract made before Aug. 4; (2) in the circumstances the words "Refer to drawer" were not capable of a libellous meaning; (3) pltf. was not entitled to recover. Seemle: the words "Refer to drawer" ordinarily mean that the bank are not going to pay, & that the payee must go back to the drawer & ask him to pay; they do not mean that there is no money to pay the cheque (SCRUTTON, J.).—FLACH v. LONDON & SOUTH-WESTERN BANK, LTD. (1915), 31 T. L. R. 334.

568. Retention of funds for contingent liabilities.]—Bankers retained the balance of a customer to answer a future liability, which might arise in respect of bills which they had discounted for him to a much larger amount than the balance, & the contract for which the other refused to fulfil in consequence of such dishonour, may be considered by the jury as evidence of damage to pltf.'s mercantile character; but they are not to estimate it as special damage. Evidence of the probable value of such partnership is not admissible. If such evidence has been admitted, although without objection, it is the duty of the judge to warn the jury not to take the amount of the loss of the contract as the measure of damages; if he do not, deft. is entitled to a new trial.—DYSON v. UNION BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. (1882), 8 V. L. R. 106.—AUS.

y. ——— Special damage.]—In an action by a trader for dishonouring cheques & for libel, contained in the memorandum written on a cheque in explanation of the dishonour, in which pltf. claims only general damages for injury to his credit & reputation, evidence that he lost a particular agency business, upon which the rest of his business depended, by reason of the dishonours or libel complained of, is not admissible. Such damage is special damage, & must be pleaded & proved.—MILES v. COMMERCIAL BANKING CO. OF SYDNEY (1904), 1 C. L. R. 470.—AUS.

retained; refer to drawer"—Retention of funds to meet other liabilities.]—Defenders returned a cheque drawn by pursuer marked "Effects to be retained; refer to drawer." There was at the time a balance on account current sufficient to meet the cheque, but defenders had intimated to pursuer that, pending a settlement of a claim in respect of a bill for a larger amount, they would retain the money at his credit on account current. The cheque in question had left pursuer's hands before receipt of the above intimation from defenders. An action for payment of the bill was compromised for a payment of £20:—Held: defenders had funds of their customer in their hands sufficient to meet the cheque, & their duty was to pay it, seeing that it had been granted before receipt of a notice closing the account, & the customer was entitled to £100 damages.—KING v. BRITISH LINEN CO. (1899), 7 S. L. T. 58.—SCOT.

t. Measure of damages.]—Pltfs. were in business as general merchants & insurance agents, & since defts. had wrongfully dishonoured cheques, which pltfs. had drawn for the benefit of their creditors, they had been obliged to pay cash for goods & their credit had been seriously injured:—Held: £750 damages not excessive.—ROBY v. ORIENTAL BANK CORPN. (1879), 2 N. S. W. S. C. R. N. S. 56.—AUS.

u. ——— Mercantile character.]—In an action for the dishonour of a cheque, the loss by pltf. of a partnership, the contract for which the other refused to fulfil in consequence of such dishonour, may be considered by the jury as evidence of damage to pltf.'s mercantile character; but they are not to estimate it as special damage. Evidence of the probable value of such partnership is not admissible. If such evidence has been admitted, although without objection, it is the duty of the judge to warn the jury not to take the amount of the loss of the contract as the measure of damages; if he do not, deft. is entitled to a new trial.—DYSON v. UNION BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. (1882), 8 V. L. R. 106.—AUS.

u. ——— Mercantile character.]—In an action for the dishonour of a cheque, the loss by pltf. of a partnership, the customer brought an action against the bankers for damages for having dishonoured his cheques, & for the amount of his balance. After the action was commenced several of the above bills, to a larger amount than the balance, were dishonoured. Upon a bill filed by the bankers against the customer for an account & for an injunction to restrain the action at law, the ct. (considering there was a substantial question to be tried in equity), granted an injunction restraining the action.—AGRA & MASTERMAN'S BANK, LTD. v. HOFFMANN (1864), 5 New Rep. 214; 34 L. J. 569. Attachment of all debts in bank's hands — Balance available after attachment—Cheques drawn against balance.—Deft. acted as banker to pltf. & held a sum of money to his credit. A judgment was obtained against pltf., & all debts in the hands of deft. were attached to answer such judgment. The amount in the hands of deft. exceeded the amount of the judgment. Pltf. drew cheques against the balance which were presented & dishonoured:—Held: deft. was not bound to honour the cheque so drawn, & his refusal to do so gave pltf. no cause of action.—ROGERS v. WHITELEY, [1892] A. C. 118; 61 L. J. Q. B. 512; 66 L. T. 303; 8 T. L. R. 418, H. L.

570. Cheque marked by drawer "to be retained"—Unconditional order to pay as regards bank—Rights of drawee.—Deft. gave pltf. a cheque, written on a blank sheet of paper, on the face of which he wrote "to be retained" & promised to send a cheque on one of his banker's printed forms in substitution for it. This he did not do, & the cheque was dishonoured on presentment. In an action on the cheque:—Held: the addition of the words "to be retained" merely imported a condition between drawer & drawee, & did not prevent the instrument being an unconditional order to pay with regard to the bankers, & it was a cheque within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), upon which pltf. were entitled to sue.—ROBERTS & CO. v. MARSH, [1915] 1 K. B. 42; 84 L. J. K. B. 388; 111 L. T. 1060, C. A.

B. Funds insufficient.

571. To meet all cheques — Duty of bank to honour first cheque presented.—Pltf., foreign bankers, sued defts. for wrongfully dishonouring cheques. When the cheques were presented defts. marked them "effects not cleared; please present again," & contended that they were justified in refusing payment because they had been advised of a number of cheques to be presented, & as they had not sufficient funds to meet them all, they were entitled to meet none of them but could ask the holders to present them again. On the day when the cheques were presented defts. held assets sufficient to pay one or more of them, but not sufficient to meet all the cheques presented on that day:—Held: defts. were liable in damages, it being their duty to honour the first cheque presented which was within the amount of the assets in their hands.—SEDNAONI ZARIFFA NAKES & CO. v. ANGLO-AUSTRIAN BANK (1909), Journal of Institute of Bankers, Vol. XXX., p. 413; Times, Apr. 26.

572. To meet all demands — Payment into court — Rights of payee.—Pltf. were deft.'s bankers & also agents for his regiment. On May 7 deft. retired from the Army, having sold his commission, & on the following day it became the duty of pltf., as agents for the regiment, to issue to deft. the sum of £365 18s. 6d., the price of his commission. On May 23 C. presented a cheque drawn by deft. for £50, which was dishonoured, his credit balance being £38 4s. 8d., although with the price of the commission there would have been sufficient moneys to meet the cheque. 571 ii. To meet whole cheque—Assignment of funds standing to customer's credit.—A cheque granted for value, when presented at the bank on which it is drawn, constitutes an intimated assignation of the drawer's funds to the amount of the value of the cheque; & if the cheque be for a larger amount than is at the drawer's credit with the bank, it nevertheless operates as an assignation of such funds as are at his credit.—BRITISH LINEN CO. BANK v. CARRUTHERS & FERGUSSON (1883), 20 Sc. L. R. 619.—SCOT.

571 iii. — When interest on overdrafts added.—A cheque of pltf. was dishonoured on Nov. 4. The balance then standing to their credit in the pass-book exceeded the amount of the cheque, & before drawing the cheque, pltf. were so informed by the clerk of the bank. Between June 30 & Nov. 4 pltf. had several times overdrawn their account, & the interest due to defts. upon such overdrafts, with the amount of the cheque, exceeded the credit balance, but the dishonour of the cheque was not put on that ground at that time. It was the practice of the bank not to charge interest to the customers until the end of the half-year, unless the account was closed or the customer became insolvent. Pltf., some days before the dishonour, were offering to their creditors a composition of 8s. in the pound:—Held: defts. could not avail themselves of the interest due to them under the plea that there were not sufficient funds in their hands avail-

a. Cheque drawn in excess of credit—Temporary overdraft.—In the absence of special agreement, express or implied, a banker is under no obligation to allow a customer to overdraw his account, & cannot be held liable for damages for dishonouring a cheque which the customer has insufficient funds to meet.

The usual pledge form of a bank, by which pltf. pledged to the bank certain shares as security for an overdraft, provided that the overdraft should be temporary & at the manager's discretion:—Held: pltf. could not succeed in an action for damages for dishonour of a cheque, drawn after the manager's refusal to allow further overdrawing, for a sum in excess of the amount to pltf.'s credit.—MCINTYRE v. ROBINSON SOUTH AFRICAN BANKING CO., 17 E. D. C. 111.—S. AF.

b. — Promise by manager to payee to honour—Liability of bank to payee for dishonouring.—Pltf. sold goods to C., who gave pltf. cheque on deft. bank. When pltf. presented the cheque C.'s account was considerably overdrawn, but the manager promised pltf. that the bank would pay the cheque later, which they refused to do:—Held: the promise given pltf. was made on behalf & for the benefit of the bank, & the benefit derived from the transaction, which was carried out on the faith of the promise, accrued to deft. bank, & they were liable.—ADAMS v. CRAIG & ONTARIO BANK (1911), 20 O. W. R. 7; 3 O. W. N. 41.—CAN.

573 i. Exhaustion of funds — "No funds" — Onus of proof.—Where a bank supports an answer of "no funds" with a cheque, by which it claims that the amount claimed was withdrawn, the onus is on it to prove the cheque genuine.—CLARK v. EXCHANGE BANK (1880), 3 L. N. 45.—CAN.

c. Cheque payable at named bank at par—No guarantee of funds—Right to charge back on dishonour.—Pltf. were holders for value of a cheque drawn by the A. Bank on the M. Bank at London, on the face of which appeared the words "payable at M. Bank, Toronto, at par." The above words were habitually used by the A. Bank on their cheques with the assent of the M. Bank:—Held: the effect of the words was that the M. Bank at Toronto would make no charge for cashing the cheque, & they did not assume the risk of there being funds to meet it, & they did not lose the right to charge it back on ascertaining there were no funds.—ROSE-BELFORD PRINTING CO. v. MONTREAL BANK (1886), 12 O. R. 544.—CAN.

d. Funds assigned to third party—Notice by assignee to bank.—In an action against a banker for not paying cheques defts. pleaded, on equitable grounds, that, before pltf. drew any of the cheques, he had assigned by deed to F. & Co. all moneys, etc., in the hands of the bank, & that, before the presentation of any of the cheques, F. & Co. gave the bank notice of the deed & of its execution by pltf., & demanded of the bank all the moneys, etc., of pltf. in his hands of the bank, & afterwards, & before the action, the bank, by the authority & order of pltf., paid over to F. & Co. all of pltf.'s money, etc., in their hands:—Held: a good plea.—*NEWMAN v. 573. Exhaustion of funds—Payment of customer's bill.—Defts., bankers, holding in their hands £20 on account of pltf., paid a bill of exchange, accepted by pltf., payable at their banking-house, for £42, when it became due & was presented to them by the holder. No orders to pay the acceptance had been given by pltf., nor had he countermanded the authority contained in the acceptance. Defts., after payment of the bill, endeavoured to get back the money, & treated the payment as made by mistake, & subsequently honoured a cheque drawn by pltf. for £13 13s. (in an action against defts. for not honouring a further cheque for £7 11s., pltf. alleging that they had funds in their hands:—Held: defts. had authority from pltf. to apply his money towards the payment of the acceptance, & so had properly applied & exhausted his funds, & what happened afterwards was immaterial.—KYMER v. LAURIE (1849), 18 L. J. Q. B. 218; sub nom. KEYMER v. LAURIE, 13 Jur. 426.

574. Accounts at two branches—Right of bank to combine accounts.—Pltf. having an account at the L. branch of defts.' bank, which showed a balance to his credit exceeding £23, drew cheques to that amount on that branch. At the same time he was indebted to the bank at their B. branch in an amount which, having regard to his whole account, reduced his assets in the bank's hands to a few shillings only. The bank, without any notice to him, transferred the B. debt to the L. branch, & refused to pay the cheques on presentment. There was no special contract or course of dealing between the parties that each account should be kept separate:—Held: the bank were entitled at any time to combine the accounts, & to charge the L. account with the B. debt.—*GARNETT v. 575. Allegation of payment in—Denial by bank—Evidence.—In an action for damages for dishonouring a cheque pltf. alleged that he had previously paid in a cheque which was more than sufficient to meet the amount of the dishonoured cheque, & called his son to prove that he had handed an envelope containing the cheque across the counter; the bank proved by their officials that the cheque was never seen by them & that no trace of its receipt was to be found in the bank books:—Held: the bank were entitled to judgment.—BELL v. CAPITAL & COUNTIES BANK (1887), 3 T. L. R. 540.

576. Customer overcredited in pass-book by mistake—Cheque drawn bonâ fide—Liability of bank—Customer's right to damages.—Pltf., a customer of defts., finding on examining his pass-book that it showed a balance of £70 17s. 9d. in his favour, drew a cheque for £67 11s. in favour of a firm to whom he owed that amount. On the cheque being presented by that firm it was dishonoured by defts. At the time pltf. drew the cheque for £67 11s. he had a balance at the bank of £60 5s. 9d. only, but in his pass-book one of the bank clerks had, in error, entered to pltf.'s credit a sum of £10 12s. twice, with the result that from the pass-book pltf. appeared to be in credit to the amount of £70 17s. 9d.:—Held: although defts. were entitled to have the wrong entry ultimately corrected, pltf. (who had not been guilty of any negligence or fraud in connection with the matter) was entitled, until that correction had been made, to act upon defts.' statements in the pass-book, & having acted upon those statements & suffered damage thereby, he was entitled to recover against defts. the amount of such damage.—HOLLAND v. MANCHESTER & LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANKING CO., LTD. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 386; 14 Com. Cas. 241.

(after his employment as such had ceased), received a cheque for £180, in payment for wheat belonging to D., which he had sold on his account while acting as bailiff, & paid it in to his own account with B. & Co., his bankers, who received the cash for it, & gave A. credit for the amount; B. & Co. afterwards, under an indemnity from D., refused to honour his drafts:—Held: even assuming that the cheque had been improperly obtained by A., still, as between him & his bankers, the amount was recoverable by A., as money had & received by them to his use, or money paid.—TASSELL v. COOPER (1850) 9 C. B. 509; 14 L. T. O. S. 466; 137 E. R. 990.

578. Notice to bank by third party—Application for injunction—Right to refuse payment.—Semble: where a banker dishonours a trustee's cheques in consequence of notice from a third party that the trustee intends to misapply the trust moneys & that an injunction is about to be applied for, no action will lie against the banker, if an injunction is subsequently granted.—*HUNT v. Restraining bank from honouring cheques—Defect in customer's title—Injunction.—Pltf. sued defts. for an injunction to restrain them from honouring cheques drawn by his wife, alleging that the moneys deposited by her with defts. had been stolen from him. The wife was not a party to the action:—Held: there was no power to grant an injunction against defts. in the absence of the customer. Semble: if the customer were before the et., it would restrain her from drawing cheques, but would not restrain defts. from honouring cheques already drawn.—FONTAINE-BESSON v. PARR'S BANKING CO. & ALLIANCE BANK, LTD. (1895), 12 T. L. R. 121, C. A.

584. Notice of dishonour—Rights of drawer.]—In an action by the holder against the drawer of a dishonoured cheque, notice of dishonour is excused by want of effects at the time when the drawer would reasonably expect the cheque to be presented for payment, provided the drawer had no reasonable expectation that it would be paid. The want of effects which will excuse notice of dishonour need not be a want of any effects; it is sufficient if there are no effects sufficient for the payment of the cheque.

If there were funds in the hands of the bank sufficient to meet the cheque, the drawer would be entitled to notice, though he knew that the bank would not honour the cheque, for he would be entitled to say they were bound to honour it, even though they had told him they would not.—*(BRAMWELL, B.)—CAREW v. Pltf., relying on those representations, delivered peaches, for which he received the firm's cheque, countersigned by D. On the cheque being presented, the bank refused payment:—Held: the bank had such an interest in the goods delivered by pltf. as prevented the application of Stat. Frauds, s. 4, & were bound by D.'s promise of representation that they would pay the cheque, though not made in writing.—SIMPSON v. DOLAN (1908), 16 O. L. R. 459; 11 O. W. R. 590.—CAN.

Pltf. sold the canning co. a quantity of fruit & were given a cheque countersigned by D., which the bank refused to pay:—Held: the bank was not liable under Stat. Frauds, s. 4.—MCWILLIAM & EVERIST v. SOVEREIGN BANK (1909), 14 O. W. R. 561.—CAN.

n. Cheque drawn against telegraphic remittance—Plaintiff's name mis-spelt—Indemnity refused—Damages.]—Pltf.'s agent in London paid a sum of money to defts. in London to be remitted by telegraph to the credit of pltf. at defts.' Dunedin branch, less cost of telegram & exchange. The telegram mis-spelt pltf.'s name, & defts. refused to pay over the money until a satisfactory indemnity was given. An indemnity offered was not accepted, & the money remained in defts.' hands for nearly two months, until they received advice by letter. Pltf. drew a cheque upon defts., which was returned marked "declined to pay." Pltf. brought an action alleging that pltf. was kept out of the money from Mar. 13 to May 1, & the jury awarded damages as follows: Telegram, £10; exchange, £33 7s.; interest, £13 2s. 11d.; general damages, £300. On a rule to reduce the damages:—Held: (1) a contract to transmit money by telegraphic advice differed in no respect from a contract to transmit by letter of advice, & in no essential respect from the contract entered into in granting a letter of credit or bank draft; (2) the contract created the relation of debtor & creditor, & on breach, the ordinary measure of damages must be applied; (3) the cost of telegram & exchange was recoverable only as an alternative to interest, both charges representing the difference between a present payment & a payment deferred.—SMYTHIES v. BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, 3 J. R. N. S. 23. N.Z.

585. Received by bank in reduction of debt—Bank's right to recover.]—L., then in good credit in the city, sold to M. four bills of exchange, drawn by himself upon P. at Cadiz. They were sold on Feb. 11, & by the custom of bill brokers were to be paid on the first foreign post-day following the day of the sale. That first day was Feb. 14. L. was much in debt to his banker, & being pressed to reduce the balance, gave to the banker a draft or order on M. for the amount of the four bills. This draft or order was dated on the 14th, though it was, in fact, written on the 13th, & then delivered to the banker. On the morning of the 14th the manager of M.'s business gave a cheque for the amount of the order, which was then given up to him. L. failed, & on the afternoon of the 14th the manager, learning that fact, stopped payment of the cheque:—Held: the banker was entitled to recover its amount from M.—*MISA v. 586. ———.]—On a Saturday A. granted a cheque on his account with the Bank of S., for (inter alia) £250 crossed blank in favour of B. On the same day B. indorsed the cheque & paid it into the Bank of C., of which he was a customer. The Bank of C. immediately on receipt of the cheque carried the amount to B.'s credit, & thus reduced a debit balance standing against him. On the Monday following A. stopped payment of the cheque at the Bank of S., & when the Bank of C. presented it, payment was refused. The Bank of C. sued A. for the amount. The ct. found that the cheque was granted to B. to reduce the balance at his debit with the Bank of C., that A. agreed the cheque should be so used, & that in pursuance of that agreement the cheque was indorsed to the Bank of C., & given to them as cash, & the contents being put to B.'s credit the balance at his debit was thereby reduced:—Held: the Bank of C. were onerous holders of the cheque & the Bank of S., not having paid the cheque on demand, A. was liable.—*M'LEAN v. bility for the "inadvertent" cashing of a stopped cheque. More than five weeks after being stopped, the cheque came to the bank on clearance through another bank, which had cashed it on the strength of what appeared to be good indorsements, though such indorsements were actually forgeries. The cheque was included in the clearance account, cashed, & debited to the customer who had stopped it:—Held: this was an "inadvertent" payment in terms of the indemnity, for which the bank was not liable in damages.—*GROCORT & SHERRY v. 588. Failure to stop post-dated cheque—Bankruptcy of payee—Liability to trustee.]—Purchasers paid part of the purchase-money by a post-dated cheque. Before the date of payment they had notice that the vendor was adjudicated a bkpt., but they did not stop the cheque, which was honoured in due course:—Held: the drawer of a post-dated cheque given for value was under no obligation to stop its payment before its date for the benefit of a third party & the transaction was protected by Bkpey. Act, 1869 (c. 71), s. 94.—Re PALMER, Ex p. RICHDALE (1882), 19 Ch. D. 409; 51 L. J. Ch. 462; 46 L. T. 116; 30 W. R. 262, C. A.

589. By telegram—Payment before notice of countermand—Negligence.]—Though a telegram countermanding a cheque may reasonably be acted upon by a banker, at least to the extent of postponing the honouring of the cheque until further inquiry can be made, yet a banker is not bound to accept an unauthenticated telegram as sufficient authority for the serious step of refusing payment.

On Oct. 31, 1906, pltf. drew a cheque for £63 on his bankers, defts. On the same day after business hours, he telegraphed to countermand payment of this cheque. The telegram was delivered on the evening of the same day by the post office, & it being after office hours, was placed in the letter-box of the bank. By an oversight on the part of defts.' servants this telegram was not brought to the notice of their manager until Nov. 2. On Nov. 1 the cheque was presented & paid. In an action for money had & received:—Held: payment of the cheque was not in fact countermanded within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 75, although it might well be that it was owing to the negligence of the bank officials that notice of the customer's desire to stop the cheque was not received in time.—*CURTICE v. Holder countermanding payment—Cheque cashed after notice—Liability of bank.]—H., holder of a cheque dated Apr. 20, 1862, lost it on that day. The 21st & 22nd were holidays, & the bank closed. On the 23rd, before the bank opened, H. gave notice of his loss, & required the bank not to pay. On the 24th a customer of the bank brought in the cheque to be carried to his account. The bank disregarded H.'s notice & credited their customer with the amount of the cheque. ## SUB-SECT. 5.—MARKING AND CERTIFYING CHEQUES.

590. Marking cheque presented after banking hours—Acceptance—Usage of London bankers.]—By the practice of the London bankers, if one banker, who holds a cheque drawn on another banker, presents it after four o'clock, it is not then paid, but a mark is put on it, to show that the drawer has assets, & that it will be paid; & cheques so marked have a priority, & are exchanged or paid next day at noon at the clearing-house; & a cheque presented after four, & so marked, & carried to the clearing-house next day, but not paid, no clerk from the drawee's house attending, need not be presented for payment at the banking house of the drawee. Such marking under this practice amounts to an acceptance, payable next day at the clearing-house.—ROBSON v. BENNETT (1810), 2 Taunt. 388; 127 E. R. 1128.

fied by another bank & crediting their customer with the amount, in the absence of express agreement, merely receive it for collection, & not as purchasers of it.—GADEN v. NEWFOUNDLAND SAVINGS BANK, [1899] A. C. 281; 68 L. J. P. C. 57; 80 L. T. 329; 15 T. L. R. 228, P. C.

592. Presentment after banking hours.]—A bill accepted, payable at a banker's, must be presented for payment within the usual banking hours; & proof of presentment afterwards by a notary, when a boy came to the door, & could give no answer as to payment, the clerks being gone:—Held: not proof of the dishonour of a bill so as to charge the drawer.—PARKER v. *t. Certification before suspension—Discharge of drawer.]—*The payees of a cheque took it to the bank on which it was drawn on the afternoon of the day on which they received it from the drawer & got it marked "good," the amount being charged to the drawer's account. They then took it away without demanding payment. The bank on the evening of the same day suspended payment, & on the following day, on presentation of the cheque, payment was refused:—Held: the drawer of the cheque was discharged from all liability thereon.—BOYD v. *w. — Cheque deposited with another bank—Liability of receiving bank.]—*Pltf. had an account with the F. Bank which he withdrew by giving debts, a cheque, which they marked instead of demanding the cash. Then debts gave pltf. a pass-book crediting him with amount of the cheque. Defts. drew a settlement on the F. Bank for the cheque & some other small accounts, which was refused, as the F. Bank had suspended. Defts. then secured a release from pltf. of his claim against them & at the same time took an assignment of pltf.'s claim against the F. Bank. Pltf. brought an action to set aside the release, which he alleged was obtained by false pretences, whereupon debts withdrew the release from the case, but contended that, as they had received no value, they should not be made to suffer the loss:—Held: debts accepted the F. Bank as their debtor for amount of the cheque, & judgment for pltf.—JOHNS v. STANDARD

*a. Neglect so to do does not render the bank liable for an excess amount paid as a consequence of an alteration effected after the acceptance of the cheque.—DUQUET v. BANQUE NATIONALE (1914), Q. R. 46 S. C. 131.—CAN.

*b. — Insolvency of bank—Debiting customer & crediting collecting bank—Set-off.]—*On Nov. 15, 1887, the day before the suspension of the C. Bank, B., having sufficient funds to his credit, drew a cheque upon it payable to A., who deposited same in the D. Bank, & obtained an advance upon it. The D. Bank presented it for payment on Nov. 17, when the C. Bank had suspended payment. On Nov. 23, 1887, the C. Bank marked the cheque good, debiting B.'s account & crediting the D. Bank with the amount thereof. Afterwards, the liquidators claiming the right to set off certain subsequently accruing liabilities of B. against the cheque, the D. Bank withdrew their claim upon it. Subsequently, & after the first dividend had been paid, A. heard of this, & filed a claim on the cheque, on Sept. 13, 1888. The master allowed the claim, only subject to the set-off:—Held: there was no right to set-off as claimed, & that the allowance of the claim was ex debito justitiæ, & not discretionary; & the fact of the C. Bank having accepted the cheque, & credited the amount to the D. Bank, & charged the amount to B. showed conclusively that at that time the C. Bank was not a creditor of B.—Re CENTRAL BANK OF CANADA, CAYLEY'S CASE (1889), 17 O. R. 122.—CAN.

*c. — Subsequent dishonour—Rights of holder.]—*The M. Bank, by its manager, accepted cheques drawn on it by the C. Bank, & the latter deposited them in the N. Bank for value received. The cheques, on presentation, were refused & protested, & the N. Bank brought action therefor:—Held: the M. Bank could not refuse its acceptance thus made, & was bound to protect & guarantee the C. Bank from all loss thereunder.—BANQUE NATIONALE v. CITY BANK & BANK OF MONTREAL (1873), 17 L. C. J. 197.—CAN.

*d. Unauthorised marking—Payment refused—Custom of bankers.]—*H., a customer of two banks, presented two cheques, drawn by himself, & asked for the cash from the B. Bank, promising to deposit a marked cheque for $10,000 on M. Bank. Later in the day H. presented his cheque for 10,000 on M. Bank, with "D" placed upon it by D., the manager of M. Bank, but the M. Bank refused to pay the cheque when presented:—Held: (1) the placing of "D" on the cheque was only authority of the manager to the ledger keeper to certify the cheque, & this not having been done, the M. Bank was not liable; (2) pltf. should have a new trial on the point that the initialling of the cheque by D. was with the object of enabling H. to present same to the D. Bank as one which would be accepted by the M. Bank & so obtaining money which was to be deposited to his credit in that bank.—SCOTT v. MERCHANTS BANK (1911), 17 O. W. R. 849; 2 O. W. N. 514.—CAN.

*e. — Cheque cashed by another bank—Payment stopped by drawer—Liability of drawer.]—*Y. drew a cheque, dated June 9, 1906, in favour of J. on deft. bank. On June 15 Y. stopped payment of the cheque. On Oct. 30 following, R., a clerk in deft. bank, by misrepresentations, got possession of the cheque, & without authority of deft. bank marked it accepted with the acceptance stamp of deft. bank, & on same day got pltf. to cash the cheque. On the following day he ceased to be an employee of deft. bank:—Held: pltf. could not succeed.—NORTHERN v. YUEN (1909), 11 W. L. R. 698.—CAN.

*f. Interest after certification.]—*Two cheques were presented on Aug. 7 & 8 & certified good by the bank, but not paid until Oct. 8 following. 595. Continuing presentment—Dishonour. ]—Pltf. sued defts. for wrongfully dishonouring his bill accepted payable at the Bank of England, it being the course of dealing for the Bank to honour such bills out of pltf.'s assets. The bill was presented at nine-fifteen a.m. & handed back dishonoured at eleven a.m., at which hour defts. had not sufficient assets of pltf. to take up the bill. Another presentment was made in the afternoon, by a notary, but after banking hours. A clerk of defts. then answered that there were not sufficient assets, although they had then in fact received sufficient moneys of pltf. to pay the bill:—Held: (1) the bill was to be considered as continuing in course of presentment until eleven a.m., & if defts. had had funds available before that hour, they would have been liable for its dishonour; (2) defts. were not bound to pay the bill after banking hours. Semble: it was the duty of defts. to have informed the notary that they had received assets, & that the bill would be paid the following day.—WHITAKER v. 602. Acceptance general—Action by indorsee against acceptor—Whether presentment at bank necessary. ]—A declaration by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill alleged that he accepted it "payable at C. & Co.'s, bankers," but did not aver any presentment there:—Held: since 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, the words did not, according to their legal effect, imply that the bill was payable at the bankers' only, & the acceptance was general, & it was unnecessary to allege presentment at the house of those bankers.—HALSTEAD v. 603. Acceptance qualified—Presentment according to qualification—Duties of holder. ]—A bill was accepted "payable at Sir John P. & Co.'s, bankers, London":—Held: the acceptance was qualified, & the holder was bound to allege & prove presentment at the banking house of Sir John P. & Co. in order to charge the acceptor.—ROWE v. 604. Presentment after due date—Indorsees entitled to payment. ]—Defts. accepted a bill of exchange "payable on giving up bill of lading for seventy-six bags of clover per Amazon at the L. & W. Bank." The bill became due on Mar. 14, but was not presented for payment. No inquiry was made by defts. until Mar. 15, when one of defts. called on pltf., who were indorsees of the bill, & asked why it had not been presented. The bill being then presented to him with the bill of lading annexed, he refused payment, saying he had entered into a contract to ship the seed to Scotland on that day, & it was then too late. The bill, with the bill of lading annexed, was presented on the same day at the L. & W. Bank & refused payment:—Held: plffs. were entitled to payment on tender of the bill of lading & were not bound to present the bill on the precise date on which it became due.—SMITH v. VERTUE (1860), 9 C. B. N. S. 214; 30 L. J. C. P. 56; 3 L. T. 583; 7 Jur. N. S. 395; 9 W. R. 146; 142 E. R. 84.

605. Delay in presentment—Failure of bank—Discharge of acceptor.—Deft. accepted a bill thus:—“Messrs. C. & M., pay this bill when due for T. C.” The bill fell due Jan. 2, 1741, & C. & M., bankers, paid until Jan. 19, when they failed. On Jan. 21 the money was demanded of deft.:—Held: the acceptor was discharged.—*BISHOP v. 606. ——— Liability of acceptor.—Deft. accepted a bill as follows: “Accepted, payable when due at Messrs. P. & H.’s, bankers, London.” It was not presented there for payment when due, nor until some days after. No inconvenience resulted to the acceptor from the delay to present the bill:—Held: the acceptor remained liable.—RHODES v. GENT (1821), 5 B. & Ald. 244; 106 E. R. 1182.

607. No presentment—Failure of bank—Liability of acceptor.—The holder of bills of exchange, accepted payable at a banker’s, neglected to present them there when due, & the banker, in whose hands the acceptor had funds, afterwards failed:—Held: the acceptor was still liable, the acceptance being in law a general acceptance.—TURNER v. HAYDEN (1825), 4 B. & C. 1; 6 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 5; 107 E. R. 959.

609. Cancellation of acceptor’s signature—“By mistake”—Liability of indorsee.—Deft. indorsed to pltf. bills which had been drawn & indorsed to deft. by parties in France, but accepted in England payable at a banker’s. On presentment for payment the banker’s clerk inadvertently cancelled the acceptances, but immediately wrote opposite to them “Cancelled by mistake,” & the bills were returned unpaid, the acceptor having no assets. The referee in case of need refused to pay in consequence of the cancelling. Pltf. returned the bills protested to deft., whom prior indorsers refused to pay. Deft. cited pltf., drawer & indorsers before the French Ct., which adjudged him discharged from liability, on the ground that the cancelling of the acceptance operated as a suspension of legal remedies against the acceptor:—Held: the French Cts. had mistaken the English law, & deft. was still liable for the debt in respect of which the bills had been given.—

610. ——— Orders not to pay—Insolvency of acceptor—Liability of bank.—A. was the holder of a foreign bill drawn upon B. in England, & accepted by B. payable at the banking house of C. On the morning when the bill became due D., as A.’s banker, delivered the bill to C. C. (acting throughout according to the practice of London bankers) intending to pay the bill, & having funds of B.’s in his hands at the time, cancelled the acceptance by drawing lines across B.’s name, without rendering the acceptance illegible. In the course of the day B., finding himself to be insolvent, ordered C. not to pay the bill, & C. wrote thereon “Cancelled by mistake—orders not to pay,” & the bill was returned in this state to D. at the clearing-house before the settling hour:—Held: (1) in these circumstances C. was not liable; (2) the duty cast upon C. was no more than to take due care of the bill, & if he did not choose to pay it, to return it uncanceled unless it had been cancelled by mistake, & in that case to indicate same by writing on the bill; (3) C. did use due care to prevent the acceptance from being defaced. Seemle: a banker who omits to return, or defaces, a bill is not in all cases under an obligation to pay the amount; but if he do so wrongfully he becomes liable to an action on the case, if the holder has sustained damage by his breach of duty.—*WARWICK v. 612. Payment by bank though funds insufficient—Applying assets in part payment.—Defts., bankers, holding in their hands £21 4s. on account of pltf., paid a bill of exchange, accepted by pltf., payable at their banking house, for £42 when it became due & was presented to them by the holder. No orders to pay the acceptance had been given by pltf., nor had he countermanded the authority contained in the acceptance. Subsequently defts. honoured a cheque for £13 13s., but refused to pay another cheque for £7 11s. for the residue of the money applied in payment of the bill. Pltf. sued for damages for the dishonour of his cheque:—Held: defts. had authority to apply the funds of pltf. in their hands in payment of the acceptance. Qu.: whether defts. could recover from pltf. the difference between the amount of the bill & the moneys in their hands.—*KYMER v. 613. ——— Insolvency of customer.—H. accepted a bill payable at his bankers’ to a larger amount than the effects in their hands. The bill was paid. Afterwards, having committed an act of bkpcy., of which the bankers had no notice, H. paid the bankers £250 for the purpose of reimbursing them. H. became bkpt., & his assignees sued to recover the £250:—Held: the bankers

618. Payable generally at bank—Dishonoured at head office—Paid by branch—Rights of bank.]—H., having an account at the head office of a bank, accepted a bill payable generally at that bank. H. subsequently, & before the bill became due, opened an account at a branch bank belonging to the same co., but gave no notice to the bank to dishonour the bill. The bill, on becoming due, was presented at the head office, & was refused payment for want of funds. The holder then presented it at the office of the branch, where it was paid:—Held: the co. were authorised in paying the bill at the branch office, though bills made payable at the branch bank by H. were always specially accepted payable at the branch office.—HUNT v. 619. Death of customer—Notice.]—A.'s bankers, for nine or ten years previous to his death, had been in the habit of accommodating him with a loan of £1,000 upon the security of his promissory note, which was renewed every three months, the bankers upon those occasions discounting the note by placing the amount of it to the credit of A., as cash paid in by him, & debiting him on the other side with the discount. A. also, about two months before his death, accepted, payable at his bankers', a bill drawn by B. on A. for £467. This bill having been paid away by B., was discounted by the bankers for a holder who did not indorse it, & the bankers were the holders when the bill became due. On the morning the bill became due, before the arrival of the post, the bankers, who had then in their hands £142 of A.'s money, wrote off the bill to the debit of A.'s account; the same day's post informing them of A.'s death two days before, they called upon B. to pay, & B. paid them £40 on account of the bill, on a representation from them that £40 would be wanting to make A.'s account right. At this time the last promissory note for £1,000, given by A. to the bankers, had 53 days to run, but the bankers immediately entered that note, as well as the bill of exchange, to the debit of A.'s account, allowing on the other side a rebate of discount for the time the note had to run. The exors. of A., having, before the 53 days expired, sued the bankers for the balance in their hands at the time of A.'s death:—Held: the bankers might set off against the demand of the exors. the £467 written off on the bill of exchange, but not the £1,000 on the promissory note.—ROGERSON v. LADBROKE (1822), 1 Bing. 93; 7 Moore, C. P. 412; 130 E. R. 39; sub nom. ROBINSON v. LADBROKE, 1 L. J. O. S. C. P. 6.

620. Bill discounted with & indorsed by bank — Payment by bank to holder as indorsers—Acceptor's account overdrawn.]—In an action by the customer of a bank against the bankers, to try their right to debit him with a bill, it appeared that pltf. was drawer of the bill, which was accepted payable at the bank. Pltf. discounted the bill with the bank & indorsed it to them: they re-discounted the bill & indorsed it to the rediscounter. On the maturity of the bill, it was presented by the holder at the bank along with several other bills payable there, all of which bore the bank's indorsement. The bank paid the amount of the whole without any indication of whether they paid as indorsers or as agents for the acceptor. The account of the acceptor of the bill was at this time overdrawn; he stopped payment on that day; & on the next, notice of dishonour was given by the bank to pltf., & he was debited with the amount. It was left to the jury to say whether the bank paid the bill on their own account as indorsers, or as agents of the acceptor. The jury found that they paid as indorsers, & the bank had a verdict:—Held: (1) the question was properly left, it being a question of fact whether they intended to do so; (2) the bank had a right to pay the bill as indorsers, reserving to themselves time to inquire whether they would honour the bill or not; (3) there was no obligation on them to inform the holder in what capacity they paid.—POLLARD v. OGDEN (1853), 2 E. & B. 459; 22 L. J. Q. B. 439; 21 L. T. O. S. 152 18 Jur. 39 1 W. R. 387; 118 E. R. 839.

621. Payment of bill—Subsequent discovery of insolvency of acceptor—Payment not provisional.]

—The branch bank of defts. at N. discounted a bill of exchange drawn by plffs., customers of the branch bank, upon H. & Co. & accepted by them, payable at the bank of L. & Co., also bankers at N. According to the practice prevailing among bankers at N., the branch bank, on the morning when the bill became due, took it to L. & Co., who marked it for payment, & gave a credit note, indicating that it, with other moneys, was in order for payment & would be paid. About two p.m. on the same day a clerk of the branch bank, in accordance with the practice, took all the cheques which had been received, drawn on L. & Co., together with the credit note, to the bank of L. & Co. The credit note was admitted into the total amount, & a cheque upon the branch bank was, in accordance with the practice, handed by L. & Co. to the clerk, for the amount of the balance due to defts. At three p.m. the banks at N. closed to the public, but it was the practice for the bankers who kept accounts with the branch bank to attend at such bank, before it finally closed for the day at four p.m., for the purpose of having the day's accounts investigated, & of rectifying any mistakes or errors which might have arisen in the course of the day, & finding & striking the final balances between them. When the bank of L. & Co. closed at three o'clock it was ascertained that H. & Co. had stopped payment, & that their balance was not sufficient to meet the bill. Notice was at once & before four p.m. given to the branch bank that the bill had been paid in error, & they were requested to take it back. Before such notice was received, the account of L. & Co. had been debited with the amount in the accounts of the branch bank:—Held: it not being shown that the giving the cheque was provisional only, & subject to rectification upon going over the accounts later in the day, such giving the cheque by L. & Co. amounted to payment of the bill to defts., & plffs. were entitled to have credit with them for the amount of the bill.—POLLARD v. BANK OF ENGLAND (1871). L. R. 6 Q. B. 623; 40 L. J. Q. B. 233; 25 L. T. 415; 19 W. R. 1168.

622. Note indorsed to banker for value — Dishonour for want of assets—Claim by bank against indorsee—Whether presentment to maker necessary.]

—A. made a promissory note payable to B. or order, with a memorandum that he would pay it at the house of plffs., his bankers. The note was indorsed to plffs. for value, who, finding that they had no assets of A. in their hands, treated the note as dishonoured & sued the indorser:—Held: it was not necessary to prove an actual demand on A.—*SAUNDERSON v. Bank" across the face of it. The maker also signed the note in the usual place. The note was not presented at the bank for payment, but at the maker's house:—Held: the note was not made payable at a particular place in the body of it within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 87 (1), & presentment at the bank was unnecessary to charge an indorser.—STEVENSON v. BROWN (1902), 18 T. L. R. 268.

624 i. Note payable at bank—Maker & payee customers of same bank—Bank crediting payee & debiting maker—Payment irrevocable.]—Defts. were the bankers of both plff. & E. E. having given a note payable to plff. at defts. bank, plff., about two weeks before its maturity, left it with defts. for collection, & to be protested if not paid. On the day of its maturity, the ledger keeper debited E.'s account & credited plff.'s with the amount of the note, & on plff. calling at the bank next morning, he received his pass-book with an entry crediting him with the amount of the note. Subsequently the manager refused to pay plff. the amount of it. E. stated that he always gave authority to pay each particular note, which he had not done in the present case; & the manager stated that without such authority it was not the custom of the bank to pay any note:—Held: plff. was entitled to recover the amount of the note from the bank, as the act of the ledger keeper in charging the note to E.'s account & crediting it to plff. in his account & pass-book amounted to a payment of the note, & was irrevocable.—NIGHTINGALE v. CITY BANK OF MONTREAL (1876), 26 C. P. 74.—CAN.

h. Note credited as cash in bank books—Imputation of payment.]—Held: (1) resp. did not, by the mere act of crediting as cash in its books the amount of applt.'s promissory note, when such note was received, subject itself to have such credit entry imputed as a payment, seeing applts.' default to pay their note at maturity, the entry of such credit & re-charge at maturity being a mere book-keeping operation; (2) in view of the legal imputation which had to be made of the sum paid in discharge of the customer's note & of the other sums credited in the account, the debt sued for must be held to have been paid.—CRAIK v. MACFARLANE & Co. (1911), 18 R. de J. 88.—CAN.

k. Dishonour of note—Practice to treat uncleared cheques as cash—Entries in pass-book.]—In an action to recover damages for the dishonour of a promissory note, it was proved that on the day on which the note was dishonoured plff. had paid in to his credit a cheque drawn on a country bank, at the same time paying the charge for exchange, that he afterwards asked the teller of the bank the amount standing to his credit, & that a credit-slip was then handed to him showing a credit balance sufficient to cover the promissory note, & including the amount of the cheque.

The usual course of dealing with country cheques paid in by customers was either to treat them as bills for collection, & to credit the customer with the amount only when the bank was advised that they had been paid on presentation, or to treat them as cash when paid in, & to credit the customer's account with the amount; in the latter case the charge for exchange was always paid by the customer when paying in. The cheques paid in by plff. had on all previous occasions been treated as cash by defts., & the entries in plff.'s pass-book showed that the cheque in question had been so treated. The pass-book contained a printed notice as follows: "Cheques upon other banks paid in by customers to their credit will not be treated as cash, nor will they be treated as credit until they are cleared":—Held: there was sufficient evidence to justify the jury in finding that the bank had treated the cheque as cash, & the transaction was in effect in the nature of a discount of the cheque.—BURKE v. COLONIAL BANK, O. B. & F. 146.—N.Z.

l. — Presentment at wrong bank—Alteration by maker.]—Plff. gave a promissory note to B., making it payable at deft. bank, where he had an account. He subsequently altered the note by writing the word "Royal"

625. Cancelling maker's signature—Note returned dishonoured—“Cancelled in error.”—The mere fact of cancelling the signature of the makers of a dishonoured promissory note & writing “paid” on the note, corrected before the note is sent back to plffs. by a memorandum thereon “cancelled in error,” cannot be effectual to charge a bank with the receipt of the money.

A promissory note was returned dishonoured to plffs., the amount thereof having been transmitted by transfer drafts & entries in the bank's books, from the branch where same was made payable to the branch where plffs. paid same in, such transfer & entries not being communicated to plffs.:—Held: the bank could not be charged with the receipt of the money.—PRINCE v. ORIENTAL BANK CORPN. (1878). 3 App. Cas. 325; 47 L. J. P. C. 42; 38 L. T. 41; 26 W. R. 513, P. C.

626. Order to bank for payment to third party—Countermand before appropriation—Payment after countermand.—Pltf. directed defts., his bankers, to hold a sum of money from his private account at the disposal of S., & the bankers accepted the order; pltf. countermanded it before any actual appropriation or payment made:—Held: such order was revocable, & defts. having paid the money to S. after such countermand were liable to pltf. in an action for money had & received. *GIBSON v. 627. Post-dated unstamped drafts—Payable to bearer—Stamp Act, 1815 (c. 184), s. 13.—M. & others bound themselves by bond, jointly & severally, to pay to the Bank of Scotland such sums as should be drawn out by M., or be due from him, on a cash credit opened by the bank, in his name, & the certificate of the bank accountant was to be held sufficient to ascertain the balance due, & to warrant execution of law for such balance, not exceeding £5,000, against the obligors. M. drew on the bank by orders, written on unstamped paper, payable to bearer, & though the drafts purported to be issued in the town where the bank was situated, they were in fact drawn & issued at a place more than ten miles distant, & were also post-dated, & the bank agent knew that they were wrongly dated in point of place & time. M., having become insolvent, was found to owe to the bank on the cash credit account upwards of £4,000, as certified by the bank accountant, & for that debt the bank put the bond in suit against his co-obligors:—Held: no obligation arose on the bond to pay any balance alleged to be due on drafts so drawn & issued, contrary to the above sect.—SWAN v. BLAIR (1835), 3 Cl. & Fin.

before the words “Bank of A.,” thus making it payable at the Royal Bank of A. The alteration was not noticed by the person into whose hands it came, & the note was presented at deft. bank. Deft. bank did not notice the alteration, & as pltf.'s account was much less than the amount of the note, the words “N. P. F.” were written on the back of the note. Pltf. sued defts. for libel:—Held: the statement was made bona fide & in the ordinary course of business & was privileged.—HUSSEY v. BANK OF AUSTRALASIA (1889), 15 V. L. R. 9.—AUS.

m. Payment on draft—Assignment & notices thereof.—S. was entitled to a legacy under the will of a person deceased, who at the time of his death was domiciled in India. In consideration of certain advances he assigned the legacy to W. & appointed W. his attorney to indorse any bank draft which might be forwarded in payment of the legacy. Notice of the assignment was given to defts., but they declined to record or notice the intimation given by W. Defts. some time afterwards received notice from S. cautioning them against paying any draft which might come to their hands for his use to any person but himself. Defts. subsequently received from India a bank draft for S., but it was accompanied by instructions that it was to be paid over

628. Precautions against forgery—Duties of customer.—It is the duty of a customer of a bank in issuing mandates to the bank to take reasonable care so as not to mislead the bank; but, beyond the care which must be taken in or immediately connected with the transaction itself, there is no duty on the part of the customer to take precautions in the general course of carrying on his business to prevent forgeries on the part of his servants.—KEPITIGALLA RUBBER ESTATES, LTD. v. NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA, LTD., [1909] 2 K. B. 1010; 78 L. J. K. B. 964; 100 L. T. 516; 25 T. L. R. 402; 53 Sol. Jo. 377; 14 Com. Cas. 116; 16 Mans. 234.

629. — — —.]—A customer of a bank owes a duty to the bank in drawing a cheque to take reasonable & ordinary precautions against forgery, & if as the natural & direct result of the neglect of those precautions, the amount of the cheque is increased by forgery, the customer must bear the loss as between himself & the banker.—*LONDON JOINT STOCK BANK v. 631. ——— Signature “per pro.”—Signature outside & in fraud of authority.—A cheque signed “pro.” by a person having authority so to sign cheques for specified purposes is not a forgery within Forgery Act, 1861 (c. 98), s. 24, because it is drawn for purposes outside & in fraud of the authority.—*MORISON v. 632. Payment on forged cheques—Loss sustained by bank—Right to rank as creditors.—A. forged the name of S. to a cheque for £550, & obtained the money from the bankers. He was subsequently apprehended for another felony, & indictments for only upon his receipt, & on his signing certain vouchers & acknowledgments which were inclosed. Defts. agreed to honour the draft, & they placed the proceeds to the credit of S. upon his signing the vouchers & documents which had been forwarded from India. After the draft had been passed to the credit of S., & he had operated upon it, defts. received notice that W. had assigned his claims to pltf. Defts. had never recognised, nor had they at any time agreed to recognise, either W. or pltf. as the owner of the draft. Upon these facts in action for the wrongful conversion of the draft:—Held: defts. not liable.—COHEN v. BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, Mac. 620.—N.Z.

both felonies were preferred against him at the next assizes. To the first (not pltf's.) he pleaded "guilty," to pltf's. indictment, "not guilty." He was sentenced on the first to four years' penal servitude. The second was not tried, but ordered to stand over, the ends of justice, in the words of the judge, having been satisfied. Previously to the sentence A. had executed an assignment of all his real & personal estate for the benefit of his creditors to S., whose name he had so forged. The bankers claimed to rank under this deed of assignment as creditors for the money of which they had been so defrauded:—Held: the money so obtained was a debt due to the bankers, who were entitled to come in under the deed of assignment & rank as creditors. —*DUDLEY & WEST BROMWICH BANKING CO. v. 633. — Liability of bank.—C. Co. received a loan proposal forwarded & recommended by H., their country agent, purporting to come from K., a farmer. H. forged all the usual documents & signatures, & filled up the forms, & requested the money to be sent by letter to him for K. C. Co. then paid the loan, being £137, into the B. Bank, for which they got an order or letter of credit, on the B. branch bank, "to honour the drafts of K.," & sent same to H. to hand to K. H. kept the order, & forged K.'s indorsement; & being known as the co.'s agent, got the money on a representation that K. was a client who sent him for the money. H. then absconded:—Held: the bank were liable to repay the money to C. Co., though the fraud was that of H., their own agent, for it was the ordinary case of a banker paying on a forged cheque of a customer, the letter of credit being merely the machinery for the cheque. —*BRITISH LINEN CO. v. 635 ii. ———. —If a party having an account at a banker's is not in the habit of locking up his cheque-book, with the result that a person in his establishment abstracts from it a blank cheque, forges his name to it, & thereby obtains money from the banker, the omission to lock up the cheque-book cannot be relied upon as a defence to an action for recovery of the amount obtained by the forgery.—BANK OF IRELAND v. EVANS' CHARITIES TRUSTEES (1852), 3 I. C. L. R. 280, 316.—IR.

635 iii. ———. —Negligence of customer's agent.—Pltf's. valuator, H., filled in the blanks in an application for a loan on statements of S., who forged the names of J. B. & I. B. as appets., & although H. had never seen the property or appets., he certified a valuation to pltf's., who accepted the loan, & signed his name as a witness of the signatures of appets. Cheques in payment thereof to the order of the supposed borrowers were obtained by S., who forged the names of the payees, indorsed his own name, & received payment of the cheques, which were drawn upon debts, through other banks, who presented them to debts, & received payment in good faith. The fraud was not discovered for some time, during which the cheques were returned to pltf's. at the end of the month as paid, & the usual acknowledgment of the correctness of the account was duly signed:—Held: pltf's. not estopped from recovering the amount paid on the forged indorsements from debts, by their agent's negligence, as it did not occur in the transaction itself, & was not the proximate cause of their loss.—*AGRICULTURAL SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOCN. v. None of the cheques were marked with the drawee's acceptance before payment. The customer was first informed thereof by the accredited agent of the bank who requested his silence, & the customer in complying with that request acted honestly & with a view to what he believed to be the bank's interest:—Held: the silence of the customer was not a legal wrong to the bank, & he was not estopped from relying on the forgery.—*OGILVIE v. 635. — Negligence of customer.—The directors of a limited co. (three in number) appointed the son of the chairman as secretary of the co. Four years previously the son had, to his father's knowledge, committed a forgery, but since that time the son had apparently lived a blameless life. Neither of the other two directors knew of the forgery committed four years previously. The secretary had the custody of the co.'s cheque-book & bank pass-book, & the directors, who reposed confidence in him, did not require the production of the cheque-book for inspection at their meetings. The secretary forged the signature of one of the directors on a number of cheques purporting to be drawn on behalf of the co., & obtained payment thereof from the co.'s bankers. The secretary drew several cheques, which were actually signed, duly entered in the finance book & initialled by one director, but the signature by the other director was forged by means of an india-rubber stamp kept by the cashier, & his initials in the finance book were also forged. The drawing of the cheques was confirmed at a directors' meeting, & a certificate of the credit balance at the bank was produced by the secretary, but the paid cheques & pass-book were not produced:—Held: there was no such negligence proved as would estop the co. from recovering the amounts paid on such forged cheques.—*KEPITIGALLA RUBBER ESTATES, LTD. v. The cheque was handed by the bank to pltf. on condition that he would return it, which he did, but it was not delivered to him as his own property:—Held: the demand to pay or return the cheque was a sufficient demand of the cheque, but pltf. had no such property in the cheque & no such possession of it as would entitle him to maintain an action for conversion, & even if he had, defts.' refusal was not such an absolute refusal as to constitute a conversion.—*ANNAND v. Defts., without requiring identification, advanced $25 in cash to the forger on the forged cheque, placed the balance, $975, to his credit in a deposit account, endorsed it, & received the full amount of $1,000 from pltf.s. After receipt of such amount, defts. paid the further sum of $800 to the forger out of the amount so placed to the credit of his deposit account. The fraud was discovered a few days later & on refusal to refund the money received, an action was brought to recover it back from defts. as indorsers or as having received money paid under mistake of fact:—Held: pltf.s, although obliged to know the signature of their customer, were not under a similar obligation in regard to the writing in the body of the cheque, & entitled to recover back the money notwithstanding that the position of defts. had been changed by paying over part of the money to the forger.—*DOMINION BANK v. 641. .]—The course of business between the guardians of the H. Union & the H. Banking Co. was that sums of money were from time to time paid to the account of the guardians across the bank counter to the bank clerks, & the orders, signed on behalf of the guardians, were cashed like cheques payable to order. The clerk to the guardians had in his employ L., whose duty it was to fill up the orders for the signature of the guardians, & he drew a large number of orders in such a manner as to enable himself to increase the amounts after they had been signed by the guardians & countersigned by the clerk. These orders were presented & paid at the bank in the ordinary way. The guardians brought an action against deft., the salaried manager of the co., whom they had appointed as their treasurer without salary, to recover the money paid on such forged orders:—Held: as to the orders on which the amounts had been increased, pltf. could not recover, the loss being primarily due to their own negligence.—HALIFAX UNION v. Subsequently the cheque, which had been altered to one for £80 5s., was presented & paid by defts., who contended that the fraudulent alteration had been facilitated by spaces being left in the cheque as originally drawn. It also appeared that the "y" was in a different ink to the "eight." Pltf. sued to recover £72, the amount of the overpayment, & the jury found in favour of pltf. A new trial was ordered on the ground that the question whether defts. had been misled by pltf.'s negligence had not been sufficiently put to the jury.—MAR-

M. enhanced their apparent amounts by adding words & figures in the blank spaces to the left of those originally written. In a suit to recover the balance of account defts. claimed to debit it with the enhanced amounts of the cheques, & the jury found that defts. could not, by the exercise of ordinary care & caution, have avoided paying the cheques as altered, & that the cheques were drawn by pltf. in neglect of their duty to defts.:—Held: (1) there was no evidence of negligence on the part of defts. proper to be left to the jury; (2) the mere fact that a cheque was drawn with spaces which could be utilised for the purpose of fraudulent alteration was not by itself any violation of duty by the customer to his banker.—COLONIAL BANK OF AUSTRALASIA, LTD. v. 644. .]—A firm entrusted to a confidential clerk, whose integrity they had no reason to suspect, the duty of filling in their cheques for signature. The clerk presented to one of the partners of the firm for signature a cheque drawn in favour of the firm or bearer. There was no sum in words written on the cheque in the space provided for the writing & there were the figures "2. 0. 0." in the space intended for figures. The partner signed the cheque. The clerk subsequently added the words "one hundred & twenty pounds" in the space left for words & wrote the figures "1" & "0" respectively on each side of the figure "2," which was so placed as to leave room for the interpolation of the added figures. The clerk presented the cheque for payment at the firm's bank & obtained payment of £120 out of the firm's account:—Held: the firm had been guilty of a breach of the special duty arising from the relation of banker & customer to take care in the mode of drawing the cheque, & the alteration in the amount of the cheque was the direct result of that breach of duty, & the bank were entitled to debit the firm's account with the full amount of the cheque. 648. Forged indorsement—Payment on—Right to debit customer.—An insurance co. were in the practice of paying losses due to country customers by accepting drafts on the co. in London, drawn by their country agent to the order of the customer. The drafts were not drawn till the co. in London gave the agent leave to draw, nor accepted till they bore the indorsement of the payees, & were found, on examination, to correspond with the leave to draw. When accepted, they were made payable at the bank of R., the London banker of the co. R. was not informed of this practice. A loss of £5,000 became due to I. at Manchester. The agent of the co. at Manchester, in pursuance of their leave, drew on the co. a draft for £5,000 payable to the order of I., & delivered it to I.'s solr. This draft, purporting to be indorsed by I. to the order of J. & L. (London bankers), was by J. & L. presented for acceptance to the co., & accepted, payable at R.'s bank. On maturity, it was there paid to J. & L. This payment was debited to the co. in the pass-book delivered to them. They credited R. with the payment. No objection was made till, six months afterwards, it was discovered that the indorsement purporting to be that of I. was a forgery by the solr., & the co. were compelled to pay I. The co. brought assumpsit against R.:—Held: (1) the acceptance of a bill of exchange payable at a banker's was tantamount to an order to the banker to pay the bill to any person who according to the law merchant could give a valid discharge for it, & not merely to the lawful holder, & the banker might debit his customer with such payment; (2) a banker could not debit his customer with the payment made to one who claimed through a forged indorsement, & so could not give a valid discharge for the bill, unless there were circumstances amounting to a direction from the customer to the bankers to pay the bill without reference to the genuineness of the indorsement, or equivalent to an admission of its genuineness, inducing the banker to alter his position, so as to preclude the customer from showing it to be forged; (3) the facts afforded no evidence to go to the jury of such a direction, or of such an inducement.—ROBERTS v. 649. Cheque stolen & indorsed abroad—Valid title by foreign law—Conversion in England.—By Austrian law the holder of a stolen cheque, who takes the cheque bonâ fide for value & without gross negligence, acquires a valid title to the cheque even though he takes it under a forged indorsement, & if the holder pays it into an English bank, which presents it to the bank upon which it is drawn & receives the proceeds, the English bank is not liable to an action for conversion by the original owner of the cheque, as the validity of the indorsement & the transfer of the cheque in Austria depend upon Austrian law.—EMBRICOS v. Deft. gave it to his country bankers, & their London agents, the L. & J. Bank, presented & received payment for it from M. & Co., who either did not perceive or disregarded the crossing. "L. & C. Bank." On hearing it was paid deft. gave value for it to a customer. Meanwhile pltf., at the payee's request, had sent him a second cheque for the same amount, which also was paid by M. & Co., & pltf.'s account was debited with both cheques. Pltf. having brought an action for the amount of the first cheque, for money had & received by deft., the jury found that all the parties concerned, except deft., namely, pltf., M. & Co., & the payee, had been guilty of negligence with regard to the payment of the first cheque:—Held: the first cheque had been paid by M. & Co. improperly & without authority, because they had paid it to the wrong

647 i. Alteration of date—Negligence of bank—Avoidance of cheque.—Pltf., a customer of deft. bank, left with them a cheque payable to himself or bearer to meet a note. The cheque was not used for that purpose, nor returned to pltf., but was afterwards presented to defts. by some one unknown, the year having been changed from 1873 to 1874, & it was paid by defts. without noticing the alteration, & charged to pltf.'s account. How it got out of defts.' bank was not ascertained:—Held: the alteration

654. — Subsequent discovery of forgery—Right of bank to recover.—An agent applied to a banking co., on several occasions, to discount bills drawn by his principal, & at the commencement of these transactions, informed the co. who were the drawers & acceptors of a bill, & inquired whether the co. would discount it without requiring the agent to indorse it. They agreed to do so in this & other instances; but upon some of the bills required & obtained the agent's indorsement. The acceptances turned out to have been forged by the principal, of which fact the agent was wholly ignorant. The agent became bkpt., & there was nothing to show that he had not handed over the proceeds of the bills to the principal, or that those proceeds were in such a position that they could be recalled:—Held: the co. could not prove upon the bills which the agent had not indorsed.—Re BOURNE, Ex p. Pltfs. took it on the credit of N.'s name & gave defts. their cheque for the amount, & defts. gave their own cheque to A. for the amount at a higher rate of discount. All the names on the bill except A.'s own were forgeries. A. was convicted of forgery & became bkpt.:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to recover the money given for the bill from defts.—GURNEY v. 656. Discounting bill restrictively indorsed—Forged indorsement—Payment for honour by drawers—Right to recover from bank.—The Bank of England discounted a bill restrictively indorsed to D. D.'s indorsement was forged by E., & the Bank discounted the bill in the ordinary course of business. The bill was dishonoured at maturity, & pltfs.' agent paid it for their honour as the drawers. The forgery having been discovered, pltfs. sued the Bank to recover the money paid:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to succeed, as the indorsement to D. was restrictive & the bill was not negotiable when discounted by the Bank.—ANCHER v. t. Acceptances forged by agent—Agent acting within scope of authority.—A firm wrote a letter to a bank authorising their agent to sign per pro. of their firm all bills, cheques, cash orders, & other documents necessary to the conducting of their business, & added, " & all vouchers so subscribed will be equally binding as if signed by any member of our firm." The firm thereafter granted to their agent a regularly stamped letter of procuration, repeating the above authority. The agent forged the acceptances on several bills which he drew per pro. of his principals, & discounted them with the bank, & applied the proceeds to his own purposes:—Held: his principals liable to the bank for the amounts so advanced.—MAKIN & SONS v. UNION BANK, MAKIN v. CLYDESDALE BANKING CO. (1873), 45 Sc. Jur. 323.—SCOT.

658. Notice of forgery—Silence after receipt of notice—Adoption & estoppel.]—A person, who knows that a bank is relying upon his forged signature to a bill, cannot lie by & not divulge the fact until he sees that the position of the bank is altered for the worse. But there is no principle on which his mere silence for a fortnight from the time when he first knew of the forgery can be held to be an admission or adoption of liability or an estoppel.—M'KENZIE v. 659. Alteration of time of payment—Alteration after indorsement—Liability of indorsing bank.]—Defts. were in the habit of lending their name to a customer, S., by indorsing foreign bills for him, which when indorsed he sold, defts. collecting the proceeds & crediting S.'s account. S. brought defts. the first & second parts of a bill in two parts drawn by W. on Lille for 47,500 francs "at eight days' date." Both parts were fully stamped. Between the words "eight" & "days" there was a blank space in which several letters might be inserted. Defts. indorsed both parts, intending them to form one bill & returned them to S. S. sold a bill with defts.' indorsement to pliffs. through C., whom contrary to the prohibition of defts. he employed to negotiate his bills. C. delivered the second part marked "first with the drawee" to pliffs., the word "eight" having then been changed into "eighty." Defts. drew upon pliffs., received payment & placed the amount to the credit of S. Pliffs. paid on the faith of the indorsement, believing defts. were the vendors of the bill. It turned out subsequently S. had indorsed the first part with a spurious second part to R.; each part then purporting to be drawn

658 i. Notice of forgery—Silence after receipt of notice—Adoption & estoppel.]—A person, who knew that his brother-in-law was in the habit of forging his name on bills, received a notice from a bank informing him that a bill was past due on which his name appeared as an obligant, which proved to be also forged by his brother-in-law, but failed to inform the bank that his signature was a forgery for three weeks after receipt of the notice, during which time the forger absconded:—Held: he was barred from disputing his liability for the bill.—URQUHART v. BANK OF SCOTLAND (1872), 9 Sc. L. R. 508.—SCOT.

658 ii. —.].—L. forged the signature of B. per pro. deft. to two promissory notes, & discounted same with a bank, who were ignorant of the forgery, but knew that B. had deft.'s authority to sign notes. Dft., becoming aware of the forgery, in order to conceal same, at maturity paid them. Afterwards L. forged the signature of M. per pro. deft. to another note, which the bank similarly discounted, M. having succeeded B. as deft.'s agent. Before this note had matured deft. discovered the forgery, & immediately notified the bank:—

Held: deft. was not estopped from denying liability on the note on the ground that it was a forgery.—UNION BANK'S LIQUIDATORS v. BEIT (1892), 9 S. C. 109; 2 C. T. R. 67.—S. AF.

658 iii. —.].—Y., who had been in partnership with defts., but had retired from the firm & become the general manager for defts., with no power to sign drafts, drew a bill of exchange for his own private purposes in the name of defts., which was discounted by pliffs. The bill purported to be indorsed by the firm per J. M. Y., one of defts. J. M. Y. called at the bank & examined the bill carefully, & in answer to a request from the manager for a cheque he said he would send a cheque. No cheque was sent, & a few days before the bill matured the manager & solr. of the bank called to see J. M. Y., who admitted that he had promised to send a cheque & at the time he thought he would. In an action against defts. on the bill, the jury found that the signature of J. M. Y. was forged:—Held: there could be no ratification of a forgery, & pliffs. had failed to show any injury by reason of the alleged representations, which was at eighty days. The bill was dishonoured:—Held: defts. were not precluded by negligence from setting up the forgery as a defence to an action on the bill, or for the money received, because they had not received it for themselves.—SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE v. 660. Alteration in amount—Payment of increased sum by bank—Bill negligently drawn—Recovery from acceptor.]—Dft. accepted a bill of exchange, leaving spaces in the writing, which enabled a fraudulent holder to increase the amount of the bill. Pltf. bank, having paid the increased amount, sued the acceptor, alleging that he had been guilty of negligence:—Held: deft. was not guilty of any negligence entitling the bank to recover.—ADELPHI BANK v. 661. Forged promissory note—Notice to supposed maker by discounting bank—Estoppel by conduct.]—W. forged the name of E. & Co. to a promissory note dated Aug. 14, & handed it to the D. Bank on Aug. 15, & the bank on that day gave E. & Co. notice that they had received the note. In the meantime the bank had paid out part of the proceeds to W., & on Aug. 17 all but a trivial amount had been drawn out. The note fell due on Dec. 17. E. & Co., wishing apparently to screen W., did not give the bank any information that the note was forged:—Held: there was evidence on which the cts. below might fairly find that E. & Co. were estopped from denying their signature & were liable on the note.—EWING (WILLIAM) & CO. v. DOMINION BANK, [1904] A. C. 806; 74 L. J. P. C. 21, P. C.

660 i. Alteration in amount—Bona fide receipt of payment—Collecting bank not liable.]—Appls. made a draft upon their branch at M. for $25, without advice to the branch of the fact. The holder altered the amount of the draft to $5,000, & deposited it to his own credit in his banking account with resps. Resps. presented it without delay, & it was paid by the branch at M. without objection. Resps. then paid part of the proceeds to the depositor. Six days afterwards appls. discovered the fraud & demanded back the amount of the forgery:—Held: that they could not recover.—UNION BANK OF LOWER CANADA v. ONTARIO BANK (1880), 2 L. N. 132; 23 L. 662 i. Payment on forged endorsement—Bank drawers & drawees—Payment to de facto holder—Bank not liable.]—E. purchased from defts.' branch at Mauritius a bill of exchange drawn on their bank at Bombay payable on demand to pltf.'s order in Bombay, &

Defts. presented it for C. at the bank where payable, received the proceeds, & with the same opened an account for C. at their bank, of which C. availed herself. At the trial defts. tendered evidence, which was rejected, that it was the custom in similar cases to send a duplicate letter of advice by way of caution so as to prevent fraud:—Held: (1) plffs. were entitled to recover the proceeds of the draft as money received to their use or as damages for conversion; (2) there was no evidence of negligence on the part of plffs. sufficient to estop them from recovering & the evidence tendered was properly rejected.—ARNOLD v. M. had acted on occasions previous to this date as the manager of the L. office. It was the custom of M., when leaving the bank premises for a short time, to leave with the accountant blank drafts & blank letters of advice ready signed by him for use as occasion occurred. Those drafts were not destroyed after his return. On Oct. 2 defts. cashed a draft presented to them for payment for Rs.10,000 purporting to have been signed by M. Defts. had previously received a letter of advice also purporting to have been signed by M. Defts. debited plffs. with the payment. Plffs. repudiated the draft as a forgery & sued to recover Rs.10,000 from defts.:—Held: (1) plffs. not estopped from contending that the draft was not the draft of plffs.; (2) it was not incumbent on plffs. to contemplate the perpetration of such a crime as forgery or theft, & the negligent act of M. was not the proximate cause of the draft being cashed by defts., & plffs. entitled to recover.—PANJAB NATIONAL BANK, LTD. v. 667. Cheques obtained by fraud—Payable to order of non-existing person—Knowledge of drawer—Recovery from payer.]—By an elaborate system of fraud applts.' clerk obtained cheque drawn by applts. to the order of a non-existing person for work never executed & for goods never supplied. The clerk stole the cheques, forged their indorsements, & paid them to resps. for value. All the cheques were honoured by applts.' bankers. Applts. sued resps. for the amount so paid:—Held: applts. were not entitled to recover, as the cheques had been duly "issued" within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 2, & under s. 7 (3) were payable to bearer & it was not necessary that the payee should be a fictitious or non-existing person to the knowledge of the drawer.—CLUTTON v. ATTENBOROUGH & SON, [1897] A. C. 90; 66 L. J. Q. B. 221; 75 L. T. 556; 45 W. R. 276; 13 T. L. R. 114, H. L.

668. Cheque made to existing person—Indorsement forged by customer—Crediting customer & receiving proceeds—Liability of bank.]—W., by falsely representing to plff. that he had agreed to purchase from K. certain shares then held by K. in a co., & that he had arranged to resell the shares at a profit, induced plff. to agree to assist him in financing the transactions. For this purpose plff. drew a cheque on the C. Bank payable to K. or order for the amount of the purchase-money, which cheque was delivered to W. in order that he might hand it to K. in payment for the shares. W. forged K.'s indorsement to the cheque & paid it in to his own account with defts., who credited him with the amount & collected the money from the C. Bank. W. had not agreed to buy any shares from K., & K. had at the time no shares in the co.:—Held: as K. was an existing person designated by plff. & intended by him to be the payee of the cheque, the payee was not a "fictitious person" within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 7 (3), & defts. were liable to pay to plff. the amount of the cheque as damages for the conversion.—NORTH & SOUTH WALES BANK, *on banker payable to order on demand.]—*Applt., who was about to proceed from England to Sydney, obtained a draft for £30 issued in two parts & payable to his order. He retained the first of exchange in his possession & posted the second of exchange to his own address at the G.P.O., Sydney. The second of exchange was delivered at the G.P.O. to some other person, to whom the £30 was paid by the bank. The thief had presented the draft at the bank, representing himself to be the payee, & in order to prove his identity he was asked to write his signature for the purpose of comparison with a specimen signature of the payee sent to the bank by the drawers, whereupon the thief wrote his name twice on the back of the draft, & an officer of the bank then wrote his name on the draft as authority for its payment:—Held: (1) Bills of Exchange Act, 1887 (51 Vict., No. 2), s. 60, protected a banker only when a bill had been negotiated by indorsement before it came to him for payment, & the signature of the thief on the back of the draft did not relieve the bank from its liability to applt.; (2) there was no acceptance within s. 17 & Co.'s Act, 1899 (N.S.W., No. 40), s. 244. Semble: negligence per se did not disentitle the bank to the protection of s. 69.—SMITH v. 669. Drawn by branch bank—On head office—Payment by head office on forged indorsement.—T. & Co. sent to pltfs. in payment for goods a draft drawn by the Madras branch of defts. upon their head office in London. It was in the form of a first & second of exchange, both of which were posted to pltfs. The first of exchange was stolen, pltfs.' indorsement forged to it, & on presentation at defts.' head office it was paid in good faith & in the ordinary course of business. Payment of the second of exchange when presented by pltfs. was refused. Pltfs. sued to recover the amount of the draft:—Held: the bankers were not protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 60, or by Stamp Act, 1853 (c. 59), s. 19.—BROWN, BROUGH & CO. v. They were paid in for collection to applt. by a customer, who had no title to the drafts & who forged the indorsements. Applt. gave their customer immediate credit for the amounts:—Held: these drafts were not cheques within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), ss. 60, 82, nor were they within Revenue Act, 1883 (c. 55), s. 17, but applt. were protected by Stamp Act, 1852 (c. 59), s. 19, as having paid them bona fide to a holder claiming under forged indorsements.—CAPITAL & COUNTIES BANK, LTD. v. 671. Who is customer—Collection for stranger—Defect in title.—M. drew & posted a cheque on a Louth bank to F. & Co. at Manchester, payable to their order & crossed generally. The cheque, having been stolen, was presented with a forged indorsement upon it purporting to be by F. & Co. to defts.' bank at Leeds, who sent the cheque on the same day to the bank at Louth, to inquire. The Louth bank answered next day that they were ordering payment (through a clearing-house) & subsequently the thief, who had no account with defts. & who was unknown to them, came back & was paid by defts. the amount of the cheque (less 1s. for commission), & M. was debited with the amount by the Louth bank in his account with them, they having had to pay the cheque to the true owner:—Held: the thief was not a customer of defts. & they were liable for conversion of the

672. ———. ]—Defts. carried on business in London & had a branch in Paris. A cheque was drawn on defts. in London in favour of pltfs. specially indorsed by pltfs. to a firm in London & posted for collection to that firm, but it never reached them. After the posting a forged indorsement was put on the cheque, & it was presented at defts.' bank in Paris by a person, purporting to be the last indorsee, who had no account with defts. Defts. paid the cheque & sent it to their bank in London, who credited their bank in Paris with the value. The London bank refused to deliver the cheque to pltfs. The cheque, when it reached defts., was crossed generally. In an action for conversion of the cheque:—Held: (1) defts. by paying the cheque & forwarding it to their London bank, & crediting their Paris bank with the value, were guilty of a conversion of the cheque in England, & were not protected by Bills of Exchange Act, s. 82; (2) the person who obtained payment of the cheque was not a "customer" of defts. within that sect.—LACAVE & CO. v. 674. ——— Stranger opening account with cheque crossed "account payee"—Defect in title.—A cheque drawn in favour of J. & crossed "account payee only" was stolen & produced to deft. by a young man, who stated that he was J. & the payee of the cheque. He paid 10s. 6d. to have the cheque specially cleared & stated that it was given him in respect of a betting transaction, & he did not wish it to appear in his banking account at Oxford. The young man was well-dressed & well-spoken. Deft. accepted the young man's explanation & opened an account, but told him he would not be able to draw on it until the cheque was cleared. The young man signed his name in the signature book of the bank, & deft. compared it with the indorsement on the cheque, which had been forged. The cheque was cleared & the money subsequently paid out to the young man:—Held: (1) the pretended man J. was a customer when he handed the cheque to deft.; (2) deft. was guilty of negligence in opening an account with a cheque marked

675. What is payment for customer — Account overdrawn.] — Where a crossed cheque is delivered to a banker by a customer for collection, & the banker receives payment of it & places the amount to the customer's account, the fact that the customer's account is overdrawn at the time does not make such receipt of payment by the banker any the less a receipt of payment for the customer within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, or disentitle the banker to the protection of that sect.—*CLARKE v. 676. Forged indorsement—Crossing by collecting bank.] — Bankers are protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 82, only where they receive payment of a crossed cheque as agents for collection for a customer. They are not so protected when they receive payment as holders of the cheque on their own account.

Appl. banks credited a customer, who had stolen cheques & forged the indorsements, with the amounts of the cheques as soon as they were handed in to his account & allowed him to draw against the amounts so credited before the cheques were cleared:—Held: they were not protected by s. 82, & the protection given by s. 82 applied only to cheques crossed before they were received by the bankers.—*CAPITAL & COUNTIES BANK, LTD. v. 677. .] — Defts., bankers, received from their customer cheques crossed generally. These they crossed specially to other bankers, adding words directing payment to their own account. They then entered the amounts of the cheques to the credit of their customer in their own books, but not in his pass-book. They did not themselves present the cheques for payment, but handed them to the bankers to whom they had specially crossed them, who cleared the cheques, credited defts.' account with the amount, & informed defts. that they had done so. Defts. then entered the amounts of the cheques in their customer's pass-book, & allowed him to draw against them:—Held: they had merely received payment for a customer within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 82, & were protected by that enactment, although their customer, having forged the indorsements, had no title to the cheques.—*AKROKERRI (ATLANTIC) MINES, LTD. v. 678. — Crediting pass book before clearance—Receipt of payment for customer—Crossed “Account payee” — Banker.] — A banker does not lose the protection of Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 82, merely because, before a crossed cheque paid in by a customer is cleared, he makes a credit entry in the bank's books or in the pass-book not communicated to the customer. It may be negligence on the part of a banker to receive payment for a customer of a crossed cheque marked “account of payee,” where the banker has information which may lead him to think that the account into which he is paying the amount of the cheque is not the payee's account.—*BEVAN v. 679. — Cheque obtained by false pretences — Liability to true owner.] — A. obtained a cheque by false pretences & had a voidable title to it. He brought it to defts. intending, if it should be cleared, to open an account with it. At the time of its collection, A.'s title to the cheque had not been avoided:—Held: the bank were protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 82. Semble: a prospective customer, bringing a third party's cheque to open an account, is a customer within the sect.—TATE v. WILTS & DORSET BANK (1899), Journal of Institute of Bankers, Vol. XX., p. 376.

680. Crossed in blank — Bonâ fide receipt of payment—Defect in customer's title.] — Held: Crossed Cheques Act, 1876 (c. 81), s. 12, exonerated a banker from all liability to the true owner of a cheque crossed in blank,—that is, with the words “& company” or an abbreviation thereof between two parallel transverse lines, or two parallel transverse lines simply, but without the words “not negotiable.”—where the banker had bonâ fide, in the usual course of business, & without negligence, received payment of it for a customer, notwithstanding any defect in the title of the latter, whether by reason of a forgery of the indorsement or otherwise.—*MATTHIESSEN v. ## SUB-SECT. 3.—CROSSED CHEQUES.

681. What is negligence — Cheque crossed by drawer—Additional crossing by holder—Payment to collecting bank of holder.] — The crossing of a cheque payable to bearer with the name of a banker, whether made by the drawer or the bearer, does not restrict the negotiability of the cheque to such banker, or to a banker only; but is a mere memorandum that the holder is to present it for payment through some banker. Such crossing is made as a protection to the owner of the cheque; & the payment of a crossed cheque otherwise than through a banker would be strong evidence of negligence, if the party presenting the cheque proved not to be the lawful owner of it.

In an action against a banker for money lent, to which deft. pleaded payment, it appeared that pltf. had drawn on deft. a cheque & crossed it thus: "Bank of England, for account of the Accountant-General." A party to whom this cheque was given struck out the crossing by running a pen through it, leaving it however perfectly legible, & crossed the cheque a second time with the name of his own bankers, G. & Co., & paid it into their bank to the credit of his own account. The cheque, being presented by them for payment, was paid by deft., who charged it to the debit of pltf.'s account. The money was placed by G. & Co. to the credit of their principal in his account with them, & he converted the money to his own use. It appeared that the Accountant-General would not receive payment by cheque unless drawn on the Bank of England:—Held: the circumstance of the cheque being thus doubly crossed afforded no additional evidence of negligence against deft.—BELLAMY v. MARJORIBANKS (1852), 7 Exch. 389; 21 L. J. Ex. 70; 18 L. T. O. S. 277; 16 Jur. 106; 155 E. R. 999.

682. — Erasure of crossing by holder—Crossing not apparent at time of presentment.]—If the crossing on a cheque crossed by the drawer is erased by a subsequent holder, the banker on whom it is drawn is justified in paying it, though it be not presented through another banker, for 19 & 20 Vict. c. 25 gives the crossing the force of a direction to the banker to pay through another banker only when the cheque bears the crossing upon its face at the time the cheque is presented for payment.—SIMMONS v. TAYLOR (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 463; 27 L. J. C. P. 248; 30 L. T. O. S. 242; 4 Jur. N. S. 412; 6 W. R. 548; 140 E. R. 1165, Ex. Ch.

683. — Cheque crossed by payee — Receipt of payment by bona fide holder.]—The payee of a cheque drawn on defts., payable to him or his order, indorsed his name on it, & crossed it with two lines & the name of his bankers, the L. & C. Bank. The cheque was stolen, & ultimately came into the hands of a bona fide holder for value, who paid it to his bankers, the L. & W. Bank. They presented it to defts., who, notwithstanding the crossing, paid the amount. In an action by the payee to recover the amount from defts.:—Held: although by 21 & 22 Vict. c. 79, s. 2, defts. were bound to pay only through the L. & C. Bank, yet as pltf. had ceased to be holder of the cheque, he could not recover either for the breach by defts. of the duty created by the stat., or on an allegation that they had converted the cheque.—SMITH v. UNION BANK OF LONDON (1875), 1 Q. B. D. 31; 45 L. J. Q. B. 149; 33 L. T. 557; 24 W. R. 194, C. A.

684. — Giving customer immediate credit Unauthorised indorsement per procuracionem No inquiry as to authority.]—Pltfs. employed a traveller, who was to remit all cash, bills, & cheques to pltfs. every week. The traveller afterwards opened an account at defts.' bank, & paid into this account, without the sanction or knowledge of pltfs., seven cheques received by him on account of pltfs., & payable to pltfs. or order. These cheques were indorsed by the traveller "per pro. B. & Co. S." without authority. Defts., without inquiry as to the traveller's authority to indorse, & with knowledge of his position, received the cheques as cash, & placed them at once to the traveller's credit. Six of these cheques were drawn on other bankers than defts., three of these being crossed "& Co." when received by them, & three being uncrossed. These six cheques were crossed by defts. with the name of their London agents for collection. The traveller afterwards absconded with the proceeds of the cheques. In an action by pltfs. to recover the proceeds of the cheques:—Held: defts. were not protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 82, because they had not received payment "without negligence."—BISSELL & Co. v. 685. — Death of payee—Cheque paid into account of customer & not payee.]—Pltfs. drew a cheque for £800 on the S. Bank payable to "F. S. H. Esq. & others or Bearer" & crossed "account payee," & sent the cheque to N., a solr. F. S. H. had died before the cheque was issued. N. paid the cheque to defts., who collected it for him & credited his account with the proceeds. N. drew out the money & absconded:—Held: defts. were put on inquiry as to the customer's authority to receive payment on his own account of a cheque so drawn, & having made no inquiry, were guilty of conversion.—HOUSE PROPERTY CO. OF LONDON v. LONDON COUNTY & WESTMINSTER BANK (1915), 84 L. J. K. B. 1846; 113 L. T. 817; 31 T. L. R. 479.

686. — Defective title of customer — Receipt of payment for customer — Remittance after receipt.]—T., a cattle dealer, sold cattle & received in payment three cheques which were sent to S. at Hamburg. In due course the cheques were sent over to defts. for collection on June 24, 1886. They were all drawn on the J. S. Bank in favour of T. or bearer, & crossed, & were dated June 17. Defts. at once indorsed them, & sent one of their clerks to present them for payment, but they were dishonoured, & when they were presented for payment at the offices of the drawers they all refused to pay them, their reason being that between the time of giving them to T. & their presentation they had discovered that T. had perpetrated a fraud upon them in the matter of the cattle. This fact was not known at this date by defts. On June 30 O., the agent of S., sent the cheques back to defts., with a request that they would take steps to enforce their payment, stating that S. & the second indorsers had paid value for them. On July 2 defts. wrote to O. requesting that he would have the cheques indorsed to them & the existing indorsements cancelled. This was done, & defts. obtained payment from the drawers, & on Nov. 1 paid the proceeds over to O. T. had been made a bkpt. on June 22. In an action by the trustee to recover the proceeds of such cheques evidence was given that it was the ordinary custom among London bankers, when collecting cheques from abroad, in cases of such being dishonoured at once to send them back, & that it would be a most unusual thing to have them re-indorsed to themselves for the purpose of putting them in a position legally to enforce payment, & so collect the proceeds:—Held: the manner in which defts. had collected the cheques was most unusual & quite out of the ordinary custom of London bankers, & they had no right to pay the money over to O. as they had, & pltf. was entitled to judgment.—GILLESPIE v. INTERNATIONAL BANK OF LONDON, LTD. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 322.

687. — Knowledge of bank.]—A cheque for £542 was drawn in favour of pltf., or order, & crossed generally. Pltf.'s secretary, M., indorsed the cheque with the name of pltf., followed by his own name, & the word "secretary," & without the authority of pltf., paid the cheque into his account at defts.' bank for collection. Defts. knew that pltf. had an account of their own at another London bank & that M. was their secretary. M. had never previously paid into his own account a cheque drawn in favour of pltf. Defts., without making any inquiry as to M.'s authority to deal with the cheque, placed the amount to his credit, & collected the proceeds from the paying bank:—Held: defts. had not acted without negligence, & were liable to pltf. for the amount of the cheque.

The words "without any negligence" mean without want of reasonable care in reference to the interests of the true owner, the principal whose authority the customer purports to have (KENNEDY, J.).—HANNAN'S LAKE VIEW CENTRAL, LTD. v. ARMSTRONG & CO. (1900), 16 T. L. R. 236; 5 Com. Cas. 188.

688. — Forged indorsement.]—Defts. specially collected for their customer, A., three cheques drawn by pltf. which were crossed & marked not negotiable & were payable respectively to the order of V., W., & K. The cheques had been stolen in the post before they reached the payees. The indorsements were forged, & two of them were in the same handwriting, although the payees were different persons:—Held: defts. had been guilty of negligence & pltf. was entitled to recover the value of the cheques.—TURNER v. LONDON & PROVINCIAL BANK, LTD. (1903), Journal of Institute of Bankers, Vol. XXIV., p. 220.

689. — Cheques signed per procuracionem.]—A series of cheques crossed "not negotiable" & drawn in favour of a person other than the customer was paid by the customer into his banking account with defts., the indorsements being forged. Two of the cheques were signed "per pro." pltf. by a person having authority to draw cheques for him:—Held: (1) the fact that the cheques were crossed "not negotiable" & drawn in favour of a person other than the customer did not impose an obligation on defts. to make inquiry so as to make them negligent in receiving the cheques & crediting their customer's account therewith; (2) the fact that some of the cheques were signed "per pro." pltf. merely operated as a notice that the drawer of the cheques had a limited right to sign them.—CRUMPLIN v. LONDON JOINT STOCK BANK, LTD. (1913), 109 L. T. 856; 30 T. L. R. 99; 19 Com. Cas. 69.

690. — Fraud of agent — Acquiescence of principal.]—Pltf. authorised A. to draw cheques for the purposes of his business on the banking account of B. M. & Co., & to sign them in his (A.'s) name "per pro. B. M. & Co."; & he gave directions to his bankers to honour cheques so drawn. A. opened a private banking account with defts. without pltf.'s knowledge & from May, 1907, to Nov., 1911, paid into that account fifty cheques, which he had drawn & when necessary, indorsed by means of the "per pro." signature in fraud of pltf. They were collected by defts. & the proceeds credited to A.'s account. Two were open cheques; the others were crossed generally or specially. Pltf. discovered the frauds in 1912. One of the cheques was made payable to defts. or order & indorsed by their manager:—Held: (1) in regard to crossed cheques collected after the first year or two, defts., having during one or two years collected cheques for A. without any protest from pltf., were justified in assuming that A. was acting within his authority & were protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, as having acted without negligence; (2) upon the facts, in regard to cheques collected during the first year or two defts. were not liable because pltf. had subsequently, either himself or through his accountants, ratified the acts of A.; (3) it was no objection that the bank were the nominal payees of one of the cheques.—MORISON v. LONDON COUNTY & WESTMINSTER BANK, LTD., [1914] 3 K. B. 356; 83 L. J. K. B. 1202; 111 L. T. 114; 30 T. L. R. 481; 58 Sol. Jo. 453; 19 Com. Cas. 273, C. A.

691. — Collection for stranger.]—A crossed cheque drawn on a London bank & specially indorsed to pltf. by the payee was posted at Barcelona to them at Paris. Pltf. were the bankers of the payee. In the course of transmission to Paris the cheque was stolen. Four days after it was posted a stranger produced the cheque at defts.' bank at Paris, & requested them to forward it to London for collection there from the London bank. The cheque at that time bore the stranger's name as special indorsee in place of that of pltf., which had been obliterated & also bore the indorsement of the stranger. Defts. forwarded the cheque to their agents in London for collection, & on receiving a telegram from the agents that the cheque had been honoured, paid the amount to the stranger in Paris. Defts. made a charge for the transaction:—Held: (1) by the indorsement & posting of the cheque pltf. acquired a good title to it, & could maintain an action in their own names against a wrong-doer or person without title; (2) there had been a conversion in London by defts. when the amount of the cheque was received from the London bankers on whom it was drawn, & pltf. were entitled to recover from defts. the amount of the cheque.—KLEINWORT, SONS & CO. v. COMPTOIR NATIONAL D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS, [1894] 2 Q. B. 157; 63 L. J. Q. B. 674; 10 T. L. R. 424; 10 R. 259.

692. — Discounting for stranger — Forged indorsement.]—A crossed cheque, drawn on London bankers, payable to order of W. on demand, was sent by post to W. at Liverpool. It was lost or stolen in its transit. W. telegraphed its non-arrival to the drawer, who did not stop payment. The cheque was presented to a banker & money-changer at Liverpool to be cashed, with W.'s name indorsed, & the banker, after some questions, agreed to cash it, & told the person who brought it to call in a day or two for the money. The cheque was then forwarded to London & duly honoured. The Liverpool banker then handed over the money, less commission, to the person who brought him the cheque. It turned out that the indorsement of W.'s name was a forgery:—Held: although the London bankers were protected against the forged indorsement of W.'s name by Stamp Act, 1853 (c. 59), s. 19, the Liverpool banker who discounted it was not, & pltf. might recover the amount from him, he having received the amount & paid it away without lawful authority.—OGDEN v. #### SUB-SECT. 4.—PAYMENT OF ORDERS WITH RECEIPT ATTACHED.

693. Conditional on payee signing receipt—Customer credited—Defect in customer's title—Conversion.]—Defts., a bank, received for collection for a customer an order in the following form: "Pay to J. Bavins, junr., & Sims the sum of £69 7s. 0d. provided the receipt form at foot hereof is duly signed, stamped, & dated. Received the above-named sum as per particulars furnished. This receipt is not to be detached from the cheque." The document was the property of plffs. & had been stolen from them. An indorsement, appearing to be "J. Bavins, Trench & Sims," had been forged thereon & the receipt was signed in the same way. Defts. collected the sum mentioned in the document from the paying bank & credited their customer therewith:—Held: the document not being an unconditional order to pay, was not a cheque within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, s. 82, & defts. had been guilty of negligence in dealing with the document, inasmuch as the name of the payees was incorrectly given in the indorsement & receipt, & defts. were not protected from liability by s. 82, as amended, & applied to such documents by Revenue Act, 1883 (c. 55), s. 17, even assuming the latter Act applied to such a document.—BAVINS, JUNR. & SIMS v. A. became a lunatic, but the account continued to be kept with his family, & in the pass-book, the entries in which were in B.'s handwriting, a balance was stated to the credit of A.:—Held: this was not evidence to support a count on an account stated with A., in an action brought by his representative against B., to recover the amount of such balance.—TARBUCK v. Entries on one side only—Pass-book kept by customer without objection—Settled accounts.]—A pass-book delivered to a customer, in which there are entries on one side only, is not evidence of a settled account between the banker & the customer, although the customer keeps the book without making any objection to the entries in it.—Re HOBSON, Ex p. RANDLESON (1833), 2 Deac. & Ch. 534, Ct. of R.

701. Returned without objection—Customer debited with forgeries—Estoppel.]—Pltf. sued to recover over £500, being the aggregate amount of about twenty-five forged cheques paid by defts. between Sept. 27, 1887, & Aug. 20, 1888. The cheques in question were forged by N., a confidential clerk of pltf. It was the practice of pltf. to have his pass-book in once a week or a fortnight. On these occasions he went through the pass-book with the assistance of N., who read out entries or what purported to be entries from a ledger. Pltf. ticked each item in the pass-book, including those which referred to the forged cheques. Pltf. never looked at the returned cheques, & the forged cheques were apparently abstracted from the pass-book before it reached pltf.'s hands. The pass-book was returned periodically to defts., who continued to pay similar forgeries. There was no evidence that defts. had in fact been misled by the ticks :—Held : pltf. entitled to judgment.—

four entries in the trustees' pass-book of sums paid in had no corresponding entries in the bank ledger. All the entries in the pass-book were initialled by the agent himself, & not by the bank teller, as was the usual course with such entries, & two of the four entries had also the forged initials of the bank cheque clerk. The other, like the rest of the entries, had only the initials of the agent, who kept the pass-book in his custody. The agent had also annually signed dockets in the bank ledger as "factor," certifying the correctness of the balance as appearing in the bank ledger. In an action by the trustees against the bank for payment of the sums as entered in their pass-book :—Held : the money had never been paid into the bank, & consequently, that the bank were not liable.—DOLLAR OR COUPER (COUPER'S TRUSTEES) v. Pltf., before bringing his action, had called on defts. to produce the cheque, but this they had failed to do, & they admitted the cheque had been mislaid, but sought to prove that the cheque was drawn by pltf. & paid by themselves :—Held : although, on the evidence, pltf. had been careless he ought not to be made answerable for defts.' carelessness in mislaying the cheque, & defts. liable.—FOURNIER v. UNION BANK (1873), Steph. Q. Dig., Vol. II., 99, 100, 101 (22).—CAN.

l. C. & F. carried on business in partnership as B. Coal Co., but that fact was not known to defts., bankers. F. had an account with defts. & the pass-book was headed "F. B. C. C." Moneys belonging to the co. were paid into this account from time to time. In an action by C. & F. for money lent, etc., pltf. were nonsuited, on the ground that there was no evidence of a joint contract :—Held : there was evidence to go to the jury that F. opened the account for both pltf. s.—COOKE v. 703. Receipt & return by customer—Entries debiting forged bills—Negligence of customer.]—A clerk of resps. from time to time forged bills of exchange purporting to be drawn by V. to the order of P. as payee, & by fraud obtained the genuine acceptances of resps. to these documents. He forged the indorsement of P. as payee, & obtained payment from applts. across the counter. The amounts paid in respect of the forged bills were debited to resps. in their pass-book & the forged bills were returned to & retained by them. It was apparent on the face of the returned bills that they had been paid over the counter. On each occasion when forged bills reached the bank for payment

& the customer thereby suffered loss. The customer had no knowledge of the method adopted by the bank in dealing with his agent, but he received his pass-book & vouchers from time to time, & upon a careful examination he would have been able to discover the method of dealing in time to have stopped such dealings in the transactions through which he suffered loss. He did not examine the vouchers, & signed & returned statements acknowledging that the balance & entries were correct :—Held : the customer was not estopped through his conduct or on account of the statements appearing from the vouchers & pass-book, & the bank was liable for the damages suffered by its customer.—BURKE (EDWARD & JOHN), LTD. v. Subsequently the cheque was dishonoured :—Held : (1) the returning of the pass-book & the noting & initialling of the entry of Rs.9,500 therein was a representation by the bank that it had received payment of the cheque & was prepared to give pltf. credit for the amount ; (2) the bank was not estopped by the entry in the pass-book from alleging the non-payment of the cheque.—MOWJI SHAMJI v. 704. Entries debiting forged cheques—Settled account.—The secretary of a co. forged the signatures of certain of the directors to a number of cheques purporting to be drawn on behalf of the co., & obtained payment thereof from the co.'s bankers. In an action by the co. claiming to recover from the bank the amount so paid, none of the bank's cashiers or officers were called to show that they had been misled into paying any of the cheques by any conduct of the co. or to show what induced them to pay the cheques:—Held: (1) the fact that the directors of the co. had not regularly examined the co.'s finance book & pass-book during the period within which the forgeries were committed did not preclude the co. from recovering; (2) the fact that the pass-book had been returned to the bank without objection being taken by the co., who at the time had no knowledge of the forgeries, did not constitute a settled account between the bank & the co.—KEPITIGALLA RUBBER ESTATES, LTD. v. 705. Estoppel.—Pltfs., solrs., kept a trust account with defts. This account was looked after by a clerk. In Mar., 1910, in Aug., 1911, & in Aug., 1912, the clerk forged three cheques drawn on the account, which were paid. The customer did not examine the pass-book between Mar., 1910, & Dec., 1912; but it was made up & returned periodically. Pltfs. sued for the amount of the forged cheques as money lent:—Held: the fact that the customer did not examine his pass-book when it was periodically returned to him did not preclude him from recovering the amounts paid on the forged cheques, although such cheques were debited to his account in the pass-book.—WALKER v. MANCHESTER & LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANKING CO., LTD. (1913), 108 L. T. 728; 29 T. L. R. 492; 57 Sol. Jo. 478.

706. Entry of charges by bank—Agreement—Acquiescence of customer.—Pltfs., bankers, charged defts. interest with half-yearly rests in accordance with their general practice. Defts. by themselves, their clerk or solr., were in the habit of taking their banking book to pltfs. to have the account made up; & no objection was ever made by defts. to the charges for compound interest:—Held: defts. having assented to that mode of keeping the accounts, it was not unlawful on the ground of usury.—EATON v. BELL (1821), 5 B. & Ald. 34; 106 E. R. 1106.

707. —————A banking account, which was largely overdrawn, was for the half-year ending June, 1867, charged with interest at 5 per cent., & with a gross sum of £500 for commission, in lieu of the charge of  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. previously made. The pass-book balanced on this footing was sent to the customer, & the charges were explained to his agent (the customer himself being in weak health, & unable to attend to business matters). Afterwards the pass-book was made up several times at the request of customer's agent. The customer, who died in Dec., 1867, had not raised any objection to the charges:—Held: the charge of £500 for commission had been acquiesced in, & was valid for the half-year ending June, 1867, but acquiescence could not be inferred for subsequent half-years, since it was unusual to charge at a lower or higher rate according to the amount of business done.—WILLIAMSON v. WILLIAMSON (1869), L. R. 7 Eq. 542; 20 L. T. 389.

708. —————Pltf. in 1874 obtained an advance from defts., bankers, upon security. Defts. issued a pass-book to pltf., in which they made half-yearly rests & entered charges for "interest & commission." Pltf. from time to time paid in sums to the credit of the account, but never drew on it. The pass-book was from time to time received by pltf. & on two occasions he wrote to defts. acknowledging the accounts to be correct. In Dec., 1884, pltf. paid the balance appearing in the pass-book to be due to defts. & closed the account. Two years later pltf. sued defts. to recover the sum of £95, being the aggregate amount of the commissions charged, on the ground that commission was not chargeable on a single advance with gradual repayments:—Held: pltf. had assented to the accounts & had no cause of action.—SPENCER v. 711. Evidence of agreement—Acquiescence of customer.]—H. & C., who carried on business in partnership, were indebted to R., their banker, to the amount, as admitted by H., of £979. In 1851 R., with the concurrence of H., transferred his business to the M. Bank, including the account in question. The partnership account of H. & C. with the M. Bank commenced with this item of £979, & continued open for a considerable time, during which H. paid in moneys to an amount exceeding the sum of £979. The pass-book was regularly sent to H. The deed transferring the business from R. to the M. Bank contained a provision, "That at the expiration of twelve months, as to such accounts as should not be taken to by the M. Bank, the M. Bank should, during a period not exceeding ten years, either accept or compel payment, or permit same to remain due, & should be possessed of all moneys paid in discharge of such accounts in trust for R." In 1852 the M. Bank gave notice to R. that they would not take to this account. An action having been brought by the M. Bank against H. & C. to recover the balance due:—Held: the debt of £979 was extinguished by the payments subsequently made by H. to the credit of the partnership account, & the assent to the appropriation to be inferred from H. not objecting to the pass-book, & after such extinguishment, as between the M. Bank & the partnership, the account could not be treated as an existing debt remaining due to R.—BEALE v. CAD-DICK (1857), 2 H. & N. 326; 26 L. J. Ex. 356; 29 L. T. O. S. 355; 157 E. R. 135.

binding on bank.]—Bankers who knowingly credit a customer with moneys which they have not received, so as to lead the customer to believe that the moneys have been received, cannot revoke the credit.

Bankers were employed by P. to purchase annuities, which they collected for P. & deft., his exor., charging a commission of 2½ per cent. The bankers acted for many other grantees of annuities & also for some of the grantors, & in their own books they entered on the credit side of the accounts of the grantees & on the debit side of the accounts of the respective grantors the instalments of annuities from time to time as they thought fit, but not always at the precise periods when they became payable. Deft. had a pass-book, which from time to time he left with the bankers to be made up, & balances were struck in it at the times of making up the pass-book. No accounts were settled between the bankers & defts., except by such making up the pass-book & returning it with the balances struck therein. The bankers became bkpt. & an action was brought by their assignees to recover an alleged balance of moneys advanced by the bankers, a part of such balance arising upon the account stated in the pass-book by withdrawing from the credit side thereof several sums in respect of an annuity which had been entered without being received. The bankers had received certain rents upon which the annuity was secured, but in keeping their account with P. & deft. they did not enter the rents received or the outgoings, but credited the instalments of the annuity & charged commission. The bankers kept a distinct account of rents & outgoings in their own books, but deft. had no notice of this account. A sum of £363 was in this way credited to deft. in excess of the moneys actually received:—Held: the bankers having given credit for £363 with knowledge that the moneys had not been received & without informing deft. of that fact, the assignees could not compel deft. to refund the amount.—SHAW v. PICTON (1825), 4 B. & C. 715; 7 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 201; 4 L. J. O. S. K. B. 29; 107 E. R. 1226.

715. — Customer debited on non-receipt—No objection by customer—Revocation of credit.]—Bankers were employed to collect annuities for deft., to whom a pass-book was delivered, which was made up & balanced from time to time. No accounts were settled between the parties except by the making up of the pass-book & striking balances therein. Deft. was credited with instalments of the annuities & debited with 2½ per cent. commission thereon. In respect of G.'s annuity deft. was credited with £144 ("not yet received"), & debited with the commission thereon. In respect of W.'s annuity deft. was credited at various times with five quarterly payments amounting to £188 15s. & debited with the commission, a balance being struck on each occasion. The moneys had not been received from the grantor of the annuity. Deft. was subsequently debited with £188 15s., but there was no evidence of any specific assent thereto on his part. Deft. afterwards sued W. for arrears of the annuity, including £151 (four quarters) part of the £188 15s. above mentioned. In respect of M.'s annuity deft. was credited with £100 & debited with commission. Subsequently he was debited with the same £100 & credited with the commission.

The bankers had not received the £100 from M. A balance was struck in the pass-book on two or three occasions after entry of the debit & the pass-book was returned by debt. to the bankers without objection:—Held: (1) debt. could not retain the credit in respect of G.'s annuity, as he knew it had not been received; (2) on the evidence debt. had assented to the debits in respect of W.'s annuity to the extent of four quarterly payments only; (3) on the evidence debt. had assented to the debit in respect of M.'s annuity.—SHAW v. DARTNALL (1826), 6 B. & C. 56; 9 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 54; 5 L. J. O. S. K. B. 35; 108 E. R. 373.

716. Cheque credited before clearance—Evidence of receipt of proceeds.]—A bank had agreed with pltf. that they would cash their cheques & discount their bills in consideration of pltf. keeping a balance of £100 at the bank. On a certain Saturday morning the balance was slightly below the £100, but in the course of the day pltf. paid in a cheque for £150; this, however, as debts. alleged, was after the walking clerk had gone to the clearing-house. On the Monday morning, before the walking clerk had returned from the clearing-house, a cheque drawn by pltf. for £17 10s. was presented for payment by the person in whose favour it had been drawn, but was returned to him indorsed "effects not cleared." Somewhere about this time, but whether before or after the cheque was presented was not proved, one of pltf. came to the bank & called for the pass-book of the firm, & saw an entry crediting them with £150 (cash). In an action against the bank for not cashing the cheque:—Held: these facts showed some evidence to go to the jury that the bank were in possession of funds, & a non-suit ought to be set aside & the case sent back for trial.—BRANSBY v. EAST LONDON BANK (1866), 14 L. T. 403; 14 W. R. 652.

717. — Customer not advised—Right to draw against credit.]—Giving immediate credit in the pass-book for cheques before clearance does not of itself, if the entries have not been communicated to the customer, entitle him to draw against the cheques.—*BEVAN v. 718. If the cheque had been presented by resps. on the same day it would have been paid. But in the ordinary course of business resps. paid the cheque to their bank, & before it was presented the bank on which the cheque was drawn became insolvent:—Held: the cheque was accepted by resps. as the agents of appl., & not with the intention of acquiring title to it or gratuitously guaranteeing its payment, & the loss fell on appl.—GADEN v. NEW-FOUNDLAND SAVINGS BANK, [1899] A. C. 281; 68 L. J. P. C. 57; 80 L. T. 329; 15 T. L. R. 228, P. C.

SUB-SECT. 3.—ERRONEOUS ENTRIES.

719. Alteration by bank—Alleged correction of mistake—Statement by bank clerk—Evidence.]—Pltf. sued debts., bankers, to recover £50, the alleged balance of his account. His servant proved paying in £81 10s. by a cheque for £31 10s. & £50 in cash, the clerk entering £81 10s. to the credit of pltf. in a pass-book which he always sent when he paid in money. Several months later, when more money was paid in, the clerks altered the entry of £81 10s. to £31 10s., saying they had made what was wrong right. Pltf. called & asked a clerk whether they had made the alteration & why:—Held: the clerk's answer to the effect that no cash had been paid in was admissible in evidence against the bankers.—PRICE v. MARSH (1823), 1 C. & P. 60, N. P.

720. Wrong double entry by bank—Right to rectify.]—Resp. had been a customer of the C. Bank for some years prior to 1855 & had been supplied with the usual pass-book. The account between him & the bank was balanced on Oct. 31 in each year. Resp. alleged that from Oct. 31, 1854, to July 21, 1855, his payments to the bank amounted to £683 3s. 4d., while the sums received by him from the bank during the same period amounted to no more than £616 14s. 6d., leaving a balance in his favour of £66 8s. 10d. In his pass-book were entered the various payments & receipts occurring between him & the bank, the payments into the bank being acknowledged by the agent & accountant of the bank appending their initials opposite to the sums so entered. The bank alleged that there was a double entry on June 6, 1855, of the sum of £80 credited to resp. on the preceding day, namely, June 5, which by mistake was twice entered to his credit in the pass-book by the bank accountant:—Held: the entries in the pass-book were only prima facie evidence against the bank & it was open to the bank to show that the double entry was erroneous.—COMMERCIAL BANK OF SCOTLAND v. RHIND (1860), 3 Macq. 643, H. L.

721. Mistake in calculating interest—No objection by customer—Reopening account.]—If in a pass-book a clerk by error calculates the interest at a wrong rate & the customer allows it to pass, believing it to be the right rate, that is a mistake which is remediable by reopening the account.—ADAMS v. ASTON (1859), 1 F. & F. 604.

722. Customer overcredited—Right to draw against.]—Pltf., a customer of debts., finding on examining his pass-book that it showed a balance of £70 17s. 9d. in his favour, drew a cheque for £67 11s. in favour of a firm to whom he owed that amount. On the cheque being presented by that firm, it was dishonoured by debts., whereby pltf. suffered damage, in respect of which he sued debts. From the evidence it appeared that at the time pltf. drew the cheque for £67 11s. he had a balance at the bank of £60 5s. 9d. only, but that in his pass-book one of the bank clerks had, in error, entered to pltf.'s credit a sum of £10 12s. twice, with the result that from the pass-book pltf. appeared to be in credit to the amount of £70 17s. 9d.:—Held: although debts. were entitled to have the wrong entry ultimately corrected, pltf. (who had not been guilty of any negligence or fraud in connection with the matter) was entitled, until that correction had been made, to act upon debts.' statements in the pass-book, & having acted upon those statements & suffered damage thereby, he was entitled to recover against debts. the amount of such damage.—HOLLAND v. MANCHESTER & LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANKING CO., LTD. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 386; 14 Com. Cas. 241.

SECT. 14.—REMITTANCES TO BANK TO MEET ACCEPTANCES.

723. Bills deposited with country bank to meet acceptances—Remittances forwarded to London firm—Specific appropriation—Failure of bank & firm.]

—A., B., C. & D. were partners in a banking house at Liverpool, & C. & D. also carried on a separate mercantile business in London. S. having accepted bills payable at the house of C. & D., employed A., B., C. & D. to get them paid, & agreed to deposit with them good bills indorsed by him for the purpose of enabling them to do so. A., B., C. & D. debited S. in account for his acceptances & credited him for all the bills deposited. Some of the bills deposited by S. were remitted by A., B., C. & D. to C. & D. upon the general account between the two houses, & before any of the acceptances of S. became due both houses failed, & S. was obliged to pay his own acceptances:—Held: (1) the assignees of C. & D. were entitled to retain the bills remitted to them; (2) it made no difference that one of the bills did not arrive in London until after the bkpcy. of C. & D. though sent by A., B., C. & D. before that event.—BOLTON v. FULLER (1796), 1 Bos. & P. 539; 126 E. R. 1053.

724. — Bills sent to London agents—Specific appropriation—Failure of country bank.]—Customers of country bankers paid into the bankers a sum of money in bank-notes, & also some bills of exchange to be remitted to London in order to meet certain acceptances. The bankers sent to their London agents the bills & some bank-notes, with a letter directing them to pay a certain sum of money, also giving them notice of the acceptances as payable at their bank, & giving directions as to other business. The country bankers stopped payment, owing a large balance to the London bankers:—Held: as between the country customers & the London bankers, there was no appropriation of the bills & notes to meet the acceptances, & the London bankers could retain the bills & notes without meeting the acceptances.—JOHNSON v. ROBERTS (1875), 10 Ch. App. 505; 44 L. J. Ch. 678; 33 L. T. 138; 23 W. R. 763, L.JJ.

725. Bills remitted to meet bills drawn on & accepted by bank—Misappropriation—Bankruptcy of bank—Right to remitted bills with bank.]—B. was in the habit of drawing bills on H. & Co., bankers, & of remitting bills to them to an amount fully sufficient to meet their acceptances. H. & Co. became bkpt. At that time there were in the hands of holders for value undue bills to a large amount drawn by B. upon H. & Co., & accepted by them, but H. & Co. had misappropriated the greater part of the bills remitted to meet them:—Held: B. could not claim to have returned to him such of the remitted bills as remained in the hands of H. & Co. at the time of their bkpcy., but they must be applied so far as they would extend in payment of the bills accepted by H. & Co.—Re HARRISON, Ex p. CARRICK (1858), 2 De G. & J. 208; 44 E. 726. Remittances sent from abroad to cover drafts on firm—Advances to be repaid out of remittances from abroad—Bankruptcy of firm.]—Pltfs., bankers at L., established a credit agency with the G. Co. in London, & agreed to send remittances within ninety days to cover drafts. The G. Co., being in difficulties, obtained an advance of money from the P.

Bank, to be repaid out of expected remittances from the L. Bank to cover bills then current, & the P. Bank employed as agents to receive & select from the expected securities the managing director of the G. Co. & their own managing director, who had been, two years previously, the manager of the G. Co., & was cognisant of & party to the arrangement with the L. Bank. The securities were selected by & handed over to the P. Bank upon their arrival, & the following day the G. Co. stopped payment & was wound up:—Held: the L. Bank had no title to recover the securities from the P. Bank.—BANCO DE LIMA v. ANGLO-PERUVIAN BANK (1878), 8 Ch. D. 160; 38 L. T. 130.

727. Acceptance of bill payable at bank—Bill lodged with bank for payment—Payment by acceptor—Right of bank to apply to debt from acceptor.]—P. accepted a bill payable at defts.' banking house. Plt. was holder of the bill & lodged it with defts. for payment. When the bill became due, P.'s clerk went to defts. & told them that he had brought the money to take up the bill, & laid the money down on the counter & demanded the bill. Defts. took the money, but did not deliver up the bill or pay plt. but applied the money in satisfaction of a debt due to themselves from P.:—Held: defts. had received the money for the use of pltfs.—*DE BERNALES v. 728. Payment of money into bank to meet bill—Death of acceptor—Right of bank to retain for debt from acceptor.]—A. having accepted a bill of exchange, paid money into his bank upon the express understanding that it was to be applied in taking up the bill at maturity. A. suddenly died before the bill fell due, & the bank retained the money in satisfaction of moneys owing to them upon A.'s general account. The bill was returned dishonoured to the drawers, who thereupon sued the bank for the amount:—Held: there was no privity to sustain the suit.—HILL v. ROYDS (1869), L. R. 8 Eq. 290; 38 L. J. Ch. 538; 20 L. T. 842.

729. — Specific appropriation—Dishonour of bill—Money returned to acceptor.]—A., an acceptor of a bill payable at his London bankers, remitted them funds to pay it, or take it up if overdue, which last being the case, the bankers called on the holders, intending to take it up, but finding the bill had been sent back to Ireland as dishonoured, they remitted the money back to the acceptor, & upon a subsequent presentment of the bill, refused payment:—Held: this was not such a specific appropriation of the money, as to render the bankers liable to the holder for the amount remitted.—STEWART v. FRY (1817), 1 Moore, C. P. 74; 7 Taunt. 339; 129 E. R. 136.

730. Dishonour of bill—Remittance by acceptor to pay bill—Refusal to pay bill.]—A bill of exchange, payable at the house of defts., had been there presented & dishonoured, & the acceptor afterwards remitted to defts. a sum of money for the purpose of enabling them to pay the dishonoured bill, & also another of less value. Defts. in answer stated the fact of the bill having been dishonoured, but added that the money received should be carried to the acceptor's account. Defts. afterwards paid the smaller bill but refused to pay that of pltf. :—Held : pltf. could not sue defts., there being no privity between them.—YATES v. BELL (1820), 3 B. & Ald. 643 ; 106 E. R. 796.

731. Bill payable at correspondents'—Payment of money to bank to meet bill—Amount credited to acceptor in bank books—Correspondents not advised.]—The acceptor of a bill paid money to his bankers, defts. (at whose correspondents' house it was payable), for the purpose of taking up that & other bills, & they promised him to apply it to such purposes, & entered the particular bill to their credit in their books, but it did not appear that they had advised their correspondents to pay it :—Held : the drawer, the holder of the bill, could not sue the bankers for the amount of the bill, there being no privity to sustain the action.—MOORE v. BUSHELL (1857), 27 L. J. Ex. 3.

732. ——— Liability of bank.]—A. paid to a banking co. a sum of money, for the specific purpose of providing for a bill of exchange, for that amount, drawn by A. upon the co.'s London bankers. A. was at that time indebted in a larger amount to the co., who, instead of applying the money according to his instructions, placed it to the credit of his account with them. The bill was refused acceptance, & while it remained unpaid in the hands of the holder A. became bkpt. :—Held : his assignees were entitled to recover from the co., in a special action of assumpsit, the whole amount of the bill.—HILL v. SMITH (1844), 12 M. & W. 618 ; 13 L. J. Ex. 243 ; 2 L. T. O. S. 424 ; 8 Jur. 179 ; 152 E. R. 1346.

733. ——— Money remitted by indorser to meet bill—Money applied by mistake in payment of another bill.]—Pltf. having indorsed a bill drawn by C. for £130 payable at A. & Co.'s, & finding that it would not be honoured by the acceptor, paid in this sum of money to the bankers for the purpose of retaining it. Def. held another bill of exchange for the same sum, accepted by the same person, due the same day, & payable at the same place. The latter bill being presented for payment first, & no funds being provided to pay it, the banker's clerk, by mistake, gave def. the £130 paid in by pltf. :—Held : pltf.'s remedy was against the bankers & he could not maintain an action against def. to recover the money.—ROGERS v. KELLY (1809), 2 Camp. 123, N. P.

734. Remittance under mistake—Liability to refund.]—Applt., who lived in England, had a standing arrangement with a firm of bankers in New York, in virtue of which they were to honour the drafts of a co. carrying on business in Mexico, in which applt. was interested, up to £500, applt. agreeing to put them in funds by paying that amount from time to time to their account at resps.' bank in London. On Oct. 21, 1907, the New York firm wrote to applt. informing him that the Mexican Co. had been credited with £500 & requesting him to pay that amount to their account with resps. On receipt of this letter on Oct. 29 applt. paid £500 to resps. to the credit of the New York firm. On Oct. 30 the New York firm became bkpt., & applt., on becoming aware of this fact on Oct. 31, immediately applied to resps. for the repayment of the £500. Resps. claimed a right to retain it in reduction of the indebtedness of the New York firm to them :—Held : the money had been paid under a mistake of fact as to the true position of the New York firm & resps.

had no better right to retain the money than their principals would have had, if it had been paid over to them.—KERRISON v. GLYN, MILLS, CURRIE & Co. (1911), 81 L. J. K. B. 465 ; 105 L. T. 721 ; 28 T. L. R. 106 ; 56 Sol. Jo. 139 ; 17 Com. Cas. 41, H. L.

735. Remittances with instructions to pay creditors—Refusal of payment by bank—Rights of creditors.]—K., residing abroad, remitted bills on England to defts., his bankers in London, with directions in the letters inclosing such bills to pay the amount, in certain specified proportions, to pltf. & other creditors of K., who would produce their letters of advice from him on the subject. Before the bills became due pltf. gave notice to defts. that he had received a letter from K., ordering payment of his debt out of that remittance, & offered them an indemnity if they would hand over one of the bills to him, but defts. refused to indorse the bill away, or to act upon the letter, but admitted they had received the directions to apply the money, defts. in fact afterwards received the money on the bills when due :—Held : (1) they did not by the mere act of receiving the bills & afterwards the produce of them, with such directions, & without any assent on their part to the purport of the letter, & still more against their express dissent, bind themselves to pltf. so to apply the money in discharge of the debt due to him from K., & pltf. (between whom & defts. there was no privity of contract, express or implied) could not maintain an action against defts. for money had & received by them to his use ; (2) the property in the bills & their produce still continued in the remitter.—*WILLIAMS v. 736. ———.]—A general remittance to bankers, to whom the remitter is indebted, accompanied by a letter requesting them to pay certain specific sums to particular persons, not expressly out of the sum remitted, does not so fix the bankers as to give the persons, to whom such sums were so directed to be paid, a right of action against them for money had & received without an assent on their part to such an appropriation of the money remitted. tances of bills without any bills of lading attached. Defts. charged K. a commission. The credit was subsequently divided into two accounts; account A. being for drafts against simultaneous remittances & account B. for drafts against shipping documents. After the separate accounts were opened K. drew upon & made remittances to defts. in respect of each account, & K. inclosed each remittance in a letter specifying, almost invariably, the account to which it was to be credited, & each draft was notified by a letter specifying the account to which it was to be debited. Defts., in reply to such letters, notified the remittances & drafts to have been credited or debited to the respective accounts as directed. K. forwarded to defts. two bills on mercantile firms & advised two drafts at sixty days upon defts. By a letter inclosing the bills & advising the drafts K. directed defts. to place the bills to K.'s credit, & the drafts to their debit, in account A. Before defts. received the bills & letter, K. was adjudged bkpt. under the law of the United States, & his property vested in pltf. as assignees in bkpey. At the time K. stopped payment a considerable balance was due to defts. on account B. Defts. refused to accept K.'s two drafts & having received payment of the two bills when they became due refused to pay over any part of the proceeds to pltf. :—Held: (1) defts. held the two bills upon the condition precedent that they would accept pltf.'s drafts, & the condition having been broken, pltf. were entitled to recover the proceeds of the two bills, which defts. had wrongfully converted to their own use; (2) defts. were not entitled to any set-off or counterclaim in respect of the balance due to them on account B.—SELIGMANN v. Pltf. bank discounted the bills upon K. & Co., transferring to the bank their security on the cottons for the payment of the bills. Both C. & Co. & K. & Co. stopped payment, & the bills were dishonoured. Pltf. bank claimed to have the proceeds of the cotton applied in satisfaction of the bills, & C. & Co. claimed the right to apply such proceeds in satisfaction of what was due to them on their general account by virtue of their general lien :—Held: the cotton had been specifically appropriated for the purpose of satisfying the bills, & the drawers' rights having been transferred to pltf. bank, they were entitled to have the proceeds so applied in the first instance.—INMAN v. 739. Insolvency of acceptor—Right of drawer to goods.]—S. & S., bankers in London, granted to Q., a merchant at Shanghai (at the request of M., a London merchant acting as his agent) a letter of credit authorising Q. "to draw on us, at four months' sight, for any sums not exceeding £20,000, such draft or drafts to be accompanied by bills of lading & invoices of tea, purchased according to order of M., & shipped by steamers to London, & marine policies relating thereto, & those documents to be surrendered to us against our acceptances." The document continued: "We hereby agree with you, & also as a separate engagement with the bond fide holders respectively of the bills drawn in compliance with the terms of this credit, that the same shall be duly accepted on presentation, & paid at maturity." It was also agreed that S. & S. should receive commission at 1 per cent. on all drafts drawn under this credit, & that M. should meet all their acceptances on or before their due dates, "2½ per cent. being allowed on all prepayments." Q. drew, under the letter of credit, bills on S. & S. for £18,000 against tea consigned by him to M., each bill mentioning the date of the letter of credit, & purporting to be drawn under it against a particular consignment of tea, "as per shipping documents herewith." The shipping documents were attached to the bills, & Q. advised S. & S. by post of the drawing of each bill, mentioning the tea against which it was drawn & the name of the ship by which it was sent. Q. discounted each bill with a bank in China, which forwarded the bill & shipping documents to their London agents, who obtained the acceptance of S. & S., on delivery to them of the shipping documents. A bill of lading, professing to answer the description in the instructions, was handed by L. to the banker, who accepted his drafts, & it turning out that the bill of lading was forged, paid the amount of the acceptances :—Held: the banker was not bound to see that the bill of lading was genuine, but only that it was regular on the face of it.

The indorsement of the bill of lading purported to be signed by an agent of the shippers :—Held: the banker was not responsible for the authority of the

the tea arrived in London it was warehoused in the name of S. & S., who from time to time gave delivery orders for parcels to M., who gave them cheques for the value of the parcels. The amount of the cheques was carried to the credit of M. in a special account in the books of S. & S., & M. was also credited with 2½ per cent. for prepayment, & debited with the amounts of the bills, freight & other charges. The cheques were paid into the current banking account of S. & S. Before the bills had matured, S. & S. filed a petition for liquidation. Some consignments of tea remained in specie at the time of the stoppage:—Held: Q. was entitled to have the tea in specie applied in payment of the bills, on the ground that it had been specifically appropriated to meet them, but the bank which had discounted the bills was not entitled to have the proceeds of sale of the teas previously sold so applied.—*Re SUSE, Ex p. 740. Hypothecation of bills of lading & policy of insurance given to bank—Receipt by bank of policy money on loss—Rights of bank to surplus.—A shipper at Bombay having consigned goods to merchants in England, drew on them for £1,200, & insured the goods for £1,700. He sold the draft to depts., a bank, & handed them at the same time the policy of insurance & the bills of lading, with a letter of hypothecation signed by him. This letter stated that the shipper, having sold the bills to the bank, & having at the same time handed to them, "as collateral securities for the due payment of" the bill, "the bills of lading & shipping documents of the several goods stated at foot," thereby authorised the bank, "on default being made in acceptance on presentment, or in payment at maturity" of the bill, to sell the goods & apply the proceeds in payment of the bill, "the balance, if any, to be placed against any other of my bills which may at the time be in the hands of the bank, or any other liability of me to the bank." The only documents stated at foot were the bill of exchange & the bill of lading. The ship was burnt at sea & the cargo lost. The draft for £1,200 was duly accepted, but the acceptors failing, it was dishonoured at maturity. The bank recouped themselves out of the policy moneys which had been paid to them by the insurance office, & had a balance in their hands. This balance having been claimed by plffs., who were assignees for value of it from the shipper, the bank claimed it as a collateral security for a debt due to them from the shipper on another account. He had shipped goods to other consignees & had drawn against the goods bills, which were also in the hands of the same bank. When the bills fell due, the drawees had requested the bank to defer presentment of the bills. The bills had not been presented, but the goods had been sold at a loss, & the bank had re-drawn upon the shipper for the deficiency, but he had failed:—Held: (1) the letter of hypothecation did not extend to any other liability of the shipper to the bank than that arising upon the £1,200 bill; (2) the bank having, at the request of the drawees, refrained from presenting the bills, had practically given them time, & had thus released the drawer, & the shipper was not indebted to the bank on this account; (3) plff. was entitled to the surplus in the hands of the bank.—LATHAM v. CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA (1874), L. R. 17 Eq. 205; 43 L. J. Ch. 612; 29 L. T. 795; 2 Asp. M. L. C. N. S. 178.

741. Against bills of lading—Forged bill of lading—Rights of bank.—A customer of a bank desired them to procure to be accepted bills of exchange, which a correspondent of his would draw against bills of lading he should send, & the bank got their agents to accept the bills of exchange on a document which was sent to them as, & purported to be, the bill of lading referred to. The bill of lading was in fact a forgery, no goods having been shipped, & the transaction being a fraud on the part of the customer's correspondent:—Held: the bank had not taken upon themselves the risk of the bill of lading being forged, & were entitled to recover from their customer the amount they had paid in respect of the bills of exchange.—WOODS v. THIEDEMANN (1862), 1 H. & C. 478; 10 W. R. 846; 158 E. R. 973. Annotation:—Mentd. Guaranty Trust Co. of New York v. Hannay (1918), 87 L. J. K. B. 1223, C. A.

742. Authority to bank to advance sum on bills of lading subject to certificate—Fraud—Duty of bank.—Plff. having agreed to purchase cobalt ore from O., authorised deft. bank to pay cash in Sydney, N.S.W., against production of documents. The mandate was as follows: "Negotiate drafts of O. at sight on D. Bank (Berlin) London agency p. £800 account B. S. (against) bill of lading, policy of insurance & certificate analysis from H. (for) one hundred tons cobalt ore analysis not less than 5 per cent. protoxide shipped by steamer (to) Europe." O. intended to ship worthless ore, & in the bill of lading it was described as "P. M. two thousand six hundred & eighty bags containing one hundred tons cobalt ore." A sample of sound ore was submitted for analysis, which analysis the bank refused to accept, as the certificate did not refer to the bill of lading goods. O. then marked the sample as the bill of lading quantity was described. The analyst gave a second certificate, which was as follows: "Sample of cobalt ore marked 'P. M. two thousand six hundred & eighty bags representing one hundred tons' received from you on July 12 gave the following results: 4.14 per cent. cobalt, equal to 5.27 per cent. cobalt protoxide in the dry ore; 9.25 per cent. moisture." On producing the second certificate the bank paid O. £800. Subsequently O. was convicted of obtaining that money by fraudulent misrepresentation.

Plffs. paid the bills, but the ore shipped being worthless, they sued deft. bank to recover the money:—Held: the certificate on its face was regular & came within the mandate, & there was no duty on the bank to see to the sampling, or verify the genuineness of the documents, & the bank was not liable.—BASSIE & SELVE v. BANK OF AUSTRALASIA (1904), 90 L. T. 618; 20 T. L. R. 431.

743. Undertaking to accept bills—Failure of bank—Breach of contract.—T., upon payment of £100 for commission, obtained from a bank a letter of credit, under which the bank, by their agent in the Mauritius, were to accept bills of exchange on London upon being fully secured by the deposit of shipping documents. Before the letter of credit reached T.'s agent in the Mauritius, news had arrived that the bank had stopped payment, & T.'s agent presented no bills for acceptance. The bank being in course of winding up:—Held: the mere stoppage of the bank gave T. no right to damages, as permission might have been given to the liquidators to accept the bills.—*Re AGRA BANK, Ex p. 744. ————.—A bank granted a letter of credit to a co. on terms that the co. should ship tea & forward bills of lading, invoices, & policy of insurance on the tea to the bank, & should also draw on B. & Co. bills to be accepted by B. & Co. to an amount sufficient to cover the amount authorised by the letter of credit. B. & Co. guaranteed the performance by the co. of these terms, "holding themselves responsible for the same." The co. drew on the bank, & the bank accepted the bills, but owing to the failure of the bank after the dates when the bills were drawn & before they became due the co. shipped no tea, & did not perform any of the terms agreed on. All the bills were eventually paid:—Held: the failure of the bank was no reason why the co. should not have performed its part of the contract, & B. & Co. were not relieved from their guarantee.—*Re BARBER & Co., Ex p. 745. Rights of third parties against grantor of letter of credit—Negotiation of bills—Non-compliance with conditions—Notice to purchasers.]—Defts. at New York granted to M. & Co., of Rio & New York, a letter of credit authorising M. & Co. to draw on defts.' house in London at ninety days' sight, for any sums not exceeding £20,000, for the invoice cost of coffee, to be shipped from Rio "to New York, Philadelphia, or Baltimore," advice of the bills to be given to defts. in London accompanied by bill of lading filled up to order of the shipper, & blank indorsed with abstract of invoice thereon for the property shipped, all the bills of lading issued (except one to be forwarded by the vessel to defts. at New York, & the one retained by the captain of the vessel) to be forwarded direct to defts. in London, & defts. by the letter of credit agreed with the drawers, indorsers, & bonâ fide holders of bills, drawn in compliance with the terms of it, that the same should be duly honoured on presentation at their office in London. M. & Co. having purchased coffee at Rio, drew upon defts. in London, under the above letter of credit, for the invoice price of the coffee to the order of plffs. at ninety days' sight, & plffs., having referred to the letter of credit, purchased the bill. The coffee was shipped at Rio, & four bills of lading of the same tenor were given by the captain, in which the vessel was stated to be "bound for St. Thomas for orders." Two of these documents were delivered by M. & Co. to plffs., but only one of them was forwarded by the latter to defts. in London, & with it was also sent to defts. in London, a letter of advice from M. & Co., stating that the coffee was shipped "to St. Thomas for orders, for either New York, Philadelphia, or Baltimore." On the bill of exchange being presented by plffs. to defts. in London,

746 i. Documentary bills under letter of credit—Acceptance by bank—Payment.]—Plffs. contracted to sell to defts., & defts. contracted to buy, bales of corn-sacks, at a certain price f.o.b. Calcutta, plffs. to draw for the price at six months' sight on a London bank under a banker's letter of credit to be supplied them by defts. before shipment. Plffs. shipped bales to defts. under bills of lading to the order of defts., invoicing the lots as shipped on account & risk of defts., & insuring them for the benefit of defts. For the price plffs. drew on the London bank as arranged, under the letter of credit provided by defts. The invoice forwarded charged defts. with the price of the lots forwarded, & credited them with the amount of the draft:—Held: the acceptance by the bank of the draft of plffs. under the letter of credit was not absolute payment, & defts. would have been liable for the price of the bales supplied to them, if the bank had not met the draft.—HINDLEY & Co. v. TOTHILL, WATSON & Co. (1894), 13 N. Z. L. R. 13.—N.Z.

746 ii. —Acceptance of drafts without policies of insurance—Purchaser acting on part performance by bank.]—Applt. agreed to buy from a merchant in Buenos Ayres a cargo of wheat for delivery at a named Australian port, payment to be "by London banker's acceptance of seller's drafts at ninety days' sight under confirmed credit, with documents attached as usual which are to be given upon acceptance. Seller to give policies &/or certificates of insurance for 2 per cent. over invoice value." Applt., by letter, requested resp. bank to issue to him a credit authorising the seller to draw on London at ninety days' sight for the value of the wheat. The letter continued:—"Insurance to be effected by shippers. Drafts to be accompanied by bills of lading, policy of insurance, merchant's certificate of weight & quality. Separate documents for each one hundred tons of wheat & the certificate of your agents at Buenos Ayres that the conditions of the credit have been complied with." Applt. then undertook that, in consideration of the bank issuing such credit, he would provide funds by purchasing the bank's drafts on London at the exchange of the day to retire all bills drawn under the credit in time to meet the bills before maturity. On the same day the bank, at applt.'s instance, sent to their London house a cable message summarising the request. A credit was subsequently opened by the bank in London under which the seller drew certain drafts on the bank in London & negotiated them in Buenos Ayres. The drafts were subsequently accepted by the bank in London, but they were not then attached to their policies of insurance, together with the before-mentioned bill of lading & letter of advice, the latter refused to honour the bill of exchange on the ground that the bills of lading were not in accordance with the terms of the letter of credit. In pursuance of written directions sent by M. & Co., at the request of defts. in New York, to the captain at St. Thomas, the vessel proceeded thence to New York, & on arrival the coffee was sold, realising less by £1,500 than the amount of the bill of exchange. Plffs. sued to recover that deficiency from defts., as damages for their refusal to honour the bill of exchange:—Held: defts. were not liable, as the conditions in the letter of credit on which they engaged to accept were unperformed, & the obligation upon them to accept under the letter of credit never attached, because the goods had not been consigned to any of the ports contracted for & the retention by plffs. of a bill of lading gave them power to take possession of the coffee & deprive defts. of any security for their advances.—BRAZILIAN & PORTUGUESE BANK, LTD. v. BRITISH & AMERICAN EXCHANGE BANKING CORPN., LTD. (1868), 18 L. T. 823.

746. Documentary bills under letter of credit—Failure of drawee bank—Rights of bill holders.]—C. & Co. drew two sets of bills of exchange on the B. Co. under the authority of letters of credit of that co., against two cargoes of cotton. The letters of credit stated that the bills, drawn in pursuance of it, were to be accompanied by corresponding bills of lading for cotton to be given up to the B. Co. on their acceptance of the bills of exchange. One set of bills was accepted, but not paid by the B. Co., & another set was not accepted, as the B. Co. had stopped payment before those bills were presented for acceptance. C. & Co. claimed to prove in the winding-up of the B. Co. for the whole amount of the bills (which had been taken up by C. & Co.) without deducting the proceeds of sale of the cotton, which had been received by them:—Held: on the true construction of the letter of credit, the bills of lading were to be a security to the co., & C. & Co. could only prove for the balance.—Re BARNED'S BANKING CO., COUPLAND'S CLAIM (1869), 5 Ch. & the policies were not delivered to the bank until a fortnight afterwards. Prior to his requesting the bank to issue the credit, applt. had sold the wheat by a contract, by which he bound himself to deliver with the wheat separate policies of insurance for each one hundred tons, & that fact was communicated to the bank in London before the issue of the credit. In those circumstances the separate policies could only be issued in London, & would not be issued until after the arrival of the bills of lading. When the wheat arrived in Melbourne applt. refused to accept delivery of the wheat. In an action by the bank against applt. to enforce his liability in respect of the drafts:—Held: (1) it was not a condition precedent that the drafts should at the time of presentment for acceptance be accompanied by policies of insurance, & if it was, applt. had rendered its performance impossible & so had excused the bank from performance of it: (2) if the bank, by accepting the drafts unaccompanied by policies of insurance, had failed to perform a condition precedent of the contract, applt., by his conduct after the arrival of the wheat in Australia, had elected to take advantage of the acceptance of the drafts & was liable to provide for them.—*FRIEDLANDER v. 747. .]—P. & Co. were cotton merchants at Pernambuco. A., at Liverpool, wished to obtain consignments of cotton from them. They desired some security other than his own. He obtained from B.'s banking co. a letter of credit, by which the bankers authorised the Pernambuco firm to draw on them "against cotton purchased in conformity with instructions." The drafts were to be "covered by shipping documents, say invoices & bills of lading of cotton addressed to this co., & forwarded under separate cover by the same mail which brings the drafts for acceptance, on receipt of which documents we engage to honour such drafts." Some shipping documents of cotton were sent, & some bills were accepted, & one bill was accepted without any shipping documents being sent. Before any one of the bills was due, the banking co. was wound up, & bills arriving immediately afterwards were left unaccepted. The Pernambuco firm claimed to prove against the bankers for the whole amount of the bills, without bringing into account the value of the cotton which had been sold, or which remained in hand:—Held: they were not in a position to do so, but were entitled only to prove for the balance, & the bill-holders had no lien over the goods in the hands of the bankers, who were only debtors to the bill-holders for the surplus remaining after the goods consigned had been applied to satisfy the acceptances.—*BANNER v. 748. — Bills against "produce bought & paid for"—Non-performance of conditions.]—A letter of credit was given by defts., merchants in London, to K. & Co., merchants at Batavia, to be availed of by drafts against "produce bought & paid for" by K. & Co., such produce to be held by K. & Co., under lien to defts. until the shipping documents were ready for transmission to them, & in the letter defts. undertook to accept & pay at maturity all drafts drawn by K. & Co. in conformity with the terms & conditions of the letter. Under this credit K. & Co. drew bills on defts., which they negotiated for value with plffs., who were bankers at Batavia. In an action by the bankers against defts. for refusing to accept the bills so drawn:—Held: it was a condition precedent to plffs.' right to recover on these bills against defts. that produce should have been both bought & paid for, against which the bills could be drawn.

Other bills, drawn by K. & Co., under the credit & negotiated by them with plffs., were presented by plffs. to defts. for acceptance, & defts. accepted & ultimately paid the same to the holders thereof, in the belief that produce had been bought & paid for by K. & Co. against such bills, whereas no such produce had been bought or paid for:—Held: the mere presentation of the bills by plffs. to defts. for acceptance did not amount to a warranty or representation by plffs. that produce had been bought & paid for by K. & Co. against which the bills could be drawn, & defts. were not entitled to recover from plffs. the amounts so paid.—CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA & CHINA v. MACFAYDEN (P.) & Co. (1895), 64 L. J. Q. B. 367; 72 L. T. 428; 43 W. R. 397; 11 T. L. R. 289; 39 Sol. Jo. 365; 1 Com. Cas. 1; 15 R. 333.

749. — Documents not in order—Liability of bank.]—Pltf. carried on business in London as an importer of frozen meat. Defts. at pltf.'s request undertook to negotiate on the terms of a letter of credit, at their option, drafts drawn by the shippers on pltf. in respect of consignments of frozen meat, the drafts to be accompanied by shipping documents, i.e., bills of lading, invoice, & policy of insurance. Defts. negotiated a draft, attached to which was a policy containing a clause: "To pay a total loss by total loss of a vessel only." The usual form of policy in the frozen meat trade was a policy covering all risks. Pltf. in the usual course of business afterwards accepted the draft before he had examined the documents. A partial loss of the consignment took place, which by reason of the clause in the policy pltf. could not recover from the underwriters:—Held: defts. had committed a breach of their contract with pltf. in negotiating a draft which was not accompanied by a policy of insurance in the proper form, & they were liable to make good the loss to pltf.—BORTHWICK v. BANK OF NEW ZEALAND (1900), 17 T. L. R. 2; 6 Com. Cas. 1.

750. Payment on forged cheque—Negotiability.]—A., in Scotland being indebted in £460 to B. in England, paid £460 into a Scotch bank, in return for a letter of credit on an English bank in this form: "Please honour the drafts of B. to the extent of £460, which charge to the bank." A. inclosed this letter of credit in a letter to B., which arrived at B.'s office in B.'s absence. The only clerk in the office, who had no authority to draw cheques, opened the letter, took the letter of credit to the English bank, forged a cheque in B.'s name for the amount, lodged the letter of credit with the English bank, received payment, & absconded. On B.'s return he drew on the English bank for the £460, but his draft was dishonoured. B. & A. sued the Scotch bank in Scotland for repayment of the £460:—Held: (1) the Scotch bank was liable, unless it could show either that the English bank actually paid B.'s draft, or did something which, as between them & B., the English bank was entitled to treat as equivalent to payment; (2) a letter of credit was not a negotiable instrument & the person presenting it was not necessarily the person entitled to make the draft.—*ORR & BARBER v. Bills were accepted by defts. under this arrangement, & plffs. duly provided defts. with funds exceeding the amount of the acceptances. Before the bills became due defts.' bank stopped, & they gave notice to plffs. that they would be unable to meet the bills. Plffs. arranged with another house in Liverpool to take up the bills, paying  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. commission; they were also obliged to pay to the holders the expenses of protesting the bills at Liverpool & Alexandria, & incurred expense in telegraphic communications between Liverpool & Alexandria. T. & Co. were indebted to the bank to an amount exceeding what was due on the bills:—Held: the letter of credit constituted a contract to the benefit of which all persons taking & paying for bills on the faith of it were entitled in equity, without regard to the equities between the bank & D. 754. ——— Bonâ fide holder in due course—Constructive notice.—Open marginal letters of credit were granted by a Scotch bank to F. & Co., a firm in China, on the guarantee of plffs., an English firm, whereby F. & Co. were authorised to draw for a specified amount on London bankers, who were the agents of the Scotch bank. F. & Co., in fraud of their agreement with plffs., drew bills under these letters of credit which were not protected by shipping documents, & indorsed them for value to the C. bank, which had no actual notice of the agreement between F. & Co. & plffs. Plffs. averred that, according to the ordinary course of dealing in reference to letters of credit granted to foreign firms, the foreign firm could only obtain letters of credit upon the guarantee of some English firm, & that the foreign firm stipulated to use the letters of credit only for the purpose of buying goods to be consigned to England, & to transmit the bills of lading to the English firm as a security for the repayment of the bills of exchange drawn under the letters of credit by a mail not later than that which carried the bills of exchange. Plffs. sought to restrain the London bankers from accepting the bills:—Held: (1) The C. bank were entitled to require the grantors of the letters of credit to accept the bills; (2) in reference to open letters of credit, no such custom exists as plffs. averred, & even if there were such a custom the rights of the C. bank as holders in due course would not be affected by the mere constructive notice of the agreement between plffs. & F. & Co., which the custom would imply.—MAITLAND v. 755 i. Rights of third parties against grantor—Letter indorsed & discounted—Insolvency of grantee.—A bank letter of credit, dated July 1, was drawn in favour of C., payable "on or after 6th instant." On July 2 it was blank indorsed per pro. of C., & its contents, less the discount, were received by the indorser. July 7 was a Sunday, & the indorsee presented the letter for payment on Saturday, when payment was refused, as the estates of C. were in course of being sequestrated. Sequestration was awarded at a later period of the same day, & the indorser, who had mise to accept bills create a contract between the giver of the letters & the person who advances money on the faith of them only when such letters are intended to be shown to third parties for the purpose of obtaining advances, or where the giver of the letter has so conducted himself that such an intention may fairly be presumed.

Documents in the form of letters of credit were addressed by defts. to S. & Co., authorising them to draw bills on defts. against shipments of grain. The documents were subject to certain expressed conditions. S. & Co. drew bills upon defts. under the credit so opened without performing the conditions. Pltfs., having notice of the conditions, & knowing that they were unfulfilled, advanced money on the bills so drawn, which defts. refused to accept. Pltfs. sued defts. for not accepting the bills:—Held: if the documents created a contract between pltfs. & defts., that contract was subject to such of the conditions as were not necessarily subsequent to the advance.—UNION BANK OF CANADA v. COLE (1877), 47 L. J. Q. B. 100, C. A.

756. Credit conditional on receipt of certificates—Refusal to grant certificates—Trust.]—Resp. entered into a contract in England with the French Govt. for the supply of a large number of cartridges, to be paid for through the ambassador, upon the production of certificates of approval from the agents of the Govt. The contract specified the times & quantities of each delivery, & time was to be of the essence of the contract. Applts., bankers in England, who had in their hands funds belonging to the French Govt., wrote to resp. that a special credit for £40,000 had been opened in his favour, & would be paid him on receipt of the certificates. Some cartridges were supplied & paid for, others were delivered, but the certificates were refused on the ground that the contract time had expired:—Held: the letter did not amount to an equitable assignment of the £40,000, or impress a trust upon funds in the banker's hands to that amount, but was simply a statement that the bankers would act as paymasters, & resp. had no claim on applts. for the price of the parcels for which certificates had been refused. Seemle: if a trust had been created the fact that the French Govt. did not appear would not have prevented the ct. from dealing with the fund.—MORGAN v. LARIVIÈRE (1875), L. R. 7 H. L. 423; 44 L. J. Ch. 457; 32 L. T. 41; 23 W. R. 537, H. L.

kept the contents of the letter separate from the other funds of C., paid them to the trustee in the sequestration. c. Revocation of—Damages.]—Pltf. sued a bank for the recovery of $100,000, damages alleged to have been suffered by him by reason of the cancellation of two letters of credit, one for £300 & the other for £3,000, & recovered a verdict for $6,500, which was confirmed by the ct. sitting in review. On appeal, the verdict was set aside on the ground of excessive damages & new trial ordered.—BANK OF TORONTO v. ANSELL (1875), 7 R. L. 262.—CAN.

d. — Drawn in favour of third party.]—A person who induces a bank to issue to him a letter of credit may, by his subsequent conduct, give the bank cause for cancelling it, but not if the customer secured the letter of credit from the bank in favour of another person. In that event the customer cannot, as of right, oblige the bank to cancel it, for the contract is between the bank & such other person, not between the bank & its customer. A bank cannot cancel a letter of credit once it has been transferred to a third party.—SOVEREIGN BANK v. BELLHOUSE (1911), Q. R. 23 K. B. 413.—CAN.

SECT. 17.—CIRCULAR NOTES.

757. Loss of—Recovery of money paid for—Obligation to refund money on offer to return letter of indication—Equitable relief.]—Pltfs. purchased circular notes of a bank, & posted them with the usual letter of indication to their agent at Paris, whose name appeared, both in the notes & letter, as the person who was to receive the amount of such notes. The letter, but not the notes, duly reached pltfs.' agent, but it did not appear what had become of the notes, or by whose fault they had been lost:—Held: as there was a possibility of the notes being made available & of the bank becoming liable to repay any of the indicated correspondents who might cash them, there was no obligation on the bank to refund to pltfs. the money they had paid simply on their offer to return the letter of indication. Seemle: pltfs. had a claim to equitable relief on giving the bank a sufficient indemnity against the outstanding notes.—CONFLANS QUARRY CO., LTD. v. PARKER (1867), L. R. 3 C. P. 1; 37 L. J. C. P. 51; 17 L. T. 283; 16 W. R. 127.

758. — Notes paid on forged signature—Breach of contract by holder.]—Pltf. lost circular notes which were payable to order of "the bearer named in the letter of indication." A notice was printed on the letter as to the necessity of keeping the letter & notes apart, but pltf. kept them both together in his pocket. The notes were cashed by correspondents of defts. for persons, who produced the letter of indication & forged pltf.'s name:—Held: the condition of keeping the letter & notes apart was a reasonable one, & a material part of the contract, & the breach of it having led to the loss, pltf. could not recover.—RHODES v. LONDON & COUNTY BANK (1880), Journal of Institute of Bankers, Vol. II., p. 779.

759. —.]—Defts. issued circular notes in favour of pltf.'s daughter, D. The letter of indication requested the holder, as a precaution against forgery, to keep the notes & letter of indication separate. D. left the notes in a railway carriage & they were stolen & subsequently cashed by persons who altered the numbers of the notes & inserted the name of E. B. as payee. Pltf. had given immediate notice of the loss to defts.:—Held: defts. were not liable for the loss as pltf. had not complied with the terms on which the notes were issued.—HUME-DICK v. HERRIES, FARQUHAR & CO. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 541.

which he handed over to R., with his cheque for the amount, for presentation & payment. R. sent the cheque & letter of credit through his own bank to defts.' branch at B. The letter of credit was returned with the indorsement "amount already paid to payee." The cheque was not paid. At the time of the presentation of the letter of credit pltf. was indebted to the L. branch of defts.' bank to an amount exceeding the amount for which the letter of credit was given. But no appropriation was, in fact, then made of the credit in reduction of pltf.'s liability to the L. branch. Pltf. brought an action for the alleged libel indorsed on the letter of credit:—Held: there being no appropriation of the amount of the letter of credit, the statement indorsed was untrue, & was not privileged, & was actionable. Seemle: if the appropriation had actually been made, the bank would have been entitled to treat the amount of the letter of credit as having been paid.—ELLIS v. BANK OF AUSTRALASIA (1882), 3 N. S. W. L. R. 96.—AUS.

760. 761. Bank as gratuitous bailee—Degree of care—Theft by bank servant.]—In an action for damages against a bank as bailees for the negligent keeping of certain railway debentures placed in their care by a customer, in the ordinary way of their business as bankers, it appeared that the box containing such securities (of which the customer kept the key) was kept in a strong room in the bank, with the boxes of other customers, & specie & other securities belonging to the bank. Access to this room was only obtained by passing through a compartment where a cashier sat by day, & a messenger slept at night. The strong room had two iron doors, which were opened by separate keys, which during the day were kept by the cashier who occupied the compartment. One of the keys was kept at night by the cashier of the bank, & the other key by another officer of the bank. Beyond this strong room there were two other rooms; in the outer of the two uncoined gold, & in the inner bullion & unsigned notes were kept. The manager of the bank kept the key of the outer of these rooms, & one of the directors of the bank that of the inner. The owner of the box had free access to the room where his box was deposited during banking hours, in the presence of one of the bank clerks, when he had occasion to take out coupons from his debentures for collection. While in such custody the cashier of the bank abstracted the debentures from the box, & made away with them:—Held: the bank, as gratuitous bailees, were not bound to exercise more than ordinary care of the deposits entrusted to them, & the negligence for which alone they would be made liable would have been a want of that ordinary diligence, which a reasonably prudent man took of his own property of the like description.—*GIBLIN v. 762. — Misappropriation by partner of bank—Proceeds not applied to use of partnership—Bank not liable.]—A customer deposited a box containing various securities with his bankers for safe custody, & afterwards granted a loan of such securities to one of the partners in the banking house for his own private purposes upon his depositing in the box certain railway shares to secure the replacing of the securities then lent. This partner afterwards for his own purposes, & without the knowledge of the customer or his co-partners, substituted the railway shares, & substituted others of less value. The key of the box was in the custody & care of the partnership, but they had no right to examine its contents:—Held: (1) as the proceeds of the railway shares were not applied to the use of the partnership, the banking firm were not answerable for this tortious act of their partner for his own benefit; (2) the partners were not chargeable with any loss occasioned by this subtraction of shares, on the ground of negligence.—*Re BIDDULPH, Ex p. 763. Bank as bailees for reward—Culpable negligence—Fraud by servant of bank—Damages.]—J., the owner of railway shares in two cos., deposited the certificates for safe custody with a banking co., who undertook to receive the dividends for a small commission. On receiving the certificates from the railway cos. J. gave his address in one instance at the office of the bank, & in the other at a club. The manager of the bank, who had the key of the safe where the certificates were kept, fraudulently sold the shares, & forged the name of J. to the transfer. The cos. wrote to J., informing him of the transfers, & receiving, in one instance, no answer, & in another an answer in J.'s name forged by the manager, registered the transfer. J. afterwards, on discovery of the fraud, brought suits against the two cos. & the transferees of the shares, in which he recovered the shares, but the ct. gave him no costs. The banking co. being wound up, J. claimed to prove against the co. for the amount of his costs in the suit which had been occasioned by their negligence:—Held: (1) the banking co. were bailees for reward as they had charged a commission for collecting the dividends, & they had been guilty of culpable negligence in keeping them; (2) the loss of the costs was too remote a consequence of the negligence of the co. for them to be held liable for it.—Re UNITED SERVICE CO., JOHNSTON'S CLAIM (1870), 6 Ch. 764. Improper delivery to co-trustee—Fraudulent misappropriation by co-trustee—Negligence of bank.]—A trust fund standing in the name of three trustees consisted of Spanish bonds, which were ordered by the Spanish Govt. to be converted into a stock bearing a different rate of interest. The box containing the bonds was in 1852, by authority from the co-trustees, handed over by the bankers, in whose custody it had been placed, to C., one of the trustees & a stockbroker, for the purpose of effecting the conversion. C. converted the stock, but appropriated a large number of the new bonds, & the box, less the bonds thus abstracted, was returned to the bankers without examination by the co-trustees. The bankers subsequently without authority delivered over the box to C. to enable him to receive the dividends, & that opportunity was taken by him to make a further appropriation of the securities. The loss was not discovered until 1856, when C. absconded:—Held: the trustees were not responsible for the subsequent loss, which had arisen from no negligence on their part, but from the improper act of the bankers.—MENDES v. GUEDALLA (1862), 2 John. & H. 259; 31 L. J. Ch. 461; 6 L. T. 746; 8 Jur. N. S. 878; 10 W. R. 482; 70 E. R. 1054.

A customer who had deposited such boxes for safe custody became lunatic, & his committees were appointed. The bankers, who claimed a general lien, having obtained garnishee orders against debtors of their lunatic customer through information obtained after opening the boxes, the ct. granted an injunction to prevent them from enforcing their garnishee orders with respect to the securities in question, but refused damages for the opening of the boxes.—LEESE v. MARTIN (1873), L. R. 17 Eq. 224; 43 L. J. Ch. 193; 29 L. T. 742; 22 W. R. 230.

766. Detention by bank—Writ of execution served on bank.]—It is no answer to a demand by a customer of a bank for delivery of property deposited by him with the bankers for safe custody that the bankers have been served with a writ in proceedings by way of execution authorised by the law of the State of Massachusetts & known as "trustee-process."—*WARREN v. g. Representations by partner as to acceptance—Non-acceptance—Insolvency of firm—Rights as against assignee.]—A. & H., a firm, had a draft for $1,200 accepted by B. for their accommodation, falling due on Apr. 27. H., in order to obtain funds to meet it, on Apr. 26 procured a draft on B. for $600 to be discounted by plfts., telling them that it would be accepted, & the proceeds of it were placed to the general credit of the firm. On the 29th A. drew out on the cheque of the firm their balance in plfts.' bank, consisting of the proceeds of the draft for $600, of which A. knew nothing, & of all other moneys, & handed it to their solr., for the benefit of their creditors generally, & on May 2 the firm became insolvent, & an assignee was appointed, to whom the solr. handed over the moneys deposited with him. Plfts. claimed the amount of the $600 draft, contending that it was only discounted on the faith of its being accepted, & that, as one of the partners had caused its non-acceptance, there was a failure of consideration, & that they were entitled to follow the money in the assignee's hands:—Held: they were not so entitled, the case being the ordinary one of the discount of a draft on the belief that it would be accepted.—CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE v. DAVIDSON (1875), 25 C. P. 537.—CAN.

h. Bill discounted for drawer—Retirement on terms—Bankruptcy of drawer—Liability of acceptor.]—A drawer of a bill of £704, discounted with a bank, offered to retire it by transmitting another of £140, & applying in payment of the balance a sum at his credit in his account. The offer was accepted, & the new bill transmitted, but the drawer thereafter became bkpt., while the bill of £704 still remained with the bank:—Held: the bank could not impute the second bill, & the balance at the credit of the account, to other transactions with the drawer, so as to have recourse upon the acceptor of the bill for £704.—ALLAN v. ALLAN & CO. (1831), 9 Sh. (Ct. of Sess.) 519.—SCOT.

k. — Goods to secure payment—Specific appropriation—Lien on goods.]—M., trading as a linen merchant & commission agent, was in the habit of receiving goods from H., a linen manufacturer, for sale on commission, & of making advances on such goods to H., which were more or less provided for by means of bills of exchange drawn by M., & accepted by H., who received the proceeds of the bills when discounted in the B. Bank, while, according as the goods were sold, M. retired the bills. H. used also to draw bills, which were accepted by M. The bills, none of which were for M.'s accommodation, were not drawn specifically against the goods, nor were the goods deposited specifically against any particular bills, but generally against any demand. It was arranged between them that, on the fourth of every month, if the sales did not cover the acceptances current, M. would give H. either money or acceptances to cover those of M.'s then current. There was a continuous general debit & credit account between them, in which M. credited H. with the proceeds of the sales, & debited him with the money advanced, & at the end of each month the general balance was struck. In the end H. was largely indebted to M. It was alleged that M., who was a customer of the B. Bank, & kept his account there, had intimated to the bank that H.'s acceptances were for advances made to him by M. as a broker selling goods on commission, & that he was secured by the goods, & on the faith of this intimation the Bank had subsequently discounted three acceptances of H.'s. On one occasion previously, M., in answer to an inquiry by one of the directors, had stated that he was not then covered by goods:—Held: (1) there was no specific appropriation of the goods to meet the bills discounted by the bank; (2) the bank could have no right to have the goods & their proceeds applied in payment of the bills under the doctrine of *Ex p. l. Accepted cheque given on discount—Acceptance of bill assured by drawer—Retirement of old bill without acceptance of new bill.]—When a bank discounts for A. a draft by him on B., & accepts a cheque for the proceeds, & delivers it to A. for transmission to B. to enable B. therewith to retire a draft for a similar amount drawn by A., & accepted by B., for accommodation, & about to fall due at the branch of the bank where B. resides, on the faith of A.'s representations, assurance & undertaking (without authority, however, from B.) that B. will accept the new draft, & B. receives the cheque, & before using it has knowledge of the transaction as between A. & the bank, B. cannot legally use the cheque to retire the old draft without accepting the new one.—*TORRANCE v. 769. ———.]—The difference between "lending money" & "discounting" is distinct & palpable. "Discounting" is purchasing, not lending. The discounter of a bill becomes the owner. If it turns out to be of less value than the price paid for it, the loss falls upon the discounter. If a profit is made upon the transaction, it belongs wholly & ex-retired his acceptance, which was held by another bank. The drawers refused to accept the bill so redrawn:—Held: a privity was created between plfts. & the drawers, entitling the former to maintain an action against the latter for the money so advanced.—BANK OF MONTREAL v. THOMAS (1888), 16 O. R. 503.—CAN.

n. Customer debited on non-payment—Recovery from acceptor.]—J., a customer of resp. bank, discounted with that bank applt.'s acceptance. When it fell due, applt. failed to pay it, & the bank charged it to J.'s account, who at the time owed the bank a small balance, which balance was augmented by subsequent transactions, wherein, nevertheless, if the credits were imputed to the earliest indebtedness, the balance due when the acceptance matured would be more than covered. The bank retained possession of the acceptance & sued applt., the acceptor, to recover its amount. Applt. pleaded payment & compensation:—Held: the bank entitled to recover from applt. the amount of his acceptance, & applt. not discharged by the credits in the bank's account with J.—*GOODALL v. A bill in similar terms, but blank in name of the drawer, & with no indorsers, was, along with the letter, presented on the following day by B. to the bank agent, who discounted the bill, which, when due, was dishonoured, but no protest taken, & no notice either of presentation or dishonour made to A. till several days after the date of the dishonour:—Held: A. liable for the amount.—*WATT v. In A.'s presence he called his clerk C. & told him to go to defts. & ask them to discount the bill, stating the transaction as to the proposed purchase. C. was in the habit of leaving bills at defts. to be discounted. Defts. subsequently placed the bill to the credit of B. force of the bill itself:—Held: where a claim was made by a banker, who had discounted a bill upon a party whose name did not appear on it, he must make out a very special & clear case before he could impose such a liability, & the proper mode of binding the party to the bill being to have his name on the bill, when that was not taken, the presumption was that he was not bound, but that the other parties whose names were on the bill were bound by it, & the co. were not liable.—NORTH BRITISH BANK v. AYRSHIRE IRON CO. (1853), 1 W. R. 536.—SCOT.

r. Note signed by agent—Misapplication of proceeds on discount—Notice.]—A bank discounting the personal notes of a customer, which are indorsed by him as agent for a third party, who is also a customer of the bank & has a current account therein, & who sees by its books that the principal's money, his account being closed, passes by such operation to the credit of the agent, whose account increases proportionately, is sufficiently advised to make further inquiry. If, without receiving satisfactory explanations, such bank continues to discount the notes, it becomes the accomplice of the agent, in his abuse of confidence, & responsible towards the principal, in favour of whom there lies a recourse against the bank to recover the amounts fraudulently converted.—GRATTON v. BANQUE D'HOCHELAGA (1909), Q. R. 37 S. C. 324.—CAN.

s. Note signed by members of partnership—Subsequent incorporation—Discharge of one partner—Consent of bank.]—When a note is signed by the members of a partnership, later on incorporated, & is discounted at a bank, one of the makers cannot be discharged without the consent of the bank, & he is not discharged by the fact that the new corp'n. passed a resolution authorising the bank to erase his name from the note, & the bank manager erased his name & informed him that he was freed from his liabilities towards the bank.—GENDREAU v. WIDDER (1915), Q. R. 48 S. C. 142.—CAN.

t. Note made in fraud of partners—Notice to bank.]—E. was a member of the firm of C. & Co. & also a member of the firm of E. & Co., & in order to raise money for the use of E. & Co., he made a promissory note, which he signed with the name of the other firm &, indorsing it in the name of E. & Co., had it discounted. The officers of the bank which discounted the note knew the handwriting of E., with whom the bank had had frequent dealings. In an action against the makers of the note:—Held: the note was made by E. in fraud of his partners, & the bank had sufficient knowledge that he was using his partners' names for his own purposes to put them on inquiry as to authority, & not having made such inquiry the bank could not recover against C.—CREIGHTON v. HALIFAX BANKING CO. (1890), 18 S. C. R. 140.—CAN.

u. Note for accommodation of customer—Customer assuming liability on dishonour—Appropriation of partial credits.]—Bankers discounted for a customer a note given, as they knew, for his accommodation by deft., which was dishonoured. They were afterwards requested or directed by the customer to look to him for payment:—Held: (1) they were not bound to appropriate in payment of the dishonoured note any partial payments or credits less than the amount of the note; (2) they would be, in such circumstances, bound so to appropriate in case of an equal or greater amount coming into their hands.—COMMERCIAL BANK v. GIBBONS (1865), 4 N. S. W. S. C. R. 223.—AUS.

w. Note for accommodation of bank's solicitor—Neglect in giving notice of dishonour—Discharge of maker & indorser.]—Defts. were maker & indorser respectively of a promissory note for the accommodation of D., who discounted it with pl'tfs., they having knowledge of the facts. On the maturity of the note, pl'tfs. handed it to D., their solr., for protest. D. did not protest or notify defts. of its dishonour, but delivered it to them, adding that he had paid it. About three months after its maturity D. absconded in insolvent circumstances, & after that defts. were for the first time notified of the non-payment of the note. In an action against defts. on the note, they pleaded, on equitable grounds, the above facts, & that by the laches of pl'tfs. they were prevented from obtaining indemnity from D., & that, if compelled to pay the note, they would be defrauded out of the amount:—Held: a good defence.—CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE v. 771. Bill indorsed for discount—Passing of property.]—By an agreement of Feb. 27, pl'tf. agreed to sell to deft. shares in a co. upon the terms (inter alia) that the book debts due to the co. should be taken as good at the amounts standing in the co.'s books. The co. received a bill of exchange which was properly accounted for in their books & on Feb. 22 handed it to their bankers to be discounted. On Feb. 28 the bankers credited the co.'s account with the amount of the bill:—Held: the property in a bill of exchange, indorsed to a bank for the purpose of being discounted, did not pass to the bank before it had been actually discounted & the amount credited to the account of the customer, & on Feb. 27 the bill was a "book debt" of the co. for the purposes of the agreement.—DAWSON v. 773. Discount or collection—Intention of customer.]—The question whether a bill has been paid in by a customer for discount or collection is one of intention. An indorsement by the customer is prima facie evidence of an intention to discount; but such indorsement may be made merely to enable the indorsee to receive the money from other parties & the real intention must be determined by all the circumstances of the case.—*Ex p. 774. Amount of commission & interest—Usury.]—In an action for usury against debt., a country banker at S., it appeared that the practice was to discount bills in London for various correspondents at S., for which they had £5 per cent. for the time the bills had to run, & they had also 5s. per cent. on the gross sum without any reference to the time which the bill had to run; this commission had been taken by debt. on the bills in question. 785. Accommodation bill—General guarantee to bank for all bills rediscounted—Usage of London bill brokers.]—A. drew bills of exchange upon B., which the latter accepted for A.'s accommodation, B. receiving a part of the proceeds. S. & Co., bill brokers, discounted the bills for A., & rediscounted them with the L. & W. Bank. S. & Co. did not indorse the bills, but had previously given to the bank a general guarantee for the due payment of all bills discounted by them with the bank. When the bills were discounted the acceptors were not aware of this guarantee. The bill brokers made payments to the bank under their guarantee in respect of the bills, & sought to prove for the amount against the estate of the acceptors, who were bkpt. It being proved to be the common & almost invariable practice of bill brokers in the city of London not to indorse each bill of exchange which they had discounted for a customer, when they rediscounted it with their bankers, but to give to the bankers a general guarantee for all bills which they rediscounted with them:—Held: when an accommodation bill was drawn & accepted for the purpose of raising money for the drawer & the acceptor, the drawer in discounting the bill with bill brokers in the city of London had an implied authority from the acceptor to deal with them in the ordinary course of their business, & the bill brokers had an implied authority from the acceptor to make themselves liable on the bill under their guarantee to their bankers, & were entitled to prove against his estate in bkpcy. for what they had paid & for interest thereon.—*Re FOX, WALKER & Co., Ex p. 786. Promissory notes—Proceeds paid into discounting bank—Misapplication of proceeds.]—The L. Co. was formed to purchase the business of L. & Co., of Paris. The Paris firm would not complete unless 40,000 shares were taken. To satisfy them the I. Co., which was promoting the L. Co., guaranteed a subscription for 40,000 shares, & applied to the N. Bank to discount their promissory notes for £200,000, which the bank agreed to do upon the guarantee of the L. Co., which was signed by three of the directors, & sealed by the co., that, until the notes were paid, the L. Co. would leave in the hands of the bank an amount equal to the sum remaining due on the notes, & that if the notes were not paid, the bank might pay them out of such amount. The £200,000 was accordingly carried to the credit of the I. Co., who provided shareholders & paid the deposit & allotment money of £5 per share of the £200,000 which thus got to the credit of the L. Co. at the bank. The bank, in order to enable the L. Co. to obtain a settling day on the Stock Exchange, gave a certificate that there was £200,000 standing to the credit of that co. Afterwards, the promissory notes not being taken up at maturity, the N. Bank paid them out of the £200,000. After an order had been made for winding up the L. Co., a shareholder in that co. filed his bill on behalf of himself & all other shareholders, except defts., against the directors of the L. Co. & against the N. Bank, to recover the £200,000 for the benefit of the L. Co. as having been applied in breach of trust. & a decree was made against the bank for the restoration of the £200,000. Subsequently the N. Bank, by its public officer, filed a bill against three of its own directors to compel them to make good the loss which the bank had sustained through the above transactions:—Held: (1) the remedy, assuming the L. Co. had a right to the £200,000, would have been at law by an action against the bank, for the guarantee was ultra vires, & known to the bank to be so, & was no answer to the demand of the L. Co. for the sum which had stood to their credit; (2) the £200,000 never belonged to the L. Co. at all, for the whole transaction was an illegal & fraudulent scheme, out of which no rights could arise as between the parties to it; (3) the three directors were not estopped from saying that the N. Bank had incurred no liability to pay anything to the L. Co.: & as the N. Bank had not incurred any such liability, the bill must be dismissed.—GRAY v. LEWIS, PARKER v. LEWIS (1873), 8 Ch. 787. — Guardian & ward—Bank put on inquiry.—Pltf. was a young woman, who had been a ward of ct., & eighteen months after coming of age, while continuing to reside with her guardian, she had indorsed a promissory note, drawn by her guardian in her favour. The note was given by the guardian to certain creditors in part payment of a debt, & was by them presented to their bankers & discounted. The bankers knew the relative position of pltf. & her guardian, & also knew that the guardian had been in embarrassed circumstances previous to the note being presented:—Held: in such circumstances, it was the duty of the bankers to have investigated the transaction, & an injunction was granted to restrain them from taking proceedings at law upon the note.—*MAITLAND v. ## PART II. SECT. 20, SUB-SECT. 1.

k. Bank not bound to allow overdraft—Temporary overdraft—Termination.—In the absence of special agreement, express or implied, a banker is under no obligation to allow a customer to overdraw his account.

A temporary overdraft which is to be at the discretion of the manager of the bank terminates so soon after the agreement under which it has been allowed as the customer's account shows a credit balance.—MCINTYRE v. ROBINSON SOUTH AFRICAN BANKING CO., 17 E. D. C. 111.—S. AF.

l. Request for loan—What amounts to.—Deft wrote to pltf.:—"Gentlemen, Please pay to the bearer $850, & I will see you later":—Held: the presumption was that deft. intended to borrow the $850, & not that he was drawing on money deposited with pltf. as his agents or bankers.—NICHOLS v. RYAN (1868), 2 R. L. 111.—CAN.

m. Agreement for overdraft—Customer allowed larger sum by mistake—Bank bound.—A banker agreed with his customer to allow him an overdraft of a certain amount, &, by mistake, the banker's letter embodying the agreement allowed a larger sum. The letter was not withdrawn by the banker, though the customer's construction was disputed & had been admitted by himself to be contrary to the real agreement:—Held: the banker was bound by the terms of his letter.—DORIA v. BANK OF VICTORIA (1879), 5 V. L. R. 393.—AUS.

n. Loan or advance in contravention of Bank Act—On purchase of trust company's business.—As part of the consideration of an agreement by which the bank acquired the office site & business of a trust co., the bank became responsible for the claims of persons who had deposited money with the co., &, to secure the bank in respect to such liability & form a fund to meet payments to depositors, the co. gave the bank a promissory note for the amount of the deposits & assigned assets to the bank, including a bill of sale of certain farm property:—Held: the transaction was not a loan or advance made by the bank in contravention of Bank Act, s. 76 (2c), but a legitimate exercise of 788. Request for overdraft—Cheque drawn in excess of credit balance.—Where a customer draws a cheque for a sum in excess of the amount standing to the credit of his current account, it is in effect a request for a loan, & if the cheque is honoured the customer has borrowed money; but it does not follow that a transaction of this kind is a borrowing upon security not belonging to the customer & deposited for another purpose.—*CUTHBERT v. 790. Overdraft by Inclosure Act commissioners—Personal liability.—An Inclosure Act empowered the comrs. to make a rate to defray the expenses of passing & executing the Act, & enacted that persons advancing money should be repaid out of the first money raised by the comrs. Expenses were incurred in the execution of the Act before any rate was made. To defray such expenses the comrs. drew drafts upon their bankers, requiring them to pay the sums therein mentioned on account of the public drainage, & to place the same to their account as comrs. The bankers, during a period of six years, continued to advance considerable sums by paying the drafts:—Held: the comrs. were personally responsible to the bankers for the drafts so made.—EATON v. BELL (1821), 5 B. & Ald. 34; 106 E. R. 1106.

791. Overdraft by partnership—Note of one partner given as indemnity to other partner—Note indorsed by other partner to bank.—A. & B., partners, had an account with pltf., bankers, & wishing to overdraw it, pltf. consented on B.'s giving them his note for £2,000. A. afterwards gave B. his note for £1,000 as an indemnity to him for a moiety of his liability to pltf. on his note. The advances

o. Overdraft by married woman—Charge on trust fund subject to settlement.—A bank, having permitted a married woman to overdraw her account, on the supposition that they had a lien over a fund which was, in fact, subject to a settlement of which they had not been informed, filed a bill charging fraud in the married woman in concealing the settlement, & to establish the debt against the fund in priority to the settlement. Bill dismissed with costs, there being no evidence of such a concealment of the settlement as would amount to fraud.—LONDON CHARTERED BANK v. LEMPRIERE (1870), 1 V. R. 191.—AUS.

amounted to £1,300, & being unpaid B., two years after, indorsed A.'s note to pl'ts., who sued A. on it:—Held: pl'ts. were entitled to recover.—HEYWOOD v. WATSON (1828), 4 Bing. 496; 1 Moo. & P. 268; 6 L. J. O. S. C. P. 72; 130 E. R. 859.

792. — Account transferred to new bank—Assent of one partner—Appropriation of payments.]—H. & C., who carried on business in partnership, were indebted to R., their banker, to the amount, as admitted by H., of £979. In 1851 R., with the concurrence of H., transferred his business to the M. Bank, including the account in question. The partnership account of H. & C. with the M. Bank commenced with this item of £979, & continued open for a considerable time, during which H. paid in moneys to an amount exceeding the sum of £979. The pass-book was regularly sent to H. The deed transferring the business from R. to the M. Bank contained a provision, "that at the expiration of twelve months, as to such accounts as should not be taken to by the M. Bank, the M. Bank should, during a period not exceeding ten years, either accept or compel payment, or permit the same to remain due, & should be possessed of all moneys paid in discharge of such accounts in trust for R." In 1852 the M. Bank gave notice to R. that they would not take to this account. An action having been brought by the M. Bank against H. & C. to recover the balance due:—Held: (1) H. had power to bind his partner by assenting to the transfer of the debt on the account; (2) the debt of £979 was extinguished by the payments subsequently made by H. to the credit of the partnership account & the assent to the appropriation to be inferred from H. not objecting to the pass-book, & after such extinguishment, as between the M. Bank & the partnership, this account could not be treated as an existing debt remaining due to R.

793. Overdraft by turnpike trust—Trustee also partner of bank—Personal liability.]—A., B., C., & Co., in their capacity of bankers to a turnpike trust, made advances to the trust on cheques drawn, payable to the treasurer, & signed by the clerks to the trustees. B., one of pl'ts., was the treasurer. Deft. was in the habit of attending the meetings of the trustees, & took an active part in the concerns of the road:—Held: he was liable in an action for the amount of the advances made, although C., who was also one of pl'tf.'s firm, was a trustee.—BECKETT v. WILSON (1841), 10 L. J. C. P. 325.

See, generally, HIGHWAYS, STREETS, & BRIDGES.

794. Overdraft by agent—Authority & knowledge of principal.]—An agent has no right, without the authority of his principal, to overdraw a banking account. But if it appear that the agent has done so with the knowledge of his principal, the jury will be warranted in inferring from this that the agent had, in fact, the requisite authority.

Deft., as administrator of W., deceased, carried on gas works at H. & appointed X. to manage the same for him. D. & Co.'s bank, through the agency of X., opened an account "with the administrator of the late W., deceased," & the account continued until the bank stopped payment. Deft. came occasionally to H. & frequently communicated with X. respecting the gas works. X. stated in evidence that deft. was well aware that he drew cheques on the bank on account of the gas works, that he sent statements of account to deft., & that on one occasion he told deft. there was a balance due to the bank. At the time of the failure the account was overdrawn:—Held: deft. was liable.—POTT v. BEVAN (1844), 1 Car. & Kir. 335; subsequent proceedings, 7 Man. & G. 604.

795. — — —.]—In pursuance of an arrangement between applt. bank & the Govt. the Registrar-General opened an account which, to the knowledge of the bank, was simply for the purpose of the daily lodgment of the collections of his department & the weekly transfer by his cheque of such lodgments to the Treasury. The cashier sent to lodge such moneys continuously kept back a part thereof, concealing his fraud by means of forged receipts, & the weekly cheques of the Registrar-General in favour of the Treasury resulted in overdrafts to the extent of £8,127, of which he was ignorant. In an action by the bank against the Govt. to recover the same:—Held: the latter was not liable for the overdraft, which was not merely unauthorised, but entirely outside the scope & object of the dealings of the parties.—LONDON CHARTERED BANK OF AUSTRALIA v. McMILLAN, [1892] A. C. 292; 61 L. J. P. C. 44; 66 L. T. 801; 8 T. L. R. 473, P. C.

796. Loan to executor—For executorial purposes—Assent of co-executor.]—One of two exors., who was himself a residuary legatee, entered an account with a banker in his own name for executorial purposes, & the banker, with notice of the dispositions under the will, made advances to the exor. for payments connected with the exorship, & securities were deposited for repayment of the advances. The co-exor. assented to the first advance, but on a second advance being made to the acting exor. upon other securities, he withdrew his assent, & objected to the banker being repaid out of the trust property, on the ground that the money had been placed on the separate account of the acting exor. The advances were duly applied to the purposes of the administration. Upon an action being brought by the banker for a lien upon the second securities for repayment of his advances:—Held: (1) the banker was justified in advancing money to the acting exor. for executorial purposes, & the assent of the co-exor. in the first instance was a further justification for placing confidence in the acting exor. & in making further advances to him; (2) repayment should be decreed.—CHILD & Co. v. THORLEY (1880), 16 Ch. D. 151; 29 W. R. 417.

797. Loan to promoters of railway company—Non-existing company—Subsequent adoption by company—Liability of promoters.]—Defts., the promoters & directors of a railway co., obtained an advance of £500 from a bank, upon terms expressed in a letter, by which the bank were requested to allow the directors of the railway co. to draw to the extent of £1,000, to be repaid out of the calls on shares. At that time the Act constituting the railway co. had not been passed, & the £500 was borrowed to pay the fees necessary to its passing. The Act contained a clause providing for the payment by the co. of its expenses. After the Act was passed there was a resolution of the directors confirming the loan of £500, & the bank debited the railway co. in their accounts with the loan, & brought an action for it against the co., in which judgment was obtained; but there being no property of the co. to satisfy such judgment, the bank sued defts. for the repayment of the loan. No shares in the co. had ever been allotted, nor any call made, though more than three years had elapsed since the passing of the Act:—Held: as the railway co. were not in existence when the money was advanced, the £500 was advanced on the personal liability of defts., & defts. had not been exonerated from such liability by what had been done after the passing of the Act, or by the fact that no call had been made.—SCOTT v. EBURY (LORD) (1867), L. R. 2 C. P. 255; 36 L. J. C. P. 161; 15 L. T. 506; 15 W. R. 517.

799. Overdraft by exhibition promoters—Subsequent incorporation of exhibition—Personal liability of promoters—Novation.—In Apr., 1888, six persons formed themselves into an executive council for the purpose of promoting an exhibition in London, & opened an account with pl'ts. in the name of "The Irish Exhibition," on the understanding that cheques might be drawn by any two of the council & countersigned by the honorary secretary, & that they should be allowed to overdraw to the amount of £10,000 for the purpose of the exhibition. Afterwards the Irish Exhibition was incorporated by the name of "The Irish Exhibition," & pl'ts. received notice of the fact. No alteration was made in the heading of the account, which was then overdrawn, & cheques continued to be drawn as before. The exhibition failed & was wound up:—Held: the six promoters were liable, & the liability had not been transferred to the co. after its incorporation.—COUTTS & CO. v. IRISH EXHIBITION IN LONDON (1891), 7 T. L. R. 313, C. A.

800. Security for overdraft—New credit given under usurious agreement—Sum credited taken into account.—Deft., being indebted to pl'ts., his bankers, in nearly £30,000, about £21,000 of which was secured by bonds (a considerable part of which was advanced by them when stocks were below £50), agreed with them that they should place £25,000 to his credit in account, for which he was to purchase £50,000 stock (then at 51½) in their names, & account to them for the dividends upon such stock as from the last dividend day. After this agreement pl'ts., acting upon the basis of it, though deft. never purchased the stock so agreed upon, entered in their books the sum of £25,000, to the credit of deft., & continued to honour his drafts from time to time, crediting him also with other sums actually paid by him, & wrote off the amount of his bonds to his credit, & delivered them up to him:—Held: this agreement to repay the new credit of £25,000 by the purchase of stock as at £50, when in fact it was more at the time of the agreement made, though it had been less when a considerable part of the money was actually advanced upon his general credit, was usurious & void, but the sum of £25,000, credited under that agreement by pl'ts. to deft. in his banking account, was to be reckoned against them upon balancing the account of debtor & creditor between them.—BOLDERO v. JACKSON (1809), 11 East, 612; 103 E. R. 1143.

801. — Promise to hypothecate goods—Enforcement of promise—Consideration.—A banker required security from his customer for an overdrawn account. The customer, by letter, promised to hypothecate certain goods, but upon being asked for the delivery warrants, he refused to carry out his promise. Upon bill filed to enforce the promise:—Held: from the nature of the transaction, some forbearance to sue on the part of the creditor must be assumed to have taken place, & this was sufficient to prevent the promise to hypothecate from being nudum pactum.—ALLIANCE BANK, LTD. v. BROOM (1864), 2 Drew. & Sm. 289; 5 New Rep. 69; 34 L. J. Ch. 256; 11 L. T. 332; 10 Jur. N. S. 1121; 13 W. R. 127; 62 E. R. 631.

802. Loan by partner of bank—From partnership funds—Right of firm to sue.—A. applied to B., a member of a banking establishment, for a loan of money, which B. advanced out of the partnership funds, the amount being placed to the credit of a joint stock co., which had an account with the firm, for the purpose of paying calls on shares held by A.:—Held: the firm might sue A. for money lent.—*ALEXANDER v. Four persons opened a joint account with certain bankers, who had advanced to them money on such joint account. Upon the decease of one of the joint contractors:—Held: the bankers had a right in equity to immediate relief out of his assets, without claiming any relief against the surviving joint contractors, or showing that the latter were unable to pay by reason of their insolvency.—*THORPE v. 804. — Husband & wife.—A husband, at the time of his marriage in Dec., 1902, had an account at a bank in S., which was transferred to the joint names of himself & his wife, & drawn on by both husband & wife. On May 18, 1903, when the husband was absent, the wife deposited with the bank the deeds of a house belonging to her, & charged them for the debt then or thereafter to become due to the bank from her either solely or jointly with any other person, & agreed to execute a legal mtge. containing a covenant for payment & a power of sale & other proper clauses. The wife died on Aug. 27, 1904, leaving furniture worth £300 to the husband absolutely, & the house she had mtgd. to the bank, worth about £1,400, to her husband for life, with remainder to her next of kin. The overdraft on May 18, 1903, was £107, & at the date of her death it was £414. The wife had paid in about £100 into the account:—Held: the inference was that the husband & wife agreed to provide jointly for current household expenses, & each of them ought to pay one moiety of the overdraft.—*Re SHAW, SHAW v. 805. Unauthorised overdraft by directors of building society—Winding up of company—Rights of bank.—A benefit building society which had never been incorporated & had no power to borrow money was allowed by its bankers to make large overdrafts, & the directors of the society signed a memorandum giving the bankers a lien upon all the society's deeds to secure all moneys which from time to time might be owing by the society to the bankers on the balance of the banking account. Annual balance-sheets showing the amounts due to the bankers were sent to all the members of the society & adopted at the annual meetings. The society was afterwards ordered to be wound up & as the overdrafts were ultra vires, being a borrowing unauthorised by the rules, the official liquidator brought an action against the bankers to recover all moneys which had been paid to them by the society & applied by the bankers in discharge of their loan to the society:—Held: (1) it was no answer to such action that the moneys had been so applied by the order of the directors of the society under a mistake of law as to their power to borrow, since the acts of the directors both in borrowing & in directing the application of the moneys were unauthorised & not binding on the society; (2) there had been no ratification of such acts of the directors by all the members of the society; (3) the bankers should stand in the place of withdrawing members of the society, who had been paid on notice of withdrawal out of moneys so advanced by the bankers, & receive the amounts which would be payable to such members if they had not been paid off, & should have the benefit of securities obtained by the society by means of overdrafts allowed by the bankers & the benefit of such securities according to their order of priority without being postponed until after other securities granted to the society.—BLACKBURN & DISTRICT BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETY v. 806. Notice forbidding overdraft—Dishonour of cheque—Special course of dealing.—C., a merchant who received consignments of goods from abroad, was accustomed to deliver to a bank, where he kept an account, the bills of exchange drawn on him against such consignments, together with the bills of lading. The bank paid the bills of exchange & placed the amount to C.'s account, & they handed over the bills of lading to a broker on receiving his undertaking to repay the amount of the bills of exchange out of the proceeds of the goods when sold. On these occasions, if the sum so placed to C.'s debit was taken as an actual debit, his account was overdrawn, but if that sum was not regarded, there was a balance in his favour. C. was, nevertheless, allowed to draw against his cash account as if the amount advanced had not been placed to his debit. At length, some goods remaining unsold, & the market price having gone down, the bank refused to pay a cheque drawn by C., whereupon he brought an action:—Held: it was properly left to the jury to say whether the course of dealing between C. & the bank was on the footing that he was to be allowed to draw against the cash part of his account, & that the sums guaranteed by the broker were not to be taken into account against him, unless the goods failed to satisfy them, or whether the bank was merely in the habit of indulging him by allowing him to overdraw his account, & they were properly directed that if the former, C. was entitled to a reasonable notice that the bank declined to continue that course of dealing.—CUMMING v. SHAND (1860), 5 H. & N. 95; 29 L. J. Ex. 129; 1 L. T. 300; 8 W. R. 182; 157 E. R. 1114.

807. Security to cover overdraft—Disturbance of security by customer—Withdrawal of right to overdraw—Closing of account.—Pltf. opened a current account with a branch bank at B., depositing with them title deeds of his as a security for any balance due on his account. On Oct. 21, 1887, pltf. conveyed the property to another party as security, & next day the bank had notice of it. There was then due from pltf. on his banking account the sum of £365 9s., & the bank, upon receiving the notice, "ruled off" his account & calculated interest thereon up to that date, & of this the bank alleged pltf., their customer, had notice, & they told him, as he admitted, that "the security was disturbed & that to continue the overdraft they must have other security." No further cheques were paid in or drawn on the account until Dec., 1888, when he paid in a cheque for £70, which was simply received without any remark as to his account. Next day he drew a cheque for £70. On the 6th he paid in £30, & later on the same day his cheque for £70 was presented, & refused, for which an action was brought. The defence set up was that by the conveyance of Oct., 1887, the security was destroyed as to any future advances, because by reason of the notice the bank would be postponed in favour of the legal owner to whom the property had been conveyed, & further, that pltf. had notice from the manager at the time the £30 cheque was paid in that he could not draw against those sums, as they would be applied in payment of the balance due. As to this the evidence was contradictory. Before the trial the balance had been paid off. The trial judge ruled that notice was necessary to the customer that his credit was stopped, even assuming that the security was destroyed as to future advances, & that without such notice it was not to be assumed that, if the security was taken as limited to a specific past advance, all sums paid in must be taken as paid in reduction of the balance due, & it was not material that the bank had lost their security, & closing the account in their books was nothing without notice to their customer. On application for a new trial, on the ground that notice was not necessary, as the security was destroyed, & that, even if it was necessary, there was such strong evidence of it that the verdict was against the evidence:—Held: judgment should be given for defts., & it was unnecessary to direct a new trial.—PARKINSON v. WAKEFIELD & CO. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 562, 646, C. A.

808. Evidence of loan—Cheque drawn by two persons.—A cheque drawn by two persons upon a banker to secure the amount of a loan from the banker is evidence of a loan to both persons, though one alone should in the first instance have applied for the loan, & have had, throughout, the use of the money.—COBB v. SNOWDON (1849), 13 L. T. O. S. 233.

809. Discharge of overdraft—Payments into current account — Appropriation of payments.—Where a customer has a current account & a loan account with a bank, under an arrangement that the two accounts must be kept distinct, the effect of the arrangement is that payments to the credit of the current account are appropriated to that account & cannot be taken in reduction of the loan account.

The sums paid into the current account are appropriated by the customer to that account, & cannot be used by the bank in discharge of the loan account without the consent of the customer. No customer could otherwise have any security in drawing a cheque on his current account, if he had a loan account greater than his credit balance or current account (SCRUTTON, L.J.).—BRADFORD OLD BANK, LTD. v. SUTCLIFFE, [1918] 2 K. B. 833; 34 T. L. R. 619; 62 Sol. Jo. 753; 24 Com. Cas. 27, C. A.

six months. On Aug. 6, 1914, when pltf.'s account was overdrawn, a moratorium was proclaimed. On Aug. 28 pltf., without making any express appropriation, paid a sum of money into his account, & defts. applied a part of it in discharge of the overdraft. On the following day pltf. drew a cheque upon the bank, but in consequence of the discharge of the overdraft his balance was not sufficient to meet it, & the cheque was dishonoured & returned to the holder marked "R. D." :—Held: the effect of the moratorium was to postpone the date of payment of the overdraft for a month, & defts. were not entitled in the circumstances to refuse payment of pltf.'s cheque.—ALLEN v. LONDON COUNTY & WESTMINSTER BANK, LTD. (1915), 84 L. J. K. B. 1286; 112 L. T. 989; 31 T. L. R. 210.

812. Advances for maintenance of lunatic's estate.]—A customer of a bank became of unsound mind. His son arranged with the bank to continue the lunatic's banking account & to draw upon it on behalf of the lunatic for the maintenance of the lunatic's household & for the necessary outgoings of his estate. At the death of the lunatic the banking account was overdrawn. In a creditors' action to administer the real & personal estate of the lunatic the bank claimed to prove as creditors for the amount of the overdraft, which included usual bank charges for interest & commission:—Held: the bank were not entitled to prove for interest & commission on the overdraft.—*Re BEAVAN, DAVIES, BANKS & Co. v. 815. Compound or simple interest — Knowledge of customer.]—In an action by bankers for money lent & interest:—Held: it was not sufficient to show that it was the general custom of the house to charge interest calculated upon half-yearly rests, without also showing that deft. knew that such was the practice.—MOORE v. VOUGHTON (1816), 1 Stark. 487.

816. ——— Fiduciary position of bank—Loans to trust account.]—By an assignment for benefit of creditors, full powers of borrowing money at interest from any bankers or other persons were conferred upon the trustees of the deed. Two of the trustees carried on business as bankers in partnership with other persons, & the third was a clerk in the bank. An account was opened by the trustees with the bank, & advances were made upon this account, in respect of which the banking firm claimed to make annual rests & to charge interest on the balances according to their usual practice as bankers:—Held: having regard to the fiduciary position of the trustee partners, only simple interest could be allowed.—*CROSSKILL v. ## PART II. SECT. 20, SUB-SECT. 2.

811 i. Whether chargeable — Debit balance at one branch—Credit balance at another.]—A bank has a right to charge interest on a debit balance due by a customer at one branch of the bank while he has a credit balance at another branch; & it is not incumbent upon the bank, before suing for the interest, to blend the two accounts, crediting the amount which has been from time to time charged as interest on the overdrawn account by reference to the account which has been at the same time in credit.—NATIONAL BANK OF NEW ZEALAND v. GRACE (1890), 8 N. Z. L. R. 706.—N.Z.

811 ii. ——— Mortgage—Bank not bound to pay off mortgage from customer's current account.]—In the absence of special direction to that effect a banker is not bound to pay off a mtge. which he has against his customer from the latter's current account, & interest is properly charged upon it, until the customer directs that the principal shall be paid off.—THAKUR JAWAHIR SINGH v. LACHMAN DAS (1905), 9 C. W. N. 745.—IND.

811 iii. ——— Death of customer.]—Testator of defts. had, previous to his decease, obtained a large overdraft with pltf. on the security of the deposit by way of equitable mtge. of certain deeds. Nothing was said about interest at the time, but he had obtained overdrafts previously on which he had paid interest, & he had been charged with interest on that particular overdraft, which he had never objected to. After his decease pltf. filed a bill for sale under such equitable mtge., & on taking the account, the master allowed to pltf. interest on the overdraft which accrued due between the period of the death of testator & the reference to the master:—Held: pltf. entitled to such interest without any express contract.—*SOUTH AUSTRALIAN BANKING Co. v. Bankers took a mtge. security for a fixed sum owing to them by a customer, & subsequently continued the mtge. debt as part of the general account between them, which embraced various dealings & transactions, making rests & charging compound interest. 822 i. ——— Death of customer.]—According to the custom of banks only simple interest is payable on a customer's debt after death, unless there was an express contract for the payment of compound interest after death.—LORDEN v. BABINGTON (1897), 31 I. L. T. Jo. 477.—IR.

822 ii. ———.]—An action was brought by a banking co. against deft., as exor., to recover principal & interest on his testator's overdraft of his current account. For several years testator was in the habit of overdrawing his account. Testator's account, as furnished to him from time to time during his lifetime, charged him with compound interest on his overdrafts, with half-yearly rests in Mar. & Sept. He died on Dec. 3, 1880. At his death the period for capitalising the interest current from the last statement of accounts had not arrived.—Held: the bank entitled to six years' simple interest on the amount due at the customer's death until paid.—PROVINCIAL BANK OF IRELAND v. O'REILLY (1890), 26 L. R. 1r. 313.—IR.

822 iii. ——— Express contract binding executors.]—S. opened an account with the N. Bank, & was allowed to overdraw same to the amount of £1,500, having signed the following agreement:—"In the event of my account being overdrawn at any time during the continuance of my dealings with the N. Banking Co., it is understood that the account is to be subject to all charges & interest which may be charged by the bank from time to time on such accounts, & in the event of my death such interest & charges are to continue until the account be paid off"—Held: (1) there was an express contract that compound interest at the rate charged by the bank & paid by S. during his lifetime should be paid by his exors. on the balance due at his death; (2) as it has been partly composed of interest turned into principal by rests, & interest on that interest, according to the course of dealing between a banker & his customers.—RUFFORD v. BISHOP (1829), 5 Russ. 346; 7 L. J. O. S. Ch. 108; 38 E. R. 1058.

822. ——— Death of customer.]—A bank charged its customer with interest with annual rests upon his overdrawn account, & after the death of the customer made a claim against his estate for further interest upon the same basis:—Held: from the customer's death only simple interest at 5 per cent. should be allowed upon the ascertained balance.—*WILLIAMSON v. 823. ———.]—A firm of two bankers were accustomed to keep the accounts both of the customers & of the partners at compound interest. One accounts were regularly stated & settled by S. with full means of knowledge of his rights, it would be inequitable to allow the exors. of S. to open up the settled transactions.

When a deed is given as a security for a fixed & definite sum, at a fixed rate of interest, & not for the general balance of a banking account, it is not open to the bank in the absence of express contract, contained in the deed itself or in some instrument of equal degree, to charge compound interest upon this sum or include it in the general banking account.—*STEWART v. 830. Debiting bills advised for payment—Non-payment of bills—Interest charged on overdraft—Custom.]—*Deft. was in the habit of accepting bills payable in London, & once a month advised his bank as to such bills so that they might provide for their payment. The bank advised their London agents, debiting deft.'s account with the amount advised, & being debited by their agents with the amount of the bills presented & paid. Some of the bills so advised were never presented or paid, & after the lapse of many months the bank cancelled the instructions for payment, but did not advise deft. of the non-presentment of the bills. Some of the unpaid bills had stood to deft.'s debit for nearly twenty years, & as deft. was charged with interest on overdrafts, part of the interest so charged was interest or compound interest on the amounts of unpaid bills. It was alleged to be the custom of country bankers to debit their customer's account with the amount of bills so advised for payment without giving notice to the customer that any such bills had not been presented for payment, & to continue to charge interest on any overdraft which included the debits, until the customer himself cancelled the advice :—Semble : the alleged custom was unreasonable & unjust.—*WEST OF ENGLAND & SOUTH WALES DISTRICT BANK v. The bank was incorporated by Act of Parliament, which prohibited the bank from holding land, except for the

of business premises ; & " to take & hold for the purpose of reimbursements only, & not for profit " :—Held : (1) the transaction was not a mtge., but an absolute conveyance ; (2) there was nothing in its incorporating Acts which took away from the bank the power to hold land absolutely.—*BARTON v. 834. Unauthorised discounting of deposited bills by bank—Bankruptcy of bank—Customer entitled to proceeds.—A customer deposited with a banker two bills for £1,000 indorsed by him for the amount of which it was agreed he should draw, the banker refusing to discount them. The customer only drew for £65, & the banker employed a broker to discount the bills, & became bkpt. in less than three weeks after they were originally deposited with him by the customer:—Held: the customer was entitled to the proceeds of the bills.—Re Wise, Ex p. EDWARDS (1842), 2 Mont. & De G. 625; 11 L. J. Bcy. 36; 6 Jur. 877, Ct. of R.

835. Advance to agent—Upon bills drawn on principal—Failure of principal—Liability of agent.—A banking co., whose chief office was in London, but who had offices & carried on business in Australia, made advances at the request of M. & R. to C., the agent of M. & R. in Australia, upon bills of exchange drawn by him upon M. & R. These bills were dishonoured by M. & R., who had entered into a deed of composition with their creditors, which was executed on behalf of the banking co. Dividends had been received under this deed by the banking co. who had brought an action in Australia against

C. for the amount of their advances upon the bills, & damages for their non-acceptance. An injunction was granted restraining the banking co. from proceeding in the action, they having been distinctly informed that the bills were drawn by C. as agent for M. & R., whom they had relieved by executing the deed, & taking a dividend thereunder.—WALKER v. BROOKS (1856), 4 W. R. 347.

836. Advance to company—On bills remitted to cover acceptances—Winding up of company—Right of remitting bank to recover.—The L. Bank established a credit agency with G. Co. in London, & agreed to send remittances within ninety days to cover drafts. G. Co., being in difficulties, obtained an advance of money from the P. Bank, to be repaid out of expected remittances from the L. Bank to cover bills then current, & the P. Bank employed as agents to receive & select from the expected securities the managing director of G. Co., & their own managing director, who had been, two years previously, the manager of G. Co., & was cognisant of & party to the arrangement with the L. Bank. The securities were selected by & handed over to the P. Bank upon their arrival, & the following day G. Co. stopped payment & was wound up:—Held: the L. Bank had no title to recover the securities from the P. Bank.—BANCO DE LIMA v. ANGLO-PERUVIAN BANK (1878), 8 Ch. D. 160; 38 L. T. 130.

837. Promissory note—Bank parting with possession—Right to recover.—A. deposited with B., a banker, a promissory note as security for advances:—Held: B. was entitled to recover on the note, although before it became due he parted with the possession to enable A. to procure payment from the maker, & although the note remained in A.'s hands till his bkpey., & then came into the possession, taking to keep up the stock of sulphate from time to time. The sulphate was made into paper & sold, the proceeds being turned over to plffs., on account of other advances made. Deft., in an action on the notes, contended that he should be credited with the value of the sulphate in the paper so sold, of which plffs. received the proceeds, which amount would extinguish his liability on his promissory notes:—Held: plffs. entitled to judgment for full amount.—QUEBEC BANK v. CRAIG (1912), 22 O. W. R. 874; 3 O. W. N. 1635; 6 D. L. R. 573.—CAN.

d. — Accommodation indorsement—Unauthorised pledge as collateral security—Bank holder in due course.—The bank having refused further loans to a trading co. until its current liability to the bank was reduced, a note by the co. in favour of its directors was specially indorsed to the bank by them & handed to the co.'s manager, who had charge of its financial affairs, with instructions to have the note discounted, but without authority to pledge it. Without informing the bank of his restricted power to deal with the note, the manager deposited it with the bank as collateral security for the co.'s current liability & in consideration of the deposit, obtained fresh advances from the bank by discounts of the co.'s trade paper. At the maturity of the note, the trade paper had been retired & an overdraft on the co.'s account had been covered, but the general indebtedness of the co. for former loans still subsisted:—Held: the bank entitled to enforce payment of the note as holder in due course for valuable consideration & to recover thereon the amount of the co.'s general indebtedness remaining unsatisfied.—COX v. CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE (1912), 22 W. L. R. 226; 46 S. C. R. 564; 8 D. L. R. 30.—CAN.

e. — Bank taking security from maker—Discharge of indorser.—Action on a promissory note indorsed by deft., who pleaded that it was indorsed on the express understanding that he was not to be called upon to pay it, & that he was discharged by the bank subsequently taking security from the makers. The jury found that the bank, on taking security, had agreed that the note in suit should be paid out of the proceeds of collateral held by the bank, & gave a verdict in deft.'s favour:—Held: a new trial must be ordered, as the finding of the jury did not warrant the verdict for deft.—ST. STEPHEN'S BANK v. BONNESS (1895), 24 S. C. R. 710.—CAN.

f. — Defect in title of Knowledge of bank.—Qu.: whether, in the absence of other evidence, the fact that a banker knew that a small percentage of many notes, made to a certain customer in respect of other transactions & pledged by him as collateral security, were tainted with fraud would reasonably lead the banker to suspect that all notes made to that customer were so tainted.—UNION INVESTMENTS Co. v. GRIMSON (1916), 33 W. L. R. 845; 9 W. W. R. 1430.—CAN.

g. Rights of bank as bonâ fide holder in due course—Notes of third party as collateral security—Failure of consideration between maker & payer.—Deft. made a note in favour of S. for the amount of a bill of exchange. S. failed, & the bill was dishonoured. Before the note came due, & before the failure of S., it was deposited by him with a number of other notes with plffs. as collateral security for the payment of certain bills of exchange, on which he was liable to plffs., the agreement being, that if the bills were not paid, the proceeds of the notes were to be applied in payment of the amount, but if the bills were paid, plffs. were to collect the notes & place the amount to the credit of S. The amount of notes deposited by S. with the bank as collateral security never exceeded his indebtedness, & at the time the note in question was indorsed to plffs., & when S. failed, there was a considerable deficiency:—Held: plffs. were bonâ fide holders for value, & were not affected by the failure of consideration between deft. & S.—COMMERCIAL BANK v. PAGE (1871), N. B. Dig. 113.—CAN.

h. — Defect in customer's title.—The mere existence of a liability of a customer to a bank on a promissory note not yet due is not a sufficient consideration, under Bills of Exchange Act, R. S. C., 1906 (c. 119), s. 53, for the transfer by the customer to the bank of the promissory note of a third party as collateral security, so as to constitute the bank the holder in due course of such promissory note or to give the bank a better title to it than the customer had as against the maker, unless there is evidence that such note was transferred pursuant to a previous agreement to give security.—BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA v. McCOMB (1911), 21 Man. L. R. 58.—CAN.

k. "Negotiation"—Renewal of note.—A renewal of a note is not a negotiation of it within Bank Act, 53 Vict. c. 31, s. 75, so as to support a security taken at the time of the renewal in substitution for a previously existing security.—BANK OF HAMILTON v. SHEPHERD (1884), 21 A. R. 156.—CAN.

l. — Person giving security not at liberty to draw against proceeds of bill or note.—A bill or note taken by a bank on acquiring a security in form C to Bank Act, 53 Vict. c. 31, ss. 71, 75, is not "negotiated" at the time of the acquisition thereof within the latter sect., when the person giving the security, & to whose account the proceeds of the bill or note are credited, is not at liberty to draw against them except on fulfilling certain other conditions.—BANK OF HAMILTON v. HALSTED (1897), 27 O. R. 135; 24 A. R. 152; 28 S. C. R. 235.—CAN.

838. — Bankruptcy of customer—Liability of maker.]—A. gave his promissory note to B., upon which B. by deposit thereof at his bank raised money, & paid same to A., being indebted to him. Accounts were subsequently settled between A. & B., but the note remained at the bank, the money being still due by B. to the bank. B. having become insolvent, the bank brought an action against A. for the note. A. insisted that the note had been discharged by B. in the course of his dealings with the bank. An injunction was granted to restrain the action at law, & inquiries were directed whether B. was a contracting party to the state of the accounts in the bank books, & whether the sums paid into the bank by B. were paid in with specific appropriations.—MOSTYN v. BURDEKIN (1839), 3 Jur. 52.

839. Promise by clerk not to present—Liability of maker—Consideration.]—A. having been in partnership with B., on the dissolution undertook to collect & pay the partnership debts. A. & B. during the partnership had kept a joint account with a certain branch bank, but after the dissolution there was only a single account of A. kept there. A. having greatly overdrawn that account, obtained a promissory note for £500 from B., his former partner, which he indorsed to the bank as a security for his debt, just previous to a quarterly inspection of the accounts of the branch, the clerk who managed the branch promising that it should not be presented. He, however, kept it, & it was found among the securities of the branch, in his portfolio, when he was discharged from his situation:—Held: the directors of the bank might recover the amount from B.

The £500 note was given for value, because it was given to reduce the balance, which balance was brought about by the payment of the partnership debts. With respect to the bank, there was clearly, from the state of the account, a consideration by them for the note (GURNEY, B.).—BOSANQUET v. FORSTER (1841), 9 C. & P. 659, N. P.

840. Promissory note payable to bank—Change in firm—Continuing security—Appropriation.]—A., wishing to obtain credit with his bankers, in 1817 prevailed upon three persons to join him in a promissory note, whereby they jointly & severally promised to pay the bankers or order £300. The bankers gave A. credit in his pass-book for £300 on account of the note, & charged him with interest for same yearly. Upon two of the partners retiring from the banking house a balance was struck between the old & new firm, & the promissory note was delivered to the new firm, but not indorsed to them. The same course was subsequently adopted on the death of a partner & the introduction of new partners. A. at one time had in the hands of his bankers a balance exceeding the amount of the note. He paid interest to the banking house annually:—Held: the note being payable to the five members of the banking house or order, & being evidently intended to be a continuing security, the makers were liable upon it, notwithstanding a change in the members of the banking house; (2) an action on the note (same not having been indorsed) was properly brought in the name of the payees of the note; (3) the note was not discharged by reason of A. at one time having in the hands of the banker a balance exceeding in amount the sum secured by the note.—PEASE v. HIRST (1829), 10 B. & C. 122; L. & Welsb. 81; 5 Man. & Ry. K. B. 88; 8 L. J. O. S. K. B. 94; 109 E. R. 396.

841. Accommodation cheque—Fraudulent agreement with bank agent—Customer credited—Liability of maker.]—Deft. gave a cheque to C., & received from him a counter-cheque, on the understanding that neither should be presented, but that deft.'s cheque should be returned in a few days. C., having overdrawn his account with his bankers, made a fraudulent agreement with the bank agent, to which deft. was not privy, that the cheque in question should be paid into the bank, so as in appearance to reduce C.'s balance, but that it should be afterwards returned, & no action brought upon it. Before it was returned the bankers, pl'ts., took possession of it & brought an action upon it against deft.:—Held: a plea of want of consideration for deft.'s giving the cheque to C., & for C.'s transferring it to pl'ts., was disproved by the evidence & deft. was liable.—BOSANQUET v. CORSER (1841), 8 M. & W. 142; 10 L. J. Ex. 275; 5 Jur. 369; 151 E. R. 983.

842. Bills & cheques as collateral security—Defect in title of customer—Bankruptcy of customer.]—A., being in partnership with B., entered, without the knowledge of B., into partnership with C., an agent of the firm of A. & B., for the sale of timber. The firm of A. and C. employed R., F. & Co. as their bankers, & C. brought cheques & bills to the bank with the names of A. & B. attached to them, which the bank held as collateral security to cover C.'s overdrafts. Upon A.'s death C. failed, & B. became bkpt.:—Held: the bankers were not in a position to prove their collateral security against B.'s partnership estate, as they neglected to ascertain the extent of either A.'s or C.'s authority to pledge B.'s credit, & no account being produced, it was impossible to distinguish any agency transactions from the general dealings of A. & C. with the bankers, whose title could not be higher than that of the parties with whom they dealt.—Re CROUDACE (1866), 15 L. T. 19.

SUB-SECT. 4.—BONDS, SCRIP, STOCKS, SHARES, ETC.

843. Advances on security of shares—Validity—Realisation.]—B. Co. was established in India to carry on the business of bankers in the most general terms. The articles of assocn. provided that the business should be regulated by such bye-laws as the directors might from time to time make, which should be entered in a book kept for the purpose, & signed by three of the directors. A bye-law made in the exercise of such power provided that the co. might accept shares in public cos. as security for a debt absolutely & bonâ fide previously due, but that shares in public cos. so accepted as security were not to be transferred to the co. The co. having taken as security for advances made by them the deposit of the certificates of a large number of shares in A. Co., a banking co., with blank transfers thereof, & powers of attorney to receive the dividends thereon, one of the Indian cts. decided in an analogous case that shares so deposited remained, in the event of the bkpcy. of the depositor, in his order & disposition. Thereupon a meeting of the directors of B. Co. was held, at which six directors were present, & a resolution was passed that any shares upon which loans were granted should be registered in the name of the manager or in the name of the co. The resolution was not entered in a book signed by three directors, but in pursuance of it the shares in A. Co. which were held as security for advances by B. Co. were registered in the name of B. Co. The transfers purported to be made to B. Co., "his exors., administrators & assigns," & were not exchanged for certificates. These bonds, by the custom & usage of the Stock Exchange, passed from hand to hand by delivery without transfer. The broker deposited the bonds with defts., his bankers, in exchange for certain other securities for his private account, which had been overdrawn for some time. Defts.' manager was aware that B. was a broker, but was not aware that he was depositing his customer's securities. B. having failed to repay the overdraft on his account, the bank claimed to hold the securities, & refused to deliver them to pltf. In an action against the bank to recover the securities or their equivalent:—Held: pltf. was not entitled to recover as against the bank, inasmuch as the securities were negotiable instruments, & the bank were bonâ fide holders for value, & the mere fact that the bank manager knew that the pledgor of the securities was a broker was not enough to affect the bank with notice that the securities were not his own, or to cast on them the duty of making inquiry.—BAKER v. NOTTINGHAM & NOTTINGHAMSHIRE BANKING CO., LTD. (1891), 60 L. J. Q. B. 542; 7 T. L. R. 235.

848. ——— Realisation of securities—Rights of clients.]—A firm of brokers kept two accounts with their bankers, a current account & a loan account. The brokers wrongfully deposited bonds of their clients to secure their general indebtedness to the bank, & also paid to the credit of their Co., which he had deposited with the P. Bank as security for an overdraft of £900, instructed D., a stockbroker, to purchase for him shares in the B. Co., for which D. was to provide the purchase money, & advance to pltf. £950 to pay off the overdraft & release the A. shares, which pltf. agreed to transfer to D. as security, together with the B. shares, when purchased, for the amount so advanced & interest. The B. shares were not purchased by D. On Dec. 1, 1890, D. obtained a loan of £2,350 from defts. on the security of the A. shares, & transferred them to defts. At the time of the transfer the share certificates were not produced, & defts. accepted a certificate of D. that the certificates were with the co. The co. declined, when the transfers were forwarded, to register them, not having the certificates, & defts. having called on D. for an explanation, he stated that he had been misinformed by his client (pltf.) that the certificates were with the co. Subsequently D. obtained an order from pltf. directing E., a stockbroker who held the certificates, to deliver them to him, & D. then forwarded the certificates to the co., who registered the transfers to defts. D., on Dec. 12, paid to defts. £3,300, which included the amount of the loan, & having sold the shares to several purchasers for the account of Dec. 12, tendered to defts. transfers from defts. to the purchasers, which were duly executed & registered in the books of the co.:—Held: defts., having had the transfers perfected to them without any notice of fraud or illegal dealing on the part of D., were purchasers for valuable consideration, without notice of any defect in their title.—COLLIS v. HIBERNIAN BANK (1893), 31 L. R. Ir. 261.—IR.

847 iii. ——— Rights of bank.]

On Apr. 18, 1887, J., a stockbroker, on the order of G., purchased shares through B., a stockbroker in London. The certificates of these shares had indorsed on them an assignment in blank & a power of attorney, & were treated as transferable from hand to hand by the mere delivery of the certificates. The shares were not taken up by J. from B. until Sept. 13, 1888, & during the entire of the time J. was employed by G., & was purchasing & selling stocks & shares for him. No deed of transfer was ever executed. On Sept. 25, 1888, J., without the knowledge of G., deposited the certificates with defts. as security for £550 advanced by them. On Sept. 16, 1889, defts. sold the shares:—Held: defts. had no notice, nor had reason to believe, that the shares were not the property of J., or that he had not authority to pledge them, & that as G. was not the registered owner, & as his name did not appear anywhere in connection with the shares, the shares were "in order" in the hands of J., & defts. were bonâ fide purchasers for valuable consideration without notice of any defect in the title.—HONE v. BOYLE, LOW, MURRAY & Co. (1891), 27 L. R. Ir. 137.—IR.

registered owners of railway shares, transferable in the books of the co., intrusted the share certificates, indorsed with transfers executed by them, with blanks for the names of the transferees, to D., a stockbroker, as "margin" to cover a loan, with which D. was to purchase shares in certain other cos. for pltf. D. deposited the share certificates, with other securities, with defts., as security for loans of £2,600 & £4,000. D. did not purchase any shares for pltf., but sent them contract notes, purporting to have done so. Pltf. did not learn of D.'s fraud until Dec. 24, 1890. On Jan. 24, 1891, pltf. gave notice to defts. that they were the owners of the shares. In May, 1891, defts., having filled up the transfers, were duly registered in the books of the co. Defts. claimed to hold the shares as security for the amount advanced by them to D.:—Held: pltf., having delivered to D. share certificates with indorsed transfers signed by them, though in blank, were estopped from asserting their ownership against defts., who had taken them bonâ fide for value, without notice, express or implied of pltf.' title.—WATERHOUSE v. BANK OF IRELAND (1892), 29 L. R. Ir. 384.—IR.

847 v. ——— ——— ———.]—The registered owners of shares in a co. gave to her brokers, for the purpose of selling the shares, the certificate of ownership, upon the face of which the shares were stated to be transferable on the books of the co. in person or by attorney upon current account moneys of P. which they had received to pay for stock. The purchase of the stock was never completed. The brokers having been declared defaulters, the bank opened a new liquidation account, to which they transferred £1,362 then standing to the credit of the current account & £7,500, the amount standing to the debit of the loan account. The bank never, in fact, appropriated the £1,362 to meet the debit, but realised £7,500 by selling a sufficient part of the deposited bonds:—Held: as against any right in P. to follow the £1,362, the owners of the deposited bonds, in calculating the amount for which the bonds were a security, were entitled to have the £1,362 first applied in reduction of the debit.—MUTTON v. PEAT, [1900] 2 Ch. 79; 69 L. J. Ch. 484; 82 L. T. 440; 48 W. R. 486; 44 Sol. Jo. 427, C. A.

849. ——— ——— Fraudulent deposit—Liability of bank.]—G. purchased through his broker some Russian & some Hungarian scrip; the undertaking in the scrip was to give to the bearer a bond for the money advanced payable with interest in the way there stated. G. left the scrip (to be exchanged for bonds or sold, as he should direct) in the hands of his broker, who fraudulently deposited it with a banker as security for a loan to himself:—Held: the scrip was a negotiable instrument transferable by mere delivery, & the banker, being a bonâ fide holder for value, was not liable to G., either in trover for the scrip itself or in assumpsit surrender of the certificate, & upon which was indorsed a transfer & power of attorney, signed by her, & having a blank left for the name of the transferee. The brokers deposited the certificate as security for advances to them with a bank, who received it in the ordinary course of business without any notice of the owner's rights:—Held: the bank were entitled to hold the shares as against the owner.—SMITH v. 847 vi. ——— ——— Equitable ownership—Negligence of bank.]—A., a broker, deposited with a bank a blank transfer of railway stock, indorsed: "Transfer & certificate for stock in co.'s office." More than a year afterwards C., to whom B. had sold the stock, & the bank, apprehending the failure of A., filled up their respective transfers, & lodged them with the co. for registration. The co. refused to register either transfer. C. brought an action against the bank to establish his right to be registered as the owner of the stock:—Held: the bank were guilty of negligence in leaving the certificate outstanding, & by such negligence allowed A. to represent himself as the owner of the stock, & C. had a superior equity to the stock.—KELLY v. 850. ————.]—Scrip certificates, by which it was certified that, after the payment of certain instalments, the bearer thereof would be entitled to be registered as the holder of shares in a banking co., were issued to pltf. & by him deposited with a stockbroker for the purpose of paying the instalments remaining due, & dealing with such certificates as pltf. should direct. The broker, in fraud of pltf. & without his authority, deposited the scrip with defts. as security for an amount due from him, the broker, to defts. Defts. were not aware of the fraud. The usage among bankers, discounters, money dealers & on the Stock Exchange had been for many years to treat such scrip certificates as negotiable instruments transferable by mere delivery:—Held: defts. were entitled to the scrip certificates as against pltf. on the grounds (1) by reason of the usage the certificates had become negotiable instruments transferable by mere delivery; (2) pltf., by depositing with his broker instruments purporting to be transferable by delivery to a bond fide holder for value, was estopped from denying that they were so transferable.—RUMBALL v. 851. ————.]—An American co. issued to the registered shareholders share certificates for ten shares each, on the back of which there was a blank form of transfer & a blank form of power of attorney to execute a surrender & cancellation of the certificate. When the shares were transferred, the transfer & power of attorney were signed by the registered shareholder; & a holder who desired to be registered filled in his name by himself or by some one on his behalf, & the certificate was left with the co., the certificate was cancelled, the transferee registered, & a new certificate issued in his name. A purchaser of such shares permitted the certificates to remain with his brokers for registration. The brokers dealt fraudulently with the certificates by depositing them with bankers, but the bankers having re-delivered the certificates to the brokers for registration, the shares were registered in the purchaser's name:—Held: the purchaser's title must prevail over that of the bankers.—COLONIAL BANK v. 853. ————. Deposit & sale in breach of trust—Authority to sell—Liability of bank.]—G., a stockbroker & trustee, procured his two co-trustees, with a view to reinvestment, to execute a deed of transfer for nominal consideration of debenture stock to two persons who were trustees of debt. bank. G. then deposited the deed of transfer & the certificate with the bank to secure an advance made to him personally by the bank. Shortly afterwards G. repaid the bank the advance. Instead of re-transferring the stock to the three trustees, on Feb. 15, 1882, the bank trustees transferred the stock, & handed the certificates by G.'s direction to purchasers from G., who received the purchase-money & invested it, in Apr. & May, 1882, in his own name alone, in railway preference stock. In Aug., 1883, G. sold the preference stock & appropriated the proceeds to his own use, but paid the interest for some time to the tenant for life under the trust. In 1885 he absconded, & was made bkpt.:—Held: (1) G. had no general authority to sell the stock & receive & give a discharge for the purchase-money; (2) his authority, being limited to transferring the stock to the purchasers by means of the transfer executed by him & his co-trustees, was determined by the improper transaction of loan; (3) the bank by omitting to retransfer to the three trustees when the mtge. was paid off, & allowing the purchase-money to get into the hands of one alone without any authority express or implied to receive it, had by their conduct caused the loss to the trust fund, & were liable to make it good, & were not released from this liability by any subsequent carelessness on the part of G.'s co-trustees.—MAGNUS v. (alleged to be negotiable securities), for the purpose of raising £26,000. E gave the securities to M., a money-dealer in London, to secure £26,000 advanced by M. to E. M. deposited the transfers & securities, together with other securities of his customers, with various banks, as security for large loan accounts running between him & them, the blanks in the transfers of stock being filled up with the names of nominees of the banks. The banks in so dealing either actually knew, or had reason to believe, that the securities did or might belong not to M. but to his customers. M. having become bkpt., the banks sold some of S.'s securities, & claimed to hold the proceeds & the unsold remainder as security for all the debt from M. to them:—Held: though the banks had the legal title to the securities, they were not purchasers for value without notice, but ought to have inquired into the extent of M.'s authority, & this whether the securities were negotiable or not, & upon payment to the banks of the money advanced by M. to E., S. was entitled to the value of such of the securities as had been sold by the banks, & to redeem the remainder.—*SHEFFIELD (EARL) v. 855. Advances to agent—Stock of principal—Constructive notice.—Bankers advanced to customers £300 to redeem some railway stock, which had been transferred to another firm as a security for that sum. The stock was thereupon transferred in blank to the bankers. Subsequently, the customers, in a letter to the bankers, stated that they had been requested by their "principal" to extend the term of the loan on the stock. The stock actually belonged to A., a third party:—Held: after the receipt of such letter, the bankers had constructive notice of A.'s right to the stock, & no subsequent advances made by the bankers to the customers could affect the stock.—LOCKE v. PRESCOTT (1863), 32 Beav. 261; 55 E. R. 103.

855 i. Advances to agent—Stock of principal—Notice.—S. sent money from England to R., to be invested in Canada for her, & R. subscribed for stock in a co. as "J. R. in trust," without naming for whom, & paid for it with S.'s money. Subsequently R. transferred to the manager of the M. Bank, as security for his indebtedness, shares of the co. which showed that he held the shares "in trust":—Held: there was sufficient notice to the bank that R. was acting as agent of S., & the bank, not having shown that R. had authority to sell or pledge the stock, S. was entitled to an account from the bank.—BANK OF MONTREAL v. SWEENEY (1887), 12 App. Cas. 617; 56 L. J. P. C. 79; 56 L. T. 897, P. C.—CAN.

o. Shares of another bank—Transfer to managing director of bank—Misappropriation by director—Liability to refund.—The E. Bank, in advancing money to F. on the security of M. Bank shares, caused the shares to be assigned to their managing director, & an entry to be made in their books that the managing director held the shares on behalf of the bank as security for the loan. The bank subsequently credited F. with the dividends accruing thereon. Afterwards the managing director pledged the shares to another bank for his own personal debt & absconded:—

Held: (1) on repayment by F. of the loan made to him the E. Bank was bound to return the shares or pay their value; (2) the prohibition to advance upon security of shares of another bank contained in the amendment to the general Banking Act applied to the bank & not to the borrower; (3) the subsequent amendment of the general Banking Act did not alter the charter of the E. Bank, under which the E. Bank had power to take the shares in question in its corporate name as collateral security; (4) to take such security was not ultra vires.—EXCHANGE BANK v. FLETCHER (1891), 19 S. C. R. 278.—CAN.

p. — Sale by bank before default—Measure of damages.—Pltf. pledged with debts, shares of bank stock as security for a loan, under an agreement providing that he was to keep up a cash margin of not less than 10 per cent. above the market price of the stock, & authorising the bank, in the event of default, "to sell or dispose of the security without notice, & to apply the proceeds in liquidation of the advance." The stock was transferred backwards & forwards by debts, by way of loan, but was not sold until default made:—Held: (1) if the stock was sold before default made, such sale was tortious; (2) the loan of the stock was a sale; (3) pltf. might elect either to claim damages or to affirm the sale & claim the proceeds & profits made by the bank, one element of the measure of damages being the highest point of the stock market between the conversion & the next default; (4) if default was made, the bank was entitled to sell the stock without notice, but only for the purpose of liquidating the advance, & credit must be given for the proceeds quire.]—On Sept. 29, 1904, pltf. was a customer of the U. Bank, where she had a current account & a loan account. On the loan account £1,900 was advanced, & there were certain securities deposited to secure that amount. Pltf., being anxious to change her account for family reasons, consulted her solr., C., who had acted for her for many years. As a result, C. informed pltf. that he had arranged with debts. to grant the loan on the same terms as she had had with the U. Bank, & asked her to sign certain documents in connection with the transaction. The material document was on the common printed form of debts. & was as follows: "At the request of C. I have transferred or caused to be transferred"—then the shares were mentioned & the names of the manager & sub-manager of debts.—"or their nominees as trustees for you to be held as collateral security for your advance to C." With this document C. went to debts. after the securities were transferred, obtained an addition to the loan of £1,900, & effected the transfer of the securities in such a way as to make them available to secure his general indebtedness to debts., which amounted to some £16,000 which he had from time to time obtained upon other securities. In 1911 pltf. required the return of her securities from C., which he promised, but they were never in fact returned, as C. absconded. Pltf. then brought an action to have her securities delivered to her by debts. subject to her paying the £1,900 which she admitted having received. The general nature of the transactions between C. & debts. was that advances were made by debts. to C. upon securities which belonged to third parties, who were clients of C. in the ordinary sense, & this was known to debts., though in a number of cases it might be that the clients were clients in respect of a mere financial business carried on by C. independent of his solr.'s business. It was contended for pltf. (inter alia) that debts. had such notice of the fiduciary relationship of C. to pltf. as to prevent their acting on the document:—Held: there was sufficient notice of the relationship existing or that probably existed at the current rates of the days on which the transfers were made, until the shares had been transferred.—CARNEGIE v. FEDERAL BANK OF CANADA (1885), 5 O. R. 418; 8 O. R. 75.—CAN.

q. Land warrants—Sale by bank on default—Bank Act, ss. 77 (2), 78.—Action to recover twenty-five South African land warrants deposited with debts. by pltf. as security for advances made to pltf., which pltf. alleged were sold by debts. & converted to their own use, or in the alternative for damages for the conversion. Debts. pleaded default in payment of advances & that they had given pltf. notice that they would sell the warrants if payment were not forthcoming, & that pltf. paid no attention to debts.' notice until there was a rise in price of the warrants in the market:—Held: the above sects. applied, & debts., having complied therewith, were not liable.—HEALEY v. HOME BANK (1911), 18 O. W. R. 71; 2 O. W. N. 550.—CAN.

r. Mining shares—Wrongful sale by bank—Measure of damages.—Pltf., having obtained advances from debts. on the security of land & mining shares, gave debt. a mtge., which provided that the mining scrip should not be sold without a demand being first made on him. In an action for damages for the improper sale of the shares without a demand having been first made, the shares having largely increased in value, & there being no suggestion against pltf. of lying by for an increase of value in the shares:—Held: the measure of damages to which pltf. was entitled was the value of the shares at the time the writ issued.—AMORRETTY v. CITY OF MELBOURNE BANK (1887), 13 V. L. R. 431.—AUS.

between pltf. & O. to have put debts upon inquiry, & they could not claim to be in a better position than they would have been if they had made inquiries, & pltf. was entitled to redeem the securities upon payment of £1,900.—JAMESON v. UNION BANK OF SCOTLAND (1913), 109 L. T. 850.

857. Stock deposited by customer—Defect in title—Rights of bank.]—Pltf. was induced by B. to sign a blank form of request & to send B. a certificate of stock, which B. fraudulently deposited with debts. Pltf. brought an action against debts. to recover the proceeds of the stock & denied that she gave B. any authority to fill up the blanks in the form or to deal with the certificate or stock except on her own behalf:—Held: debts. having obtained pltf.'s signature to the request, were not bound to make any further inquiry, or in any way to suspect B. of fraud, or to ascertain whether pltf. thoroughly understood what she had done, & they were bona fide purchasers for value without notice.—MURTON v. CITY BANK, LTD. (1891), 8 T. L. R. 86.

858. Bond of country customers—Acceptance of bills payable at London bank—Recovery of payments—Evidence.]—A bond given by country customers to bankers in London recited a request by the obligors to the obligees to pay from time to time bills of exchange, & bound the obligors to pay or remit cash to pay such bills at or before maturity, & from time to time to settle accounts & to pay such sums as upon the settling of such accounts should be found due to the obligees. In an action on the bond:—Held: the production by pltf. of bills of exchange accepted by debts., payable at the banking house of pltf., was sufficient prima facie evidence of a balance due to them to that amount, & rendered it incumbent on debts. to prove remittances in discharge of such balance or to show the actual state of the account.—LLOYD v. HEATHCOTE (1833), 2 L. J. Ex. 162.

859. Bond given to banking firm—Change in firm—Accounts combined by new firm—Appropriation of payments.]—A bond was given to the several persons constituting the firm of a banking-house, conditioned for the repayment of the balance of an account, & of such further sums as the bankers might advance to the obligor. One of the partners died & a new partner was taken into the firm, at that time a considerable balance being due from the obligor to the firm. Advances were afterwards made by the bankers, & payments made to them on account by the obligor, & the latter was credited by the new firm with the several payments, & charged with the original debt & subsequent advances as constituting items in one entire account, & the balance due at the time of the partner's death was considerably reduced. The reduced balance, by order of the obligor, was transferred by the bankers to the account of another customer, who, with his assent, was charged with the then debt of the obligor. The person so charged having become insolvent, the surviving partners of the original firm brought their action upon the bond:—Held: as they had not originally treated it as a distinct account, but had blended it in the general account with other transactions, they were not at liberty so to treat it at a subsequent period, & having received in different payments a sum more than sufficient to discharge the debt due upon the bond at the time of the death of the deceased partner, the bond was to be considered as paid. Qu.: whether the transfer of the balance due from the obligor to the account of another, with his assent, did not, in point of law, operate as payment.—BODENHAM

857 i. Scrip deposited by customer—Defect in title—Bank as bona fide purchasers for value.]—B., a widow of intemperate habits, under the influence & control of K., a widower, with whom she lived for some time, was, by fraud & undue pressure, induced by K. to deliver to him certain scrip, to be lodged by K. with debt. bank as security for a loan by the bank to K. The bank manager, beyond being informed that B. was staying at K.'s house, knew nothing about the relations existing between B. & K., & made no inquiry, & never saw B., but employed K. to obtain B.'s signature to the blank transfers of the scrip & to promissory notes, signed by her as collateral security for the loan. In an action by B., by the committee of her estate, against the bank, asking for a declaration that the deposit of the scrip created no equitable mtge., that the blank transfers were invalid, & that pltf.'s estate was not liable on foot of the promissory notes:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the declaration sought, on the grounds: (1) the bank were, by the circumstances of the transaction, put on inquiry, & not having made inquiry, were affected with notice of the invalidity of the transaction, & could not rely on the defence of purchase for value without notice; (2) the bank made K. their agent for the purposes of the transaction & K.'s knowledge must be imputed to the bank, who must stand or fall with K.—BUNBURY v. HIBERNIAN BANK, [1908] 1 I. R. 261.—IR.

s. Debenture bonds—Assignment for present & future advances—Assignment incomplete.]—In the year 1886 the C. Bank by deeds assigned to the L. Bank, London, certain debenture bonds to the value of £144,100, as security against advances to be made on current account, to be held so long as any amount remained due to the L. Bank. The bonds so assigned were held by the assignors for the purpose of collecting the annual interest due on same. In 1892 the indebtedness of the C. Bank was completely paid off, but the bonds were not reassigned & further advances were made, & on the suspension of the C. Bank in 1894, it was in debt to the L. Bank in excess of the value of the bonds assigned:—Held: (1) the registration law for deeds did not apply to such securities, & manual delivery of the bonds was not necessary to perfect their transfer; (2) the bonds were assigned as security for all future advances.—LONDON & WESTMINSTER BANK v. COMMERCIAL BANK TRUSTEES (1896), 7 Nfld. L. R. 854.—NFLD.

t. — Failure of company issuing & assigning—Right to interest.]—A co. issued to a bank, as security for advances, six debentures of the co. for £1,000 each, bearing interest at 5 per cent., accompanied by a letter of charge. The bank charged interest on the overdraft of the co. The co. was afterwards wound up. At the date of the winding up the co. was indebted to the bank in a sum larger than the amount of the debentures, exclusive of interest thereon, which had not been paid:—Held: the bank were entitled to interest on the debentures.—RE VINT & SONS, [1905] 1 I. R. 112.—IR.

u. Bonds deposited by directors of building society—Excess of borrowing powers—Rights of bank.]—The directors of a building society, at a time when they were alleged to have exceeded their borrowing powers, pledged bonds to their bankers as a security for a further loan:—Held: the bankers entitled to the security of the bonds, at all events for such of their advances as had been applied in payment of the debts & liabilities of the society which were properly payable.—*CAPE OF GOOD HOPE PERMANENT LAND, ETC., SOCIETY (IN LIQUIDATION) v. w. Bonds secured by mortgage of real estate—Additional security for debt contracted in course of business—Validity.]—Bonds secured by a mtge. of real estate were held by a bank as security for money advanced:—Held: within Banking Act, s. 4th, the bonds having been taken as additional security for a debt contracted to the bank in the course of its ordinary business, & also within s. 60, which permitted banks to hold as collateral security for an advance the bonds or debentures of other corps.—*NOVA SCOTIA CENTRAL RY. y. Bond to secure bank from loss on advances made—Construction—Misrepresentation.]—M. executed a bond to pay money. In certain events, to the bank. By an agreement, bearing even date it was recited that, in consideration of a mtge., the bank had agreed to make further advances to joint obligors with M., parties to the agreement, & that the agreement was executed to secure the bank in case there should be any deficiency in the assets of the firm, or in the value of the property comprised in the mtge., & to secure the bank from ultimate loss, & that if the firm should pay, then the bond & agreement should become wholly void. In a suit brought upon the agreement against M., alleging a deficiency in the assets of the firm & indebtedness to the bank, M. pleaded that the agreement had been executed by him on representation made to him by one of his co-obligors that it was to secure the bank against loss arising by reason of non-registration of the mtge., or by reason of over-valuation of property in the mtge., & not otherwise. The bank made no representations whatever to debts.:—Held: M. was bound by the execution of the documents, & liable upon them according to their tenor & effect.—*MOFFATT v. 860. Stolen bonds—Bank acting bonâ fide.]—On May 1, 1873, bonds to bearer were issued in London by B. & Co., bankers, as agents for an American railroad co. In Nov., 1883, one hundred & five of the bonds in the custody of B. & Co. in London were stolen. B. & Co. advertised the loss of the bonds & the numbers as widely as possible. On Mar. 2, 1891, pltf., a banker carrying on business in London & Paris, advanced in Paris, by way of loan to a customer, the sum of £2,000 upon the security of a deposit by the customer with pltf. of twelve of the bonds. Ten of the bonds deposited with pltf. formed part of the one hundred & five bonds stolen in 1883. B. & Co. gave pltf. notice that the ten bonds were their property, & refused to pay the interest on them. Pltf. brought an action against B. & Co. & the railroad co.:—Held: pltf. had no notice of the theft, & had not by his conduct precluded himself from recovering from defts.—*VENABLES v. 861. Bearer bonds—Redelivery for cheque—Cheque dishonoured—Trust.]—Pltf. banks lent money on bearer bonds to a firm of bill brokers. They called in those loans, & in accordance with the general practice in such cases, the bill brokers on the morning that the loans were repayable went to pltf., gave each of them a cheque for the amount of the call, & received in exchange the bonds that had been deposited as security. The cheques having been dishonoured, pltf. sued defts., who had received in the course of the same day the bonds in question from the bill brokers, pltf. alleging that by a practice or usage the bonds were impressed with a trust in their favour until the cheques were honoured:—Held: the bonds being negotiable & passing by delivery were not impressed with a trust in favour of pltf.—*LLOYDS BANK, LTD. v. 862. Forged transfer of corporation stock to bank—Innocent registration of security—Liability to indemnify corporation.]—A banker in good faith sent to a corp. a transfer of corp. stock which he held as security for an advance & which purported to be executed by T. & H., the two registered holders of the stock, with a request to the corp. to register the stock in the name of the banker. The corp. in good faith acted upon this request & granted a fresh certificate to the banker, who transferred the stock to third parties, & they were registered as holders. Afterwards it was discovered that T. had forged H.'s signature, & H. recovered against the corp. judgment whereby they were compelled to buy equivalent stock & register it in H.'s name, & to pay him the missing dividends with interest:—Held: both parties having acted bonâ fide & without negligence, the banker was bound to indemnify the corp. against the liability to H., upon an implied contract that the transfer was genuine.—*SHEFFIELD CORPN. v. SUB-SECT. 5.—POLICIES OF LIFE ASSURANCE.

863. Securing current account—Failure of customer—Letter closing account—Realisation of security.]—A customer of a bank mtgd. to the bank a policy of assurance on his life to secure the amount from time to time owing by him to the bank in account current. The mtge. provided that the statutory power of sale should be exercisable by the bank, if (among other events) default should be made in payment of the balance owing for the space of one calendar month after the account current had been closed. On Nov. 9, 1899, the customer wrote to the bank manager: "There was a meeting of creditors yesterday. They agreed to accept all the assets I had. I gave them to understand that I was insured, & that you held the policy as security for your account. There was a trustee appointed. Trusting every one will get 20s. in the pound" etc. On Dec. 18 the bank sold the policy under the power in the mtge.:—Held: the letter amounted to a closing of the account, & the bank were justified in realising their security.—*BURY v. 863 i. Securing current account—Equitable mortgage—Interest.]—The deposit of a life policy with a bank, with intent to create a security for the balance of an account current, has the effect of an equitable mtge. giving a right to simple interest on the balance of the account owing on the termination of the relation of a banker & customer. — *PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. a. As collateral security—Subsequent advances for compromise with creditors—Signature of bank to composition—Rights of bank.]—A bank, which succeeds in securing from its debtor the transfer to itself of insurance policies, as collateral security, representing a larger sum than the amount of its indebtedness, & which advances money to its debtor to enable him to effect a compromise with his creditors, & itself consents to compromise a definite part of its own claim, does not thereby commit a fraudulent act, & it may retain possession of such collateral security, even when it has signed the composition without reserving its rights. The bank, even after signing the composition, has the right to have the ownership of such insurance policies transferred to it.—BANQUE DE ST.

b. Assignment for "value received"—Assignor's right to return on payment of debts.]—An assignment of a life policy to a bank for "value received" is deemed an additional security for what the assignor owes the bank, & after that has been paid he has the right to recover his policy, & it is of no avail for the bank to plead the terms of the assignment, whereby it is given the right to "receive, collect, & recover from the insurance co., either upon the death of the transferor or at the maturity of the policy, the amount thereof, with

SUB-SECT. 6.—GOODS &amp; DOCUMENTS OF TITLE TO GOODS.

864. Deposit of goods by surety—Loan repaid—Subsequent loan & repayment—Retention against surety.]—Goods were deposited with bankers on behalf of A., a customer, to secure an advance made by the bankers to B., on guarantee of A. This advance was made & repaid. Afterwards, & whilst the goods were still in the hands of the bankers, B. negotiated with them for another loan, to which A. was not proved to be privy, & a second loan was made by the bankers to B., which A. subsequently repaid. Trover being brought against the bankers, they pleaded A.'s lien:—Held: the second advance must be taken to have been made profits, & the amount so received to be credited upon any indebtedness then due by the insured.—AYOTTE v. QUEBEC BANK (1913), Q. R. 22 K. B. 547.—CAN.

c. *Assignor also agent of insurance company—Notice of assignment.]—*H., a trader, & local agent of an insurance co., of which the head office was in Dublin, effected with it upon his own life two policies, which he assigned to a banking firm, whose debtor he was. At the times of the respective assignments a formal notice thereof was given to him as agent of the co.:—Held: as between the banking firm & H.'s assignee in bkpy. the notice was insufficient.—Re HENNESSY (1842), 5 L. d. *Fire policies on customer's property made payable to bank—Validity.]—*Where a co. is being wound up under N. B. Winding-up Act, a bank is entitled to an order for the payment to it of the proceeds of policies of fire insurance effected by the co. on their property, & made payable, in case of loss, to the bank as interest may appear, under a verbal agreement between the bank & the co. that the policies should be so effected as security for advances which the bank from time to time might make, the bank having no interest in the property insured. Such a transaction is not prohibited by Bank Act, 1890, s. 64.—Re SHEDIAC BOOT & SHOE CO. (1905) 37 N. B. R. 98.—CAN.

PART II. SECT. 21, SUB-SECT. 6.

e. *Bills of lading—Signed in favour of bank—Equitable lien of bank.]—*A bank, under an agreement with a customer, advanced money to him to enable him to buy cattle, which, when purchased, were to be forwarded by rail by him to M., & shipped by steamship thence to L., the bank having no control over the cattle until they reached the vessel, when they were to be received by the steamship for the bank, & the customer's possession & control over them was to end, bills of lading therefor in favour of the bank being then signed:—Held: (1) apart from Bank Act, R. S. C., c. 120, by virtue of the agreement between the bank & its customer, the possession of a special property in the goods passed to the bank; (2) under Bank Act, s. 53 (4), the bank had an equitable lien upon the cattle from the time of the making of the agreement; (3) the bank "acquiesced" in the bills of lading within Bank Act as soon as the cattle were received by the steamship, although it did not at that time actually "hold" the bills.—Re CENTRAL BANK, CANADA SHIPPING CO.'S CASE (1891), 21 O. R. 515.—CAN.

f. *Goods sold with consent of pledgor—Implied warranty of title.]—*A bank sold goods to pltf. The bank were never in actual possession of the goods, but a bill of lading was indorsed to them as security for advances, & the bill of lading was indorsed & delivered by the bank directly to pltf. The bank professed to sell with a good title, when by defts. on A.'s credit, & the plea was supported by the proof.—O'CONNOR v. MAJORIBANKS (1843), 12 L. J. C. P. 161; 7 Jur. 834.

865. Goods pledged with power of sale—Authorised sale by pledgor—Title to proceeds.]—Applts., bankers, advanced resps. £5,000 on the security of phosphate rock, pledged by resps. to them under an agreement giving applts. an immediate power of sale, & authorising resps. to enter into contracts for the sale of the merchandise on applts.' behalf. Applts. handed resps. the bill of lading to obtain delivery & sell the merchandise on their behalf:—Held: applts.' security was not affected & they were entitled to the proceeds of the phosphate against the general creditors of resps.—NORTH WESTERN BANK, LTD. v. POYNTER, to show the consignee was their agent, & they had acquired no control over the goods.—WILSON v. BANK OF MONTREAL (1870), 20 C. P. 411.—CAN.

1. *Delivery order as collateral security—Whether pledge or absolute transfer.]—*A. borrowed a sum of money from a bank on a bill of exchange, & as a collateral security, he agreed to give them a quantity of brandy in a bonded warehouse. This was done by a delivery order ex facie absolute, & the matter entered in the warehouse-keeper's books in similar terms. The delivery order was accompanied by a letter to the bank, stating that the brandy was to be held as a collateral security until the bill should be retired. Before the bill came to maturity the party borrowed an additional sum from the bank, without any reference being made to the brandy. The bill was retired when due, the other debt being still unpaid, & the brandy remaining in the name of the bank. Shortly after the bill had been retired the party became bkpt. The trustee claimed the brandy for behoof of the creditors, & raised an action for restitution of it:—Held: the contract was not one of pledge, but that the transference was absolute, conferring a real right upon the bank, qualified only by a latent obligation to restore upon certain conditions, & defenders assailed.—HAMILTON v. WESTERN BANK OF SCOTLAND (1856), 29 Sc. Jur. 77.—SCOT.

865 ii. —By factor—Title of bank as against true owner.]—A co. stored for consignees wheat, which was placed in one large stack, which also included wheat belonging to the co. The co. made advances to consignees upon the wheat received, borrowing the money from deft. bank & giving the bank, as security in respect of each advance, a certificate signed by their storeman, stating that the co. held a certain number of bags of wheat which they would deliver to the bank's order on return of the certificates, & these certificates were indorsed by the co. directing delivery to the order of the bank. Pltf. consigned seven thousand bags of wheat, which was dealt with by the co. as above stated. Before pltf. received any intimation from the co. that any of his wheat had been sold, he sold six thousand bags of it through a broker, informed the bank of the sale & that he had given the broker an order for the wheat, & asked the bank to indorse that order for delivery upon the broker paying all charges. The bank replied that they held warrants from the co. for wheat stored at various places which they had negotiated without knowledge of claims by third parties, in fact, they had not a good title, & pltf. could not by any diligence have obtained the goods:—Held: the transaction must be regarded as a sale by the bank as pledgees with the concurrence of the pledgor, & not as a mere transfer of the interest of the bank under the bill of lading, & pltf. entitled to recover the price as upon an implied warranty of title & failure of consideration.—PEUCHEN v. IMPERIAL BANK (1890), 20 O. R. 325.—CAN.

g. *Goods sold by debtor—Duty to take in account.]—*A bank, which receives a bill of lading as collateral security for payment of a debt incurred by it, under 34 Vict. c. 5, s. 46, & which does not obtain possession of the animals covered by the bill of lading which are sent to Europe by the bank's debtor & there sold by his representative, is not bound to account for the sale of those animals to its debtor, when seeking to recover the debt, but only to account for what it received as the produce of the sale from the person who sold the animals.—MERCHANTS BANK v. MCSHANE (1885), 16 R. L. 682.—CAN.

h. *Continuing security with power of sale—Customer's receipt signed after sale—Release of bank.]—*Pltf. obtained from defts. an advance upon a draft drawn upon a broker, to which draft were attached six bills of lading for thirty thousand bushels of oats shipped to the broker. This was accompanied by a memorandum of hypothecation, signed by pltf., which provided that the securities, renewals, substitutions, & the proceeds thereof, were to be held by defts. as a general & continuing collateral security for the payment of the present & future indebtedness & liability of pltf., & any ultimate unpaid balance thereof, & that same might be realised by defts. in such manner as might seem to them advisable, & without notice to pltf. in the event of default. Defts., without giving any written notice or otherwise complying with Bank Act, s. 89, sold the oats. Shortly afterwards the price rose. At the end of the month in which the sale was made, pltf. signed the usual customer's receipt, whereby he released the bank from all claims in connection with the charges & credits in the accounts & dealings up to the end of the month:—Held: the release was valid & given for a good consideration, & was sufficient to bar pltf.'s action for an account in respect of the oats.—*GRAVES v. k. *Consignee obtaining advances—Goods sold to repay advances—Liability of bank.]—*Pltf. shipped grain from P., consigned to his agent at O., directing the consignee to hold it subject to defts.' order. The local agent of defts. at P. concurred therein, but no advance was made on account of the grain, nor any bill of lading indorsed to defts., nor other transfer of title made. The consignee obtained advances at O. on the grain, & it was sold to repay them:—Held: defts. were not liable for such sale to pltf., for there was no evidence

865 iii. — Subsequent sale by customer—Liability of purchaser.—C., obtaining advances from a bank to pay for goods to be used in manufacture, assigned such goods to the bank. A cargo having arrived, when the bank notified C. that further advances would be refused, he induced the manager, by promise of customers' paper as collateral, to give him the sum necessary to pay for it, & immediately after went to S., who had indorsed for him & was liable on a note for $2,800, & gave him a statement of his affairs & agreed to hand him the notes he would receive on selling the goods, which he did, & S. collected the notes. The bank sued S. for the amount so collected:—Held: S. had knowledge, or it would in law be imputed to him, of the bank's claim, & they could recover.—UNION BANK OF HALIFAX v. m. Shipping receipt—Customer's title incomplete—Receipt returned for sale & collection—Equitable title of bank.—C. & Son bought oats from persons, who shipped them to T. consigned to the sellers' own order, or to the order of some bank other than pltf.s., sending the shipping receipt with draft for the price of the oats attached to C. & Son. The latter then took the shipping receipt to pltf.s., who advanced the money thereon to pay the draft, returning the shipping receipt to C. & Son, for the purpose of obtaining the oats from the carriers, after taking from C. & Son a receipt in the following words:—"Received in trust from the D. Bank bill of lading for . . . bushels oats, & I hereby undertake to sell the property specified for the bank & collect proceeds of sale or sales thereof, & deposit same with the bank in T. to the credit of same, I hereby acknowledging myself to be bailee of the property for the bank." C. & Son received the oats from the carriers & warehoused them, taking warehouse receipts in their own name, which they indorsed to pltf.s., who then gave up the bailee receipt:—Held: no property in the oats had passed to C. & Son when pltf.s. made the advance, & the latter were entitled, at least as equitable owners, as against execution creditors of C. & Son.—DOMINION BANK v. DAVIDSON (1885), 12 A. R. 90.—CAN.

o. Warehouse receipts—Indorsed to foreign bank.—C. & Co., carrying on business in Chicago, in the State of Illinois, had machinery warehoused with M. & T. at W., Ontario. C. & Co., being pressed by pltf.s., their bankers in Chicago, for collateral security for two notes, indorsed over to pltf.s. the warehouse receipts. Afterwards the warehouse receipts were cancelled & new ones were made out direct to pltf.s.:—Held: (1) the transfer must be governed by the law of the State of Illinois, according to which the transfer was valid & effectual; (2) even if dealt with as subject to the law of Ontario, there was a transfer of both property & possession in the goods to pltf.s.; (3) the Act as to banks & banking, & warehouse receipts did not apply to pltf.s., a foreign corp.—COMMERCIAL NATIONAL BANK OF CHICAGO v. p. — Indorsed to bank discounting promissory notes—Negotiation of notes.—M. was a partner with G. in a commission & produce business carried on in the same building as a storage business in which G. was also engaged. F. was a partner in both businesses. The account of the commission & produce business was kept at pltf.s.' bank. From time to time pltf.s. discounted their promissory notes, the proceeds of which were placed to the credit of the account. The goods purchased by them were warehoused with the storage branch, & receipts signed in the name of "The O. Co." by G. were given to M. on behalf of the commission & produce business, & were from time to time indorsed over to & hypothecated with pltf.s. as promissory notes were discounted:—Held: (1) there was a negotiation of a note & an actual advance at the time of the acquisition of each warehouse receipt, & although on most occasions when a discount was effected the account was overdrawn; (2) G., in signing the warehouse receipts on behalf of the storage business, was not giving receipts "as of his own property" within Bank Act, s. 2 (d).—ONTARIO BANK v. r. — Indorsement in blank—Delivery with overdue notes—Goods not in specie.—T. gave warehouse receipts for wheat to pltf.s., attached to notes made by him, payable to their order, to take up his overdue notes, which were secured by like receipts. The receipts were in the following form:—"Received in store in my warehouse or mill, from farmers, two thousand bushels of wheat, to be delivered to the order of myself, to be indorsed hereon. This is to be regarded as a receipt under 43 Vict. c. 22. The wheat is separate from & will be kept separate & distinguishable from other grain." The receipts were indorsed in blank. T. did not keep the wheat covered by the receipts distinct, but ground some of it into flour, & allowed the remainder to be mixed with wheat subsequently brought in by farmers & others, but he pointed out to pltf.s. one car-load of flour made from the wheat covered by the receipts, & admitted that the wheat & flour in his mill were covered by the receipts, & the next day the bank took possession:—Held: (1) a special indorsement of the receipts to pltf.s. was not essential, & the indorsement in blank of the receipts satisfied Banking Act, & the notes & receipts attached might be read together; (2) the mode of acquiring the receipts, viz., by delivering up the overdue notes with receipts, was unobjectionable; (3) T. having undertaken to keep "the grain separate & distinguishable from other grain," & having failed to do so, it became his duty to enable pltf.s. to recover what the receipts called for or its equivalent, & having done that while able to dispose of his property, the warehouse receipts attached upon the property so indicated by him.—BANK OF HAMILTON v. s. — Whether security for specific advance or continuing security—Improper sale.—Defts. advanced to A. & Co. $2,250 on a warehouse receipt for wheat. A. & Co. subsequently paid in $1,920, which they had obtained from pltf.s., the real owners of the wheat, leaving a balance due of $330. Pltf.s. notified the bank of their claim, but the bank, in disregard thereof, contending that the warehouse receipt was a continuing security for A. & Co.'s general balance, which at that time exceeded $2,250, shipped it off for sale, incurring wharfage fees thereby, & the whole of the wheat was sold:—Held: (1) the warehouse receipt was not a continuing security to $2,250, but only for the repayment of that specific sum; (2) the claim for wharfage could not be entertained; (3) the fact of there being some part of the $2,250 due at the time of the sale did not justify the sale of the whole of the wheat, it being capable of division, so that enough to satisfy the amount due need only have been sold.—GIBBS v. DOMINION BANK (1879), 30 C. P. 36.—CAN.

t. — Shortage of goods—Rights of bank.—A. stored in a railway co.'s warehouse cases of sardines & clams, for which he received negotiable warehouse receipts. A. hypothecated the receipts to the C. Bank to secure advances, & it was arranged that none of the goods covered should be shipped out without the release of the bank. The co., at the instance of A., allowed a large number of cases to be shipped out without the knowledge or release of the bank. In an action by the bank for the shortage of the goods warehoused:—Held: the co. entitled to claim against A. for contribution to the amount recovered by the bank against it for the value of any goods shipped out at the request of A. warehoused subject to the receipts indorsed to the bank by A.—CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. v. u. — — — — ——D., a customer of S. Bank, handed over to the U. Co. wool to be warehoused until it could be shipped, & G., a servant of the co., gave interview, the vendees returned the bill of lading to A., to hold "as security against the acceptance, until the cakes are sold or the vessel arrives." Subsequently C., by falsely representing to A. that he had sold the goods to D., re-obtained from him possession of the bill of lading, & then indorsed it in the name of his firm to a bank as security for past or future advances. The bank took without notice of the fraud. They afterwards advanced to the firm a sum less than the value of the linseed cakes, but the total amount of their debt was greater:—Held: C.'s fraud did not vitiate his power to pass a good title to the bill of lading, & the claim of the bank upon the goods (for the whole of their debt) prevailed over the claim of the unpaid vendor to stop in transitu.—

a receipt, addressed to the bank, acknowledging that the co. had received a specified quantity of wool "under pledge to the bank for account of D., which the co. holds at the disposal of the bank until released by the bank." The usual course of dealing of D., as of the customers of the bank & of the co., was to obtain advances from the bank upon security of produce handed to the co. & to hand over the co.'s servant's receipts to the bank. D. fraudulently obtained from G. receipts for more wool than was actually delivered to the co., & induced him to part with wool for shipment for which no release had been given by the bank. Bills of exchange were drawn by D. upon the consignees for the value of the wool, those bills with bills of lading annexed were purchased by the bank, cheques were drawn by D. upon his general account with the bank, & the amount of such cheques was placed to the credit of his produce advance account:—Held: (1) there was sufficient recognition of G.'s authority to hold the wool at the bank's disposal, without proof of express authority having been given to him; (2) the delivery of the receipts by D. to the bank for valuable consideration entitled the bank to the benefit of the undertaking embodied in the receipts.—STANDARD BANK v. UNION BOATING Co. (1890), 7 S. C. R. 257.—S. AF.

w. ——— To follow proceeds.—A miller gave a warehouse receipt to a bank on some wheat " & its product," stored in his mill, for advances made to him, & died insolvent about two months after. During that period wheat was constantly going out of, & fresh wheat coming into, the mill. Just before his death the bank took possession & found a large shortage in the wheat, which had commenced shortly after the receipt had been given & had continued to a greater or less degree all the time. During the period of shortage some of the wheat had been converted into flour, which had been sold, & the proceeds, which were less than the value of the shortage, paid to the administrator of the estate:—Held: the bank entitled to the purchase money of the flour.—Re GOODFALLOW, TRADERS' BANK v. GOODFALLOW (1890), 19 O. R. 299.—CAN.

y. ——— C. S. C. c. 54—Form of receipt—Present advance or antecedent debt.—M. & Co. being indebted to plffs. on certain overdue notes, it was agreed that plffs. should discount a further note for them, with the proceeds of which the overdue paper should be retired, & that M. & Co. should hand over to them certain warehouse receipts for wool stored in their warehouse as collateral security. The note was, on Jan. 23, discounted by plffs., & the old notes duly retired, an agreement being signed by M. & Co., reciting that they had indorsed over the receipts as collateral security for the note, etc. The receipts were as follows:—"Warehouse Receipt.—Received in store in our warehouse at ——— from sundry parties, 17,900 pounds batting to be delivered pursuant to the order of the A. Bank, to be indorsed hereon, etc." Neither M. & Co. nor the bank indorsed the receipts:—Held: they were not warehouse receipts, & the bank could not claim the property covered by them. Semble: the transaction of Jan. 23 was not, in substance, though in form, a present advance to M. & Co., but merely a mode adopted of paying off an already existing debt.—BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA v. CLARKSON (1869), 19 C. P. 182.—CAN.

a. ——— *Plffs. on Sept. 20 received a note for $5,800, payable to & indorsed by L., with L.'s warehouse receipt for wool attached, which they discounted on Oct. 4. On Oct. 21, $1,179 only remaining due, they took a note for that sum from M., the maker of the previous note, with his receipt for some wool, in addition to a receipt from L. for what remained of the wool covered by L.'s previous receipt. It was not discounted on that day, & on Dec. 5 M. made another note for the same sum, at ten days in place of it, which was discounted with the same two warehouse receipts attached. It was renewed on the 24th with the same receipts, & not being paid, plffs., in Apr., sold the wool, through a broker who was unable to get it: & they thereupon replevied on May 9:—Held: (1) the warehouse receipts being taken directly to the bank, & not by indorsement, were not within s. 8, & plffs. could not recover; (2) the transaction of Dec. 5 might be considered as a new one, & plffs. had not held the wool more than six months so as to defeat their title under s. 9.—ROYAL CANADIAN BANK v. MILLER (1869), 28 U. C. R. 593; 29 U. C. R. 266.—CAN.*

b. ——— 34 Vict. c. 5—Given by owner of goods—Sale within six months.—By s. 48, the owner of goods giving a warehouse receipt as warehouseman is put in the same position as any other warehouseman, & under s. 50 the bank does not forfeit its right of pledge by not selling the goods within six months.—MOLSON'S BANK v. LANAUD (1881), 5 L. N. 263; 2 Q. L. R. 182.—CAN.

c. ——— Whether indorsement to bank necessary.—Applts. discounted paper for a trading firm, on the understanding that a quantity of coal purchased by the firm should be consigned to them, & that they would transfer to the firm the bills of lading, & should receive from one of the members of the firm his receipt as a wharfinger & warehouseman for the coal as having been deposited by them. This was done, & the following receipt was given:—"Received in store in Big Coal House warehouse at T., from M. Bank in Canada, at T., fourteen hundred & fifty-eight tons stove coal, & two hundred & sixty-one tons chestnut coal per schooners . . . to be delivered to the order of the M. Bank, to be indorsed hereon. This is to be regarded as a receipt under 34 Vict. c. 5—value $7,000. The coal in sheds facing esplanade is separate from, & will be kept separate & distinguishable from, other coal. (Signed) W. S. Aug. 10, 1878." The partnership having become insolvent:—Held: it was not necessary to the validity of the claim of a bank under a warehouse receipt, given by an owner, who was a warehouseman & a wharfinger, & had the goods in his possession, that the receipt should reach the hands of the bank by indorsement, & the above receipt was a receipt within the above Act, & there was evidence that W. S. was a wharfinger & warehouseman.—MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA v. SMITH (1884), 8 S. C. R. 512.—CAN.

d. ——— Antecedent debt.—The A. Co. did business with the R. Bank, & with its successors, the C. Bank, & obtained discounts to the amount of $23,000 on security of warehouse receipts given by B. on fourteen thousand car wheels, & three hundred & fifty tons of pig iron. When the receipts were given B. was not in possession of either the goods or the premises in which they were stored. At the instigation of the C. Bank, to enable plff. to give warehouse receipts, a lease of the premises was made to him for a year, & he gave a warehouse receipt to the co. for fourteen thousand car wheels & three hundred & fifty tons of pig iron, receiving an indemnity from the bank that the property would be forthcoming when required. The receipt was indorsed over to the D. Bank by the car wheel co., under signature of its manager & president, & an advance obtained thereon of $23,000, which went to pay the C. Bank, who were aware of the co.'s insolvency:—Held: had the C. Bank been assignees of the receipt, they would have no title to the goods, as the receipt would not have been given, as required by the Act, to secure a present advance or debt, & the D. Bank could be in no better position, for the advance by them was not made as an original & independent transaction with the car wheel co., but at the request & for the comfort of the C. Bank, & upon its express or implied guarantee of indemnity. Qu.: whether the two banks were so identified that the transaction must be regarded as an attempt to secure an antecedent debt from the C. Bank by means of a warehouse receipt.—MILLOY v. KERR (1878), 43 U. C. R. 78; affd., 3 A. R. 350; 8 S. C. R. 474.—CAN.

e. ——— Assignment to bank after arrival of goods.—The transfer to a bank of a bill of lading, or warehouse receipt, to secure an antecedent debt, is permitted by ss. 46, 47, where the understanding at the time of contracting such debt was that the bill of lading should be transferred as collateral security.

The bank agreed to make advances to S. & Co. to purchase coal & stone, to be secured by bills of lading & warehouse receipts for such coal & stone when received:—Held: the transfer of such receipts to the bank, after the arrival of the goods, was authorised, & no objection that the agreement was to give a receipt for goods of which, at the time, the person was not possessed.—ROYAL CANADIAN BANK v. ROSS (1877), 40 U. C. R. 466.—CAN.

f. ——— Compromise in the bank as to sale of goods.—B., being indebted to a bank, gave them a document purporting to be a warehouse receipt, and also a general transfer or bill of sale. The bank took possession of a portion of the goods covered by the documents & removed them, & was proceeding with the removal of others of the goods, when the removal was forbidden by one of B.'s clerks. Two actions of replevin, brought by the bank to recover possession of the remainder of the goods, were compromised by B., who agreed that the bank should take the goods & sell them, & credit him with the amount received:—Held: assuming that the security on the goods held by the bank was void not being for a present advance, but for a past due debt, & that the bank were not entitled to hold such security against the creditors of B., the bank were not obliged to rest their title on the document, & its defects, if any, would not affect the subsequent transaction by which the bank became the actual purchasers of the goods & dealt with them as their property.—ARMSTRONG v.

h. ——— 43 Vict. c. 22—Validity—Realisation of security.]—M. obtained advances from banks on the faith of warehouse receipts being valid securities, he representing to them that he had rented the cellar of his warehouse to H. as warehouseman, & that as such H. had sole charge of the cellar. Before the receipts matured, M. died. Before his death became known, H. & his solr. took possession of the cellar & the property covered by the receipts, & posted up in the cellar a notice stating that H. held the property therein as warehouseman of the banks, to whom he had granted receipts. Two days after taking possession, H. refused any longer to be responsible for the property, which was subsequently taken by the banks under their receipts, & as it was rapidly deteriorating was sold by them. H. had signed the receipts at M.'s request & as a matter of form, but he had not leased the cellar, nor had he any control over it nor the property contained in it:—Held: there being no creditor who had any locus standi when the banks sold under the receipts, they had the right to apply the proceeds to reduce their claim against M.'s estate.—*Re MONTEITH, MERCHANTS BANK v. The warehouse receipts were signed by the merchants & indorsed to P., & were then indorsed on his behalf & delivered to the bank. l. ——— Parol agreement to hold surplus after realisation in payment of other debts.]—The M. Bank took from H. & Co. several warehouse receipts as collateral security for commercial paper discounted in the ordinary course of business, & having a surplus from the sale of the goods represented by the receipts, after paying the debts for which they were immediately pledged, claimed under a parol agreement to hold the surplus in payment of other debts due by H. & Co.:—Held: the parol agreement was not contrary to Bank Act, R. S. C. c. 120, & the money that remained could properly be applied by the bank under the terms of the parol agreement.—THOMPSON v. MOLSON'S BANK (1889), 16 S. C. R. 664.—CAN.

n. ——— 53 Vict. c. 31—Whether present advance or to cover past indebtedness.]—On Nov. 28, 1904, a letter was written by the T. Co., stating that a line of credit would be required from $10,000 to $12,000, secured by warehouse receipts on butter, & an account was opened & advances made by the bank. On Oct. 23, 1905, the account was overdrawn to the amount of $10,158.01, & there was an outstanding note of $1,700 due in Nov. On Oct. 23 the manager of the co. discounted a promissory note made under the trading name of the co. for $6,000 at three months & by the same name assigned to the bank as security therefor warehouse receipts of forty cases of butter, promising also other warehouse receipts to cover the indebtedness. After placing the $6,000 to the firm's credit, there remained a debt balance of $4,258.01, which was gradually reduced, & on Dec. 26, 1905, there were outstanding the $6,000 note, a $2,000 note discounted on Oct. 27, 1905, & an open debit balance of $200. The four hundred & one cases had been warehoused on Sept. 21 & 26 & Oct. 4, 10, & 20, while ninety-nine cases had been warehoused on Oct. 20 & 21, although no warehouse receipts had been obtained therefor, & there was nothing to show they had ever been assigned to the bank:—Held: (1) as to the four hundred & one cases the transaction was supportable, under s. 73, as there was a present advance & not a mere form to cover a past indebtedness, but the bank had no claim to the ninety-nine cases; (2) the bank were not entitled to hold the warehouse receipts, under the letter of Nov. 28, as not constituting an agreement to furnish security for advances thereafter to be made.—*TORONTO CREAM & BUTTER CO., LTD. v. C—Substitution of other goods—Assignment for value without notice.]—A. obtained advances from debts on the security of assignments of certain hog products in the form in Sched. C & agreed with the manager of the bank to ticket the goods so as to identify them, & not to sell the goods. He then set apart certain of the goods as belonging to debts, & placed tickets over them to indicate this, but afterwards he sold all the goods in the ordinary course of business & substituted other goods of a like character in their place, placing the same tickets upon them. Subsequently plffs., as security for a then pre-existing debt due then from A., obtained an assignment of the same kind as debts had taken, covering ten thousand lbs. of bacon, but no appropriation of any particular bacon as hypothecated to plffs. was made until about seven weeks later, when A. set apart ten thousand lbs. of bacon out of the pile which had been appropriated to debts in the manner above described, & this quantity was ticketed with the name of plff. bank, debts' tickets being removed. Shortly afterwards A. absconded, & debts took possession of this ten thousand lbs. of bacon under their securities:—Held: (1) they were entitled to hold it against plffs.; (2) notwithstanding s. 75, a bank might take securities of the kind provided for by s. 74, even for pre-existing debts.—*BANQUE D'HOCHELAGA v. w. ——— Assignment of contract for logs & money accruing thereunder—Title of bank.—A contractor applied to G. for a quantity of lumber for building purposes. G., being unable to purchase the logs, asked the M. Bank for an advance, & in consideration of an advance, G. assigned the contractor's order to their book-keeper & agreed to cut the logs at a price fixed & deliver them to the book-keeper at the mill site. The latter then assigned to the bank all moneys to accrue in respect of the contract, which assignment was assented to by the contractor. & a day or two after also assigned to the bank three booms of logs by numbers in addition to one assigned previously. This purported to be done under s. 74. y. ——— Contemporaneous advances—Substitution of securities.—Pltf., a creditor of an insolvent, alleged that in regard to certain pledges made by the latter to a bank there had been no contemporaneous advances, & that the pledges were invalid under s. 75:—Held: the words "invalid against creditors" should be treated as limited to transactions invalid against creditors qua creditors, & not as extending to transactions declared invalid for reasons other than those designed to protect creditors.

The insolvent bought hops from time to time, & gave the bank his own warehouse receipts for the purpose of raising money to pay for them. At the request of the bank he constituted his book-keeper his warehouseman, & the latter issued warehouse receipts to the bank in substitution for the securities or receipts theretofore held, there being no further advances made when the new securities were given:—Held: this exchange of securities should be treated as authorised under s. 75 (2).—*CONN v. The husband was thereby discharged & the wife accepted as the sole debtor.

Subsequently the bank pressed for further security, & a new mtge. on the stock was taken, which contained a covenant on the part of the bank to pay "the commercial or trade indebtedness of the mtgor. & the expenses of running the business, etc., from & out of the proceeds of the sale of the goods, chattels, & stock in trade, & the proceeds of the collections of the book accounts & debts now being assigned to them, but so as that same shall not increase the present indebtedness due from the mtgor. to the mtgees. beyond the amount now due for principal under these presents & any interest due or accruing due thereon to the mtgees. as hereinbefore provided":—Held: the securities taken were valid under s. 48.—*GILLIES v. k. ——— Lien-note as continuing collateral security for present & future advances—Assignment of property covered by lien note.—S. borrowed from deft. bank $250 on his promissory note & at the same time assigned to the bank a lien-note, & signed an hypothecation, which declared that the lien-note was to be held by the bank as a general & continuing collateral security for payment of the present or any future liability to which it might seem expedient to the bank to apply it, whether of the pledgor incurred on his own behalf or on behalf of another:—Held: (1) commercial debts were not "goods, wares & merchandise," within s. 76, & the bank might lend upon the security of the debt represented by the lien-note, & the chattel property forming the subject-matter of the lien-note would prima facie follow the debt represented by it, & in every case, not clearly a case of security subsequently given for a debt already contracted, the question of fact, whether the advances were made upon the security of the debt or of the accessory security would arise; (2) the advance & the hypothecation & the assignment of the note & of the property mentioned in it were parts of the same transaction, & the assignment of the property was taken as security for the advance & was made at least partly on the strength of that security, & the transfer was null & void.—*THEIN v. M. assigned his interest to the M. co., which, as security for advances, executed in favour of defts. an instrument under s. 88 pledging all the logs upon their promises, including those cut from the limits of which plffs. were licensees. 868. Land charged with payment of overdrawn accounts—Whether security for future advances.]—A deed-poll was executed by a customer of a bank in favour of the bank, whereby, after reciting that there was a considerable balance due from him to the bank on three accounts which he kept there (one a private account, the other two accounts con-

the rights or licences held by persons to cut or remove such timber, & those transactions are not within s. 84 but are under s. 80, although not in form of mtge.—*McPIERSON v. q. ——— *Agreement to cut & deliver timber to trustee—Repayment by trustee.]—*A bank made advances to a lumber operator upon the security of an agreement between him & a trustee that he should sell & deliver a specified quantity of logs to be cut by him to the trustee, who should have the property therein as from the stump, & who should upon delivery pay for same by (inter alia) paying the bank the amount of its loans:—Held: security void under s. 76.—RANDOLPH v. RANDOLPH (1907), 4 E. L. R. 17; 3 N. B. Eq. Rep. 576.—CAN.

r. ——— *Liability for wages of debtor's employees.]—*The provisions of s. 88 (7), as amended in 1913, mean that the salary & wages of employees shall, to a limited extent, be protected in the event of a bank taking from the employer a security under s. 88 & attempting to realise thereunder. The enactment is remedial, & should be liberally construed.—EDBORG v. IMPERIAL TIMBER & TRADING CO. & ROYAL BANK OF CANADA (1914), 27 W. L. R. 680.—CAN.

PART II. SECT. 21, SUB-SECT. 7.

t. *Agreement to mortgage land as collateral security—Present & future advances—Separate accounts.]—*H. entered into an agreement with the bank, by which it was agreed that he would, upon the bank requiring collateral security for the due payment of any moneys for the time being due to the bank in respect of the discount of bills of exchange & promissory notes, overdrafts, or advances, or otherwise upon the working of the account, execute a mtge. to the bank of lands to secure payment by him on demand of such moneys & interest. The circumstances showed that the agreement was intended as a jointly with other persons), & that he had agreed to charge certain lands to secure the balance of such accounts, not exceeding £3,000, "as thereafter mentioned," he charged the estate with the payment of "the three several sums of money which shall or may be found due on the balance of the several accounts, for principal, interest, commission, etc., not exceeding £3,000":—Held: the security was not intended to cover, & was not a security for, future advances.—Re MEDEWE'S TRUST (1859), 26 Beav. 588; 53 E. R. 1025; sub nom. Re MEADOWS, 28 L. J. Ch. 891; 5 Jur. N. S. 421; sub nom. Re DE MEDEWE, 33 L. T. O. S. 253; 7 W. R. 319.

869. Charge by agent on principal's property—Power of attorney—Duty to inquire.]—During pltf.'s absence from England, & again after his return, X. & Y., without his knowledge & purporting to act under a power, which empowered them to borrow money on mtge., borrowed money from a bank upon the security of charges on pltf.'s property, which money they afterwards misappropriated. Upon the occasion of the first advance the power was produced to the bankers & registered by their clerk, but it was not examined by them. Pltf. went abroad a second time, & before going away powers of the bank.—MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA v. DARVEAU ES-QUALITÉ (1898), Q. R. 15 S. C. 325.—CAN.

b. ——— *Subsequent assignment for benefit of creditors—Bank acting bona fide.]—*B. made a general assignment of all moneys due to him to debtors, as security for an advance, & subsequently made a specific assignment of all moneys due to him by a school district. Later, being still indebted to the bank in large sums, he conveyed to the bank a house & lot. A further specific assignment of a debt due by a town to B. was given at a later date, & within sixty days of such assignment B. made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Advances were made on the security of all assignments to the bank except that last mentioned:—Held: (1) the various assignments were valid, & even if the advances upon such security were not authorised, B. could not, having received good consideration, assail the pledge; (2) all the assignments save the last were valid; (3) as no advance had been made on the security of the last assignment, the assignment was void.—NORTON v. CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE (1908), 1 Sask. L. R. 448; 8 W. L. R. 910; 9 W. L. R. 331.—CAN.

c. *Assignment of book debts—No notice of claim of third party—Rights of bank.]—*A mtge. to a co. covered the stock in trade, fixtures, & all book debts. The assignment of the debts was not notified as required by Jud. Act, s. 58 (5). The mtgor. later assigned the book debts to a bank as collateral security for the advance:—Held: the bank had taken their assignment without notice of the co.'s claim & having collected the debts, were entitled to retain the proceeds.—THOMAS, LTD. v. STANDARD BANK, STANDARD BANK v. THOMAS, LTD. (1910), 16 O. W. R. 188; 1 O. W. N. 379; affd., 1 O. W. N. 548.—CAN.

d. ——— *Subsequent assignment to & collection by creditor—Notice—Right of bank to recover.]—*T., a trader, being indebted to pltf., in Aug., 1907, executed to them as security an assignment of his bills receivable & book debts. It was arranged between pltf. & T., that he should continue to carry on business & collect all moneys & deposit them with pltf. in a current account, against which he was permitted to draw cheques & make payments to his various creditors as he saw fit, pltf. to be furnished with a monthly statement showing the details of his accounts receivable; & these were furnished by security for an existing debt, as well as for future advances:—Held: the words of the agreement were sufficient to enable effect to be given to this intention.

There being several separate accounts between the parties, but the separation having been made at the instance of the bank, & for the convenience of book-keeping only:—Held: these separate accounts formed in law but one account, to the whole of which the agreement applied.—HORTON v. BANK OF NEW ZEALAND (1889), 7 N. Z. L. R. 582.—N.Z.

868 i. Land charged to secure floating balance due on overdraft account.]—K., working on an overdraft allowed to him by a bank on the security of certain properties of which the bank held the documents of title, seeing an opportunity of borrowing from others portion of the amount at a lower rate of interest, provided that certain conditional purchases were converted into freeholds, wrote to the bank, undertaking to give it full security when called upon over certain lands in the event of the bank paying the money necessary to make certain conditional purchases freehold, if the proposed loan should fall through, & he further undertook to give the bank security over certain lands "for the balance, which will be due then to the bank if the loan is completed." The loan was completed & the amount paid into the bank, thereby reducing the overdraft from £36,000 to £9,000. The account was subsequently operated on as before up to the date of the sequestration of the estate of K. The account was always overdrawn, but the payments in since the loan was completed amounted to more than £9,000:—Held: the words "balance which will be due" meant the "floating balance which will be due from time to time," & the bank was entitled to a charge on the lands for the amount of the debt due at the date of the sequestration.—Re KING, Ex p. AUSTRALIAN JOINT STOCK BANK, LTD. (OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE) (1895), 16 N. S. W. B. 86.—AUS.

a. *Assignments of debts due—Title to drafts drawn against goods consigned—Claim for price of goods.]—*The A. Co. shipped goods to a Toronto house. Drafts were drawn for the price of such goods & discounted by the M. Bank. As security for those advances, not only the title to the drafts was transferred to the bank, but also the claim against the Toronto house for the price of the goods shipped, & whose value the drafts represented:—Held: the above transactions were valid & within the legal gave a fresh power to X. & Y. by which, after referring to the former power & reciting that he had been in England for a short time & was returning abroad, he appointed X. & Y. his attorneys, giving them power to borrow money for him with or without giving security. During his second absence, & without his knowledge, X. & Y., who themselves had an overdrawn account with the bankers, borrowed from them further moneys, alleging that it was to enable them to make payments for pltf., & under the second power of attorney they charged pltf.'s property as a security for the loan, applying the borrowed money in reduction of their own debt to the bank. Upon this occasion the second power was produced to the solr. of the bank, but he was unacquainted with the former transactions, & neither the bankers nor any of their clerks were aware that pltf. had been in England:—Held: in order to make out that the bank were so put upon inquiry as to validate the transactions, pltf's. must show that the recitals in the second power were seen by some agent of theirs, who knew of the previous transactions, & would by those recitals have been rendered suspicious of the good faith of X. & Y., & there having been no such notice or knowledge on the part of the bank, wilful blindness could not be imputed to them, & the last-mentioned charge was valid.—DANBY v. COURTS & Co. (1885), 29 Ch. D. 500; 54 L. J. Ch. 577; 52 L. T. 401; 33 W. R. 559; 1 T. L. R. 313.

870. Charge on partnership account—Advances to third party—Title to balance.—A. & B., a firm of merchants, had an account at a bank. A. agreed that if the bank would advance C. a sum of money he would not draw his account under the amount of the advance until it was paid. A. & B. brought an action against the bank for the balance of account:—Held: they could not recover.—BROWN RIGG, MILLER & BROWN v. RAE (1850), 5 Exch. 489; 15 L. T. O. S. 233; 155 E. R. 214.

871. Equitable assignment of partnership share—Enforcement of security.—L., a retiring partner of the firm of B. & Co., applied to pltf's., bankers, for a loan of £20,000 on the security of his share in the partnership, & informed them by letter that the amount of his share might be taken at about £25,000, & that he was informed by B., his former partner, that part of the balance at credit with C. & Co., of which L. was a member, on account of B. &

Co., would be appropriated towards payment thereof, & that he would authorise B. to pay the amount to pltf's., & he thereby bound himself to give pltf's. a full & perfect lien thereon. Afterwards B. wrote to pltf's., through L., stating that they had instructed C. & Co. to transfer to them £5,000, the surplus partnership assets of B. & Co., in their hands, & engaging to pay the remaining balance of L.'s capital. L. sent to pltf's. a promissory note payable to the order of C. & Co., with the letter of B., as a collateral security, & the £20,000 was advanced. The firm of C. & Co. became insolvent & the promissory note when due was presented & dishonoured. Pltf's. filed a bill against the surviving members of the firm of B. & Co., & the representatives of a deceased partner, who claimed to be allowed to deduct the £5,000 in the hands of C. & Co., referred to in the letter:—Held: pltf's. were equitable assignees of L.'s share, & were entitled to recover the whole amount without deducting the £5,000 alleged to be in the hands of C. & Co.—GLYN v. HOOD (1860), 1 De G. F. & J. 334; 29 L. J. Ch. 24; 1 L. T. 353; 6 Jur. N. S. 153; 8 W. R. 248; 45 E. R. 388, L.JJ.

872. Charge on administration deposits—Overdraft of administratrix—Letter of instruction—Lien of bank.—A., the administratrix of her deceased husband, who had died intestate, & entitled to dower as to his real estate, & to a third of his personal estate, being about to contract a second marriage, executed with her intended husband a settlement whereby she settled the estate she was so possessed of & entitled to to her sole & separate use, with power of appointment by deed or will, & with his consent gave a letter instructing her bankers to keep separate accounts, & to consider any private overdraft by her on her own account secured by the administrative deposits in their hands. At this time two sums of £6,000 & £8,000 were in deposit on such account, & subsequently various other sums were, from time to time, paid in by her to the same account, & placed at interest with the bank, who allowed her to overdraw her private account on the strength of the arrangement so made. By her will she executed the power of appointment reserved to her by the settlement, & having at the time of her death overdrawn her private account to a considerable amount, the bankers claimed, as against the parties interested under the will, to retain the sums

T. from time to time. Pltf's. did not notify any of T.'s debtors, neither did they do anything towards perfecting the assignment other than to receive the monthly statements. At the time of such assignment T. owed a large sum to defts., wholesale dealers, who were not aware of the assignment. Subsequently pltf's. took a further assignment from T., identical in terms with the first. About that time defts. pressed T. for payment, & T. agreed to pay them all the moneys collected by him from his customers. Pursuant to such arrangement, certain moneys & promissory notes were received by defts., which pltf's. claimed under their assignment:—Held: no duty was thrown upon pltf's. to notify the general creditors of the assignment, so as to create an estoppel.—BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA v. WOOD (1910), 14 W. L. R. 34.—CAN.

g. Assignment of interest in contract—Bank of Upper Canada.—P. having agreed to build cars for the G. Ry. Co., it was stipulated in the contract that the payments were to be made to the satisfaction of the U. Bank, who were to act as receivers. The bank & the railway co. entered into an agreement, reciting the contract, & that the bank had made large advances on account of it, & had agreed to advance the necessary sum to complete it & acquire the title to the cars. The co. then assigned all their interest in the agreement & cars to the bank, & the bank leased them back to the co. for three years at a rent named, with a proviso that, on payment of their debt to the bank, the cars should revert to the co. After this P. received moneys from the bank on account of the contract:—Held: the bank were not precluded by their charter from so acting.—BANK OF UPPER CANADA v. KILLALY (1861), 21 U. C. R. 9.—CAN.

f. Assignment of choses in action—Money arising out of contract—Rights of bank.—A firm of contractors agreed with S. that, if he would indorse their notes to the M. Bank to the amount of $10,000, they would give an assignment to the bank of all moneys to be payable to them from a railway co. on contracts made & to be made by them with the co. They also agreed with the bank that, in consideration of an advance to them of the money upon their notes indorsed by S., they would assign to the bank the money, & gave to M., the bank manager, a power of attorney authorising him to collect from the railway co. the moneys. S. indorsed the notes, & the moneys were advanced:—Held: (1) the transaction amounted to an equitable assignment to the bank of the moneys in question; (2) money arising out of future contracts could be assigned; (3) it was within the powers of incorporated banks to make advances upon the security of any choses in

h. Agreement by company to assign debenture obtained from third party—Insolvency of company before assignment—Rights of bank.—A co., which was indebted to a bank, entered into an arrangement with the bank whereby it was agreed that, on the bank surrendering certain movables belonging to the co. which the bank held in security, the co. should obtain from J., who was indebted to them, a debenture over his assets, & should assign the debenture to the bank in lieu of the surrendered security. The movables were surrendered & the debenture was obtained from J., but before it had been assigned to the bank the co. went into liquidation:—Held: the co. did not hold the debenture for the bank, but had, at most, come under a contractual obligation to assign it, & they were the parties beneficially interested in it at the date of the liquidation.—BANK OF SCOTLAND v. HUTCHISON, MAIN & Co., LTD. (LIQUIDATORS), [1913] S. C. 255.—SCOT.

so paid into their hands on account of the administrative account, & especially the sums of £6,000 & £8,000 so deposited with them in payment of the sums due to them on account of the overdrafts made by her on her private account, & brought a suit to enforce such lien:—Held: whether or not the bankers had notice of the settlement (which fact was uncertain), the letter of instruction to them by A. was a valid execution of the right reserved by her, as regarded the two sums of £6,000 & £8,000 then in their hands, & in the absence of fraud gave the bankers a lien on those sums for any future overdraft that might be made in accordance with the terms of such letter.—LONDON CHARTERED BANK OF AUSTRALIA v. 873. Assignment of partnership moneys in hands of bank—Debt of individual partner—Rights of bank.—By a registered deed one of resps. was declared to be liable in the books of applt. bank in a sum of money, & the firm of which he was a member were indebted in another sum, & he, “as to his indebtedness,” & the firm, “as to their indebtedness,” assigned certain moneys in the hands of the bank:—Held: there being no surplus to distribute, the bank were entitled to repay themselves the debt of the individual partner without ascertaining the value of his share in the partnership.—NATIONAL BANK OF AUSTRALASIA v. FALKINGHAM & SONS, [1902] A. C. 585; 71 L. J. P. C. 105; 87 L. T. 90; 18 T. L. R. 737, P. C.

874. Deposit of policy on cargo—Enforcement of security—Lien.—An account was opened with a bank on the agreement that the customer might overdraw to a stated amount, but that if he over-drew beyond he should find security. The account was overdrawn beyond the agreed amount, & the bank required security, whereupon the customer wrote a letter to the manager, stating that the arrival of a particular ship would put him in funds to enable him to adjust the account, & he enclosed a policy on the cargo of that ship for £5,000 indorsed payable to the manager in case of loss. The bank filed a bill for the purpose of having the bills of lading of the ship delivered up, & to have their lien or charge realised by a sale of the cargo. Defts. demurred to the bill for want of equity:—Held: there was not such a specific appropriation of the cargo as gave the bank a lien on it in preference to the other creditors of the customer, for to create a lien on property there must be a clear agreement for the specific appropriation of it.—JONES v. STARKEY (1852), 19 L. T. O. S. 281; 16 Jur. 510.

was in the habit of consigning goods for sale to T. & Co., a foreign firm, with instructions to remit the proceeds to S. & Co., the agents of T. & Co. in Scotland. S. & Co. agreed (with the privity of T. & Co.) to make advances to pltf. against the consignments & that “the proceeds of sales above the advances” should go to the liquidation of an old claim of S. & Co. against pltf. S. & Co. made advances against shipments by drawing bills on pltf. which he accepted. S. & Co. discounted these bills & remitted the proceeds to pltf. Afterwards S. & Co., being in want of money, directed T. & Co. to remit, not to themselves, but to a firm of bankers (having a common partner with themselves), as a security for advances made by the bankers to S. & Co. S. & Co. stopped payment, & pltf. & the holder of the bills immediately claimed the remittances held by the bankers as applicable to meet pltf.’s acceptances:—Held: (1) the bankers had notice of the arrangement between pltf. & S. & Co., through the fact of the common partner; (2) the remittances in their hands were appropriated in equity, first to the payment of pltf.’s acceptances, & subject thereto to the discharge of the old claim.—STEELE v. STUART (1866), L. R. 2 Eq. 84; 14 L. T. 620.

876. Mortgage of remittances due—Approved remittances for acceptances—Continuing security—Contingent liability.—A. arranged with a banking co. that all his acceptances should be made payable at the bank, he providing the bank with approved remittances prior to the maturity of such acceptances. A. then handed to the bank certain bills drawn by him on & accepted by a third party. Before the bills arrived at maturity A. mtgd. to the bank all remittances in cash, bills, or produce then on their way to him from Barbadoes, & it was agreed that such remittances should be held by the bank as a security to it as long as any debt should be due or growing due from A. to the bank under the existing or any future arrangement. The bills were dishonoured:—Held: the contingent liability of A. in respect of the bills was a debt growing due within the security.—MERCHANTS BANK OF LONDON v. MAUD (1871), 19 W. R. 657, L.C.

877. Assignment of lien & purchase-money due on sale of premises—Right to hold securities.—The L. Bank & S. P. & Co., bankers, respectively advanced £60,000 & £40,000 to E. Dock Co. The loans were ultra vires of the dock co.’s powers, but the money was applied in payment of the dock co.’s just debts, & ultimately the banks recovered judgment for the amounts. Before judgment recovered the dock co. assigned to the bankers the purchase-money due on a sale of part of its premises & the benefit of a lien for payment thereof, & also deposited title deeds in respect of the indebtedness:—Held: the banks were entitled to hold the securities.—Re EAST & WEST INDIA DOCK Co. (1891), 7 T. ## SECT. 22.—THE BANKER'S LIEN AND SET-OFF OR COUNTERCLAIM.

SUB-SECT. 1.—LIEN.

A. In General.

878. General lien—Securities deposited—Part of law merchant.]—Bankers have a general lien on all securities deposited with them as bankers by a customer, unless there be an express contract or circumstances that show an implied contract inconsistent with lien. The general lien of bankers is part of the law merchant to be judicially noticed.—BRANDAO v. BARNETT (1846), 3 C. B. 519; 12 Cl. & Fin. 787; 7 L. T. O. S. 525; 136 E. R. 207, H. 879. Negotiable securities with banker for any purpose—Banker discounting or accepting bills for customer.]—Semble: a banker who has discounted bills for a customer, or accepted bills for his accommodation, has, while such bills remain unpaid, a lien on any negotiable securities of that customer, which may come to his hands, for any purpose, & may put same in suit.—BOLLAND v. BYGRAVE (1825), Ry. & M. 271, N. P.

881. — Lease left with bank—After refusal to make advances.]—A banker has no lien on muni-ments casually left in his shop after he has refused to advance money on them as a security.

D. applied to debts., bankers, requesting them to advance him money on the security of a lease, which they declined to do. D. left the lease with debts. without making any declaration of the purpose for which same was so left, & the lease remained in the possession of debts., loose & uninclosed in any cover, for some months:—Held: the bankers had no lien on the lease.—LUCAS v. DORRIEN (1817), 1 Moore, C. P. 29; 7 Taunt. 278; 129 E. R. 112.

882. Discounting bills for customer—Lien on customer's cash balance during currency of bills.]—A banker who has discounted bills for a customer can have no implied lien on that customer's cash balance during the currency of the bills. Semble: a custom to have such a lien might be good.—BOWER v. FOREIGN & COLONIAL GAS CO., LTD., METROPOLITAN BANK, GARNISHEES (1874), 22 W. R. 740.

PART II. SECT. 22, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

878 i. General lien—Securities deposited.]—A bank has a lien on all moneys, funds, & securities deposited for the general balance of a customer's account.—Re WILLIAMS (1902), 24 C. L. T. Occ. N. 91; 7 O. L. R. 156; 1 O. W. R. 534; 2 O. W. R. 47; 3 O. W. R. 251.—CAN.

878 ii. —.]—A banker has a general lien upon all securities in his hands belonging to any customer of the bank which have been lodged with him as security, & that lien extends to any general balance that may be due, unless there is evidence to show that the security was received under special circumstances that took it out of the general rule.—Re WILLIAMS (1869), 1 R. 3 Eq. 346.—IR.

n. — Money on deposit.]—The bank sued B. for an overdraft & interest. Debt. counterclaimed in respect of money of his, which the bank had held on deposit receipt, & appropriated in satisfaction of statute-barred bills & interest. The bank pleaded lien & the usage of bankers as defence to the counterclaim:—Held: a good defence.—NATIONAL BANK v. BRODERICK (1891), 31 I. L. T. 65, n.—IR.

879 i. — Negotiable securities with banker for any purpose—Exclusion by agreement.]—A bank has a right to retain all negotiable instruments belonging to a customer & in its possession, for the purpose of securing a debtor balance on general account, but this right may be excluded by agreement, express or implied.

Bonds were deposited from time to time with a bank by a customer, the receipts by the former bearing that they were held “for safe keeping on your account & subject to your order”:—Held: the terms of the receipts did not instruct any special agreement of parties such as would exclude the right of retention which the custody of the bonds gave to the bank, especially when supported as it was by the actings of parties.—ROBERTSON'S TRUSTEE v. ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND (1890) 18 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 12.—SCOT.

o. — Bankruptcy of customer—No notice to bank.]—The suit of a bank to be put into possession of goods, upon which it claims a lien, cannot be resisted on the ground that such lien was obtained by fraudulent practices, to the detriment of other creditors of the co. which ceded such lien to the bank, unless proof is made of the bkpry. of such co. & that the bank was aware of it.—VALENTINE v. BANK OF B. N. A. (1915), Q. R. 25 K. B. 47.—CAN.

p. — For immatured bill.]—A bank has no right to appropriate a credit balance of a customer's account in payment of the customer's immatured bill in favour of the bank.—MCCREADY CO. v. ALBERTA CLOTHING CO. (1910), 3 Alta. L. R. 67; 13 W. L. R. 680.—CAN.

882 i. Discounting bill—Secured by customer—Lien on deposit for overdue bill & interest—Statute of Limitations.]—A., having money on deposit at a bank, went security for C. & D. on a bill of exchange, which was discounted by the bank, but not met on maturity. Thirteen years afterwards, when A. came to withdraw his deposit, the amount of the bill & thirteen years' interest were deducted by the bank:—Held: the bank had a lien on the deposit money for the amount of the overdue bill & interest, & were entitled to deduct same, notwithstanding the bill was barred by Stat. Limitations.—M'DONAGH v. NATIONAL BANK (1896), 31 I. L. T. 64.—IR.

882 ii. — Drawn by trader on consignee of goods—Lien on goods or proceeds.]—A bank discounted bills drawn by a trader on his consignee, who refused to accept them. The consigned goods were subsequently sold:—Held: the bank had not a lien on the goods, nor a claim on the proceeds of their sale.—Re M'KEAN (1862), 8 Ir. Jur. 16.—IR.

a. Refusal to discount bill—No right to retain.]—A bill of exchange was transmitted, indorsed, to a bank for discount. The bank declined to discount it, but did not return the bill:—Held: they could not retain it in security of any claims for which they could not specially instruct that it was agreed to be allowed to be so.—BORTHWICK v. BREMNER (1833), 12 Sh. (Ct. of Sess.) 121.—SCOT.

b. Broker remitting clients' securities for discount—Notice to bank—No right to retain against broker's indebtedness.]—A bill broker at Liverpool transmitted a bill accepted by a party at Glasgow to a bank at Glasgow in the following letter:—“The enclosed has been sent me from Huddersfield, to send to Glasgow for discount, & if you can do it for moderate terms, it will oblige. I have not indorsed it, but I will guarantee my liability the same as if

Sect. 22.—The banker's lien and set-off or counter-claim: Sub-sect. 1, A. & B.]

883. Lien or set-off—Cash received for customer—Charge in favour of third party.]—Where cash is received by a banker for his customer which is subject to a charge in favour of a third party, in the absence of notice to the banker of such charge at the time of the receipt of the money, he may retain it by way of lien or set-off in satisfaction of an overdraft.

In 1868, K., an officer in the army, mtged. to R., to secure £5,000, all moneys which should be realised by sale of his commission. In Dec., 1877, K. obtained leave to retire from the army, & his commission was valued at £3,000, which on Dec. 6, 1877, was paid by the Paymaster-General to C. & Co., the army agents of the regiment, & was carried to the deposit account kept by C. & Co. with the Army Purchase Comrs., there to remain till K.'s retirement was gazetted. K. kept an account current with C. & Co. as his bankers, which was overdrawn to the amount of £647. K.'s retirement was gazetted on the evening of Dec. 18, & as soon as C. & Co.'s office opened on the 19th, R. gave them notice of his security. R. having claimed payment of the £3,000, C. & Co. claimed to retain out of it the £647. On appeal:—Held: (1) as soon as K.'s retirement was gazetted the £3,000 became money had & received by C. & Co. for his use, & for which he could have brought an action at law, & they had a right to set off the balance due to them against this demand; (2) this set-off was equally available against R., of whose security C. & Co. had no notice until after their right to set off had arisen, & independently of any question of banker's lien, C. & Co. were entitled to retain the £647.—ROXBURGHE v. COX (1881), 17 Ch. D. 520; 50 L. J. Ch. 772; 45 L. T. 225; 30 W. R. 74, C. A.

884. Securities deposited by broker as agent—Notice to bank of ownership—Overdraft on loan account.]—Pltf. sent to her broker a certificate of shares which she held, together with a transfer thereof executed by her in blank, to enable him to raise money with which to purchase for her other shares. She also signed a general letter of authority in his favour "to borrow money upon" her shares. The broker deposited the certificate, transfer, & letter with defts., who thus had notice that the shares did not belong to him. He carried the purchase of the other shares over, & borrowed from defts. the money which had become payable for differences, defts. opening a loan account with him. The purchase of the shares was never completed. Defts. allowed the broker largely to overdraw his account, & the broker having been declared a defaulter on the Stock Exchange & afterwards adjudicated bkpt., defts. claimed to retain the shares deposited with them as security in respect of the broker's overdraft:—Held: the transaction between defts. & the broker not being a deposit to secure a balance from time to time due on his account, the deposited authority being only "to borrow money upon" pltf.'s shares, the claim of defts. was not maintainable.—CUTHBERT v. ROBERTS, LUBBOCK & Co., [1909] 2 Ch. 226; 78 L. J. Ch. 529; 100 L. T. 796; 25 T. L. R. 583; 53 Sol. Jo. 559, C. A.

c. Misappropriation of bank funds by incoming partners—No notice to original partners—Lien over partnership assets.]—Three persons, occupying a fiduciary position towards a bank, became partners in a firm, agreeing to pay for their interest a sum of money in liquidation of creditors' claims. They paid this sum out of the moneys of the bank wrongfully appropriated by them. Subsequently the firm was formed into a joint stock co., & the assets of the partnership were assigned to the co. The co. failed:—Held: the original partners were not affected with constructive notice of the means by which the incoming partners obtained the money brought in, & no actual notice to them or to the co. being shown, the bank had no lien on the original assets.—Re HERR PIANO Co. (1890), 17 A. R. 333.—CAN.

d. Note attached to draft—Surrender of note conditional on payment of draft—Lien on note.]—A draft for $150 had on its face, embodying the terms on which it was negotiated, & stamped by an official of the bank when it was negotiated, the words, "Surrender documents attached on payment of draft only." The only document attached was a $250 note:—Held: the bank had no general banker's lien on the note, & was not entitled to collect from deft. & retain a sum which it had paid for costs in respect of other commercial paper given to it by the customer, even if there had been evidence that the customer was liable for those costs or had acknowledged or promised to pay them.—STERLING BANK OF CANADA v. ZUBER (1914), 32 O. L. R. 123; 7 O. W. N. 189.—CAN.

e. Payment on countermanded cheque—Lien on funds of drawer.]—A., having an account in the H. Bank at S., drew a cheque on the bank in favour of B., who indorsed & cashed it at a branch of the bank at L. On the day after payment the branch at S. received, before banking hours, both the cheque forwarded from L., & a written order from A. to stop payment of the cheque:—Held: A., the drawer, was the principal debtor, & the bank had a lien upon A.'s funds at S. for the amount paid on the cheque.—HIBERNIAN BANKING Co. v. MAGUIRE (1892), 26 I. L. T. 659.—IR.

886. Balance due from bank on current account—Customer indebted on sum secured by mortgage of estates—Devise of all estate to pay debts.]—A testator gave to a charity all such portions of his estate as were by law applicable for charitable purposes, & which had not already been given by his will, & declared that the portions of his estate included in that gift should be exonerated from the payment of his debts, etc., & legacies, with the payment whereof he exclusively charged his residuary estate thereafter disposed of. Testator gave the residue of his real & personal estate in trust to pay debts, etc., including debts secured upon any of the devised estates & in exoneration of such estates. He died indebted to his bankers in a sum secured by mtgc. of estates comprised in the will, & possessed of a smaller sum to his credit upon his current account:—Held: the balance on the current account was, for the purposes of the will, included in the charitable gift, notwithstanding any lien of the bankers.—HALSE v. RUMFORD (1878), 47 L. J. Ch. 559.

887. Deposit by company not entitled to commence business—Commissions due to bank.]—A co., which had invited the public to subscribe for shares, paid the moneys received into a bank. The co. was alleged to be indebted to the bank for commissions. The co. never became entitled to commence business under Cos. Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 6 (3):—Held: the bank had no lien on any of the moneys deposited for the commissions alleged to be due to them.—NEW DRUCE-PORTLAND CO., LTD. v. BLAKISTON (1908), 24 T. L. R. 583.

888. Abandonment of lien—Waiver by conduct.]—A debenture for a tontine annuity was deposited by an intestate with his bankers, one of whom received the dividends & placed them to the credit of testator's account. The intestate died in 1801, & the bankers became bkpt. in 1810. Notwithstanding this the same partner continued to receive the dividends, & pay them to the intestate's widow, up to the period of his own death in 1822. Some time afterwards the assignees of the bankers claimed a lien on the debenture for a debt due from the intestate to the banking house:—Held: after so long an abandonment of any claim of lien, the assignees could not support such claim.—Re NOBLE, Ex p. DOUGLAS (1833), 3 Deac. & Ch. 310, Ct. of R.

B. On Securities for Advances.

889. Contract inconsistent with lien—Securities deposited to cover specific advances—Lien beyond amount of specific advances.]—V. kept an account with M. & Co. as bankers, & on Aug. 18, 1778, he borrowed £1,000 (having then £400 in the hands of the house), & gave a promissory note & deposited several bonds & other securities as a pledge for the repayment thereof. These securities were frequently changed by V., & as one was taken away, another of equal value was deposited in its room. In 1784, V. owing the above £1,000, & about £400 on his banking account, M. & Co. acquired an assignment of the securities & V., being an attorney, prepared a bond & deed poll for securing £1,000, although £1,400 was then due. V. overdraw his account, after the execution thereof, & was at his death indebted to M. & Co. in the sum of £541 over & above the £1,000:—Held: V.'s extrix. might redeem on payment of £1,000 & interest only.—VANDERZEE v. WILLIS (1789), 3 Bro. C. C. 21; 29 E. R. 385, L.C.

890. —.]—G. & Co., to secure a permanent loan of £20,000 from their bankers, V. & Co., agreed to deposit their joint note for that amount, & as collateral security £10,000 in bills "not to be moved," & £10,000 in bills to be with G. & Co. during the day, & also to leave a standing balance on the account every night of £4,000. Accordingly, G. & Co. every evening delivered to V. & Co. bills of various amounts, but not less than £10,000 on any occasion, unless their cash balance exceeded £4,000; & every morning they received those bills back again from V. & Co.,

PART II. SECT. 22, SUB-SECT. 1.—B.

889 i. Contract inconsistent with lien—Securities deposited to cover specific advances—Lien beyond amount of specific advances.]—A stockbroker obtained three loans from a bank, upon the security in each case of particular stocks or shares belonging to his clients, which he pledged with the bank. In two cases the loans were obtained by the broker for his clients, in the third case on his own account. In all cases the loans were made to the broker in his own name, no other name appeared in the bank books, & the bank dealt throughout with him alone, but it was the belief of the bank officials that he was acting for clients. The broker was sequestrated, in addition to the amount of the loans, being then indebted to the bank in a considerable overdraft on his current account:—Held: the bank only entitled to retain the securities for payment of the specific loans for which they had been unpledged, & not entitled to hold them for payment of the overdraft on the broker's current account, in respect that they had not been deposited as a general security for current advances.—NATIONAL BANK v. DICKIE'S TRUSTEE (1895), 32 Sc. L. R. 562.—SCOT.

889 ii. —.]—Pltf. posited jewels with debt. bank to secure certain debts. Afterwards he paid the secured debts, & demanded the return of the jewels, being then otherwise indebted to the bank:—Held: pltf. not entitled to recover the jewels without discharging the other debts, unless he proved that debts. had agreed to give up their general lien.—KUNHAN MAYAN v. BANK OF MADRAS (1895), 1 L. R. 19 Mad. 234.—IND.

889 iii. —.]—To secure advances made by a bank a co-operative dairy co. gave the bank a debenture charging all its assets, & the co.'s overdraft was also guaranteed by debt. & others. A credit had been established with the bank by the co.'s London brokers. The bank received the bills of lading for shipments, & on receipt of invoices signed by the co., treated them as drafts by the co. on the brokers & discounted them:—Held: the bank having received a bill of lading for a special purpose, viz., to secure an advance to be made to the co. under its brokers' credit, could not claim a general lien upon the bill of lading.—BRUCE v. GOOD, GOOD v. BRUCE (1917), N. Z. L. R. 515.—N. Z.

i. Advances to company on guarantee of directors—Agreement as to lien over calls—Payment of calls after winding up.]—The directors of a limited co., having resolved to make a call upon the shareholders to meet certain liabilities of the co., applied to a bank for an advance, & the bank agreed to grant the advance upon the guarantee of certain of the directors "with a lien over the call to be made." A call letter was issued making the call payable to the bank. No assignment or mtge. of the call was executed. Shortly thereafter a winding-up order was pronounced, & an official liquidator appointed. Subsequent to the presentation of the petition certain sums were paid into the bank in respect of the call:—Held: the bank had no lien over the sums so paid.—MILLAR (PROPERTY INVESTMENT CO. OF SCOTLAND, LTD. (LIQUIDATORS)) v. NATIONAL BANK OF SCOTLAND, LTD. (1891), 28 Sc. L. R. 884.—SCOT.

g. Advances to partnership—Deposit of securities for specific loan—Right to retain for whole balance due.]—A bank in 1881 agreed to allow to a firm credit on a cash account to the extent of £10,000. By the cash-credit bond, which was executed by the firm, & by the individual partners, the bank were entitled at any time to place to the debit of the cash account any sum or debt owing by the firm to them. On the death of one of the partners in 1884 it was agreed that the credit should be restricted to £5,000, & in security A., one of the partners, deposited with the bank securities of the value of £6,000. The firm was sequestrated on Aug. 31, 1891, at which date the balance due to the bank on the cash-credit account was £4,884, & for bills discounted £3,200. A. was also sequestrated. In an action raised by the trustee in A.'s sequestration against the bank for delivery of the securities deposited by A. on payment of the sum due on the cash-credit account alone:—Held: the bank were entitled to hold the securities against the whole sum due to them by

h. Deposit of warehouse receipts—Insolvency of customer—Unjust preference.]—A., a manufacturer, applied to C., a bank agent, for assistance, & proposed that he should warehouse his goods as manufactured, & pledge the receipts of the warehouseman to the bank for advances to be made to him, & advances were made, for which receipts were deposited with C.:—Held: (1) the bank entitled to hold their lien on such of the receipts as were so deposited more than thirty days before A.'s assignment in insolvency, but in respect of such of them as were deposited within the thirty days the bank could not claim any lien or priority; (2) a promise to keep C. well supplied with collaterals was of too vague & general a character to entitle the bank to retain any lien; (3) an agreement that advances should be made on goods manufactured remaining unsold (without specifying any quantity), & C. should judge of the amount of the advance to be made, was not so vague or uncertain as to prevent the bank obtaining security for advances.—SUTER v. MERCHANTS BANK (1876), 24 Gr. 365.—CAN.

k. Deposit of mortgage—Return of mortgage or reduction of indebtedness—Effect.]—A mtgee. deposited with his bank as collateral security a chattel mtge. in his favour. Some time afterwards, when the indebtedness had been very much reduced, the mtge. was handed back to the mtgee. by the bank. There was no evidence as to the reason for this:—Held: the onus was on the bank to prove their claim as lien-holders or equitable mtgees., & in the absence of evidence, the presumption was that the bank had relinquished their claim, & not that they had merely returned the mtge. to the mtgee. to enable him to enforce it for the bank's benefit.—DOMINION BANK v. MARKHAM (C. C.) CO., LTD. (1914), 28 W. L. R. 145.—CAN.

l. Title deed lodged to cover overdraft—Lien as against customer's assignees in bankruptcy.]—An indorsement on a title deed "lodged to cover overdraft," & signed by the customer, gives a right of lien to the banker as against the which were either returned, or others of equal amount substituted every evening. On the last day of dealing between the parties G. & Co. informed V. & Co. that as they had drawn out the cash balance, which they ought to have left in their hands, they had given additional security to V. & Co. by lodging bills with them to a larger amount. The amount of the sum so overdrawn was £3,000, & the amount of the bills then deposited was £22,666, including a note of B. & Co. for £10,000, for which B. & Co. had only received a partial consideration from G. & Co.; but V. & Co. had no notice of such want of consideration attaching to this note.

At the closing of the account between G. & Co. & V. & Co. a balance was due to V. & Co. of £35,386, for which they held the deposit of the bills & note to the amount of £22,666 besides the note of G. & Co. for £20,000. G. & Co. stopped payments & B. & Co. became bkpt.:—Held: (1) the securities were expressly deposited for a specific portion only of a general balance then due, & the inference that they were intended to secure the whole of the balance was excluded; (2) the bankers having no lien for any sum beyond £23,000 & interest, the proceeds of the securities must be applied to the liquidation of that debt, & the bankers could not recover against the estate of B. & Co. (who were in the position of sureties) more than the balance left unsatisfied.—Re BENTLEY, Ex p. VERE (1835), 4 Deac. & Ch. 295; 2 Mont. & A. 123; 4 L. J. Bcy. 34, Ct. of R.

891. — Change of ownership of securities.—M. & L., a partnership firm, had a joint account with a banking co., with whom M. had also a separate account. M. having certain railway shares, which the bank knew to be his separate property, deposited them with the bank, accompanied with a written memorandum that they were to be held as a collateral security for a promissory note of his own which had been discounted by the bank, or for any other sums in which he was then or thereafter might become indebted to them. The firm of M. & L. subsequently became bkpt., being indebted to the bank on their joint account in a large sum which was unsecured. Before the bkpcy. the shares had become the property of the firm:—Held: in the circumstances the bank were not entitled to hold the shares as a security for the debt due to them from the firm, & the claim upon the general lien of bankers was answered by the fact that there was a written contract between the parties, by which the extent of the lien was expressly defined & limited.—*Re LAURENCE, Ex p. 892. Deposit of lease by partner to secure repayment of particular sum by firm.—A partnership firm had an account with bankers, & A., the senior partner of the firm, had also a private account with the same bankers. The two accounts were treated as separate accounts by the bankers. Both the accounts had been considerably overdrawn, & certain deeds had been deposited with the bankers by A. as security for the two accounts. An extension of credit to the amount of £500 being required by the partnership firm for a short period, A., in the name of his firm, deposited the lease of his house as security for the temporary accommodation. Some time later, the firm's account being above the limit agreed upon, it was closed. The lease of the house was then sold, & the proceeds were handed to the bankers. Subsequently A. was adjudicated bkpt., & his trustees in bkpcy. brought an action against the bankers to recover the surplus of the proceeds of the sale after settlement of the overdraft on A.'s private account. The bankers alleged that the lease was deposited with them by A. in order to secure advances made to him upon the two banking accounts, & they claimed to retain the proceeds of the sale of the lease for the purpose of repaying both such advances:—Held: the lease was deposited by A. with the bankers merely for the purpose of securing to them repayment of the particular overdraft of £500, & the bankers had no such general lien on the proceeds of sale so as to entitle them to retain the surplus of such proceeds in respect of the firm's overdrawn account, & same must be refunded.—*WOLSTENHOLM v. 893. — Conveyance including two properties deposited—One property only pledged.—A customer deposited with his bankers a deed of conveyance, including two distinct properties, giving to them at the same time a memorandum, pledging one of the properties, as security for a specific sum

m. Lien on timber—Pledged for previous indebtedness.—Banks cannot acquire a lien on logs under 34 Vict. c. 5, ss. 46 & 47 (1) if the pledge of the logs was made for a previous indebtedness, or if they were not held by virtue of a transfer of a receipt by a cove-keeper, or by the keeper of any wharf, yard, harbour, or any other place in Canada within the above Act.—*ROSS v. b. Advances to purchase cattle — Agreement as to possession by bank—

Equitable lien.—A bank advanced money to a customer to enable him to buy cattle, which were to be forwarded by rail by him to Montreal, & to be shipped thence to Liverpool, the bank having no control over the cattle until they reached the vessel, when they were to be received by the steamship for the bank, & the customer's possession & control over them was to end. On arriving at the steamship, & before the bills of lading were made out, a creditor of the customer attached the cattle under a writ of saisie-arret, but the steamship owners, disregarding the writ, signed the bills of lading & conveyed the cattle to their destination:—Held: under Banking Act, s. 53 (4), the bank had an equitable lien upon the cattle from the time of the making of the agreement, which prevailed over the attachment.—Re CENTRAL BANK, CANADIAN SHIPPING CASE (1891), 30 C. c. Substitution of securities—Effect of.—S. & Co. used to transact linens to B. & Co. to be bleached. On Nov. 23, 1874, B. & Co. then holding a quantity of such goods subject to a lien of a bank for advances made to S. & Co. as against those goods, a deed was executed, by which S. & Co. transferred all the goods then with B. & Co. to secure all moneys for the time being to be due to the bank by S. & Co., & B. & Co. covenanted that they held those goods, & would hold any other goods which might be substituted by S. & Co. therefor from time to time with the concurrence of the bank, for the bank, & that they would at all times retain goods which should in the gross be equal in value to those which they should part with in substitution, & that the bank might enter & take the goods for the time being subject to their lien. The bank continued to make advances in the ordinary course of trade; the goods were withdrawn by S. & Co., & other goods sent by them to B. & Co. in substitution for them. No special authority of the bank for each substitution was proved, but there was evidence of their general authority sanctioning such a course of dealing:—Held: (1) future goods substituted for existing goods under the terms of the deed were bound by the lien thereby given, as against the assignees in bkpcy. of S. & Co.—*MERCHANT BANKING CO. 894. — Customer's right to return of securities—Rights of surety.—W. was surety for the general balance of a customer's account. On the bkpcy. of the customer, resps. sued W. for £1,000 on his guarantee. After the guarantee was given the customer had obtained advances against securities given in respect of each advance, & the securities had been returned to him on repayment of the advances for which they had been respectively deposited :—Held : the customer was entitled to have back the securities deposited in respect of the special transactions, without reference to the state of the guaranteed account, & the surety was not entitled to any relief.—WILKINSON v. LONDON & COUNTY BANKING CO. (1884), 1 T. L. R. 63, II. L.

895. — With commission & interest.—Testator, who died in Oct., 1885, had three accounts at a bank: a private account, an estate account in the name of his agent, & an account for the purposes of a museum. He deposited a policy of assurance for £5,000 with the bank, giving at the same time a memorandum charging the policy with advances to him not exceeding £1,000 besides commission & interest. Testator was at the time of his death indebted upon his first & third accounts with the bank for a sum exceeding £4,000 :—Held : the bank had no lien for more than £4,000, commission & interest, the right to a general lien being negatived by the express charge given by the memorandum.—*Re BOWES, STRATHMORE (EARL) v. 896. — Bills not withdrawn—Lien for fresh advances.—A. & Co., bankers in the country, being pressed by B. & Co., bankers in town, to whom they were indebted, to send up any bills that they could procure, transmitted for account accommodation bills accepted by D. When the bills became due, the balance was in favour of A. & Co., but the bills were not withdrawn, & afterwards the balance between the houses turned considerably in favour of B. & Co., & was so when A. & Co. became bkpts. :—Held : by allowing the bills to remain in the hands of B. & Co., their lien reverted, when, upon fresh advances made, the balance turned in their favour.—*ATWOOD v. 897. — Securities deposited by solicitor & secretary of bank to secure overdraft—Other securities on bank premises.—On Aug. 1, 1850, A., one of the secretaries & solrs. of the R. B. Bank, in accordance with the terms of a memorandum of that date, deposited policies of assurance with the bank to secure the balance of a cash credit account for £3,000, but which might be increased to £4,000. A. afterwards drew on that account to an amount beyond the sum of £3,000, & on one of the clerks of the bank mentioning the circumstance to him, he replied that it was of no consequence, as the bank held securities for his cash credit account to an amount exceeding £5,000. In Dec., 1853, A. died, & after his death there was discovered in a drawer in a repository kept in the office used by the secretaries & solrs. of the bank, & situate on the bank premises, a parcel of papers & securities belonging to the bank. A. kept the key of the drawer, & in this parcel there were tied up, in addition to the policies deposited with the bank on Aug. 1, 1850, a policy on A.'s life for £1,000, granted in 1851, & the title deeds relating to certain real estate belonging to A. :—Held : the custody of the policy for £1,000 & the title deeds was with the bank, & the bank had a lien on the policy for £1,000 & on the title deeds.—FERRIS v. MULLINS (1854), 2 Sm. & G. 378; 2 Eq. Rep. 809; 24 L. T. O. S. 32; 18 Jur. 718; 2 W. R. 649; 65 E. R. 445.

898. — Deposit of stolen foreign bonds—Advance on one, not on other.—A bank advanced moneys to a customer upon promissory notes, on the back of each of which he placed an indorsement, by which he charged all his property, shares, or securities, which then were, or which might be, at any time prior to the payment of the note, "in the possession or power of the holder thereof for the time being," with the payment of the promissory note, & interest. After several such transactions had taken place, the customer obtained an advance upon a French bond, payable to bearer & transferable by delivery, & he subsequently handed the bank another French bond, & requested that both might be sold on his account. On the latter occasion he obtained no advance of money. On the bonds being sent to the bank's broker's for sale, it was discovered for the first time that both had been stolen :—Held : (1) as to the first bond, the bank had a charge upon it, since an advance had been obtained upon it, but, as to the second bond, there was no such charge, since, no advance having been made upon it, there could be no charge otherwise than by virtue of the charge indorsed upon the promissory note, which did not apply to the case, because it could only apply to property of the drawer of the note placed in the possession or power of the holder for a purpose not inconsistent with an assertion of such a charge, & the bond in question was not so situated; (2) the bank had no general lien on the two bonds.—SYMONS v. MULKERN (1882), 46 L. T. 763; 30 W. R. 875.

899. — Deposit on undue bills—Advances not on specific credit of bills discounted but on general account—Lien.—Pltfs. were bankers at Bristol, with whom C. kept an account. The course of dealing between them was as follows. C. lodged bills payable at future days with pltfs. from time to time, & drew upon them for any money he wanted in advance. Pltfs. charged no interest on these advances, but used to select out of the bills in their hands such as they pleased & as were nearest to the sum advanced, & discounted these bills, debiting C. with the amount of such discount in his account. C. paid in to pltfs. bills to the amount of about £3,000, & pltfs. advanced to C. about £1,400, & actually entered the discount on such of the bills as they selected, amongst which the bill sued on was not one. On pltfs. refusing to make C. any further advance, he demanded this & the other bills which had not been discounted, none of which were then due. Pltfs. refused to deliver them up in case any of the discounted bills should prove bad. The discounted bills had longer to run than the bill in question, & none of them had then been dishonoured, though some of them beyond the amount of the bill sued on afterwards were so. At the time of the demand & refusal the sums which pltfs. had advanced to C. were more than covered by the amount of the discounted bills in their hands, in the event of their proving to be good bills. Some evidence was given that it was the custom of bankers at Bristol to keep their accounts in the manner above described, & that it was not thereby understood that the money was so advanced on the specific credit of the bills discounted, but on the credit of the general account:—Held: pltf's. were entitled to recover by virtue of their general lien.—*DAVIS v. 902. — Deposit for specific purpose.]—A banker's lien does not arise on securities deposited with him for a special purpose, as where exchequer bills are placed in his hands to get interest on them, & to get them exchanged for new bills. Such a special purpose is inconsistent with the existence of a general lien.

A. was the London agent of B., a Portuguese merchant, & in that character purchased exchequer bills for him, received interest on them, & at proper intervals got them exchanged for others. He acted in the same manner for several other foreign customers. A. kept an account with C., as his banker, & at C.'s banking house had several tin boxes, in which he deposited these exchequer bills, & of which he kept the keys. A. took out of a tin box several exchequer bills, which he delivered to C., requesting C. to get the interest due on them, & to get the exchequer bills exchanged for others. C. did so. Before A. came to take back the exchequer bills, acceptances of his beyond the amount of his cash-credit account were presented at C.'s bank, & paid. A. afterwards became bkpt.:—Held: C. had not a lien on the exchequer bills in his hands for the balance due to him on A.'s account.—BRANDAO v. BARNETT (1846), 3 C. B. 519; 12 Cl. & Fin. 787; 7 L. Pltf. filed his bill for delivery up of the deeds, alleging the memorandum of deposit to be a forgery, & also alleging that the bank had not lent the brother £1,000 for seven days:—Held: assuming the memorandum to be genuine, the bankers had no lien on the deeds, for they had not fulfilled the condition.—*BURTON v. The securities comprised in the deeds having been realised, there remained in the bankers' hands a balance after satisfying the bill which had been discounted for the co. themselves:—Held: the bank were not bound to hand over the balance to the official liquidator, but were entitled to retain it to meet the amount due upon the other bills in respect of which the co. were indebted to them.—*Re GENERAL PROVIDENT ASSURANCE CO., Ex p. Pltf.'s replication alleged that while the note was in defts.' hands, & before payment, he revoked defts.' authority to collect, & defts. rejoined that, before pltf. revoked the authority to collect, he became indebted to them in a larger sum than the amount

He never executed any deed of transfer, & he continued to be the reputed owner of the shares:—Held: the letter of deposit constituted a valid equitable mtge., & the bank entitled, under their deed of settlement, to a lien on the shares.—DUNNE'S ASSIGNEES v. HIBERNIAN JOINT STOCK CO. (1868), 2 L. L. T. Jo. 5.—IR.

B., a customer of & shareholder in deft. bank, & secretary of a club having an account there, fraudulently altered a cheque for £600 drawn by the club in favour of S. or order, by striking out the word "order," & adding the word "bearer," & then induced the bank to place the £600 to the credit of his own account. In Nov., 1878, pltf. lent B. £1,000 upon the security of the deposit of a share-certificate for fifty shares in the bank. The certificate gave the holder thereof notice that the bank had a paramount lien on the shares of any shareholder for whatever might be due from him to the bank. On Mar. 17, 1880, pltf. gave notice to the bank of the deposit of the certificate, & was told by the bank manager, in answer to his inquiry, that the bank had no claim on the shares. In May, 1880, the bank got notice of B.'s fraud, & having settled with the club, debited B.'s account with the £600, which they had paid to him on the irregular cheque, & gave pltf. notice that they claimed a lien on the shares for that amount. In an action by pltf. claiming a declaration that the shares were subject to his equitable mtge.:—Held: (1) the bank, on discovering B.'s fraud, were entitled to set the account right as between themselves & him by debiting him with the amount of the cheque; (2) as pltf. was in no way prejudiced by the statement made by the bank manager on Mar. 17, 1880, the bank were not estopped from setting up their lien on the shares.—HORSFALL v. HALIFAX & HUDDERSFIELD UNION BANKING CO. (1883), 52 L. J. Ch. 599.

918. Debt due from partnership—Shares in name of partner.]—By the articles of assocn. of a joint-stock bank it was provided that the shares of every shareholder should be always subject to a lien thereon in favour of the bank for all moneys from time to time due from him to the bank in respect of any calls, or as a debt or liability to the bank from him alone, or jointly with any other person. At the commencement of the bkpey. of two partners some shares in the bank stood in the name of A., one of the two. The shares were in fact partnership property, though the bank did not know that any one but A. was interested in them. The partners owed the bank a large debt for moneys advanced to them. The whole of such debt had been contracted since the shares, which were originally the property of A. alone, had become partnership property:—Held: the bank's security was on the joint estate, & they could only prove against that estate for the balance of their debt after deducting the value of the shares.—Re COLLIE, Ex p. MANCHESTER & COUNTY BANK (1876),

918 i. Debt due from firm—Liability of partner.]—Under R. S. C., c. 120, s. 59, a bank has a lien on the stock held in it by a member of a firm for a debt due to it by such firm.

When a debt is due to a bank & debtor acquires stock in same, such stock is at once affected by the lien of the bank, & moneys realised by the bank out of such stock may be applied by it to the payment of the debt, in preference to another debt contracted subsequently by same debtor.—Re CHINIC (1888), 14 Q. Testator, at the time of his death, owed the bank £31,363. He had some time previously deposited the title deeds of his real estate, which was valued at £25,630, as security for his overdrawn account. He also held shares in the bank valued at £21,164. The devisee of the real estate claimed contribution from the bank shares in discharging the debt to the bank:—Held: (1) the real estate was not entitled to the contribution claimed, as the terms of the bank's deed of settlement did not create a charge upon the shares, but only gave the bank a right of forfeiture; (2) if the deed of settlement had created a charge, the real estate would still have been primarily liable as being specifically charged, whilst the charges upon the shares would have been a charge in the nature of a general lien.—*Re DUNLOP, DUNLOP v. 920. Bank discounting bills—Promissory note under discount—Balance on current account—Death of customer.]—A.'s bankers advanced money to him by discounting his promissory note for £1,000. The note was renewed every three months for several years & discounted on each occasion. A. also accepted, payable at his bankers, a bill drawn by B. on A. for £467; this bill was discounted by the bankers, & they were the holders when it became due. On the morning the bill became due, before the arrival of the post, the bankers, who had then in their hands £1,421 of A.'s money, wrote off the bill to the debit of A.'s account; the same day's post informing them of A.'s death two days before, they called upon B. to pay, & B. paid them £40, on account of the bill, on a representation that £40 would be wanting to make A.'s account settlement was made relative to overdue notes upon which L. was indorser. Afterwards a cheque upon the deposit account was given by pltf., & other payments were made sufficient to discharge the whole indebtedness on the notes with interest as calculated by pltf.:—Held: (1) at any time after the notes became due the bank could have set off its indebtedness to the depositor against the depositor's indebtedness to the bank pro tanto; (2) if on Jan. 6, 1910, the bank so applied the deposit, the unpaid balance of the indebtedness continued to bear interest at 5 per cent., & on that basis was ultimately paid, but if no application of the deposit was made, the bank wrongfully refused to allow it to be withdrawn, & pltf. entitled to interest at 5 per cent.—*ROYAL TRUST CO. v. At this time the last promissory note had fifty-three days to run, but the bankers immediately entered that note as well as the bill to the debit of A.'s account, allowing a rebate of discount for the time the note had to run. A.'s exors. before the fifty-three days expired sued the bankers for the balance in their hands at the time of A.'s death:—Held: (1) the bankers might set off the £467 on the bill as they had no notice of A.'s death when it was written off; (2) the bankers could not set off the note before it was due.—*ROGERSON v. The bills were dishonoured:—Held: he was not entitled to have the cash balance in his favour applied in discharge of the amount due upon the unpaid bills, & on payment of the difference, to have those bills delivered up to him, but the bank had a right to obtain payment of such bills from the acceptors, & leave the drawer to prove in respect of his cash balance in the usual way.—*Re ROYAL BRITISH BANK, Ex p. after suspension—Set-off against accruing liabilities.]—On Nov. 15, 1887, the day before the suspension of the C. Bank, B., having sufficient funds to his credit, drew a cheque payable to A., who deposited same in the D. Bank, & obtained an advance upon it, & the D. Bank claimed upon it in the winding-up proceedings. On Nov. 23 the C. Bank marked the cheque good, debiting B.'s account & crediting the D. Bank with 924. Advance to customer—Bankruptcy of customer—Balance on current account.]—A banking firm advanced A. £1,000 on a bond by crediting his account for that sum. The name of B., who was a partner, was made use of in trust for the banking firm, & the £1,000 was the proper money of the firm. A. became bkpt., & the bankers were indebted to him at the time in a larger sum on the balance of his cash account:—Held: the bankers were entitled to set off the £1,000 in an account current between them & A. as against his assignees in bkpcy.—*CROSSE v. He died before the day of payment, & at his death a sum of £629 was standing to his credit on his current drawing account:—Held: the £629 must be treated as a set-off against the sum due on the loan account & was not to be dealt with as an asset in the hands of the exors.—*THOMAS v. 926. — Surplus after realising security—Promissory note of customer—Bankruptcy of customer.]—P. & Co. having borrowed a large sum of the B. Bank deposited the paper, i.e., promissory notes of the Govt. of Bengal, with the bank to a great amount, as collateral security, accompanied by an agreement in writing, authorising the bank, in default of repayment of the loan by a given day, "to sell the paper for the reimbursement of the bank, rendering to P. & Co. any surplus." Before default was made in the repayment of the loan P. & Co. were declared insolvents. At the time of the adjudication of insolvency the bank were also holders of promissory notes of P. & Co., which they had discounted for them before the loan transaction & the deposit of the co.'s paper. The time for repayment of the loan having expired, the bank sold the co.'s paper, the proceeds of which, after satisfying the principal & interest due on the loan, produced a considerable surplus. In an action by the assignees of P. & Co. against the bank to recover the amount of this surplus:—Held: the bank could not set off the amount of the two promissory notes.—YOUNG v. BANK OF BENGAL (1836), 1 Moo. Ind. App. 87; 1 Moo. P. C. C. 150; 1 Deac. 622; 18 E. R. 34, P. C.

927. Advance to two partners—Bankruptcy—Credit balance of one—Joint & separate estates.]—R. & C. carried on business as C. & Co. under a deed of partnership dated May 30, 1895, & in Oct., 1907, the L. Bank advanced to the partners jointly the

the amount thereof. Afterwards the liquidators claimed the right to set off certain subsequently accruing liabilities of B. against the cheque. After the first dividend had been paid A. filed a claim on the cheque, but the master allowed the claim only subject to the set-off:—Held: there was no right to set off as claimed.—Re CENTRAL BANK, CAYLEY'S CASE (1889) 17 O. sum of £11,000. On Sept. 20, 1909, R. & C. purported to dissolve the partnership, & C. retired from the business. By the terms of the deed of dissolution C. assigned his interest to R., & an account was to be taken of C.'s share as on Dec. 31, 1909, & such share when ascertained was to be credited to him in the books of the firm & was to remain a loan to the firm for ten years, bearing interest at 5 per cent. per annum. It was, however, provided that, if on the taking of this account the assets of the firm were found to be insufficient to meet all its liabilities, C. was to pay to R. a half part of such deficiency. On Nov. 4, 1909, R. suspended payment, & he was adjudicated bkpt. on Jan. 7, 1910, & on July 25, 1910, C. was also adjudicated bkpt., & on Aug. 28, 1911, the two bkpcies. were consolidated. The trustee of the separate estate of R. claimed a sum of £1,657 6s. 7d. lying on current account at the L. Bank in the name of the firm, but the bank contended that they were entitled to set off against that claim the joint liability of C. & R. for £11,000:—Held: upon the true construction of the deed of Sept. 20, 1909, there was a dissolution of partnership as from that date, & not as from Dec. 31, 1909, so that the trustee of the separate estate of R. was entitled to the sum of £1,657 6s. 7d. which was standing to the credit of the firm on Nov. 4, 1909.—*Re JANE, Ex p. 929. Several accounts—Credit balance on trust account—Overdrawn private account.]—T., a partner in a firm of solrs., opened three accounts with the W. B. Bank, kept under the heads of (1) office account, (2) deposit account, (3) private account. T. informed the bank that the deposit account would be mostly clients' money. It was later closed & transferred to the office account. The office account, into which clients' money was thereafter paid, was in credit, but the private account was overdrawn to a greater extent:—Held: the bank could set off the debit balance on the private account against the credit balance on the office account.—GREENWOOD TEALE v. WILLIAMS (WILLIAM), BROWN & Co. (1894), 11 T. L. R. 56.

930. Set-off or counterclaim—Balance on current account—Right to set off undue promissory note.]—In an action by an administrator for the balance of the intestate's banking account at the time of his death, debts. in their statement of defence sought to avail themselves either by way of set-off or of counterclaim of a debt due to them from the intestate as one of several makers of a promissory note for £1,000 which did not become due until after the intestate's death. Reply, that before action an order was made in an administration suit in the Ch. Div. to take an account of the debts & liabilities affecting the personal estate of deceased, of which debts. before action had notice, & that under Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860 (c. 38), s. 14, equity would restrain any proceedings on the note until the account had been taken:—Held: the claim in respect of the promissory note could not be relied on as a set-off, & in accordance with the practice in equity, debts. must be restrained from setting it up by way of counterclaim & be left to prove for it in the administration suit. — *NEWELL v. ## SECT. 23.—GUARANTEES TO SECURE ADVANCES OR BALANCE OF ACCOUNT.

931. Overdraft by customer—Presumption.]—No surety asked to guarantee a banking account is entitled to assume that the customer of the bank has not been in the habit of overdrawing; the proper presumption in most instances is that he has been doing so, & wishes to do so again. That is a legitimate carrying on of business, & that is what the surety is asked to guarantee (FARWELL, L.J.).—LONDON GENERAL OMNIBUS CO., LTD. v. HOLLOWAY, [1912] 2 K. B. 72; 81 L. J. K. B. 603; 108 L. T. 502, C. A.

Annotation:—Reid. National Provincial Bank of England v. Glanusk, [1913] 3 K. B. 335.

932. Continuing guarantee—Consideration—Termination.]—Semble: where a guarantee is given to secure a running account at a banker's, the consideration is supplied from time to time, & unless the guarantee stipulates to the contrary,

929 i Several accounts—Credit balance on new account—Overdrawn old account—Special agreement.]—A bank agreed with the directors of a co., which had an overdrawn account, to close that account, & open a No. 2 account. The bank was informed that this was done for the purpose of winding up the business of the co., which was in difficulties. Money was lodged in the No. 2 account & cheques drawn against it. The co. afterwards went into voluntary liquidation. The bank declined to allow the liquidator to draw against the No. 2 account, & claimed to set off the credit balance on that account against the debit balance of the No. 1 account:—Held: there was a special arrangement which prevented the bank exercising its ordinary rights of setting off one account of a customer against another.—Re JOHNSON & Co., LTD., [1902] 1 I. R. 439.—IR.

929 ii. — — — — —.]—A co., being in debt to their bankers on their current account, agreed to open another current account with the bank, & the bank agreed that they "would not appropriate any of the funds, which might at any time be lying at the credit of the No. 2 account, in reduction of the debt due to the bank on the overdraft on the current account, without your knowledge & consent":—Held: the agreement did not deprive the bank of their right in the winding up of the co. to set off the balance standing to the credit of the No. 2 account against the overdraft on the other account, & to prove for the difference in the winding-up proceedings.—BRITISH GUIANA BANK v. OFFICIAL RECEIVER (1911), 104 L. T. 751, P. C.—BRITISH GUIANA.

a. b. Claim or fraud—Overdrawn ac- count of customer—Set-off after judgment.]—Applt. sued resp. bank for damages for fraud. The bank claimed in reconvention £400 in respect of applt.'s overdrawn account. In his plea to the claim in reconvention applt. said he was indebted in respect of the amount of the overdraft, but in a later paragraph he said the overdraft was not yet due & payable by reason of his claim in convention. Applt., not being satisfied with the affidavit of discovery made by the bank, sought an order of further & fuller discovery, which, on appeal, was granted with costs. The taxed costs amounted to £165, but the bank refused to pay that amount on the ground that such indebtedness was extinguished by set-off:—Held: as the overdraft of £400 was not involved in the claim in convention, & as applt.'s claim was unliquidated, it could not be set off against the claim in reconvention, & as applt. had, in fact, admitted his indebtedness on the overdraft, his claim for costs was extinguished by set-off against the overdraft.—*RAINFORD v. 934. Advances beyond agreed amount—Limitation of liability.—If a bond be given by one as surety to secure the payment of the advances made by a banker to his customer, the bond is not altogether avoided as against the surety by the banker advancing beyond the agreed amount, unless it clearly appear by the instrument that such was the intention of the parties; but the liability of the surety is limited to the agreed amount.

Deft. as surety executed a bond conditioned for the payment of any balance due from the principal not exceeding £1,000, together with interest thereon. He consented to do so upon receiving from the banker a memorandum that the advance to the principal was to be limited to £950, & that the surety was to be informed if the amount with interest should reach £1,000, & not be reduced within one month:—Held: the only effect of such memorandum was to limit the liability of the surety in point of amount, & a violation by the banker of the stipulations contained in it afforded no defence either at law, or upon equitable grounds, to an action against the surety upon the bond.—GORDON v. RAE (1858), 8 E. & B. 1065; 27 L. J. Q. B. 185; 31 L. T. O. S. 55; 4 Jur. N. S. 530; 120 E. R. 396.

935. — Novation—Release of principal debtor—Liability for balance of debt.—A mtge., which contained no covenant to pay the debt, provided that defts. should be at liberty, without thereby affecting their rights therein, at any time to "vary, exchange or release any other securities held or to be held by defts. for or on account of the money thereby secured or any part thereof, & to compound with, give time for payment of, & accept compositions from & make any other arrangements with debtors or any of them." In 1908 defts. received a letter from the secretary of F. Co., which was formed under a general arrangement made with all the creditors of P. Brothers, of which arrangement pltf. had approved, to take over the assets & liabilities of P. Brothers, offering defts. debenture-stock therein for the amount of their debt from

P. Brothers, with a bonus of 25 per cent. At the foot of the letter was the following statement: "Amount of debt £3,530, less value of security held £1,630—£1,900, 25 per cent. bonus £475, total £2,375." The £1,630 was the value put upon securities held by defts. on the property of the firm. There was inclosed an application form headed, "Form of request, the F. Company," & continuing: "Please allot to me debenture stock to the value of £2,375, being the amount of my claim against P. Brothers. I agree to accept such debenture stock in full discharge of my claims against P. Brothers." Defts. signed the form of request, & stock of the nominal value of £2,375 was allotted to them. Pltf. claimed that nothing was due to defts. from P. Brothers & that he was discharged from any liability to defts. under the mtge. or otherwise, & asked for an order that defts. should reconvey to him the mtged. properties:—Held: (1) the proviso in the mtge. preserved the rights of defts. against the surety, & his property was not released; (2) the debentures were accepted in accord & satisfaction of the £1,900, but the £1,630 was still a charge on the mtged. property.—*PERRY v. 936. Surety also partner in bank—Payment of debt—Rights against principal.—Pltf., a shareholder in a banking co., became a surety for advances to be made by the co. to deft. Deft. afterwards executed a composition deed, to which pltf. & the banking co. were parties, whereby he assigned his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors, & this deed contained a stipulation for a reserve of remedies against sureties for deft. Pltf. having been compelled to pay the debt to the banking co., in an action for money paid:—Held: he was entitled to recover back the amount from deft.—KEARSLEY v. COLE (1846), 16 M. & W. 128; 16 L. J. Ex. 115; 8 L. T. O. S. 234; 153 E. R. 1128.

tomer brought an action to reopen the account on the ground of overcharges for commission, & evidence was given, on behalf of the bankers, that there was a custom or usage among bankers in the north of England that each half-year, when a balance was struck & a "rest" made & interest chargeable thereon, there was a new transaction, on which commission was chargeable as well as interest:—Held: having regard to the customer's acquiescence, & the above evidence of custom or usage, his action failed.—SPENCER v. WAKEFIELD (1887), 4 T. L. R. 194.

941. Interest on advances—Usury.]—G. & Co., bankers in London, opened a banking account with defts.' house of trade in Manchester, on an agreement that they should receive 5 per cent. besides interest on all moneys paid & advanced by them. Defts. had also another house of trade in London, & the bills drawn by them upon G. & Co. were dated & signed at Manchester, but were filled up in London, & carried from the London house to G. & Co., & were payable in London, & the letters of advice were dated London, & also sent to G. & Co. from the London house. Evidence was given to show that the account was opened as a country account, by way of getting a commission upon what was in reality a town account:—Held: commission was lawful, as for trouble in transacting money negotiations a banker might as well receive commission as a factor might for trouble in making sales, etc., & the only question was, whether it was reserved as a colour for usury upon a loan of money, or for trouble.—CURTIS v. LIVESEY (1790), cited 4 M. & S. at p. 196; 105 E. R. 807.

Business proceeded on this footing until the co. stopped payment, when the bank were creditors without any allowance for re-exchange for a large sum on which they had received dividends. In addition the bank claimed to prove for £10 per cent. for re-exchange on the amount of bills sent back to Peru, which they had had to pay & which they were entitled to charge according to the laws of Peru:—Held: the amount claimed was reasonable, & the bank were entitled to prove for it.—Re GENERAL SOUTH AMERICAN Co.

944. Improper charges — Dishonour of cheque caused by—Damages.]—Defts. discounted a bill for pltf. of which he was the drawer. The bill was dishonoured, & as a result of negotiations between pltf. & defts., the latter sued the acceptors. Pltf. subsequently provided for the bill, but a dispute arose as to whether he should pay £2 3s. 10d., the costs of defts.' solrs. Defts. debited pltf.'s account with this sum, & if entitled to do so, they were justified in refusing to pay a cheque of pltf., which they had dishonoured:—Held: pltf. was entitled to damages & defts. had no right without his consent to debit his account with such a charge.—HOLL v. MERCANTILE & EXCHANGE BANK, LTD. (1865), Grant on Banking, 6th ed., p. 178, n.

945. — Usurious discount & commission — Mortgage to secure balance of account.]—Pltf. gave a mtge. of land to defts., bankers, to secure the balance of his banking account with interest. On defts. threatening to sell the land, pltf. paid the sum demanded as the balance by defts. Pltf. then filed a bill for an account, not alleging usury, but alleging improper charges for discount & commission, & a decree was made directing an account of all dealings between pltf. & defts., & inquiries as to the charges for interest & commission. The master found that on taking the account defts. had been overpaid £112, that certain sums above £5 per cent. had been charged for discount on bills, & certain sums for commission. No exceptions were taken to the report. Upon the cause coming on for further directions, pltf. claimed that several charges of defts. for discount & commission should be disallowed as usurious:—Held: at this stage of the proceedings, pltf. was precluded from taking the objection. Qu.: whether a customer, having given to a banker a mtge. of land to secure the balance due from him, can object to any usual charges as between banker & customer, on the ground of usury.—THOMAS v. 948. Payment to agent of bank—Rights of customer.]—A customer paid in on Jan. 3 notes & cash to the Glasgow agent of M. & Co. for the purpose of being remitted to London to retire an acceptance of his to the same amount. On the previous day the London house of M. & Co. had stopped payment. On the 4th the Glasgow agent transmitted the notes to the Edinburgh agent:—Held: as between M. & Co.'s assignees & the customer, the assignees must deliver up the notes to the customer or pay over their amount.—*Re MABERLY, Ex p. 949. ———.]—A London banker, having a branch bank at Edinburgh, stopped payment in London, & after the stoppage, but before notice, a customer paid to the agent, who had the management of the bank at Edinburgh, promissory notes to be remitted to London. At that time the banker was indebted to the agent, & the agent, after the notice, in pursuance of a special direction from the banker, received money from other agents for the purpose of forwarding to London. A fiat issued against the banker, at which period the moneys in the hands of the agent were more than sufficient to cover the amount due to him from the banker, but the amount which he had at the time of notice of the stoppage, including the notes, was insufficient. The customer required the agent to return the bank-notes, which he did not do, & the agent refused to pay any part of the money to the assignees. The Ct. of Session ordered the agent to pay, without prejudice, the balance of moneys, after deducting in the meantime the amount due to him, to the assignees, which he did, & afterwards, it appearing clear that he was not entitled to retain any part of the sum which he received from the other agents after notice, he paid to the assignees the difference between the sum paid to the assignees under the order of the Ct. of Session & the amount so received from the other agents:—Held: the assignees of the banker must refund to the customer the amount paid in by him.—*Re MABERLEY, Ex p. 953 i. Deposit for specific purpose—Specific appropriation.]—A customer gave directions to a bank to utilise the money standing to his credit for a certain purpose, & the officers of the bank, when the customer called at the bank, informed him that his instructions would be carried out in due course. The bank became insolvent before the directions were so carried out:—Held: (1) (MUNRO, J.) by virtue of the direction by the customer, a fiduciary relationship was established between the customer & the bank; (2) (ABDUR RAHIM, J.) the mere promise to carry out the customer's directions, without doing anything to the fact that he pays the amount of his overdraft at the time of liquidation without knowledge of the dishonour of the draft, & afterwards pays the creditor the amount of the draft, obtain a refund by the liquidator of the money paid by him to the co. for the draft in priority to the other creditors of the co. The circumstances in which the draft was obtained do not create a fiduciary relation or special contract between the banking co. & its customer so as to entitle the customer to such refund.—Re CITY OF MELBOURNE BANK, LTD., FERGUSON'S CASE (1897), 23 V. 956. .]—A banker in London was in the habit of accepting for the accommodation of a customer, a merchant in Sweden, bills drawn on him by the merchant, who used to remit other bills to the banker to put him in funds to meet the acceptances when they became due. The banker, with the knowledge of the customer, generally discounted the remitted bills before they fell due, & paid the proceeds to his current account with his own bankers. He rendered yearly accounts to the customer, & in those accounts he credited him with interest on the amounts of the remitted bills from their due dates, & debited him with interest on the amounts which he paid in discharge of the acceptances. The amounts of the bills remitted by the customer did not always exactly correspond with the amounts of the acceptances which they were intended to cover. In Apr., 1883, the banker accepted a bill for £450 drawn on him by the customer, & maturing on July 21. On July 13 the customer sent to the banker a bill for £450 upon W., of London, payable at sight. This bill was received by the banker on July 17, & the proceeds were paid to his bankers & carried to his current account. On July 20 the banker stopped payment. His acceptance for £450 was dishonoured the next day, & the customer had to pay it. In Nov., 1883, the banker filed a liquidation petition:—Held: the remitted bill for £450 was not specifically appropriated to meet the banker's acceptance for £450, & as the amount of the bill had been received by the banker before the commencement of the liquidation, the customer was not entitled to the proceeds in specie, but could only prove for the amount as a debt in the liquidation. Semble: if the remitted bill had remained in specie at the commencement of the liquidation the customer would, on retiring the acceptance, have been entitled to have the bill returned to him.—*Re BROAD, Ex p. If a person, having money to his credit deposited in such bank to his current account, has drawn a cheque on that account & sent it to the bank with a direction to remit the money represented by it less exchange, & to pay it on a certain date in London, & the bank have not sent the actual cash, but after debiting the customer with the amount of the cheque have directed their London agent to pay the amount less the exchange, & to debit the bank in Australia with the amount, & before the amount is paid in London the bank go into liquidation, the bank do not become the agents of the customer, but remain as bankers who have borrowed their customer's money, & the customer cannot follow the money, but must prove for it as a creditor in the liquidation.

Money paid to a bank for remission to England & payment there on a particular day by a cheque on another bank, which has been taken into account through the daily clearing-house of the various banks, although the amount in cash has not actually passed to the bank, & money similarly paid to a bank by a cheque on a customer's account at that bank, which has been debited to the customer's account by the bank, is money which may under the ordinary rule of following trust moneys in a liquidation be followed if the bank go into liquidation before the money is payable or paid in England, although the bank have not actually sent to England any cash representing the amounts, but have merely directed their London agent to pay the amounts there on the days when they are due.—*Re CITY OF MELBOURNE BANK, LTD., Ex p. Afterwards P. received from A. two sums which were required to send abroad. A receiving order was subsequently made against A., on which he was adjudicated bkpt., & his trustee claimed the balance of the proceeds of the cheque:—Held: as the cheque was handed to A. in trust, the relationship of banker & customer did not exist between the parties, & the trustee was not entitled to the money:—*Re BROWN, Ex p. On July 14, 1841, petitioners sent to bkpts. three cheques drawn upon bkpts. by three of their customers named L., P., & R., inclosed in a printed letter saying, "We enclose sundries, value £295 7s.—for our credit with C. & Co., bankers, London." The amounts for which the cheques were drawn were £200, £3 19s., & £13 12s. The accounts of all the three customers were overdrawn at the time, but with regard to L., whose account was overdrawn to the amount of £600, bkpts. had security of his of greater value than that sum together with the amount of the £200 cheque. The cheques had been paid into petitioners' bank by customers of theirs, who had received them from L., P., & R. It was agreed that the former cheque should not be presented before July 1, & it was alleged by P., but denied by M., that a similar restriction applied to the latter cheque. The private bankers suspended payment & closed their doors about noon on June 27, having a large balance in their hands at the credit of M., who on that day served a writ on them in an action to recover such balance (the amount of the cheque being included). His cheque was never presented for payment, nor was any notice of dishonour given. The cheque of P. was presented & paid:—Held: (1) P. had not been guilty of laches up to the time of the suspension of the bankers; (2) although the suspension would not in itself excuse non-presentment & want of notice of dishonour before action, yet that event & the bringing of the action by M., which operated as a countermand of payment, would do so.—*BLACKLEY v. After the bkpcy. the assignees called on L., P., & R. to pay the sums with which they were respectively debited in their overdrawn accounts, including the amount of the cheques in question, & received from them the three sums. 962. Set-off—Balance due on partnership account
—Credit balance on separate account of partner
—Assignment to partnership account after stoppage of bank.—T. W. & W. W. were indebted to C. & Co., bankers, on their partnership account, but there was a balance due to T. W. from the bankers on his private account. On Apr. 22, 1843, the bankers stopped payment, but the bank continued open for business, the bankers receiving their own notes in payment of debts due to them, but making no cash payments, & the stoppage being represented to be temporary. On May 25 T. W. assigned the balance due to him to T. W. & W. W. as partners, & notice was on the same day given to the bankers to transfer such balance to the account of T. W. & W. W. This was not done, & on May 31, a fiat in bkpcy. issued against the bankers on an act of bkpcy. committed the day before:—Held: T. W. & W. W. had no right in equity to set off the balance due to T. W. against the balance due from T. W. & W. W.—WATTS v. CHRISTIE (1849), 11 Beav. 546; 18 L. J. Ch. 173; 13 L. T. O. S. 297; 13 Jur. 244, 845; 50 E. R. 928.

962 iii. — Transfer of deposit—Deposit fund insufficient.—In an action by the trustees of a savings bank which had become insolvent, on an obligation for a loan by the bank, deft. pleaded compensation by an amount transferred to him by a depositor with the bank:—Held: as the amount of deposits could only be paid out of the deposit fund & the interest accrued thereon, & as the deposit fund was not sufficient to meet the deposits which had been made, the plea of compensation would not lie.—*MORRIS v. 962 iv. — Note in exchange for deposit receipt—Liability as contributory.—Y., in making a deposit on a Govt. contract, gave a marked cheque on the C. Bank, in which he was a shareholder, which cheque was subsequently cancelled & a deposit receipt, issued by the bank, substituted therefor. Y. gave his note to the bank to cover the amount of the receipt. The bankers at the time of their bkpcy. held the note, & there was also a balance in their hands to the credit of the society upon current account:—Held: the society was entitled to set off the amount of its balance against the sum due upon the note, which must be delivered up on payment of the difference.—*Re DAVIES & TROUGHTON, Ex p. The bank failed & was ordered to be wound up, & the chief clerk allowed a set-off in respect of the sum so carried over in respect of dividends. A claim by the husband to be admitted as a creditor for the whole sum made up of dividends so carried over, & his own balance, was allowed.—Re ROYAL BANK OF LIVERPOOL, Ex p. MOLYNEUX (1868), 19 L. 966. — Credit balance on joint executorship account—Overdrawn account of executor-legatee.]—An exorship. account was kept with bankers in the joint names of the two exors., who were brother & sister. The brother, who was the residuary legatee under the will, kept another account of his own with the bankers. The bankers filed a liquidation petition, & at that time there was a balance standing to the credit of the joint account, but the other account was overdrawn. Securities had been set apart to answer the legacies bequeathed by the will, & testator's debts & funeral & testamentary expenses had been paid, but the exors. were jointly it with other security, took an assignment of the receipt & notified the bank. Y. then filed a petition for leave to set off the deposit receipt against the note:—Held: (1) Y., as maker of the note to the bank, was a mere debtor & not a contributory, & although also a shareholder, & so liable as a contributory, he was not a contributory quoad the debt, which arose out of an independent transaction, & R. S. C., c. 129, s. 73, did not apply; (2) the prohibition in the Act against acquiring debts for the purpose of set-off was limited to the case of contributories, but as to debtors the law of set-off as administered by the cts. was applicable as if the co. was a going concern; (3) the right of set-off virtually arose, not by reason of dealings subsequent to the winding-up order, but of dealings prior thereto, & in taking up the deposit receipt & supplying better security, Y. was only fulfilling that which he was obliged to do by a prior bona fide engagement.—Re CENTRAL BANK OF CANADA, YORKE'S CASE (1888), 15 O. The provisional assignee of B. & Co., knowing that fact, presented & obtained payment of the notes of A. & Co., partly at their bank, & partly at the house of their agents in London, who were ignorant of the situation in which the parties stood:—Held: A. & Co. might recover the amount so received, in an action for money had & received against the provisional assignee.—*EDMEADS v. This parcel they in fact deposited among the securities belonging to other persons who dealt with them, but they gave no information of any of these circumstances to the customer till the eve of their bkpcy., when they sent him the parcel with the bonds, saying they must stop payment next morning:—Held: the customer could not retain the bonds against the assignees of the bankers.—*WILSON v. 975. Deposits in breach of trust—Knowledge of partner of bank—Separate liability of partners.]—The trustees of a settlement deposited £1,000 with a banking firm at 3 per cent. interest. The deposit was in itself a breach of trust, not having been a mere temporary deposit. The senior partner of the banking firm was a party to the settlement & knew that the deposit was a breach of trust; the other partners were not fixed with knowledge of that fact. The firm became bkpt. The trustees of the settlement sought to prove against the separate estates of each partner, their right to prove against the joint estate not being disputed:—Held: they were entitled to prove against the separate estate of the senior partner, but not against the separate estates of the other partners, as the mere payment of trust moneys into a bank did not make every member of the firm a constructive trustee.—*Re NEWPORT OLD BANK, Re WILLIAMS & SON, Ex p. They paid their London correspondent bank £600 per annum in respect of the whole of the London business done for them by the London firm. Interest was charged by the Hull firm to deft. on the amount of the bills from the day they became due. The Hull bank became bkpt., & the London bankers paid the amount of such of the bills, accepted by them as above, which became due subsequently to that event. In an action by the assignees of the bankers against the customer for the amount so paid by the London agents:—Held: they were entitled to recover.—*BARKWORTH v. Mis-statement in accounts—Manager's abuse of authority—Acquiescence & ratification by liquidating authorities.]—The accounts of a bank in liquidation had been changed so as to represent the bank as debtors in respect of a sum which had been borrowed by their manager for his own purposes:—Held: the doctrine of acquiescence & ratification by the liquidating authorities would not avail to render the bank liable to pay a debt which they never owed.—BANQUE JACQUES-CARTIER v. BANQUE D'EPARGNE DE MONTREAL (1887), 13 App. Cas. 111; 57 L. J. P. C. 42, P. C.

978. Partnership continued after death of partner—Subsequent bankruptcy—Liability of deceased partner's estate.]—Prior to the death of D., partner in a banking house, C. had deposited with the partners two exchequer bills for £500 each, without giving them any power or authority to dispose of same, except that when the exchequer bills should be paid off the partners were to buy with the produce, or take in exchange, other exchequer bills, to be held by them in the same manner. Without the consent or knowledge of C. the partners in the lifetime of D. sold the bills for £1,035 & applied the proceeds to their own use. At the death of D., C. had a balance of £1,713 on his cash account with the banking house. Between the death of D. & the bkpcy. of the firm the payments made to C. by the surviving partners exceeded the amount of the credit balance & the produce of the exchequer bills together, but their subsequent receipts largely exceeded the sums paid; & the balance due at the time of the bkpcy., exclusive of the produce of the exchequer bills, exceeded the amount of the balance due at D.'s death. C. having since the bkpcy. discovered that the exchequer bills had been sold, proved for the amount of the produce thereof & received dividends. The surviving partners rendered an account to C. falsely representing that the exchequer bills had been paid off on Oct. 31, 1809, & that a new bill for £1,000 had on the same day been purchased or taken in exchange:—Held: D.'s estate was liable on the ground that at the time of sale the amount received became a partnership debt, whether the individual partners were, or were not, privy to the sale, & as C. was ignorant that any such sum of money was in their hands, payments subsequently made in respect of cash balances were not to be taken as operating in extinction of such a debt.—*DEVAYNES v. In an action against a banker for disclosing the state of his customer's account, the declaration alleging that deft. promised not to communicate to any other person the state of the account, except upon reasonable & proper occasion, the proper question for the jury is whether, in the circumstances of the case, there was reasonable & proper occasion for the disclosure. Qu.: whether there is any legal duty on a banker not to disclose the state of his customer's account, so as to make such disclosure the ground of an action without special damage.—*HARDY v. though such person is abroad.—COOPER v. MARS-DEN (1793), 1 Esp. 1, N. P.

995. — Proof of payment by partner producing book.]—In a case of alleged fraud between cestuis que trust & their trustees, the evidence of a partner in the banking house, bringing forward the ledger containing the entry of the money paid in to the trustee's account & stating that, from that entry, although not made by himself, he has no doubt of the money having been so paid, is admissible.—KNATCHBULL v. BRADSHAW (1835), 4 L. J. Ch. 62.

996. — Not communicated to customer.]—Entries in bankers' books not proved to have been communicated to the customer are not evidence against him, but may be evidence for him.—Re BOLDERO, Ex p. PEASE (1812), 19 Ves. 25; 1 Rose, 232; 34 E. R. 428.

R. 7 Eq. 20.

997. By several clerks.]—A banker's ledger is receivable in evidence to show that a customer had no funds in the banker's hands, although entries were made therein by several clerks.—FURNESS v. COPE (1828), 5 Bing. 114; Dan. & Ll. 167; 2 Moo. & P. 197; 6 L. J. O. S. C. P. 242; 130 E. R. 1004.

998. — By deceased clerk—Ordinary course of duty.]—A banker's books kept by a clerk in the ordinary course of his duty may after his death be received in evidence, in an action against a surety on a bond conditioned for his fidelity, to prove the issue that certain sums had been received by the clerk.—WHITNASH v. GEORGE (1828), 8 B. & C. 556; 108 E. R. 1149; sub nom. WHITMARSH v. GENGE, Dan. & Ll. 171; 3 Man. & Ry. K. B. 42; 7 L. J. O. S. K. B. 57.

999. — By deceased partner—Regular course of business.]—To make an entry in a banker's book, in the handwriting of a deceased partner, evidence, it must be proved not only to have been made in the regular course of business, but to have been made at the time it bears date or immediately after.—RAY v. JONES (1836), 2 Gale, 220.

1000. Secrecy clause in bank deed—Effect.]—The object of the secrecy clause in bank deeds is only to prevent vexatious attempts to pry improperly into the affairs of the concern, & wherever a proper case is made out the ct. will not hesitate to make an order for inspection, non obstante the secrecy clause.—Re BIRMINGHAM BANKING CO., Ex p. BRINSLEY (1866), 36 L. J. Ch. 150; 15 L. T. 203.

1001. Application by dissentient shareholder.]—The deed of settlement of a banking co. provided that no member should be entitled to inspect or have in equity discovery of the books of the co. The co. went into voluntary liquidation under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), with a view to reconstruction, & its business, customers, & books were transferred to a new co. M., one of six dissentient shareholders (who represented together about £3,000 paid-up capital out of a total of £338,000), refused an offer of the liquidators to buy her interest, & the liquidators appointed an arbitrator. M. also appointed an arbitrator, but previously to so doing took out a summons for production by the liquidators of all books, accounts, statements, returns, reports, & other documents containing entries or information relative to the assets of the bank at the date of the resolution to wind up:—Held: M. was not entitled to the order asked for, which would injure the business of the new co., while her interests were sufficiently protected by Cos. Act, 1862, ss. 161, 162, under which the burden was on the liquidators to show that their offer was a fair one.—Re GLAMORGANSHIRE BANKING CO., MORGAN'S CASE (1884), 28 Ch. D. 620; 54 L. J. 1002. Notice to produce—Cheque.]—If a cheque, drawn by one of the parties in a cause, be proved to be in the hands of the banker of such party, having been paid, the opposite party need not, if he wishes to have it put in evidence, call the banker's clerk to produce it, but may call for it under a notice to produce, as the bankers are the agents of the drawer of the cheque, & the drawer would have a right to go to the bankers & demand the cheque of them.—BURTON v. PAYNE (1827), 2 C. & P. 520, N. P.

1003. Production at specified place.]—Pltfs. were ordered to file an affidavit of documents, & upon reasonable notice to produce for inspection at the office of their London solrs. those that they did not by that affidavit object to produce. Among the documents scheduled to the affidavit which pltfs. were willing to produce were certain bank books in constant use at their Hastings branch. 994 iii. — Payments by bank disputed.]—Where the fact of payments by a banking firm is distinctly put in issue, the book of the firm being at most corroborative evidence, the mere general statement of the banker to the effect that his books were correctly kept is not sufficient to discharge the burden of proof that lies upon him, particularly if he has the means of producing much better evidence.—GUNGA PERSHAD v. INDERJIT SINGH (1875), 23 W. R. 390, P. C.—IND.

994 iv. — Balance due on death of customer.]—In an action by bankers against the representatives of a deceased customer to recover a balance of an account alleged to be due to pltfs. by deceased at the time of his death, the production of the bankers' books, with the entries of the items constituting the demand, kept according to the established custom of mahajuns in India, is not of itself sufficient evidence to establish such a claim, strict proof of the debt being required.—RAI SRI KISHEN v. RAI HURI KISHEN (1853), 5 Moo. Ind. App. 432, P. C.—IND.

994 v. — Cashier disputing payments in.]—In an action for an amount alleged to have been deposited in a savings bank, which was disputed by the cashier of the bank, entries made by him in the books of the bank were admitted as confirmatory testimony of his evidence.—KELLY v. HARBOUR GRACE SAVINGS BANK (1881), 6 Nfld. L. R. 57.—NFLD.

994 vi. — Deposits by & advances to customer.]—Two books of a bank, one containing deposits by & the other advances to an employer:—Held: not sufficient evidence per se of a balance said to be due by him to the bank.—BRITISH LINEN CO.'S BANK v. THOMSON (1853), 2 Stuart, 175.—SCOT.

a. Copies of entries in books—Evidence against bank.]—In an action by a bank, in which deft. filed a statement of his account furnished by the bank from their books in support of his plea:—Held: such statement might be taken as evidence against the bank where there was nothing to show error.—MORRIS v. UNWIN (1851), 4 L. C. R. 235.—CAN.

b. — .]—In an action against a banking co.:—Held: excerpts from defenders' books, recovered under a commission & diligence granted by the ct., & certified to be correct by defenders' manager, who exhibited the books, & whose deposition under the commission was produced therewith, & the comr. & clerk, were good evidence against defenders in the jury ct., & it was not necessary to produce the books themselves.—THOM v. NORTH BRITISH BANK (1850), 23 Sc. Jur. 40.—SCOT.

1003 i. Production of books—Refusal of bank agent to produce.]—A bank agent gave notice under R. S. C., Ord. 21, r. 17, that they would produce them at the Hastings branch & declined to produce them elsewhere:—Held: r. 17 had no reference to a case where the ct. had ordered documents to be produced at a specified place, & pltf's. were in contempt.—LLOYDS BANK, LTD. v. LUCK (1901), 45 Sol. Jo. 596.

1004. Inspection of bank books — Application against public officer of dissolved company—Covenant by shareholder not to call for inspection.]—Bill against a public officer of a joint-stock banking co., which had been dissolved, charging documents & praying an account. Deft. answered that the documents were not in his individual possession, but admitted them to be in the possession of the directors & the solr. to the co., & he set them forth in his sched. On a motion to produce same:—Held: notwithstanding the dissolution, he still represented the co. for the purposes of the motion, & was bound to produce the documents.

The covenant of a shareholder in the deed of settlement, that he will not call for inspection of certain books of the co., will not be a bar to his moving for their production in a suit brought by him against the co.—HALL v. CONNELL (1840), 3 Y. & C. Ex. 707; 9 L. J. Ex. Eq. 25; 160 E. R. 886.

1005. — Of banking corporation not governed by Companies Acts—Right of shareholder to inspect.]—Resp. held one share in the B. Bank & claimed the right to inspect the register of shareholders. The corpn. was not governed by any Act conferring upon shareholders a general right of inspection:—Held: a member could not inspect the books of a corpn. not governed by Cos. Acts unless he showed there was some specific dispute or question in which he had a special interest different from that of the other members, & inspection, if granted, must be limited accordingly.—*BANK OF BOMBAY v. refused to produce on the ground that he had no documents in his possession but as such bank agent:—Held: he ought to set out in his affidavit what documents were so in his possession; & it appearing that he had taken a conveyance to himself as trustee for the bank, & that he had certain documents not mentioned in his affidavit, he should be ordered to produce them, although the bank were not parties to the cause.—MCDONELL v. MCKAY (1867), 2 Ch. Ch. 141.—CAN.

1003 ii. — Refusal to produce verified copy.]—Upon a bank refusing to produce a verified copy of an account, they were ordered to produce the books containing the account in question at the trial of the action.—COLEMAN v. COLEMAN (1898), 32 I. L. T. 66.—IR.

1003 iii. — Local manager examined as witness—Head office outside province.]—Upon a motion by pltf. to commit the local manager of a chartered bank, who was subpoenaed to attend before a master upon a reference, & there to produce the books of the bank & give evidence, for his contempt in not complying with the subpoena:—Held: (1) it was unreasonable to expect the witness to take from the bank the books that were in use & attend during banking hours for the purpose of an examination in a matter in which he had no interest except as a witness, & it would be proper for the master to take the evidence at the banking offices after banking hours; (2) where the head office of the bank was outside of Ontario, the local manager was the proper person to subpoena to produce the books, & should be ordered to do so, more especially where it did not appear that in so doing he would be contravening any rule or regulation of the bank.—HANNUM v.

1004 ii. — When granted—Account of person not party to action.]—An application for inspection of the bank account of a person not a party to the action ought not, as a general rule, to be granted without notice to such person & to his bankers, & then only upon an affidavit showing, to the full satisfaction of the ct. or judge, that there are good grounds for believing that there are entries in the account material to some issue to be tried in the action, & which would be evidence at the trial for the party applying for such inspection.—L'AMIE v. WILSON, [1907] 2 I. R. 130.—IR.

1004 iii. — Examination of bank officer.]—The manager of a branch of the N. Bank deposed that the United Irish League kept an account at that branch, & that he had a copy of it from Nov. 12 to Jan. with him. He objected to produce it:—Held: the bank's customer not being before the ct., production would not be ordered to assist a litigant to make out his case, but it was competent for counsel to examine the bank officer as to particular matters & to discover whether or not there was an entry in the bank book with regard to those matters.—CORK (EASTERN DIVISION) CASE (1911), 6 O'M. & H. 318.—IR.

The fact that a banker has received a document upon the terms that it shall not be delivered up except with the consent of the depositors is no answer to a subpœna duces tecum requiring the banker to produce the document.—*R. v. 1007. Copies of entries in books — Evidence against any one.]—The effect of s. 3 of the above Act is to make copies of entries in the books of a banker admissible evidence against any one, & copies of entries in the books of the bankers of deft. are evidence against pltf.—*HARDING v. 1009. — By whom provable.]—Copies of entries in bankers' books were made by a chartered accountant, to whom the books had been produced by a cashier of the bank. The cashier proved that the books were ordinary books of the bank & that the entries were made in the usual course of business, but he could not prove the copies were correct. The chartered accountant proved the copies were correct:—Held: under s. 5 of the above Act proof of the correctness of the copies need not be given by an

1007 ii. — Bank not "company."]—Copies of entries in the books of a bank, which does not come within the definition of a "co." in Bankers' Books Evidence Act, s. 2 (1), though certified in accordance with the form prescribed by that Act, are not admissible in evidence under that Act.—QUEEN EMPRESS v. MCGUIRE (1900), 4 C. W. N. 433.—IND.

1009 i. — Verification.]—Oral evidence may be given of the accuracy of copies of bank books put in evidence under Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1878 (No. 620), s. 4; proof by means of an affidavit is merely supplementary to such oral proof. It is necessary to prove that the institutions, copies of whose accounts it is sought to put in evidence, are banks of deposit as well as of issue.—R. v. SHIPP & STOCKALL (1888), 14 V. L. 1010. Accounts of third parties—Who may apply for order to inspect.]—Pltf. in an administration action was a residuary legatee of M., a solr., testator in the action, & in the course of the cross-examination on the accounts, before the chief clerk, of deft. H., who was testator's son-in-law & exor. & was carrying on business as a solr. under the firm of "M. & H.," applied to the ct., under s. 7 of the above Act, that she might be at liberty to inspect at the bankers' of testator & deft. the books of the bank for four years containing the entries of the accounts of testator & also of M. & H., & to take copies of such entries. Pltf.'s solr. deposed that the inspection was necessary for the purposes of the action:—Held: a person who formerly had a right to compel bankers to produce their books by subpoena duces tecum might apply for an order, & pltf. was entitled to the order asked for.—Re MARSHFIELD, MARSHFIELD v. HUTCHINGS (1886), 32 Ch. D. 499; 55 L. J. Ch. 522; 54 L. T. 564; 34 W. R. 511.

1011. Power of court.]—The ct. has power under s. 7 of the above Act to order inspection of bankers' books containing the accounts of persons not parties to the action if it is satisfied that such accounts will be evidence admissible at the trial & that the accounts are in substance & in fact kept on behalf of a party to the litigation.—HOWARD v. BEALL (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 1; 58 L. J. Q. B. 384; 60 L. T. 637; 37 W. R. 555.

1012. .]—An order for inspection of entries in a banker's books under s. 7 of the above Act will as a general rule be made only where they are entries in an account which is in form or substance the account of one of the parties to the litigation. If the ct. has jurisdiction under that sect. to order inspection of the banking account of a person not concerned with the litigation, it will exercise that jurisdiction with the greatest caution.

Pltf. sued to rescind a contract for purchase by him of shares in a co. from deft. on the ground that deft. had induced him to enter into the contract by misrepresentations, one of which was that the co. had a certain large balance at its bankers' at that time. Before the action was set down for trial pltf.

c. — Inspection of original entries—Effect of omission.]—Semble: a notice of intention to adduce copies of entries in a bank book under Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1878 (No. 620), will not be good if it omit to state that the original entries may be inspected.—BANK OF AUSTRALIA v. POLLARD (1882), 8 V. L. R. 66.—AUS.

d. Production of books—Bank not party to action.]—The ct. has power, under Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1878 (No. 620), s. 8, to order the production of bank books at the trial of an action, although the bank are not parties to the action.—HAY v. PATERSON, Re COLONIAL BANK (1889), 15 V. L. R. 360.—AUS.

e. — —.—The ct. has power, under Evidence Act, 1890 (No. 1088), s. 39, to order the production of a banker's books at the trial of an action, although the bank are not parties to the action. The ct. will grant an order for such production, notwithstanding an undertaking by the bank to have verified copies of all the material entries in such books in ct. at the trial to be used in evidence if the ct. should so direct, because such verified copies could not in the circumstances, by virtue of s. 36, be adduced in evidence at the trial.—DARLING v. CARTER & Co. (1903), 29 V. L. R. 136.—AUS.

1015 i. Inspection of bank books—Who may order—"Court or judge."]—On the taking of evidence under a commission issued by the High Ct. in England, application was made for an order under Bankers' Books Evidence Act (58 Vict. No. 6), s. 7:—Held: the word "ct." in the above sect. was restricted to the ct. before whom the legal proceedings were held or taken, but the word "judge" in the sect. applied to any judge, & there was power to make the order asked for.—PEAK HILL GOLDFIELDS, LTD. v. SIMPSON (1905), 7 W. A. L. R. 286.—AUS.

1015 ii. — Books outside jurisdiction.]—Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1878 (No. 620), does not apply to books out of the jurisdiction of the ct.—BANK OF AUSTRALIA v. POLLARD (1882), 8 V. L. R. 66.—AUS.

1015 iii. — When granted.]—In an applied to the ct. for liberty to inspect & take copies of any accounts of the co. in its bankers' books, & an order was made for inspection with the qualification, "but such inspection is to be limited to showing the balance of the co. in the books of the bankers on Dec. 2, 1895":—Held: this order must be discharged.—POLLOCK v. GARLE, [1898] 1 Ch. 1; 66 L. J. Ch. 788; 77 L. T. 415; 46 W. R. 66; 14 T. L. R. 16; 42 Sol. Jo. 32, C. A.

Annotation:—Refd. Cork (Eastern Division) Case (1911), 6 O'M. & H. 318.

1013. Verified copies not furnished—Subpoena duces tecum.]—The above Act, by s. 6, only excuses the attendance of a banker with his books where he has complied with ss. 2 & 5. If he has not furnished or been willing to furnish verified copies of the required entries the books may still be obtained by subpoena duces tecum.—EMMOTT v. STAR NEWSPAPER Co. (1892), 62 L. J. Q. B. 77; 67 L. T. 829; 57 J. P. 201; 9 T. L. R. 111; 5 R. 137.

1014. Books in custody of bank's successors—Book no longer in daily use.]—The above Act applies to books in the custody of a bank which has taken over the business of other bankers by whom the entries were made many years previously, & it also applies to a book which has ceased to be in daily use, if the book has been kept so that it may be referred to.—IDIOTS' ASYLUM v. HANDYSIDES (1906), 22 T. L. R. 573, C. A.

1015. Inspection of bank books—Ex parte application—Evidence in support.]—In an action for goods sold & delivered, to which payment & a counterclaim were pleaded, pltf., after issue joined, applied ex p. to a judge at chambers & obtained leave, under s. 7 of the above Act, to inspect deft.'s banking account. The application was supported by an affidavit of a solr., merely stating his belief that an inspection of deft.'s banking account was material to the matters in dispute. The order was served on deft.'s bankers, & they, on receipt of it, informed deft., who thus heard of the order which had been made. On the application of deft. the order was set aside on the ground that in the circumstances pltf. was not entitled to it.

In civil proceedings an application for such an order for inspection ought not to be made ex p.; & semble: the power to grant the order ex p. is limited to criminal proceedings.—DAVIES v. WHITE (1884), 53 L. J. Q. B. 275; 50 L. T. 327; 32 W. R. 520.

1016. ———.]—An order giving liberty to inspect a banker's books & take copies of any entries therein for the purposes of legal proceedings may under the above sect. be made ex p. & without action against a married woman on foot of building contracts, deft. alleged certain payments. All payments had been made by cheques drawn by deft.'s husband in his own name, or in his business name. The ct. made an order giving pltf. liberty to inspect the bank accounts of deft.'s husband & the firm, under Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879 (c. 11), s. 7.—M'GORMAN v. KIERANS (1901), 35 I. L. T. 84.—IR.

1015 iv. ——— One customer paying debt due by another.]—In an action where one of the issues was whether pltf., who had an account in a bank, had paid to the bank a sum of money due to the same bank by another party, who had also an account therein, the ct., on the ex p. application of deft., made an order under Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879, s. 7, giving him liberty to inspect & take copies of any entries in the accounts of pltf. & the party indebted to the bank, with reference to any sum or sums paid by pltf. for the indebtedness of the other party.—FRITZPATRICK v. M'DONALD (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 249.—IR.

evidence against a party to such proceedings, though generally it is better that notice of the application should be served on the person whose account is to be inspected, & in some cases the ct. may require evidence of the bona fides of the application, & of the materiality of the inspection. The order should be limited to such part of the accounts as is presumably connected with the matters in question in the proceedings.—ARNOTT v. HAYES (1887), 36 Ch. D. 731; 56 L. J. Ch. 844; 57 L. T. 299; 36 W. R. 246; 3 T. L. R. 807, C. A.

1017. Irrelevant matters—Refusal of discovery.]—Pltf. in an action for probate having been ordered to produce for inspection documents in her possession relating to the matters in question in the action, produced the pass-books of her banking account, sealing up parts of them which were, as she deposed, irrelevant to the matters in issue. Application was thereupon made by the opposing parties for an order authorising them to inspect the books, or in the alternative for leave to issue a subpoena duces tecum to the officers of the bank for their production :—Held : (1) the application could not be granted, for there was nothing in the above Act to deprive a party to a legal proceeding of his right to refuse discovery of entries in his banker's books on the ground that they were irrelevant; (2) whether the subpoena duces tecum should be granted was a matter which ought to be left for the determination of the judge at the trial.—PARNELL v. 1018. .]—The jurisdiction to order inspection of entries in bankers' books under s. 7 of the above Act ought to be exercised in conformity with the general law as to discovery, by which a party to an action is entitled to refuse discovery of entries which he swears to be irrelevant.

Deft. in an action stated on affidavit that entries in his banking account were irrelevant to the matters in dispute :—Held : an order for inspection of those entries before the trial ought not to be made.—SOUTH STAFFORDSHIRE TRAMWAYS CO. v. EBBSMITH, [1895] 2 Q. B. 669; 65 L. J. Q. B. 96; 73 L. T. 454; 44 W. R. 97; 12 T. L. R. 32; 40 Sol. Jo. 49, C. A.

1019. — Pass-book disclosed—Application to inspect other books.]—In a proper case the ct. will order inspection of bankers' books although the pass-book has been disclosed in the proceedings.

Pltf. made an affidavit of documents, to which he scheduled his bankers' pass-books. Defts. were charging pltf. with having paid sums received for petty cash into his private account at a bank, & they contended that the pass-books did not disclose what the various items actually were, & they desired to obtain inspection of the bankers' books into which the entries from the pass-books were copied, as showing more definitely the nature of pltf.'s account at the bank :—Held : a case for inspection before trial had been made out.—PERRY v. PHOSPHOR BRONZE CO., LTD. (1894), 71 L. T. 854; 14 R. 351, C. A.

1020. — In English action—Books in Scotland or Ireland.]—The above Act applies to the whole of the United Kingdom & an English ct. has jurisdiction under s. 7, upon an application made in an English action, to order inspection of a bankers' books in Scotland or Ireland.—KISSAM v. 1022. — To support justification of libel.]—In proceedings for criminal libel, in which they proposed to put in a plea of justification, defts. applied for an order under the above sect. to inspect the banking account of the person they were alleged to have libelled :—Held : an order would not be made in those circumstances.—Re BANKERS' BOOKS EVIDENCE ACT, 1879, R. v. 9. Inn of Chancery—Property vested in trustees—Charitable trust.]—The Society of Clifford's Inn was one of the Inns of Ch. established to provide for the legal education of students of the law. In the year 1618 by an indenture of feoffment the messuages & premises occupied by the society were assured to certain members thereof as trustees, in consideration of the payment of a sum of money, & the reservation of certain rents. The indenture declared that the intention of the grantors was that the messuage commonly called Clifford's Inn, which was stated to have been for many years used & employed as an Inn of Ch. for the study & practice of the common laws of the realm, & to have been governed to the good of the Commonwealth & the honour of the grantors & their ancestors, "shall & may hereafter continue to be employed as an Inn of Ch. for the furtherance of the practisers & students of the common law of the realm as aforesaid," & that the society should from thenceforth be assured of a certain state therein, & the operative part of the deed declared that the true intent & meaning thereof, & of the parties thereto, was that "Clifford's Inn shall for ever hereafter be continued & employed as an Inn of Ch. for the good of the gentlemen of the society & for the benefit of the commonwealth as aforesaid & not otherwise." The property had long been dealt with by the society as its own, & for its own purposes, & the surviving members contended that it was not now subject to or affected by any charitable trust, but belonged to the individual members for their own personal benefit, to be divided & disposed of as they might think fit:—Held: the property vested in the present trustees was held by them upon trust for charitable purposes.—SMITH v. KERR, [1902] 1 Ch. 774; 71 L. J. Ch. 369; 86 L. T. 477; 18 T. L. R. 456, C. A.

A. Admission of Students, and Calling of Barristers.

11. Call to Bar—Holy orders—Disqualification.]—H. had been admitted a member of the Inner Temple, but when the time came for his call to the Bar a question was raised as to his being in holy orders. The Benchers of the Inner Temple having requested the opinion of the other Inns on the point, Lincoln's Inn, Middle Temple & Gray's Inn were of opinion that a person in priest's orders was not a proper person to be called to the Bar.—HORNE'S CASE (1779), 20 State Tr. 687, n.; 2 Lud. E. C. 281, n.

12. ———.]—At a joint meeting of delegations from the Benchers of the four Inns it was the opinion of all the deputies that a person in deacon's orders ought not to be called to the Bar.—TOOKE'S CASE (1794), 20 State Tr. 687, n.

13. ——— Method to compel.]—A mandamus will not lie to compel admission to the degree of barrister. The only mode of relief is by appeal to the twelve judges.—R. v. GRAY'S INN (1780), 1 Doug. K. B. 353; 99 E. R. 227.

14. Signing roll—Necessity for.]—The signing of the roll of barristers formerly kept in the Ct. of King's Bench is since Promissory Oaths Act, 1868 (c. 72), no longer necessary. Admission to the Bar is the act of the Inn of Ct. & is complete when the party is so admitted.—Re PERARA (1887), 3 T. L. R. 677.

15. Admission & call—Refusal of Benchers—Appeal from.]—The Benchers of each Inn can refuse to admit a person as a student, or to call a student to the Bar, but their decisions are subject to an appeal to the judges as visitors of Inns of Ct.—HARVEY'S CASE (1821), Pearce, Inns of Court, 2nd ed., p. 405.

16. Admission of students—Mandamus to Benchers.]—The ct. will not grant a mandamus to compel the Benchers of one of the Inns of Ct. to admit an individual as a member of the society with a view to his qualifying himself to be called to the Bar.—R. v. LINCOLN'S INN BENCHERS (1825),

B. Discipline and Disbarring.

18. Disbarring—Remedy of party aggrieved—Appeal to judges.]—A barrister in the Temple was expelled from the society & his chambers seized for non-payment of commons. He moved for a writ of restitution addressed to the Benchers:—Held: no writ could issue to the Benchers, they not being a body corporate, the only remedy being by appeal to the judges.—BOOREMAN'S CASE (1641), March, 177, pl. 235; 82 E. R. 464.

11 i. Call to Bar—Trade or business—Disqualification.]—S. was during part of the three years next preceding his application to be admitted to the Bar the proprietor, printer & publisher of a newspaper & collected the debts of the paper, & printed for gain, matters not essential to the owning, printing & publishing of the newspaper; he was also on the list of the members of the Melbourne Stock & Share Exchange:—Held: (1) he had followed a trade or business & was disqualified as to the portion of the three years during which he did so; (2) he should be suspended from practising for twelve months, the ct. not being satisfied he had obtained admission with the knowledge of his disqualification.—Re SPENSLEY (1864), 1 W. W. & A'B. 173.—AUS.

11 ii. ——— Criminal conviction—Disqualification.]—K., a barrister of the Middle Temple, an advocate of the Supreme Ct. of the Cape of Good Hope, & of the High Ct. of the late South African Republic, was convicted in England of an attempt during the South African War to solicit to commit the crime of murder, & was disbarred by the benchers of the Middle Temple:—Held: the criminal conviction was not per se a disqualification for admission, & as the offence was of a political nature, in the exercise of the ct.'s discretion K.

should be admitted to practice as an advocate.—Ex p. KRAUSE (1905), S. C. 221; O. R. C. 52. 2. Af.

BAR OF QUEBEC* (1915), Q. R. 47 S. C. 131; Q. R. 25 K. B. 11.—CAN.

15 iii. ——— Pledership & mukhtearship.]—When a candidate applies to the Board of Examiners for Pledership & Mukhtearship to be allowed to present himself for examination, stating that he has complied with the rules & regulations entitling him to enter for such examination, the Board of Examiners should inquire into each individual case & form its own opinion as to the fitness of such appct. even though he may have been rejected as an improper person on a previous application to the Board when composed of different members.—Re RUDRA NARAIN ROY (1901), I. L. R. 28 Calc. 479.—IND.

h. Licence fee—"Profession."]—The profession of a barrister is included in the term "profession" in Municipal Clauses Act, s. 171 (26), as amended in 1902, c. 52, & s. 173, as amended in 1903, c. 42, imposing the payment of a licence fee upon every person following a profession within a municipality.—VICTORIA v. BELYEA (1906), 12 B. C. R. 112; affd., 13 B. C. R. 5.—CAN.

23. Decision of Benchers final—Appeal to judge.]—The decisions of the Benchers with regard to the disbenching & disbarring of their members are final & conclusive, subject only to an appeal to the Lord Chancellor & the judges as visitors.

An action by Benchers to recover possession of chambers & a reconveyance of property belonging to an Inn of Ct. from a person who has been disbenched & disbarred does not give the High Ct. of Justice jurisdiction to inquire into the question whether the disbenching & disbarring were for sufficient cause & otherwise regular, such question being res judicata so far as the ct. is concerned.—MANISTY v. KENEALY (1876), 24 W. R. 918.

24. Rescission of call—Misrepresentation of fact—Power of Benchers.]—S., a member of the Middle Temple, was proposed by a Master of the Bench, but he waived that proposal. He afterwards petitioned to have the proposal revived, but the Bench refused it, & no Master of the Bench would propose him again. S. having a certificate from the under-treasurer of the Middle Temple of his keeping & paying for commons, & performing his exercises, carried it to the under-treasurer of Lincoln's Inn, paid his fees of admission in that society, & was called to the Bar there, & took the oaths in Westminster Hall. He did not disclose to the under-treasurer of Lincoln's Inn what had passed in the Middle Temple. The Society of Lincoln's Inn, on hearing of the matter, annulled the call to the Bar as irregular & obtained by surprise, & an appeal by S. was dismissed by the judges.—SAVAGE'S CASE (1777), cited 1 Doug. K. B. 353; 99 E. R. 227.

25. Discipline—Inquiry by Benchers—Powers of tribunal.]—The Benchers of an Inn of Ct. being engaged in an inquiry into the conduct of a barrister, a member of the Inn, especially in relation to certain transactions in a co., he produced before them a director as a witness in his favour, & they, having procured from the solr. of the co. a manifold letter-book containing copies of letters to & from divers persons, mostly relating to the affairs of the co., but containing also two or three private letters, cross-examined him therefrom. He afterwards asked for it, in order, as he said, to offer an explanation, & having got it, put it in his pocket & declared he should keep it, & when requested, refused to return it, whereupon they directed their porters to retake it by force. In an action for the assault they justified on the above facts. Pltf. had bought & paid for the book in blank:—Held: (1) unless the book was the private, personal book of pltf. they had lawful possession, & he had no right to retake it; (2) if it was really & mainly the letter-book of the co., it would not be his private book merely by reason of his having originally bought the book in blank, or having put two or three private letters into it; (3) whether it was his private book or that of the co. was a question for the jury on the whole of the evidence, including the letters themselves; (4) if it were the co.'s book defts. had lawful possession of it, for the purpose of lawfully retaking it by force, even after pltf. had it in his pocket. Semble: even assuming it to be pltf.'s book, it having been once lawfully in the custody of the Benchers in the course of an inquiry into the matter over which they had jurisdiction, it could not be lawfully taken from them pending that inquiry.

The receipt of papers from the solr. of the co. when it was on the eve of expiring, he having a legitimate custody of the papers, & handing them over to the Benchers, managers of the inquiry, & who were bound to hand them back to him, gives the Benchers a special property in the papers, unless the pltf. solr. shows that he was entitled to them.

The "Parliament" of an Inn of Ct. sitting on such a question is not a ct. armed with the powers which a ct. of justice possesses for compelling persons to attend as witnesses, or to produce documents essential to the investigation of the truth. It is a good deal more than a mere "friendly tribunal," though it is not armed with powers of procedure co-extensive with its jurisdiction. The Benchers, on a charge being preferred against a member of the Bar, are armed with the power to disbar him—that is, to deprive him of his professional position & existence.—HUDSON v. SLADE (1862), 3 F. & F. 390, N. P.

26. — Jurisdiction of Benchers.]—A barrister is subject to the domestic forum of the Benchers. If the conduct of a member of an Inn of Ct. is such as to be unworthy of a gentleman, he is within the jurisdiction of the Benchers of his Inn. Barristers are subject to the jurisdiction of the Benchers if their conduct is unbecoming the profession & unbecoming gentlemen. The Benchers exercise their jurisdiction partly for the protection of the profession & partly for the protection of the public—for the protection of the profession that it may not be disgraced by having enrolled among its members those who dishonour & discredit it, & for the protection of the public that their confidence in the rank of the barrister being a sufficient test of the trustworthiness & honour of each individual member of the Bar may not be misled & abused (COCKBURN, J.).—SEYMOUR v. BUTTERWORTH (1862), 3 F. & F. 372, N. P.

A complaint in any form sufficient to

The omission to preserve a complete record of the proceedings upon the inquiry held by the council or to take written notes of the evidence constitutes more irregularities in procedure insufficient to justify a writ of prohibition.—HONAN v. BAR OF MONTREAL (1899), 30 S. C. R. 1.—CAN.

SUB-SECT. 4.—REPORTS OF CASES AUTHENTICATED BY BARRISTERS.

83. Jurist reports—Accepted by court as authorities.]—Semble: cases reported by barristers in The Jurist were receivable as authorities, & it was of such materials the law of England was made up, & the ct. would be denying itself much valuable assistance in ascertaining what the law was if it were to refuse to receive the citation of cases reported by barristers in such publications.—*FRANCOME v. ### SUB-SECT. 5.—PRIVILEGES.

A. Service of Process, or Demand when attending Court.

85. Not void by reason of having been effected in court of justice.]—Pltf., a barrister, was the prochein ami of an infant who had been nonsuited; an order for costs was made against the prochein ami, & demand of payment made of him while he was attending at the Old Bailey as counsel for the prosecution in an indictment that was about to come on for trial. The demand was made while he was conversing with the prosecutor in a passage between the Old & New Cts.:—Held: the demand was not bad for having been made within the precincts of a ct. of justice, or for having been made upon the prochein ami whilst attending professionally such ct. Semble: the service of process in a ct. of justice is not void, but will subject the party to an attachment for a contempt.—*NEWTON v. 92. — By defendant in action by barrister & wife for assault on wife—Plaintiff unable to restore by virtue of privilege as barrister.]—In an action by a barrister & wife for an assault on the wife, the venue, laid in Middlesex, was changed by deft.:—Held: pltf. could not restore it by virtue of his privilege as barrister.—NEWTON v. HARLAND (1838), 4 Bing. N. C. 406; 6 Scott, 186; 7 L. J. C. P. 217; 132 E. R. 843.

SUB-SECT. 7.—QUALIFICATIONS FOR AND EXEMPTIONS FROM CERTAIN OFFICES.

A. Qualifications for Judicial and other Offices.

93. Practising barrister — May be receiver.]—It is no objection to the appointment of a receiver that he is a practising barrister.—GARLAND v. GARLAND (1793), 2 Ves. 137; 30 E. R. 561.

Distinction between an auditor & a receiver with powers to let & manage, etc.—WYNNE v. NEWBOROUGH (LORD) (1808), 15 Ves. 283; 33 E. R. 761.

95. Barrister-at-law — Appointed committee of lunatic's estate.]—A barrister, appointed committee of a lunatic's estate, may receive a salary.—Re ERRINGTON, Ex p. FERMOR (1821), Jac. 404; 37 E. R. 903.

96. — Commissioner appointed by court to examine witnesses need not be.]—It is not imperative that comrs. appointed by the ct. to examine witnesses in a suit should be barristers-at-law.—HENDERSON v. PHILIPSON (1853), 22 L. J. Ch. 1037; 17 Jur. 615.

97. Barrister of seven years' standing — Deputy county court judge must be—In claim in County Court exceeding £2.]—In an action brought in the county ct., where the claim exceeds £2, the county ct. judge has no power, even with the consent of the parties, to appoint as his deputy for the purpose of hearing the action in that capacity a person who is not a barrister of seven years' standing as required by County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), s. 18.—MCINALLY v. BLACKLEDGE, [1911] 2 K. B. 432; 80 L. J. K. B. 882.

B. Exemptions from certain Offices.

98. Practising barrister—From serving in office of overseer.]—A practising barrister is exempt from serving in the office of overseer.—R. v. PROUSE (1635), 1 Bott, Poor Law Cases, 6th ed., 4.

99. Members of legal profession—From serving on jury.]—Members of the legal profession are exempt from serving on juries in order to enable them to be prompt & punctual in rendering their services to the community (WILLS, J.).—Re DUTTON, [1892] 1 Q. B. 486; sub nom. R. v. DUTTON, 61 L. J. Q. B. 190; 66 L. T. 324; 56 J. P. 455; 40 W. R. 270; 8 T. L. R. 214; 36 Sol. Jo. 218.

SUB-SECT. 8.—BARRISTERS' CLERKS.

100. Fees—Are mere gratuities—Jurisdiction of court against clerk in respect of.]—Fees to counsels' clerks are mere gratuities, for which they have no legal demand, & the ct. has no jurisdiction in respect of such fees as against the clerks. The sum allowed for clerk's fees on taxation does not limit the sum which may be spontaneously given, but it does limit the sum which the solr. can safely pay without the special direction or permission of the client. The regulation of Nov. 5, 1840, is not a General Ord. of the ct., giving the clerks a legal demand for the fees therein mentioned, but a mere intimation of opinion of the equity judges, that they may be properly allowed in taxation.

Petition against a clerk of counsel dismissed for want of jurisdiction, but without costs, on account of his improper conduct in the matter complained of.—Ex p. COTTON (1846), 9 Beav. 107; 6 L. T. O. S. 313; 10 Jur. 84; 50 E. R. 283.

101. — Right to sue for.]—A barrister's clerk sued his late employer in the county ct. for 2s. a "clerk's fee," which had been received by the barrister in respect of the settling of a statement of claim some days before the clerk left his employment. For pltf. it was argued that there had been not only a special contract to pay the clerk's fees, but that it was the universal custom for clerks to barristers to be paid the fees in question:—Held: pltf. was entitled to judgment for the amount claimed & costs, it being well known that fees paid to a barrister included fees to which the clerk was beyond all doubt entitled.—LYSTER v. SPEARMAN (1882), 72 L. T. Jo. 391.

SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 7.—B.

b Practising barrister — From sitting & voting as member of legislature.]—A barrister's fees being in the nature of an honorarium, acceptance of employment as counsel in an arbn. is not acceptance of such an office as to disqualify a member of legislature from sitting & voting.—BARNARD v. WALKER (1880), 1 B. C. R., Pt. 1, 120.—CAN.

102. — Embezzlement of by deceased clerk during lifetime—Action by barrister to recover—Statute of Limitations cannot be set up as defence to.]—To a suit by a barrister to recover out of the assets of his deceased clerk fees embezzled & retained by such clerk, Stat. Limitations cannot be set up as a defence.

Under a decree in an administration suit a barrister tendered his claim for an amount of fees embezzled & retained by the intestate, who had been his clerk. The chief clerk, by his certificate, disallowed the claim, on the ground that it was barred by Stat. Limitations. Claimant took no proceeding in the administration suit to vary the certificate, & a decree was soon afterwards made on further directions, under which the residuary estate was distributed amongst the parties beneficially interested. The barrister subsequently instituted another suit for the recovery of his demand out of the assets in the hands of the parties amongst whom they had been distributed:—Held: he was entitled to maintain such suit & to a decree for payment with costs.—TEED v. BEERE (1859), 28 L. J. Ch. 782; 33 L. T. O. S. 26; 5 Jur. N. S. 381; 7 W. R. 394.

SECT. 3.—RELATIONS BETWEEN COURT AND COUNSEL.

SUB-SECT. 1.—JURISDICTION OF COURT OVER

A. Jurisdiction since 1800.

SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

c. Duty of counsel to attend—After first day of term.]—After the first day of term barristers are not expected to be in attendance in ct. unless they have particular business.—SKINNER v. LANE (1853), James, 247.—CAN.

104 i. Over English barrister—High Court of Allahabad.]—The above ct. has power to suspend from practice a member of the English Bar who has been admitted to the roll of advocates of the ct.—Re SARBADHICARY (1906), 95 L. T. 891; 23 T. L. R. 180; 51 Sol. Jo. 144, P. C.—IND.

d. For acting irregularly.]—stances in which an order suspending a barrister from practice for five years was set aside on the ground that, although there had been grave irregularity, there was no malus animus to show an intention to commit a fraudulent act.—NEWTON v. NORTH WESTERN PROVINCES HIGH COURT JUDGE (1871), L. R. 4 P. C. 18; 8 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 202; 14 Moo. Ind. App. 237, P. C.—IND.

e. — For addressing court disrespectfully.]—A barrister, engaged in his professional duty before the Supreme Ct. at Hong Kong, was, without being heard in defence, adjudged to have been guilty of several contempts of ct. in disrespectfully addressing the chief justice during the conduct of a cause, & was fined & suspended from practice until the fine was paid:—Held: none of the alleged offences amounted to a contempt of ct., & the order must be set aside.—Re POLLARD (1868), L. R. 2 P. C. 106; 5 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 111, P. C.—HONG KONG.

f. For advising client to sign agreement of doubtful validity.]—Charges of professional misconduct were made against applt., an advocate, in that, knowing certain agreements to be invalid, he had allowed his clients to execute them, & had even attested them himself, without warning them that they were invalid. Applt. admitted that at the time the agreements were executed he thought them to be invalid. Applt. having been suspended from practice for four months:—Held: the charges could not be sustained, as it was a matter of opinion whether the agreements were invalid or not, & they were eventually held to be valid.—Re LUBOCK (1905), 1 L. R. 33 Cal. 151; 10 C. W. N. 57 L. R. 32 Ind. App. 217, P. C.—IND.

g. For altering subpoena.]—Re TAYLOR* (1912), 46 L. L. T. 58; 105 L. T. 974.—

h. For drawing scandalous & libellous answer to bill.]—Application to prevent a barrister-at-law from practising or signing his name for the future to any pleadings on the ground that his personal answer to a bill filed in a Ch. cause was scandalous & libellous, & unwarrantably reflected upon the character of petitioner:—Held: (1) the answer must be taken off the file & a new answer filed immediately; (2) in such cases the ct. would always leave barristers to be dealt with by the benchers of their inn.—Re O'CONNELL (1844), 4 L. T. O. S. 181.—IR.

k. For making unfounded charges of misconduct—Right to call for instructions.]—Where counsel makes charges of misconduct on alleged instructions, the ct. can call for the instructions for use after the trial to determine whether disciplinary action shall be taken against

104. Over “officers” of the court—Whether barristers are “officers.”]—Qu*: whether barristers are officers of the ct.—WETTENHALL v. WAKEFIELD (1833), 10 Bing. 335; 3 Moo. & S. 805; 3 L. J. C. P. 75; 131 E. R. 934.

105. When threatening letter addressed to master.]—A barrister, who was also a Member of Parliament, appeared before a master as counsel in support of a petition presented by himself & others. He afterwards addressed a letter to the master, which was expressed in threatening terms, & the tendency of which was to induce the master to alter the opinion he was supposed to have formed upon the case, & he subsequently wrote a letter to the Lord Chancellor, in which he avowed the authorship of the letter to the master. The Lord Chancellor committed him to the Fleet, during pleasure.—LECHMERIE CHARLTON'S CASE (1837), 2 My. & Cr. 316; 40 E. R. 661.

106. For tricky demurrers & frivolous pleas.]—I do marvel that gentlemen who would kick an attorney out of their chambers if he desired anything wrong in an ordinary way, will, nevertheless, consent to draw tricky demurrers & frivolous pleas. The practice degrades the counsel & special pleader, & makes them ministers of gross injustice, & parties to the frauds of other persons (COLERIDGE, J.).—ROWBOTTOM v. BULL (1846), 7 L. T. O. S. 117.

107. Making unfounded allegations to avoid demurrer.]—A counsel is not justified in introducing unfounded allegations into a bill merely to avoid a demurrer.—COLLINGWOOD v. RUSSELL (1864), 5 New Rep. 1, L.JJ.

108. Refusal to answer question—In county court.]—A barrister was in attendance as counsel at a county ct. The county ct. judge inquired of the barrister whether he was the author of a report of a trial which had been reported in a newspaper as having taken place in the county ct. The barrister requested to see the report, which the judge stated to be a refusal to answer the question. Afterwards a case was called on in which the barrister appeared as counsel; the judge refused

l. Pleader engaging in trade.]—A pleader, who engages himself in trade but does not intimate the same to the High Ct., as required by the rules framed by the High Ct. under Legal Practitioners Act, is guilty of misconduct within s. 13 of the Act.—MUNI REDDI v. VENKATA ROW (1914), 1 L. R. 37 Mad. 238.—IND.

m. For publishing letter attacking judge—Exercising criminal jurisdiction alone.]—A judge of the Ct. of Queen's Bench in Lower Canada, whilst sitting alone in the exercise of the criminal jurisdiction, has, under Consolidated Stat. of Canada, c. 77, s. 72, no power to pronounce a counsel in contempt for publishing letters reflecting upon the conduct of such judge, or to impose a fine.—Re RAMSAY (1870), L. R. 3 P. C. 427; 7 Moo. P. C. C. N. S. 263, P. C.—CAN.

n. For publishing libellous report of proceedings.]—Deft.'s counsel published in a newspaper a report of proceedings which was exaggerated, incorrect, & injurious, & contained unjustifiable imputations upon pltf.:—Held: though the publication might be libellous, yet the ct., not being satisfied that it was calculated to obstruct the free course of justice, ought not to commit him for contempt.—BIRCH v. WALSH (1846), 10 L. Eq. R. 93.—IR.

108 i. Refusal to answer question—Put by judge.]—A barrister practising in Sierra Leone was fined & struck off the roll of the ct. for contempt in refusing to answer in a particular form a question put to him by the chief judge:—Held: to hear him as counsel, saying that he would not allow the barrister to practise before him until he had answered the question:—Held: (1) if these facts were proved, the judge had acted unlawfully in asking the question & then preventing the barrister from exercising his profession according to the law of the land; (2) such conduct amounted to a misdemeanour for which criminal proceedings would lie, but as the barrister had just applied to the Lord Chancellor to hold an inquiry into the conduct of the judge, he had chosen another remedy, & the ct. would not grant a criminal information.—R. v. MARSHALL (1855), 4 E. & B. 475; 24 L. J. Q. B. 242; 24 L. T. O. S. 210; 19 J. P. 451; 1 Jur. N. S. 676; 3 W. R. 170; 3 C. L. R. 676; 119 E. R. 174.

109. Insult to jurymen—In court of quarter sessions.]—A ct. of quarter sessions has power to fine a barrister for contempt of ct., even though committed by him in what he believes to be the legitimate exercise of his professional duty. But if the ct. of quarter sessions fines for contempt of ct. without any reasonable ground, the Ct. of Queen's Bench will interfere.

Counsel has a right to, & may with propriety, complain of the appearance of partiality on the part of any of the jurymen, but to do so in violent & abusive language, or in a violent manner & for the purpose of insult, & in spite of admonition from the ct., is a contempt.—Re PATER, Ex p. PATER, R. v. MIDDLESEX JJ. (1864), 5 B. & S. 299; 4 New Rep. 147; 33 L. J. M. C. 142; 10 L. T. 376; 28 J. P. 612; 10 Jur. N. S. 972; 12 W. R. 823; 9 Cox, C. C. 544; 122 E. R. 842.

110. For conspiring to make false affidavits—To commit to prison.]—M., a barrister & counsel for deft. A., conspired with others to deceive the ct.:—Held: (1) it was M.'s duty when he knew that affidavits were going to be used amounting, in M.'s words, to chicanery, to disclose the fact to the ct.; (2) M.'s fault did not consist in not throwing up his brief, but in having made himself a party to a fraud by conspiring with others in inducing A. to make these affidavits, which were used to delude the ct.; (3) the ct. had jurisdiction to order M. to pay the costs of a motion to commit, & to be committed to prison until further order, & the documents to be impounded.—LINWOOD v. ANDREWS & MOORE (1888), 58 L. T. 612.

B. Former Jurisdiction.

111. Over pleader for frivolity.]—H. having put there was nothing in what he had done affecting his character, & order striking the barrister off the roll set aside.—SMITH v. SIERRA LEONE JJ. (1848), 7 Moo. P. C. C. 174; 13 E. R. 846, P. C.—SIERRA LEONE.

f. For serving judge with petition.]—A barrister was party to the service on a judge, by the provost marshal of the ct., of a petition to the Queen to prevent the judge from proceeding to try an action in which he was interested:—Held: the act was not such a contempt as to warrant the order of the Supreme Ct. of British Guiana for suspending the barrister for six months for contempt.—Re DOWNIE & ARNDELL (1841), 3 Moo. P. C. C. 414; 13 E. R. 168, P. C.—BRITISH GUIANA.

109 i. For using insulting language—In county court.]—A barrister, having used words capable of being considered insulting to the ct., & having refused to apologise, was fined for contempt:—Held: no excess of jurisdiction calling

g. For using licentious language.]—It is the duty of the ct. to interfere to check licentious & unwarrantable language on the part of an advocate.—R. v. KIERNAN (1855), 5 I. C. L. R. 171, 173, 174.—IR.

110 i. For withholding evidence & attempting to influence witness.]—Appl., a barrister & advocate of the Chief Ct. of Lower Burma, was charged with gross professional misconduct, in that (1) whilst employed as advocate for the prosecution in an abduction case he advised prosecutor's family to say nothing about letters having been received from his abducted daughter, & withheld from the police & the senior advocate for the prosecution the fact that such letters had been received, (2) whilst the trial was proceeding, he suggested or hinted to prosecutor that he should influence or attempt to influence by improper means a certain expert witness in handwriting to give evidence favourable to the prose-in for his client a long insufficient demurrer to a bill exhibited against his client, in which supposed demurrer were many matters of fact, & other things frivolous & vain, LORD EGERTON, C., awarded £5 costs against the party, & ordered that neither bill, answer, demurrer, nor any other plea, should from henceforth be received under the hand of H.—HILL'S CASE (1803), Cary, 27; 21 E. R. 15.

112. For scandalising the King or his government temporal or ecclesiastical.]—Held*: if a counsellor at law in his argument should scandal the King or his govt., temporal or ecclesiastical, this was a misdemeanour & contempt to the ct.—FULLER'S CASE (1607), 12 Co. Rep. 41; Noy, 127; 77 E. R. 1322.

113. For giving verbal opinion.]—W. was prosecuted for giving a private verbal opinion as a barrister on a point of prerogative against the Crown to the then Treasurer of the Navy & a Vice-Admiral who had consulted W. on the legality of a commission issued by James I. for consideration of abuses in the navy. On humiliating himself, he was discharged, on terms of subscribing a submission.—WHITELOCKE'S CASE (1613), 2 State Tr. 765.

114. For signing scandalous answers to plaintiff's bill in Court of Exchequer.]—Counsel having signed two long frivolous & scandalous answers to pltf.'s bill in the Ct. of Exch.:—Held: reasonable answers should be put in & the counsel, who had signed the answers objected to, should thereafter be disabled from subscribing his name to any bill, answer or pleading in the ct. & should pay to pltf. costs unless he should show good cause to the contrary.—HICKMAN v. CLARKE (1615), Fowler's Exchequer Practice, 2nd ed., vol. 2, p. 407.

115. For deceit.]—In an action in the Star-chamber between the Master & Wardens of the Woodmongers & the carmen of London, Serjeant R. was retained by the carmen & said "that he did know of his own knowledge that the Co. of Woodmongers did set up engin cares" thereby intending to deceive the ct. Serjeant R. having been indicted under 3 Ed. 1, c. 29:—Held: (1) the stat. intended to punish not mere words spoken by pleader or Serjeant, but acts in the pleading on record; (2) there was no Ct. of Star-chamber at the time of the stat., so that collusion & deceit in a new ct. was not within the intent of the stat.; (3) it would be hard to punish pleaders for words, even though false, because they received their instructions from their clients; the indictment must be quashed.—RICHARDSON'S CASE (1622), Palm. 287; 81 E. R. 1086.

116. For drawing & signing scandalous bills.]—W., the counsel for pltf., was ordered to pay £5 for drawing & signing scandalous bills. Subsequently, cution in connection with certain letters produced. He was acquitted on the first charge, but convicted on the second & dismissed from his office as an advocate of the ct.:—Held: on the evidence, he must be acquitted on the second charge also.—BOMANJEE COWASJEE v. CHIEF JUDGE & JUDGES OF THE CHIEF COURT OF LOWER BURMA (1906), L. R. 34 Ind. App. 55; I. L. R. 34 Calc. 129, P. C.—IND.

SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.—B.

w. For appealing for purpose of delay.]—The House of Lords will proceed against counsel whose names appear on appeals lodged for purposes of delay in the same manner as the English cts. do against counsel who sign or give countenance to frivolous & vexatious suits & actions.—GILCHRIST v. MACADAMS (1798), 4 Pat. App. 26.—SCOT.

x. —.]—No counsel should advise bringing a writ of error for the sole purpose of delay.—REILLY v. — (1801), Rowe, 675.—IR.

on the petition of pltf., stating that the bills had not been drawn by W. but by himself, & praying for the discharge of the order against W. :—Held : the party scandalised should show cause why W. should not be excused from paying the £5.—EMERSON v. DALLISON (1660), Sander's Chancery Orders, p. 293 ; 1 Rep. Ch. 194 ; 21 E. R. 547 ; sub nom. EMMERSON v. DALLISON, Dick. 7.

117. For detaining writings entrusted upon affidavit.]—Counsel who detain writings entrusted to them, upon affidavit of it, will be ruled to attend ct. & show cause for so doing.—BENSON'S CASE (1670), 1 Sid. 452 ; 82 E. R. 1212.

118. For appearing in actions in House of Lords contrary to privileges of House of Commons.]—Semble : counsel may be taken into custody for appearing in actions in the House of Lords which have been declared contrary to the privileges of the House of Commons, even though such appearance is by order of the House of Lords.—PRIVILEGE OF PARLIAMENT CASE (1675), 6 State Tr. 1146.

119. For endeavouring to persuade witness not to give evidence.]—R., a barrister, having been convicted (before justices of oyer & terminer by virtue of a special commission for that purpose granted) for endeavouring to persuade a witness against noblemen imprisoned in the Tower of London to forbear his prosecution of them, demanded that an information might be received against the comrs. who condemned him, & that the information might be filed :—Held : (1) he was in a wrong way to exhibit any information in such manner, & his words whereby he did accuse the comrs. of oppression should be recorded ; (2) his gown should be pulled over his ears in ct. ; (3) a fine of £500 which he had been ordered to pay the King should be remitted, but he must give a recognizance for his good behaviour.—REDDING'S CASE (1680), T. Raym. 376 n. ; Bac. Abr. Courts E., 7th ed., vol. 2, 399 ; 83 E. R. 196.

120. For encouraging false actions.]—If a counsellor at law encourage a man to bring false actions through malice, & for the purposes of oppression, he may be indicted as a common barrator.—R. v. — (1686), 3 Mod. Rep. 97 ; 87 E. R. 62.

121. For using reflecting words against respondent in appellants' printed case.]—The House of Lords took notice that in appls.' printed case there were reflecting words against resps., & being informed that B. had drawn the case & ordered it to be printed, B. was ordered to attend next day, & was then reprimanded by the Lord Keeper, according to the order of the House.—HYNDMARSH v. EVERARD (1702), Colles, 241 ; 1 E. R. 268.

122. For malpractice.]—A counsellor of law is a kind of minister of justice & right, & as such is punishable for misbehaviour in his profession.—ANON. (1704), 6 Mod. Rep. 137 ; 87 E. R. 895.

123. For signing illegal bill in equity.]—Two persons carried on business in partnership as highwaymen. One filed a bill against the other on the equity side of the Exchequer for an account of the partnership profits. The bill was dismissed with costs to be paid by the counsel who signed it ; pltf.' solrs. were fined £50 each, & both pltf. & deft. were shortly afterwards hanged.—EVERET v. WILLIAMS (1725), Lindley on Partnership, 7th ed., p. 107, n ; Law Quarterly Review, vol. 9, p. 197.

124. For bringing about marriage of ward in Chancery.]—A barrister had been committed to prison for contempt in bringing about the marriage of a ward of ct. ; he petitioned for his release & submitted to be restrained from acting as counsel. LORD HARDWICKE, C., directed that according to his own submission M. should be refrained from acting as a barrister till further order, being doubtful what was the proper course to remove M. from practising as a barrister. Qu : whether the proper course was for M. to be disbarred, or whether the ct. by its own power & authority would silence him for the future.—ANON. (1741), 2 Atk. 173 ; 26 E. R. 508.

Disbarring, see, generally, Nos. 18 et seq., ante.

125. For unnecessary long pleading.]—The ct. will censure an unnecessary length in pleading.—YATES v. CARLISLE (1761), 1 Wm. Bl. 270 ; 96 E. R. 150.

126. Over serjeant-at-law who pleads falsely.]—A false plea by a serjeant was set aside, & the serjeant was ordered to pay the costs of the motion to set aside the plea.—RICHARDSON v. SUTTON (1728), Cooke, Pr. Cas. 51 ; 125 E. R. 952.

SUB-SECT. 2.- APPOINTMENT OF COUNSEL BY THE COURT.

See, now, Poor Prisoners Defence Act, 1903 (c. 38), s. 1.

A. To the Prosecution.

127. General rule.]—A judge should not be required to act as prosecutor, instead of holding the scales even between the parties. Therefore prosecutions should always be conducted by counsel.—R. v. — (1843), 1 Cox, C. C. 48 ; 1 L. T. O. S. 457.

128. S. P. R. v. HEZELL (1844), 1 Cox, C. C. 348 ; 2 L. T. O. S. 501.

129. — Appointment of some counsel.]—All prosecutions in criminal cases ought to be conducted by counsel, & the ct. will in all cases direct the depositions to be handed to some counsel for that purpose.—R. v. PAGE (1847), 2 Cox, C. C. 221 ; 8 L. T. O. S. 495.

130. — Duty when appointed.]—Where no counsel is engaged for the prosecution, & the depositions are handed, by direction of the ct., to a gentleman at the Bar, he should consider himself as counsel for the Crown, & act in all respects as he would if he had been instructed by the prosecutor, & should not consider himself merely as acting in assistance of the judge, by examining the witnesses.—R. v. LITTLETON (1840), 9 C. & P. 671.

131. — Appointment of junior counsel.]—If the prosecutor have omitted to instruct counsel, the ct. will direct the depositions, with the fee indorsed, to be delivered to the junior counsel present, to conduct the prosecution.—R. v. ANON. (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 457 ; 1 Cox, C. C. 48.

132. — Who should be appointed.]—The practice in the Central Criminal Ct. was for the depositions to be given, when handed down by the ct., to the senior barrister present & not, as on circuit, to the junior counsel in ct.—R. v. LAWRENCE (1844), 3 L. T. O. S. 142 ; 1 Cox, C. C. 61.

B. For the Prisoner.

133. Prisoner unable to get counsel without assistance of court.]—Appet. having complained that he had offered to retain many men of his counsel, but that they had refused him, & that he could get none to be of counsel with him without the assistance of the ct., HYDE, C.J., said he should have what counsel assigned him he desired, for no offence should be taken against any man that should advise prisoner in his proceedings in law.—DARNEL'S (SIR THOMAS) CASE (1627), 3 State Tr. 1.

134. Criminal information for seditious speeches in Parliament.]—Although the alleged offences were committed in Parliament, a higher ct. than that in which the information was brought; nevertheless:—Held: the matter not being necessarily treason, the ct. had jurisdiction; & defts. were ruled to plead further; & counsel was assigned to them.—ELLIOT'S CASE (1629), 3 State Tr. 293.

135. Treason.]—Where counsel formerly assigned to a deft. on trial in the High Ct. of Justice for treason refused to plead for him, new counsel was assigned to him.—HOLLAND'S (EARL) CASE (1649), 4 State Tr. 1195.

136. — For matters of law only.]—On a trial at Guildhall by a commission of oyer & terminer on an indictment under Acts making it high treason to declare unlawful the authority of the "Parliament," prisoner allowed counsel for matter of law, but not for matter of fact. It is the duty of the judges to be of counsel with the prisoner at the Bar before them.—LILBURNE'S CASE (1649), 4 State Tr. 1270.

Annotation:—Consd. Bowman v. Secular Soc. (1917), 86 L. J. Ch. 568, H. L.

Impeachment.]—On the impeachment of Lord M. by the Commons:—Held: counsel should be allowed to the accused in all cases of impeachment.—MORDAUNT'S (LORD) CASE (1666), 6 State Tr. 785.

139. —.]—The ct., on the request of the accused person, assigned counsel for the defence.—R. v. LYNCH (1902), Official Transcript of Shorthand Notes, p. 7.

140. Outlawry in treason—Not until prisoner has shown material error.]—The ct. will not assign counsel on an outlawry in treason, until the prisoner has shown material error.—R. v. GRIFFIN (LORD) (1708), 11 Mod. Rep. 168; 88 E. R. 967.

141. Libel in Star Chamber.]—Counsel assigned to defts. on an information for libel in the Star Chamber.—PRYNN'S CASE (1633), 3 State Tr. 562, 572.

142. S. P. LILBURN & WHARTON'S CASE (1637), 3 State Tr. 1316, 1347.

143. Murder—To argue special verdict.]—Counsel assigned, on the prayer of a prisoner, to argue a special verdict on an indictment for murder.—R. v. KEAT (1696), 5 Mod. Rep. 287; 87 E. R. 661.

Annotations:—Mentd. R. v. Huggins (1730), 2 Stra. 883; R. v. Burridge (1735), 3 P. Wms. 439; Conway & Lynch v. R. (1845), 5 L. T. O. S. 458; Campbell v. R. (1847), 17 L. J. M. C. 89, Ex. Ch.

144. — Not without prisoner's consent.]—On a trial for murder, the ct. refused to allow counsel to appear for a prisoner without his expressed assent.—R. v. YSCUADO (1854), 6 Cox, C. C. 386.

145. Accessory to felony before the fact—To argue questions of law.]—On a special verdict being found in an indictment against prisoners for being accessories to a felony before the fact, counsel were appointed by the judges to argue the questions of law arising on the verdict.—MCDANIEL'S CASE (1755), 19 State Tr. 789.

146. Contempt—No leave required—Court of Chancery Act, 1860 (c. 149).]—It was not necessary, under s. 5 of the above Act, that special leave should be obtained from the ct. to have counsel & solr. assigned to a prisoner in custody for contempt. After the report of the gaoler or the keeper of the prison had been sent to the L. C., & its truth ascertained by the solr. to the Sultors' Fund, an order for the assignment of counsel & solr. was drawn up as of course.—LAYTON v. MORTMORE (1860), 2 De G. F. & J. 353; 30 L. J. Ch. 34; 4 L. T. 567; 45 E. R. 657, L. C.

147. Rape.]—In cases of difficulty, e.g., rape, counsel should be asked or instructed to defend a prisoner.—R. v. GEORGE (1909), 2 Cr. App. Rep. 318, C. C. A.

149. Plea of autrefois convict.]—The ct. will not reject a plea of autrefois convict on account of the informal manner in which it is handed in by the prisoner, but will assign counsel to put it into a formal shape, & postpone the trial, to give time for its preparation.—R. v. CHAMBERLAIN (1833), 6 C. & P. 93.

150. Plea of Insanity.]—On an application for leave to appeal it appeared that prisoner was undefended at the trial, & that there was evidence, which was not before the judge, to show that he was a man, if not insane, yet "of inferior stock," & that two or three members of his family were insane; upon a statement by the prisoner that he believed he was insane he was allowed solr. as well as counsel that there might be formal proof.—R. v. ATKINS (1908), 1 Cr. App. Rep. 45; 24 T. L. R. 807; 72 J. P. Jo. 340, C. C. A.

151. In error upon judgment of Court of Assize.]—Where pltf. in error upon a judgment of a Ct. of Assize is in custody, he must be brought into ct. & assign the errors in person when counsel will be assigned to him.—MANSELL v. R. (1857), 8 E. & B. 54; 8 State Tr. N. S. 831; Dears. & B. 375; 26 L. J. M. C. 137; 29 L. T. O. S. 155; 21 J. P. 309; 3 Jur. N. S. 558; 5 W. R. 554; 120 E. R. 20; affd., 8 E. & B. 85, Ex. Ch.

153. Under Poor Prisoners' Defence Act, 1903 (c. 38).]—Legal aid under the above Act can only be afforded to poor prisoners who set up a defence, either by way of evidence given or statement made by them, before the committing magistrate. If deft. does not say anything at the police ct., or reserves his defence, there is no power under the Act to give him any assistance. There is apparently no power under the Act to appoint a counsel only, without a solr., to defend a poor prisoner. The Act does not contain any provisions showing how the judge is to satisfy himself that the prisoner's means are insufficient for him to obtain legal aid.—R. v. NUNZIO CALIENDO (1904), 68 J. P. 47.

SECT. 3. SUB-SECT. 2.—B.

143 i. Murder.]—A judge may with propriety call on a barrister to give his honorary services to a prisoner who is unable to employ one, & where prisoner, who was unable to employ attorney or counsel, was charged with murder, the ct. asked a member of the bar to undertake the defence.—R. v. FOGARTY (1851), 17 L. T. O. S. 10; 5 Cox, C. C. 161.—IR.

151 i. In error after conviction for felony.]—On a writ of error after conviction of deft. in error for stealing calves & feloniously receiving same: Semble: the ct. would not, of its own motion, assign counsel.—R. v. FRITH (1857), 9 Ir. Jur. 367.—IR.

155. — Court for Crown Cases Reserved.]—When a prisoner was defended under the above Act, & a case was reserved for the consideration of the Ct. for Crown Cases Reserved:—Held: counsel ought to be instructed to appear for prisoner there.—R. v. PAYNE (1905), 69 J. P. 440.

156. At what stage of proceedings.]—After the Crown case had closed, the accused desired to have the assistance of counsel upon a matter of law arising from the evidence, & the ct., though of opinion that the application should have been made at an earlier stage of the proceedings, assigned counsel to argue the points involved, & heard his arguments.—LOVE'S CASE (1651), 5 State Tr. 43, 205.

157. Grounds for refusing to appoint counsel.]—In the course of a trial for piracy, one of the jury-men inquired why, in such a serious case, the prisoners were undefended, at the same time offering to bear the expense, if any barrister would undertake the case. LORD ABINGER, C.B., said he did not think that any barrister could accept the offer of the jurymen as it was impossible for any counsel, thus retained in the middle of a case, to do justice to the prisoners. He could know none of the facts & circumstances upon which they relied for their defence, & it was much better for the prisoners themselves that they should be allowed to tell their own tale to the jury, & explain away, after their own fashion, the facts alleged against them.—R. v. M'GREGOR & LAMBERT (1844), 1 Car. & Kir. 429; 2 L. T. O. S. 501; 1 Cox, C. C. 346.

SECT. 4.—RULES OF PRECEDENCE AND OTHER RELATIONS AMONGST BARRISTERS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—RULES OF PRECEDENCE.

158. Two counsel called on same day.]—If two counsel are called to the Bar on the same day at different Inns of Ct., the one whose name has been longest on the books of the Inn of Ct. to which he belongs is the senior.—ABBOTT & PEAKE'S CASE (1796), 6 C. & P. 637, n.

159. Attorney-General of England—Lord Advocate of Scotland.]—The A.-G. of England has precedence over the Lord Advocate of Scotland in all matters in which they may appear as counsel at the bar of the House of Lords.—A.-G. v. LORD ADVOCATE (1834), 2 Cl. & Fin. 481; 6 E. R. 1236, H. L.

160. — When heard first—Matters relating to business of Queen.]—Held*: in matters relating to the business of the Queen, the A.-G. had a right to be heard first.—R. v. EXETER (BP.) (1840), 7 M. &

W. 188; 10 L. J. Ex. 92; 5 Jur. 102; 151 E. R. 733.

161. Junior counsel—Right to move on last day of term.]—The right of juniors on the last day of term to move before King's Counsel is now abolished.—ANON. (1875), 1 Char. Pr. Cas. 39.

162. — Senior counsel should not evade rule.]—Held*: the rule of practice that on the last day of term the counsel in the outer row of the bar should be called on to move first was established for the benefit of the junior bar, & must not be evaded by senior counsel taking their stations there.—SHARP v. SHERWOOD (1857), 3 Jur. N. S. 92.

163. In Bail Court.]—The practice of the Bail Ct. on the last day of term was to commence by calling on the Bar in the back rows twice round, not alone in motions of course & rules nisi, but in all motions whatsoever.—ANON. (1843), 7 Jur. 725.

164. On motions—By seniority.]—Where several counsel state that they have respectively pressing motions to make, the ct. calls on the senior counsel. Semble: on the last day of term, only unopposed motions by the Outer Bar take precedence.—SOLTAU v. DE HELD (1851), 15 Jur. 1151.

165. Civil proceedings—Several defendants separately represented.]—On the trial of a cause it is in the discretion of the judge to say in what order the counsel for different defts., having different interests, shall cross-examine & address the jury. The order of seniority is not imperative.—FLETCHER v. CROSBIE (1842), 2 Mood. & R. 417.

166. Criminal trial—Several prisoners separately represented.]—Where counsel for several prisoners cannot agree as to the order in which they are to address the jury, the ct. will call upon them, not in the order of their seniority, but in the order in which the names of the prisoners stand in the indictment; but where the counsel for one prisoner has witnesses to fact to examine, the counsel for another cannot be allowed to postpone his address to the jury, until after those witnesses have been examined.—R. v. BARBER (1844), 1 Car. & Kir. 434; 8 J. P. 644.

Annotation:—Mentd. R. v. Rowlands (1851), 5 Cox, C. C. 436.

167. — —.]—When several prisoners are defended by different counsel, the order of their defences is not to be determined by the seniority of their counsel at the bar, but on the precise offence charged against each; & in a well-drawn indictment, the order in which the prisoners should be called on for their defence usually coincides with the order of their names in the indictment.—R. v. MEADOWS (1856), 2 Jur. N. S. 718.

168. — —.]—In a criminal trial, a discussion arose as to the order in which counsel for defts. should cross-examine witnesses & address the jury:—Held: in the absence of other agreement among counsel themselves, the practice

a. King's Counsel — Patents of even date.]—In the case of Queen's Counsel in Manitoba, where their patents are of even date, in the absence of any express provision as to their respective priority of rank contained in the patents, & of any other guide in determining the question, the order of precedence which they had as members of the Bar in Manitoba before the patents were issued & irrespective of them must prevail.—Re QUEEN'S COUNSEL (1892), 8 Man. L. R. 155.—CAN.

b. — Right of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario to appoint.]—The Lieutenant-Governor in Council has the right to appoint members of the Bar of Ontario to be Queen's Counsel, & to give such members the right of pre-audience in the cts. of the Province.—Re QUEEN'S COUNSEL (1896), 23 A. R. 792; affd., sub nom. A.-G. FOR DOMINION OF CANADA v. A.-G. FOR PROVINCE OF ONTARIO, [1898] A. C. 247; 67 L. J. P. C. 17; 77 L. T. 539; 14 T. L. R. 106, P. C.—CAN.

d. — Precedence over senior not King's Counsel.]—R.* having been appointed Queen's Counsel under a commission from the Governor-General of Canada, his precedence was questioned by W., his senior at the Bar of Nova Scotia, but held no appointment as Queen's Counsel either from the Governor-General or the Lieutenant-Governor. W. moved to have his cause entered on the docket prior to that of R.

The motion was dismissed.—LORDLY v. KIELY (1875), 9 N. S. R. 506.—CAN.

JONES* (1840), 9 C. & P. 401.

172. ——— ———.]—On the trial of a criminal information, a Queen's Counsel ought not to be of counsel for deft., without a licence from the Queen, or at the least a letter from the Secretary of State; & it is not enough that an application for a licence has been sent to the Secretary of State from an assize town in the country to which no answer has been received at the time of the case being tried.—R. v. BARTLETT (1847), 2 Car. & Kir. 321; 2 Cox, C. C. 245.

173. ——— Differing in opinion from Junior.]—If the leading counsel at Nisi Prius takes one line of case, contrary to the opinion of his junior counsel, the ct. will not permit the junior counsel to obtain a new trial upon the ground that he was prepared with evidence to support another line of case, which his leader repudiated.—*PICKERING v. 177. By patent agents.]—In an action by patent agents to recover a sum for services rendered, two items were objected to on the ground that they were properly solrs.’ charges. One of these was for a case for the opinion of counsel:—Held: (1) counsel’s receipt of the fee was a breach of the unwritten rules which as between solrs. & counsel govern their dealings; (2) having regard to all the circumstances, there was no evidence that plffs. had acted as solrs., but they would be deprived of costs, as the custom that counsel in civil cases should be instructed by solrs. only was so notorious that it must have been within plffs.’ knowledge, & their instructing counsel direct was an invasion of the just privileges of solrs.—THOMPSON v. MASKERY (1882), 73 L. T. Jo. 401.

See, further, PATENTS & INVENTIONS.

178. What is “instructing counsel.”]—“Instructing counsel” means giving him proper instructions so as to enable him to conduct the cause entrusted to him, & merely delivering a brief is not instructing him, in the proper sense of the word.—HAWKINS v. HARWOOD (1849), 4 Exch. 503; 7

181. Retainers taken from opposing parties—Jurisdiction of Chancellor.]—M. received a retainer from L., with the usual fee of one guinea, & repeatedly acted under that retainer of L.’s against bkpt. The meetings were adjourned from time to time. In the interval, after one of the adjournments, a general retainer was left on behalf of bkpt. At the next meeting, of which L.’s solrs. had notice, they did not send any brief. Bkpt. did send a brief, & as a right, claimed M.’s assistance, & M. attended before the comrs. as counsel for bkpt. On a petition to restrain him from so acting LORD ELDON, C., expressed his clear decided opinion that he, sitting in bkpcy., had no jurisdiction whatever to interfere with a barrister in the exercise of his discretion as to the client upon whose retainer he might think proper to act, but said that as amicus curiæ he was ready to hear the petition & declared that M. was bound, in the circumstances of the case, to act as counsel for bkpt.—Ex p. LLOYD (1822), Mont. 70, n.

182. — Non-interference of court.]—The ct. will not interfere in questions arising upon the practice of retainer. A motion for an injunction to restrain a particular counsel, who had acted for defts., from acting, at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, on behalf of plffs., from whom he had received a retainer, was refused.—BAYLIS v. GROUT (1835), 2 My. & K. 316; 4 L. J. Ch. 78; 39 E. R. 964.

176 i. Agreement with client without intervention of solicitor—Unprofessional conduct.]—An advocate of the High Ct. made an arrangement to do professional work for his client, without the intervention of a solr., for half the usual charge; & he also wrote to the same client to the effect that he had an offer to work professionally against her, & unless she paid him ten gold mohurs (five times the usual fee) for refusing the brief offered, he would take up the case against her:—Held: the advocate was guilty of highly unprofessional conduct.—Re S. K. H. (AN ADVOCATE) (1907), I. L. R. 34 Cal. 72.—IND.

176 ii. Rule that counsel should be instructed through solicitor—Is beneficial.]—The rule that counsel should take instructions only from an attorney in respect of any professional work on the original side of the High Ct. is beneficial from the public standpoint & that of the bar &, though founded upon no rule of law, ought to be maintained.—Re AN ADVOCATE (1917), I. L. R. 44 Cal. 741.—IND.

q. By agent without express authority.]—Deft. retained H. to act for him in proceedings before justices. After an appeal had been perfected from the justices, H., who had no authority from deft. for that purpose, retained plff. to act as counsel on the appeal. Plff. never had any dealings with deft. directly or by letter:—Held: the employment of plff. by H. was a delegation of duty which H. himself could perform, & for which he alone was personally liable.—HEARN v. McNEIL (1899), 32 N. S. R. 210.—CAN.

r. Court will not decide question on practice of retainer.]—The ct. will not entertain a question arising upon the practice of retainer, but will leave it to be decided by the counsel retained, or by the members of the bar generally.—TAYLOR v. CLARKE (1862), 8 Ir. Jur. 35; 13 I. C. L. R. 571.—IR.

s. Duty to accept brief.]—A pleader is not bound to accept a brief offered to him, nor to state his reasons for refusing to accept it.—Re NABIN CHANDRA DAS GUPTA (1908), 12 C. W. N. 381.—IND.

He signed a notice of the accident, on the form provided by the society, & they wrote to the employer to ask him to admit liability. The employer having refused to admit liability, the society instructed the workman to see their local solrs., who informed him that on signing a retainer authorising them to act on his behalf they would make a claim for him. At the hearing the correspondence, showing the course adopted by the approved society, was put in evidence together with the retainer signed by the workman. The ct. judge asked counsel, who opened the case on behalf of the workman, whether the application was made by the workman himself or by the approved society in the name of the workman. This question counsel, relying on the retainer & his brief, said he should not be called upon to answer, & the judge thereupon dismissed the application with costs:—Held: the retainer was prima facie evidence that the application was being made by the workman on his own behalf, & the judge should have heard the workman's evidence upon the matter before dismissing the application. Case remitted.—ALLEN v. FRANCIS, [1914] 3 K. B. 1065; 83 L. J. K. B. 1814; 112 L. T. 62; 30 T. L. R. 695; 58 Sol. Jo. 753; 7 B. W. C. C. 779, C. A.

Not particular counsel when definite instructions not to employ him—Etiquette of Bar not binding on client.]—A solr. cannot brief a counsel whom his client has instructed him not to brief, even if the counsel is entitled to a brief under the rules of professional etiquette. The solr.'s proper course in such circumstances is either to explain the rule to the client & say that he must state the facts to any other counsel whom he briefs, & that such counsel may probably return the brief, or to say that he is himself so clearly governed by the rules & etiquette of the profession that if he is not allowed to brief the counsel in question he must throw up his retainer.—Re HARRISON, [1908] 1 Ch. 282; 77 L. #### B. Where Party conducts his own Case.

(a) For what Purposes Counsel may be employed.

197. To argue points of law.].—A party appearing in person must examine the witnesses, as well as address the jury. Counsel can only be heard to assist him on legal objections.—SHUTTLEWORTH v. NICHOLSON (1833), 1 Mood. & R. 254.

198. —.].—Not to address court.].—Semble : in a civil case, if a party conduct his own cause, & examine the witnesses, he cannot be allowed to have the assistance of counsel to argue points of law.

If a gentleman at the bar appears, he ought to take the command. It is much better that cases should be conducted by gentlemen at the bar (ALDERSON, B.).—MOSCATI v. LAWSON (1835), 7 C. & P. 32; 1 Mood. & R. 454.

Annotation :—Distd. Doe v. Hale (1850), 15 Q. B. 171.

199. —.].—To examine witnesses—Party reserving right to address jury.].—On the trial of a misdemeanour, deft. cannot have the assistance of counsel to examine the witnesses, & reserve to himself the right of addressing the jury; but if he conducts his defence himself, & any point of law arises which he professes himself unable to argue, the ct. will hear this argued by his counsel.—R. v. WHITE (1811), 3 Camp. 98, N. P.

200. —.].—On a trial for a misdemeanour in King's Bench deft. is not entitled to the assistance of counsel to cross-examine witnesses when he reserves to himself the right of addressing the jury; but counsel may argue for him any point of law that arises, & suggest the questions to be put to the witness.—R. v. PARKINS (1824), 1 C. & P. 548; Ry. & M. 166, N. P.

201. To cross-examine witness—To address jury—Instructions through solicitor unnecessary.].—There is no rule of law requiring that counsel appearing in ct. for a party who pleads in person should be instructed by an attorney; & where a judge at Nisi Prius had ruled that counsel appearing for such party, & not instructed by an attorney, could not cross-examine or address the jury, the ct. granted a new trial.—DOE v. HALE (1850), 15 Q. B. 171; 19 L. J. Q. B. 353; 15 L. T. O. S. 136; 14 Jur. 830; 117 E. R. 423.

202. To reply—Party having previously addressed court.].—At the close of resp.'s argument applt., who had opened her case in person, was told that the House of Lords would hear her counsel in reply, but that if she began, she must finish, as the House would not allow her to break off & then hear her counsel.—LONGWORTH (OR YELVERTON) v. YELVERTON (1867), L. R. 1 Sc. & Div. 218, H. L.

Where litigant a barrister.].—See Sect. 7, post.

(b) Effect of employing Counsel.

203. On party's right to examine witnesses & address jury.].—If prisoner employs counsel to examine or cross-examine witnesses, he will not be allowed to do so himself in addition; but it will be at his option whether he or his counsel address the jury.—R. v. REDHEAD (1795), 25 State Tr. 1003, 1021.

204. On party's right to appear—& claim to be nonsuited.].—Where counsel, regularly retained, appear for pltf. in a penal action, & claim to proceed, pltf. himself cannot appear & claim to be nonsuited.—MARKS v. BENJAMIN (1839), 2 Mood. & R. 225; 3 J. P. 405.

Annotations :—Mentd. Hall v. Green (1853), 9 Exch. 247; Rednall v. Crystal Palace Co. (1858), 22 J. P. 321; Pease v. Coates (1866), 14 L. T. 886; Garrett v. Messenger (1867), 10 Cox, C. C. 498; Syers v. Conquest (1873), 28 L. T. 402; Milnes v. Bale, Milnes v. Lea (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 591; Terry v. Brighton Aquarium Co. (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 306; Martin v. Benjamin, [1907] 1 K. B. 64; Vecsey v. Smith (1916), 86 L. J. K. B. 249.

205. On party's right to object to proceedings—Writ of error refused.].—On a trial for murder, the prisoner objecting to be defended by counsel, but in the result allowing counsel to act for him, he was not afterwards allowed to raise any objection to the proceeding, & a fiat for a writ of error was refused.

A prisoner & his counsel cannot conduct the case together. If he declines the assistance of counsel, the ct. cannot permit him afterwards to interfere. A prisoner must make his election.—R. v. SOUTHEY (1865), 4 F. & F. 864.

Where litigant a barrister.].—See Sect. 7, post.

SUB-SECT. 2.—COUNSEL AND HIS FEES.

206. Contract by client to pay fees—Not binding.].—A promise made by a client to pay money to a counsel for his advocacy, whether made before or during or after the litigation, has no binding effect. The relation of counsel & client renders the parties mutually incapable of making any contract of hiring & service concerning advocacy in litigation.—KENNEDY v. BROWN (1863), 13 C. B. N. S. 677;

SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 1.—B. (a).

a. General rule.].—Where pltf. in person argues his own cause before the ct., he cannot also be heard by counsel.—GILBERT v. RAYMOND (1879), 19 N. B. R. 315; N. B. Dig. 106 (7).—CAN.

SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 2.

206 i. Contract by client to pay fees—Whether binding.].—A barrister cannot sue his client for fees upon any implied contract for their payment, but they are recoverable by express contract.—HOBART v. BUTLER (1859), 9 I. C. L. R. 157; 4 Ir. Jur. 137.—IR.

206 ii. —.].—A barrister & his client are mutually incapable of entering into a binding contract of hiring with respect to the services of the former as an advocate.—ROBERTSON v. MACDONOGH (1880), 6 L. R. Ir. 433.—IR.

206 iii. —.].—Neither a barrister nor a pleader may contract with a client as to fees.—ACHAMPARAMBATH CHERIA KUNHAMMU v. GANTZ (1881), I. L. R. 3 Mad. 138.—IND.

206 iv. —.].—The relation of counsel & client creates mutual incapacity to make a binding contract of hiring & service, either express or implied, but there must be the relation of advocate & client to give rise to the incapacity, & the incapacity is strictly confined to

207. ——— Even when barrister pleads in courts where fees may be sued for.]—A member of the Bar of England, in accordance with the law of that country and the rules of the profession to which he belongs, renders, & professes to render, services of a purely honorary character. If, in his professional capacity as an English barrister, he accepted a retainer to appear & plead before comrs. or arbitrator in a foreign country, by whom law counsel practising in its regular cts. were permitted to have suit for their fees, that would not give him a right of action for his honoraria. His client would have a conclusive defence to such an action, on the ground that he was employed as a member of the English Bar, & by necessary implication upon the same terms as to remuneration upon which members of that Bar are understood to practise (LORD WATSON).—R. v. DOUTRE (1884), 9 App. Cas. 745 ; 53 L. J. P. C. 85 ; 51 L. T. 669, P. C.

208. ——— Binding where services not rendered as barrister—Returning officer.]—A barrister may maintain an action for work & labour done as returning officer on an election of guardians of a union, under an express contract for remuneration at so much per day, the professional character of pltf. not affecting his rights under the special contract.—EGAN v. KENSINGTON UNION GUARDIANS (1841), 3 Q. B. 935, n. ; 114 E. R. 767.

Annotations:—Distd.* Kennedy v. Broun (1863), 13 C. B. N. S. 677. Refd. Velth v. Russell (1842), 3 Q. B. 928.

209. Rule for prepayment of fees.]—Counsel are to be paid beforehand, because they are not to be left to the chance whether they shall ultimately get their fees or not ; & it is for the purpose of promoting the honour & integrity of the Bar that it is expected all their fees should be paid at the time when their briefs are delivered. That is the reason why they are not permitted to maintain an action. It is their duty to take care, if they have fees, that they have them beforehand, & the law will not allow them any remedy if they disregard their duty in that respect (BAYLEY, J.).—MORRIS v. HUNT (1819), 1 Chit. 544.

Annotations:—Refd.* Kennedy v. Broun (1863), 13 C. B. N. S. 677. Mentd. A.-G. v. Munro (1819), 1 H. & Tw. 457.

210. ———.]—The old rule was that no barrister should take a brief, unless the fee was paid at the time. If, however, he did so, he had nothing but the solr.'s honour to look to. He had no right to apply to the client in any way (BRETT, M.R.).—Re COCKAYNE (1884), 19 L. J. N. C. 500, C. A.

211. ——— Nature of obligation to pay fees.]—Fees are payable as a matter of honour. The solr. can, if so required by counsel, be compelled either not to retain him or to pay his fee with the brief.

That is the remedy of counsel, & he has it in his own hands. If he does not choose to insist on payment of his fees with the brief, the payment becomes a matter of honour, not of legal obligation (LINDLEY, L.J.).—Re LE BRASSEUR & OAKLEY, [1896] 2 Ch. 487 ; 65 L. J. Ch. 763 ; 74 L. T. 717 ; 45 W. R. 87, C. A.

212. Responsibility for fees—Solicitor cannot contract to render client liable.]—A solr. has no implied authority to pledge his client's credit to his counsel by an express promise to pay his fees, whether they relate to litigation or not, so as to enable the counsel to sue the client for them.—MOSTYN v. MOSTYN (1870), 5 Ch. App. 457 ; 39 L. J. Ch. 780 ; 22 L. T. 461 ; 18 W. R. 657, L.J.

213. ——— Solicitor, not client.]—By the established custom of the profession counsel looks to the solr. for his fees, not to the client.—Re SEAL, Ex p. CRICKETT (1893), 37 Sol. Jo. 685, 842, C. A.

214. ——— London, not country solicitor.]—If counsel is instructed by a London agent of a country solr., the London agent, not the country solr., is responsible to counsel for his fees.—Re NELSON, SON & HASTINGS (1885), 30 Ch. D. 1 ; 54 L. J. Ch. 998 ; 53 L. T. 415 ; 33 W. R. 645 ; 1 T. L. R. 423.

215. Receipt of fees—From whom acceptable—Client.]—A counsellor may take fees of his client, but he may not lay out or expend money for him.—GAGE v. JOHNSON (1622), Win. 53 ; 124 E. R. 45.

217. Amount of fees—Not to depend on event of cause.]—A counsellor-at-law cannot contract for payment of his fees of litigation by a gross sum payable upon the event of the cause.—PENRICE v. PARKER (1673), Cas. temp. Finch, 75 ; 23 E. R. 40.

218. ———.]—The emoluments of counsel are not to depend upon the event of the cause, but their compensation is to be equally the same whether the event be successful or unsuccessful.—MORRIS v. HUNT (1819), 1 Chit. 544.

Annotations:—Refd.* Kennedy v. Broun (1863), 13 C. B. N. S. 677. Mentd. A.-G. v. Munro (1840), 1 H. & Tw. 457.

219. ——— Not to be marked after end of litigation.]—The only fee which a solr. is bound to pay a counsel is to be marked on the brief when it is accepted. There always must have been a difficulty in the idea that a counsel could take a fee afterwards ; because I think that the great majority of counsel never would have accepted a fee not marked when the brief was accepted, & would not have allowed it to be marked subsequently. It could only have been by accident that any counsel ever allowed a fee to be marked after the work was contracts relating to service as an advocate in litigation & matters ancillary to such service.—KISHTNA ROW v. MUTTU-KISHTNA (1869), 4 Mad. 244.—IND.

206 v. ——— Interest.]—Pltf., a member of the Newfoundland Bar, attended a Commission in 1877, as counsel for the Newfoundland Govt., upon an agreement that he was to receive for his services "the same allowance as counsel for the other Provinces." The claim having been finally settled in 1885, pltf. sued to recover a sum proportionate to the value of his services, with compound interest thereon from the date of the sittings of the Commission :—Held: he was bound by the above agreement & could not recover on a quantum meruit, & he could not recover compound interest or simple interest.—WHITEWAY done. At all events, it was a fee which by no professional rule a solr. is bound to pay, & a pauper pltf. is never liable to pay such a fee (BRETT, M.R.).—CARSON v. PICKERSGILL (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 859; as reported in 33 W. R. 589, C. A.

220. — Not to be altered after end of litigation—Action by counsel to vindicate character.—An action was brought by a Ch. barrister in practice in Liverpool to recover damages from a solr., in respect of a statement by the latter that the fee marked upon the barrister's brief had been altered in his chambers to a larger one subsequent to the determination of the case. The solr. recognising he had made a mistake, expressed regret & unreservedly withdrew the statement. Upon this, the action was settled by judgment being entered for pltf. On the question of costs:—Held: though probably the barrister did not care anything about the costs, the ct. was bound to enforce a verdict which could carry them in order to show that there was not the slightest stain attaching to his character—SNOW v. ETTY (1887), 22 L. Jo. 292.

221. Recovery of fees—From solicitor collecting same from client—Jurisdiction of court.—The ct. has no jurisdiction to compel a solr., whose bill has been taxed & ordered to be paid, to pay fees to counsel included in such bill.—Re MAY (1858), 4 Jur. N. S. 1169; 7 W. R. 126.

223. S. P. Re MAY (1858), 4 Jur. N. S. 1169; 7 W. R. 126.

224. — Not by motion to show cause.—On a motion for a rule calling upon an attorney to show cause why it should not be referred to the master to ascertain what sums of money he had received for & on account of a certain counsel, the attorney having received certain counsel's fees, which he had failed to pay over, & the facts depending chiefly upon the statement of the clerk to the attorney, who had been subsequently convicted of felony:—Held: without laying down any rule that the ct. would not interfere in such a case, the grounds laid were not sufficient to induce the ct. to interfere by summary process, the chief facts resting on the statement of a party whose word was open to suspicion.—Ex p. — (1852), 18 L. T. O. S. 247.

225. ——The ct. will not, on motion, interfere to compel an attorney to pay counsel's fees.—Re ANGELL, ANGELL v. OODEEN (1860), 29 L. J. C. P. 227; 6 Jur. N. S. 1373.

226. — Not by action.—I doubt whether anything short of a bond would enable counsel to sue a solr. for his fees (LINDLEY, L.J.).—Re LE BRASSEUR & OAKLEY, [1896] 2 Ch. 487; 65 L. J. Ch. 763; 74 L. T. 717; 45 W. R. 87, C. A.

230. Attachment or garnishee of fees.—Fees owing to counsel are not "debts" & cannot be attached or garnisheed as such.

A wife commenced proceedings for a divorce against her husband, a barrister, & obtained an order for payment of alimony pendente lite. That order not having been obeyed:—Held: fees due to the husband, which had been received by a firm of solrs. & not paid over, were not debts & could not be attached under a garnishee order obtained by the wife against the solrs.—WELLS v. 234. Bond taken by counsel—For half estate recovered in litigation.]—A counsel took a bond from his client, to convey one half of his estate to him for recovering the other half. This bond was set aside, & to secure no more than what was actually laid out in recovering the estate.—SKAP-

g. Agreement for counsel to receive damages recovered—Void.]—An agreement whereby a barrister binds himself to bring an action in damages & not to charge the client anything, in case he does not succeed, provided that the damages shall go to him, is void & the barrister has no right to any fee upon the action.—LEBLANC v. BEAUPARLANT (1889), 18 R. L. 20.—CAN.

234 i. Bond taken by counsel—For past & future services.]—Though the taking by a barrister of a bond for past & future professional services is to be condemned, the bond will not be relieved against on grounds of public policy. In administering the obligor's assets, the bond was decreed to stand as a voluntary bond.—

g. Will containing no disposition of personalty—Prepared by barrister appointed executor.]—Personal estate not disposed of by a will, drawn by the confidential counsel (the sole exor.) without informing testator of the legal effect of the will:—Held: a trust for the next of kin.—SEGRAVE v. KIRWAN (1828), Beat. 157.—IR.

237 i. Counsel purchasing client's property—After termination of employment.]—At a sale in execution of a decree against pltf., the pleader who had acted for pltf. purchased their property with his own money, but in the name of his mohurrir & for a very inadequate sum:

235. Grant to barristers of stewardship in fee of manor—Failure to explain effect of "in fee"—Additional interest in mortgage.]—Pltf. granted to deft., a barrister, the stewardship in fee of a manor. Deft. did not explain to pltf. the effects of the words "in fee":—Held: the grant must be set aside, as defts. as counsel ought to have told pltf. the effect of the words.

Deft. took a mtge. from pltf. & took from him an advance of six months' interest over & above what was due, in consideration of services formerly rendered by him as counsel:—Held: the sum must be refunded with interest.—THORNHILL v. EVANS (1742), 2 Atk. 330; 9 Mod. Rep. 331; 26 E. R. 601.

236. Settlement prepared by barrister—In view of his marriage with settlor.]—An elderly lady married a barrister, who had for some years been her confidential friend & adviser. Before the marriage a lengthened correspondence took place between them, in which she insisted that her personal estate should be settled so as to be "hers as if unmarried," & hers "to give, to use & to will." He assented to this, & undertook to prepare the settlement. By the marriage he acquired, under her father's will, a life interest, expectant on her decease, in a considerable sum of stock:—Held: (1) having undertaken to prepare the settlement, he was bound to prepare such a one as in the circumstances a conveyancer would have drawn or the ct. would have sanctioned; (2) such settlement would have given him no interest in her absolute property in default of appointment by her, & she having died without making any disposition in his favour, he was a trustee of her personal estate for her next of kin.—CORLEY v. STAFFORD (LORD), CAMPBELL v. CORLEY (1857), 1 De G. & J. 238; 26 L. J. Ch. 865; 30 L. T. O. S. 77; 3 Jur. N. S. 1225; 5 W. R. 646; 44 E. R. 714, L.JJ.

237. Counsel purchasing client's securities—After termination of employment.]—The employment of counsel as confidential legal adviser disables him from purchasing for his own benefit charges on his client's estates without his permission; & although the confidential employment ceases, the disability continues as long as the reasons on which it is founded continue to operate.

C., a barrister, who had been for several years confidential & advising counsel to P., & had, by reason of that relation, acquired an intimate knowledge of his property & liabilities, & was particularly consulted as to a compromise of securities given by P. for a debt which C. considered not to be recover-

237 ii. Counsel purchasing "actionable claim"—Misconduct.]—Purchase of an "actionable claim" by a pleader renders a pleader guilty of unprofessional conduct within Legal Practitioners Act, s. 13. It is gross misconduct on the part of the pleader, if the purchase be speculative, especially if it is made, just when the claim is ripe for judgment & when the seller is his own client unable to judge of the result of the suit.—MUNI REDDI v. #### SUB-SECT. 4.—COUNSEL AND THEIR CLERKS AS WITNESSES, AFFIDAVITS AND STATEMENTS BY COUNSEL, EXAMINATION OF COUNSEL.

238. Whether counsel may be made to give evidence as witness—General rule.—Every person, except counsel & attorneys, is compellable to reveal what he may have heard; & counsel & attorneys are only excepted, because it is absolutely necessary, for the sake of their clients, that communications to them should be protected.—R. v. SHAW (1834), 6 C. & P. 372.

239. — Not in same cause.—Counsel of the parties in a cause is not to be examined in the same cause.—LEE v. MARKHAM (1568), Toth. 48; 21 E. R. 120.

241. — Unless after withdrawing from case—Election petition.—In the course of the hearing of an election petition it appeared that M., one of resp.'s counsel, had professionally given the latter an opinion as to his signing the declaration about the return of his election expenses. When that matter came to be investigated it was thought desirable to call M., & he accordingly retired from the case, & was called as a witness.—CORK, EASTERN DIVISION, CASE (1911), 6 O'M. & H. 318.

242. — Not in subsequent cause.—If any matter be disclosed to a counsel in a cause, he cannot be permitted to give it in evidence in that or any other action. The privilege never ceases at any period of time.—WILSON v. RASTALL (1792), 4 Term Rep. 753; 100 E. R. 1283.

County Council* (1896), 60 J. P. 550.

243. — Unless with consent of client.—B., counsel for S., having been called as a witness in a case, submitted that it was impossible for him to answer, as he knew nothing beyond what he knew as counsel, & that it was his professional duty not to answer, but, S. absolving him from any engagement of secrecy, as did A., from whose counsel B. had acquired the greater part of his knowledge, B. was sworn at the Bar.—BAILLIE'S CASE (1788), 21 State Tr. 340.

244. — Not as to knowledge acquired professionally.—Counsel are not liable to be examined upon any matter which came to their knowledge in their professional capacity.—CREED v. TRAP (1578), Ch. Cas. in Ch. 121; 21 E. R. 74.

245. — — — — ——Where a barrister was called to prove the death of a particular person:—Held: he was not bound to make answer for things which might disclose the secrets of his client's cause, & the ct. refused to allow him to be examined as a witness on matters whereof he had been made privy as of counsel in the cause.—WALDRON v. WARD (1654), Sty. 449; 82 E. R. 853.

246. — — — — ——Bill to discover an ancient deed of entail supposed to be in deft.'s hands, & that he had perused it, & that in discourse he had acknowledged such deed, & other like charges. Deft. pleaded that he was a counsellor with B.; that on a reference between the parties it was agreed that nothing that passed then should be made use of on either side, or be disclosed:—Held: what deft. knew only as counsellor, or under such contract of silence, he should not be put to answer.—BULSTRODE v. LECHMORE (1676), 1 Cas. in Ch. 277; Freem. Ch. 5; 22 E. R. 799.

247. — — — — — Subpoena refused.—Pltf. sought to have O., a barrister, examined touching a matter in variance, wherein he had been of counsel:—Held: he should not be compelled by subpoena, or otherwise, to be examined upon any matter concerning same, wherein he was of counsel, either by the indifferent choice of both parties, or with either of them by reason of any annuity or fee.—DENNIS v. CODRINGTON (1579), Cary, 100; 21 E. R. 53.

248. — — — — — Knowledge acquired before employment as counsel.—One who had been counsel for deft. excused from giving the whole truth in evidence, & only required to reveal such things as were within his own knowledge before he became counsel.—SPARKE v. MIDDLETON (1663), 1 Keb. 505; 83 E. R. 1079.

249. — Not as to statements made by him in previous motion.—A barrister cannot be called as a witness to prove what was stated by him on a motion before the ct.—CURRY v. WALTER (1796), 1 Esp. 456, N. P.; further proceedings, 1 Bos. & P. 525; 126 E. R. 1046.

250. — Not to prove evidence at former trial.—A barrister should not be called to prove the evidence at a former trial, at which he appeared as counsel, of a witness since dead, especially if such barrister is engaged also in the present trial.—KINNING v. BUCHANAN (1850), Cox, M. & H. 375; 15 L. T. O. S. 305.

251. — Knowledge obtained in course of former trial.—The rule as to privileged communications between counsel or attorney & client does not extend to facts of which the counsel or attorney of himself obtains knowledge in the course of trial.

Counsel attended before a magistrate on behalf of a person charged with embezzlement, & a book was produced by the prosecutor, in which it was the duty of the person charged to have entered a sum of money received by him, & there was no such entry. On a second examination the book was again produced, when the entry was found. The party charged having brought an action for a malicious prosecution:—Held: the counsel might give evidence as to whether the entry was in the book at the time of the first examination, since the barrister, who had been at a trial of the same cause more than twenty years before in the Exchequer, where evidence had been adduced to the effect that a certain deed was fraudulent, which was now the issue. He asked the ct. whether he should tell his fellow-jurymen of the evidence he had heard or whether he should conceal it or tell it in open ct. :—Held : he should come into open ct. & give his evidence only upon his oath as a jurymen without being sworn as a witness.—DUKE v. VENTRIS (1856), Duncomb, Trials per Pais, 6th ed., c. 12, p. 209.

262. Counsel as Interpreter—Must be sworn.]—Semble* : a barrister who acts as an interpreter must be sworn.—R. v. KELLY & MALONEY (1848), 3 Cox, C. C. 75.

263. Counsel as witness—Not entitled to compensation for loss of time.]—A witness, examined in chief, having refused to attend to undergo examination upon interrogatories unless he was paid a compensation for loss of time as a barrister :—Held : a barrister was not entitled to such compensation, which was confined to physicians & attorneys.—FRASER v. FRASER (1845), 4 Notes of Cases, 319.

SUB-SECT. 5.—COUNSEL'S PROPERTY IN AND LIEN OVER DOCUMENTS.

264. Property in draft documents.]—Counsel have a right to drafts as precedents, but not to detain them where either party may have a benefit from the inspection of them. — STANHOPE v. ROBERTS (1741), 2 Atk. 214; 26 E. R. 532.

l. Duty to see rule properly entered in minutes.]—It is the duty of counsel to see that rules obtained by them are properly entered in the minutes of the ct.—Ex p. GLASS (1850), 2 All. 88.—CAN.

266 i. For non-attendance—Return of fees.]—Counsel accepted a brief to appear at C. & was paid the consultation fee & the fee for attending the trial. Counsel attended the consultation & subsequently left C. to attend to an urgent professional call, having previously returned the brief to the attorney, but not the fees :—Held : counsel should have returned both the consultation fee & the fee for attending the trial.—Re AN ADVOCATE (1917), 1. L. R. 44 Calc. 741.—IND.

266 ii. — Action of damages.]—A statement of claim for damages set forth that pltf., being returned for trial on a criminal charge, entered into a special contract with deft., a barrister, to defend him at the trial & attend on each day of pltf.'s trial, & deft. was paid a special fee, larger than the ordinary fee, or honorarium, paid to counsel for so attending, yet deft. neglected to attend after the first day of the trial, by reason whereof pltf. was convicted, & suffered damage :—Held : the claim was bad, as no valid contract could be entered into between counsel & client.—ROBERTSON v. MACDONOUGH (1880), 6 L. R. Ir. 433; 14 Cox, C. C. 469.—IR.

266 iii. — & negligence.]—An action against a barrister for negligence or non-attendance on a trial is not maintainable.—MULLICAN v. M'DONAGH (1860), 2 L. T. 136; 5 Ir. Jur. 101.—IR.

266 iv. — After receipt of fees — Misconduct.]—Wilful neglect by a pleader to appear without any justification whatever & conduct a case after receipt of full fees, is unprofessional conduct, for which the pleader can be punished under Legal Practitioners Act, s. 13.—MUNI REDDI v. VENKATA ROW (1914), 1. L. R. 37 Mad. 238.—IND.

266 i. — Duty of counsel when unable to attend.]—The rule of allowing the costs of two counsel on each side in taxation has always been supplemented by the unwritten rule of the Bar that one or other counsel must return his brief in good time, if there is a chance of neither being able to attend when the case is called on, & that in case of dispute it is the duty of the junior to return

266. — Right of action.]—Certain documents were in the chambers of counsel, who declined to part with them until his fees were paid. The documents were taken to be in the constructive possession of the solr., & an order having been made on him to deliver up all documents in his custody or power, he was imprisoned for six months for failing to deliver the documents :—Held : the only mode in which the solr. could recover the deeds was by action, & the order committing the solr. to prison was wrong.—Re WILLIAMS (1861), 3 De G. 270. For negligence & lack of skill.]—Semble* : an action cannot be supported against a certificated special pleader for negligence or unskilful advice in the course of his profession.

Such an action is certainly not maintainable against a barrister, & there is no distinction between the case of a barrister & that of a certificated special the brief or to make arrangement for some other counsel to attend until he can come in. — ESMAIL EBRAHIM v. HAJI JAN MAHOMED (1908), 1. L. R. 33 Bom. 475.—IND.

272. — Excess of authority & failure to obey instructions.]—No action lies against a counsel who, employed to conduct a cause at Nisi Prius, enters into a compromise & withdraws a juror, even though contrary to his client's instructions, provided it is done bonâ fide. If a counsel employed in a cause, contrary to the instructions of his client, acting bonâ fide, enters into a compromise of the suit, which is a nullity because it embraces matters in respect of which the counsel had no authority, though his client is put to expense in resisting legal proceedings taken by the other side to enforce such compromise, the counsel is not liable to an action, because (1) subjecting a person to legal proceedings without malice is not a cause of action, (2) there is no legal damnification, inasmuch as the ct. in which the proceedings to enforce the compromise are taken will award such costs to the successful party as the law allows. Semble: an advocate is not responsible for ignorance of law or any mistake of fact, or being less eloquent or less astute than he was expected to be; & if he is acting with perfect good faith & with a single view to the interests of his client, he is not responsible for any mistake or indiscretion or error of judgment of any sort; & if he imagines he has an authority to compromise a case when in reality he has not, it is a mistake either in law or fact, or if, in spite of instructions, he enters into a compromise, believing that it is the best course, & that the interest of his client requires it, it is but an indiscretion or error of judgment if done honestly.—SWINFEN v. CHELMSFORD (LORD) (1860), 5 H. & N. 890; 29 L. J. Ex. 382; 2 L. T. 406; 6 Jur. N. S. 1035; 8 W. R. 545; 157 E. R. 1436.

SUB-SECT. 7.—AUTHORITY OF COUNSEL.

A. Derivation of Authority.

276. To plead—Mere retainer insufficient—Brief necessary.]—A mere retainer to counsel will not authorise him to plead for the party in ct. He must be instructed, & a brief must be delivered.—DOE d. SWINTON v. SINCLAIR (1836), 5 L. J. C. P. 185.

277. To withdraw record—Mere retainer insufficient—Brief necessary.]—A retainer in a cause, without a brief, does not authorise counsel to withdraw a record at Nisi Prius.—AHITBOL v. BENEDETTO (1810), 3 Taunt. 225; 128 E. R. 89.

278. — — —.]—A counsel to whom a retainer in a cause has been given, no brief having been delivered, cannot withdraw the record.—DOE d. CRAKE v. BROWN (1832), 5 C. & P. 315.

279. To show cause—Appeal against conviction of one justice under Turnpike Roads Act, 1823 (c. 95)—Instructions from other trustees.]—Upon an application for a mandamus to justices, to enter continuances and hear an appeal against a conviction of one justice under the above Act:—Held: it was no objection to counsel appearing to show cause that they were instructed by the attorney for the trustees of the roads whereon the offence complained of was committed, & not by the convicting justice, or the informer, to whom the rule was addressed.—R. v. MIDDLESEX JJ. (1843), 7 J. P. 240; 7 Jur. 396.

B. How evidenced.

280. Statement by counsel.]—Where a doubt is suggested as to the authority of counsel to consent to an order, his instructions not being given by the solr. formerly employed in the case, it is for counsel to consider whether he is authorised, & if he does, the ct. will act upon it, & the client will be bound by it.—MOLE v. SMITH (1820), 1 Jac. & W. 665, 673; 37 E. R. 522.

m. To appear—Retainer in former trial.]—Where no notice of trial was given by pltf., & counsel, retained in a former trial, in ignorance of such fact appeared without authority, deft. being absent, & defended, a verdict for pltf. was set aside.—DOHERTY v. DESBRISAY (1869), 1 Han. 494.—CAN.

n. To appear on execution of judgment—Authority to represent client in action.]—The barrister, who is authorised by a party to represent him in an action, has no need of a special authority in order to continue to represent him upon the execution of the judgment obtained by him & upon the distribution of the moneys raised; & there is no ground for discontinuance when the party has not been damaged by the proceedings of the barrister.—FOISY v. WURTELE (1889), 18 R. L. 577.—CAN.

o. To relinquish part of case—Express authority necessary.]—It is not within the ordinary scope of a pleader's duties to relinquish any portion of his client's case without express authority from the client, who is not bound by such relinquishment, unless it was authorised by himself.—GOUR PERSHAD DOSS v. SOOKDEB RAM DEB (1869), 12 W. R. 279.—IND.

SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 7.—B.

280 i. Statement by counsel.]—When counsel appears & states he is instructed, the ct. should not inquire further as to his authority.—MURPHY v. RICHARDSON (1850), 13 L. L. R. 430; 2 Ir. Jur. 255.—IR.

280 ii. — Production of authority unnecessary.]—Re HUNTER (1867), 1 Han. 233.—CAN.

p. Client present in court without dissent.]—Where a person, for whom counsel states he appears, is present in ct., allows him to appear, & adopts his advocacy, that adoption renders it impossible for such person to dispute the retainer of counsel & of the solr. instructing him.—Re MCL. (1903), 3 S. R. N. S. W. 388.—AUS.

promise litigation to which the client is a party, the ct. will accept the statement of counsel, if made from his place at the Bar, without requiring it to be made on oath.—HICKMAN v. BERENS, [1895] 2 Ch. 638; 64 L. J. Ch. 785; 73 L. T. 323; 12 R. 602, C. A.

282. Two counsel appearing.]—When two counsel instructed by different solrs. appeared upon a petition for the same party, the ct. directed the petition to stand over & the authorities under which the solrs. acted to be verified by affidavit.—BUTTERWORTH v. CLAPHAM (1820), 1 Jac. & W. 673, n.; 37 E. R. 525.

283. —.—Two official managers of a co. were appointed under Joint Stock Cos. Winding-up Act, 1848 (c. 45). Upon a motion in ct. by way of appeal from an order of the master, counsel appeared on behalf of both official managers, & other counsel also appeared upon different instructions for one of them. The ct. stopped the cause until it had ascertained which counsel was instructed by the actual authority of that official manager; & upon his personally appearing in ct. & stating which counsel he had individually authorised the ct. heard that counsel only on his behalf.—Re LONDON & MANCHESTER DIRECT INDEPENDENT RY. CO., BASS'S CASE (1849), 1 De G. & Sm. 722; 18 L. J. Ch. 245; 13 L. T. O. S. 278; 13 Jur. 552; 63 E. R. 1267.

C. Extent of Authority.

(a) General Authority in conducting Cases.

284. General scope of authority.]—In ct. counsel has the whole conduct of the cause & has the power to act without asking his client what he shall do. He has no master but is the conductor & regulator of the whole thing (BRETT, M.R.).—R. v. GREENWICH COUNTY COURT REGISTRAR (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 54; 54 L. J. Q. B. 392; 53 L. T. 902; 33 W. R. 671; 1 T. L. R. 479; 2 Morr. 175, C. A.

285. In regard to calling witnesses.]—A client is bound by the conduct of his advocate, & the ct. will not grant a new trial on the ground that the witnesses were not examined by counsel, according to the request of the attorney.—HALL v. STOTHARD (1816), 2 Chit. 267.

286. —.—It is in general a matter entirely within the discretion of counsel for the prosecution, whether all the witnesses at the back of the bill should be called on behalf of the Crown or not; & although the judge has the power to interfere, he will only exercise it in extreme cases.—R. v. EDWARDS, UNDERWOOD & EDWARDS (1848), 11 L. T. O. S. 50; 12 J. P. 795; 3 Cox, C. O. 82.

287. —.—In all cases counsel having the conduct of the case in ct. are responsible for the calling or not calling of witnesses.—HATCH v. LEWIS (1861), 2 F. & F. 467; 7 Jur. N. S. 1085, N. P.

288. —.—Counsel's authority at the trial (unless limited by express instructions) includes a discretion as to calling or not of any witnesses.—WALLACE v. COOK (1903), Times, June 15.

289. To omit evidence in brief.]—A new trial will not be granted because the counsel thought it prudent to omit evidence which they had in their briefs.—SPONG v. HOG (1772), 2 Wm. Bl. 802; 96 E. R. 472.

SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 7.—C. (a).

g. To accept as final shorthand reporter's notes.]—On proceedings before a magistrate on a charge of selling liquor contrary to Liquor License Act, R. S. O. 1897 (c. 245), counsel for deft., in the absence of the latter, has authority to bind him by an agreement that the shorthand reporter's notes shall have the same force & effect as if taken down by the magistrate, & read over to & signed by each witness.—R. v. DEGAN (1908), 17 O. L. R. 366; 12 O. W. R. 1047.—CAN.

290. To select between inconsistent defences.]—If counsel is instructed to set up two inconsistent defences he is entitled to use his discretion which he will put forward.—R. v. DENOEL (1916), 85 L. J. K. B. 1756; 114 L. T. 1215; 32 T. L. R. 473; 25 Cox, C. C. 429; 12 Cr. App. Rep. 49, C. C. A.

(b) To Consent, Compromise, or Refer.

(i.) In General.

291. General rule.]—A counsel has no authority to refer an action against the wishes of his client, or upon terms different from those which his client has authorised. If he does so refer it, the reference may be set aside, although the limit put by the client on his counsel's authority is not made known to the other side when the reference is agreed upon. The ct. before whom the question of setting aside the reference comes, is not bound to sanction an arrangement made by counsel which is not, in the opinion of the ct., a proper one.—NEALE v. GORDON LENNOX, [1902] A. C. 465; 71 L. J. K. B. 939; 87 L. T. 341; 66 J. P. 757; 51 W. R. 140; 18 T. L. R. 791; 46 Sol. Jo. 319, H. L.

292. Agreement binding without order of court.]—An agreement come to in ct., the memorandum of which is signed by counsel for the parties, is a binding agreement independently of any order of ct.—PORTER v. COOPER (1834), 1 Cr. M. & R. 387; 4 Tyr. 456; 3 L. J. Ex. 330; 149 E. R. 1130.

Annotations:—Mentd. R. v. Taylor (1835), 5 Tyr. 800; Lemere v. Elliott (1861), 6 H. & N. 656.

293. Signature binding.]—AITKEN v. BACHELOR; see ARBITRATION, Vol. II., No. 25.

294. Power presumed—Counsel apparently properly instructed—Proctor present without protest.]—The appearance of counsel who had been previously engaged at the hearing of a cause, on the cause coming on again upon the reserved question of costs, the proctor who originally instructed him being present, & not objecting to his taking part in the proceedings, & the opposite party being thereby led to suppose he was properly instructed to agree to a final decree:—Held: binding on the party for whom he originally appeared, so as to perempt an appeal previously lodged against the former decree.—CLIFTON (THE SHIP) (1835), 3 Knapp, 375; 12 E. R. 695, P. C.

295. Consent of counsel binding.]—Parties are bound by the consent of their counsel, & a petition to restore a petition, dismissed by consent, upon the ground that no authority had been given to counsel to consent, was dismissed with costs.—Re HOBLER (1844), 8 Beav. 101; 4 L. T. O. S. 152; 50 E. R. 40.

296. Within ordinary authority.]—The client is absolutely & conclusively bound by what the counsel on her behalf assented to. It would be most fatal to the due administration of justice, if we were to allow the authority of counsel to be thus questioned. And there is not any hardship or inconvenience in this; for, if the client or the attorney has reason to think that the counsel is taking a course that will prejudice his interests, he may withdraw his brief, & so put an end to his authority to represent the client before the ct. But if counsel, duly instructed, take upon himself to consent to a compromise which he, in the exercise of a sound discretion, judges to be for the interest of his client, the ct. will not inquire into the existence or the extent of his authority (CRESSWELL, J.).—SWINFEN v. SWINFEN (1856), 18 C. B. 485; 25 L. J. C. P. 303; 27 L. T. O. S. 220; 139 E. R. 1459; subsequent proceedings (1857), 1 C. B. N. S. 364.

So far as the common law etc. are concerned, the rule seems to have been laid down (in Swinfen v. Swinfen) in wider terms than are necessary here (BYLES, J.). In the Ct. of Ch. the case of Swinfen v. Swinfen was treated as one resting on very peculiar grounds (KEATING, J.). Strauss v. Francis (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 379. The case of Swinfen v. Swinfen was peculiar; in Prestwich v. Poley (1865), 18 C. B. N. S. 806, the members of the ct. treat it as an anomalous case (BLACKBURN, J.). Refd. Harding v. Chowne (1863), 1 New Rep. 284; Neale v. Gordon-Lennox, [1902] 1 K. B. 838, C. A. Mentd. Thomas v. Rawlings (1859), 28 L. J. Ex. 347.

297. —.—Where a jury had awarded damages which the ct. considered excessive, & the ct. recommended a compromise:—Held: counsel had authority to consent to such a compromise in the absence of the clients, such consent being clearly within their ordinary authority.—THOMAS v. HARRIS (1858), 27 L. J. Ex. 353.

298. Action for seduction & breach of promise—Proof of authority.]—Pltf. consulted a counsel residing in the country upon the subject of her rights for seduction & breach of promise of marriage against deft. The counsel himself then wrote to deft., but, as terms could not be effected, the counsel recommended her to an attorney to bring the actions, & what was required to be done by an attorney was done in his office by his clerks. Pltf. never spoke to the attorney himself. At the assizes when the causes were ready for trial pltf. & her mother, in a conversation upon terms of settlement, told the managing clerk to settle on the best terms he could. The counsel who had sent her to the attorney was her junior counsel in the case. Terms of settlement were come to in ct., when he was present, & these terms indorsed on the briefs of the leading counsel for pltf. & deft. Afterwards she refused to be bound thereby, & repudiated the terms come to, saying she had not authorised them:—Held: there must be a new trial in the circumstances, her attorney to pay the costs of the trial, & of the rule. If she authorised the terms, then she would pay those costs. If she did not, they would properly fall upon her then attorney.—BROOKS v. COX, BROOKS v. COX (1857), 30 L. T. O. S. 288.

299. Action for breach of promise.]—In an action for breach of promise of marriage, counsel for pltf. compromised the suit contrary to the wishes of his client. The ct. set aside the compromise & ordered a new trial.—STOKES v. LATHAM (1888), 4 T. L. R. 305, C. A.

300. Within apparent general authority.]—On

300 i. Within apparent general authority.]—Counsel has authority over the cause to compromise it, if he thinks the interest of his client would be best served by such a course. Semble: if the client or his attorney refuses to agree to a compromise, he ought not to proceed with it, though his brief has not been withdrawn.—MANSON v. MAFFRA (SHIRE OF) (1881), 7 V. L. R. 364.—AUS.

300 ii. —.—Counsel, unless his authority to act for his client is revoked, & such revocation is notified to the opposite side, has, by virtue of his retainer & without need of further authority, full power to compromise a case on behalf of his client, & the ct. will not disturb a compromise so entered into, unless it appears that it was entered into under a mistake & that some palpable injustice has been thereby caused to the client.—*JANG BAHADUR SINGH v. the trial of an action for malicious prosecution deft.'s counsel, in the absence of deft. & without his express authority, assented to a verdict for pltf. for £350 with costs upon the understanding that all imputations against pltf. were withdrawn:—Held: this settlement was a matter within the apparent general authority of counsel & was binding on deft.—MATTHEWS v. MUNSTER (1887), 20 Q. B. D. 141; 57 L. J. Q. B. 49; 57 L. T. 922; 52 J. P. 260; 36 W. R. 178; 4 T. L. R. 102, C. A.

301. No authority to compromise out of court.]—Counsel have no authority to bind their clients in the suit to the terms of a compromise made out of ct. Such compromise, if enforceable at all, must be the subject of a separate suit for specific performance.—GREEN v. CROCKETT, CROCKETT v. GREEN (1865), 6 New Rep. 368; 34 L. J. Ch. 606; 12 L. T. 749; 13 W. R. 1052, L. C.

302. Effect of agreement—When proof of consent necessary.]—To support an action against a party, founded on an undertaking (entered into by him after having appeared & pleaded to an indictment for an assault) to do an act in consideration of the prosecutor consenting to a nominal fine only being imposed on him, the indorsement to that effect of the terms of the agreement between the parties on the briefs signed by the counsel on both sides:—Held: not sufficient to be left to the jury without proving the assent of deft., & a nonsuit directed.—ELWORTHY v. BIRD (1824), 13 Price, 222; M'Cle. 69; 147 E. R. 972.

303. Remedy of client — When counsel & attorney refer contrary to instruction.]—An express agreement was entered into by counsel & attorney to refer a cause to arbn.; the client had expressly forbidden the attorney to consent to any reference:—Held: the client's remedy was by action against the attorney.—*FILMER v. (ii.) In what Causes.

304. Rights of infant concerned.]—Upon the trial of an issue between an infant & an adult terms of compromise were signed by their counsel, & the cause was withdrawn. The agreement, though such as the ct. would have sanctioned, was not binding on the infant. The adult afterwards refused to be bound by the arrangement. A new trial was directed, & the adult party was ordered to pay so much of the costs of the issue as had been rendered fruitless & could not be rendered available on the subsequent trial.—HARGRAVE v. HARGRAVE (1850), 12 Beav. 408; 19 L. J. Ch. 261; 15 L. T. O. S. 540; 14 Jur. 212; 50 E. R. 1117.

Counsel instructed by person without authority to bind client.]—*When a case is compromised by counsel on the instruction of a person who watches the case on behalf of the party, even if the person instructing has no authority to bind the party, the compromise is binding on the latter if he ratifies the acts & the compromise.

307. —.]—Pltf., an infant, brought an action by her next friend in the ct. to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by her through the alleged negligence of deft. At the trial a judgment of nonsuit was pronounced, & it was suggested that if there was no appeal deft. would not ask for costs. Pltf.'s counsel agreed to this, & the judgment was entered without costs. Pltf. was without means. On an application on her behalf for a new trial:—Held: the agreement was of no benefit to the infant, & was not binding on her.—RHODES v. SWITHINBANK (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 577; 58 L. J. Q. 309. 310. — Agreement to accept separation deed—Reference to adjust terms.—Before the trial of certain issues arising out of a wife's petition for judicial separation by reason of her husband's cruelty an arrangement was entered into & a memorandum signed by the counsel of both parties before the jury were sworn, enabling a referee to settle the terms of a separation by deed, with full power over the question of income. Subsequently the wife moved to re-enter the record & set the case down for hearing:—Held: the wife was bound by the agreement that the proceedings should be stayed, & the suit not moved, so long as she could show no breach of the terms of the agreement by the other party, & the motion must be refused.—HOOPER v. HOOPER (1860), Sea. & Sm. 156; 1 Sw. & Tr. 602; 30 L. J. P. M. & A. 49; 1 L. T. 522; 8 W. R. 319.

311. — Subsequent suit.—On a wife's petition for dissolution of marriage, certain issues of cruelty & adultery came on for trial on Mar. 12,

1861, when an agreement was signed by the respective counsel of the parties, by which (inter alia) a separation deed was to be executed, & petitioner agreed not to take further proceedings. Petitioner moved the ct. to set down the case again for trial, on the ground that the agreement was not signed by counsel with her consent, but the motion was rejected. In 1863 petitioner filed a fresh petition, alleging the same acts of adultery as in the former petition, certain other acts previous to Mar., 1861, which she alleged had only come to her knowledge in the early part of 1863, certain other acts of adultery since Mar., 1861, & various acts of cruelty, some alleged to be different from those contained in the former petition:—Held: petitioner was bound by the agreement of Mar., 1861, not to take proceedings in the ct. in respect of any matter before that date, & as the subsequent acts of adultery, to which the agreement did not extend, would not of themselves support the wife's petition for dissolution, no directions as to the mode of trial could be given.—*ROWLEY v. 328. Counsel's knowledge that client opposed to compromise.—]—During the trial of an issue devisavit vel non, the counsel for the heir & the devisee agreed to compromise the case on the terms of the devisee giving up the estate & receiving a life annuity. It was well known to the counsel & attorney of the devisee that she was opposed to any compromise. At the time when these terms were come to, her arrival in ct. was immediately expected, but the heads of agreement were signed & a juror withdrawn before she arrived. The agreement was embodied in a Nisi Prius order. The devisee having refused to comply with its terms, the heir applied to the Ct. of Common Law for an order to commit her, which was refused. He then filed a supplemental bill for specific performance of the agreement:—Held: assuming counsel to have, without express authority, such power to bind their clients by a compromise as to make the agreement good at law, still an agreement made under such circumstances was one of which, in the absence of subsequent acquiescence or confirmation by the devisee, specific performance ought not to be decreed against her.—SWINFEN v. The Vice-Warden decided that the claims must be admitted. The counsel of the opposing contributories undertook not to appeal, & their costs were given them out of the estate. Before the order was passed & entered, they applied to have this undertaking omitted, on the grounds that counsel could not give a consent not to appeal, that he could not give a consent after a decision on the merits & that the consent was given by mistake, as the decision of the Vice-Warden turned on a resolution of the co. which they had not seen, & that if they had known its terms the consent would not have been given. It appeared, however, that the resolution had been read in ct. on a former day:—Held: counsel had authority to consent not to appeal, & as the opposing contributories had had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the terms of the resolution, there was no such mistake as to entitle them to withdraw their consent.—Re WEST DEVON GREAT CONSOLS MINE (1888), 38 Ch. 340. Not withdrawal of client's consent—After counsel's consent before order drawn up—Arbitrary withdrawal.]—Held: where counsel by the authority of their clients consented to an order the clients could not arbitrarily withdraw such consent, & the Registrar must be directed to proceed to perfect the order, without prejudice to any application which clients might make to the ct. to be relieved from their consent, on the ground of mistake or surprise or for other sufficient reason.—HARVEY v. 341. — — — —.]—The circumstance that a material fact within the knowledge of the client & his solr. has not been communicated to counsel at the time when he gives his consent to an order in ct. is not a sufficient ground for the client withdrawing his consent to the order before it is passed & entered, & does not prevent such a withdrawal being arbitrary, & this is so even if counsel states that he would not have given his consent if he had known of the fact.—Re WEDGE, WEDGE v. PANTER (1908), 98 L. T. 436; 52 Sol. Jo. 241.

342. — After consent given by counsel acting on express instructions.]—An action was brought against deft. for infringing pl'tfs.' trade mark, & a motion was made for an injunction against him. When the motion came on for hearing deft., by counsel, submitted to a perpetual injunction (which pl'tfs. had never asked for) being made against him, his servants, & agents, with costs:—Held: that was not a mere consent by counsel without specific instructions, but a consent which deft. specifically instructed his counsel to give, so that it was the consent not merely of counsel but of deft. himself, & a motion to allow the consent to be withdrawn must be refused.—ELSAS v. #### D. Revocation and Termination of Authority.

344. Revocation—When effectual to admit of client pleading personally.]—When a party appears in ct. by counsel & the cause is on & the counsel has been fully seised of it, his authority cannot be revoked by his client so as to give the client a right himself to address the ct. But if counsel is not so seised, as where, upon a motion, the hearing has proceeded no further than the reading of the affidavits, & the counsel has addressed no arguments to the ct., he may at the instance of his client be permitted to withdraw, & the client himself may be heard.—R. v. MAYBURY (1865), 11 L. T. 566.

SUB-SECT. 8.—STATEMENTS BY COUNSEL.

345. Made out of court.]—Counsel only represent the party for whom they appear when in ct., & statements by them out of ct. are not binding on their clients.—RICHARDSON v. PETO (1840), 1 Man. & G. 896; 9 Dowl. 73; Drinkwater, 61; Woll. 78; 133 E. R. 595.

351. On instructions—Subsequently found to be incorrect.]—Where counsel were instructed to state that which upon inquiry was found to be incorrect, on such discovery being made:—Held: the ct. would order the decree to be amended.—MOYE v. SPARROW (1870), 22 L. T. 370.

SUB-SECT. 9.—UNDERTAKINGS BY COUNSEL.

352. Without authority—Not accepted by court.]—Held: the ct. would not accept an undertaking of counsel to pay the price of demurrer books delivered by the opposite party, where the counsel had no authority, on the part of his client, to enter into such undertaking.—SMITH v. BEEMAN (1842), 6 Jur. 222.

353. Should be observed as if embodied in order of court.]—An undertaking given by counsel in ct. is to be as scrupulously observed as if the terms of the undertaking were embodied in an order of the ct.—PENNEL v. ROY (1853), 20 L. T. O. S. 269; 1 W. R. 192, V.-C.

354. Not to appeal—Not embodied in order—Should be carried out in good faith.]—An undertaking by counsel not to appeal against an order, although not embodied in the order, ought to be carried out in good faith; but it is no legal bar to the right of appeal.—Re HULL & COUNTY BANK, TROTTER'S CLAIM (1879), 13 Ch. played pltf., is not an admission that they had any authority to bind deft.—GUY v. BRADY (1885), 24 N. B. R. 563.—CAN.

g. Client unable to make admission or waiver.]—Deft., while awaiting trial on a charge of murder, made an admission to the prosecuting officer in the presence of deft.'s counsel:—Held: prisoner's counsel could not assent to or waive anything to prisoner's prejudice, & in a case where prisoner himself could not make a waiver or admission, such waiver or admission could not be made through the agency of his counsel.—R. v. HOPE YOUNG (1905), 38 N. S. R. 427; 10 Can. Crim. Cas. 466.—CAN.

or a judge at chambers in any stage of the cause, & counsel makes an admission of a fact, though unsupported by affidavit, the ct. will regard such statement as presumably true, & will admit it in evidence when offered by the other side.

In an action of detinue to recover possession of certain papers deft. took out a summons before a judge at chambers to change the venue, & appeared by counsel to support the application. In the course of the proceedings before the judge counsel admitted that his client had the papers:—Held: this admission was rightly received in evidence at the trial of the cause, as a statement made by counsel in discharge of his functions as counsel, relevant to the matter at issue, & made for the purpose of influencing the judge to take a step in favour of his client.

When counsel makes before the ct. or a judge a statement, or does an act in the presence of the attorney on the record, or any authorised person who represents him, & the statement or the act is not repudiated by the attorney or his representative, that amounts to an assent to or adoption of it, & it becomes the statement or act of the attorney (WILLIAMS, J.).—HALLER v. WORMAN (1861), 3 L. T. 741; 9 W. R. 348.

T. 632.

358. As to jurisdiction of Scottish Court—Binding as admission of fact.]—At the trial of an action counsel for deft. made an admission that an order made by the Ct. of Session in Scotland nominating the curator of a lunatic subscriber, on behalf of the lunatic as “nominee,” to receive the share of a grant had the same effect as if it had been a nomination made by the subscriber himself (being sane):—Held: by the Ct. of Appeal, as the question of the jurisdiction of the Scottish ct. to make such an order was a question of fact, proof of which, like proof of other facts, might be dispensed with by the admission of counsel, the trial judge was wrong in going into that question.—URQUHART v. BUTTERFIELD (1887), 37 Ch. D. 357; 57 L. J. Ch. 521; 57 L. T. 780; 36 W. R. 376; 4 T. L. R. 161, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 11.—NOTICE TO COUNSEL.

360. Whether notice to client.]—Though notice to a man's counsel be notice to the party, yet where the counsel comes to have notice of the title in another affair, which, it may be, he has forgot, when his client comes to advise with him in a case with other circumstances, that shall not be such a notice, as to bind the party.—PRESTON v. TUBBIN (1684), 1 Vern. 286; 23 E. R. 474.

361. —.]—Notice to counsel who was employed in the thing by another person, or in another business, & at another time, is no notice to his client who employs him afterwards.—WORSLEY v. SCARBOROUGH (EARL) (1746), 3 Atk. 392; 26 E. R. 1025.

362. Attendance of counsel—When injunction continued—Not notice to client.]—The presence of counsel in ct. without instructions, when an injunction is continued against his client does not constitute such notice to the client as will justify committal for contempt.—CARROW v. FERRIOR, DUNN v. FERRIOR (1868), 37 L. J. Ch. 569; 17 L. T. 536; 16 W. R. 454.

MACKINTOSH* (1824), 2 B. & C. 693; 4 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 187; 2 L. J. O. S. K. B. 137; 107 E. R. 541.

363 i. Effect of taking — As defence to action for malicious prosecution.]—In an action for damages for malicious prosecution, the having taken counsel's opinion before prosecuting will not sustain a plea of probable cause & absence of malice, unless it be shown that all the facts were laid before him & unless he be heard to establish that he advised the prosecution with a full knowledge of them.—DUROCHER v. BRADFORD (1907), Q. R. 31 S. C. 240.—CAN.

h. — As defence in application to take carriage of proceedings from party.]—To an application to take the carriage of proceedings from a party on the ground of delay, it is not a sufficient answer to state that the delay had arisen in consequence of counsel having advised a certain course, which had the effect of protracting the proceedings. The proper course is to apply for time to the ct.—Re NOLAN (1850), 15 L. T. O. S. 284.—IR.

SUB-SECT. 13.—MISTAKES AND OMISSIONS OF COUNSEL.

369. In failing to press point of law.]—A point of law suggested by the ct. on a trial, if rejected by the counsel in whose favour it would have then prevailed, is not a ground on which the ct. will grant a new trial.—*R. v. 371. To exhibit interrogatories to prove will.]—Pltfs. sued as devisees of A., but omitted to prove his will, & the bill was dismissed. They afterwards presented a petition of rehearing, & moved for leave to exhibit interrogatories to prove the will, which was granted, the omission having arisen from the inadvertence of counsel, & the will not being the subject of dispute in the cause.—HOOD v.

Mistaken basis for assessment of damages.]—Where damages found by the jury have been calculated upon a value assented to by counsel on both sides, the ct. will not interfere to alter the amount of the verdict, on affidavits that counsel were mistaken in that which they assumed as the basis of their calculation.—HILTON v. FOWLER (1836), 5 Dowl. 312, Ex. Ch.

373. In calculating interest.]—Where, in an action for principal & interest on a mtge. deed, which was undefended, pltf.'s counsel took a verdict for principal only, omitting to include the interest, the ct. refused to increase the amount of the verdict by adding the interest.—*BAKER v. 375. Slip in argument—When ground for rehearing.]—A mere slip in argument, e.g., by counsel omitting to rely on a sect. of an Act of Parliament supposed to be decisive of the question, is not of itself a sufficient ground for allowing a re-argument of the case, although the order of the ct. has not been passed & entered. Semble: although this rule applies when the question involved is only as to the mode of procedure by which the rights of the parties are to be brought before the ct., a rehearing will be allowed in a case where the order of the ct. finally settles the rights of the parties.—BIRMINGHAM & DISTRICT LAND Co., LTD. v. LONDON & NORTH WESTERN RY. Co. (1886), 34 Ch. D. 261; 56 L. J. Ch. 956; 55 L. T. 699; 35 W. R. 173, C. A.

This was opposed on the ground that the appeal would fail & costs would be unnecessarily incurred:—Held: the application should be granted.—CODLING v. MOWLEM (JOHN) & CO., LTD. (1913), 7 B. W. C. ## SECT. 6.—DUTIES AND DISCRETION OF COUNSEL AT HEARING.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

380. Duty to exercise discretionary powers.]—The ct. intimated to the counsel that, in the absence of their clients, they ought to take upon themselves the responsibility of going on, or sending the matters in dispute to a reference.—ANON. (1823), 1 L. J. O. S. K. B. 117.

381. Duty to insist upon being heard.]—Every counsel ought to insist upon being heard (BRETT, L.J.).—GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. v. WATERFORD & LIMERICK RY. CO. (1881), 17 Ch. D. 493; 50 L. J. Ch. 513; 44 L. T. 723; 29 W. R. 826, C. A.

C.*, [1894] 1 Q. B. 453, C. A.; G. W. Ry. Co. v. Barry Ry. Co., [1909] 2 K. B. 670, C. A.

382. Duty where case discovered to be unsustainable.]—It is the duty of counsel to say so when he finds a point not to be arguable. The chief function of the Bar is to assist the ct. in coming to a just conclusion (KEATING, J.).

It is the duty of counsel to assist the ct. by referring to authorities which he knows to be against him. But when the counsel has satisfied himself that he has no argument to offer in support of his case, it is his duty at once to say so, and to withdraw altogether. The counsel is master of the argument & of the case in ct. & should at once retire, if he finds it wholly unsustainable, unless indeed he has express instructions to the contrary (BRETT, J.).—BEAUCHAMP (EARL) v. MADRESFIELD (1872), L. R. 8 C. P. 245; 2 Hop. & Colt. 41; 42 L. J. C. P. 32; 21 W. R. 124; sub nom. SALISBURY v. BONTIEMS, BEAUCHAMP v. MADRESFIELD OVERSEERS, 27 L. T. 606; 37 J. P. 39.

383. Duty to conduct case fairly—Should not constitute himself judge.]—A barrister is not bound to degrade himself in carrying on a case; a barrister ought not to fight unfairly; but short of that he ought to use every effort to bring the case of a client to a successful issue; a barrister ought not to set himself up as a judge of his client's case; he has no right to forsake a client on any mere suspicion of his own as to his chance of success.—Re COOKE (1889), 5 T. L. R. 407; 33 Sol. Jo. 397, C. A.

384. Duty generally in criminal proceedings—Counsel for prosecution.]—In cases of felony it is the duty of the counsel for the prosecution to be assistant to the ct. in the furtherance of justice, & not to act as counsel for any particular person or party.—R. v. THURSFIELD (1838), 8 C. & P. 269.

385. — — —.]—It is a general principle of criminal procedure, that counsel for the prosecution should consider themselves not merely as advocates for a party, but as ministers of justice, & not as struggling for a verdict, but as assistants in the ascertainment of truth according to law.—R. v. BERENS (1865), 4 F. & F. 842.

386. — — —.]—Counsel for the prosecution should regard themselves as ministers of justice, & not struggle for a conviction, as in a case at Nisi Prius, nor be betrayed by feelings of professional rivalry to regard the question at issue as one of professional superiority, & a contest for skill & pre-eminence.—R. v. PUDDICK (1865), 4 F. & F. 497.

Annotation:—Folld. R. v. Banks, [1916] 2 K. B. 621, C. C. A.

387. — — — Distinguished from duty at Nisi Prius.]—In cases usually tried at Nisi Prius, counsel were in the habit, to a certain extent, of identifying themselves with the interests of their clients, & it was their duty to struggle hard in their exertions to obtain a verdict; but in criminal cases this ought not to be the feeling of the bar (MELLOR, J.).—R. v. WEBB (1865), 4 F. & F. 862.

388. — — — To abstain from conduct likely to prejudice jury.]—Counsel for the Crown should abstain from appeals to the jury likely to inflame or prejudice their minds.—R. v. BANKS, [1916] 2 K. B. 621; 85 L. J. K. B. 1657; 115 L. T. 457; 80 J. P. 432; 25 Cox, C. C. 535; 12 Cr. App. Rep. 74, C. C. A.

389. Duty in trial with jury—To abstain from conduct likely to prejudice jury.]—It is the duty of counsel to know & observe the rules governing what they may & what they may not do in the conduct of cases; they may not disregard those rules & trust to not being checked in time, & counsel are not entitled to put an irregular question in cross-examination in order to prejudice the minds of the jury.

SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 1.

p. No duty to inquire as to truth of client's case.]—It is the duty of a pleader to present his client's case, but it is not his duty to inquire whether it is true or false, so far, at any rate, as the purpose of a prosecution for defamation is concerned. It is for the public good that an advocate should, as far as may be, feel unfettered by any control, other than that of the ct., in the use of every weapon placed at his disposal by law for the defence of his client.—NIKUNJA BEHARI SEN v. HAVENDRA CHANDRA SINHA (1913), I. L. R. 41 Cal. 514.—IND.

It is most improper & most irregular for pltf.'s counsel to ask deft. in a "running down" action if he is insured. Such a question is calculated to prejudice deft. with the jury, & the judge is justified in discharging the jury & in making pltf. pay the costs.—WRIGHT v. HEARSON, [1916] W. N. 216.

See, also, Nos. 109, ante, 431 et seq., post.

390. Must appear in robes.—Counsel are not heard in sittings in open ct. unless they are robed.—R. v. WHITTAKER (1844), 8 J. P. Jo. 390, 853.

391. Cannot address judge for nonsuit—After having addressed jury & examined witness.—If the counsel for a deft. has addressed the jury & examined witnesses, he has no right then to address the judge for a nonsuit.—ROBERTS v. CROFT & MILLER (1836), 7 C. & P. 376.

392. May insist on bringing matters before court.—The ct. cannot decline to entertain a question which counsel insists on bringing before them though it be one which it is derogatory to the honour of the bar to discuss, & of which any discussion is useless.—CRAVEN v. SANDERSON (1838), 2 Jur. 374.

393. May insist on evidence being heard—Effect of waiver.—Where a judge is about to decide in favour of a litigant without hearing evidence with which he is prepared, his counsel may insist on the evidence being heard before the delivery of the decision; but if the counsel waives his right & accepts the decision, the ct., on appeal, may hear the evidence before reversing the decision of the ct. below.—Re PINCOFFS, Ex p. JACOBSON (1882), 22 Ch. D. 312; 48 L. T. 197; 31 W. R. 554, C. A.

394. May refrain from mentioning names.—The ct. will leave to the discretion of counsel in certain applications the mention or not of the names of appcts. & other parties concerned.—Re A MARRIED WOMAN (1867), 16 L. T. 323.

395. May observe on cases cited by other side.—If deft.'s counsel take an objection, & pltf.'s counsel answer it, & in replying on the objection, deft.'s counsel cite a case, pltf.'s counsel will be allowed to observe on the case so cited.—FAIRLIE v. DENTON (1828), 3 C. & P. 103; 2 Man. & Ry. K. B. 353.

Annotation :—Mentd. Gaskill v. Skene (1850), 14 Q. B. 664.

396. —.—If counsel cite a case, but call no witnesses, the opposing counsel has a right to observe on the case cited.—POWER v. BARHAM (1835), 7 C. & P. 356; 1 Mood. & R. 507.

397. May reply on law to answer to objection.—Where a deft. relies upon a legal objection & calls evidence to support it, pltf.'s counsel having answered the objection, deft. is entitled to be heard on the law in reply.—ARDEN v. TUCKER (1832), 1 Mood. & R. 191.

398. May not move for decree—After notice of injunction.—It was contempt of ct. for counsel to move for judgment at common law after notice of an injunction against proceedings at law.—ALLEN v. DINGLEY (1576), Ch. Cas. in Ch. 113; 21 E. R. 70.

SUB-SECT. 2.—AS TO WITNESSES.

Authority of counsel to refrain from calling witnesses.—See Sect. 5, sub-sect. 7, ante.

399. Whether counsel can — Examine witness after other counsel on same side has closed examination.—When there are several counsel on the same side, & a junior has begun to examine a witness, the leader may interpose, take the witness into his own hands, & finish the examination. But after one counsel has brought his examination to a close, a question cannot regularly be put to the witness by another counsel on the same side.—DOE v. ROE (1809), 2 Camp. 280, N. P.

400. — Object on behalf of witness—That answering questions may render him liable.—The counsel in a cause have no right to object in favour of a witness, that the answer to a particular question renders him liable to punishment or forfeiture. Such objection belongs to the witness only.—THOMAS v. NEWTON (1826), Mood. & M. 48, n.

401. — Argue on behalf of witness objecting to answer questions.—If a witness objects to answer questions, on the ground that they may subject him to criminal proceedings, the counsel on the opposite side cannot argue in support of the witness's objection.—R. v. ADEY (1831), 1 Mood. & R. 94.

SUB-SECT. 3.—IN REGARD TO NOTES.

402. Duty to take notes.—On motion for the new trial of an issue, the judge's notes & the notes of the counsel engaged upon the trial of the issue, form the materials upon which the determination of the ct., as to the granting or refusing a new trial, will be grounded; & it is the duty of the counsel attending at the trial to take correct notes of the evidence, & those notes are the foundation of a motion for a new trial.—MALINS v. PRICE (1845), 1 Ph. 590; 5 L. T. O. S. 385; 9 Jur. 955; 41 E. R. 757, L.C.

405. Notes admitted as evidence of what took place at time.—Notes of counsel at the back of his brief, in a trial at law, admitted as evidence in subsequent proceedings of what took place at the trial.—CATTELL v. CORRALL (1839), 3 Y. & C. Ex. 413; 160 E. R. 763.

406. When court will act on notes.—Where notes of an arrangement appear on counsel's briefs, which all agree, the ct. will act upon them, although no minute of the arrangement was made in the registrar's book.—ANDERTON v. YATES (1850), 17 L. T. O. S. 37; 15 Jur. 833.

407. Whether entitled to take notes—Witness called under Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (c. 52), s. 27.—Where a witness summoned under the above sect. is permitted to be represented by counsel, counsel must be allowed to make a note of the evidence for the purpose of aiding his memory.—Re WALKER, Ex p. CHILDE (1909), 100 L. T. 860; 25 T. L. R. 528; 53 Sol. Jo. 486; 16 Mans. 207, D. C.

409. Inability of some counsel to attend—Not ground for postponing trial—If postponement objected to.]—Counsel for pltf. requested that the cause might stand over until the next day, some of the other counsel in the cause being unable to attend. One of defts. appearing in person, & having no counsel, objected to the postponement :—Held : the hearing should proceed.—FAIRBURN v. ROTHWELL (1843), 1 L. T. O. S. 456.

410. Non-attendance—Summons adjourned.]—Application to adjourn summonses for attendance of counsel granted.—HATCH v. SEARLES (1854), 22 L. T. O. S. 280 ; 2 W. R. 213.

411. Illness of sole counsel in case—Ground for adjournment.]—Motion adjourned, on the ground of the illness of counsel, who was alone in the case, & had to argue it.—HEMMING v. HALE (1859), 33 L. T. 136.

412. Counsel not thinking case would be reached.]—A new trial was granted because counsel were absent, not thinking the cause would come on, & no defence was made ; but a like motion was denied in B. R.—ANON. (1696), 2 Salk. 645 ; 91 E. R. 546.

413. —.]—Every cause in the list of the day ought to be considered by the parties as the first cause, & they should be prepared accordingly.

A cause was called on as undefended, whereupon deft.'s counsel interposed, & stated that it was defended, & the case was accordingly ordered to keep its place. It being in the list for trial on a certain day, it could not have been reached on that day in the ordinary course of things, but on its being intimated by the judge, shortly before the rising of the ct., that he would take two short cases, the counsel for pltf. applied to have the case taken, on the ground that it was a short cause, whereupon it was called on, & deft.'s counsel not being in ct., pltf. obtained a verdict. Upon an application subsequently to set aside the trial, on the ground that it was improperly taken out of its turn in the absence of deft. :—Held : it was competent to the judge to take the causes in any order he thought most convenient, & it was the duty of the legal advisers of deft. to have been present, & the application must be refused.—COTTAM v. BANKS (1847), 2 New Pract. Cas. 11 ; 1 Saund. & C. 302 ; 8 L. T. O. S. 347 ; 11 Jur. 148.

414. —.]—A cause, which stood No. 6 on the list for the day, was called on at a quarter to eleven o'clock, & no counsel or attorney appearing for deft., the trial proceeded, & a verdict was given for pltf. A rule nisi for a new trial upon payment of costs was obtained upon deft.'s affidavit of merits, & the absence of counsel & attorney was accounted for upon the ground that they did not suppose, from the position of the cause on the list, that it could be reached so early :—Held : no sufficient ground for a new trial.—EARL v. DOWLING (1852), 19 L. T. O. S. 115 ; 16 Jur. 479.

411 i. Illness of counsel — Whether ground for new trial.]—Deft.'s counsel was absent from illness, but no attorney appeared at the trial to attend to the cause, & no application was made to put it off. New trial refused.—GUNN v. VAN ALLEN (1849), 5 U. C. R. 513.—CAN.

411 ii. — — Senior counsel continuing.]—One of prisoner's counsel, whilst addressing the jury, was suddenly seized with a fit, & incapacitated from proceeding any further. No adjournment was applied for, but the senior counsel continued the address to the jury without raising any objection :—Held : no ground for a new trial.—R. v. FICK (1866), 16 C. P. 379.—CAN.

419 i. Counsel attending in another court.]—It is no excuse for not proceeding to trial according to notice that pltf.'s attorney was so much engaged in the House of Assembly as to be unable to attend the trial, & that the counsel spoken to on the previous day to try the cause was occupied in another ct., it not appearing that the counsel was pre-

415. —.]—Where counsel were taken by surprise & were not prepared to argue, in consequence of a change in the sittings of the ct., the ct. allowed the cases to stand over.—PENNELL v. DAWSON (1856), 28 L. T. O. S. 103.

416. Counsel arriving late.]—Where the usual hour for the sitting of the Sheriff's Ct. was ten o'clock, & deft.'s counsel was in attendance at a quarter past ten o'clock, but the cause was then concluded, the under-sheriff, although informed that counsel was instructed & that deft. was present, having refused to allow deft. to address the jury in his defence, the ct. granted a rule nisi for a new trial.—SCHWANFELTER v. LEPAGE (1844), 4 L. T. O. S. 94.

417. —.]—Where deft.'s counsel attended to oppose a summons at chambers, three or four minutes after half-an-hour next immediately following the return thereof had elapsed, but the order had been obtained before he arrived, it was rescinded without costs on either side.—MOYSE v. DINGLE (1854), 23 L. J. Q. B. 305 ; 2 W. R. 550.

418. — Counsel delayed on way to court.]—The counsel & solr. for a debtor, against whom a petition for adjudication was appointed to be heard at Croydon, being unexpectedly delayed on their way to the place appointed for the hearing, telegraphed from London Bridge that they were on the road, & requested a short delay. The registrar received the telegram ten minutes after the time appointed for the hearing, but before anything had been done. He waited ten minutes after the receipt of the telegram, & then pronounced an adjudication. The counsel arrived at thirty-two minutes past the time appointed, but the registrar refused to hear him without the consent of the other side, which was not given. On appeal to the chief judge, the order of adjudication was discharged & the case sent back to the registrar for further consideration.—Re PHILLIPS, Ex p. PHILLIPS (1874), 44 L. J. Bcy. 11 ; 31 L. T. 416 ; 23 W. R. 24.

419. Counsel attending in another court.]—If counsel on either side appear to argue a special case, on the day appointed by the rule for the concilium, & the counsel for the other party do not attend, the counsel in attendance will be heard, & the ct. will give judgment in the absence of the other counsel. The ct. will not, on any occasion, permit the case to be opened again, for the purpose of giving the counsel, who may have been absent, an opportunity of arguing it, as the necessary attendance of counsel in another ct. is not a sufficient reason for being absent.—HARBER v. RAND (1821), 9 Price, 55 ; 147 E. R. 18.

420. —.]—Applt.'s counsel was actually speaking in another case when his case was called, & on application of the other side, was dismissed with costs, the ct. saying that the only alternative was to strike it out. Subsequently on the application of the counsel in default, the case was restored to the bottom of the list.—SANDERS v. MCCONNELL (1885), Times, Feb. 12th & May 5th.

421. — Priority should be given to House of Lords.]—The House of Lords has a prior claim to the attendance of counsel. It is a very high obligation on the counsel engaged to attend the House in priority to other cts., & although the House is

r. Absence of counsel on public duties.]—The absence of counsel on public duties is such an exceptional circumstance as will induce the ct. to relax the rule requiring that a conditional order for a new trial shall be moved for within the first four days of the sittings next after the trial.—HUNT v. MALLEY (1878), 11 I. R. O. L. 534.—IR.

423. ———.]—In a pauper cause, the counsel who had certified to the ground of action, & had been assigned to the pauper pltf., returned his brief. The cause was called on some days later, & an excuse made that pltf.'s counsel was ill, & so again when it was called on at a later period. As there had been ample time, pltf. was ordered to pay costs for not proceeding to trial pursuant to his notice, although not dispaupered, & all further proceedings were ordered to be stayed in the meantime.—*BREM-MILOW v. #### SUB-SECT. 5.—WHAT MAY BE SAID IN SPEECHES IN CIVIL CASES.

426. In general—Reference to matters of general history.]—Counsel at a trial may refer to matters of general history, provided the licence be exercised with prudence, but cannot refer to particular books of history or read particular passages from them to prove any fact relevant to the cause. Works of standard authority in literature may, provided the privilege be not abused, be referred to by counsel at a trial, in order to show the general course of composition, explain the sense in which words are used, & matters of a like nature, but cannot be resorted to, to prove facts relevant to the cause.—*DARBY v. 427. ——— As to giving personal opinion.]—On the hearing of a petition under Legitimacy Declaration Act, 1858 (c. 93), the jury intimated that they considered certain documents, which had been put in as evidence, were spurious, on examining the documents. Counsel for petitioners thereupon began to say he believed on his word & honour as a gentleman that the documents which petitioner produced ———, but the sentence was not finished, COCKBURN, C.J., saying: "I insist on your not finishing that sentence. It is a violation of a fundamental rule of conduct which every advocate ought to observe to give a jury your personal opinion."—RYVES v. A.-G. (1866), Annual Register, p. 255.

428. ———.]—Counsel ought not to inform the ct. of any facts he has personally investigated in the course of preparing an appeal; & where it is desired to bring new facts before the ct. proper evidence of them should be obtained & tendered, & the ct. should be asked by means of a proper application to receive it.—*R. v. 422 i. Effect of non-attendance — Whether ground for setting aside—Non-suit.]—Where pltf. was nonsuited, his cause having been unexpectedly called on in the absence of his counsel, several causes before it on the docket having been suddenly disposed of, the ct. refused to set aside the nonsuit, except on payment of costs.—*DOE d. 422 ii. ——— Verdict.]—Held: no ground for setting aside a verdict for pltf. that deft.'s counsel was absent.—PEGG v. PLANK (1853), 3 C. P. 396.—CAN.

422 iii. ——— Whether ground for new trial.]—Where a cause was tried as undefended, in consequence of deft.'s counsel not being in ct. when it was called on, the ct. refused a new trial, though the amount in dispute was large, & deft. swore that he had a good defence, but the defence appeared to arise out of partnership transactions between them which remained unsettled.—DOHERTY v. HOGAN (1844), 2 Kerr. 492.—CAN.

422 iv. ———.]—The absence of deft.'s counsel is ground for a new trial only on payment of costs.—DRISCOLL v. HART (1839), 5 O. J. 677.—CAN.

422 vi. ———.]—Where a cause was tried as undefended in the absence of deft.'s counsel, who was accidentally out of ct. in expectation that the case which stood before it would occupy the whole day, the ct. granted a new trial on terms.—MCLEAN v. McDONALD (1864), N. B. Dig. 544.—CAN.

422 vii. ———.]—Deft. applying for a new trial, on the ground that the cause was taken in the absence of his counsel, must state unequivocally that he has a good & legal defence to the action.—R. v. BAKER (1856), 6 C. P. 68.—CAN.

422 viii. ———.]—A case was tried in the unavoidable absence of counsel for defts., an application to postpone having been refused by the presiding judge:—Held: there ought to be a new trial on terms.—JACKSON v. MCLELLAN (1879), 19 N. B. R. 432.—CAN.

422 ix. ——— Interpleader issue.]—In an interpleader issue, the verdict having been taken in the absence of deft.'s counsel, the ct. granted a new trial, without requiring the usual affidavit disclosing fully the merits, as there was not the same necessity for such affidavit in an interpleader as in other cases.—*VIDAL v. 439. In reply—By plaintiff's counsel—As to what amount of damages would carry costs.]—The counsel for pltf. in his reply, told the jury that unless they gave damages for a named sum in all probability the costs would be thrown upon pltf.: —Held: he was wrong in so doing, & the jury, in estimating damages, had no right to take into their consideration what amount would carry costs, the question of costs being in the judge. If counsel makes a suggestion to the jury which he has no right to make, it would be ground for a new trial if the jury acted upon it.—POOLE v. WHITCOMBE (1862), 12 C. B. N. 441. As to Act of Parliament passed since transaction which is subject of action.]—In opening a case, pltf.'s counsel has a right to refer to & comment on an Act of Parliament which has passed since the transaction which is the subject of the action as going to show what the law was before the passing of the Act, but he has no right to state what occurred in the progress of the Act through the Houses of Parliament, such as that counsel were heard against its passing, because he would not be entitled to go into evidence of such facts.—HOWARD v. GOSSETT (1842), Car. & M. 380; 4 State Tr. N. S. 839.

443. —.]—Medical books or books on farriery cannot be cited by counsel in proof of facts.

In this case, deft.'s counsel proposed to read certain specific canons, not as matters of speculative opinion, but as canons of the Church of Rome, promulgated by authority & sanctioned by the Pope in Council; these are matters of fact &, if of any authority, ought to have been proved. . . . Deft.'s counsel wanted to prove certain facts; he opened them as facts, & supposed that, because he could find them in certain documents & books, he was relieved from the necessity of calling witnesses to prove them, thereby avoiding a reply; in that notion he was clearly wrong (POLLOCK, C.B.).—DARBY v. of such observations cannot support a rule for a new trial upon the ground of misdirection, when the substantial question was in fact left for the consideration of the jury.—PONTIFEX v. WILKINSON (1845), 1 C. B. 75; 4 L. T. O. S. 313; 135 E. R. 464.

461. — Counsel resting defence on one issue.]—Deft.'s counsel at the trial rested the defence exclusively on one issue, & after verdict on that, objected that the judge had omitted to notice a point of law not arising on that issue, but on another:—Held: he had precluded himself from the objection, & could not afterwards treat the judge's omission as a misdirection.—HORLOR v. CARPENTER (1857), 3 C. B. N. S. 172; 27 L. J. C. P. 1; 140 E. R. 705.

462. — To judge taking time to consider matters.]—Counsel for pltf. in an action in the Ct. of Q. B., in detainee, who recovered a verdict for £10, at once applied to the judge to certify that there was sufficient reason for bringing the action in a superior ct. The judge said he would take time to consider whether he would certify or not. Deft.'s counsel was present, & made no objection to the judge's taking time to consider:—Held: by so doing he gave an implied consent to an arrangement that the judge should take time to consider.—*HEDEN v. 463. — By informing judge of other matters to be passed to jury.]—It may well be that when the judge frames specific questions to be put to the jury & submits them to counsel, who after full consideration agree to them, the point cannot afterwards be raised on an application for a new trial that other questions ought to have been put to the jury. But when no specific questions for the jury are prepared by the judge, the fact that at the close of his summing up he asked counsel whether there were any other questions which they desired to be put to the jury, & they replied in the negative, cannot prevent counsel from saying on a motion for a new trial that there is some other important question which ought to have been submitted to the jury. The judge cannot shift from his own shoulders the responsibility of putting proper questions to the jury by asking counsel (who may be a junior just called to the Bar) whether there are other questions which he desires to have put to the jury, so as to prevent its being said on a motion for a new trial that the proper questions were not put to the jury.—WEISER v. SEGAR, [1904] W. N. 93.

464. Effect of leaving court without justification—Remarks of judge prejudicial to client.]—The judge, in ct. & in the hearing of the jurors about to be sworn on the trial, having made observations which pltf.'s counsel considered to be prejudicial to his client's case, & such as would prevent his having an impartial hearing, he retired from the ct., & the cause was struck out, & the judge subsequently refused pltf.'s application to re-enter the cause for hearing. The Ct. of Exch. refused a rule calling upon the judge of the ct. & defts. to show cause why the cause should not be re-entered & restored to the list for hearing.—JENNINGS v.

465. — Misconduct of jury.]—The mere communication by the jury, who are trying an action, of an opinion in favour of pltf. during or at the close of pltf.'s case before deft.'s evidence is heard, is not of itself such misconduct on the part of the jury as will justify counsel for deft. in refusing to go on with the case before that jury, & entitle deft. to a new trial.—CAMPBELL v. HACKNEY FURNISHING CO., LTD. (1906), 22 T. L. R. 318.

466. Effect of abandonment of well-founded objection.]—If a junior counsel at Nisi Prius takes a well-founded objection to deft., which his leader gives up, the ct. will not entertain it, in discussing a rule for a new trial or nonsuit on another ground.—WINTER v. MAIR (1811), 3 Taunt. 531; 128 E. R. 120.

SECT. 7.—BARRISTER LITIGANTS.

467. Right to open pleadings, address jury & give evidence.]—Semble: a barrister pltf. having opened the pleadings may address the jury on his own behalf without prejudice to his right afterwards to give evidence.—KENNEDY v. BROUN (1862), 2 F. & F. 801.

468. Whether heard both by himself & counsel.]—A party to the suit, being a barrister, & stating that he had received a brief in the usual form, was permitted to be heard, & also another counsel in support of the motion, the ct. expressly stating it was not to be deemed a precedent for dispensing with the rule that a party cannot be heard both by himself & his counsel.—NEWTON v. RICKETTS (1848), 2 Ph. 624; 11 L. T. O. S. 81; 12 Jur. 238; 41 E. R. 1084.

469. —.]—A barrister, party to a cause, cannot be allowed to address the ct. where he is represented by counsel.—NEWTON v. CHAPLIN (1850), 10 C. B. 356; 19 L. J. C. P. 374; 14 Jur. 1121; 138 E. R. 144.

Annotation:—Mentd. Volant v. Soyer (1853), 13 C. B. 231.

470. Duty to elect.]—A barrister who is a party in an appeal case must elect to conduct his own case or to have it conducted by counsel.—NEW BRUNSWICK & CANADA RY. CO. v. CONYBEARE (1862), 9 H. L. Cas. 711; 31 L. J. Ch. 297; 11 E. R. 907, II. L.

471. Judge arguing his own case.]—One of defts. (having lately been one of the judges of the Common Pleas, but then discharged of his place after eight years sitting there) came into the Ct. of King's Bench, & in arrest of judgment argued his own case, not as counsel, nor at the Bar, but in the ct. in his cloak, having a chair set for him by the order of the Lord Chief Justice.—R. v. ATKINS (1682), 3 Mod. Rep. 3; 87 E. R. 3.

Annotation:—Mentd. R. v. Soley (1707), 11 Mod. Rep. 115.

463 i. Effect of failure to object—To questions put to jury—Motion for new trial.]—On a new trial motion, when the judge has put, without objection, certain questions to the jury, neither party can afterwards raise the point that such questions did not decide the real question, & that other questions should have been put. If counsel is of opinion that the questions put do not go to the root of his case as presented by him it is his duty to ask the judge to put such question as he considers requisite.—COLVILLE v. BOWMAN (1904), 38 L. L. T. 75.—IR.

466 i. Effect of abandonment of well-founded objection—On same objection taken at re-hearing.]—When counsel, at the original hearing, abandon an objection respecting parties, or proof of a document, that objection cannot be made on a re-hearing.—MALONE v. GERAGHTY (1843), 3 Dr. & War. 252; 2 Con. & Law. 252.—IR.

SECT. 7.

468 i. Whether heard both by himself & counsel.]—A barrister, against whom an action is brought, has no right to conduct his defence both in person & by counsel.—ROBINSON v. PALMER (1851) 2 All. 223.—CAN.

472. Barrister conducting criminal prosecution on own behalf.]—A barrister who conducts a criminal prosecution on his own behalf is entitled to no other privilege than an ordinary person, & will not therefore be allowed to comment on the evidence or address the jury.—R. v. PHILIPS (1844), 2 L. T. O. S. 287; 1 Cox, C. C. 17.

473. —.]—In a criminal matter a party will not be entitled to retain wig & gown among the Bar as his own counsel (WILDE, C.J.).—NEWTON v. CHAPLIN (1850), 19 L. J. C. P. 374; 14 Jur. 1121.

Annotations:—Mentd. Volant v. Soyer (1853), 13 C. B. 231; Morgan v. Fernyhough (1855), 11 Exch. 205.

474. Whether robes should be worn.]—Pltf. appeared in person, & said he claimed to appear in the dress of his profession, though it was long since he had used it, because the question he intended to raise was on behalf of the profession:—Held: he need make no apology for appearing in his proper dress.—NEATE v. DENMAN (1874), L. R. 18 Eq. 127; 43 L. J. Ch. 409.

SECT. 8.—CONVEYANCERS.

475. Jurisdiction of court over.]—The ct. has no summary jurisdiction over a conveyancer, he not being an attorney, in respect of deeds detained by him from his clients, or in respect of any other disputes between him & them.—Ex p. CHARLES (1828), 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 122.

but from the same place & in the same way as any ordinary member of the public.—Re WEST HOPETOWN TEA CO. (1886), 1 L. R. 9 All. 180.—IND.

479. — Not lien.]—A certified conveyancer has no lien for his charges upon deeds delivered to him, "with & in respect of" which he does certain business for the owner of the deeds.—STEADMAN v. HOCKLEY (1846), 15 M. & W. 553; 15 L. J. Ex. 7 L. T. O. S. 211; 10 Jur. 819.

See, now, Stamp Act, 1891 (c. 39), s. 44.

481. — & outlays—Employment procured by misrepresentation.]—If a certificated conveyancer induce a creditor of a bkpt. to employ him in investigating bkpt.'s affairs by representing himself to be an attorney & solr., he is not entitled to recover anything for his trouble; & even if he paid fees to counsel in the course of the investigation, he cannot recover them of his employer as money paid, laid out, & expended.—GRAMMOND v. CROUCH (1828), 3 C. & P. 77, N. P.

482. Conveyancing counsel of court—Position of.]—The conveyancing counsel of the ct. must be treated as the agent of the vendor as between the vendor & the purchaser, & though in a sense an officer of the ct., is still counsel for the vendor, who is responsible for any misrepresentations in the conditions of sale settled by such counsel.—*Re BANISTER, BROAD v. ## Part I.—The Presumption of Legitimacy.

SECT. 1.—THE NATURE OF THE PRESUMPTION.

Annotations:—Refd. Jones v. Davies (1900), 70 L. J. Q. B. 38; Lloyd v. Powell Duffryn Steam Coal Co., [1914] A. C. 733, H. L. Mentd. The Poulett Peerage, [1903] A. C. 395, H. L.

2. — May be rebutted by evidence.]—The presumption of legitimacy arising from the birth of a child during wedlock, the husband & wife not being proved to be impotent & having opportunities of access to each other during the period in which a child could be begotten & born in the course of nature, may be rebutted by circumstances inducing a contrary presumption.—BANBURY PEERAGE CASE (1811), 1 Sm. & St. 153; 57 E. R. 62.

Annotations:—Consd. Morris v. Davies (1837), 5 Cl. & Fin. 163, H. L. Refd. Legge v. Edmonds (1855), 25 L. J. Ch. 125; Plowes v. Bossey (1862), 2 Drew. & Sm. 145; Atchley v. Sprigg (1864), 33 L. J. Ch. 345; Hawes v. Dracgor (1883), 23 Ch. D. 173; Bosvile v. A.-G. (1887), 57 L. T. 88. Mentd. Berkeley Peerage Case (1811), 4 Camp. 401, H. L.; Head v. Head (1823), 1 Sim. & St. 150; R. v. All Saints, Southampton (1828), 7 B. & C. 785; Davies v. Morgan (1831), 1 Cr. & J. 587; Stockdale v. Hansard (1839), 9 Ad. & El. 1; R. v. Millis (1844), 8 Jur. 717; De Bode's Case (1845), 8 Q. B. 208; Boileau v. Rudlin (1848), 12 Jur. 899; Van der Donckt v. Thellusson (1849), 8 C. B. 812; Sinclair v. Sinclair (1853), 2 W. R. 69; Gee v. Ward (1857), 7 E. & B. 509; Gurney v. Gurney (1863), 1 Hem. & M. 413; Re Yearwood's Trusts (1877), 5 Ch. D. 545; Re Porton, Pearson v. A.-G. (1885), 53 L. T. 707; Re Westhead's Settltmt. Trusts (1885), 1 T. L. R. 651, C. A.; Burnaby v. Baillie (1889), 42 Ch. D. 282; Lyell v. Kennedy, Kennedy v. Lyell (1889), 14 App. Cas. 437, H. L.; Gordon v. Gordon, [1903] P. 141.

4. — — —.]—The presumption in favour of the legitimacy of a child born in wedlock within the usual period of gestation is a presumption which may be rebutted by appropriate evidence.—THE POULETT PEERAGE, [1903] A. C. 395; 72 L. J. K. B. 924; 19 T. L. R. 644, H. L.

5. — — — Burden of proof.]—When a married woman has a child, the presumption is in favour of its legitimacy. Formerly the presumption was that if the husband continued within the four seas & was alive at the child's birth, such child could not be a bastard. But now the law allows inquiry; those who dispute the fact of the child's legitimacy are bound to make out the contrary.—WRIGHT v. HOLDGATE (1850), 3 Car. & Kir. 158.

6. — — —.]—The presumption is that a husband admits by his marriage that a child born subsequently to the marriage is his, if he takes no steps to repudiate it but adopts towards it exactly the same course as if it were his own child. Assuming a valid marriage the child is legitimate, & the burden of proving the contrary lies on those who dispute the legitimacy.—ANON. v. ANON. (1856), 23 Beav. 273; 53 E. R. 107.

Annotation:—Mentd. Poulett Peerage Claim (1903), 72 L. J. K. B. 924, H. L.

See, now, Nos. 75, 76, post.

See, also, Nos. 7—10, post.

PART I. SECT. 1.

1 i. Presumption of fact.]—There is no presumption of legitimacy where the party merely sets forth circumstances said to infer the marriage of his alleged parents.—SWINTON v. SWINTON (1862), 24 Durl. (Ct. of Sess.) 933.—SCOT.

SECT. 2.—WHEN THE PRESUMPTION ARISES.

7. Marriage during pregnancy — Presumption arises.]—The marriage of the parties is the criterion adopted by the law, in cases of antenuptial generation, for ascertaining the actual parentage of the child. For this purpose it will not examine when gestation began, looking only to the recognition of it by the husband in the subsequent act of marriage.

T. married E. in June, 1848, & E. had a child in Dec. of the same year. T. did not cohabit with his wife after Aug., 1848, but he allowed £20 a year for the support of the child up to the time of his death in 1867:—Held: the child was the legitimate son of T.—TURNOCK v. TURNOCK (1867), 36 L. J. P. & M. 85; 16 L. T. 611.

8. ———.]—On the birth of a child shortly after marriage the presumption of legitimacy clearly exists until rebutted by satisfactory evidence to the contrary.—Re PARSONS' TRUST (1868), 18 L. T. 704.

9. ———.]—After open courtship & constant intercourse, a man & woman (she being ultimately in an advanced state of pregnancy) hurried on their marriage to prevent, or to mitigate, scandal, & in less than seven weeks after marriage she gave birth to a child:—Held: the presumption of the husband's paternity to that child was next to insuperable, & the onus of establishing the husband's denial of paternity lay on himself.—GARDNER v. GARDNER (1877), 2 App. Cas. 723, H. L.

Annotations:—Consd. Lloyd v. Powell Duffryn Steam Coal Co., [1914] A. C. 733, H. L. Reid. Jones v. Davies (1900), 70 L. J. Q. B. 38, D. C.; Re Poulett Peerage, [1903] A. C. 395, H. L.

10. ———.]—If a man, with full knowledge of the pregnancy of a woman with whom he has had sexual intercourse, becomes, during her pregnancy, engaged to be married to her, the fact of that contract having been entered into, though not carried out, is a most powerful piece of evidence on the issue of fact of the paternity of the child, because by the marriage a relation would be created from which the presumption of the legitimacy of the child would arise (LORD ATKINSON).—LLOYD v. POWELL DUFFRYN STEAM COAL CO., LTD., [1914] A. C. 733; 83 L. J. K. B. 1054; 111 L. T. 338; 7 B. W. C. C. 330, H. L.

11. Possibility of access—Husband within four seas.]—A child born of a married woman, whose husband is within the four seas, is always to be presumed to be legitimate, unless there is evidence of a satisfactory character that sexual intercourse did not take place between them at any time when, in the course of nature, the husband might have been the father of the child.—HEAD v. HEAD (1823), Turn. & R. 138; 1 Sim. & St. 150; 37 E. R. 1049, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Morris v. Davies (1828), 3 C. & P. 427; Plowes v. Bossey (1862), 2 Drew. & Sm. 145. Reid. Bury v. Philpott (1833), 3 L. J. Ch. 119; Atchley v. Sprigg (1864), 10 Jur. N. S. 144; Bosville v. A.-G. (1887), 57 L. T. 88, D. C.; Gordon v. Gordon & Granville Gordon (1903), 72 L. J. P. 33.

See, also, Nos. 5, ante, 35, post.

12. ——— Presumption arises.]—Where husband & wife have been in such a situation that sexual intercourse may have taken place, the presumption of law is in favour of the issue, but this presumption may be rebutted.—MORRIS v. DAVIES (1837), 5 Cl. & Fin. 163; 1 Jur. 911; 7 E. R. 365, H. L.

Annotations:—Apld. Saye and Sele Barony (1848), 1 H. L. Cas. 507, H. L.; Piers v. Piers (1849), 2 H. L. Cas. 331, H. L. Consd. Legge v. Edmonds (1855), 25 L. J. Ch. 125; *Gurney v. ## PART I. SECT. 2.

a. Birth before marriage.]—In a question as to the paternity of a child born before the marriage of the alleged father with the mother, there is no presumption that he is the father; but the fact of paternity must be proved.—INNES v. INNES (1837), 2 Sh. & Macl. 417.—SCOT.

7 i. Marriage during pregnancy—Presumption arises.]—A. had intercourse with B. up to June, 1860. B. married C. in Oct., 1860, & a child was born on Feb. 11, 1861:—Held: the child having been born in lawful wedlock, B.'s evidence was inadmissible to prove it illegitimate.—RYAN v. MILLER (1861), 21 U. C. R. 202; affd. 22 U. C. R. 87.—CAN.

7 ii. ———.]—On the facts set out above:—Seemle: no evidence could be received to rebut the presumption of legitimacy the evidence being consistent with the fact of access by the husband before marriage.—RYAN v. MILLER (1862), 22 U. C. R. 87.—CAN.

7 iii. ———.]—A child was born three months after the marriage of female pursuer with male pursuer, & they stated that no sexual intercourse took place between them until after the marriage, & that the husband was not aware of his wife's pregnancy until the birth of the child. It was proved, however, that they had been seen on terms of great familiarity on two occasions about a year & a half & nine months respectively before the birth of the child:—Held: the intimacy of the pursuers, followed by marriage, raised a strong presumption in favour of the husband being the father of the child, & the testimony of the spouses was insufficient to overcome that presumption.—REID v. MILL (1879), 6 R. (Cl. of Sess.) 659; 14 Sc. L. R. 338.—SCOT.

7 iv. ———.]—The mother of a child born upon Jan. 5, 1890, alleged that it was the result of an act of connection upon Apr. 7, 1889. Defender admitted that he had once had connection with the pursuer in Feb. In Aug. the pursuer married a widower, to whom she had confided that she was pregnant. She & her husband both denied ever having been unduly intimate before their marriage:—Held: the presumption that the husband was the father of the child arising from his having married her in full knowledge of her pregnancy had not been rebutted.—KERRS v. LINDSAY (1890), 18 R. (Cl. of Sess.) 365; 28 Sc. L. R. 233.—SCOT.

12 i. Possibility of access—Presumption arises.]—When there is opportunity of cohabitation between husband & wife, the law presumes there has been intercourse between them.—DAY v. SPREAD, 1 Leg. Rep. 167.—IR.

12 ii. ———.]—Whenever it is sought to bastardise a child, if it only appear that the child may be the offspring of the mother's husband, or of another man, the law presumes in favour of legitimacy, & does not sanction a discriminating inquiry upon the subject.—DOE d. MARR v. MARR 1852, 3 C. P. 36.—CAN.

12 iii. ———.]—In or about the year 1860 a wife, in consequence of her husband's ill-treatment, left him & went to reside a considerable distance away. She did not return until about 1875, some six years after his death. During this period of absence a son was born to her:—Held: if her husband could be shown to have had access to her or to have gone to the part of the country in which she was residing so that he might have had access at about the appropriate time before the birth of the child, an almost irrebuttable presumption would arise that such child was legitimate.—NGANGELIZWE KAMA v. KAMA'S EXORS. & OTHERS (1903), 17 E. D. C. 39.—S. AF.

b. Child of Victorian woman & Chinaman.]—No presumption of legitimacy arises in the case of a child born in Victoria in 1876 to a white woman & a Chinaman, who had lived together as man & wife for several years.—POTTER v. MINAHAN (1908), 7 C. L. R. 277.—AUS.

d. Child introduced as son—Declarations of marriage.]—Deceased during his lifetime made conflicting declarations & statements as to the legitimacy of a son whom he had brought home with him from Java after the mother's death. He treated him with affection & introduced him as his son, whilst he treated two illegitimate children with a marked difference, & the son was for some time treated as legitimate by members of deceased's family in his house. Deceased was of profligate habits & had frequently declared he never was married. There being less motive for deception in the declarations of marriage than in those against it & deceased's actions being in its favour, the ct. decreed for legitimacy.—COMPTON v. COMPTON (1832), Milw. 424.—IR.

Sect. 2.—When the presumption arises. Sect. 3.]

strong is the legal presumption of legitimacy that, in the case of a white woman having a mulatto child, although the husband is also white, & the supposed paramour black, the child is to be presumed legitimate, if there was any opportunity for intercourse (LORD CAMPBELL).—PIERS v. PIERS (1849), 13 Jur. 569, H. L.

15. ——— ———.]—A., the wife of R., lived in London with B. as B.'s mistress & gave birth to a child, who was considered by all parties to be the child of B. R. also lived in London & met A. from time to time, but none of these interviews was alleged to have occurred within a considerable period of the birth of the child:—Held: access would be presumed & the child was legitimate, for, if access could by any possibility have taken place, nothing would prevent the child from being considered the son of the husband.—SMYTH v. CHAMBERLAYNE (1792), Nicholas, Adult. Bast. 147.

16. ——— ———.]—Access is such access as affords an opportunity of sexual intercourse, & where there is evidence of such access between a husband & wife, within a period capable of raising the legal presumption as to the legitimacy of an after-born child, the ct. will not direct an issue upon evidence showing the continued adulterous intercourse of the wife with another man, & the improbability of the husband being the father, but will declare the legitimacy of the child.—BURY v. PHILLPOT (1834), 2 My. & K. 349; 3 L. J. Ch. 119; 39 E. R. 977.

Sexual intercourse between man & wife must be presumed, & nothing except evidence that the husband did not have such intercourse at the period of conception can bastardise a child born in wedlock.—GORDON v. PART I. SECT. 3.

24 i. Conclusive evidence required.]—When it is proved that two persons have lived together for many years as husband & wife, & their child has always been recognised as legitimate, the presumption of law is that they were lawfully married. The presumption can be repelled only by conclusive evidence & is not displaced merely because the direct evidence of marriage which took place many years ago is not satisfactory.—BEPIN BEHARY DAS BAIRAGI v. The presumption as to non-access applies from the date of the order as in the case of a judicial separation, & any child of the wife born more than nine months after the parties have separated will, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be presumed to be illegitimate.—HETHERINGTON v. HETHERINGTON (1887), 12 P. D. 112; 56 L. J. P. 78; 57 L. T. 533; 51 J. P. 294; 36 W. R. 12.

25. —.—The evidence required to rebut the presumption in favour of the legitimacy of a child born in wedlock must be clear & conclusive & not resting merely on a balance of probabilities.—BOSVILE v. A.-G. (1887), 12 P. D. 177; 56 L. J. P. 97; 57 L. T. 88; 36 W. R. 79; 3 T. L. R. 429, 726, D. C.

26. — Relevant circumstances.—A child born of a married woman is, in the first instance, presumed to be legitimate. The presumption thus established by law is not to be rebutted by circumstances which only create doubt & suspicion, but it may be wholly removed by showing that the husband was (1) incompetent, (2) entirely absent, so as to have no intercourse or communication of any kind with the mother, (3) entirely absent at the period during which the child must, in the course of nature, have been begotten, (4) only present in such circumstances as afford clear & satisfactory proof that there was no sexual intercourse. Such evidence as this puts an end to the question & establishes the illegitimacy of the child of a married woman. It is, however, very difficult to conclude against the legitimacy in cases where there is no disability & where some society or communication is continued between husband & wife during the time in question so as to have afforded opportunities of sexual intercourse, & in cases where such opportunities have occurred, & in which any one of two or more men may have been the father, whatever probabilities may exist, no evidence can be admitted to show that any man, other than the husband, may have been, or probably was, the father of the wife's child. Throughout the investigation the presumption in favour of the legitimacy is to have its weight & influence, & the evidence against it ought to be strong, distinct, satisfactory, & conclusive.—HARGRAVE v. HARGRAVE (1846), 9 Beav. 552; 8 L. T. O. S. 133; 10 Jur. 957; 50 E. R. 457.

HINTON & STARKY* (1617), Roll. Abr. 358, pl. 8.

cording to the opinions of the medical witnesses, evidence of the adultery of the wife is still an important ingredient in determining the legitimacy of the child, because if the wife were of irreproachable character, it would go far to modify the opinion as to the husband's incapacity.—*LEGGE v. Non-access — Evidence allowed — Although husband within four seas.—Pltf.'s father & mother were married, & cohabited for some months; they then parted, she staying in London, & he going into Staffordshire, & at the end of three years pltf. was born. There being some doubt upon the evidence, whether the husband had not been in London within the last year, an issue was sent to be tried whether pltf. was the heir-at-law. Pltf. rested at first upon the presumption of law in favour of legitimacy, which was encountered by strong evidence of no access :—Held : the old doctrine of being within the four seas was not to take place, but the jury were at liberty to consider the point of access, which they did, & found against pltf.—*PENDRELL v. 35. — At material time.]—The presumption of the legitimacy of a child born in lawful wedlock, the husband not being separated from his wife by a sentence of divorce, can only be legally resisted by evidence of such facts or circumstances as are sufficient to prove, to the satisfaction of those who are to decide the question, that no sexual intercourse did take place between husband & wife at any time when, by such intercourse, the husband could, by the laws of nature, be the father of such child. Where the legitimacy of a child, in such a case, is disputed, on the ground that the husband was not the father of such child, the question to be left to the jury is, whether the husband was the father of such child, & the evidence to prove that he was not the father must be of such facts & circumstances as are sufficient to prove, to the satisfaction of a jury, that no sexual intercourse took place between husband & wife at any time when, by such intercourse, the husband could, by the laws of nature, be the father of such child.—BANBURY PEERAGE CASE (1811), 1 Sim. & St. 153; 57 E. with her since that date. She gave birth to a child on Oct. 22, 1916, three hundred & seven days afterwards. There was no evidence of the wife's adultery:—Held: on the particular facts of the case the wife had not committed adultery.—BOWDEN v. BOWDEN (1917), 62 Sol. Jo. 105.

44. 45. ——— Detention as lunatic not sufficient.]—The child of a married woman must be presumed to be the child of the husband, unless it is proved beyond all reasonable or serious doubt that no sexual intercourse could have taken place at the time within which the husband could be the father. The onus probandi lies entirely on the part of those who wish to show the illegitimacy.

Where the husband was confined in a lunatic asylum, not on account of general imbecility, but on account of certain delusions, the wife being resident twenty-five miles off, & there being a special interdiction on their being left alone when she visited him, yet, as there was evidence that there was a possibility of intercourse:—Held: a child born of the wife was legitimate.—*FLOWES v. years before the birth of the child in question, though in the same town; she led a disreputable & profligate life, & he always avoided her, & she had been seen as a prostitute in company with several men, & the child was born in a gaol:—Held: the legal presumption that the husband was the father of the child was rebutted by the above evidence.—*SIBBET v. 48. ———.]—A husband & wife lived together without having a child for nine years & then separated. Conduct of wife—Adoption of child by paramour—Concealment of birth from husband.]—The presumption of law in favour of the legitimacy of a child begotten & born of the wife during separation, may be rebutted not only by evidence to show that the husband had not sexual intercourse with her, but also evidence of their conduct, as that the wife was living in adultery, that she concealed the birth of the child from the husband, & declared to him that she never had such child, that the husband disclaimed all knowledge of the child, & acted up to his death as if no such child was in existence, & also, that the wife's paramour aided in concealing the child, reared & educated it as his own, & left it all his property by his will.—*MORRIS v. 46 iv. ——— Wife living in adultery.]—A. & B. did not live together as man & wife after Mar., 1895. A. resided near the town of E. in Scotland until Apr. 13, 1898, when he left for India, & did not return till Nov., 1900. In 1896 B. came to live in the town of E., & was living there when A. left in Apr., 1898. In Dec., 1898, B. gave birth to a girl, in Ireland, & registered A. as the father of the girl, but she did not inform him of the birth of the child. In 1900 A. obtained a divorce from B. on the ground of her adultery. Semble: the evidence did not rebut the presumption of paternity.—YOOL v. EWING, [1904] 1 L. R. 434.—IR.

49 i. Conduct of wife—Concealment of birth from husband.]—A child conceived during marriage is legitimate & is held to be the child of the husband, except when, the wife being guilty of adultery, the birth of the child was concealed from the husband & cohabitation was morally

44 i. Possibility of access — Circumstances disproving access.]—Three weeks after their marriage a husband & wife separated, though they continued to live in the same town. Five years after the separation the wife bore a child. The husband died nineteen years later. The husband had repudiated paternity, & his wife, though in very poor circumstances, had taken no steps to compel him to support it; & she had submitted to a charge made against her by the kirk-session of her church of having given birth to an illegitimate child:—Held: the inference to be drawn was strong enough to displace the presumption in favour of legitimacy, even though there was some vague evidence of the spouses having met on several occasions during the two years preceding the child's birth.—COLQUHOUN v. COLQUHOUN (1891), 28 Sc. L. R. 689.—SCOT.

46 i. ——— Separation.]—In an action of filiation & aliment at the instance of a married woman:—Held: the presumption, "pater est quem nuptiæ demonstrat" had been redargued by evidence that de facto there had not been connection between pursuer & her husband, although, at the time of the conception of the child they were living within fourteen miles of one another.—PATERSON OR BRODIE v. DYCE (1872), 11 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 142; 45 Sc. Jur. 92.—SCOT.

46 iii. ———.]—A. was separated from her husband B. in 1848. Two children were born in Ireland in 1851 & 1852. A. was living in Ireland from 1850 to 1852, & B. in Scotland. A. never informed B. of the birth of the children & made no claim for aliment until 1873. There was nothing inconsistent with the possibility that A. & B. had met about the time of conception & nothing to suggest that they had met:—Held: the above presumption had been overcome.

50. — Separation from husband.]—Husband & wife separated by mutual consent, & the wife resided in Calcutta, & the husband at Dacca, about one hundred & forty miles distant. Several years after the separation the wife gave birth to a child, who never took the husband's name, but was baptised under the name of his reputed father, by whom he was acknowledged & brought up. There was evidence that the husband had not been to Calcutta for some years previous to the birth of the child:—Held: the child was illegitimate.—SINCLAIR v. SINCLAIR (1853), 2 W. R. 69.

51. — — — — —.]—In July, 1867, Mr. & Mrs. W. were married. They had two children, one born in 1868, one in 1870. In 1878 Mrs. W. left her home & until the death of W. in Oct., 1882, lived with G. In July, 1876, Mrs. W. gave birth to a child, who was registered on the information of G. as Mabel G., the daughter of himself & Lucy G., formerly H. The child was never seen by W. & was maintained & educated by Mrs. W. & G. The evidence showed that Mr. & Mrs. W. had met on only two occasions after 1870 & these meetings were relied on as showing the possibility of access:—Held: on the evidence the presumption of legitimacy was rebutted & the child must be declared illegitimate.—Re WESTHEAD'S SETTLEMENT TRUSTS (1885), 1 T. L. R. 651, C. A.

See, also, No. 34, ante.

52. Child taking name of paramour—Desertion by husband.]—The child of a married woman may be proved a bastard by other evidence than that of the husband's non-access, as for instance where the child had taken from its birth the name of the person with whom the mother, the husband having deserted her, was living at the time, & that name had been retained by the child & his descendants.—*GOODRIGHT d. 53. — Baptism as child of paramour—Family reputation.]—Although the illegitimacy of a child which must have been begotten after a separation between husband & wife is not sufficiently proved by the mere fact that the wife has been living in adulterous intercourse with another man, when this fact is supplemented by corroborative evidence of family reputation that the child was the offspring of the adulterous union, & the social position of the parties is such as to render access on the part of the husband extremely improbable, although there is no precise evidence that the husband lived at a distance, the presumption of legitimacy is sufficiently rebutted.

A husband & wife had separated, & the wife went to live with another man, who was in a respectable position in life. A child was born during the lifetime of the husband, & the only evidence as to his place of residence at the time was that he died a year or two later at a place not far from the wife's residence. The child was baptised as the child of the wife & the man with whom she was then living, & there was strong evidence of reputation in the family that the child was the child of the adulterous connection:—Held: this evidence was sufficient to rebut the presumption of legitimacy.—HAWES v. DRAEGER (1883), 23 Ch. D. 173; 52 L. J. Ch. 449; 48 L. T. 518; 31 W. R. 576.

troduced by the adulterer to his mother as his child, was baptised by his name, lived with him in the same house, on majority succeeded to his estate, & represented himself to be the adulterer's son, the circumstances lead to the irresistible conclusion that the child was illegitimate.—*FITZGERALD v. 91. Evidence as to legitimacy—Declaration in matter of pedigree—Entry by deceased father in Bible or elsewhere.]—In an action in which it was necessary for N. to prove that he was the legitimate son of T., T. being at that time dead, N., after proving by other evidence that T. was his reputed father, offered to give in evidence an entry in a Bible, in which T. had made an entry in his own handwriting that N. was his eldest son, born in lawful wedlock from J., the wife of T., on May 1, 1778, & signed by T. himself. It was proved that T. had declared "that he had made such entry for the express purpose of establishing the legitimacy, & at the time of the birth, of his eldest son N., in case same should be called in question, in any case or in any cause whatsoever, by any person, after his death":—Held: such entry in the Bible (or in any other book, or on any other piece of paper) could be received to prove that N. was the legitimate son of T., as evidence of the declaration of T. in matter of pedigree (but with strong circumstances of suspicion on account of its particularity).—BERKELEY PEERAGE CASE (1811), 4 Camp. 401, H. 92. — — — By deceased member of family—By father.]—On an appeal against a removal order of a woman to S., on the ground that her father was settled in S., & she had no other settlement than his, evidence was tendered of a statement of the deceased father that he never was married, & that the settlement failed:—Held: the statement was admissible, it being a case of pedigree about the father's family, & the father was a member of his own family.—R. v. ST. MARYLEBONE (INHABITANTS) (1863), 27 J. P. 423.

93. — — — Relationship proved independently.]—The rule as to receiving the declarations of deceased persons in questions of pedigree is that such declarations are admissible, if emanating from a deceased member of the family whose pedigree is in question, before any controversy has arisen touching the matter to which the declarations relate, & if the relationship of the declarant to the family be proved independently of the declaration itself.

Where the question was, whether deft. was the lawful sister of a testatrix whose will was in question:—Held: a statement in a deed made by testatrix, describing deft. as her sister, was evidence of the fact, & (in the absence of anything to the contrary) it would be presumed that the word "sister" meant "legitimate sister."—*SMITH v. ## Part II.—Mode of Determining Question of Legitimacy.

SECT. 1.—BY ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

98. Private Act—Title of honour—Application by heir presumptive—Children bastardised.]—The wife of a peer of the realm left him in 1808, a year after their marriage, & instituted a suit in the Ecclesiastical Ct. for nullity of the marriage propter impotentiam. Dropping that suit soon afterwards, she went to live with another man, assuming the character of his wife by a marriage in Scotland, & during many years' cohabitation with him had several children, who were named after him & educated as his children; but in 1823 they & their mother assumed the name & titles of the peer. He generally lived abroad, had no access to his wife since she left him, but knew of her infidelity, & took no proceedings to dissolve their marriage or illegitimate the children. Upon the petition of his brother, heir presumptive to his titles, stating those facts, & alleging that the peer was likely to survive all the witnesses to them, & praying protection to the descent of the titles:—Held: petitioner, although by law he might perpetuate evidence, regarding titles of honour, in Ch., was entitled to have a private Act of Parliament, & an Act was passed to declare the wife's children not to be the children of the peer, but without dissolving the marriage.—THE TOWNSHEND PEERAGE (1843), 10 Cl. & Fin. 289; 8 E. R. 752, H. L.

Annotation:—Mentd. Gurney v. Gurney (1863), 1 Hem. & M. 413.

99. ——— Divorce—Clause bastardising child not inserted.]—A paragraph in a divorce bill contained allegations tending to bastardise a child, to whom the wife had given birth during the marriage. There had been access by the husband to the wife at the natural period of the conception of the child:—Held: the paragraph must be struck out of the bill, since by its inclusion the House of Lords would in effect be asked to decide the question of legitimacy of the child in his absence.—HEWAT'S DIVORCE BILL (1887), 12 App. Cas. 312, H. L.

SECT. 2.—BY LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—UNDER LEGITIMACY DECLARATION ACT, 1858 (c. 93).

100. Scope of Act—Only legitimacy of petitioner.]—The Act was passed for the purpose of enabling persons to obtain from the Ct. of Probate declarations of their own legitimacy, & the ct. refused to allow a suit to be instituted on behalf of an infant, the real object being to establish, not the legitimacy, but the illegitimacy of such infant.—Re CHAPLIN'S PETITION (1867), 36 L. J. P. & M. 90; 16 L. T. 612; 15 W. R. 1048.

Annotations:—Refd. Mordaunt v. Mordaunt (1870), L. R. 2 P. & D. 109; Evans v. Evans & Blyth, [1904] P. 274.

101. ———.]—In proceedings under the Act it is not competent for the ct. to determine the question of the legitimacy or illegitimacy of any person other than that of the party putting it in motion.—MANSEL v. A.-G. (1879), 4 P. D. 232; 48 L. J. P. 42; 40 L. T. 367.

102. ———.]—The Probate Div. has no power under the Act to make a decree establishing the legitimacy of petitioner's grandfather.—DODDS v. A.-G. (1880), 42 L. T. 402.

103. ——— Not claim to title.]—The Act gives the ct. no jurisdiction to investigate or decide upon a claim to a title of honour, & allegations in a petition to the effect that by reason of the facts set out therein petitioner was entitled to a baronetcy, were ordered to be struck out as irrelevant.—FREDERICK v. A.-G. (1874), L. R. 3 P. & D. 196; 43 L. J. P. & M. 32; 30 L. T. 767; 22 W. R. 416; subsequent proceedings, L. R. 3 P. & D. 270.

Annotation:—Refd. Mansel v. A.-G. (1879), 48 L. J. P. 42.

104. ——— Not title to property.]—Where a petitioner under the Act lays claim to real estate in England, the validity of his title cannot be made an issue in the suit. An allegation in the petition, that petitioner claimed to be entitled to real estate as heir-at-law, was ordered to be amended by striking out the words "as heir-at-law."—MANSEL v. A.-G. (1879), 4 P. D. 232; 48 L. J. P. 42; 40 L. T. 367.

105. Petitioner—English domicile—Property in England.]—A petition was filed by a minor of the age of eight years, by his guardian, under the Act, for a declaration of his legitimacy. The marriage of his parents took place in 1864. In 1856 his mother went through a ceremony of marriage with H., who was previously married, & whose wife was then living. The petition contained a prayer that this marriage of 1856 might be declared null & void, in which event the legitimacy of petitioner would follow as a matter of course. It was admitted that the petition could not be sustained under the Act, the domicile of petitioner being Australian & not English & there being no property in England which could be affected by the decree. The ct. declined to treat the proceedings as if instituted for a declaration of the nullity of the marriage of 1856, & dismissed the petition.—JOHNSTONE v. A.-G. & HAWKINS (1873), 43 L. J. P. & M. 3; 29 L. T. 547; 22 W. R. 208.

106. ——— Infant—Appointment of guardian.]—A petition, under the Act, presented on behalf of an infant to establish his legitimacy, can only be so by a guardian assigned to him by the ct.—Re UPTON'S PETITION (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 404.

107. ——— Benefit of infant.]—The ct. will not appoint a guardian to an infant for the purpose of presenting a petition on his behalf for a declaration of legitimacy, until the matter has been referred to the registrar, to ascertain whether the institution of the suit is likely to be of benefit to the infant.—Re CHAPLIN'S PETITION (1867), L. R. 1 P. & D. 328; 36 L. J. P. & M. 49; 16 L. T. 154.

108. Form of petition—Claim to real estate.]—A petition under the Act, where petitioner alleges a claim to real estate in England, should state the nature of the claim.—MANSEL v. A.-G. (1879), 4 P. D. 232; 48 L. J. P. 42; 40 L. T. 367.

109. ——— Amendment.]—The amendment of a petition under the Act is a matter of pleading, & the ct. has power at any time so to mould it as to bring to an issue the matters which are clearly & substantially at issue between the parties.—MAN-

PART II. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.

100 i. Scope of Act—Parentage of petitioner.]—A case comes within Legitimacy Declaration Act, 1868, although the rumour circulated be, not that petitioner is illegitimate, but that he is not the child of his reputed parents.—A. B. v. A.-G. (1869), 3 L. L. T. Jo. 568.—IR.

108 i. Form of petition.]—The proper title for petition is, "In the matter of A. B. v. A.-G. & others, & in the matter of Legitimacy Declaration Act, 1868."—A. B. v. A.-G. (1869), 3 L. L. T. Jo. 314.—IR.

110. Citation of parties—Procedure—Persons to be cited.]—A party applying to the ct. under the Act when he has filed his petition should ask permission to cite particular individuals to see proceedings, & should show sufficient reason why they should be selected.—Re SHEDDEN & SHEDDEN (1859), 5 Jur. N. S. 151; 7 W. R. 463.

111. ———.]—In proceedings under the Act, the ct. will not take upon itself to decide who shall be cited to attend proceedings. Petitioner should ask leave to cite some person specified & show that he is a person fit to be cited. A person who has no interest in opposing a petition will not be cited.—UPTON v. A.-G. (1863), 32 L. J. P. M. & A. 177.

112. ———.]—A., petitioning under the Act, for a decree of the ct. declaring the validity of the marriage of his parents & his own legitimacy, alleged in his petition a claim to real estate as heir-at-law of his father, the validity of whose marriage he sought to have declared, & claimed to have B., his elder brother, who was born before the date of the alleged marriage, cited to see proceedings, on the ground that B. claimed to be heir-at-law of his father, & if so was entitled, as such heir-at-law, to certain real estate in England in remainder under the will of his father in prejudice to the claim of petitioner. The ct. refused to allow the brother to be cited, on the ground that he had no interest in disputing the validity of the marriage in question nor the legitimacy of petitioner, & because the object of petitioner appeared to be not to establish his own legitimacy but the illegitimacy of his brother.—MANSEL v. A.-G. (1879), 4 P. D. 232; 48 L. J. P. 42; 40 L. T. 367.

113. ———.]—Greek Marriages Act, 1884 (c. 20).]—The practice in petitions under the Act of 1858 & Greek Marriages Act, 1884, is, that, after citing the A.-G., the parties, on applying to have the case set down for trial, must lay the state of the case, by affidavit or otherwise, before the registrar, who will direct whether any, & if so which other parties shall be cited to see proceedings. The registrar's direction will be subject to an appeal to the judge in the same manner as all other orders of the registrar.—BRINKLEY v. A.-G., SCARAMANGA v. A.-G. (1889), 14 P. D. 83; 58 L. J. P. 53; 60 L. T. 935; 53 J. P. 425; 37 W. R. 687.

114. Parties cited—Plea of res judicata not available for.]—Other parties, who are interested in the result of the suit, & who, with the permission of the ct., are cited under s. 6 of the Act to see proceedings, cannot stop the suit by a plea of res judicata, as between themselves & petitioner.—SHEDDEN & SHEDDEN v. A.-G. & PATRICK & PATRICK (1860), 2 Sw. & Tr. 170; 30 L. J. P. M. & A. 217; 3 L. T. 592; 6 Jur. N. S. 1163; 9 W. R. 285; affd. sub nom. SHEDDEN v. PATRICK & A.-G. (1869), L. 115. Mode of trial—Jury.]—The ct. cannot make order for the trial by a jury of a petition presented under the Act, unless there is some issue for the jury.—RYVES v. A.-G. (1865), L. R. 1 P. & D. 23; 35 L. J. P. & M. 6; 13 L. T. 305; 11 Jur. N. S. 878; 14 W. R. 17; affd. (1868), 37 L. J. P. & M. 75, H. L.

119 i. Costs—Crown.]—The ct. has no jurisdiction to give costs against the Crown in legitimacy cases.—GOOD v JOYNT (1874), 8 I. L. T. 415.—IR.

When issues of fact are raised between the parties to a suit for a declaration of legitimacy, & either party wishes them to be tried by a jury, the ct. will grant a jury, unless complicated questions are involved which a jury cannot properly try.—Re BOUVERIE'S PETITION (1862), 2 Sw. & Tr. 548; 6 L. T. 692; 10 W. R. 811; sub nom. BOUVERIE v. A.-G., 31 L. J. P. M. & A. 79.

Annotation:—Consd. Sackville-West v. A.-G. (1909), 26 T. L. R. 33.

117. ———.]—The judge has absolute discretion as to the mode of trial of the issues arising on a petition for a declaration of legitimacy under the Act, & in exercising such discretion, the judge will have regard to the balance of convenience.

Where the issues for trial involved, besides possible questions of character affecting one of the parties, the reading of a mass of evidence, taken on various commissions, the minute & careful examination of numerous documents, & probably questions of admissibility of evidence, which might prejudice the minds of a jury:—Held: the difficulty of deciding fairly any question of character or credit that might arise could not outweigh the inconvenience, delay, & possible miscarriage of justice which the trial of such complicated matters before a jury was likely to involve, & an application by petitioner for trial by jury should be refused.—SACKVILLE-WEST v. A.-G., [1910] P. 143; 79 L. J. P. 34; 26 T. L. R. 33.

118. Costs—Security—Petitioner out of jurisdiction.]—A petitioner under the Act, who is resident out of the jurisdiction of the ct., cannot be compelled to give security for costs.—SHEDDEN v. A.-G. (1867), 36 L. J. P. & M. 132; 16 L. T. 746; 15 W. R. 1093.

119. ———.]—Crown—Person cited.]—In proceedings on a petition under the Act the ct. has jurisdiction to order a person, who has been cited & who has intervened & opposed the petition, to pay petitioner's costs.

The Crown is not liable for costs upon a petition under the Act, nor entitled to receive them, & no costs can be awarded to or against the A.-G.—BAIN v. A.-G., [1892] P. 261; 61 L. J. P. 135; 67 L. T. 447, C. A.

Divorce—Variation of settlement—Legitimacy in question—Petition under Legitimacy Declaration Act, 1858 (c. 93).]—Upon a motion for variation of a marriage settlement, consequent on a divorce, where the paternity of the only child born in wedlock was in dispute, the ct., in lieu of dealing with the question of legitimacy on the motion, directed a petition for declaration of legitimacy to be presented by the official solr. on behalf of the child.—*DOUGLAS v. ## Part III.—Legitimation by Subsequent Marriage.

SECT. 1.—CONDITIONS OF LEGITIMATION.

131. Domicil of father in country allowing legitimation.]—By international law, as recognised in England, those children are legitimate whose legitimacy is fixed by the law of the father's domicil.—Re ANDROS, ANDROS v. ANDROS (1883), 24 Ch. D. 637; 52 L. J. Ch. 793; 49 L. T. 163; 32 W. R. 30.

132. ——— At birth of child.]—The status of the child, with respect to its capacity to be legitimated by the subsequent marriage of its parents, depends wholly on the status of the putative father, not on that of the mother. According to English law, where at the time of a bastard's birth the father has his domicil in England, no subsequent change of domicil can render practicable the bastard's legitimation (LORD HATHERLEY, C.).—*UDNY v. 134. ———.]—The legitimacy of a child is determined by the law of the country where its parents are domiciled at the time of the conception & birth of the child, & not by the law of the country where the child is born; & a child who is born illegitimate cannot afterwards be made legitimate by the parents domiciling themselves & intermarrying in a country where, if they had been domiciled there at the time of the birth, such child would have been legitimate.

A domiciled Englishman became the father of a child by a French woman, & afterwards, having gained a domicil in France, where the subsequent marriage of the parents, with acknowledgment of their children born previously to the marriage, renders those children legitimate, married the mother & acknowledged the child:—Held: the child was not legitimate.—Re WRIGHT'S TRUST (1856), 2 K. & J. 595; 25 L. 135. ———.]—The question of a person's legitimacy is a question of status to be determined by the law of the country where his parents are at his birth domiciled, & the English law, except as to succession to real estate in England, recognises & acts on the status as declared by the law of the domicil.

P. was born in Holland before wedlock but legitimated, according to the law of that country, by the subsequent marriage of her parents, who were at the time of the birth domiciled in Holland:—Held: P. was entitled to share as one of the next-of-kin in the personal estate of an intestate who had died domiciled in England.—Re GOODMAN'S TRUSTS (1881), 17 Ch. 136. ——— & at marriage—Switzerland.]—A child born before the marriage of its father & mother cannot be legitimated by their subsequent marriage unless the father was domiciled in a country whose laws allow such legitimation both at the time of the marriage which gave the child the status of legitimacy, & at the time of the birth on which it took from its putative father the potentiality of being legitimated.

In 1734 T., whose domicile of origin was Swiss, came to England, where he carried on business & remained till his death in 1779. Soon after coming to England he lived with P. as his wife, & had by her a daughter S., born in 1744, & two other children born in 1745 & 1747. In 1749 T. married W. & had by her one child. W. died in 1752, & in 1755 T. married P. & had by her four more children. By the Swiss law, illegitimate children were legitimated by the subsequent marriage of their putative father & their mother notwithstanding an intermediate marriage of their father with another woman, & the birth of a child by her:—Held: S. & the other children born before the marriage of T. to P. were illegitimate on the grounds: (1) (COTTON & LOPES, L.J.J.) the domicile of T. was English both at the date of the birth of S. in 1744, & of his subsequent marriage with P. in 1755; (2) (FRY, L.J.) the domicile of T. was English at the date of his marriage to P., but not at the date of the birth of S.—*Re GROVE, VAUCHER v. 138. — Though birth & marriage in England.—A Scotsman left Scotland & visited London in 1794. In the course of that year he became acquainted with an Englishwoman, & in 1795 he took lodgings for her in London, where, in 1796, a child was born. He then took a house on lease & furnished it, & continued to reside in that house with her till 1801, unmarried. In Sept. of that year he married her in an English church. In 1802 he returned to Scotland, taking with him his wife & child, & settled himself in his patrimonial mansion. During the whole period of his residence in London he had been accustomed to write letters to Scotland, declaring from time to time his immediate intention to return, & desiring things to be done which could only be necessary on that account:—Held: he had not lost his Scottish domicile, & his marriage was in all respects a Scottish marriage, & his child capable of succeeding as his lawful heir to entailed estates.—MUNRO v. 139. ——].*—The child of a Scotsman, though born in England, becomes legitimate for all civil purposes in Scotland, by the subsequent marriage of the parents in England, if the domicile of the father was & continued throughout to be Scottish. Neither the place of the marriage nor the place of the birth of the child will, in such circumstances, affect the status of the child.

In 1796 a Scotsman came to England, bringing with him a Scotswoman then in a state of pregnancy, & her child was born in England. The woman continued to reside with him & had other children by him. He took a house, for the purposes of the children's education, in Penrith in Cumberland, & when not in London attending his Parliamentary duties as member of Parliament for a Scottish county, frequently stayed at Penrith. In 1808 he executed a marriage contract, in which he was described as "of Logan" (Scotland), of the one part, & she was described as "M. R." (her maiden name), "residing at Penrith, Cumberland, South Britain, of the other part." No other ceremony of marriage took place, but he shortly afterwards carried her to Scotland & introduced her & the children as his wife & children:—Held: the children were entitled to succeed as heirs to Scottish estate.—*DALHOUSIE (COUNTESS) v. SECT. 2.—EFFECT OF LEGITIMATION.

143. Real estate—Descent—Lex loci.]—In deciding upon the title to real estate, the lex loci rei sitae must prevail; so that a person, legitimate by the law of his birthplace, & of the place where his parents were married, may not be regarded as legitimate to take real estate by inheritance elsewhere. A person legitimated by the marriage of his parents after his birth is legitimate to all intents & purposes in Scotland. But when he claims a real estate in England he is not held legitimate to that effect, because legitimacy by the English law requires the party to have been born in lawful marriage (LORD BROUGHAM).

After the death of testatrix, the daughter, while still an infant, upon her marriage, made with the sanction of the ct. under Infant Settlements Act, 1855 (c. 43), a settlement, by which, in exercise of the power of appointment given her by testatrix, she appointed the property to trustees, upon trust, after the death of the survivor of herself & her husband in default of children, for such persons as she should appoint, & in default of such appointment, if she should survive the husband, in trust for her absolutely, & if she should not survive him, in trust for such persons as, under Stats. of Distribution, would have become entitled thereto upon her death, had she died possessed thereof intestate & without having been married. The daughter died while still an infant, & intestate, without having exercised the general power of appointment reserved to her by the settlement, & the husband took out letters of administration to her estate. There were no children of the marriage:—Held: having regard to ss. 1 & 2 of the above Act, the appointment made by the illegitimate daughter by her marriage settlement, being absolute in terms, operated, on failure of the limitations of the settlement (because of the fact that the daughter, being illegitimate, could have no next of kin), to make the property her own absolutely, & her husband was entitled to it as her administrator & not the next of kin of her mother.—*Re SCOTT, SCOTT v. 180. ———— .]—Born after testator's death—Sufficient description.]—A bequest in favour of a woman's illegitimate child en ventre sa mère at the date of the will, though not born until after testator's death, is not contrary to public policy.

A testator, whose daughter M. had with his knowledge gone through the ceremony of marriage with C., her deceased sister's husband, & had had two children by him, made his will at a time when he knew she was again enceinte. He thereby gave leaseholds to trustees on trust for "my daughter M., the wife of C.," for her life, with remainder to "the child or children of my daughter M." as she should appoint, & in default for her child or children equally, & if none, then over. Testator died three months before the third child was born. M. appointed the two children born at the date of the will, the child of which she was then enceinte, & a fourth child begotten & born after the testator's death:—Held: the child en ventre sa mère at the date of the will took under the gift, but the child begotten & born after testator's death could not take.—CROOK v. At the date of the settlement F. & E. his wife had been married about five years. O. died under age. There was an after-born son, namely, P., who attained twenty-one :—Held : the use limited to the after-born son was void, & the subsequent gift to O., being to take effect only if the after-born son died under age, also failed, & property resulted to the heir of the grantor.—LOMAS v. 187. ——— Appointment.]—A married woman, having several legitimate children, & one illegitimate child, & being separated from her husband, & enceinte with a second illegitimate child, appointed a fund to her illegitimate child then born, reserving a power of revocation, as to a moiety, in favour of any "after-born child she might have born of her body." After the birth of the second illegitimate child she revoked the appointment of the moiety, & appointed the entire fund equally between the two illegitimate children :—Held : the "after-born child," for whose benefit the revocation might be made, must be taken, in the primary & legal sense, as applying to legitimate children only, & the second illegitimate child was not an object of the reserved power, & could not take under the latter appointment.

The objection to the validity of a limitation to unborn illegitimate children is not founded exclusively on the uncertainty of description ; nor, semble, is there any distinction between the validity of a limitation in favour of such persons, whether described as the children of a man, or the children of a woman.—DOVER v. 190. Consideration of kinship—Use not raised in favour of bastard.]—W. having issue two sons, the elder legitimate, the younger a bastard, covenanted to convey certain premises, of which he was seised in fee, to two persons in fee to the use of himself for life, & after his decease to the use of the elder son & the heirs male of his body, & for default of such issue to the use of the bastard son (naming him as such) in like entail. No estate was at any time conveyed in pursuance of this covenant. Subsequently W. surrendered & granted all his estate & interest to the elder son, who levied a fine with proclamations, & an action was brought to try the title of the illegitimate son :—Held : the use could not be carried to a bastard without express consideration, because the consideration in law was not good & legal, since the illegitimate son was not of the blood of the father, but in law a mere stranger.—GERRARDE v. WORSELEY (1579), 3 Dyer, 374a ; 73 E. R. 839.

Defective assurance not aided—Surrender of copyholds.]—A conveyance of copyhold lands made to a natural daughter, & expressed to be in consideration of £300, paid by her, was void for want of a surrender, this being required by the custom of the manor. The deed contained a covenant for further assurance. There was no evidence that the £300 was in fact paid :—Held : the covenant for further assurance could not be used to assist a void conveyance, & the defect could not be remedied in favour of a bastard.—FURSAKER v. The marriage took place, & husband & wife afterwards mtged. the property. After their death the illegitimate child brought an action of ejectment to recover the property from those claiming under the mtgee. :—Held: the limitation in favour of the illegitimate child contained in the marriage settlement was not void as against the subsequent mtge. by 27 Eliz. c. 4, & plff. was entitled to recover.—CLARKE v. 194. — — — Invalid against purchaser.]—A limitation in a marriage settlement in favour of the settlor's illegitimate child & his issue, not being within the marriage consideration, may be defeated by a subsequent conveyance by the settlor to a purchaser for value, unless such result would involve the defeat of other limitations within the marriage consideration. Special agreement between the parties thereto in favour of the limitation, acceptance by one of the parties of different interests in the settled property from those which the law would have given, omission to provide for all or some of the issue of the marriage, are insufficient to support such limitation against a purchaser for value.—DE MESTRE v. 197. — — — Evidence of intention.]—An owner of estates in Jamaica procured a deputation for his illegitimate son on the security of his estate, which office was to the value of £800 a year for seven years. The father died a year after the gift, having made other provisions by his will for his illegitimate son. The question being whether the appointment was for the grantee's own use or in trust for his father, evidence was admitted to explain the intention as to an absolute gift & that the son took the profits for his own use during the life of his father & had continued so to do since his decease:—Held: the son took the appointment to his own benefit & not in trust.—BECKFORD v. 204. — — Primâ facie right.]—A woman placed her illegitimate female child soon after its birth with N. & his wife, who were labouring people, intending to pay them for it. She fell into ill health & was unable to continue her payments, but N. & his wife continued to maintain the child till it was nearly seven years old. The mother then applied to have the child delivered to her, which N. & his wife refused. The mother, a kept mistress, did not propose that the child should live with her, but with a respectable married sister, whose husband was in a station superior to that of N. :—Held : the mother of an illegitimate infant had a natural right to its custody, which would be regarded by the ct., & a habeas corpus must be granted.—*R. v. 205. — Benefit of child—Child over seven.]—S., an Englishwoman, had married, according to the Mahomedan ritual, N., a Hindoo Mahomedan, he being already married. The children of this marriage had been recognised by N. as his children, & his heirs according to Mahomedan law, & English guardians had been appointed to them by N.'s will in respect of money settled on them by the English Govt. S. moved that an order might be made giving her the custody of her children, as she admitted that her union with N. was not a marriage, & contended that, as her children were illegitimate, she had the right to the custody of them :—Held : (1) even if the children were illegitimate by international law, S. was not, according to English law, their lawful guardian, & should only be granted the custody of them up to seven years of age, & after that age the ct. would decide the right to custody according to what it thought best for the interest of the infants ; (2) the children had passed from the control & custody of S. into that of the guardians appointed by N.'s will, & the application by S. must be refused.—Re ULLEE, NAWAB NAZIM OF BENGAL'S INFANTS (1885), 53 L. He subsequently became engaged to his domestic servant, whom he seduced under promise of marriage, while still living with the mother of his children, & afterwards secretly married her. The mother thereupon left him, & made an application to the ct. for the custody of the children, a boy of just over fourteen & a girl of about eleven years of age. Both the children desired to remain in the custody of the father:—Held: having regard to the father's conduct & character, he was not a fit person to have the custody of the children, & it would not be for the interest or benefit of the children themselves to deprive the mother of their custody, to which she was prima facie entitled.

Primâ facie, & in the absence of any strong reason to the contrary, the natural mother of children not in law legitimate has the right to their custody (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.).—R. v. LEWIS (1893), 9 T. L. R. 226.

The child remained in the custody of his adoptive parents for about ten years, & they had become much attached to him. The parents of the child married, & as their circumstances had improved they were desirous of getting the child back, but the adoptive parents refused to give him up. The child was then over eleven years of age:—Held: (1) the real question to be decided was what

They had assumed rights of guardianship from the time of its birth & had placed it under the care of a person who tody by him & his wife, & not to interfere with the management of the child, & not to represent herself as its mother, is revocable at any time.—R. v. BAILEY, Ex p. CASSIN (1875), 3 C. A. 46.—N.Z.

212 i. Death of mother—Right of maternal grandparents.]—The putative father of an illegitimate child, the mother being dead, is prima facie entitled to such custody as against the maternal grandfather.

A child was entrusted to the grandfather's care by the mother before her death, but was taken from his custody by the father by improper means. The arrangement made by the father for the maintenance of the child being one for the best interests of the child, the ct. refused to interfere with it.—Re BRANDON (1878), 7 P. R. 347.—CAN.

212 ii. ————.]—B. had an illegitimate child by A., whom she afterwards married, but she lived with her father until her death, when the child remained on in the custody of its maternal grandfather & uncle. had captured & sought to retain the child:—Held: appcts. were entitled to the interposition of the ct., & a rule absolute for a writ of habeas corpus granted.—Re DELLAR (1884), 28 Sol. Jo. 816.

213. — Right of poor law guardians—Preferred to father.—Guardians maintained an illegitimate child, a boy under twelve years of age. One day the putative father got over a fence & obtained possession of the boy & detained him. The father had previously declined to maintain the child on the ground of the illegitimacy, & the boy had been deserted by him, & had been at the school of the guardians ever since the mother's death. A writ of habeas corpus having been granted, & the father having produced the child:—Held: the guardians were entitled to recover the custody of the child.—*ST. 214. Conviction of mother—Right of poor law guardians—Benefit of child.—The mother of an illegitimate child in Oct., 1881, agreed with S. & his wife to let them have the custody of & educate & maintain the child, & they did so for seven years. The child being sent on a visit to its mother was, contrary to agreement, kept by her for two months, when the mother was convicted & sentenced to penal servitude. Mrs. S. then took charge of the child again for seven months, & then handed the child over to the guardians, who kept the child for nine months:—Held: as there was no desertion by the mother, the guardians could not dispose of the child, but as the mother was leading an immoral life, the child should be restored to Mrs. S.—*R. v. On an application to the ct. the custody of the child was given to a Roman Catholic guardian.—Re WHITE (1893), 9 T. L. R. 575.

228. Education—Mother deprived of custody—Mother's wishes decisive.]—The mother of an illegitimate child agreed with S. & his wife to let them have the custody of & educate & maintain the child, & they did so for seven years. The child was sent on a visit to its mother, when she was convicted & sent to penal servitude. Mrs. S. then took charge of the child again for seven months, & then handed it over to the guardians:—Held: as the mother was leading an immoral life, the child should be restored to Mrs. S. to be educated as the mother desired.—*R. v. 233 iv. ——— When discharged.]—The circumstance that the father of an illegitimate child is sixteen years old only, & still studying at school, is not by itself a sufficient reason for holding him excused from the necessity of providing for his illegitimate offspring. The person on whom the order of maintenance is issued must have sufficient means to support the child.—R. v. RUSHUN LALL (1872), 4 N. W. 123.—IND.

e. ——— Adoption of child under Adoption of Children Act, 1896 (60 Vict. No. 6).]—An order was made under Bastardy Laws Act, 1875 (39 Vict.

No. 8), against the putative father. Subsequently, an order of adoption was made in favour of a third party, pursuant to Adoption of Children Act, 1896:—Held: the effect of the order of adoption was that the child ceased to be a bastard child, & was, in contemplation of law, the legitimate child of the adopting mother, to whom passed the duty of supporting it, & the order could not be enforced against the putative father for maintenance after the date of the order of adoption. Semble: the right of the child to support by the putative father would again revive in the event of the discharge of the order of adoption.—*MADDOCKS v. 234. ——— Father ready to maintain—Plea.]—A bond, conditioned for payment to the overseers of a parish of a certain weekly sum so long as a bastard child shall continue chargeable, is not illegal or contrary to public policy.

To debt on bond, conditioned for payment of a weekly sum for maintenance of a bastard child, so long as it should be chargeable, it is no plea that after the child attained the age of seven years the putative father offered thenceforth to keep & maintain the child, & requested the overseers to deliver it to him, without showing that the child was within the power & custody of the overseers.—STRANGEWAYS v. ROBINSON (1812), 4 Taunt. 498 ; 128 E. R. 423.

236. ——— Voluntary Payments — Discontinuance.]—An action to recover compensation for the maintenance of a bastard was brought against the father of the child by pltf., who had married the mother of the child :—Held : if the father of an illegitimate child consented to pay an annual sum for his support, he was bound to continue to do so, or to provide for the child himself, or to give the most distinct notice of his intention to pay such annual sum no longer.—*CAMERON v. The magistrate ordered deft. to enter into a recognisance for the payment of a weekly sum for twelve months towards the child's support, & in default, that he be imprisoned for that period :—Held : (1) the evidence of deft.'s ability was insufficient ; (2) it was not necessary for complainant to prove affirmatively her inability to contribute ; (3) the order for imprisonment was not excessive.—*RAVANNI v. One of the children afterwards died:—Held: (1) there was sufficient consideration to support the promise, because whereas the mother was only bound by stat. to support the children if she was able, this was a contract to maintain them absolutely, which went further than the stat.; (2) the death of one of the children was no answer to an action on the contract, for it did not appear that the promise was confined to the mere life of both children.—*SMITH v. 249. ——— Death of mother.]—By an agreement in writing the father of a bastard child agreed to pay to the mother a certain weekly sum until the child should attain a certain age, & in consideration of those payments the mother agreed not to apply to justices for a bastardy order & further agreed to maintain & bring up the child. On the death of the mother before the child had attained the stipulated age the father discontinued the payments. The administrator of the mother's estate brought an action against the father upon the agreement:—Held: the father's obligation came to an end with the mother's death & the action would not lie.—*JAMES v. her verbally to pay her £300 per annum, by equal quarterly instalments, for so long as she should maintain & educate the children. At the time of the making of the promise the eldest child was about fourteen years old:—Held: this agreement was not one "not to be performed within a year from the making thereof," within Stat. Frauds, s. 4, & was binding, though made by parol only. Semle: the agreement was one which might at any time have been terminated by either party giving notice to the other (BRAMWELL & PIGOTT, BB.).—KNOWLMAN v. BLUETT (1873), L. R. 9 Ex. 1; 43 L. J. Ex. 29; 29 L. T. 462; 22 W. R. 77; affd. on another point (1874), L. R. 9 Ex. 307, C. A.

SECT. 1.—REQUISITES FOR JURISDICTION.

SUB-SECT. 1.—AS TO THE CHILD.

253. Birth alive.]—No order for affiliation or for payment of expenses can be made unless the child is born alive.—R. v. DE BROUQUENS (1811), 14 East, 277; 104 E. R. 607.

254. Birth "after passing of" 1872 Act.]—A child was born on Aug. 10, 1872, being the day on which 1872 Act received the royal assent:—Held: such child was born "after the passing of the Act," which in contemplation of law took place as soon as the clock began to strike twelve on the previous night, & an affiliation order might be made in respect of such child.—TOMLINSON v. BULLOCK (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 230; 48 L. J. M. C. 95; 40 L. T. 459; 43 J. P. 508; 27 W. R. 552, D. C.

Annotation:—Distd. Clarke v. Bradlaugh (1881), 44 L. T. 779.

255. Birth in England—Irish father.]—An applt. having been summoned before justices was adjudged to be the putative father of the bastard child of resp., & ordered to provide for its maintenance according to 1872 Act, s. 3. The child was born in Cornwall. Applt. was an Irishman & resp. an Englishwoman, & the connection, which resulted in the birth of the child, took place in Ireland. The summons was duly served on applt.:—Held: the child having become chargeable in England, the justices had jurisdiction, & the order was good.—HAMPTON v. RICKARD (1874), 43 L. J. M. C. 133; 30 L. T. 636; 38 J. P. 646.

256. — On English ship.]—A ship on the high seas is part of the territory of the State to which she belongs, & a bastard child of which a woman is delivered on board an English ship is to be deemed to be born in England, & the mother is entitled to an order of affiliation against the putative father resident in England.—MARSHALL v. MURGATROYD (1870), L. R. 6 Q. B. 31; 40 L. J. M. C. 7; 23 L. T. 393; 35 J. P. 153; 19 W. R. 72.

Annotation:—Refd. R. v. Humphrys, Ex p. Ward, [1914] 3 K. B. 1237.

257. Birth abroad—Foreign mother.]—A bastardy order cannot be made on the putative father in respect of a child born abroad of a foreign mother, although the mother became pregnant while domiciled & resident in England, & returned to England with the child shortly after its birth.—R. v. BLANE (1849), 13 Q. B. 769; 3 New Mag. Cas. 168; 3 New Sess. Cas. 597; 18 L. J. M. C. 216; 13 L. T. O. S. 257; 13 J. P. 825; 13 Jur. 854; 116 E. R. 1458.

258. — English mother.]—The fact that a bastard, the child of English parents resident & domiciled in England, was born abroad is not a bar to bastardy proceedings, since there is no necessity to consider any but English law in order to ascertain the status of the child.—R. v. HUMPHRYS, Ex p. WARD, [1914] 3 K. B. 1237; 84 L. J. K. B. 187; 30 T. L. R. 698; sub nom. R. v. HUMPHRYS, Ex p. WARD, 111 L. T. 1110; 79 J. P. 67; 24 Cox, C. C. 455, D. C.

SUB-SECT. 2.—AS TO THE MOTHER.

259. Marriage after birth—Liability of husband.]—An application for an affiliation order cannot be made where the mother has married since the birth of the child, & is at the time of the application living with her husband.

A woman who marries after the birth of her child ought not to be allowed to proceed against the putative father, inasmuch as her husband has become liable to support the child; & it could not have been the intention of the Legislature to establish a double liability for its maintenance (MELLOR, J.).—STACEY v. LINTELL (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 291; 48 L. J. M. C. 108; 40 L. T. 553; 43 J. P. 510; 27 W. R. 551, D. C.

260. — Summons before marriage.]—An order cannot be made where the mother has married since the birth of the child & is at the time of the application living with her husband, although she took out a summons against the putative father before her marriage, & was prevented from serving it by his default.—TOZER v. LAKE (1879), 4 C. P. D. 322; 41 L. T. 280; 43 J. P. 656.

PART VI. SECT. 1.

253 i. Birth alive.]—An order of affiliation cannot be made where the child is still-born, although the parish has been put to expense in the attendance on the mother.—R. v. MURPHY (1842), 1 Kerr, 524.—CAN.

PART VI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.

x. Mother under age.]—A mother who sues for the maintenance of her illegitimate child under Infant Protection Act, 1904 (No. 27), s. 8, need not, if under age, proceed by her next friend. She herself in effect sues as next friend for her child.—Ex p. TOWNSEND (1906), 6 S. R. N. S. W. 260.—AUS.

Sect. 1.—Requisites for jurisdiction: Sub-sect. 2. Sect. 2.]

261. — Summons amended after marriage.]—A bastardy summons issued upon an application by resp. (then a single woman) against applt. could not be served owing to applt. having left the neighbourhood. He subsequently returned, & resp. thereupon applied to the clerk to the justices to amend the date of hearing & to serve the summons. At the date of such application resp. was a married woman living with her husband. The summons, having been altered & served on applt., came on for hearing before the justices, who made an order against applt. to contribute to the maintenance of resp.'s bastard child:—Held: the alteration of the summons was equivalent to the issuing of a fresh summons, & as resp. was a married woman at the date of such alteration the justices had no power to make the order.—HEALEY v. WRIGHT, [1912] 3 K. B. 249; 81 L. J. K. B. 961; 107 L. T. 413; 28 T. L. R. 439; 23 Cox, C. C. 173, D. C.

See, also, No. 301, post.

262. — Living separate from husband.]—A married woman cannot after marriage to another man obtain an order of affiliation against the putative father of her illegitimate child born before marriage, although she is living separate & apart from her husband, he having turned her out of doors & refused to maintain her or the child on first learning of the child's existence.—PEATFIELD v. CHILDS (1899), 63 J. P. 117.

263. Married woman—Living separate from husband.]—Affiliation proceedings may be taken by a married woman, where her child is shown to be a bastard, & she is living separate from her husband.

M. T. was delivered of a child, of which L. was found to be the father. J. T., the husband of M. T., had been beyond the seas, & had not had access to his wife till a fortnight before the child's birth:—Held: an order against the father was rightly made.

A child born of adulterous intercourse (where there is no access by the husband) is as much within the Act [6 Geo. 2, c. 31] as one which is born of a single woman (LORD ELLENBOROUGH, C.J.).—R. v. LUFFE (1807), 8 East, 193; 103 E. R. 316.

264. — ]—Held: A married woman, the mother of a bastard child, was a "single woman" within 1844 Act, s. 2 (repealed & re-enacted by 1872 Act, s. 3), & 1845 Act, s. 4.—R. v. COLLINGWOOD (1848), 12 Q. B. 681; 3 New Mag. Cas. 53; 3 New Sess. Cas. 252; 17 L. J. M. C. 168; 12 L. T. O. S. 105; 12 Jur. 750; 12 J. P. Jo. 309, 454; 116 E. R. 1025.

265. — ]—A woman, whose husband had been for several years a convict in Van Diemen's Land, obtained an order in bastardy against a man in her husband's absence. On the return of the husband the putative father ceased to make the payments under the order. The husband deserted his wife after cohabiting with her for about six weeks. The putative father having refused to make any more payments a warrant was issued against him, but the justices refused to issue a warrant of distress against him on the ground that he was discharged by the return of the husband & his cohabitation with his wife:—Held: the justices had jurisdiction to make an order on the putative father under 1844 Act, s. 3, although the mother was a married woman living apart from her husband.—R. v. PILKINGTON (1853), 2 E. & B. 546; 21 L. T. O. S. 165; 17 Jur. 554; 1 W. R. 410; 17 J. P. Jo. 388; 1 C. L. R. 945; 118 E. R. 872; sub nom. Ex p. GRIMES, 22 L. J. M. C. 153.

266. — Separation not bona fide.]—A married woman conceived a child during her husband's absence at sea. On his return, he became aware of her condition, but continued to live with her. Being advised by the solr. who was acting for his wife that it was necessary that she should be living apart from her husband in order that she should obtain an affiliation order, he separated from her & went to reside in another part of the county. The justices found that the separation was not a bona fide separation but colourable & for the purpose of the proceedings:—Held: the woman was not a single woman within 1872 Act, & was not entitled to lay an information against the putative father of the child.—JONES v. DAVIES, [1901] 1 K. B. 118; 70 L. J. Q. B. 38; 83 L. T. 412; 65 J. P. 39; 49 W. R. 136, D. C.

267. — Husband a seaman at sea.]—Resp., who in Oct., 1914, married a seaman in the Royal Naval Reserve, lived with him until Dec., 1914, when he joined the Navy, & between Dec., 1914, & Aug., 1916, was serving on his ship & never had access to his wife. In Mar., 1916, resp. was delivered of a child of which her husband could not have been the father. He, on hearing of the birth, stopped payment of his allotment to resp., & the separation allowance paid to her by the Govt. also ceased. In Aug., 1916, the husband returned home for a week on leave of absence, forgave his wife & lived with her, & in Sept., 1916, went back to his ship, & the payments of the allotment & Govt. allowance were renewed. From that time, by reason of his duties on board ship, he had been unable to live with her, but she expected that, when he obtained leave of absence, he would return to her. In July, 1917, she applied for an affiliation order against applt., alleging that he was the father of her child, & that he had paid money for its maintenance, & the justices adjudged him to be the father of the child:—Held: resp. was not living separate & apart from her husband during his absence at sea, & she was not a "single woman" within 1872 Act, s. 3, & the affiliation order must be set aside.—MARSHALL v. MALCOLM (1917), 87 L. J. K. B. 491; 117 L. T. 752; 82 J. P. 77, D. C.

268. — Subsequent to birth.]—A married woman, who gives birth to an illegitimate child & subsequently becomes separated from her husband, may obtain an order against the father of the child as a "single woman" within 1872 Act, s. 3.—WEBB v. MURREL (1904), 68 J. P. 104.

269. Death of mother—Before hearing.]—A bastardy order cannot be made without the mother of the child being examined as a witness on the hearing; & where the mother died after the issue of the summons, but before the hearing:—Held: there was no jurisdiction to make an order.—R. v. ARMITAGE (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 773; 42 L. J. M. C. 15; 27 L. T. 41; 20 W. R. 1015; sub nom. JESSOP v. BRIERLEY, 36 J. P. 488.

SECT. 2.—THE APPLICATION FOR A SUMMONS.

A servile adherence to the forms is not required, for this may do infinite mischief, & make the forms traps instead of aids (WILLS, J.).—BELL v. CLUBBS (1892), 8 T. L. R. 296, D. C.

271. Time for application—When before birth—Mother's deposition.]—Semble*: the deposition on oath required by 1844 Act, s. 2, to be made on application by a mother before the birth of the child should be in writing.—R. v. FLETCHER (1871), L. R. 1 C. C. R. 320; 40 L. J. M. C. 123; 24 L. T. 742; 35 J. P. 789; 19 W. R. 781; 12 Cox, C. C. 77, C. C. R.

272. — When more than twelve months after birth—Payment by father for maintenance—Under mother's affiliation order.]—Semble*: when a bastardy order is made & money paid under it within twelve months from the birth of the child, the mother at the end of the period mentioned in the order may come again for another order (MANISTY, J.).—PEARSON v. HEYS (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 260; 50 L. J. M. C. 124; 45 L. T. 680; 45 J. P. 730; 30 W. R. 156.

Annotation:—Dbtd. Williams v. Davies (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 74. Upon that point I entertain very great doubt indeed, & am inclined to think that that would not be a payment within 1872 Act (FIELD, J.).

273. — Under guardian's affiliation order.]—Payment by a putative father of a bastard child of money in pursuance of an order obtained under 1873 Act, s. 5, by the guardians or parish of the union in which the mother becomes chargeable, is not such a payment under 1872 Act, s. 3, as entitles the mother to make an application on her own behalf for an order against the father more than twelve months after the birth of the child.—BILLINGTON v. CYPLES (1885), 52 L. T. 854; 49 J. P. 582.

274. — Father ceasing to reside in England.]—The alleged father of a bastard child left England about a month before the child's birth, & did not return till the child was fifteen months old. The mother then took out a summons, which was dismissed for want of jurisdiction on the ground that the summons was out of time:—Held: the alleged father ceased to reside in England during the whole period of his absence, & he was a person who had "ceased to reside in England within the twelve months next after the birth of such child" within 1872 Act, s. 3, & the justices had jurisdiction to adjudicate upon a summons taken out within twelve months after his return.—R. v. EVANS, [1896] 1 Q. B. 228; 65 L. J. M. C. 29;

275. "To any one justice"—Simultaneous applications to several justices.]—A bastard child having been born in Sept., 1896, the mother on Oct. 21, 1896, made three separate applications to three separate justices for a bastardy summons against deft., but as she was at that time unable to find him, the issue of the summons was suspended. In July, 1897, the mother, having found deft., procured one of the three justices to issue his summons upon the application so made to him on Oct. 21, 1896. On Nov. 3, 1897, that summons was heard & dismissed on the ground that the evidence was insufficient. On Nov. 17, 1897, she procured another of the three justices to issue a further summons against deft., which summons purported to be founded on the application to the justice of Oct. 21, 1896. The summons was heard & a bastardy order made:—Held: the three applications made on Oct. 21, 1896, were in substance but one application, & were exhausted by the hearing & dismissal of the summons on Nov. 3, 1897, & the order was made without jurisdiction.—R. v. ROBINSON, [1898] 1 Q. B. 734; 67 L. J. Q. B. 510; 78 L. T. 350; 62 J. P. 309; 46 W. R. 462; 14 T. L. R. 326; 42 Sol. Jo. 380.

276. — Justice's clerk.]—An application for an affiliation order having been made, the summons was dismissed for want of corroborative evidence, & the mother applied on the same date to the justice's clerk for a second summons. A second summons was issued on such application, purporting to be granted by the justice to whom the original application was made, & on the hearing of the summons an order was made against the putative father:—Held: the order was bad, as 1872 Act, s. 3, required the application to be made to the justice himself, & the application to the justice's clerk was not sufficient.—STAPLES v. STAPLES (1879), 41 L. T. 347.

It is not necessary to make such a complaint within six months from the birth of the child.—SUTHERLAND v. MCGIMPSEY (1898), 17 N. Z. L. R. 431.—N.Z.

271 ii. — Under Destitute Persons Act, 1910.—When more than six years after birth—Payment by father for maintenance.]—More than six years after the birth of resp.'s illegitimate child, applt., at the child's request, allowed it to spend six weeks of its Christmas holidays with him. A complaint having been made by resp. within twelve months thereafter:—Held: that in maintaining the child during the six weeks applt. had contributed to its maintenance within s. 8 (5) of the Act, & an affiliation order was rightly made against him.—*M. v. 279. — — — Bona fides.]—A woman applied on two occasions for an order of affiliation to the justices of the petty sessional division in which she had been residing with her parents, & was refused after a hearing on the merits. She then took lodgings in a neighbouring borough, "because," as she deposed, "people said if she came there she would have a better chance," & when she had been there nearly a month applied to the borough justices & obtained an order of affiliation:—Held: the object of the woman's removal was to obtain a new tribunal, & she did not reside within the borough so as to give the borough justices jurisdiction under 1844 Act, s. 2.—MYOTT v. BARBER (1863), 1 New Rep. 477; 27 J. P. 598; sub nom. R. v. MYOTT, 32 L. J. M. C. 138; 7 L. T. 785; 11 W. R. 424.

280. — — — Objection not taken.]—A woman living in the P petty sessional division had an illegitimate child in Aug., 1887. In May, 1888, she came overnight into the W. division where the putative father was resident, & next morning obtained a summons against him. Deft. appeared at the hearing, but took no objection to the jurisdiction of the justices, & an order was made against him, but it was not obeyed. The woman subsequently went to the magistrates of the W. division, & applied for a summons against deft. for disregard of the order. The objection was then taken that the original order was without jurisdiction, but the justices overruled the objection on the grounds that the woman was within their jurisdiction when the order was made, & that objection had not been taken when the order was applied for, & a warrant was issued, & the man arrested. On an application for a habeas corpus to discharge him from custody:—Held: the order was invalid as the woman was not resident in the division to the justices of which she had made the application, & the writ must issue.—VEVERS v. MAINS (1888), 4 T. L. R. 724.

281. Second application—After refusal of order.]—A refusal by justices to make an order for maintenance of a bastard, though on the merits, is no bar to a second application; & if justices refuse to entertain such second application on the mere ground of the first refusal, the ct. will order them by mandamus to hear.—*R. v. The true reason for the decision in R. v. Machen was that, inasmuch as the woman failed in her application because of the lack of sufficient corroborative evidence, there was no decision against her except in the sense that her application failed, & as the ct. held that that was in the nature of a nonsuit it did not disentitle her from applying again (LORD READING C.J.) Refd. *Ex p. Prior order—Allegation of—Evidence.]—Upon an application by a woman under 1844 Act, s. 2, for an order upon a person whom she alleged to be the father of a bastard child, of which she had been delivered within twelve calendar months before the application, an objection was raised that a prior order had been made on the same complaint, & that it was incumbent on applt. to show that such prior order had been quashed, not on the merits, in order to entitle her to apply again, under 1845 Act, s. 4. No evidence was given to show that such prior order ever existed, but the justices at petty sessions decided that complainant was bound, notwithstanding, to prove that the order was quashed for a defect in form, &, on her failing to do so, refused to hear the application:—Held: they were not justified in assuming the existence of the former order, & a mandamus granted commanding them to entertain the complaint.—*R. v. ### SECT. 3.—THE SUMMONS.

SUB-SECT. 1.—ISSUE.

290. By whom issued—Justice to whom application made.]—The mother of a bastard child applied to a justice, within twelve months after the child's birth, for a summons against P., the alleged father. The summons was issued by the justices, but could not be served, P. having absented himself. On P.'s return, which was more than twelve months after the child's birth, & before which time the justice who had issued the first summons had died, the mother obtained from another justice a second summons against P., & upon its coming on for hearing, the justices in petty sessions made an order adjudging P. to be the putative father, & ordering him to pay a certain sum by way of maintenance:—Held: the order was bad, as by 1844 Act, s. 2, the jurisdiction to make the order was limited to the justice before whom the first application was made, & the second summons, not being issued by the same justices, could not be considered as part of the original process upon the first application.—R. v. PICKFORD (1861), 1 B. & S. 77; 30 L. J. M. C. 133; 4 L. T. 210; 25 J. P. 549; 7 Jur. N. S. 568; 121 E. R. 643.

291. Time of issue—Not necessarily when application made.]—A single woman, having been delivered of a bastard child, applied, within twelve months of the birth, to a justice for a summons upon the putative father. She stated to the justice that she had learned that the putative father was in America, upon which the justice, without directly refusing the application, declined to issue the summons then. More than twelve months from the application she discovered that the putative father was in England, upon which she obtained & served a summons from the same justice; & the justices upon this application made an order of maintenance upon him. The summons professed to be on a renewed application:—Held: the order was good under 1844 Act & 1845 Act, as the whole proceeding was in effect founded on the original application, & it was not necessary that the summons should issue at the time when the application was made.—POTTS v. CUMBRIDGE (1858), 8 E. & B. 847; 27 L. J. M. C. 62; 30 L. T. O. S. 257; 22 J. P. 594; 4 Jur. N. S. 72; 6 W. R. 214; 120 E. R. 316.

the proper time.—Ex p. HARRISON (1852), 19 L. T. O. S. 114; 16 J. P. 343; 16 Jur. 726.

293. Several summonses—Issue allowed.]—The mother of a bastard child duly applied for a summons against F. & obtained it, but it was not served owing to the absence of F. A second summons was issued some months afterwards, but within the twelve months after the birth, by the same justice reciting the first information, & an order was made which stated the application as of the date of the summons:—Held: the order was regular, for, when an information was once laid in due time, several summonses might issue without a fresh information being laid for each successive summons.—Ex p. FIELDING (1861), 25 J. P. 759.

295. ——— After time for new application.]—The mother of a bastard child, born on Mar. 20, 1868, laid an information before a justice on Apr. 18, 1868, against deft., the putative father, under 1844 Act. A summons was issued on the same day but never served, as deft. could not be found by the process server to whom the summons was given. On Jan. 14, 1870, about a fortnight after the mother had found out deft.'s address, she applied for & obtained another summons, which was served on deft., & he appeared thereto:—Held: the justices had jurisdiction to hear the complaint although at the time of service of the summons more than twelve months had elapsed from the birth of the child.—R. v. CHUGG (1870), 22 L. T. 556; 34 J. P. 469; 11 Cox, C. C. 558, C. C. R.

296. ———.]—A woman duly applied to a justice for a summons against a putative father, but the information & summons stated that the birth of the child, though itself properly stated, was after the passing of 1872 Act, whereas it should have been stated as before that Act. On the hearing, objection was taken by deft. that the child was born before the passing of the Act. The mother was sworn & admitted this was so, & the justices, instead of amending, dismissed the summons. Upon another summons, reciting the same application, but without the mistake therein, the justices made an order against deft.:—Held: the dismissal of the first summons was not such a hearing as to exhaust the application & a fresh summons might issue though the time limited for a new application had passed.—R. v. LANCASHIRE JJ. (1874), 29 L. T. 886; 38 J. P. 215; 22 W. R. 329.

297. ——— Unless application spent—Hearing on merits.]—On Mar. 26, 1860, a woman applied for a summons against a man in respect of a bastard child born on Nov. 15, 1859. The summons was heard on Apr. 30 following, & was dismissed on account of the want of sufficient corroborative evidence. Subsequently, in Dec., 1862, another summons was issued, & upon the hearing, on the 29th of that month, an order was made. The order itself purported to be founded upon the application made on Mar. 26, 1860:—Held: the order was bad, for the application of Mar. 26 was spent by the hearing & judgment on Apr. 30, & that being so, there was no application to support the order within twelve months of the birth of the child.—R. v. THOMAS (1863), 8 L. T. 460; 27 J. P. 694.

an affiliation order was made by the mother on Oct. 11, 1878, & the summons was heard & dismissed for want of corroborative evidence on Oct. 25, 1878. A second summons purporting to be granted on the original application was issued on Nov. 6, 1878, & was heard by adjournment on Nov. 21, 1878, when an affiliation order was made:—Held: the order was bad, & must be quashed since the original application of Oct. 11 was spent & exhausted by the hearing & dismissal of the case on Oct. 25, & the second application for a summons could not be treated as a continuance of the original one.—*STAPLES v. 299. Form of summons—Immaterial error.]—An order of affiliation was made in Aug., 1850, in respect of a bastard child born in May, but was quashed on appeal. Deft. was subsequently served with another summons dated July 23, 1851. To this summons he appeared on the following Aug. 5, when the hearing was adjourned to Sept. 2, & on that day again adjourned to Sept. 11, when an order was made upon him:—Held: it sufficiently appeared on the face of the order that the complaint was made within twelve months from the birth, & a statement in the summons that the child was born within twelve months of its date was immaterial.—Ex p. HARRISON (1852), 19 L. T. O. S. 114; 16 J. P. 343; 16 Jur. 726.

300. — Amendment.]—On Sept. 18, 1891, a summons was taken out in respect of a child born in July, 1890, stating that the birth was within twelve calendar months. As this statement was on the face of it incorrect the summons was dismissed. Another summons was then taken out for Sept. 28 on another charge, viz., that deft., within twelve calendar months from the birth, had paid money for the child's maintenance, but this summons still retained the statement that the birth was within twelve calendar months of the application. Objection was taken to the summons on this ground, but the justices amended it by striking out the words objected to:—Held: the justices had jurisdiction to make the amendment.—BELL v. CLUBBS (1892), 8 T. L. R. 296, D. C.

301. — Mother married at date of amendment.]—A summons was issued in Apr., 1911, on the application of resp., a woman then unmarried. The summons could not be served upon applt. owing to his having left the neighbourhood, in order to avoid service. Resp. was married in Sept., 1911. In Jan., 1912, applt. returned to the neighbourhood & thereupon, on application of resp., the date of hearing in the summons was amended by the clerk to the justices, & the summons as amended was duly served on applt., and on the hearing of such summons the justices made an order against him:—Held: the amendment & issue of the summons in Jan., 1912, was equivalent to the issue of a second summons.

SUB-SECT. 2.—SERVICE.

302. "Last place of abode"—Service at last known place of abode—Prima facie good.]—If a summons is left at a place, which the person leaving it believes to be the last place of abode of the party summoned, & gives evidence of the serving of the summons before the justices at petty sessions, the latter have prima facie jurisdiction to make the order of maintenance, but the party summoned is at liberty to show by affidavit that the summons was not served at his last place of abode, & if the fact be proved, the ct. will grant a certiorari to bring up the order to quash it as being made without jurisdiction.

Proof of the proper service of the summons is essential to give the justices jurisdiction, & semble, an allegation in the order that such proof has been given, as averred in Form No. 8 in the sched. of 1845 Act (now superseded by Forms Nos. 11 & 12 issued by the Local Govt. Board by order of Mar. 13, 1915), is necessary to the validity of the order.—Ex p. PRICE JONES (1850), 1 L. M. & P. 357; 4 New Mag. Cas. 88; 15 L. T. O. S. 142; *sub nom. R. v. 303. — Departure of defendant—Acquisition of new abode.]—An affiliation summons was left at the abode of the putative father eight days after he had quitted it for Liverpool on his way to America. He remained at Liverpool four days before sailing. An order was made against him in his absence. On an application for a certiorari to bring up & quash the order, the putative father swore that he did not leave the country to avoid the service of the summons, but he did not deny the paternity:—Held: the summons had been left at his last place of abode, & as the order was regular & the truth of the charge not denied, the ct. would not interfere.—Ex p. DAVIS (1853), Bail Ct. Cas. 191; 21 L. T. O. S. 170; 17 J. P. 423; 17 Jur. 577; 1 W. R. 450; 1 C. L. R. 530; sub nom. R. v. DAVIS, 22 L. J. M. C. 143.

304. — — — — —.]—A summons was obtained by the mother on Oct. 3, 1866, & served on Oct. 4 at a farm house, where deft. had been lodging for some years, by leaving it with the wife of the occupier of the house. The order was made on Dec. 6, in the absence of deft., on proof of such service. Deft. afterwards made an affidavit that he left the house on Oct. 1 with the intention of going to America, & sailed in a steamship from Plymouth on Oct. 14, that he did not leave for the purpose of avoiding the summons, that he first heard of the summons & order when he had been in America two months, & that he was not the father of the child. The mother made an affidavit to the contrary:—Held: the summons was served at his last place of abode.

All we have to inquire is whether the summons was left at the last place of abode of the man. He left the house where he had been lodging for a long time for the express purpose of going to America; therefore, he had no other place of abode, & that was his last place of abode (COCKBURN, J.).—*R. v. 305. — — — — —.]—A mother was delivered of a child on Apr. 18, 1887, & she applied to a justice for a summons against deft., the alleged putative father, which was served on May 18, 1887, at the house of a baker at S. Deft. had been in the service of the baker from Sept. 25, 1886, till Apr. 20, 1887. When a constable left the summons the baker told him deft. had left the place & his place of residence was not known, though he had called on May 14 to fetch away some things. Deft. afterwards made an affidavit that he left S. on Apr. 20, 1887, to better himself, & that he went to Southampton & remained there till May 19, when he got a situation in a ship & sailed for the West Indies. The justices, at the hearing, having received evidence of the service of the summons at S., made an order on deft :—Held : the service was valid.—R. v. LEE (1888), 58 L. T. 384; 52 J. 306. —.]—At the hearing of an application for an affiliation order evidence was given that the summons had been served by being left at the house where the person alleged to be the father of the child resided. He did not appear, & the justices heard evidence & adjudged him to be the putative father of the child & made an order accordingly. He subsequently applied for a certiorari to bring up this order to be quashed, on the ground that the summons had not been properly served, & he established that at the date of the service of the summons he had left the house at which it was served & was resident in America :—Held : as the person served had at the date of the service of the summons a place of abode in America, that, & not the house at which the summons was served, was at that time his last place of abode within 1872 Act, s. 4, & the service was invalid.

If deft. went to America with the intention of returning, or for the mere purpose of avoiding service, he had no place of abode in America. In such a case it would be true to say his last place of abode was his father's house. Is there sufficient evidence on which we can safely say he went to America to live there? I think that is the conclusion we must come to; if so, he had a place of abode in America (LORD FISHER, M.R.).—R. v. FARMER, [1892] 1 Q. B. 637; 61 L. J. M. C. 65; 65 L. T. 736; 56 J. Ten days after the birth a summons was left at the house where he had resided :—Held : such house was his last place of abode & the service was sufficient.—R. v. WEBB, [1896] 1 Q. B. 487; 65 L. 308. ——— Temporary new abode.—An affiliation summons against H. was served at the house of H.'s father. An attorney appeared to the summons before the justices for the petty sessional division of B. in the county of N., representing himself to be authorised to appear for H. In fact, he was retained & paid by H.'s father. H. deposed that a few days before the summons was served he, anticipating annoyance from the woman, left his father's house, which, up to that time, had been his abode, without any intention to return, & was not informed of the proceedings before the justices :—Held : the ct. would infer, in fact, that H., leaving his abode avowedly for a temporary motive, did intend to return when the motive ceased, notwithstanding his deposition to the contrary, & such being taken to be the fact, the summons was duly served.—*R. v. 309. ——— Temporary absence.—An affiliation summons was served by leaving it at the place of abode of the putative father from which he was absent temporarily, without any notice of the proceeding, & his address was not known. The justices declined to adjourn the hearing & made an order—Held : the ct. could not interfere, the justices having jurisdiction.—R. v. BROWN (1859), 1 L. T. 29; 24 J. P. 5; 8 W. R. 60.

310. ——— Temporary new abode.—A woman had a child in May, 1887, & a bastardy summons was issued & served on B., the alleged father, at his father's house, where he was residing, & was heard & dismissed in July, 1887. In Sept. B. left his father's house & went to G. where he obtained employment. Subsequently another summons was granted to the mother which was left at the father's house. This summons was heard in Nov., when, in B.'s absence, an order was made against him :—Held : B.'s change of abode was merely for a temporary purpose in order to avoid proceedings & the service was good & the order of Oct. valid.—*R. v. 311. Limits of service—England & Wales.—On Oct. 30, upon application made by the mother of a bastard child to a justice acting for the petty sessional division in which she resided, a summons was issued to L., the alleged father of the bastard, requiring him to appear at a petty sessions to be holden at P., for the division, on Nov. 17, to answer the complaint. L. was a British subject recently residing within the division, but then living in Scotland & having no place of abode in England. He was personally served with the summons in Scotland on Nov. 1, in time to have attended at P. on the 17th. He did not so appear, & the justices, being of the opinion that the summons had been duly served, & on the evidence of the mother, corroborated in a material particular, made an order adjudging L. to be the putative father :—Held (LORD CAMPBELL, C.J., diss.) : they had no jurisdiction to make the order, as the service of the summons beyond the limits of England & Wales was not due service.—R. v. LIGHTFOOT (1856), 6 E. & B. 822; 25 L. J. M. C. 115; 27 L. T. O. S. 235; 20 J. P. 677; 2 Jur. N. S. 786; 4 W. R. 655; 119 E. R. 1070.

312. ———.]—Summary Jurisdiction (Process) Act, 1881 (c. 24), s. 6, does not enable a bastardy summons to be issued by justices in England & served in Scotland upon the putative father, domiciled & resident in Scotland, & if a summons is served & the putative father does not appear before the justices, they have no jurisdiction to make a bastardy order against him.

It is impossible to read that provision [1872 Act, s. 3] without seeing that this legislation proceeds upon the footing that the presence of the putative father is necessary for the jurisdiction to attach, because the general principle of law is 'actor sequitur forum rei;' not only must there be a cause of action of which the tribunal can take cognisance, but there must be a deft. subject to the jurisdiction of that tribunal; & a person resident abroad, & not brought by any special stat. or legislation within the jurisdiction, is prima facie not subject to the process of a foreign ct.; he must be found within the jurisdiction to be bound by it (LORD SELBORNE, C.).—

of M. C. before birth so taken & also upon the oath of T., that deft. was the father, & that he should pay so much, etc.:—Held: the ct. would intend (especially after appeal confirming the order) that M. C. was dead at the time of the order made, & that her examination on oath before taken in writing under 6 Geo. 2, c. 31, was verified on the oath of T. before the magistrates making the order, which examination was sufficient after the death of the mother to warrant a subsequent order of affiliation.—*R. v. (that the child was born a bastard, etc.), "& to having in the presence," etc., "of the attorney," etc., "heard the evidence of" (the mother) "& no evidence having been tendered on behalf" of S. Mother's evidence—Paternity—Corroboration in material particular.]—On the hearing of an application for an affiliation order evidence was given by the woman's brother, who deposed to a conversation held between him & deft. 313 i. Parties—Defendant out of jurisdiction—Proceeding ex parte.]—A warrant was issued by the magistrate under Infant Protection Act, 1904 (No. 27), s. 8, & an order was made against deft. in his absence. At the time the warrant was issued deft. was residing in another State, but there was no evidence of this fact before the magistrate:—Held: the warrant was validly issued.

313 ii. ———.]—A complaint was made by the mother of an illegitimate child under Infant Protection Act, 1904, s. 8, & a warrant was issued in the first instance. Deft., whose home was in Queensland, was a student at a college in New South Wales, & whilst attending the college he seduced appct. In Dec. he returned to Queensland, where he remained. —A woman was delivered of a child. The child survived but the mother died. Shortly before her decease, & in contemplation of her approaching death, she made written & verbal statements, charging appct. with the paternity of the child:—Held: the statements were admissible in evidence in proceedings subsequently brought against appct. before the magistrate, & on appeal from his order to the Supreme Ct.—*GANNON v. 317 i. ——— Paternity—Corroboration.]—In a complaint for the maintenance of an illegitimate child, evidence given by appct. & deft., that deft. was the father of a former child of appct. is a corroboration of the mother's oath within Marriage Act, 1890 (No. 1166), s. 48.—GALBALLY v. WATKINS (1892), 18 V. L. R. 67.—AUS.

317 ii. ———.]—The only evidence to support appct.'s statement that deft. was the father of her two illegitimate children was that of her sister, who stated that deft. admitted to her he was responsible for appct.'s pregnancy with the second child:—Held: sufficient corroborative evidence to justify the magistrate in making an order against deft. as being the father of both children.—STOKES v. ROUGHAN (1894), 20 V. L. R. 288.—AUS.

317 iii. ———.]—In order to establish paternity under Marriage Act, 1900 (No. 1684), s. 8, it is not necessary that there should be direct independent evidence of the paternity or of acts of intercourse. Independent evidence of words or conduct of deft. more consistent with his being the father of the child than with his innocence is sufficient to justify the magistrates in making an order against him.—GROCKOCK v. STEVENSON, [1905] V. L. R. 536.—AUS.

317 iv. ———.]—Appct. for a summons under Infant Protection Act, 1904 (No. 27), s. 8, gave evidence that she had kept company with resp. & used to meet him on Saturday nights, & that once her blouse was torn in a struggle with him. Her mother gave evidence that the girl had been in resp.'s company on various Saturday nights during the period in question, & had not kept company with any other man during that period, & that she remembered her daughter coming home one night with her blouse torn:—Held: sufficient evidence in corroboration.—Ex p. STUART (1906), 6 S. R. N. S. W. 468.—AUS.

317 v. ———.]—Evidence that a lodger at an hotel used to walk out with appct., a servant at the hotel, at night time in a quiet country town:—Held: corroborative evidence of appct.'s allegation that the lodger was the father of the illegitimate child.—Cox v. SHORT, Ex p. SHORT (1909), S. R. Q. 112.—AUS.

317 vi. ———.]—Appct. stated that the putative father visited her business rooms on Sunday evening about nine o'clock. In corroboration two persons deposed to having seen deft. & appct. in the street on the previous Saturday evening. Deft. admitted that he met appct. in the street, & that by appointment he had gone to the door of her rooms on Sunday to supply her with certain information promised by him:—Held: there was no corroborative evi-

Witness said, "Yes, & you must keep it"; to which he replied, "No, I sha'n't; I would sooner go to America":—Held: this evidence was capable of being construed as an admission of paternity, & afforded sufficient ground for the decision of the justices that the mother's evidence dence of paternity.—DAVIES v. D'ENNETT, Ex p. D'ENNETT (1909), S. R. Q. 140.—AUS.

317 vii. — — — — —.]—Held: the evidence of the mother had not been corroborated within 1875 Act (No. 8), s. 5, by (1) a witness who said that she had once seen the parties together; (2) a writing of deft. containing merely his address, sworn by appct. to have been handed to her by him on a date almost a year after the birth of the child, with a question what amount per week she would take for the keep of the child, & a request to give the address to her solr. with the object of keeping the case out of ct.; (3) the fact that deft. did not give evidence denying the paternity.—MAXTED v. GRAY (1909), 11 W. A. R. 104.—AUS.

317 viii. — — — — —.] Appct. gave evidence of an admission of paternity by deft., & called his mother as a witness in support. After denying any admission of paternity by deft., deft.'s mother was, on the application of appct.'s solr., declared hostile, & examined as to statements in a letter admittedly written by her shortly after the interview mentioned by appct., & written as a general & true account of the whole affair:—Held: there was no evidence beyond the oath of the mother tending to prove that deft. was father of the child.—HARPER v. COUNTER, Ex p. COUNTER (1913), S. R. Q. 249.—AUS.

317 ix. — — — — —.]—On an information laid under State Children Act, 1895, by A., a married woman, against B. for the maintenance of an illegitimate child, evidence was given by A. of the paternity of the child, & by a physician, who deposed that it was almost certain that C., A.'s husband, was impotent. Evidence was also given by A. that prior to her confinement B. had sent her money & by her husband that B. in conversations with him had offered to pay money:—Held: there was sufficient evidence to justify the magistrate's findings that (1) B. was the father of the child, & (2) the sending & promises to pay money constituted corroboration in a material particular, as required by State Children's Amendment Act, 1909, s. 29.—CARTHY v. COCK (1914), S. A. L. R. 1.—AUS.

317 x. — — — — —.]—On a charge of deserting an illegitimate child, of which deft. was alleged to be the father, the mother gave evidence that on one occasion deft. had connection with her at night time, upstairs at a hotel, while a dance was being held in the rooms below, & on three other occasions in the day time at places which she stated. There was evidence from persons other than the mother that she had been to the dance, & that it was possible for her to have been with deft. on the occasions on which she said connection had taken place, but there was not evidence other than her own that she actually was alone with him on any of those occasions. Deft. denied paternity of the child, & explained his visits to the locality where the meetings were alleged to have occurred, & called a witness to prove that he was not at the dance:—Held: there was no evidence corroborating that of the mother, & deft.'s conviction must be quashed.—MATTHEWS v. COLLESS, Ex p. COLLESS (1915), S. R. Q. 159.—AUS.

317 xi. — — — — —.]—Appct. called witnesses to prove that she & the putative father went to the home of her mother about 8 p.m. & stayed there talking with her till about 10 p.m., when they left together, & on the same evening sexual intercourse took place:—Held: no evidence in corroboration of appct.'s evidence in some material particular.—

317 xii. — — — — —.]—On an application for a summons under Infant Protection Act, 1904 (No. 27), s. 4, evidence given by the mother of admissions alleged to have been made to her by deft. is sufficient corroboration of the allegation of paternity.—*Ex p. 317 xiv. — — — — —.]—There is no rule of law requiring the evidence of the mother to be corroborated; but it is a matter of practical expediency & good sense that one should adopt the mother's evidence guardedly.—OVERSEERS OF POOR v. MCGILLIVRAY (1909), 7 E. L. R. 121.—CAN.

317 xv. — — — — —.]—In an action en déclaration de paternité deft. admitted the connection with the mother, but assigned a date which disproved his paternity of the child. There was no evidence of improper conduct of the mother otherwise:—Held: the ct. would give weight to the declaration on oath that deft. was the father. Absolute certainty in such cases is not required; it is sufficient to establish a strong probability that deft. is the father.—DENAULT v. BANVILLE (1884), 7 L. N. 149.—CAN.

317 xvi. — — — — —.]—The admission by deft. that he had intercourse with plff. in the month of Mar., in a suit in which plff. is seeking to have deft. declared the father of a child born in the following Dec., is sufficient evidence to sustain the prayer of plff. There is a presumption, in similar cases, that deft. is father of the child when deft.'s parents paid the lying-in charges & are taking care of plff., & when the child resembles deft.—SOUCY v. BEAUPRE (1913), 20 R. L. 80.—CAN.

317 xvii. — — — — —.]—"Corroborative evidence," within 26 & 27 Vict. c. 21, s. 3, as to paternity of an illegitimate child, means evidence sufficient to establish moral probability of illicit intercourse, having regard to all the circumstances of the case.—SLIGO UNION GUARDIANS v. CURRAN (1899), 33 I. L. T. 181.—IR.

317 xviii. — — — — —.]—In an action under Destitute Persons Act, 1894 for maintenance resp. swore that applt. was alone with her at about 9.30 p.m. in a photographic studio on two or three occasions about nine months before the birth of her child & there had connection with her. Another witness swore that she saw applt. & resp. alone together at the place & time mentioned by resp. Applt. denied that he was at the studio at the time sworn to & his brother swore that when applt. & resp. were present together in the studio he was there also:—Held: there was sufficient corroboration.—MEADS v. POLLOCK (1907), 26 N. Z. L. R. 516.—N.Z.

317 xix. — — — — —.]—In an action under Destitute Persons Act, 1908, for maintenance a witness swore that she had seen applt. & resp. together in a secluded spot, & afterwards on two occasions at night, about the time at which the child must have been conceived. The mistress of resp. swore that when she charged applt. with being the cause of resp.'s pregnancy he did not deny it, but promised to see her mother, & instead of doing so he left for Sydney:—Held: there was sufficient corroboration.—

317 xx. — — — — —.]—The corroboration required by Destitute Persons Act, 1909, in an affiliation case is evidence which amounts to corroborating the evidence of complainant on some material fact.

The falsity of the statements of deft.'s wife when called as a witness for appct. is not material evidence in corroboration of appct.'s testimony.

Appct.'s evidence cannot be taken as proof of the falsity of the denial of deft.: corroboration must be by evidence of independent witnesses.—HERRICK v. TANNER (1912), 31 N. Z. L. R. 282.—N.Z.

317 xxi. — — — — —.]—Held: paternity proved by the evidence of the mother, corroborated only by the evidence of a woman who had twice seen the mother & defender meet & speak on the street.—M'BAYNE v. DAVIDSON (1860), 22 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 738; 32 Sc. Jur. 296.—SCOT.

317 xxii. — — — — —.]—In an action of filiation of a child born on Dec. 6, defender admitted connection with the pursuer in July previous, but denied that there was connection before that month:—Held: it being established that the parties had had previous opportunities for connection, pursuer's deposition that connection had taken place at the period of conception was sufficient to prove the case.—ROSS v. FRASER (1863), 1 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 783; 35 Sc. Jur. 473.—SCOT.

317 xxiii. — — — — —.]—In an action of filiation & allment statements made by pursuer to third parties a considerable time after the event spoken of occurred are inadmissible, but statements of improper attempts on her person made by her recently to persons to whom she had naturally occasion to make the communication are competent. The corroborations must not merely be such as support pursuer's general veracity, but such as to confirm her truth in the special matters alleged.—SEGGE v. BAIN (1869), 6 Sc. L. R. 544.—SCOT.

317 xxiv. — — — — —.]—For some time before Oct. 29, 1873, the alleged date of conception (at which time pursuer & defender were aged respectively eighteen & sixteen years), the parties were considered sweethearts, but no familiarities had been observed between them. Once at pursuer's father's house the parties were left alone together in the kitchen for half an hour about midnight, when connection between them was alleged to have taken place, & a child was born eight & half months after. Defender deposed that on that occasion they merely talked together, & that he had never had connection with her:—Held: the paternity had been proved.—DUNN v. CHALMERS (1875), 3 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 236.—SCOT.

317 xxv. — — — — —.]—In an action of filiation raised nearly four years after the birth of an illegitimate child:—Held: evidence of familiarities between the mother & defender of the action more than three years after the birth was admissible, although no notice was given on record.—SCOTT v. DAWSON (1884), 11 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 518; 21 Sc. L. R. 351.—SCOT.

317 xxvi. — — — — —.]—Pursuer's evidence was consistent & uncontradicted, & witnesses spoke to seeing pursuer & defender together, but not in suspicious circumstances; defender had written a curiously expressed letter denying the paternity of the child:—Held: pursuer had failed to prove her case.

1872 Act, s. 4.—COLE v. MANNING (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 611; 46 L. J. M. C. 175; 35 L. T. 941; 41 J. P. 469, D. C.

319. ————.]—On the hearing of a summons for an order of affiliation the mother, a servant girl, gave evidence that she “walked out” with deft. on Feb. 22 & 25, 1894, & never afterwards, & found herself in the family way in Mar. Evidence was given by witnesses that, in the Sept. following, deft., a boy of nineteen, went with his mother to the house of complainant’s stepmother “to clear it up,” but when the stepmother asked if he was the father, he did not answer, & the complainant’s step-sister, being then present, also asked him “if he had been out with her sister,” & he said yes, he had. The child was born on Nov. 20:—Held: this evidence was corroborative of the mother in a material particular.—HILL v. DENMARK (1895), 59 J. P. 345.

320. ————.]—On the hearing of an application for an affiliation order, in corroboration of the evidence of the mother, who was a servant to applt.’s grandfather, evidence was given that applt. & resp. were seen “out together evenings in the lanes,” & that after the birth of the child applt. asked witness whether resp., whom he spoke of familiarly as “Till,” was going “to swear the child”:—Held: this evidence was corroboration in some material particular within 1872 Act, s. 4.—HARVEY v. ANNING (1902), 87 L. T. 687; 67 J. P. 73, D. C.

321. ————.]—The mother of a bastard child deposed that she went to stay at the alleged father’s house to take charge of his children while his wife was away. She removed, as she alleged at the man’s request, from the bedroom she first occupied to the room adjoining his, & from there she used to go to his room at night, returning in the morning:—Held: the change of room did not amount to corroboration in a material particular of the woman’s evidence.

Corroborative evidence “in some material particular” within 1872 Act, s. 4, must be evidence having some relation to the conduct of the putative father, or at least have some relation to the probability of the person summoned being the father (LORD ALVERSTONE, C.J.).—REFFEL v. MORTON (1906), 70 J. P. 347; 50 Sol. Jo. 378, D. C.

322. ————.]—Upon the hearing of a complaint under 1872 Act, s. 4, the evidence adduced in corroboration of that of complainant was the evidence of a person who deposed that he had been present at the trial & conviction of the alleged father of complainant’s child upon an indictment charging him with having had unlawful carnal knowledge of complainant, & who also deposed to the fact that when before the committing justices the alleged father gave evidence that complainant was a fast girl & that that was the cause of her then condition, & that on his trial at the assizes no suggestion was made that complainant was a fast girl, nor was the evidence of the alleged father to that effect repeated:—Held: (1) the conviction was not sufficiently proved, & the evidence as to it was not corroboration of complainant’s evidence in a material particular as required by the Act; (2) the evidence as to the conduct of the alleged father in giving evidence before the justices that complainant was a fast girl & in not giving evidence to that effect at the assizes was corroboration of complainant’s evidence in a material particular.—MASH v. DARLEY, [1914] 3 K. B. 1226; 83 L. J. K. B. 1740; 111 L. T. 744; 79 J. P. 33; 30 T. L. R. 585; 58 Sol. Jo. 652; 24 Cox, C. C. 414, C. A.

324. ————. Verdict in seduction action.]—A verdict in an action for seduction against the alleged putative father of a bastard child is res inter alios acta, & inadmissible as corroborative evidence in an application for an order in bastardy by the party seduced. The consent of deft.’s attorney in the action to such verdict is admissible as evidence, but not as corroborative evidence, unless it is explained & shown to have been given with deft.’s concurrence, or not to have been repudiated by him.—LAWRENCE v. TYRWHITT (1851), 15 J. P. 310.

The mother’s evidence as to the payment of money by the alleged father for the maintenance of the child does not need corroboration.—HODGES v. BENNETT (1860), 5 H. & N. 625; 29 L. J. M. C. 224; 2 L. T. 190; 24 J. P. 375; 8 W. R. 463; 157 E. R. 1329.

G. was called to contradict her. The justices admitted his evidence:—Held: the evidence of G. ought not to have been admitted to contradict the mother on a matter which went only to her credit.—*R. v. that the child was prematurely born, & no allegation of previous intercourse:—Held: although the alleged intercourse had taken place, that was not sufficient to raise against defender a presumption of paternity.—RITCHIE v. CUNNINGHAM (1857), 20 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 35; 30 Sc. Jur. 19.—SCOT.

317 xlvii. ————.]—Admission by defender of intercourse with pursuer two hundred & thirty-seven days before the birth of the child, coupled with medical evidence that the child was small.—Held: sufficient to prove the paternity.—PITCAIRN v. SMITH (1872), 9 Sc. L. R. 608.—SCOT.

In cross-examination he declined to answer a question, considered by the justices to be material, & offered to withdraw from the case & consent to an order being made against him. The justices committed him to prison for refusing to answer the question :—Held : the justices had jurisdiction to commit, for the power to commit under 1844 Act, s. 70, extended to any witness, & was not confined to witnesses who appeared in answer to a summons or warrant.—R. v. 331. Second application—Effect of previous dismissal. ]—The justices, on a second hearing for an order for maintenance of a bastard, may take into consideration, with a view to forming their decision, the fact & circumstances of the former hearing.

We are far from saying the dismissal is to have no weight, but we think the justices cannot refuse to hear a second application. If it should appear to them the matter was fully inquired into on the first occasion, they will reasonably view any new evidence with suspicion & sift it accordingly, but complaint or information against the father of an illegitimate child for maintenance is a bar to a second application only when followed by a certificate, which certificate is in the discretion of the magistrates.—Ex p. ROSE (1859), 2 Legge, 1163.—AUS.

331 iv. ———. ]—A complaint by the mother of an illegitimate child, claiming contribution towards the support of the child from the father, was dismissed & a certificate of dismissal was given. Subsequently, another complaint was made, the breach of duty being laid as of a later date, & was dismissed on the ground that the certificate of dismissal given in the first case constituted a bar of all subsequent proceedings :—Held : the certificate of dismissal was no bar.—BURTON v. 331 v. ———. ]—Resp. was charged with leaving his illegitimate child without means of support. The magistrate dismissed the charge without stating the ground of his decision. 332. ———.]—The justices who hear an application for an order on the putative father of a bastard child, have no power to adjudicate finally against the mother, & if they dismiss the application, that dismissal is not a ground for dismissing a second application in the same matter, but is in the nature of a non-suit in a civil action.—*R. v. The mother can within the twelve months go and make a fresh application to the justices of her petty sessional division.

If the case were heard on its merits and gone into & a decision come to, & then the mother made a fresh application, then it would be a sufficient answer to the fresh application, that the matter

The magistrate dismissed the application, & issued to applt. a certificate of dismissal under Justices Act, 1902 (2 Edw. 7. No. 11), s. 142. Resp. shortly afterwards made another application of the same nature; & justices made an order for maintenance issued against applt.:—Held: (1) apart from Justices Act, the justices had jurisdiction to hear the second application, & if they thought fit to adjudicate thereon; (2) a certificate of dismissal under s. 142 could not be issued in respect of an application under Bastardy Act against the putative father of an illegitimate child, or if issued was no bar to an adjudication upon a second application.—REED v. LYNCH (1909), 11 W. A. R. 127.—AUS.

331 ix. ———.]—A. was charged as the reputed father of a bastard child, of

had been heard & determined and the principle of res judicata would apply.

Whether or no a dismissal for want of corroborative evidence is a dismissal on the merits, still, that defence must be plainly raised before the justices as a reason for not going on with the second application. If such fact is brought before the justices & they think the former decision went on the merits, it will be an answer to the second application; if not so raised there is nothing to prevent justices going on with the second hearing.—R. v. CLARK (1864), 28 J. P. Jo. 102.

334. ———.]—An application for an order in bastardy was made to certain justices of the county of S., & dismissed by them on the ground that there was no sufficient corroborative evidence of the mother's story. The mother afterwards renewed her application before other justices who made an affiliation order. It was not objected before the justices on this second hearing that the case had been disposed of on the merits on the former occasion & that they were bound by that decision. Subsequently pltf. commenced proceedings against deft. as putative father of the first child, but the charge was dismissed on the grounds of lack of corroborative evidence, & lack of evidence that pltf. was not a married woman. The order expired on July 22, 1915, & on Sept. 7, 1915, upon the application of resp., the magistrate made a new order under Destitute Persons Act, 1910, ss. 8 & 85 (3), for the maintenance of the boy up to the age of sixteen:—Held: the original order was a final order on the merits, & that the matter, being res judicata could not be reopened.—KLEIN v. TUTTY (1915), 34 N. Z. L. R. 1084.—N.Z.

c. Effect of previous decree refusing to enforce agreement for maintenance.]—A decision of the civil ct., refusing to enforce a contract or agreement against a man for the maintenance of a woman, cannot conclude either the woman from applying, or a magistrate from making an order, under Code of Criminal Procedure, 1861, s. 316, for the maintenance of their illegitimate daughter.—Re MEISELBACK PETITION (1872), 17 W. R. 49.—IND.

d. Before single justice—By consent.]—By consent of counsel, a single justice tried a bastardy case alone, & made an order of affiliation:—Held: a ct. could not be constituted by consent, & proceedings quashed.—R. v. WESTMORLAND JJ. (1869), 1 Han. 472.—CAN.

determined to hear the application, saying the previous dismissal was obtained by false evidence, & having heard appct. & corroborative evidence made an order of affiliation:—Held: the justices had jurisdiction & the order was valid.

When the dismissal is upon the merits, the justices, on any subsequent application, ought to defer so much to the former decision as to treat the matter as res judicata, unless it be shown that what may be called the first trial was, for some reason or other, not fair (BLACKBURN, J.).—*R. v. 336. Guardians' application — Failure of — Whether bar to mother's application.—Where the mother of a bastard child made an application within twelve months after the birth of the child to petty sessions for an order on the putative father, & the justices refused to hear the application, on the ground that proceedings having been taken by the guardians of the poor against the putative father, & the quarter sessions to which that inquiry had been moved by the putative father had refused to make an order, a mandamus was granted to compel the justices to hear the application.—*R. v. 337. Contract with father for maintenance—Whether bar to application.—A putative father, before the mother's applying for an affiliation order, contracted with the mother to pay her 5s. per week for the support of the child, & paid two years' amount in advance, & afterwards contracted with her to pay, & did pay her, £10 to release him from all future payments:—Held: (1) no bar to the mother afterwards applying for, & the magistrate making, an affiliation order; (2) the magistrate was bound to consider such contract along with all the other circumstances to guide his discretion in adjudicating.—FOLLIT v. KOETZOW (1860), 2 E. & E. 730; 29 L. J. M. C. 128; 2 L. T. 178; 24 J. P. 612; 6 Jur. N. S. 651; 121 E. R. 274; sub nom. TOLLIT v. KORTZOW, 8 W. R. 432.

338. Waiver of irregularity—Payment within twelve months from birth—Omission to prove.—The mother of a bastard child, more than twelve months old, applied to a justice for a summons against the putative father, alleging, but not proving on oath, that he had paid money for the maintenance of the child within twelve months from the birth. The summons was issued in the form given by the sched. to 1845 Act (superseded by form issued by the Local Govt. Board by order dated Mar. 13, 1915), except that it stated the woman alleged that the man had paid money within the twelve months, instead of saying that she had given proof of the fact. The father appeared, & took no objection to the summons or the proceedings on which it was founded, but denied the paternity, & falsely swore he had not paid any money as alleged. On the trial of the father for perjury it was objected that the magistrates had no jurisdiction, as proof on oath that the money had been paid as alleged was necessary, under 1844 Act & 1845 Act, to give the justices authority to issue the summons, & that it was immaterial at the hearing whether the money had been paid, as proof of that fact was only necessary prior to the issuing of the summons:—Held: had the objection of the want of proof on oath of payment of the money & of the variation of the summons from the form given by stat. been taken before the magistrates, it probably ought to have prevailed, but this was a mere irregularity in process to bring deft. into ct. in a proceeding in the nature of a civil suit, & the father waived it by not taking an objection at the hearing, & by then going into the merits of the case.—R. v. BERRY (1859), Bell, C. C. 46; 28 L. J. M. C. 86; 32 L. T. O. S. 324; 23 J. P. 86; 5 Jur. N. S. 320; 7 W. R. 229; 8 Cox, C. C. 121, C. C. R.

339. — — — — —.—A summons after the birth of a bastard child was issued against the putative father, on the application of the mother, & alleged that proof had been given of payment of money by the father, within the twelve months next after the birth of the child, for its maintenance. The father appeared to answer the summons at the petty sessions, & made no objection to the jurisdiction of the justices or otherwise, but was sworn on his own behalf, & gave evidence, in respect of which he was afterwards indicted for perjury. On the trial of the indictment for perjury, the jury found deft. guilty, & found also that deft. had not within the twelve months next after the birth of the child paid any money for its maintenance:—Held: the justices had jurisdiction to hear the summons, & deft. had waived the objection, the summons to the putative father to appear at petty sessions being a matter of process only, & not of substance essential to the jurisdiction of the petty sessions.—R. v. SIMMONDS (1859), 33 L. T. O. S. 153; 8 Cox, C. C. 190; sub nom. R. v. SIMMONS, Bell, C. C. 168; 28 L. J. M. C. 183; 23 J. P. 309; 5 Jur. N. S. 578; 7 W. R. 439, C. C. R.

340. — — Appearance of defendant.—The mother of a bastard child applied to T., a justice of the petty sessional division, who issued a summons against B., the putative father. At the petty sessions the service was not proved, & her solr. issued a fresh summons issued by F., another justice, & this was duly served. At the hearing, B. appeared through his solr., who took no objection to the process, & cross-examined the witnesses & addressed the justices, who made an order on B. to pay a weekly sum from the date of the first summons. The order being objected to, the mother abandoned that part of the order as to the weekly sums preceding the hearing, & another was drawn up correcting the mistake:—Held: the order was made with jurisdiction, the appearance of B. at the hearing waiving all irregularities of process.—R. v. FLETCHER (1884), 51 L. T. 334; 48 J. P. 407; 32 W. R. 828, D. C.

342. Amount of maintenance—Former limit.]—A single woman made application on May 22, 1872, under 1844 Act, ss. 2 & 3, for a summons in bastardy against K. The child was born on July 26. 1872 Act was passed on Aug. 10, which repealed ss. 2 & 3 of 1844 Act, & itself applied only to a child born after Aug. 10. On Sept. 3 the summons was issued; on Sept. 11 K. appeared to the summons, & an order was made adjudging him to be the putative father, & ordering him to pay 3s. a week for its maintenance from the birth till it should attain the age of thirteen years. On Apr. 24, 1873, 1873 Act was passed, & by s. 8, all orders made before the passing of that Act upon the father of a bastard child born before Aug. 10, 1872, for any payment in respect of such child, which would have been valid if 1872 Act had not passed, were to be deemed to have been valid to all intents:—Held: the above order must be quashed, for it was not made valid by s. 8, as it was for 3s. a week, whereas 1844 Act, s. 3, only authorized an order for 2s. 6d., & the order would not have been valid if 1872 Act had not passed.—R. v. KAY (1873), L. R. 8 Q. B. 324.

343. Period of maintenance—From date of application.]—An order of affiliation made under 1844 Act:—Held: good, although it directed payment from the time of the application, a period of more than thirteen weeks, & not vitiated by reason of its having been made more than forty days after service of the summons, the delay having been occasioned by adjournments.—Ex p. HARRISON (1852), 19 L. 344. ———.]—A woman applied to justices in 1863 for a summons against B., as the father of her bastard child, born within two months. B. having absconded, he was not served, but having returned in 1868, he was duly served, & upon the hearing the justices made an order, & directed that B. should pay the sum of 2s. 6d. per week from the date of the woman's application in 1863, amounting to the sum of £18 18s.:—Held: they were justified in so doing, & the order was good.—R. v. CURME (1868), 18 L. T. 559; 32 J. P. Jo. 404.

345. ——— Abandonment of earlier payments.]—An order of affiliation ordered a person as putative father to pay a weekly sum for the maintenance of a bastard child from the birth of the child. As the application for the order was not made until more than two months after the birth, the order was clearly bad as to the period between the date of the birth & the time of applying for the order. Notice of abandonment of all claim under the order for payment anterior to the date of the order had been served on the putative father:—Held: the order was valid, & might be enforced against the putative father in respect of the weekly payments which became due after the date of the application to the magistrates.—Ex p. COLEY (1851), 4 New Sess. Cas. 507; 16 L. T. O. S. 419; 15 J. P. 420; 15 Jur. 128; sub nom. R. v. GREEN, 20 L. J. M. C. 168.

346. ——— Less than maximum period.]—The justices have a discretion under 1872 Act, to order weekly payments for the maintenance of a bastard child for a less period than the maximum period given by s. 5 of the Act.

Justices made an order for weekly payments until the child attained the age of sixteen, or the mother married:—Held: such order was not to be in force after the marriage of the mother.—PEARSON v. HEYS (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 260; 50 L. J. M. C. 124; 45 L. T. 680; 45 J. P. 730; 30 W. R. 156.

347. ——— No further order.]—Upon the hearing of an affiliation summons, the justices made an order under 1872 Act, for the payment of a weekly sum until the child should attain the age of thirteen, or die, or the mother should marry. The mother married & her husband died before the child attained the age of thirteen. The mother took out a fresh summons upon which the justices made an order for payment of a weekly allowance:—Held: the matter was res judicata, & the second order was bad.—WILLIAMS v. DAVIES (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 74; 52 L. J. M. C. 87; 47 J. P. 581.

349. ——— Statement of jurisdiction — Justice granting summons.]—An order of affiliation recited the application for a summons on the putative father of the child had been made by the mother to M., one of Her Majesty's justices of the peace usually acting in the division:—Held: the jurisdiction of the justice sufficiently appeared as the words "in" & "for" were used synonymously in 1844 Act, sched.—R. v. MILNER (1845), 3 Dow. &

—SHEE v. LARKIN, [1906–7] V. L. R. 295.—AUS.

1. Amount of maintenance — Sums not separated.]—An order of affiliation adjudging the father of the child to pay £10 12s. 9d. for the lying-in expenses of the mother, & for the support of the child up to the date of the order, is substantially good, though it does not follow the form given in 1 R. 348 i. Form of order.]—An order for maintenance of a bastard is sufficient if it follows the general form of order given by Justices of the Peace Act, 1865; it is not objectionable in omitting to make its duration contingent upon the life of the child. But it will be bad if it include the costs in the amount for which surety is required, or if it order the costs to be paid to the mother, when another person, e.g., grandmother, is complainant.—R. v. BINDON, Ex p. FITZPATRICK (1877), 3 V. L. R. 3.—AUS.

348 ii. ——— Power to order imprisonment in default of payment.]—Held: justices had no power, under Deserted Wives & Children Act, to order imprisonment in default of compliance with an order for maintenance, but the ct. had power, under Justices Act, 1886, to amend the order, & strike out the order for imprisonment.—SMITH v. GWYNNE, Ex p. GWYNNE (1906), S. R. Q. 251.—AUS.

348 iii. ——— Whether retrospective—Expenses of birth.]—An order for the support of an illegitimate child under Destitute Persons Relief Act, 1877, ss. 6, 7, & 8, cannot be made retrospective. No order for expenses of & incidental to the birth of the child can be made except where there has been a refusal to support, & an order for support is sought & can be made in consequence of such refusal. A refusal to support must be a refusal after request.—GREAVES v. SUTHERLAND (1890), 8 N. Z. L. R. 556.—N.Z.

349 i. ——— Statement of jurisdiction.]—Where a stat. authorised a justice of the peace to make a filiation order:—Held: it was no objection to an order made by a judge having the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, that the order did not indicate the capacity in which the judge was acting.—Re HOLMES (1918), 2 W. H. was one of several places within the petty sessional division of B. where the petty sessions were usually holden, & the justices who made the order usually acted for the townships in the neighbourhood of H. including the place where the mother resided:—Held: the order showed no jurisdiction, as it did not appear to be made at a petty sessions holden in & for the petty sessional division where the mother resided.—R. v. WHITTLES (1849), 13 Q. B. 248; 3 New Mag. Cas. 102; 3 New Sess. Cas. 397; 18 L. J. M. C. 96; 12 L. T. O. S. 447; 13 J. P. 365; 13 Jur. 403; 116 E. R. 1258.

The order was signed by C. & E. On a motion to quash the order which had been brought up by a certiorari:—Held: it must be taken in effect to state that C. & E. were justices of the peace & a majority of those present.—*Ex p. 361. Abandonment of order—Re-hearing—Payment of costs.]—A woman applied at petty sessions for an order of affiliation. The case was adjourned & an order made at the adjourned petty sessions on the putative father, who appealed to quarter sessions. Before those sessions were held, the attorney for the mother gave notice of abandoning his order & tendered to applt.'s attorney thirty shillings for costs, which he accepted supposing the sum to be offered in discharge only of the costs of the adjournment, the sum being, in fact, much below the whole amount of costs. The residue being unpaid, the mother's attorney requested the justices in petty sessions to re-hear the case for the purpose of making another order. A writ for mandamus to the justices to re-hear the case was refused, because the abandonment had not been completed by replacing applt. in his original situation & the order was still in force.—*R. v. 362. Defective order—Supersedeas—Second order.]—An order of affiliation, void for defects appearing on the face of it, is altogether a nullity & may be treated just as if the justices who made the

made an order of filiation against him, & he entered into a bond to abide that order. The order was such as was not warranted by stat. A second order was obtained, from which deft. appealed. The jury, although instructed by the judge not to confirm this second order order had never heard the case at all, & it is not necessary to proceed either by way of appeal or writ of certiorari in order to quash it.

The justices had on Jan. 1 made an order against deft. which order stated the appearance of the putative father in pursuance of the summons to appear, but omitted to state that the evidence had been heard by the justices "in his presence & hearing." The order was served, but no payment was made under it, & on Apr. 25 the same justices indorsed upon the order a supersedeas under their hands & seals, by which in terms they absolutely & irrevocably annulled & made void the order upon the ground that it was invalid according to law, by reason of certain errors therein & omissions therefrom. The supersedeas was served on deft., & on the next day a fresh complaint was lodged & a fresh summons issued by the justices. Deft. protested against the jurisdiction of the justices, who made a second order on May 6:—Held: the justices had jurisdiction to make the second order, although the first had not been got rid of on appeal or by writ of certiorari, & an indictment for disobedience of it was maintainable.—*R. v. 363. Mistake in order—Correction.]—Justices signed two orders intended to be duplicates, but by mistake the order served upon the father ordered the mother instead of the father to pay one shilling & sixpence a week. Afterwards a correct copy of the order was drawn up & served upon the father : —Held : as there was only one order made, the service of an incorrect copy of it could not vitiate the order, & a correct copy might afterwards be drawn up, served, & enforced.—WILKINS v. 364. .]—Two justices, on Jan. 30, 1872, adjudicated deft. to be the father of a bastard child & ordered him to pay 2s. a week from the date of its birth towards its maintenance. An order, in writing, was drawn up by the clerk & signed by the justices who adjudicated upon the summons, & served on deft., but it was subsequently ascertained that in this document the sum of 2s. 6d. had been inserted whereas the sum of 2s. only ought to have appeared, & that the date of the birth of the child had been altogether omitted. No proceeding was taken to enforce it, & deft. refused to make & did not make any payment to complainant. Complainant in May, 1872, applied to the justices for a proper order, & an order dated Jan. 30, 1872, embodying correctly the verbal adjudication of that date, was thereupon made out & signed by the same justices & served on deft., who refused to obey it, & the payments under it being in arrear, he was committed to prison pursuant to 1844 Act. On an application for a writ of habeas corpus :—Held : the same justices were entitled to cause a second order to be drawn up & enforced embodying correctly the terms of their adjudication, notwithstanding the first order had not been quashed, & there had been no fresh summons or hearing or by their verdict, found against deft.—Held: their verdict must be set aside.—ST. PATRICK'S OVERSEERS OF THE POOR v. FOYLE (1868), 7 N. S. R. 197.—CAN.

366 i. Effect of order—Conclusive.]—A judgment on scire facias on a recognisance in bastardy proceedings, under 1 R. S. c. 57, is conclusive while it stands, & deft. cannot object to the amount of Subsequently an action for damages for the seduction of A. was brought by her mother against deft. :—Held: pltf. in the action was not estopped by the order of the ct. of quarter sessions from alleging that deft. was the father of the child, as it was not a judgment in rem, but merely inter partes.—ANDERSON v. 369. ——— Illegal warrant—Issue of fresh warrant.]—Though justices commit a putative father against whom an affiliation order has been made upon an illegal warrant, from which he is discharged at the next sessions, still they may afterwards issue a fresh warrant, founded on the original order ; but if the case falls within 49 Geo. 3, c. 68, s. 3, as an order unappealed from, the commitment for non-payment of maintenance must be for three months, unless the money is sooner paid. A general commitment until the putative father pays two several sums, one for maintenance, & the other for costs, is bad in toto.—Re ADDIS (1822) 2 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 167.

370. — Pending appeal.]—The jurisdiction given to a single justice of the peace by 1844 Act, s. 3, to issue a warrant against the putative father for the purpose of enforcing payment under an affiliation order, is not suspended by an appeal by the father to quarter sessions against the order, & the confirmation of the order by the sessions subject to a special case.

An affiliation order was confirmed upon appeal, & costs taxed by the Sessions. If the costs are excessive, application should be made to the Sessions to reduce them.—R. v. CARSON (1864), 6 All. 138.—CAN.

Sect. 6.—Enforcement of order. Sect. 7: Sub-sect. 1.] subject to a special case. Distress—Justices' discretion.]—Justices have a discretion as to enforcing an order of affiliation by distress; but where they declined to issue their warrant, on the ground that the putative father was discharged from the order by reason of the husband of the mother having returned & cohabited with her:—Held: the justices must issue the distress warrant.—*Ex p. 373. Enforcement by guardians—Absence of mother.]—The mother of an illegitimate child, who had obtained an affiliation order, allowed the child to become chargeable to a union, & went to reside permanently in America. The putative father objected that since the mother was alive, & of sound mind, & not in any gaol or prison, nor under sentence of transportation, she was the only person who could enforce the order against him, & that the guardians of the union could not enforce it in her absence:—Held: 1872 Act, s. 7, empowered the guardians to enforce the order against the putative father, & to recover the weekly payments & arrears under it where the mother was living abroad.—JONES v. MERTHYR TYDFIL UNION (1911), 105 L. T. 203; 75 J. P. 390; 22 Cox, C. C. 551; 9 L. G. R. 767.

Recognisances—Court of summary jurisdiction.]—Held: the recognisance mentioned in Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (c. 49), s. 31 (3), might be entered into before any ct. of summary jurisdiction, whether acting for the same county as the ct. from whose order the appeal was brought or not.—R. v. DURHAM JJ., [1895] 1 Q. B. 801; 64 L. J. M. C. 187; 72 L. T. 465; 59 J. P. 264; 43 W. R. 423; 39 Sol. Jo. 383; 18 Cox, C. C. 120; 15 R. 319, D. C.

392. ——— Deposit—Settling amount.]—A putative father, on an order of affiliation being made against him, at once said he would appeal, & on application, he was allowed to deposit £20 in lieu of entering into a recognisance. Four days later a formal notice of appeal was served. On the hearing of the appeal at Quarter Sessions objection was taken that no recognisance had been regularly entered into, & the ct. refused to hear the appeal:—Held: before settling recognisances & the amount of deposit, the notice of appeal should have been before the justices, & the quarter sessions had rightly refused to hear the appeal.—R. v. ANGLESEY

PART VI. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 1.

a. From order made under Infant Protection Act, 1904 (No. 27).]—Parties have the right to appeal to a ct. of Quarter Sessions from the ct. constituted by virtue of the above Act.—Ex p. STARK (1905), 5 S. R. N. S. W. 458. —AUS.

p. ———.]—On the hearing of a complaint under s. 8 of the above Act the magistrate refused to make any order:—Held: this amounted to a dismissal of the complaint & applt. had the right to appeal to Quarter Sessions under s. 26.—Ex p. WOODLANDS (1905), 5 S. R. N. S. W. 450.—AUS.

393. — Notice of.]—Upon an appeal against an affiliation order it is not necessary for applt. to give notice in writing of having entered into a recognisance to prosecute the appeal.—R. v. WEST RIDING JJ. (1882), 46 J. P. 517, D. C.

394. — Twin children.]—Justices at petty sessions, after verbally adjudging B. to be the putative father of twin bastard children, & ordering him to pay 1s. a week for the maintenance of each, drew up a separate order in respect of each child. B. gave notice of appeal, & entered into a separate recognisance to prosecute in each case. One notice of recognisance only was served on the mother by the attorney of B., & it stated, "We hereby give you notice that B. has entered into a recognisance to try an appeal," etc., "against an order of affiliation made on," etc., "whereby B. was adjudged to be the father of two bastard children of which you had lately been delivered." It was objected that the notice was insufficient, as there was no such recognisance as that stated in the notice, & no such order as an order adjudging B. to be the father of two children:—Held: the notice of recognisance was sufficient as, putting a reasonable construction upon it, it gave the mother sufficient information that B. had entered into recognisances to appeal in respect of each child.—R. v. LEEDS RECORDER (1852), 21 L. J. M. C. 171; 19 L. T. O. S. 126; 16 J. P. 665; 16 Jur. 451.

395. — Death of mother.]—After an order in bastardy had been made, the putative father, intending to appeal, entered into a recognisance, according to 1845 Act, & on the same day sent notice of his having done so by post to the woman. When the appeal came on to be tried, it was proved that the woman had died before the notice to her was posted. The sessions, being of opinion that a condition imposed by the Act as preliminary to an appeal had not been complied with, refused to hear the appeal:—Held: performance of the condition imposed by law having by the act of God become impossible, its performance was excused, & a peremptory mandamus to enter continuances & hear the appeal was awarded.—R. v. LEICESTERSHIRE JJ. (1850), 15 Q. B. 88; 4 New Mag. Cas. 83; 4 New Sess. Cas. 124; 19

397. — Examination of mother—Corroboration.]—Held: under 1845 Act, the mother need not be examined on the trial of an appeal against an order in bastardy, but, if tendered as evidence, she must be corroborated in some material particular by other testimony.—R. v. BUCKINGHAMSHIRE JJ. (1849), 3 New Sess. Cas. 500; 18 L. J. M. C. 113; 13 Jur. 1053.

398. Order quashed—Costs—Distress for—Imprisonment.]—Upon appeal to quarter sessions against an affiliation order, the order was quashed with costs, & resp. in default of distress committed to prison:—Held: the right to the costs must be taken to be a right to a sum of money recoverable summarily before a justice of the peace within the exception in Debtors Act, 1869 (c. 62), & resp. was not protected from imprisonment.—R. v. PRATT, Ex p. COLE (1870), L. R. 5 Q. B. 176; 39 L. J. M. C. 73; 21 L. T. 750; 34 J. P. 150; 18 W. R. 626.

399. Mandamus to hear appeal — Rule nisi—Service.]—On an application for a mandamus to the sessions to hear an appeal against an affiliation order, a copy of the rule nisi should be served on resp. as well as the justices; but where this had not been done, the ct. allowed the rule to be made absolute on terms.—R. v. DERBYSHIRE JJ. (1844), 1 New Sess. Cas. 461; 9 Jur. 181.

SUB-SECT. 2.—OTHER MODES OF APPEAL.

400. Certiorari—When granted—Defect in jurisdiction.]—B., the alleged father of a bastard, resided with his parents, & had set out for a month's tour, which he took annually at the same season of the year, leaving word he would be back in a month, but leaving no address where he might be found in

PART VI. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 2.

400 i. Certiorari—When granted—Delay.]—An order of affiliation was made in Jan., 1865. In Jan., 1866, the Sessions adjudged deft. to be imprisoned for not obeying the order:—Held: too late to apply for a certiorari to remove the proceedings for an alleged defect in the order of affiliation.—R. v. KENNEDY (1866), 6 All. 335.—CAN.

q. Mandamus — When granted — Wrong decision at law.]—On an application for a maintenance order against the father of an illegitimate child under Deserted Wives & Children Act (4 Vict. No. 5), a magistrate erroneously decided that he could not make an order without the evidence of the mother:—Held: the decision was merely a wrong decision at law, & not a refusal to exercise jurisdiction, & a mandamus should not be granted to compel him to hear & determine the case.—Ex p. AUSTEN (1897), 18 N. S. W. L. R. 216.—AUS.

r. — Infants Protection Act, 1904 (No. 27), ss. 8, 26.]—No appeal lies under s. 26 from the refusal of a magistrate to adjudicate on an application under s. 8, & a mandamus must be granted where the magistrate's refusal was wrong.—Ex p. BRYANT (1906), 6 S. R. N. S. W. 712.—AUS.

s. Prohibition—When granted—Infants Protection Act, 1904 (No. 27).]—The ct. constituted by virtue of the above Act is not a ct. of Petty Sessions & there is no appeal by way of statutory prohibition under Justices Act, 1902, but parties have the right to appeal (inter alia) by way of a common law prohibition, if the ct. has exceeded its jurisdiction.—Ex p. STARK (1905), 5 S. R. N. S. W. 458.—AUS.

Evidence wrongly admitted.]—Even if a judge of an inferior ct. errs in over-ruling objections made to a resp. being compelled to give evidence against himself on an appeal from an order made under Illegitimate Children's Act (Man.), & in receiving & considering the evidence, that does not furnish a ground for prohibition, if it is admitted that he has jurisdiction to entertain the appeal.—Re PALL SIGURDSON (1916), 33 W. L. R. 325; 9 W. W. R. 940; 28 D. L. R. 375; 25 Man. L. R. 832.—CAN.

x. Action for declaration of paternity—Amount of claim—Future rights.]—In an action en déclaration de paternité pltf. claimed an allowance of $15 per month until the child (then a minor aged four years & nine months), should attain the age of ten years, & for an allowance of $20 per month thereafter "until such time as the child should be able to support & provide for himself":—Held: (1) apart from the contingent character of the claim, the demande was for less than the sum or value of two thousand dollars, & the case was not appealable under Supreme & Exch. Cts. Act, s. 29; (2) the nature of the action & demande did not bring the case within the exception as to "future rights" mentioned in the sect.—MACDONALD v. GALIVAN (1898), 28 S. C. R. 258.—CAN.

y. To county court judge—When jurisdiction arises.]—A ct. judge has no jurisdiction to hear & determine an appeal from a filiation order made by justices of the peace, until the order of filiation, & all the papers connected therewith, have been sent by the justices to the proper clerk of the ct. to be filed by him, as required by Cty. Cts. Act, R. S. N. S. c. 156. s. 69.—OVERthe meantime. During his absence an affiliation summons was served at his father's house. At the hearing his mother attended before the justices & explained that her son was from home & knew nothing of the summons, but if the hearing was adjourned for a fortnight, he would then have returned home. The justices refused to adjourn the hearing & made the order, which was regular ex facie:—Held: although the justices would have exercised a wise discretion in adjourning the hearing, still, as they had complied with 1844 Act, the ct. had no right to grant a certiorari according to the recognised rule of only granting it in case of defective jurisdiction appearing ex facie.—R. v. BROWN (1859), 1 L. T. 29; 24 J. P. 5; 8 W. R. 60.

401. — — — — —.]—On the hearing of a bastardy summons the magistrates ordered all the witnesses out of ct. until examined, & refused to hear a witness who had remained in ct. Upon an application for a certiorari to quash the order made on the summons:—Held: there was no ground for the application, & the ct. had no jurisdiction to direct the justices to rehear the case, the remedy being by appeal to the quarter sessions.—Ex p. WRIGHT (1875), 39 J. P. Jo. 85.

402. — — — — — Order obtained in breach of good faith.]—Where an affiliation order was obtained in breach of good faith, the ct. granted a rule nisi for a certiorari.—Ex p. EVANS (1872), 36 J. P. Jo. 759.

403. — — — — — Service of summons.]—At the hearing of an application for an affiliation order evidence was given that the summons had been served by being left at the house where the person alleged to be the father of the child resided. He did not appear, and the justices heard evidence & adjudged him to be the putative father of the child & made an order accordingly. He subsequently applied for a certiorari to bring up the order to be quashed, on the ground that the summons had not been properly served, and he established that at the date of the service of the summons he had left the house at which it was served & was resident in America:—Held: as the jurisdiction of the justices only attached a proof that the summons was duly served the ct. had power to enquire into the validity of the service & would grant a certiorari, if it were shown that the service was invalid.—R. v. FARMER, [1892] 1 Q. B. 637; 61 L. J. M. C. 65; 65 L. T. 736; 56 J. P. 341; 40 W. R. 228; 8 T. L. R. 159; 36 Sol. Jo. 123; 17 Cox, C. C. 413, C. A.

Annotation:—Mentd. R. v. Webb, [1896] 1 Q. B. 487.

404. — — — — — Amendment of order—Omission supplied.]—An order of affiliation omitted to state that the mother's residence was within the petty sessional division, but the summons, a copy of which was in evidence, alleged this fact which was not otherwise proved:—Held: the justices had sufficient grounds before them to draw up the order without the omission, & on a certiorari to quash the order the ct. might amend it.—R. v. HIGHAM (1857), 7 E. & B. 557; 26 L. J. M. C. 116; 29 L. T. O. S. 105; 22 J. P. 6; 3 Jur. N. S. 691; 5 W. R. 507; 119 E. R. 1352.

405. — — — — — Substantial error.]—The mother of a bastard child obtained a summons against deft. in Aug., 1870, but withdrew it when the hearing came on. She obtained another summons, in which the complaint was stated to have been that day made, in Mar., 1871, & upon the hearing of that summons the justices ordered deft., as putative father, to pay for the support of the child from the date of the first summons in Aug., 1870. The order having been brought up on certiorari, an application was made by the complainant to amend the date in the order by inserting instead the date of the second summons:—Held: the ct. had no power to make such an amendment, as the adjudication was wrong in a point of substance.—R. v. TOMLINSON (1872), L. R. 8 Q. B. 12; 42 L. J. M. C. 1; 27 L. T. 544; 37 J. P. 678; 21 W. R. 170.

z. New trial—When granted—Point not raised at first hearing.]—On appeal to the ct. from an order of affiliation made by a stipendiary magistrate, the only matter in controversy was the question of paternity, & the only evidence given before the jury was confined to that point. Deft. applied for a new trial on the ground that the amount which the magistrate ordered deft. to pay had not been put before or passed upon by the jury:—Held: it was incumbent upon deft. to have raised the point when the case was being given to the jury, & having failed to do so at that time, he was estopped from doing so afterwards.—SHEET HARBOUR OVERSEERS OF THE

b. From preliminary suit at quarter sessions.]—A preliminary suit at quarter sessions for maintenance of an illegitimate child was dismissed. On appeal, which was tried by a jury, a verdict was found for applt.—FITZGERALD v. PORT-ARLINGTON, 1 Ir. L. Rec. 1st Ser. 503.—IR.

c. What evidence admissible — Mother's evidence.]—On appeal from an order under Destitute Persons Act, 1894, s. 9, the evidence of the mother of an illegitimate child is not indispensable. The intention is to provide that the appellate ct. may take the mother's evidence, but if it does it must have corroborative evidence.

The provision in s. 42 that in all proceedings under the Act the magistrate may receive any evidence as to him may seem fit, whether the same be strictly legal evidence, or not, is applicable to proceedings on appeal, & is not confined only to the hearing before the magistrate.—*DORMER v.
